Presented to the World Methodist Library Building, Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, in memory of the Reverend H. L. Isley who passed away March 27, 1960, after serving as a pastor in the Methodist Church for thirty-two years, the earlier part being in the former Methodist Protestant Church.

These volumes of the Methodist Protestant "Herald" were bound and preserved by him and are given by his widow, Mrs. H. L. Isley, in April, 1964.

Church Finances

Not a very pleasant subject to a great many people. But it depends very largely on one's attitude toward it whether it is pleasant or unpleasant.

You may look upon it as a matter of obligation, a duty to be performed whether or no. You may give grudgingly or of necessity. Because one does not want to give is no excuse for not giving. And to give because one must takes the joy out of it. But as a member of the church you cannot shirk the responsibility or refuse to assume the obligation. "Will you contribute as God gives you ability to the support of the gospel ministry in this church and to its works of Christian benevolence, remembering that you are stewards of whatsoever wealth you may possess?" The answer is, "I will." There are only two ways out of that obligation, that solemn covenant taken before God and the church. One is to be false to it; to refuse to do what you promised to do. The other is to have no ability to give. There are not many in the latter class. It may be you cannot give largely. God does not ask that, the church does not require it. But if you have any money for yourself, you must have something for God.

Or you may look upon this matter of church finances as an opportunity, a privilege to be grasped. You may give cheerfully, gladly, seeing in the act of giving both worship and service. He who gives his money gives part of himself and through it projects himself into all the activities for which his money may be used. I give a dollar to High Point College, for instance. My dollar with the other dollars from men of like minds helps to maintain an educational institution, helps to make possible to our young people a training they would otherwise not get. You say, "The State will do it if the church does not." But you forget that your taxes help pay for that, a forced contribution, taken from you whether you want it taken or not. The church cannot do it unless you give it willingly, because you see in it an opportunity. So is it with giving to missions. See in it an opportunity to spread the joyful sound to earth's remotest bound; to be your substitute in carrying out Christ's last command. Giving then becomes not a burden but a delight. If through my giving, and the giving of others as they share with me, some missionary gives his life service on the foreign field, some mission station is kept running, and the light continues to burn in the darkness, I have more than discharged an obligation. I have grasped an opportunity.

I crave for the members of our churches everywhere a new attitude toward giving. Forget the assessment, the apportionment, the quota, whatever you may call it. See it as a goal to be reached for the extension of the Kingdom and the glory of God.

Sacrifice

St. John 12:24—Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

Sacrifice is the law of life. A man, looking back over the years, cried out, The only thing I have is that which I have given away. The grain of wheat referred to by our Lord would have remained just one grain of wheat if it had not given itself, but having gone down into the earth, it became a part of a million more grains of wheat with which to feed a hungry world. But our Lord was not primarily interested in farming. He was interested in principles. Let us look then at the scripture from which this text is taken. The Passover feast was near at hand. Our Lord had come up to Jerusalem to keep the feast. He rode in triumph into the city at the head of a great procession who were wanting to make him king. While in the city certain Greeks came to the disciples and said they wanted to see Jesus. The disciples came to the Master, doubtless, with words of congratulation. It takes but a little stretch of the imagination to hear them say, Master, You are making progress now. The multitudes have given you homage, now here are some foreigners who are interested in your cause. The days of adversity are at an end, now is the time to declare yourself a king, now is the time to throw off the Roman yoke, Master, the hour is struck, this is the day of destiny. We can almost hear our Lord say, You do not know what you are talking about. I have not come to establish an earthly kingdom but a spiritual one. It is indeed true that the hour has come when I am to beglorified but it shall be done in an entirely different manner from what you think. I have come, said he, to give my life rather than to take the lives of others. And then a little later he said, And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me. This he said, signifying what death he should die. The disciples wanted him to choose the easy way, Jesus chose the hard way. They wanted him to receive rich gifts from men, Jesus gave himself. The best things in life do not come easily. The poet has said, Heights by great men reached and kept, were not attained by sudden flight, But they, while their companions slept, were toiling upward through the night. The truth of the matter is, it is not easy to do anything that is worthwhile. The person who is looking for an easy task is doomed to disappointment. It is not ease that most people need but exercise. It is not to have the load lifted from our shoulders that we need but a wlilingness to walk steadily under the load. A great many country preachers have felt that if they could only get to town their problems would all be solved while a great many town preachers wish for the

HOW HE BECAME A PROHIBITIONIST

Some months ago I saw the moving picture, "The Wet Parade." This is based on the novel of the same title by Upton Sinclair. While the producers of the picture took some liberties with the book—indulging in some unjustified slams against the work of prohibition enforcement agents—it is, on the whole, a very effective and unanswerable temperance tract, as is also the book.

I have just read Mr. Sinclair's recently published autobiography, "The American Outpost (A Book of Reminiscences)". It deals with many interesting things in an unusually suggestive way—I may want to write of some of them at another time. But the thing of special concern just now is: How did the author become so determinedly set against the drink habit and the liquor traffic?

Upton Sinclair's father was the son of a Captain in the U. S. Navy, and was born and brought up in Norfolk, Virginia. This son became a wholesale whisky salesman and "drank," as did "Southern gentlemen" generally at that time. Later he became a drummer for straw-hat manufacturers, and then for manufacturers of men's clothing, carrying his taste for liquor with him.

"I saw it and smelled it and heard it everywhere I turned," writes Sinclair, "but I never tasted it. The reason was my mother, whose whole married life was poisoned by alcohol, and who taught me a daily lesson of horror. It took my good and gentle father thirty or forty years to kill himself, and I watched the process week by week and sometimes hour by hour. It made an indelible impression on my childish soul, and is the reason for my being a prohibitionist, to the dismay of my 'libertarian' friends.

"It was not that my father could not earn money, but that he could not keep it. He would come home with some bank notes and the salvation of his wife and little son would depend upon the capture of this treasure. My mother acquired the habit of going through his pockets at night; and since he never knew how much he had brought home, there would be arguments in the morning, an unending duel of wits. Father would hide the money when he came in late, and then in the morning he would forget where he had hidden it, and there would be searchings under mattresses and carpets and inside the lining of clothing—all sorts of unlikely places. If the wife found it first, you may be sure the husband was allowed to go on looking. When he was not under the influence of the Demon Rum, the little "drummer" dearly loved his family; so the thirty years during which I watched him were one long moral agony."

What a life for a sensitive, cultivated woman and for the little boy who adored his mother and wanted to help his father!

"Every year he was gripped more tightly in the claws of his Demon," continues Mr. Sinclair speaking of his father. He would disappear for days, and it would be my task to go and seek him in the bar-rooms which he frequented. I would find him, and there would be a moral battle. I would argue and plead and threaten; he would weep, or try to assert his authority—though I cannot recall that he ever pretended to be angry with me. I would lead him up the street, and every corner saloon would be a new contest. 'I must have just one more drink, son. I can't go home without one more. If you only knew what I am suffering!' I would get him to bed, and hide his trousers so that he could not escape, and mother would make cups of strong black coffee, or perhaps a drink of warm water and mustard. It was the life of millions of women in those days of the American saloon . . . Later on, things grew worse yet. My father would no longer be found in his old haunts; he would be ashamed for his friends to see him, and would wander away. I would seek him on the Bowery (in New York City)—the 'Highway of Lost Men.' . . . I would walk for hours, peering into scores of places, and at last I would find him, sunk into a chair or sleeping with his arms on a beer-soaked table. Once I found him literally in the gutter—no uncommon sight in those days."

No doubt there is considerable drinking in these days, but if there were any where near as much as in former times, there would be more spilling of the intoxicated onto the walks and into the gutters.

"The experiences with my father," to quote once more from Upton Sinclair, "lasted thirty years; and during this period there were several uncles and cousins, and numerous friends of the family, Southern gentlemen, Northern business men, and even one or two of their wives"—these all demonstrated the seductive influence of drink and its power to destroy. It is well for everybody to remember that the four per cent beer proposed by the House of Representatives was intoxicating in the old days, is intoxicating now, and will produce a crop of drunkards as sure as it becomes a law.

LUTHER K. LONG.

FROM REV. J. F. MINNIS

My dear Dr. McCulloch:

When I last wrote I thought that I would have another message ready for you long before this, but I find my time all taken up. So with something extra to report I am taking this opportunity to get a letter done before mail day.

I am now in camp about fourteen miles out of Dhulia. I have been here about ten days, and this is my first camp of the season. I am trying a new system this year. It is not as fast as the older system but I believe that it has many excellent features the former system did not have. We are working a new village in the early morning but remaining in camp the rest of the day. We have a song service at my tent every evening from 5 to 7 o'clock. Formerly we have been careful not to get too near the village for the dogs and manure piles. But this time we are just outside a village right among the dogs and noise. I have four preachers with me. We go from village to village in a small country cart which is drawn by a pair of horses. I believe I sent you a picture of the outfit some months ago. We have two small Indian drums and a baby organ to make music, while in native fashion we sit on the ground and sing gospel songs. Our assembling place is a new idea which we are trying out for the first time. While we are not meeting with all the success we wish, yet we have received a better hearing than is our usual lot. On the opening night we had a most unusual experience. The Hindu Patil (Mayor) presided and introduced us. After my address he made a few very favorable remarks. On last Wednesday evening a group of school boys came to the tent. I had some new packages to open. One package contained small hymn books. The boys were interested in looking at them. Soon they began to read and by good fortune the song selected was one which I could sing. So I began to teach them. Since that time they have come back three times for more singing. Last evening we had them singing one of our finest songs, "Jesus is my Saviour." We have never before had Hindus come near enough to sing, but on Friday night these boys actually sang publicly at the time of showing the magic lantern pictures to a large crowd. Today a boy from another village came to ask if he could get a song book. We are delighted and pray that the friendly spirit continues. It is great to hear someone in the village singing at work, "God I Want Salvation." Don't get the idea that the people are falling over each other to get here. They are not. But some are friendly. We are grateful for even that much.

The greatest experience of my mission efforts came to me last Saturday night. Just after our evening song service began some one coming to listen was bitten by a snake not more than 25 steps from our tent. As soon as he gave the alarm I took the lantern and went to see. I saw the prints on his foot so was sure that he had been bitten. So at once we set about giving him first aid. I carry with me a medicine kit so simple remedies I have with me. After we had done all we could do, some Hindu fake doctors were called in. It is impossible to describe the great amount of ignorance shown by these men. As the bitten man was in our assembly tent, we refused to allow them to touch the place where the snake had bitten the man. A string was taken from his head, cloth wrapped about his head. Repeating some magic formulas the string was waved over his head towards the bitten foot. Then he was made to sit up and open his eyes wide. When he did this a man took some water which had been drawn from a well without allowing the rope to fall on the ground, and threw it in his face and eyes. Several hands' full of water was thrown in his face. Each time the hand was filled with water the man repeated some more magic words to the water. Then the snake was brought. Cotton seed, were placed under its head while an egg was laid on top the head. Then an old man, with a gown-night-shirt like dress on, repeated more magic words while he poured several different kinds of powder on the whole length of the snake. Then the same old man took a few branches from a certain tree and hit the patient over the head a few times and continued to wave them over him with a head to foot motion. Then he put his hand on the ground touched his forehead, both cheeks, and his tongue. Then he turned in all directions repeating the names of Hindu gods. It was almost two hours since the man had been bitten when the Hindu cures finished. Then I decided that it was time to do something more. We had done all I knew to do. The men all said that it was a Cobra, and a Cobra's bite is said to be fatal. So I suggested that they permit us to take the man in our cart to Dhulia, fourteen miles away. This they refused to do. Then I suggested that we would call the doctor from Dhulia. To this they agreed. As it was now 9 o'clock at night no one wanted to go for the doctor. So I called for my best horse and with only a pad from the cart I rode the fourteen miles in less than one and a half hours. By good fortune the Mission Doctor had not retired, so soon we had medicine for snake bite and within a few minutes were back in the village. Treatment was given the man and after several cups of hot tea he was put in bed. Yesterday morning he seemed little the worse except that his foot was badly swollen. I doubt yet that the snake was a poisonous one. But be it as it may we have become the subject of conversation in the two nearby villages. As a result of the treatment of the patient, I had two cases of blindness yesterday, and today had to make several calls on sick people. One case today was that of a young girl said to be possessed with a devil. Yesterday morning the family of the bitten man said to me, "Sir, we have met a new god." We are praying that in reality they may come to know Him who cures the sting of sin.

As it is getting late and I must be off at daybreak, I must stop. Trusting that your work is going well, I am,

November 22, 1932.

My dear Dr. McCulloch:

For several days I have thought of writing you a note on the subject "Voices of the Night." I have a few minutes before time to sleep so shall start it with the hope that I shall be able to finish it before mail day.

Many of you who live in the city find the voices of the night on the farm so trying that seldom do you sleep well the first night of your vacation in the country. In like manner many visitors to India find the first nights too loud to enjoy sound sleep. However, after ten years there are voices which I am very fond of hearing. One time I was sleeping in the open for several days, so at certain hours every night I heard a man calling in a very loud voice. At first it sounded like the man was in great pain or badly frightened. Later on I came to know and appreciate it. The man was not in trouble as it seemed but it was a Mohammedan Priest calling the people to prayer. He called during the day too but we seldom noticed it then but in the early hours before time to retire and again before day his voice broke the silent night with a call to prayer. Night after night as I heard that voice I too turned my thoughts heavenward in communion with the "One God." Sometimes we Christians think that because we have the only true conception of God other religions have nothing to teach us. It is true that Mohammedanism has nothing new to teach us about God, but how often, I have thought that we might well use the idea of having our attention called to the fact that it is time to look up.

Another voice which we always hear in Dhulia is that of watchmen in public places or on large estates. When the hour is struck, not by a bell or clock, but by a man beating the hour on an iron bar, other watchmen call the hour and "All Is Well." It is little less than inspiring to be awake during the dead hours of the night and hear someone call out the hour and to know that all is well. It is good to know that while we sleep others are watching and on the hour inform us that they are awake and all is quiet.

Another voice I like to hear is heard only early in the morning just before daylight. This voice is that of the women who are doing their grinding for the morning meal. Often two women grind and sing while they work. Their voices are as one and on a cool winter morning it is sweet music indeed.

India has hundreds of other voices, but these three have so impressed me that I wanted to share them with you.

Sincerely,

J. F. MINNIS.

"WHAT HAS GOD EVER DONE FOR ME?"

To the honest agnostic who says he doesn't know whether there is a God or not, but if there is asks the above question, a fair answer would be the counter question "What have you done for yourself?"

You point to your possessions and your achievements. Did you create the intelligence or originate the power that made it possible for you to do what you have done, or to secure what you have? Did any human being give you this intelligence and power? If not, then from whom or what did they come? To a rational mind it would seem that the most satisfactory explanation is found in the first book that was ever printed: "And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth. But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth." If not God, then who or what did?

There is that wonderfully complicated body with its varied insistent needs, which neither you nor any fellow being can supply. What have you or others done to furnish light for the eye, sound for the ear, air for the lungs, food for hunger, sensation for nerves, motion for muscles and sleep for weariness? Somebody or something has given just the exact coordination of supply that satisfies each demand. He grossly insults his common sense who professes to believe that this coordination of demand and supply is brought about by the purposeful intention and action of lifeless unintelligent chance, rather than by that of a personal intelligent Being. Is there any better name than "God" by which this Being, this Personality can be designated? Would not the conclusion of an honest minded thinker be that this "God" not only has done, but also knows?" "Yet they say the Lord shall not see . . . Ye fools, when will ye be wise? He that planted the ear, shall He not hear? He that formed the eye shall He not see?"

In view of the unescapable fact that bodily life and everything pertaining to its maintenance, its capacities for enjoyment and the powers necessary for mental and material achievements are all bestowments from other than some human personality, is it an injustice to affirm that the question "What has God done for me?" is indicative of an unreasoning and unreasonable mind and an unthankful heart?

But in addition to all that God has done for the agnostic and atheist He is able and eager to do infinitely more, but complacent self-sufficiency, foolish pride of "Intellectual Integrity," and rebellious enmity of heart will not permit Him. "I would, but ye would not?" "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ," but both gift and Giver are rejected. "If thou knewest the gift of God He would have given thee living water" to quench that thirst of soul, and "the bread which cometh down from Heaven that a man may eat thereof and not die." "For He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness."

And that is not all. He giveth "the peace of God that passeth all understanding," "joy unspeakable and full of glory," and "hope that maketh not ashamed." Millions who have let God do for them what He wanted to do, testify "The Lord hath done great things for us whereof we are glad." "He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God."

This testimony of the Christian believer concerning the effect of his conviction that God has done something for him, finds corroboration from fair-minded agnostics. One of the best known in an article in the American Magazine confesses: "Your agnostic is tremendously impressed by the power of your faith. He has seen drunkards and libertines and moral degenerates transformed by it. He has seen the sick, the aged and the friendless comforted and sustained by it."

Call the Christian's experience a delusion if you will. It is no delusion but a fact that those who believe God has done something for them are the ones who are doing about all that is being done to relieve human suffering and want, and to impart cheer and hope to saddened hearts. The thousands of hospitals, not only in our own hand, but in China, India, Africa, and Labrador, orphanages, Aged People's Homes, Institutes for the blind, Salvation Army and countless other Relief Associations, were not originated, nor are they managed by agnostics or atheists. Such is the candid admission of the agnostic quoted above: "He is impressed by your wonderful charities, your asylums, your hospitals, your nurseries, your schools . . . He must shamefacedly admit that agnostics, as such, have built few hospitals and few homes for orphans." It is a significant fact that he does not mention any.

"What has God ever done for me?" What hast thou that thou hast not received, and from Whom hast thou received it?

Oxford, Md. JAMES L. ELDERDICE.

A MAN OF PRAYER

A Godly minister came to the place where he had to lay down the active work of a very precious ministry. Voice cracked, health broken; but he was ever a man of prayer. Now that the "plough had been laid by," he saw his opportunity to spend hours in intercession. He sensed that he could so lay hold of God in prayer that his last years might be the high years of his fruitful lifetime. This good man went at it very systematically. In his diary he opened up entrances of special prayer for definite men whom he knew were earnest ministers of the Lord. He concentrated on some one and prayed until a great revival crowned his efforts in intercession. Then he would take on another minister and his work and pray through for him. This he continued for the remaining years. After his death his old diary was found and then there was a tracing of results in the pastorates of these men. It was found that great revivals had come to practically every one of them and in the order of his having taken them on his heart. The greatest work of his lifetime was done in these years of intercession.—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Enlistment Through Organizations

Board of stewards, trustees, advisory committees, class leaders, women's auxiliaries and such other organizations in the church should by now be well organized and actively employed in some definite Christian service. They should be used for the fuller enlistment of the entire church membership.

For in too many of our churches a place on most of these boards and committees means nothing more than giving a name to the inactivity of those who constitute them. Some of them never hold a meeting during the entire year—do not even elect a chairman. So the church might as well never have elected them in so far as putting them to service is concerned.

The biggest problem before the church appears to me to be that of enlisting more of its members in Christian service. While we must get new members, yet those who are already members must be given something to do, must find a place in the ranks instead of the infirmary. The varied list of talent unused in the average church and the varied kinds of work which waits for the church to do, point to the fact that the problem before our leaders centers in the proper placement of such members into the forms of activity they can best perform.

Things Somebody Should Do

Find new members, create or stimulate a spirit of missions and then direct it into larger activities; form new Sunday School classes, enlarge old ones; try to meet the spiritual needs of the church, solve its financial problems, make provision for the poor, help the backsliding and tempted, secure larger attendance upon public worship, etc. This list might be greatly enlarged, but this is sufficient for emphasis. As stated above these things and many others should be done. Who will do them? WILL YOU DO YOUR PART?

Let us direct our energies towards making a more efficient church membership by enlisting more members in religious service. If in all other forms of activities we must learn to do by doing—excellence comes only through repeated and painstaking efforts—it is likewise true of the church. To our officers and other leaders, let us make this the motto for the year, We will endeavor to find some one willing to serve and teach him or her to be a worker that needeth not to be ashamed in the vineyard of the Lord.

English Street Church, Rev. C. H. Hill, pastor—I visited this church unannounced on Christmas Day. It was raining, just the sort of a day to keep people at home. Besides it was Christmas day when many people go visiting. So the attendance at both Sunday School and church service was small, far below the average, we were told.

This church property was purchased from the Reformed church some twelve years ago. It is in a community which greatly needs a church. While the exact spot our church occupies is not the best, the community has other locations which would be admirable for our church, could the present property be disposed of and a new location obtained. This property is really now more valuable as business property than for church property and when real estate again becomes active, it might be well for a change to be made. But the matter of greatest concern now is the debt on both properties. The church had been paid for when the parsonage was bought, and recently I understand the party who has a mortgage on the parsonage property was also given a mortgage on the church property, so the property is in jeopardy. The leaders hope that they may be able to save the property. We would certainly hate to see them lose it. We also held the quarterly conference for this church Friday night, December 30th. There was a good attendance and the spirit of co-operation with the pastor and the conference is fine.

Pastor Hill served this work at a tremendous sacrifice last year, receiving about one-fourth of the small salary promised but was willing to return to them and do his best this year. The people are hopeful of paying up the arrears of last year and are furnishing him a home in the parsonage. This will greatly reduce his living expenses and we are hopeful of a good year at English Street church.

District Chairmen

There were several errors in the list of District Chairmen as appeared in the report of the Stationing Committee at Conference, I am asking for the privilege of printing the corrected list. I am publishing the entire list with corrections:

District 1, W. H. Neese; district 2, L. W. Gerringer; district 3, W. M. Loy; district 4, F. W. Paschall; district 5, T. J. Whitehead; district 6, J. L. Trollinger; district 7, T. M. Johnson; district 8, Edward Suits; district 9, R. C. Stubbins; district 10, R. I. Farmer; district 11, H. F. Surratt; district 12, H. W. Maier—suggesting that districts 12 and 13 unite in meeting; district 14, J. E. Pritchard; district 15, C. E. Ridge; district 16, J. M. Morgan; district 17, G. H. Hendry; district 18, E. G. Cowan.

These districts are composed of the following charges:

1. Creswell, Enfield-Whitakers, Halifax, Littleton, Greensville and Spring Church.
2. Vance, Henderson, Granville.
3. Orange, Mebane, Saxapahaw, Mt. Hermon and Alamance.
4. Graham, Burlington, Fountain Place-Gibsonville and Glen Raven.
5. Grace, Calvary, West End, St. Paul, Midway-Shady Grove.
6. Haw River, Reidsville, Flat Rock, Kernersville and Raper.
7. Moriah, Liberty, Tabernacle and Mt. Pleasant.
8. Randolph, Siler City and Randleman.
9. Asheboro, Richland and Why Not.

10. High Point First, English St., Lebanon, Welch and Pleasant Grove.

11. Thomasville First, Community Church, West End and North Davidson.

14. Forsyth, West Forsyth, Winston First, Winston Southside, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.

15. Fallston, Cleveland, Caroleen, Bess Chapel, Lincolnton, and Connelly Springs.

16. Albemarle, Friendship, Porter, Concord, Kannapolis, Midland and Roberta.

18. Asheville, Weaverville and Democrat.

The District Conference or Meeting

Many years ago the district was divided into what was then called sub-districts and an attempt was made to hold at least one meeting in each sub-district each year. These were held with varying success. But now that there are eighteen of these areas it ought to be quite convenient for the workers to get to a meeting in any of them and to make such a meeting of value to those in attendance. We hope that this may be done during the year.

Future Plans

I am planning for the month of March to hold Area Workers Councils in convenient places from Enfield to Asheville. The first will be held about the first day of March. At this time pastors will submit their reports to the president instead of mailing them in. There will be many things of interest in the Councils. We are announcing them in advance so that no conferences may be planned that might interfer with these proposed Councils.

Plan of Appointments

January 8, 11 a. m.: Community Church, Thomasville; 7:30, West End Church, Thomasville.

January 15, 11 a. m.: State St. Church, Lexington; 7:30, First Church, Lexington.

January 22, 11 a. m.: Kannapolis; 7:30, Concord.

January 29: Friendship Church; Porter, 3 p. m.; 7:30, Albemarle.

February 5: Calvary Church, Greensboro; 7:30, West End.

February 12: Burlington, First; 7:30, Graham.

February 19: Grace Church, Greensboro; 7:30, St. Paul.

February 26: First Church, High Point; 7:30, Lebanon.

If any appointment here announced should be changed, let me know at once. R. M. Andrews.

THE UNBURNABLE PROMISE

Among the curiosities of the Bank of England may be seen some ashes, the remains of some bank notes that were burned in the great Chicago fire. After the fire they were put between boards and brought to the bank. After applying chemical tests, the numbers and value were ascertained and the Bank of England paid the money to the owners. If a human promise can be worth so much, how much more is the promise of God!—Unknown.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PLANS FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF A CONFERENCE LAYMEN'S FELLOWSHIP

Your committee submits the following:

1. That the districts to be set up co-incide with the Annual Conference Districts.

2. That so far as possible laymen be appointed chairmen of these districts, and that they be named by the retiring Annual Conference President. We suggest that a sub or associate chairman be named from among the ministers in each district.

3. That the objective of this organization be to enlist every layman in an active interest in all the work of the Conference. "All the men of the Conference behind the program of the Conference."

4. The scope of the work to be done by the Laymen's Fellowship shall be three-fold:

(A) Social. There is great need of more social contacts between the men of the church. To that end we suggest frequent or regular meetings when the men shall gather themselves together for the purpose of getting acquainted with each other.

(B) Spiritual. An organization of men can be of great help in carrying forward the evangelistic work of the church, either by assisting in the revival service, by personal work within and without the service, or by visitation evangelism. It ought to be the aim of the group to win unsaved or unchurched men in the community to Christ and the church. The group can also do an effective work by regular attendance on the services of the church, thus expressing its loyalty and devotion.

(C) Financial. The Laymen's Fellowship should assist the Board of Stewards in every way possible with the finances of the local church; become informed concerning the financial programs of the Conference and the denomination; assist the pastor to secure the money necessary to put the local church on the Conference Honor Roll; aid in financial campaigns for the Conference Deficit, the Children's Home and the College, and the Herald, which shall be put on by the various Committees of the Conference. They ought to see the financial part of the organization not simply as a means of raising money for certain causes, but as an opportunity to help the Conference and the Denomination to enter upon a new day of service freed from the hampering embarrassment of debt. "Loose them and let them go."

There is appended the suggestions contained in the report of the Committee on Reorganization of the General Conference relative to the set up of the Laymen's Fellowship.

Signed, C. W. Bates
R. I. Farmer.

A STORY OF SADHU SUNDAR SINGH

A Missionary Story

When a young man, Sandhu Sundar Singh was converted from Hinduism to Christ, and when he took his stand as a Christian it cost him home and friends. He paid a visit to this country in 1920, whn he addressed many public meetings, among them being that of the Bible Society, at which he told how he valued the Bible. Two years ago he started out on a journey over the mountains towards Tibet, but no news has been received of him since that time.

A few years ago, while on the mountains bordering Tibet he was caught in a snow storm, and a Tibetan who was afraid of going forward alone joined him. The cold was so intense says Dr. Streeter, who has helped to write a story of his life, that they had already begun to despair of reaching their destination alive, when they saw a man who had slipped down a slope of snow, lying unconscious. The Sadhu asked his companion to help him carry the man to the village. The Tibetan, telling him that he was a fool to try to help another when he could barely save himself, left him and hurried on ahead. The Sadhu went down the slope and managed to get back on the road again with the man on his shoulders, and struggled slowly along. Some distance on he found his companion sitting by the wayside. He called, but there was no answer—he was frozen dead. The Sadhu had become thoroughly warmed by his exertions, and as a result of this warmth and the friction between their bodies, the man he carried also gradually became warmer and came to. Both reached the village alive and full of thankfulness.—Glad Tidings.

THE SOUL THAT SINNETH

Two little Italian lads of New York City were returning from a swim. They were about fifteen years old. Pietro had picked up a piece of copper wire and thought he would have a little fun with the third rail of the New York Central track along which they were walking. He poked away around the wooden covering of the rail but nothing happened. "That's funny," he said, "I guess I didn't touch the right spot." Then he pushed the point of his wire down underneath the covering. There was a flash of blue flame and a shriek of pain as 11,000 volts of electricity shot through the wire. In a moment and less his clothing was on fire and his hair and eyebrows were burned off. He tried to drop the wire as it hissed and sputtered at white heat but it wouldn't let go. He tried to pull it away but it stuck to the rail as if it were soldered there. His little friend tried to pull him away, but he was hurled to the ground with a terrific shock. The brave little fellow threw his rubber coat around Pietro and pulled him loose. Pietro started to run but fainted and fell. They took him to the hospital and the doctor said, "One chance in a thousand to recover."

The two boys said they knew there was something dangerous about that rail. They had heard older peeople say so, but they didn't think it would hurt any to play with it a little. And so sin scorches and burns and kills like a live third rail, and people know it and yet they will trifle with sin. And there are men and women who have played with sin so long it looks to you as if your case is hopeless.

But thanks be to God, sin never took any one so low that Jesus Christ, the God Man, couldn't reach down a little lower and snap the fetters and set him free. That's why He was manifested—to destroy the works of the devil.—W. E. Biederwolf.

free and easy life of the circuit rider. Many people think the Physician has an easy time riding around telling the people what to take, but the physician could tell you another story. It is easy for class to be arrayed against class. Some people think the doctors and the lawyers are not having much trouble these days in collecting their accounts but if you talk with them you find out they are having about as hard a time collecting enough to live on as the preacher is. Yes, the truth of the matter is we all have responsibilities and disappointments and heartaches. Shakespeare said, "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." Thus it was and is and ever shall be. Most parents would be willing to learn the lessons for their children but that would not benefit the children. They must learn to bear their cross, they must learn the lesson of struggle. God would be willing to bear our responsibilities for us but that would not be best for us, so he gives us help and lets us develop by what we do.

Now we want to see that many of the world's benefactors did not have it easy here. Abraham the faithful had to be moving about from place to place to get away from famines. Peaceable Isaac was bothered by his enemies who filled up all the wells he opened up. Jacob mourned greatly over the long lost Joseph. Joseph the innocent was cast into prison. Moses had a hard time pacifying the children of Israel and keeping their faces turned toward the promised land, he himself never having reached it. Joshua had his enemies to contend with, both among his own people and those of other nations. Samuel perhaps, shed bitter tears over the people who desired a king. Saul's life was bitter and ended unhappily. David, in his old age had to flee from the wrath of his rebelious son, besides having to mourn over the sins of his youth. Daniel was cast into a lion's den, Jeremiah into a dungeon. Christ suffered on a cross and the disciples for the most part were put to to death in a horrible manner. The early church fathers had horrible persecution, Lattimer and Ridley and John Wicliff were burned at the stake, John Bunyan was cast into Bedford Jail, and the man in our day who attempts to oppose sin will have opposition. The truth of the matter is, God never promised us an tasy time. Christ said, In the world ye shall have tribulation but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.

HOW SHALL WE KNOW GOD'S WILL

Scripture Text—Psalm 119:105

It seems odd that people would be able to ask how to find out God's will. Surely we have heard the method often but we often look for objects only to find them in our hand. The chief source of finding out the will of God is through the Bible. This Holy Book was written mainly to reveal the will of the Divine and place it in reach of every man. The Bible is a wonderful book which is sure to enlighten the reader. The word of God is a lamp that lights the path of life.

There must be in those who learn the will of God the wish to know. Too many people like to exercise their own wills and therefore, do not care to learn the wishes of the Divine. We see living evidences of self-wills around us in those who have never given their lives to Christ. If the will of God were exercised in all hearts, we would not see so many wasted lives. "It is not the will of God that any should perish but that all might come to repentance." The dictates of our own wills frequently carry us astray, but God never makes a mistake in his leading.

The will of God can sometimes be discerned through conscientious devotion and prayer. Many hearts have heard the still, small voice speaking in the quietness of prayer. Communion with the inner self reveals God's will. It may be, in truth, the Holy Spirit speaking. It is wise to hold frequent talks with the inner spirit.

The will of God is not only revealed to the individual, but also to the larger groups: churches, businesses and nations. Men must not close their hearts to the will of God for it is the safe guide for individuals and groups.

"Open mine eyes that I may see
Glimpses of truth Thou hast for me:
Place in my hand the wonderful key
That shall unclasp and set me free.
Silently now I wait for Thee,
Ready, my God, Thy will to see;
Open mine eyes, illumine me,
Spirit divine."

Have Thine own way, Lord, have Thine own way!
Thou art the potter; I am the clay.
Mould me and make me after Thy will,
While I am waiting, yielded and still.

UNDERSTANDING

Give me, dear God, I pray,
An understanding heart,
That I may do today
My true and useful part.

Give me, dear God, I pray,
A place that I can fill,
Where I may humbly serve
And do Thy perfect will.

Give me, dear Lord, I pray,

NOTES FROM THE CHILDREN'S HOME, HIGH POINT, N. C.

With the help of our many friends from Cooper, Texas, to Inwood, L. I., and from Haddam, Kans., to Gull Lake, Mich., our children had a very fine Christmas and they will be using many of the presents throughout the year 1933.

We received more individually wrapped packages, brand new packages, this time than ever before. We wish all those who so kindly remembered the crildren in any way could have seen and heard them on Christmas Eve in their joy and glee around their Christmas tree in the chapel of our Home. It would have repaid you many times for what you did.

We also wish that you might have heard their ringing hand claps as they thus expressed their deep appreciation for the beautiful and useful gifts they received. We have a very fine group of children and they appreciate you and they are praying for you.

Fine Letters

Many very fine letters have come to us at this holiday season, and they have cheered our hearts. We are taking the liberty of omitting names and publishing one letter which is typical of the many letters which have come:

"My Dear Dr. Dixon:

You will remember my writing you last year and inclosing a check for $2.00 stating that my Sunday school class of eight- and nine-year-old boys and girls had contributed it for the Children's Home. Since that time my class has been divided, but I have seven of the same children in my present class.

For the past eight weeks we have been studying a series of lessons on "Learning to Live and Work Together as God's Children." Growing out of that study the suggestion was made by one of the children that we send some of our money to the little children at High Point. We discussed it and they were sincere, enthusiastic, and willing to share with you. We brought our money the next Sunday and it amounted to $8.00 check in which amount I am inclosing.

One special gift I must tell you about. Little Billy and Fred ———, sons of Dr. and Mrs. ——, are both in my class. Each Christmas their aunt sends them ten dollars together. Last Sunday they were talking about our sending a gift to the Home and suddenly one of them told his daddy that they would like to send half of their money to the little children down here. Of course their parents were willing and they came to me with the money. One boy is eight and the other is six.

Our desire is to help children who are less fortunate than we—to make Christmas a happy occasion to all. I felt that you would like to know something of the very fine spirit in which these small children gave of their very own for the children there. My Sunday school class is one of my greatest delights and I feel we are learning much together.

With best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year for you, Mrs. Dixon, the Workers and the Children of our Home, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
—————, Teacher."

Other letters have come showing that the children and young people throughout the denomination are being taught to share with the children in this Home. Some sent their money, some sent packages of candy and toys, some sent clothing, and still others shared their White Gifts for the King with us. And we assure you that every gift of whatever nature sent us for the benelt of the children here is very deeply appreciated.

May God bless all His people and give them a very happy and prosperous year during 1933.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

THE LIGHTED WAY

(Spiritual Vision)

God makes the way
So plain to me,
That now I know
I clearly see.

He holds my hand
And comforts me,
I realize
I clearly see.

When He is near
And talks to me,
'Tis then that I
Most clearly see.

I know the truth
That makes me free;
Thanks be to God,
I clearly see.

"That's a nice boy," said the visitor as little Bobby picked up his scattered toys. "I suppose your mother has promised you something if you clean up the room?"

"If I didn't!" he corrected.

—How can black walnuts be kept for spring planting? After the nuts are thoroughly cured they should be placed in a pit below the frost line. Place a layer of sand and then a layer of nuts until the pit is filled to one foot of the top. Cover the pit with earth and dig a trench around it to keep out the water. The nuts should remain in this pit until late March or February when they are removed and planted about 2 to 3 inches deep in rich, well drained soil.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Harmoy Grove, West Forsyth Charge.—December 25, 1932, was the regular appointment which was filled by our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way. He preached a wonderful Christmas sermon. The subject was "Where Is He." I am sure that it was enjoyed by everyone present.

The attendance was very good despite the bad weather. Our Sunday school has gone along very nicely for the past year, but we hope there will be great improvement in the next year.

The Christian Endeavor is doing very well, we are making things to sell, to get money for the church.

The Christmas program was given by Harmony Grove school Christmas Eve night. We had a very good program nothwithstanding the bad weather we had and had a very good audience.

We haven't had very much sickness in our community; we are real thankful.

At our church next Sunday we will choose new officers for the coming year.

On Sunday evening, December 18, a pageant "Why the Chimes Rang," was given in pantomime by members of the church and Sunday school. Miss Kate Bullah, member of the faculty of one of the city schools, read the Sweet Story, known and loved by so many in a delightful way. Miss Bullah possesses the accomplishment of being able to read well.

Mrs. Muir had charge of the drilling and all preparations for tre pageant and the beautiful and almost faultless way in which it was presented, spoke well for her talent and efficiency.

Mrs. Gray Davis, Miss Pauline Peeler, and a young lady and gentleman whose names the writer regrets that she has forgotten, added much to the enjoyment of the large audience.

Many have been heard to assert that our entertainment was the best of its kind given in any of the churches here. We feel quite proud of that for splendid Christmas programs weer given in nearly all of the other churches.

On Friday night a program was given by the children and treats distributed.

Dr. and Mrs. Maier were with the Bethesda congregation Sunday morning. One prominent member of the Bethesda church was recently heard to remark that the more the people saw and heard of the new minister and his wife the more they loved them. This is true of the State Street people too, and the writer is recording it by letting Dr. and Mrs. Maier have a few of their flowers while they are living. "What we don't know doesn't hurt us," and by the same token what we don't know doesn't do us any good.

The Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Streetman on Firday evening.

We are sorry to report Mrs. W. T. Neal and Mr. C. L. Koonts on the sick list. Hope they will both be well again soon.

Misses Mildred Leonard and Helen Harkey are spending the holidays in their respective homes. We were glad to have them with us in Sunday school.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Guess every one has enjoyed a very Merry Christmas with plenty of candy and nuts, if Santa was good to you. Have you thought about the precious gift that the Heavenly Father sent us to show His love? I suppose 'most everybody received a gift from some friend for Christmas. Have you received the precious gift (Jesus) into your hearts and lives? Do we love Him as we should? Can we use so precious a gift that was given to us in order that we might be saved from this awful sinful world? Certainly! Give Him your heart, to show your love for Him, and work for Him and yiu will receive a final reward that is worth working for.

The junior class of our Sunday school is having a contest, seeing which one can come every Sunday, bring collection, have lesson prepared, bring quarterly, and have memory verse memorized. Esther Wooten has kept up the above requirements for one year and one quarter, or five quarters (15 months). I wonder how many people have attended Sunday school eevry Sunday for one year, besides fulfilling the above requirements? The junior class also bought Mr. Ferree a Christmas present. You can wonder how much they appreciate our beloved pastor and the work he has done for us.

The senior class with Miss Allison, teacher, and Helen Templeton, president, prepared two baskets for the poor. One basket of food and the other of clothes.

We are using the money that was appropriated to our church for the beautification of its campus. We are hoping it will be so improved that the people will hardly know it.

Witr the exception of Christmas Sunday, during the past quarter, our Sunday school enrollment was 110; but these wintry Sundays with so much snow, has pulled the attendance down to 68 and $10.96. The average of the adult class was 12 and $4.53, senior class, 17 and $2.85, intermediate, ten and $.85, junior, 13 and $1.36., and beginners', 16 and $1.37.

The members of our Sunday school gave a program on Christmas Eve. The program was a success considering the weather. We had Mr. Ferree with us also; that was a treat for all. Mr. Ferree did not preach on Sunday night, because we gave him that appointment to spend at home or whereever he liked. I hope he had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Santa visited us and treated every member of the Sunday school—there were other presents that were given by individuals. Happy New Year to all!

Pleasant Hill Auxiliary, West Forsyth Charge.—The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Pleasant Hill church held the monthly meeting recently at the home of Mrs. W. B. Speas, with Mrs. J. F Hunter, conducting the devotional execises. The Christmas carol, "Silent Night," was sung with Mrs. R. J. Whitman at the piano, and the song "Oh, Master Let Me Walk With Thee," was sung after the conclusion of the Scripture reading.

The auxiliary was delighted to have as its guest on this occasion the Brookstown Ladies' Aid society and gracious words of welcome were extended the visiting ladies by Mrs. Speas.

Mrs. Speas, the president, presided over the business session and it was decided to sell the quilt recently made by the members of the society, and also the society decided that the members would hold a silver tea during the spring months, perhaps in March or April.

At the conclusion of the business session a delightful program was presented under the direction of Miss Lena Hunter, with the song, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," the first number on the program.

Miss Lena Hunter gave an interesting reading entitled, "Our Benevolences," followed by a playlet, "How Seven Tithers Learned to Tithe," with Mesdames R. J. Whitman, J. F. Hunter, C. G. Hunter, B. A. Sprinkle, W. B. Speas, and Miss Johnny Speas taking part.

The Crristmas spirit was evident throughout the meeting and Miss Juanita Hunter gave an interesting reading entitled, "Gifts."

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter and Miss Lena Hunter sang a beautiful trio, after which an interesting Christmas carol contest was engaged in with Johnny Speas winning.

A happy exchange of Christmas gifts was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Johnny Speas.

First Church, Lexington, and Mount Carmel.—I have not reported to the Herald since the Annual Conference. This is the beginning of my fifth year on this charge and the outlook seems good for a successful year. Sunday schools at both churches are prospering, with good attendance and interest, and the preaching services likewise are attended by attentive congregations of good size.

Both Lexington First church and Mt. Carmel put on splendid Christmas programs which had good audiences.

I notice that a number of pastors have reported recently poundings by their congregations. I have not rad a regular pounding lately, but have been remembered with many gifts, for which I am very grateful to the givers. I desire to thank especially Mr. J. J. Mallard for the donation of an automobile seat cover. The good people of this charge always remember the pastor and his needs

The pastor's salary is paid in full to date; this is another characteristic of the people of tris charge—they keep their salary paid up.

I regret that there is considerable sickness among our people; may they soon be restored to their usual health.

Shiloh.—On December 25 the Y.M.W.A. class of the Shiloh church elected their officers for the coming yeard, who are as follows: teacher, Mr. J. L. Evans; assistant teacher, Mr. Ray Leatherman; president, Mr. Olen Leatherman; vice-president, Mr. Prior Koontz; secretary-treasurer, and secretary of the flower committee, Mr. Jones Leonard; assistant recretary-treasurer, Alvin Sink, class reporter, Frank Shoaf. After the election of the officers the class was dismissed.

December 24 being Christmas Eve, the Christmas exercises were held. The program for this occasion was made up of songs and verses given by the smaller children of the church. At thi time the teacher of the Y.M.W.A. class gave to those that had been present every Sunday during the previous year a gift.

The whole of those receiving gifts was made up of about 11 or 12 young boys.

Sunday, January 1, the newly elected officers took their respective places and presided over the class for the first time during 1933. After the business transactions the lesson was turned over to the teacher. Mr. Evans, the subject was centered around John the Baptist, and his preaching in the wilderness. After the lesson was discussed fully the class was dismissed by the teacher.

Graham.—Apparently I am serving one of these "Preacher Churches" where at least the preacher does all the writing. At least the church at large has not heard from Graham since Conference to my knowledge. Perhaps nothing has been accomplished wortry of writing about. And yet, our work here since Conference has been moving along a normal way with many evidences that most our people, at least, retain a traditional interest in the work of the church. We were kindly received and have had many evidences, including the Christmas season, that our people think kindly and sympathetically of us as their spiritual leader.

The first quarterly conference met on the 6 of December and the apportionments were accepted in full with the exception of the A. C. B., This, the conference voted to raise one-fourth of the apportionment. Mr. H. M. Rogers was re-elected secretary of the conference.

Due to the bad weather most of the Christmas preparation had to be given up or postponed to some other time. The cantata which was to be given on Christmas Eve will be given this coming Sunday night at the regular worship hour.

First Church, High Pont.—After the inclement weather and the holiday season, the usual program of Sobbath Day services was observed on New Year's Day. The Sabbath school met at 9:45 under the leadership of Superintendent John C. Whitesell with a good attendance, and at the morning worship hour the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered a cheering and hopeful message that was a tonic to discouraged souls, on the theme, "The Land of Beginning Again," based on the text in II Cor. 5-17, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." It was a happy and timely thought that prompted the minister to take as the subject of this New Year mesage to his people the lovely poem of Louise Tarkington beginning thus: "I wish there were some wonderful place, called the Land of Beginning Again," and the response by A. F. Hanes, which declares that the dear Son of God will blot out all mistakes of the past and permit us to begin a new life today. You may enter into this land by beginning new friendships; you can't make your life count high by low contacts. The poorest of us may be rich in neighborliness. Place the levels of your friendships according to Jesus. Then we may begin with a goal set beyond our reach. There is a French painter who always begins his pictures with the sky. In your programs for 1933 we must let trivial things go, and put first things first. Let us cut off the things that mar, as the flower lover cuts the smaller buds from the chrysanthemum in order to have fewer, larger and more beautiful flowers. Then we may enter this wonderful land by asking of life the power to serve sacrificially. Napolean asked for a world, but received only a little rock-ribbed island in the Mediterranean. The greatest among us will be servants of those in deepest need, as Jesus was. We may enter this blessed Land of Beginning Again by a determination to serve Jesus Christ, by getting back to a simpler life, and by putting more of the spirit of Christ in all our relationships. At the Sunday evening service Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke on Hugh Latimer's text, beginning a series of five sermons on noted texts.

Christmas of 1932 marked an unusually happy epoch in the lives of three members of First church. On Sunday, Decemebr 25, at the parsonage of Wesley Memorial M. E. church, Mr. Andrew M. Adams and Miss Anna Stanfield were united in marriage by Rev. G. Ray Jordan in the presence of relatives and close friends. The bride for a number of years has made her home with her brother, W. O. Stanfeild, 1004 Campbell St. Mr. Adams has lived here the greater part of his life, and is employed at Myrtle Desk Co. Mr. and Mrs. Adams left at once after the ceremony for a wedding tour to points in Western North Carolina, and are now at home at 1100 English St., this city. Many friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

In Danville, Va., on Monday, December 26, Miss Mary Mullies, daughter of Mrs. J. Mullies of this city, became the bride of Mr. J. D. Koonce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Koonce also of High Point. Rev. H. P. East of Danville, Va., was the officiating minister. The young couple will make their home at 203 Thurston St., High Point. The groom is a grandson and namesake of the late lamented Mr. J. D. Koonce, who was a faithful and popular member of First church for many years, and who died in April 1931. "Jack" Koonce, Jr., grew up in our Sabbath school, has a good voice and possesses a large number of friends, while his bride is the attractive daughter of Mrs. J. Mullies, 804 Carrick Ave., and has attended Edward's Business college, this city. A host of friends extend congratulations to this promising young couple.

Still another interesting announcement is made in the following:

"Mr. and Mrs. William A Copeland announce the marriage of their daughter, Eva Thalia, to Mr. Edwin Earl Koonce on Monday, December 26, 1932, High Point, North Carolina."

The wedding of this popular young couple was solemnized on Monday, December 26, at 9:30 a. m., at the home of the bride's pastor, Rev. G. Ray Jordan of Wesley Memorial M. E. church, with the two immediate famillies in attendance. The attractive bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Copeland, wore for her wedding a beautiful costume of gray with brown accessories, and her shoulder corsage was roses and Lilies of the Valley. She is pretty and popular, having lived here practically all her life. She was educated in the city schools, High Point college, and Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and for some time has held a responsible position with Adams-Millis Corporation, this city. The groom is the third son of Mrs. J. D. Koonce and her late husband, and is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, class of 1928, and has a position as salesman with Barber-Hall Printing Co., of High Point. The happy young couple made a honeymoon trip to Atlanta and other southern cities, and are now snugly domiciled in their new residence on Cedar Ave., this city. The wedding of this estimable and highly deserving pair is the culmination of a hapy romance of long standing, and scores, yea hundreds of interested and loving friends and relatives are showering them with congratulations and all good wishes for a calm, serene, and useful life together, and may they be able to declare on their Golden Wedding anniversary as did our old friends, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Church of High Point recently, "We have never had a serious quarrel in all the fifty years."

Our loving sympathy is extended to Mrs. S. A. Holleman in the loss by death of her brother, Mr. Edgar Long of Graham, during the Crristmas holidays. Mrs. Holleman, who has been ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Robbins, was unable to attend the funeral, but we are much pleased to learn that she is improving the past few days.

The mid-week prayer service will be conducted Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., on North Main St., at 7:30 o'clock. The minister will speak on Book of Judges in the series of Old Testament themes. These prayer meeting are being held at the residence of different members of the congregation during the winter months.

Among the State University students at home for Christmas holidays were Robert D. Davis, who is a senior, and James Montgomery, a freshman. Wilbur Pritchard, who is a senior at State College, Raleigh, was also with his parents.

It brought gratification to the pastor and congregation to see Mr. O. D. McPherson, who has been quite ill, at the morning service on last Sunday.

A happy family reunion was held on Monday, December 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, West Ray St. Present on this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. C C. Pritchard and family of Thomasville; Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Pritchard of Winston-Salem, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Burrow and son, Charles, and daughter, Carrie, who live near Asheboro, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Pritchard and Fred, J., who have recently moved back here from Winston-Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Pritchard, Miss Esther Pritchard, and Wilbur Pritchard at home from State College for Christmas.

Miss Anne Robbins of Richmond, Va., spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins. Her many friends were disappointed in not hearing her sing Sunday morning on account of a cold

Miss Rosalie Adrews went to New York to spent ten days during Christmas; Miss Lucille Pickens spent her brief holiday of four days from the library there; and Miss Ruth Welch also made a trip there last week.

Wyattt A. Pickens left Saturday morning by motor for Baton Rouge, La., to resume his work in the State University. He was accompanied by his friends, J. A. Thompson, and his cousin, Richard Armfield of High Point. They arrived at their destination at Sunday noon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Montgomery and son, James, attended the banquet at the Wesley Memorial church Thursday evening in honor of the Eagle Scouts and their parents, which was a most enjoyable occasion attended by 50 local Scouts and their parents. An impressive feature was carried out when each Scout rose and pinned his Eagle badge on his mother.

The Executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary held its New Year meeting with Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, N. Main St., Monday, January 2, at 3 p. m

Mrs. Arnold J. Koonce, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at High Point hospital, has recovered sufficiently to return to her home on S. Main St.

Mrs. Rauph H. Vance is recovering satisfactorily from an operation in Clinic hospital, Greensboro, on Thursday, December 29. This announcement will be good news to her many young friends, especially in C. E. society and Sabbath school.

Little Miss Mary Lou Cecil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coke Cecil, spent a week of the holidays with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Bowman at Randleman.

The city schools opened Monday after a vacation of two weeks, and High Point college will re-open for classes on Wednesday.

To all the Herald family and its readers this reporter extends New Year greetings and best wishes for a calm and contented spirit during the days just ahead of us, be they dark and gloomy. "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." The New Year is not present with us, only a new day. So it will be continually; we shall see but one day at a time. If each day is lived aright, the whole year will be right; if each day is wrong, the year will be all wrong. Each day is a white page to written; write it beautifully, and the book of the year will be beautiful."

"Greatly begin! though thou have time
But for a line, be that sublime,—
Not failure, but low aim, is crime."

Pinnacle—Christmas has been with us once more and it has left us just as it found us, in some ways, "muddy, more mud and most muddy." Even though rain, snow and cold weather handicapped us to a large extent, we went right ahead and had our tree and program just like we had planned. I would like to commend every one taking part in the program, because things like that in the midst of bad weather require much sacrifice. At the end of the program a free will offering was taken, and $2.54 was realized.

There has been very much sickness among this people recently. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jones are improving after having been the victims of colds and influenza. Jean, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Love, is recuperating after having had an attack of cold and near influenza. There has been a very large number of cases brought to the reporter's attention, and we pray a speedy recovery for them all.

Several of our Sunday school scholars. entirely boys and girls, have decided that, well to make it plain, have decided to get married, namely: Mr. Ralph Wall and Miss Blakely. Mr. Wall is a member of our church and school and the son of W. D. Wall. Miss Blakely resided at East Bend. They are making their home with the groom's parents.

Miss Evelyn Ayers and Mr. Sammy Gordon were quietly married last evening and are at home with the groom's father.

Miss Hesta Ayers and Mr. Oscar Bonnycastle decided that two could live cheaper than one, so they were married during the holidays. They are at home with the bride's parents.

Miss Nina Hunter and Mr. Clyde Armfield were also target for the never failing arrows of Dan Cupid. This couple was united in marriage a few days past. They were married at the bride's home, witr her brother, Rev. R. A. Hunter. officiating. After a brief honeymoon they will be at home in Pinnacle, N C. Life is before these couples with all of its ups and downs, and we pray that they may look up for power and knowledge to make their married life successful.

On Monday, Decemebr 26, Mrs. Mary Ellen Kiger was buried at Mt. Zion. She was the wife of Fountain Kiger who preceded her in death. She leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. The funeral was conducted by Rev. A. L. Hunter, assisted by Rev Trompson and Rev, Pressnel. Interment was made in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Bethel, Randolph Charge.—We are sure that our good pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits and his family know that we love them, and are glad to have them back on this charge for another year, but we would like for all the readers of the Methodist Protestant Herald to know also.

If there is a member of Bethel church who does not like to hear Rev. Suits preach, they keep quiet about it.

I heard a tribute of praise to our pastor at Sunday school last Sunday. The question was asked in the senior class, "Are there people in this church and community, whom you think would give their lives, if need be, for the Master?" One member of the class said, "I think there are, and I feel sure that our pastor would die for our Savior, as did our forfathers of old, if he were put to the test."

Mr. Suits brought us a beautiful message at the 3 o'clock service Christmas afternoon, which was the old, old story that is ever new. His subject being a part of the angel's message to the shepherds, "For, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy." He said that the Christmas story was one of his favorite subjects, as the whole plan of salvation was hinged to the birth of Christ. Due to the weather there were not many present to hear the wonderful sermon he preached.

We have a good Sunday school at Bethel, due in part to our faithful superintendent, Mr. A. O. Adams.

Liberty, Liberty Charge—The New Year is here, and it has opened anew the door of opportunity for us.

The opporunity to take the Bible as our guide to light our pathway; and the opportunity for serving our fellowmen which perhaps surpasses that of any other year within our knowledge. Countless numbers need a smile, a kind word and a helping hand, to tide the stream of despair. Will we give the kind word or will we be too selfish? "Oh, the good we all may do, while the days are going by."

On Thursday afternoon the two circles of the Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. Joe Swaim at her home on Fayetteville street. Mrs. F. A. Shepard, president, had charge of the program which was a Christmas topic.

Delicious refreshments were served and all enjoyed a most delightful and worth-while time.

The topic of the Christian Endeavor Christmas night was. "Christmas in Song and Story," with Mrs. Jno. W. Curtis as leader. Misess Mary Bowman Shepard and Marjorie Elkins sweetly sang, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Love, and wife and small son have been quite ill with influenza. They are much improved at this writing.

Our superintendent, Mr. Will Smith, delighted the small children of our Sabbath school on Christmas morning with a tree and nice treat.

Mis Margaret Shepard and Miss Christine Hatch, who are seniors of Woman's College, returned Tuesday to resume their studies.

Best New Year greetings to the Editor and Herald Readers.

Mt. Hermon Church.—We all are very glad to have Rev. L. E. Mabry back with us for another year. Today being New Year's Day we had a good attendance as every one wishes to start the year off right, even though the weather was very cold.

The lesson was taken from the first division of the Psalms and trust that every one was inspired with the mesage.

The budget was presented to the church for adjustment if the church saw fit to make any changes. It was discussed and decided to accept it as it was last year.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Christmas holidays over, a new year ushered in, the earth still full of the Lord's mercy; what a cause for gratitude among His people.

Christ's birthday was a good day here. At 11 o'clock our pastor, with new zeal, preached a wonderful sermon on the subject, "Bethlehem's Manger." That night, in a downpour of rain, a goodly number returned to church to see the pageant presented by the C. E. society. We were certainly rewarded for our efforts. On entering the church we found there right before us, in the center of the sanctuary, a real little manger. There was the clear starry sky above it, and beautiful Mary sitting by, the guardian angels at the head and foot of the manger and the light representing the halo of the Baby Jesus' face spreading a sacred glow about the place. The Wise Men came offering their gifts, many other characters representing the peasantry and the nations entered paying homage to the Christ-child. Many of our favorite Christmas carols were sung. It was a most beautiful and impressive pageant.

January 1 was membership Sunday. We are grateful for the large congregation that greeted our pastor. Grateful for his splendid sermon on the text, "I Thought On My Ways," Psalms 119:59. This was a message of cheer and hope. We were delighted to receive into membership our pastor's family, namely, Mrs. Taylor, John, Frances, and Samuel Taylor, Jr. They come by letter from First Church.

Last Tuesday night in the annex of the Friends church the city union of the C. E. society held an installation service. Miss Ida Guyer of our church is now the corresponding secretary, and Miss Jewell Welch, another of our girls, is assistant junior superintendent.

Last Sunday, our Junior C. E. society elected the following officers for the present six months' term: President, Eleanor Welch; vice-president, Dorothy Long; secretary, Shirley Welborn; chairman social committe, Ruth Swan; chairman lookout committee, Marie Setliff; chairman missionary committee, Martha Patterson; chairman Sunbeam committee, Irene Harris.

Each month the Junior C. E. World offers prizes for the three best letters received. We are glad to note that one of our girls, Irene Harris, won the third prize last month. Letter enclosed:

A Trip to Japan

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Lebanon Methodist Protestant church in High Point, N. C., was organized January 11, 1931, with ten members. We now have 24 members. We get most of the material for our programs from the "Junior Christian Endeavor World," of which we receive ten copies.

At one of our meetings we took a trip to Japan. The meeting was held at the home of the leader, who, dressed in a kimono, told us many interesting things about Japan which she found in the "Junior Christian Endeavor World." The home was decorated to represent that country, while we imagined ourselves Japanese boys and girls.

Each month we hold several sunshine meetings to bring cheer to shut-ins. Last spring we held one at the county sanitarium.

We recently collected a variety of clothing and other useful articles which we took to the Methodist Protestant Children's Home. While there we visited the different departments and learned how the children live.

At the Central District Christian Endeavor convention, October 2, our society won the Junior banner, which was given on a basis of the number present and miles travlled.

High Point, N. C. IRENE HARRIS.

I am glad to hear you say that the "Junior Christian Endeavor World" is a help to you in preparing your meetings. Your letter will help other Juniors, too.

Our Ladies' Aid society very kindly provided fruit for the sick in the community at Christmas. They, also have been helping a needy family.

Rev. J. C. Madison, a former pastor who has been in Chicago continuing his study in ministerial work spent the holidays with his relatives. Pasing through our city en route to Ellerby to visit a friend, he dropped in to exchange greetings with Dr. Taylor's family and a few other of his friends in our community. We are happy to see him again.

The Death Reaper has visited in our midst again. Mr. Larkin Welch passed into the great beyond. His funeral will be conducted by our pastor today (Tuesday) at 2 o'clock. Our members extend deep sympathy to the bereaved family. Mrs. Welch and the three daughters are members of our church. Miss Louise Welch is our efficient secretary of Sunday school and also assistant pianist for the church.

Mrs. Stokes Gallimore was elected church pianist last Sunday at the morning service to take the place of Mrs. Clark who was elected to this place last fall, but who did not wish to serve. We are pleased to have Mrs. Gallimore who has been serving us faithfully for two years.

Miss Ann Thacker of Greensboro was the week-end guest of Miss Loula Thacker. She told the story "Why the Chimes Rang," to the Sunday school class No. 4, and the little girls were delighted with that beautiful Christmas story.

Mrs. J. W. Reaves, who recently underwent a serious operation in High Point hospital, has returned to her home. She is somewhat improved but unable to sit up as yet. We hope for her an early recovery.

Winston-Salme, First.—While the weather has been bad for the past few weeks, we have tried to carry on any way. On Sunday evening before Christmas, a pageant, "The Living Christmas," was presented to a goodly number of people. Mrs. J. A. Gwyn directed this pageant and she was ably assisted by other members of the committee. So beautiful was the pageant that it was repeated on the following Wednesday evening, however, the snow was still on the ground and the weather so rough that the congregation was rather small.

The people have been very good to this pastor and his wife and we are profoundly grateful. As a result of their gifts our table has been supplied with turkey and chicken and fresh meat ever since the holidays started. And the strange thing abotu it is that just as soon as the turkey and the chickens were cooked, the pastors indigestion left and has not yet returned. We hope it stays gone forever.

Our reporter, Miss Pauline Branson, who has been almost helpless with rheumatism for the past six weeks has been removed to the City Memorial hospital. She does not seem to improve much.

Mrs. H. O. Sapp who has been shut in most of the time since last summer has been to church once.

Mrs. Roy Hauser recently united with our church here, coming to us from Shoals M. P. church.

Yesterday we were delighted to have President Andrews with us at the morning service. Dr. Andrews almost surpassed himself in preaching and the pastor and people both were pleased.

At our five o'clock vesper services the pastor preached a New Year's sermon to a goodly number of people. Our people come out much better to the veseprs than they used to at the evening hour.

And now let me say thank you to a large number of people who sent us Christmas cards this past Christmas. On account of the depression we sent very few cards.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Willow Creek.—The new year has arrived and our little conference is still alive but weak in numbers. Our new pastor, Brother Black, preached a real soul-stirring sermon Christmas Day for us and we had a very nice programs also. Our Sunday school has an average of 70 which we think is very good for a little country church. We have Christian Endeavor every Sunday night.

It has been our sweet experience to see many added to the church in the past year, and we try our best to put them to work, especially the young.

We have added a right good bit of repairs to our church in the past year and have electric lights; we praise God for all this. We have a wonderful bunch of children to work with. At a few hours' notice we can get up a fine program to suit almost any occasion. Of course a good bit of this comes from the home where those children have good Christian parents. We first must give ourselves to the Lord and then lead our children. I know I am very much like a child for I have past the 54th mile post in life and my head has bloomed with the frost that never melts and I expect to meet some of the ones whom I have tried to teach just over in the great beyond where nothing is known but peace and joy.

With best wishes to the editor and all his helpers and readers of the Herald. Yours in the Master's service. W. D. MOORE.

First Church, Concord.—We were all glad to see a beautiful Sunshiny Sabbath day the first in several weeks. Our pastor gave us a good message on the "The Future All Unknown." We wish that more of our folks could have been out to hear this good message. But there is so much sickness in our church family that our Sunday school and church attendance was off very much. Mrs. Earl Helderman our Cradle Roll superintendent, has been real sick with the "flu," but she is able to be up some now. Most everybody here that is sick has the influenza. We hope that when the weather gets better that our folks will all soon be well and our attendance be better at church. We were glad to have Brother Durant Nash and family with us today. Brother Nash helped Brother Morgan with the Lord's Supper this morning. We are glad to have Brother Nash and family with us and hope he can get work here so he can be with us all the time. The Junior church worshiped with us this morning as their crowd was small there were about 50 of the children and they were a beautiful picture at the altar when they took part in the Lord's Supper and Rev. Morgan talked so sweet to them about the Lord's Supper. We know Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me," and we know His smile is upon them when they take part in the church services. Our Christmas program was real good and the children recited their pieces all fine. Mrs. Esther Litaker had charge of the program and she always has a good program. The children and grown-ups also enjoyed the Christmas tree and Sunday school treat. On Sunday night our large boys and girls gave a play. The title was "A Merry Christmas." This play was very good and had such a good lesson in it for us all. We were glad to have lots of visitors out to see it.

Among our visitors was Mr. Oscar Morgan and his bride from Fallston, N. C. So you see ou pastor and wife received a new daughter-in-law for a Christmas present. Mrs. Morgan before mariage was Miss Wright of Fallston, North Carolina.

Miss Eula Burris and Mr. Clarence Fry were married a week before Christmas. They went to Charlotte and Rev. G. H. Hendry married them. We don't know whether we will get some new brothers in our church or whether some other church will get some new sisters. Miss Ila Newton and Omie Newton were both married just before Christmas. They married a Mr. Reece and a Mr. Paige. We wish for all these newly married folks a bright and happy future.

We have just learned of some more of our folks that are sick: Mrs. S. C. Cass and Mr.

Stoker. Let's all pray for one another and especially for the sick ones.

We hope and pray that this year will be one year that we can look back and feel like we have done our best and prayed more than ever before.

Just one week before Christmas our hearts were made sad when the death angel came after Mrs. Coy Smith. We know she was ready and just patiently waiting but we miss her so much. She had not been able to come to church in a long time but we knew her mind and prayers were with us in every service. Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. Smith and his children it is so sad for them and Mr. Smith is not well at all so that makes it much harder for him. Mrs. Smith was one of my very best friends and I miss her so much but I don't feel that we should grieve for her because she was such a good woman. I just want to live as near like she did asIcan and be ready to meet her in the Glory Land where she asked me to meet her. Her influence will always be with me, her beautiful Christian life will ever be before me. It means so much to me to have had such a friend and I am so glad that I told her many times how I loved her. Rev. Morgan, Rev. Hendry, and Rev. Robinson conducted her funeral.

Kannapolis.—On Saturday night, December 24, under the direction of Mrs. X. E. Grayson, Mrs. C. B. McCommous and Mrs. W. T. Kiser the children presented a beautiful program of Christmas. After a program of recitations and Christmas carols, Santa Claus entered and distributed many gifts to those present after which a delicious Sunday school treat was given to all the Sunday school members.

On Sunday, January 1, the Kannapolic M. P. church had the pleasure of hearing Rev. Mr. Morris from Fallston, father of our pastor, Clarence Morris. He delivered a wonderful sermon which we hope will revive and start spiritual work in our community. We were indeed glad to have him with us and hope him Godspeed whereever the paths of life might take him.

Anderson.—From Mecklenburg to Anderson and Yarborough—I have delayed writing until I could make a survey of the work. But the almost constant rains have prevented my geting in touch with the work and people except on appointments. On two appointments at Liberty and Harmony, the weather was so disagreeable and roads so muddy that I was not expecting many if any to be present, imagine my joy to find a goodly number present at both churches. Their zeal for worship is inspiring to the pastor. It is unusual in my expereience.

The first quarterly conference met at Liberty church, Tuesday, November 27, at 10:00 a. m., with a good number represented. Items of business was disposed of in a harmonious and orderly manner. We regret Brother Hendry was delayed because of car trouble, arriving after conference adjourned. However, we enjoyed his association in the Yarborough charge conference which met at 3:00 p. m., November 27. After an interesting talk by Mr. Hendry on the conference needs the business of the church was transacted. Several items subject to the approval of Cross Anchor officials as the pastor was unable to get in touch with them. Brother Hendry presided, representative of our president, Mr. Andrews.

The Liberty community was saddened by the death of a member, Mrs. Annie Grubbs residing at Hempville, S. C. Funeral services were conducted at the church and burial was in the church cemetery. Surviving are 11 children and husband. May the spirit of consolation comfort them in their bereavement.

We have been cordially received by each church and appreciate the interest and consideration shown by the membership. Space will not permit us to express our gratitude to the individuals. However, we wish to gratefully acknowledge the following: gifts, contributions, and special favors, from Liberty church; a liberal pounding by the C. E. society. The topic of their program was Thanksgiving. And they practice what they preach. Also, special conributions of produce from several individuals. We wish to express our sincere appreciation for conveyance to and from Liberty by Brother Stout of Greenville; also for Christmas nuts, fruits, nice dressed fowls, and other special favors.

Fairview for pounding: other individual conritbutions of produce. A special offering of the ever welcome greens during Christmas week. This special interest manifest in our material needs, is greatly appreciated.

Mr. Dean Poole for conveyance to and from Fairview on our first appointment. The loan of his car to attend funeral at Mrs. Grubb's at Liberty and other favors.

Our good neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Pickens, played Santa Claus to the children with a load of toys sufficient to gladden the hearts of any children. Also for the loan of their beautiful electric-lighted Christmas tree. May the joy of the constant presence of the Christ Child ever be theirs.

Harmaoy for the pounding. Special contributions from individuals. Christmas gifts from Miss Kate Medlock to the pastor and wife. These faithful people are always ready with special contributions to help the pastor. May others follow their example.

It is with much regret that we leave our friends at Mecklenburg. Their loyalty and co-operation will long be remembered. We are sure this same devotion toward their present pastor and family will encourage them to greater service.

J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

English Street Church.—Our work is going on nicely. The Sunday school attendance is increasing and we have set a goal of 300 for this year. Much interest is shown in the preaching services. An announcement sheet of each Sunday's services and the activities of the following week are being printed by our pastor.

On New Year's Eve the Christian Endeavor held a business meeting in the hut at 9 o'clock. At 11:30 o'clock they held a beautiful and impressive service in the church, which was prepared by Mr. John Laughlin. The theme being, "Light." A large C. E. emblem of red and white with black background was placed on the table in front of the audience. The white light, and red, the "Supreme Gift." An envelope containing a greeting card, appropriate to season and a candle, was given to each member. Scripture reference of Biblical characters, six men and six women were written on the back of cards. A large candle was placed on the emblem board representing the "Spirit of Light." Then the spirit of light took her place at the right of the table. As each member came forward to take their part their candle was handed to the spirit of light, who lit the candle and placed it on the emblem board. Then the others holding candles gave them to the spirti of light to be placed on the emblem board for the local society. The spirit of light then lit candles and placed them on the board for members of C. E. who were absent. Exactly at 12 o'clock the pianist gave twelve sounds, as though the clock was striking twelve, after which the society stood and sang, "Praise God, From Whom All Blessings Flow." We were very glad to have with us at this time, two former members, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Boswell. Freeman Boswell and Harold Arney were also visitors.

Gibsonville Church.—Gibsonville church has not had a report by the reporter since conference.

Rev. Bethea's sermons are always interesting. Last Sunday he delivered a splendid New Year's message. Those who were absent missed a treat.

The Young Ladies' Missionary society held its December meeting on Tuesday, December 20 at the home of Misses Dorothy and Stacy Moll on Whitsett street. The president, Mrs. K. T. Williams, presided. "A Story of Christ's Birth," was read by Mrs Williams. Miss Lessie Fawcett read a Christmas poem. A report from the mission field in Japan was read by Miss Marie Summers.

On Friday evening, December 23, Mrs. H. T. Williams entertained the members of the Young Ladies' Auxiliary at her home on Joyner street. Games were in charge of Miss Hazel Woodward. A small gift was received by each member of the society.

Our church choir has made unusual improvement in singing under the leadership of Miss Ruth Huffman. A catata was prepared and rendered by them on Sunday evening, December 18. Many have said that this was the best singing that they ever heard by the Gibsonville church choir.

The quarterly conference will be held in the church auditorium on Thursday evening, January 5, at 7:30 p. m. The president, Rev. Andrews, will preside. All officials are requested to be present.

Nathaniel Bethea and Dwight Davidson, Jr., of High Point college spent the holidays here with their parents

Roberta.—We left Randleman charge November 22. We were sorry to leave the good people and we will never forget them for their kindness to us while we were there. On arriving here we found good people to welcome us, they have been so nice and kind.

There has been so much bad weather since we came I haven't been in very many homes, but hope to soon. They have been giving us nice things to eat ever since we arrived, but Friday night, December 23, the real pounding came. We are very grateful to each one that had a part and we hope to be able to repay you in a spiritual way. We had our Christmas program Christmas Eve night. It was fine, we want to give Mrs. Pennegar and Miss Mae Blackwelder credit for this splendid program. I have filled all my appointments and we are hoping for a successful year in the Master's service.

The Ladies' Aid has put in the parsonage a nice circulator heater for our comfort, which we appreciate very much. I am not writing much as we are looking to our reporter for reports.

I hope all the readers of the Herald had a most wonderful Christmas.

Haw River.—Mr. Pegg filled his regular appointment here Sunday, December 25, at morning and night. The Glen Raven choir came down and furnished splendid music for us Sunday night. It was very good and we hope they will see fit to come again.

The work is starting off very well for the new conference year. We are very grateful to the conference for returning Mr. ad Mrs. Pegg to us again. The people of this charge appreciate them very much and we predict for them a good year's work for the entire charge.

Welch Memorial.—The Christmas services passed off nicely with us.

On Friday before Christmas we had our tree and a short exercise by the children. Mrs. Meredith and Mrs. W. L. Edwards deserve special credit for the success of this program.

On Sunday morning Dr. Williams gave us a splendid sermon.

Sunday night the Christian Endeavor gave a pageant: the prettiest I have ever seen. Several said it was the best ever given in our church. Our young people are gifted in work of this kind; not only in this but all they undertake is well done. We are indeed proud of them.

New Year's Day Dr. Williams gave us appropriate sermon at both services. His text for the morning was Phil. 3:13-14, and was unusually good and helpful and so appropriate for the beginning of the year. We had some new members in our Sunday school and also the preaching services Sunday.

Of course we are doing no big things here, so many of our people do not have work and we are handicapped for the lack of money, but the people who have been in the church a long time say we are doing better than usual and they are very much encouraged by the outlook for 1933.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge. — We did not have a Christmas tree as has been the usual custom at this church. The children gave their program Christmas morning at church, then received their treat.

Brother Loy met his regular appointment with us Sunday at the eleven o'clock hour. He gave to us another one of his splendid sermons. As he had already brought to us the New Year's message at the beginning of the conference year. He used as his subject Sunday the "Power of the Church." This was a good mesage for the power for they could get much from it, that if they would put into practice it would be of much help to them for the coming year.

The board of stewards met Monday evening at the home of Mr. J. C. Guthrie. We are glad that Brother Guthrie is able to be about the Master's good work again after a serious illness.

We were glad to have Misses Gladys and Edith Guthrie worship with us during the Christmas holidays.

The Board of Religious Eudcation met Tuesday evening with Mrs. H. G. Hargrove.

Beginning with the new year we are putting on a contest with all the classes trying to create more interest and better attendance. The class that wins will be given a banner at the close of the quarter. Then we will have something else worked out to put on for the following quarter of the year. With best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Richland Circuit, Brower's Chapel.—We had planned to have our Christmas entertainment but owing to the extremely inclement weather we failed to have it. Though we are wide awake when the weather permits us the pleasure of going to church.

Our Sunday school is going on nicely as each one takes a very active part.

Our circle will meet January 5 at the home of Mrs. Zelle Brown. Each meeting we take in new members. Our meetings are very entertaining.

A few words on the nearness of God, how Jesus regarded the presence of God in the world. But in the actual concrete world Jesus saw God everywhere. He walked at home in a universe which the Heavenly Father had fashioned for His children. Consider the lilies clothing the fields with colors and bordering the dusty roads in their purity, their garments came from the hands of God. The birds that never sow nor reap nor gathers into barns are nourished by the daily care of God. In the natural processes of the heavens He saw God's constant activity. He makes each sun to shine. The fresh rain is His gift to good and bad alike. Jesus never relegated God's activity simply to one long past divine act of creation. He gave thanks to His Father at the beginning of each meal. He told His disciples to pray. "Give us this day our daily bread." He saw in all those natural processes which we call physical laws simply the direct expression of God's active will.

What Jesus tells us about the nearness of God is not mere speculation but the teaching of the Son of God who came to show us the Father. Let us realize that God is here, right here now closer to the reader of these words than the nearest person in the room for in Him we live. EFFIE BROWN, Reporter.

Shiloh.—Today being the first Sunday of the new year, a new Sunday school roll was made with 204 on roll. Each class is beginning the new year with bright hopes for a good year of usefulness and growth in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. All of the old teachers except two are serving another year. The two new ones are Mrs. N. L. Evans and Miss Mabel Berrier. Mrs. Ira Koonts and Mrs. Baxter Leonard were elected to take charge of the Junior department.

Using Psalms 23-1, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," as a text, Rev. R. S. Troxler brought a message of encouragement and hope for the coming year of 1933, which is to each one of us an unknown sea upon which we are setting sail. He said in part, "Money may talk in a very narrow margin, but there are times when money is as dumb as the life of death. This world's knowledge is vanity and vexation of spirit. There are times when even friendships will not suffice, but only the Good Shepherd can fill our great need. We can say, 'If He is mine, I shall not want.' We shall not want for rest and refreshment, for He maketh me to lie down in the green pastures. We shall not want for leadership for 'He leadeth beside the still waters, and in paths of righteousness'; we shall not want for restoration or comfort in this life and for the hope eternal, that removes all fear. What a wonderful Shepherd!"

W. J. Berrier, and his daughter, Emma, have been confined for the past several days with the influenza. Both are improving and we hope to see them at Sunday school next Sunday.

Mrs. Bill Shoaf, the mother of Mrs. N. E. Leonard, was buried on Saturday, December 31, at Sandy Creek. Our sympathy goes to Mrs. Leonard in the loss of her mother.

We were glad to have Uncle Obie Waitman at Sunday school and also at the preaching service today. "Uncle Obie" is one of our oldest and moth faithful members, but is not able to be with us every Sunday.

A WORD OF THANKS

Since we do not use a great deal of space in the Herald doubtless the editor will allow us enough space to say "trank you!" to our many friends who remembered us at Christmas time with cards and gifts. This will include many friends of our former pastorates and of the present one.

Because of economic considerations and the many appeals for help for the underprivileged we limited our sending of Christmas greetings more than is our custom. However, we are sure our friends will understand. We did not forget them, and were praying for the blessings of the Saviour to be upon, not only those who have heretofore sent greetings, but upon all of our friends everywhere.

The spirit that prompts us to make others happy during the Christmas season is a fine thing. But I think of something even finer than that, and that is the spirit that leads us throughout the year to do as He did whose birthday we commemorate, and to go about doing good and making sad hearts happy. May we all foster this spirit.

With thanks to those who sent remembrances, as well as to those who like ourselves had the kindly thought though they sent no material expression of it, and praying God's blessings to be upon all, we are Gratefully yours,

L. W. GERRINGER & FAMILY.

ARE YOU LAND POOR?

Are your acreage so great, or your city lot footage so large, that the carriage charges on these takes such a large share of your income that you have little left to meet the necessities of life? Would you like to be relieved of some of this burden, and at the same time serve a worthy cause? If so, let me talk with you about our plan, whereby you can shift that responsibility to us, and yet control your land.

N. M. HARRISON,
Promotional Secretary.

This is our cash report for two weeks, coming the Christmas holidays, and we are exceedingly thankful to be able to make so good a report. The mind of the church has turned toward this Home and its children for Thanksgiving and Christmas and we are ings as we have gotten during the last two glad. Two more months with as liberal offer- months would enable us to begin to see our way out. We have some fine offerings in the above, which we know represents sacrifice on the part of the giver. God bless them every one and make it up to them four fold

Cash Contrast

After conference, 1931, to January 1, 1932, cash contributions for the Home from all sources amounted to $3,518.71. For the same period 1932 to January 1, 1933, cash from all sources amounted to $3,247.93, or $270.78 less this year than last.

When conference adjourned all of us looked forward to November 20 to 27 inclusive hoping that $6,500.00 would be raised. Two months' expenses have been added in the meantime and we have received just about half that amount.

The cold day on November 27, and the continued rough weather has had to do with the results. And we publish the results because many interested ones are asking for it, and we also hope it will help to add to the offerings in the coming months.

NOTE TO PASTORS

The last Annual Conference directed, "That a soliciting agent be appointed by the pastor in each local church, whose duty it shall be to keep the interests of the Children's Home before the congregations, see that proper announcements are made, and solicit funds, produce and coupons. The pastor to report the names and addresses of such solicitors to the superintendent of the Home."

One pastor has made the appointment and reported names and addresses to the superintendent. Other pastors will please do likewise as speedily as possible and let us have the names and correct addresses. Please do it now. Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

being equal, work is the one thing that determines whether or not a pastor fails or succeeds in his pastorate.

And all this, it may be pointed out, has been said from the standpoint of the pastor. But we must not overlook the fact that the charge has a responsibility—a very great responsibility in the success or failure of the pastoral relationship. It is not impossible for a charge to clip the wings of a pastor and hold him to the level on which the work has been all too many years. Jesus had to leave his home community without doing "any mighty works" because of the attitude of the people toward him. He wanted to help them but they would not let him. It is not at all improbable that pastors encounter this difficulty today. They would like to help the people, but it is sometimes true that the people won't let them. For instance, they may not have an adequate financial system, but they are not willing to give up what they have for something better because they have always done it that way. One pastor says, "It seems that a wrong system has been followed on this charge for a long period. A few do all the paying while the majority feel no personal responsibility." The reverse of this comes from another charge. A layman says, "We adopted the envelop system this year and we have raised more money, despite the depression, than we did under our old system when money was plentiful." Many charges are suffering for lack of organization. But they have not been accustomed to doing church work in this way, and it is difficult to get them to see and to understand the value of organized effort. Another hindrance to the progress of many churches is their localism. Their interest centers in the local church, or the charge, and at most, the Annual Conference. They do not accept a denominational responsibility, and, therefore, make no response to denominational programs and appeals. And of course a church that is self-centered can not develop the full measure of its strength. Local churches grow in material and spiritual strength and efficiency as they grow in their conception of responsibility to world-wide kingdom service.

These, and other things on the part of the charge may hinder the success of a pastoral relationship. Whether or not a work develops does not depend altogether on the pastor. Much depends on him; but much likewise depends on the charge. Only, therefore, when there is wise and earnest leadership on the part of the pastor and ready and united response on the part of the charge, can there be hope of a successful pastorate. Both pastor and people must contribute to that good end, and when that is true the great Shepherd of the flock crowns their united efforts with his blessings.

A SUGGESTION

The Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina has around thirty thousand members. If five thousand of this number were to give one dollar to the college each month for one year it would mean sixty thousand dollars—a neat sum. Is it not possible to get five thousand members to do this? The writer is a pastor receiving a small salary, yet for more than a year he has been giving the college an amount equal to one dollar per month. We must support this institution.

A Pastor.

SIX STUDIES TO HELP ON GOOD TIMES

The author of the book of Ecclesiastes was in a pessimistic mood when he wrote: "Of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh."

Evidently he thought he had settled the problems of what studies to pursue when he added: "Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man."

True enough one may grow very weary both by studying and of study, but there are also much pleasure and profit and growth through study. And wise people in these times will not give less, but more, attention to it. Here are six good things to study in a time of much unemployment:

1. Study to preserve your residence, and other property, from decay. A loose nail driven in, a missing shingle or board or brick promptly replaced, and paint applied before the damage has gone too far, will much prolong the life and service of the home and other buildings. Providing shelter and early repairs for the car, the plow, the cultivator, and other machinery and tools, will save many a dollar and give abundant yield of satisfaction in one's work. Intelligent tinkering on chairs and other articles of furniture is good, not only for the appearance of the home and the comfort of the family—it is also helpful to the morale of the workers.

2. Study to keep your clothing whole and clean. Take such care of each garment that it will look the best possible and yield the greatest measure of service. A stitch in time saves nine. Careful brushing, prompt removal of spots, and the making of needed repairs will add to the life of a garment, and at the same time minister to the self-respect of the wearer. Many a boy learned in college—if not before—to darn and wash his hose, and has had occasion to be grateful for the knowledge and skill.

3. Study to preserve your body in health. Sickness is expensive, as well as painful. There are causes for all illnesses. We should search these out, as far as possible, and avoid them. We normally live a good many years with our bodies. It is a good investment of time and study to gain an understanding of the various organs and their proper care and functioning. Many preventives of sickness, and remedies for pain and illness, are simple and inexpensive. The treatment of colds, cuts, sprains, and bruises is, for the most part, within the compass of fathers and mothers. A skilful father or mother may communicate to the child the same feeling of confidence that is so important a part of the physician's power, and thus save both time and suffering—to say nothing about the lessened strain on the depleted family purse.

4. Study to endure hardness as a good soldier. Not for ease, should we pray, but for more strength to endure. Tougher hands are needed, rather than softer things to pick up. Broader shoulders should be developed, then we shall not need to ask for lighter burdens. Stronger lungs and enduring legs are more to be desired, in the race of life, than a short and easy course. No doubt many individuals will be crushed under existing hardships. Let us hope that many others will gain an increase of moral and physical stamina.

5. Study to become a more skilful workman—one that does not need to be ashamed of the way in which he finishes up a job. There is no excellence without great labor. Intelligence and skill are power. They increase the earning capacity, and add to one's comfort and enjoyment in work. Time and effort spent during slack employment to gain fuller knowledge of one's job—and other jobs—will be an advantage later on when larger demands come.

6. Study to acquire right mental attitudes. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Christian Science, so-called, is largely unreason. But right mental attitudes count for much. Think health. Think goodness. Think prosperity, think larger and richer living. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are gracious; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, take account of these things." There is danger that we, in these days, fall or drift into many wrong mental attitudes. Let us study to avoid wrong thoughts and feelings concerning other religions, other philosophies, other forms of worship, other nationalties, other races. "God has made of one all peoples." May we find this unity, cultivate it, and appreciate it.

THAT YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIR

Do you recall the recommendations of the Music Committee during the last Conference session, which were adopted without opposition? That signified that the Conference approved, and implied that each pastor and delegate would lend his support.

Just to refresh your minds, permit me to quote from the report:

"We recommend a definite project to enhance the value of church music in the service of worship: That a young people's choir be organized in each church where it is at all possible, which shall furnish the leadership for the music of the church worship services.

"At the Leadership Training School next summer, these choirs will be present to compete for first honors during one of the evening sessions. The combined choirs of the several churches competing will constitute the choir to furnish special music for the Leadership Training School services."

Do you have a choir in your church? If not, why not organize one from among your young people? They are taught music to some extent in the public schools, and most of them like to sing. It will be the means of eliciting their interest in the church, and giving them definite responsibility. It will help to improve your church services, if you will use them on Sunday.

Someone in your church or community will be glad to train them. It may be your church pianist or organist. It may be your choir director (if you already have a church choir). It may be a music teacher in your community. Or, it may be the public school teacher of music.

Don't hesitate because the number of available young people is small. Start with four, if there are no more to be had. Use all girls as a beginning, if boys are not available. Or, you may have boys and not girls—use them.

Won't you drop a card, at least, to the chairman of this committee, informing him that you will or have started this young people's choir in your church? Any help that he or any member of the committee can render will be cheerfully given.

E. LESTER BALLARD, Chairman

MISS JENNIE GORDON,
MRS. J. C. LLOYD.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

As one by one the hours have gone by since the "air" brought word of the sudden death of ex-President Coolidge, two sorts of feelings increasingly possess my heart and mind.

In the first place, there is sadness that the home, the community, and the nation should so soon have been called upon to lose this husband, father, citizen, friend. He was not old; but he was well-fitted by education, experience, and character to render years of service and to enjoy his well-earned honors and leisure.

In the second place there is a feeling of gratitude. I am indeed thankful for the achievement of this American boy from the rugged hills and climate of Vermont . He made his way from the bottom to the top. He knew how to handle men, and affairs, and situations. This is practical politics. He operated always in a clean, wholesome, patriotic fashion.

I carry in my mind four pictures of Mr. Coolidge in action and worship:

1. He put an end to the strike of the Boston police force when he was Governor of Massachusetts. He made it clear to the whole country that there are times and conditions when public servants—charged with responsibility for protecting the property and lives of the people—have no right to throw up their jobs. The rights of the community come before efforts to avenge personal and individual grievances.

2. The reception to Charles A. Lindberg, on the grounds of the Washington Monument. Lindberg had been honored in France, England, and other European countries. He had returned home and the President welcomed him in a brief address. This was an outstanding occasion and a remarkable address. It was human, sincere, hearty. In it was an abounding spirit of good-fellowship, and discerning appreciation of the sterling qualities and achievements of the young aviator. It will be long remembered and referred to.

3. His address in Madison Square Garden, New York. In this he advocated the re-election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency. It was absolutely clean and free from mudslinging personalities. He knew political conditions and problems as few men do. He understood the serious responsibilities of the Chief Executive as did no other living men. He knew Herbert Hoover as few other men are able to know and appreciate him. His mind comprehended the possibilities of service in the entire list of American statesmen; and he unhesitatingly commended Herbert C. Hoover as the occupant of the White House who should be kept on the job.

4. He worshipped in the house of God on Sunday. One Sunday morning in the First Congregational church of Washington, I sat within easy range of the Presidential pew. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge came in unostentationally, but promptly —the congregation standing until they were seated. They engaged in the worship and gave interested attention to the sermon by the pastor, Jason Noble Pierce. Following the benediction, the congregation standing, Dr. Pierce came down from the pulpit, shook hands with the President, and the two walked down the aisle followed by Mrs. Coolidge and the usual escort of secret service men. Mr. Coolidge's recognition of religion was not perfunctory. His writings and addresses show clearly his intelligent apprehension of its value—his life revealed his practice of its precepts and its spirit.

THE SPIRITUAL CLIMATE

Bishop F. J. McConnell is reported to have used the following vivid and pertinent illustration: "When I was a boy, I used to look with awe at the pictures of the prehistoric monsters, the ichthyosaurus, the pterodactyl, and the rest. They seemed so immense, so mighty, so heavily armored that I wondered how men ever managed to rid the earth of them. Then as I grew older, and read more, I learned that they were not eliminated by direct attack. The climate changed and they died. "It is the business of Christianity," the Bishop explained, "to change the climate so that some things will die."

It was generally thought a few years ago that organized Christianity had done that very thing to the liquor traffic in America. Co certain were the people of what had taken place, till they arranged a most elaborate funeral service for the late John Barleycorn. It was held on the fair grounds of Columbus, Ohio, as no building was large enough to accomodate the jubilant throngs. The eulogy was delivered by the late William Jennings Bryan, who took for his theme Herod slaying the infants in Bethlehem, and he explained that John Barleycorn had killed more helpless infants than ever did old King Herod in Bethlehem. From general appearance, another monster had gone the way of many other prehistoric monsters, which had formerly infested the shores of America the beautiful.

Contrary to expectations, this late monster was not dead, but was hibernating, because a change of climate had come over America. Apparently now another change of climate has taken place, and this monster is staging a strong effort at coming back. The dry people are horrified at the thought. The wet people hold that the necessities of the times demand the return of John Barleycorn in some form. Unless the liquor barons, who dominated the last two National Conventions of the two major parties, and are now dictating the proposed moves in Washington and in many of the states, are checked the 18th Amendment will be repealed, and the various prohibitory laws modified and nullified. Protection to dry states, and limited to light wines and beer are nothing short of Judas kisses in this nefarious program.

Who is responsible for the impending crisis on the Temperance question? Many place the responsibility on the propaganda of the wet press, citing the great metropolitan dailies as the worst offenders. Others blame unscrupulous politicians, who have become tools for the wet interests. Without taking any of the blame from either, one wonders if there are not other agents in this moral relapse. I almost shudder to think that some of the blame might be laid at the doors of the churches themselves. Many of the churches have been far more concerned in lining up dry voters than making new Creatures in Christ Jesus, I fear. The old time evangelistic passion is no longer felt in all too many of our churches. Christianity is able through the Spirit of God, to again change the spiritual climate, and John Barleycorn will die. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit saith the Lord."

W. A. LEDFORD.

A TRUE LITTLE CHRISTMAS STORY

There might be a moral to this little story. If there is look for it between the lines. No story or moral to any story is little when it concerns even one of Christ's little ones—even though these little ones walk in the humbler paths of life. These children did not go to Sunday School at the nearby church; possibly for want of what their parents regarded as suitable clothing—and possibly, too, the members of the church had not shown sufficient interest in them to make them want to come.

The nearby church was slow in getting up funds and arranging for a Christmas entertainment for its Sunday School. So when a week before Christmas rain and snow made it seemingly impossible, all plans were abandoned for an entertainment.

One of the newest members of the church conceived the idea of having a Christmas tree at her home for these little ones that did not go to Sunday School. Her husband had not had regular work for months, but she had faith. She sold twelve of her hens and bought a treat and a present for each of the thirty children. She had a nicely decorated tree, with electric lights on it. She did this in spite of hard times and bad weather, to give joy and happiness, where joy and happiness was not expected.

Christ said "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, Ye have done it unto me."

Christ must have touched the hem of this woman's garment and filled her heart with love and kindness and this ought to make every one around her ask, What can I do to help my neighbors and the cause of Christ?—X. Y. Z.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Young People's Day

We are relaying the call of Secretary Gibbs for a full obobservance of Young People's Day. The theme of the service now being sent out is "Our Gift to God." There is a fine opportunity to use our young people in the preparation of the service and the Board of Christian Education is badly in need of the money the program ought to bring in. Order the program from F. L. Gibbs, Westminster, Md., and hold the service. Day fixed for the service is January 26th.

Some Slogans

Brother J. L. Trollinger's slogan is "Not our bit but our best" for this year. That is fine. During the world war we heard much about doing our bit. A bit meaning with some very little according to their ability but a great deal with others according to their ability. Let us wish for the good people of Haw River Circuit that their best shall greatly exceed their bit and that the year shall reveal many hidden treasures in both talent and means.

Brother Pritchard has this, "More this year than last." That has particular merit in it because in some respects this year will try the fettle and spiritual attitudes of our people really more than did the conditions of the year just closed. Still we believe it possible for all of our people to render a more efficient service than last year and although their means are small, yet to contribute more to the cause of Christ than was given last year.

Loyalty Needed

The higher and nobler relationships of life can be maintained only through a spirit of loyalty. The nation, the state, the home and church are some of the institutions which will perish without it. That is, they can exist only in name without the loyalty of the citizens, and members. So whatever breaks down the spirit of loyalty in a home or church or state undermines the very foundations upon which they stand. The Christian church has suffered very greatly of recent years because of disloyalty. Church folks need to feel more keenly the importance of keeping the altar fires aflame; of having leaders and workers whose devotion to the church is too apparent to be questioned by any.

Christianity has really never known itself apart from the church, nor has the church known itself apart from Christianity. We doubt the possibility of maintaining it without the church; and if the church is to persist it must do so by the sacrificial labors of its members. Somehow those who join it but who forget the vow they take; those who use it as an esculator to lift them to higher social levels, or as a means to establish themselves in business—these must be made to feel that they owe a debt to the Church of Christ which can be paid only by their loyal devotion to the projects of the church.

Winston-Salem, First Church, Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor—I visited this church on New Year's morning. It was a beautiful day and there was a goodly number present. It is easy to speak to these Winston people and I enjoyed very much my visitation there.

Pastor Pritchard is one of our most aggressive ministers. Alert and ready to try new methods in doing church work and succeeds in stimulating new interest in the church wherever he goes. Our Church here is possibly the oldest station church we have. It has had a checkered career, though, having backsets which too often discouraged its members and made progress even more difficult than ever. Really, this church should be our largest city church. It is in a city that has grown rapidly and the church has drawn upon our rural churches in all these years, yet through some unfortunate occurrence it has lost its gains and been compelled to begin over again in building itself.

Possibly the present problem that confronts its leaders is to find a place in a residential section where a new plant shall be erected and the membership transferred to it for more substantial gains. First Church has several men in it who are capable leaders and we hope at no distant day may find itself in a new environment and in new quarters.

Gibsonville Church, Rev. N. G. Bethea, pastor—I held the first quarterly conference of this church Thursday, January 5th. There was present a very representative group and the business was transacted with a good spirit. While these officers are not attempting the work of the new year enthusiastically, they are beginning courageously and we shall be greatly disappointed if they shall not have a good year at Gibsonville. The annual conference budget was accepted in full and the same amount as was raised last year was accepted on World Service.

January 8th, Burlington, First Church, Rev. F. W. Paschal, pastor—Owing to the illness of the pastor I made an exchange with Community Church and West End church, Thomasville with Burlington. Brother Paschall is taking a rest cure under the advice of his physician and we trust will soon recuperate fully enough to enable activity upon the work of which he is pastor. He and his wife have greatly endeared themselves to the people here and have made plans for the work which should greatly strengthen it and bring into active work many of those who, like other churches, have no share in the activities of the church.

Burlington is one of our largest, if not the largest station congregations in our conference. And its development is by no means at an end, or should not be. The field is large here and with a consistent program wisely administered the next few years should see our membership here greatly increased and made much more efficient. It was once the home church of the writer and is because of this holding the chords of his affections more tightly. The morning congregation was good, likewise the attendance at Sunday School must have been gratifying. But like so many other churches, it has sustained heavy losses in membership through death and removal through recent years.

SELF-CONFIDENCE

Think those thoughts today which you wish to materialize in your life. Dwell upon such thoughts as pluck, determination, resoluteness, stability, enthusiasm, and self-reliance. Apply your best abilities to today's duties. Feel a deep sense of the responsibility devolving upon you to make the most of yourself. Improve and develop your powers by constant good work. Make a special effort today to increase your power and productiveness.

Work for clearly-defined ends. Do everything with enthusiasm and self-faith. Make your thought strong and purposeful. Set your mind deliberately and earnestly upon the development of great self-confidence. Believe more and more in your innate power and resourcefulness. Live up to your best ideals. Trust yourself to undertake new enterprises. Give a good account of yourself today. Call to your mind many inspiring words and memorize passages from great writers.

Listen intently to the voice of your own conscience and faithfully follow its dictates. Encourage within yourself every generous impulse and strong purpose. Realize that this day offers you unlimited opportunity for using and further developing your personal powers. Combine with your ambition real, hard, persevering work, and feel constant assurance of ultimate great achievement.

A MILLIONAIRE'S REFLECTION

One of the most influential men in Great Britain is Lord Beaverbrook, who owns the London Daily Express and a number of other daily papers. He is the son of a preacher. He made a fortune in Canada and then went to England, where he has forged ahead and made money and a name for himself. Some years ago he was elevated to the British peerage. Recently he wrote, "The evangelist is the man who has the greatest opportunity for doing good and if I were in a position to influence the life of a sincere young man today I would say to him, 'Rather choose to be an evangelist than a Cabinet minister or a millionaire.' When I was a young man I pitied my father for being a poor man and a humble preacher of the Word. Now that I am old I envy him, his life and career."—Publisher Unknown.

PASTORAL SUPPORT AGAIN

A very timely article appeared in the Herald of December 22, 1932, concerning pastoral support in the North Carolina Conference. Some of our pastors are receiving such small salaries that they cannot do justice to the charges they are serving. How can a pastor do the visiting that should be done when he has not the money with which to buy gasoline? It is true that groceries are some cheaper than they were some years ago, but it costs about the same to operate an automobile. A number of our pastors are embarrassed because of this situation. It appears to the writer that something should be done to remedy this.

HELPING

Anne came home from the kindergarten, and showed her mother the things she had made. A darning basket that was full of stockings stood between the two, and upon the basket Anne spread her treasures. Mother paused in her mending to look at them.

"I like to do this best," Anne said, as she unfolded a pink and green paper mat which the tteacher had helped her to weave in basket work.

"That is just like the work I am doing," said her mother.

Anne's eyes opened wide. "Why, mother," she cried, "you're darning!"

"Yes," her mother agreed. "But see!" She held a mended stocking close beside the woven paper mat. Anne could see that the soft thread that mother used was woven in and out across the worn place in the stocking just as her paper strips were woven; the tiny black squares showed in mother's pattern just as the pink and green squares showed in the paper mat.

A lovely thought popped into Anne's head! She had three brothers and there was only mother to darn for them all! "Mother," she begged, "may I learn to darn? And then we could do weaving together."

That was the beginning of what Anne called her "new kind of kindergarten work," but what mother declared was the best kind of helping.—Youth's Companion.

Mrs. Jones was a widow. After the death of her husband she had to take in washing in order to earn a living. It was hard, hard work and she was not used to it, and it made her very tired.

Next door to where Mrs. Jones lived there was a family who had a little boy named David, who was six years of age. He often ran in to Mrs. Jones' house with a piece of cake, or a nice salad, or a dish of beans, or something else that his mother had cooked. Whenever he went for a walk with his mother, he would always wave good-by to Mrs. Jones, and she would say to herself, "Bless that boy! He is the one ray of sunshine that I have. If it were not for his cheery smile and bright chatter I don't know how I could live. He is the one bright spot in my sad, dark life."

One day David ran to Mrs. Jones with a pitcherful of steaming soup. "This is some extra special soup that mamma has made, and she thought it would be just in time for your dinner."

"Oh, that is surely kind of you!" said Mrs. Jones. "I have been so busy this morning that I did not trouble about making myself any dinner. I thought that I would have a cup of coffee and a bite of bread and butter with it. Tell your mother that I thank her very much, and I am sure I shall be stronger after I have had some of this soup. I never knew any one to make such soup as your mother does."

"But that isn't all," said David. "Mamma said that there is a revival meeting starting tonight in our church, and she very much wants you to come. She is coming in to help you with the ironing, and she wants you to come to supper. Then after supper we can all go to the meeting. You will learn all about Jesus there, you know, and He will make your heart happy. I have given my heart to Jesus, and that is what makes me so happy. Papa and mamma are saved too, and that is the reason they have so much joy. You see, Jesus gives it to them."

Mrs. Jones did not go very often to church, but that night she went. She was there the following night, also the next night; and, in fact, in the three weeks of the meeting she did not miss a night. Before the meeting closed she gave a bright testimony that the Lord had saved her.

"It was your bright smile, Master David, that won its way into my heart at the beginning. My heart was very sad, but every time I saw you waving your hand to me and brightly smiling, I began to think that perhaps God had some joy ahead for me, and now I am glad He has filled my heart with the same joy. Go smiling on your way, and maybe you will win some other soul for Jesus."—The Youth's Visitor.

A LITTLE BOY'S DISTRESS

Some time ago a friend of mine, who was the mistress of a little private school, had a number of cards given to her containing the following simple prayer for children:

"O God! wash me from all my sins in my Saviour's precious Blood, and I shall be whiter than snow; and fill me with Thy Holy Spirit, for Jesus Christ's sake, Amen."

She gave a card to each child in the school, and one little fellow so much appreciated his that he pinned it up over his bed, and soon committed the words to memory.

One morning he arrived at school in great distress.

"Miss——," he said, "I am very unhappy today."

"Why is that?" asked his teacher.

He replied, "A dreadful thing happened last night. I had pinned my little card over my bed, and daddy came and said, 'Who gave you that?' When I told him 'My teacher,' daddy took it down and tore it in pieces and threw it on the fire, and said, 'You are not to bring those sort of things here!' But I have said my little prayer just the same, for daddy cannot take it out of here (placing his hand on his breast), and I shall say it every morning."

I wonder if my young reader knows for himself or herself the value of the precious Blood of Jesus! Do you know that it was necessary for Him to die, and that His Blood must be shed before you could be cleared from all the judgment due to your sins? Have you ever prayed to God in the simple faith of your soul to ask Him to cleanse you from all your guilt? Jesus and His Blood are indeed precious in God's sight, and if you know Him as your Saviour He will become more and more precious to you.

Think of being washed whiter than snow, "Clean in God's holy sight." And to be filled with His Holy Spirit. This is what God desires for all who love the Lord Jesus. He gives the Holy Spirit to all those who put their trust in Him where He now is in the Glory. Although He died and shed His Blood He is not dead now, but risen and ascended to the right hand of God. He is still the same Jesus who took young children into His arms and blessed them when here on earth.

Would you not like to be able to say that He is your Saviour and Lord, so that you can speak to Him as such every day?

The school-mistress has recently been called Home "to be with Christ, which is far better." It is believed that through her many a dear child has been taught to love the Lord Jesus, and to know the forgiveness of sins. Do you?

Scriptures to search and learn—"Wash me . . . whiter than snow" (Ps. 51). "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow" (Is. 1). "The precious Blood of Christ" (I Peter 1).—A. H. C., in Gospel Stories for the Young.

TRAINING AND WORKING ELEPHANTS

On the island of Ceylon, south of India, are many herds of wild elephants which may be captured and readily tamed. Native hunters and keepers have found that preparing the animal for his various tasks is a comparatively simple matter for most elephants respond quickly to kindness. Kindness and petting with a reasonable degree of firmness and no cruelty soon cause the elephant to have respect and real affection for the keeper. He will be very obedient to his master in return for kind treatment. He also insists that he be not overworked, that he be regularly and properly fed, that he be given two baths each day, and that he be permitted to rest in a quiet, cool, and retired spot.

In addition to the baths the elephant enjoys being shampooed with a brick, while an occasional application of oil adds much to keeping him in good spirits for his hard daily routine.

The chief employments of the tamed elephants are clearing forest lands, working in the brick-yards, carrying and piling timber, stone, and other heavy objects, drawing wagons, cultivating the land, and carrying their masters on their backs in ceremonial processions. The elephant does his work with great care. If he thinks the ground is unsafe or the load too heavy he refuses to go ahead with the work. If urged too much he becomes quite angry.

THROW OUT THE LIFE LINE

Throw out the life line across the dark wave,
There is a brother whom some one should save;
Somebody's brother! oh, who then, will dare

The lines of this soul-stirring hymn were written by Edward S. Ufford. As a young evangelist conducting services in Massachusetts, he was deeply impressed by the need of a life line to save the young people who were drifting in perilous waters, and slipping away from the good influence of the church.

The message of the hymn he wrote evidently occupied a very large place in his heart and mind. In order to better illustrate its meaning, he built a small place of worship at the water's edge, at Rockland, Maine, using a pulpit made from a boat. Then, with the aid of actual life lines to help illustrate, he preached his message. These life lines had been given to him by Cape Cod and Nantucket life saving stations, and had formerly been used in the rescue of sailors from shipwrecked vessels.

Those whose hearts have been thrilled by the singing of this soul-stirring hymn, can readily understand how the young evangelist would stir his hearers to new endeavor to aid in rescuing all who were battling with the waves of sin. All around us on the ocean of life, there are souls drifting away, and sinking beneath the waves. Are we doing our part to save them by throwing out the life line?

The Rev. E. S. Ufford passed away last winter (1930) at the ripe age of seventy-eight years. Eternity will reveal how his hymn has aided in rescuing the lost.—E. D. Hooey.

THOU MUST

Thou must be true thyself,
 If thou the truth wouldst teach;
Thy soul must overflow if thou
 Another's soul wouldst reach:
It takes the overflow of heart
 To give the lips full speech.

Think truly, and thy thoughts
 Shall the world's famine feed;
Speak truly, and each word of thine
 Shall be a fruitful seed;
Live truly, and thy life shall be
 A great and noble creed.

BREAKERS NOT BUILDERS

Some Christians have never been "broke to work double," they cannot keep step with others—they must have their "own way" or they will not work at all. If their will is crossed, they do not hesitate to make a split in the Body of Christ. They will separate very friends without any thought of what it has cost some one who went before to build up an assembly. Indeed, we have known some of this kind who seem to delight in tearing to pieces and scattering the flock of God, all to satisfy a selfish ambition. These are not builders, they are breakers, and very often just bluffers. Paul had this class in mind when he said, "I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ."—Unknown.

GOD HAD NOT GONE

"You mean, hateful, ugly thing! Why don't you look where you are going, and not run into people? You are a horrid, horrid boy, and I hate you!"

Little Belva was so angry that she scarcely knew what she said. Just then her father opened the gate, and looked very sorrowfully at her. Belva was very ashamed, and said, "I thought you had gone, father."

"Did you think God had gone, too, Belva? Remember, He can hear you when I cannot, and it grieves Him to hear you speak so."—Sunshine.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Topic for January 15, 1933

HOW UNSELFISH SHOULD WE BE?

Scripture Text—Matthew 16:21-27.

There is probably no temptation which comes to people more strongly than to be selfish. We like the best things for ourselves and the most advantageous positions. Human beings seem to be strongly concerned with self-preservation and forgetful of the people around them. An ordinary man would not allow a child to be burned to death in a building without risking his life for the safety of the crild. Why will men do this? This is because of the love that is felt for another and also it is the command of God. Selfishness is an unknown word to Christianity; it belongs to the beasts of the field and may dominate them but the true follower of Christ will lose his life that he may truly find it.

The temptation to be selfish came to Christ. In the scriptrue lesson which we have, Peter tempts Christ to be selfish. Peter assumes that it is unthinkable that Christ should be crucified and he suggests such a view. Christ gives the same reply which he had given Satan when He was tempted by him: "Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, 'Thou shalt serve the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve'." Selfish desires are forgotten and the will of the Father is made manifest. If we are to follow the teachings of Jesus, we must surrender the desires of self to the greater will of God and be ready to do His bidding.

"Let self be crucified and slain,
And buried deep, nor rise again;
And may all efforts be in vain,
Unless they be for others."

It has been difficult for men to forget their own selfish interests and say to the Lord that they are ready for service to others. Most of us are too much concerned about our needs and distrustful of God in supplying us with material blessings. We want comforts and blessings and are unwilling to give these up even for the cause of Christ. This is the loss of the true essence of life. "He who saves his life shall lose it and he who loses his life for the Kingdom's sake shall find it." This is not the Christ plan and is not the course pursued by men and women who have meant most to the world. Greater than life and the material baggage whi encumbers it, is the wider range of unselfish service which every soul can give. Another reason for our selfishness is our false interpretation of the Christian life. We have thought that the yoke of Christ is too easy and forget that Christ said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." Christ did not lure men with a false message. He stated the hardships of a Christian life as well as the blessings. To be strictly unselfish a man must be willing to give up the things which are nearest to his heart. Christ set the example by giving His life for His friends and He has a right, therefore, to demand the lives of those who would be unselfish.

"As a matter of fact, he who lives the truest life of self-denial has very little trouble with himself. Being absorbed in an object of interest outside of himself, he forgets himself; living for something worthier of his devotion, he does not give any worrying thoughts to that from which he has turned away in the pursuit of a nobler aim. A soldier is worth little as a soldier until he forgets himself in his interest in his military duties. If he even thinks of prolonging or protecting his life, he is more likely than not to lose it. A life of self-denial is not a life of conflict with self; it is rather a life turned away from self in utter selfforgetfulness."—J. Hastings.

Selfishness is not a good Christian word. Self must be denied and the usefulness of life find its expression in a nobler desire which is the expending of life and energy for the good of others. Not myself and its advancement I seek, but rather the good of my fellow man.

"My day has all gone"—'twas a woman who spoke,
As she turned her face to the sunset glow,
"And I have been busy the whole daylong;
Yet for my work there is nothing to show."

Humbly and quietly all the long day
Had her sweet service for others been done;
Yet for the labors of heart and of hand
What could she show at set of sun?
Ah! she forgot that our Father in heaven
Ever is watching the work that we do,
And records He keeps of all we forget,
Then judges our work with judgment that's true;

For an angel writes down, in a volume of gold,
The beautiful deeds that all do below.
Though nothing she had at set of sun,
The angel above had something to show.

This crust is My body broken for thee,
This water His blood that died on the tree;
The Holy Supper is kept, indeed,
In whatso we share with another's need;
Not what we give, but what we share;
For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his alms feeds three;
Himself, his hungering neighbor, and Me.
—James Russell Lowell.

A WORD FROM THE TREASURER

From December 22 to January 10 I have received $31.15, making a total of $52.07 received from all sources since the adjournment of the Annual Conference. At this rate I shall be able to pay the President's salary for three months by the time the next Conference meets. We are hoping for better times now that the holidays are over.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE SECRETARY OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION

It cannot be too often repeated that our interest in any subject is in direct proportion to the amount we know abou it; hence it is that the office of Secretary of Missionary Education becomes of prime importance. To her is entrusted the task of getting missionary information across to the women of the auxiliary.

Her Qualifications

The Secretary of Missionary Education should herself be a person who is world-minded and keenly interested, not simply in the work of her own denomination, but in mission work the world over. She should be costantly adding to her own information concerning an ever-changing world.

Not only should she be world-minded but she should be world-hearted, sharing the compassion of Jesus for humanity everywhere. With this attitude of mind and heart she will feel vividly the importance of awakening in others an enthusiasm equal to her own and of winning them to feel the responsibility for the part Methodist Protestants are to take in the evangelization of the world.

Her Duties

She shall keep in touch, through the Board of Missions, with the work going on in Methodist Protestant fields at home and abroad, and feel the responsibility of bringing this news from the front to her auxiliary. She is the logical chairman of the Program Committee to plan for each monthly meeting a progam of information and inspiration. She should encourage the use of the Year Book and should cooperate with the Secretary of Literature in making use of the monthly material published by the Board of Missions. She should be an ardent reader and supporter of the Missionary Record and strive to place it in the home of every family in her church.

She should arrange to have members of her auxiliary write personal letters to the workers in the field and if replies are received she should see that they are widely read. She should obtain through the Secretary of Literature missionary leaflets to be placed in folders and circulated among the members, and especially among the shut-ins.

If her church has no Misionary Council in which is represented every department of the church, she should endeavor to have one formed so that missionary instruction for all departments may be planned and correlated. In this same connection, she should promote an annual Church School of Missions which shall include classes for all ages. She must go even further than this, and since all education must include the project method, it is not enough for her to arouse new interest, she must plan definite avenues of giving and of service through which that interest may express itself.

It has been found helpful for the Secretary of Missionary Education of the Auxiliary to also hold the office of Superintendent of Missions in the Sunday school.

The Secretary of Missionary Education in the Branch should secure the appointment of a Secretry of Missionary Education in every Auxiliary and should assist her in every possible way, especially in plans for developing Missionary Education projects.

She should cooperate with the Branch Secretary of Literature in suggesting churches where missionary literature could be helpfully used.

At every Branch meeting she should plan a conference on methods where ways and means of promoting missionary education could be discussed.

If possible she should plan during the year a meeting—other than the Branch meeting—of Auxiliary Secretaries of Missionary Education, where mutual help could be obtained by the discussion of problems and the sharing of failures and successes.

She shall make an annual report in writing to the Branch of her activities for the year.—Leaflet, Committee on Education.

FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Dear Co-Workers:

The year 1932 has passed and as we are beginning the new year of 1933 may we not join in more conscientious efforts to put over the program of our great church than ever before? Many opportunities as well as problems confront us as we begin this new year. January 31st closes the time allotment for the Board of Christian Education. In this month we are asked to co-operate in the observance of Young People's Day. February 1st begins the six months time allotment for the Board of Missions. In February for many years the Women of the Methodist Protestant Church have observed Thank Offering which commemorates the beginning of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. This year special stress is being laid upon the observance of Thank-Offering, not only by each Auxiliary, but every church in our Conference. Credit will be given on the church budget as well as on the world service budget. Programs may be found in the January issue of the Missionary Record.

Assuring you of my good wishes at all times, and of my anxiety to serve our Church, I am,

Very truly,
MRS. Wm. C. HAMMER, President,
N. C. Branch, Women's Work.

THANK-OFFERING SERVICE

Dear Friends:

Again the call comes to us, in the month of February, to hold a Thank-Offering service, to express our appreciation to Him for life and light, and to support our missionaries in the Foreign and Home fields, and thereby to help give light to others less fortunate than we. Our missionaries went out with confidence in us and God. Let's do our part; we know that God will do His, and a blessing will come to us from doing our best. So let every church hold a public Thank-Offering service. A good program is given in the January issue of the Missionary Record, easy to put on and very effective, all planned out ready for you, and will be a real spiritual help to any church or people taking part in it.

Let every secretary of Thank-Offering plan with their church organizations, from the least or youngest to the largest, to make up some money to present at the altar in response to roll-call by a person appointed in each organization, Sunday school class, circle or Ladies' Aid (if any there be yet by that name), whose duty will be to plan and raise money for their department to give at this service; carry it up, announce the amount, hold a lighted candle which the secretary of Thank-Offering or leader of service has provided. Even the little folk can share in this and add to the beauty of the scene by presenting their offering at the altar. All remain standing, holding lighted candles, and repeat the Creed in concert, or sing a hymn, then the benediction. This thank-offering goes for missions.

If I can be of any further help, please call on me, but be sure to hold a special service and take an offering.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES, Secretary,
Thank-Offering, N. C. Branch.
Thomasville, N. C.

THANK-OFFERING CREED

I believe that God is my Heavenly Father, and that I am His child.

I believe that to me His mercies are new every morning, and that He daily loadeth me with his benefits.

I believe that in return I should daily load him with thanksgiving, and prove my gratitude with thank-offerings.

I believe that he has called me to be a co-worker with him in bringing the world to a knowledge of Christ, the Saviour.

I believe that he wants me to use my time, my talents, my prayers, my means to this end.

I believe that by His Holy Spirit He will enable me to consecrate my all to Him. Amen.

REMEMBER THE OFFERING ON YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

Every church which observes Young People's Day should take a special offering at that time. This money goes to the General Conference Board of Christian Education. The offering counts on the World Service Budget. Send the money to Dr. Geo. R. Brown, Treas., Reidsville, N. C. Be sure to state that it is on the Young People's Day offering.

—The old Ross House, the family seat of the Martin family, in Galway, Ireland, of which Richard Martin, known the world over as Humanity Martin, was a scion, and which was nearly destroyed by fire some months ago, is now being restored. It would be a pity for this fine old mansion with its historic associations to be left in ruins. Richard Martin, who secured from the British Parliament the first legislation for the protection of animals, was a member from Galway.—Our Dumb Animals.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Chapel Hill, Davidson Circuit.—We were pleased to have Rev. E. A. Bingham with us for another year. He did not preach the third Sunday in last month, but walked from his home on the snow. So few went he didn't preach. We had Sunday school today; 37 present; that does fairly well for Chapel Hill. We have a faithful few. Would be glad to see more come and perhaps they will when the weather improves.

May people see the need of going to the church. I wonder why people don't love to go. May we go more and pray more and may great things be accomplished this year on account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Mr. J. H. Nance is our superintendent; Mr. Arch Lanier, asisstant.

Best wishes to all Herald readers.

LIZZIE CRANFORD.

Cedar Cliff, Mount Hermon Charge.—After the bad weather and holidays, the usual service was held Shnday morning. The one since the fourth Sunday.

Mr. Mabry brought us a very interesting sermon. His text was "Clinging to that which is good," and he used "Clinging to That Which Is Good in the Home" as hissubject.

Because of the bad weather we have not had prayer meeting on Sunday night at church.

The flu has been causing some of the members to remain at home and causing our attendance to be small. One of our members, Mrs. J. D. Payne, is very ill of a heart attack.

In Danville, Va., December 24, one of our members, Miss Bessie Williams, became the bride of Mr. DeWitt Bailey. The young couple will make their home at Mr. Bailey's.

Henderson.—The universally large congregation at church for the Sunday morning service seems to indicate that a lot of members made New Year's Resolutions about church attendance. In spite of the bitter cold weather, and a good bit of sickness the church was filled. At the evening services the congregations are usually small—in spite of the fact that Mr. Gerringer seems to preach his best sermons at night. His New Year message was full of encouragement and inspiration.

Our young people who were at home from college for the holidays have returned to their work this week. Among those whom we saw at church were Mary Parham, from High Point college; Eugenia and Lester Boyd from Elon; Eleanor Young, of the Emerson School in Boston; Kathryn Falkner from Brown University; and Page Gooch from Duke. Mrs. Ethel Harris Kirby of Temple University, Miss Mabel Harris of the faculty at Western Maryland and Miss Mary Young, dean of women at High Point college were also at church on Christmas Day.

Two of our choir members are on the sick list: Mrs. H. A. Jordan, who is ill with pleurisy; and Dr. F. R. Harris, who has been sick for two weeks. We hope they will soon be back in their accustomed places.

The new church officers seem to have taken hold with determination and to do their utmost to make this a successful year. J. B. Hicks, the new treasurer, has inaugurated a very business-like system of paying off old obligations and keeping up with new ones—which will succeed if every one will do his or her part.

Mrs. C. L. Finch, who has been a most capable reporter for several years, found it necessary to resign as she had other responsible positions, such as circle leader, and Philathea teacher, which require a great deal of time.

The new reporter has not written an article since conference, so she will say now that the entire church membership was glad to know that Mr. Gerringer and his wife were to remain with us—as they have won the admiration and love of all who have come in contact with them.

Bethany, Randolph.—We are glad our pastor, Rev. Edward Suits, and family have been returned to us. Mr. Suits brings us good sermons. One of these he gave us the first Sunday night. Mrs. Suits also worships with us and helps in the choir. We are always glad when she can be with us.

New officers were elected just before Conference.

Our Sunday school is moving along very nicely, but we hope as the weather continues to improve our church attendance will improve also. We would like for each member to come out, take a part, and help make this year the best we have ever had. Let us not be content with just the same progress, but may each one of us grow in grace, and press onward, and be determined to do more for our Lord and and Master than ever before, and I'm sure everyone is going to co-operate and strive for higher and better living in this "New Year."

The young girls' class was to give a Christmas pageant, but owing to very inclement weather it had to be given up.

Plans have been made to cover our church, and we hope the work will be completed when you hear from us again.

Happy New Year to all.

West Forsyth.—The attendance at four of the churches where services have been held since our last report to the Herald has been fairly good, considering the unfavorable condition of the weather and the roads. Only one regular appointment has been missed since conference, and that was at Pleasat Hill church the third Sunday in December, due to the snow.

The pastor and family use this method of expresing their appreciation to the people of West Forsyth charge and friends of former charges served for the many Christmas greetings received, and also for gifts from some of the people of this charge. We wish to mention the names of Mrs. C. G. Hunter and Mrs. J. F. Hunter, who presented us with nice Christmas cakes and other useful things We thank these persons and all others who have remembered us in any way since entering upon the work of the fifth year on the charge. We thank Brother H. W. Doub for a "middling" of meat.

We are glad to report the condition of Brother R. P. Petree, of Pleasant Hill church, improved since our last report. His condition shows signs of permanent impovement. Brother Hobart Whitman, also of Pleasant Hill church, has had a severe attack of the influenza, and his condition is reported much improved. He is a professional baseball player, and spends the winter months at his home in the Pleasant Hill community.

The pastor found three members of the family sick at the home of Brother W. H. Doub, of Stony Knoll church, one day last week. His mother, Mrs .Sarah Doub, his wife, and his youngest daughter were the sick members of the family. We trust they are much better, is not entirely well, by this time.

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper is being observed at all of the six churches on the charge during January. The ordinance has been observed at three of the churches, and it will be administered at the other three during the next two Sundays. Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Pleasant Hill at 11 a. m., and at Tabernacle at 2:30 p. m. The appointment at Tabernacle has been changed from the second Sunday night to the third Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Thomasville, First.—"Why the Chimes Rang," a pageant which included a cast of about 30 characters, was given on Christmas evening, under the direction of Mrs. Sina Westmoreland and Rev. T. G. Madison. The church was well filled for the presentation. A service especially for the children, was held on Friday evening. Christmas carols and recitations made up the program. The most enjoyable feature was the Christmas tree and the arrival of Santa Claus, just in time to deliver the Sunday school treat to the children, together with other presents.

At the age of 69, after an illness of only a week, following a paralytic stroke, Bro. Charles Lloyd passed away at his home, 304 Gray street, on Christmas morning. Mr. Lloyd was not a member of our church, being an Episcopalian, and holding his membership in Davie County. Several members of the Lloyd family are members of the M. P. Church, and Mr. Lloyd was a member of the Men's Bible Class, and attended our church services. Funeral service was conducted from First Church on the afternoon of the 26th, by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Robertson, Rev. H. L. Powell and Rev. T. G. Madison. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

The C. E. Society held a social on last Tuesday evening. A large crowd was present. Finch Jackson, chairman of the social committee, had charge of the games, and a good time was reported.

The Auxiliary met last Thursday evening with Mrs. L. M. Westmoreland. Mrs. A. H. Ragan presided. Devotional was conducted by Mrs. T. G. Madison. Mrs. L. M. Westmoreland was program leader and Home Mission work was discussed. At the close of a lengthy business session, the hotel served retrehments to the 18 members present.

The Minnis Circle met Monday evening at the church. Clyde Leonard presided. Mrs. W. J. Loftin continued the teaching from God and the Census. Sixteen members were present.

We were happy to have Miss Hodges, our returned missionary, visit with us Sunday evening. Her message was greatly enjoyed. We feel that having heard Miss Hodges we know more of the work in Japan, and that in knowing more, we are going to give a more loyal support to the mission work. We were pleased to have a large delegation from West End church join us in this service.

Mrs. W. G. MYERS, Reporter.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Happy New Year to you, folks. Pastor Bingham brought us a message Sunday morning from Proverbs 3:13, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding." The Lord's Supper was observed at this service, glad to see so many remembering Jesus; for Jesus said, "As long as you do this you remember me."

Our Sunday school is moving nicely. We were glad to have our former Superintendent, Mr. Leo Pittard, from High Point College, who is studying for the ministry, with us Christmas Day. He made a splendid talk on "How to Make Our Sunday School Grow." Officers elected for the coming year are: assistant superintendent, Mr. Baldy Green, secretary, Mr. Clifton Hawkins; assistant secretary, Miss Mary Green; senior teacher, Mr. Ambrose Pittard; intermediate, Mrs. Claude Hawkins; junior, Mrs. Philip Hawkins, primary, Miss Maggie Hawkins; beginner's, Mrs. Baldy Green. Sorry we had to postpone our Christmas tree.

Our sympathy went out to Mrs. Squire Cullom and seven children Christmas Eve, when Squire Cullom was laid to rest not far from his home.

Mr. Raymond Hawkins, son of Mrs. C. M. Hawkins, has finished his business course at Richmond, Va. and has been home for Christmas holidays; but has had a call to go to work there and will leave next Sunday.

Mr. Bingham and Mrs. J. M. Morris and daughter, Miss Vera, were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Baldy Green Sunday.

Miss Maggie Hawkins was the guest of her uncle, Mr. Willie Green last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pair were guests of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Hawkins, Sunday.

Mrs. Mollie Hawkins hast returned to Roanoke Rapids after about three months with her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Hawkins.

There is right much flu in our community.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. Fred Love, has brought us many uplifting sermons since the beginning of the Conference year, but his sermon of the second Sunday ranks among the best that he has given to us. Reading from the first nine verses of the fifth chapter of Luke, he took his text from the fifth verse of the same chapter:" And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night and have taken nothing; nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." Using this verse as a text, Brother Love enlarged on it and gave us an interesting sermon. He stressed the reason of the fishermen's failure to catch the desired fish in showing that they toiled in the wrong direction and in shallow water, and that they did not go far enough in their work. Applying the story of those fishermen to our own life, our pastor showed us the need of going deeper and deeper into the spirit of God. We toil in shallow, stagnated surface water and we do not venture far enough into our work with God. Using Brother Love's words, "Go a little farther with Jesus in present meditation," and go back to Jesus for instructions, and then if after receiving instructions, our pastor stated, we fail in our attempts, our failure is due to unbelief, to faithlessness, and to failure to pray and fast. In closing this inspiring sermon the pastor showed us as the congregation the joy and peace of God at heart that comes from working and striving—from following the instructions of Jesus, the Fisherman of men.

The attendance at this sermon was unusually large. Many visitors were present, and everyone enjoyed hearing the truths of God as expressed by our pastor. May the Herald and its readers pray for our church in this new year that it may progress as never before, that it may go farther into the service of God and of humanity.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, preached a most wonderful sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock from the Twenty-third Psalm, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." He said if we are on the Lord's side we cannot get away from Him without stumbling over Him. If He is our Shepherd He will lead us all through life. He said he wanted every one to remember that the Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want. Tis message was made so plain that all present could easily follow it.

Sunday school is coming along just fine. We are going to try to make this the best year. The teachers for 1933 are: Class No. 1, Miss Lelia Byerly; assistant, H. W. Shoaf. Class No. 2, Mrs. Z. B. Snider; assistant, Mrs. D. K. Miller. Class No. 3, Mrs. W. M. Byerly; assistant, Alice Snider. Class No. 4, Ray Michael; assistant, Alvin Walser. Class No. 5, Arlene Shoaf; assistant, Helen Miller. Class No. 6, Henry Hartley; assistant, Emery Walser. Class No. 7, Juanita Phillips; assistant, Berklin Snider. Class No. 8, Mrs. A. L. Hartley; assistant, Thelma Lanier; Class No. 9. May Shoaf; assistant, Louise Hartley.

We have three Sunday school committees appointed. One of their duties is to visit the Sunday school classes once each quarter to give advice to the class if they see best.

Some of our Sunday school members are sick but are recovering. Hope they will soon be well and back at Sunday school,

ADELE PHILLIPS, Reporter.

Draper.—Sunday, January 8th, was indeed a good day with us. I received five new members at the morning service on confession of faith, and two were saved at the evening service, a fine young man and a fine young lady. I have received 11 on confession of faith since our Annual Conference and there are some more I feel sure are going to unite with us.

Our attendance continues to grow from time to time. Our Sunday school is doing fine work under the faithful leadership of Bro. W. F. Howell.

Our C. E. Society is also doing real good work. We are planning to observe Young People's Day January 29th.

On the night of January 29th the M. E. church congregation and Missionary Baptist congregation will meet with us in our regular fifth Sunday night union service.

Now may I ask an interest in the prayers of all our Methodist Protestant Herald readers for my health, as I have a crippled back and can barely get about. Have been to Duke Hospital twice since our Annual Conference. I am able to get about with the aid of a cane, but I want to be able to do my best for the Master.

R. L. VICKERY, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington.—We are sorry to report that our pastor, Dr. F. W. Paschall, is confined to his home on account of illness. However, he is improving and is expecting to be able to be out in a few days.

The Sunday school was well attended Sunday, having 349 present.

Due to the illness of Dr. Paschall, Dr. R. M. Andrews delivered the morning sermon. He brought a very helpful message to his many hearers.

The C. E. Society was led by Miss Peggy Hinshaw. Miss Hinshaw had a most interesting program prepared.

We were fortunate indeed in having Dr. Andrews back with us to fill Dr. Paschall's place for the evening service.

As Prof. C. C. Lindley has resigned as superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. Floyd Rogers has been elected to fill his place. Mr. Lindley is due much credit for the splendid work he has done. The fine spirit of co-operation which he has shown with the school is greatly appreciated.

We are sure that the school will also prosper under the leadership of Mr. Rogers, since he has had much experience in the work.

Mr. Rogers is one of the former superintendents, and has proven to be a very capable person for the position.

REPORTER.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—We are very glad to have Rev. E. A. Bingham with us for a new year's work. We extend to him a cordial welcome. Mr. Bingham filled his regular appointment yesterday.

Our Sunday school has not been running regularly, as the bad weather prevented. We are hoping to have a better Sunday school when the weather improves.

I close with best wishes to the church work and Herald.

ESSIE KEARNS, Reporter.

Lexington, First.—Our work here is going along nicely. Our attendance has been exceptionally good during the bad weather. Our Sunday school has held up well and our church services have been well attended. We had our regular Christmas program on Friday night before Christmas and the church and Sunday school rooms were filled and many were turned away because there was not room to accommodate them. The children rendered a good program under the direction of Bro. H. C. Koonts, and the large crowd seemed to enjoy the program very much. At the close of the program Bro. Koonts, the Sunday school superintendent, and Bro. J. H. Yates, teacher of the Young Men's class, and Bro. J. J. Mallard, church treasurer, and Rev. Mr. Isley were presented gifts for their faithful services to the church during the past year.

On last Tuesday evening Bro. Koonts held his regular banquet for the teachers of the Sunday school and for the ones who had not missed more than one Sunday during the year, and there were 48 present for the occasion.

In our Sunday school today we had 254 present. We were glad to see this good number present and we hope that our school will continue to grow. In our morning preaching service Bro. Wayne Curtis preached to the large congregation and his message was very much enjoyed.

In our evening service the church was completely filled, and Bro. Isley preached one of the best sermons this writer has ever heard him preach, and the large crowd seemed to enjoy his message very much. He preached on God's B. A. Degree, which he defined as "Born Again."

Kernersville Church.—This is the first report that has been made for our church this year. Now that the Yuletide season has passed and we again take up our crosses and push forward, we see a lot of things that we feel will be a great help as well as an inspiration for us to do our very best.

First of all, fate was so kind to us when it gave to us Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Grant, with their wonderful Christian faith and inspiration for all of us. They have already proved their ability to carry on the not too easy task that is placed upon them and we feel that with their continuing the pace that they have set we will all come out at the end of the year with a victory that will be asonishing to all. A few months ago, with the aid of our pastor and Miss Lucile Ingram, we organized a Christian Endeavor Society for the young people. It is steadily growing and we strongly hope that the year ahead of us will be one in which we will accomplish much and become a large and strong society. The fourth Sunday night of this month the C. E. Society of our church is joining with the C. E. of Pine Grove church in giving a program for Young People's Day. A pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," will be given, also the regular C. E. program that is planned for the night along with an address by Rev. Mr. Grant.

Our Sunday school is comparatively larger than it was this time last year and it is steadily growing. We are indeed glad to report that Mr. A. N. Linville, our Sunday school superintendent, is able to resume his duties after recent short illness.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—On the first Sunday there were 171 present for Sunday school, it being at 2 o'clock. Instead of Sunday school meeting at 9:45 o'clock it will hereafter be at 10 o'clock, with the exception of the first Sundays which is at 2 o'clock.

The pastor preached a wonderful sermon on the first Sunday, with the subject, "Faith," using as his text Hebrews 11:24, 25. After the preaching service a pounding was given the pastor.

The Ladies' Aid held its regular monthly meeting with Miss Garnett Pickard on last Saturday evening. After a program was given, new officers were elected. The officers are as follows: President, Bessie Swaim; secretary, Mrs. R. G. Craven, and treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Craven. The society will hold the next meeting on the first Saturday evening in February with Mrs. Henry Byerly.

The Junior Christian Endeavor met on last Sunday after Sunday school and elected the following new officers: President, George Haynes; secretary, Grace Haynes, and chairman of the Sunshine committee, Maggie Mock.

Through the work of the Sunshine committee the Senior Christian Endeavor made a brighter Christmas for many of the sick by sending them baskets of fruits and candy. The unfortunate in the community have been given clothes by the members of the society.

The Senior Christian Endeavor met last Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock with Miss Jessie Garner as leader. The subject for the program was "Good and Evil in the Newspapers." The society now has 50 on roll. It has its meetings every second and fourth Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. James Pickard has been seriously ill with pneumonia but is now somewhat better.

Miss Francenie Haynes has been confined to her bed for mony weeks but is slowly improving.

Connelly Springs Charge.—The work here is moving on nicely. Attendance is increasing at every church service. The Sunday schools are holding up fine for these cold, rainy Sundays. The average for Shady Grove is around 100. Sickness has somewhat hindered the work at Shiloh. There is a great deal of sickness here. It is in almost every home. Bro. C. M. Parson is very sick. Several of our members are sick. We ask all Christians to pray that they may soon be well again.

Little Eldon James Childress, the infant son of Bro. and Sister W. T. Childress, died December 19, 1932. Eldon was a lovable child and the only child and his sojourn here on earth was only one year, one month and 19 days.

The Young Men's Prayer Meeting is being well attended at Shady Grove; almost 100 present last night. The young people are taking a great interest in these meetings. Bro. Claud Akens conducted the meeting last night for his first time and did well. Pray for us that all of our sick may soon be well again.

Mount Pleasant, Mount Pleasant.—On the first Sunday of this month Dr. Johnson brought us a New Year's message. He told us that we could make progress in our work by doing better something we had been doing or by doing something we have not been doing in the past. In order to make the desired progress we need to make contact with God and with the church by prayer, by reading the Bible and by giving our substance. Dr. Johnson pointed out the fact that we must guard against something coming in the way to break our spiritual contact.

Some improvements have been made in our church and on the parsonage grounds since our last report. Just before Christmas an electric light system was isstalled in the church. On January 7 a group of men met at the parsonage for the purpose of setting trees on the parsonage and church grounds. Fourteen trees were set in the parsonage yard and four on the church grounds. This work had been planned for Arbor Day, but on account of the condition of the ground was postponed.

On Christmas Eve, the Business Girls' Circle gave a pageant showing the Christmas story. After the program was completed, the gifts from the Christmas tree were distributed and treats given to the small children.

Mr. Peter Garrett was buried at Mount Pleasant Sunday afternoon, January 1.

Young People's Day will be observed at our church the fifth Sunday night of this month. Several members of the Sunday school will take part in the program.

The Sunday school work has been moving on in spite of the bad weather. There were 52 present on the third Sunday in December for Sunday schools, but Dr. Johnson was in Burlington and could not get to his appointment on account of the snow. There were 172 present Sunday. Last year our Sunday school had an average attendance of 193.

Midland.—Surely we are in a land of change. Last year Midland was in the rear in everything. This year she is in the lead—leading in finances, in increased congregations; has more than doubled since Conference and is leading in enthusiasm. At the present rate of increase, soon the house will be packed.

Bro. J. W. Tarleton, the new Sunday school superintendent at Love's Grove, is starting off well and savors a good year. Pine Bluff has a fine bunch of young folks that just make things go. Ice hindered us getting to Pageland the third Sunday in December. We always feel the poorer when we fail to meet and be inspired by this fine, loyal band of Methodist Protestants across the line. The distance makes it impossible to give them the needed pastoral oversight. If this could be done there would be a bright future for this church.

I am of the opinion that if New Hope, south of Monroe, and Pageland could be served jointly through boundary changes, that each church could get two appointments each month instead of one and save travel.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—We were gratified with an unusually large attendance last Sunday for the morning service. Dr. Taylor's splendid sermon based on the text, "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward," found in Ex. 14-15, evoked many complimentary remarks. In this discourse he stressed the importance of Bible study, prayer, personal consecration, and evangelism.

Dr. Taylor expressed his appreciation for the presence of many children at the 11 o'clock service, and he promised to devote about four minutes to the little folks on next Sunday morning in a little sermon for them before he preaches the regular sermon. Now, that's fine, preacher. You will be rewarded for your efforts with due appreciation. I venture to assert. Oftentimes children manifest a more marked appreciation for attention shown them than is found in adults.

Today (Tuesday) all children between six and twelve years of age are requested to meet for the purpose of organizing another Auxiliary circle. Mrs. Taylor is to have charge of this group of workers. It will be called Cicle No. 5.

The circles of the Woman's Auxiliary met last Wednesday, No. 1 with Mrs. W. M. Crouch, and No. 2 with Mrs. Hill. Good reports and fair attendance were noted. No. 1 reported about $4.00 collection, No. 2 reported $22.00. The latter presented our pastor's wife with a beautiful yo-yo quilt at this time which she highly appreciated as it represents many hours of patient labor (or perhaps it would be better to say, sacred play) as well as unspeakable love entwined in the thousands of stitches which go to make such a thing of beauty.

The Young People's Missionary Circle held its regular monthly meeting on January 6th, with Miss Juanita Hayworth. An interesting program was rendered. Miss Doris Hedgecock ready two interesting letter from P. F. Minnis, Methodist missionary to India. Miss Juanita Hayworth talked on "The Duties of a Missionary." At the conclusion of the program, delicious refreshments were served.

The following officers have been elected for the Young People's Society: President, Miss Ida Guyer; vice-president, Miss Halcie Welch; secretary-treasurer, Miss Blanche Leonard. Mr. Herman Yokeley was elected superintendent of the Intermediate C. E. Society, and Miss Jewell Welch, superintendent of the Primary Department.

Miss Frances Hayden, who has been sick, is slightly improved, we are glad to note.

Miss Louise Welch, S. S. secretary, has been confined to her home on Johnson street, with an attack of flu and is still unable to be out. We hope she'll recover soon.

Roberta Charge.—A very interesting Christmas program was presented at this church Saturday night, December 24th. The pageant, "'At His Throne," was presented in a beautiful way. The pageant stressed the importance of giving oneself, service, and substance in the Master's cause. All the persons that took part in the presentation of this program showed a beautiful spirit of co-operation. We are glad that the program was a success although the weather conditions were very unfavorable.

Our Sunday school attendance has not been so good during the past two months on account of the bad weather and the flu epidemic which is now in our midst.

Rev. T. A. Williams and his wife and son, T. A., Jr., have been sick with the flu. Rev. and Mrs. Williams are better, but their son is right sick yet. Mrs. Z. D. Cochran and family have been sick with flu. Mr. Cochran is our Sunday school superintendent and we missed him very much at church Sunday. We hope that he and has family will soon be well again.

The young people of our church are going to organize a young people's Christian Endeavor Society. Our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, will assist them in this work.

MRS. OMEY PENNINGER, Reporter.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, filled his regular appointment Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. A very large congregation was present to enjoy his splendid message. Brother Loy used as his subject, "The Power of the Church." May each of us have the power to march forward and make the new year the best at Salem yet. Much good can be done in our community if each one will do his part.

Due to bad weather and sickness we were unable to have our Christmas program as we had planned to have.

We plan to observe Young People's Day on the fifth Sunday in this month.

The C. E. Society has been unable to have a program for several Sunday nights, due to bad weather, but trust we can meet regularly from now on. Brother Loy was with us Sunday night. We hope he can meet with us often.

One of our good members, Mr. W. T. Payne, who has been sick for several months, is improving slowly. We miss Brother Payne at our church services very much. Hope he will be able to worship with us again soon.

Best wishes to the Herald.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—The usual program of services was observed last Sunday, beginning with the assembly of the Sabbath school at 9:45 o'clock under the leadership of Superintendent J. C. Whitesell with classes in the different departments for all ages. At the 11 o'clock worship hour, after the preliminary devotions and lovely anthem by the choir in which solo parts were rendered by C. L. Gray, Jr., with Professor Ernest B. Stimson at the organ,, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, chose the concluding passages of the Sermon on the Mount as the basis for his discourse on "Living in the Worlds," the text being from Matt. 7:21, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of Heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father, which is in Heaven." In that notable sermon Jesus mentions two ways, two gates, two trees and two houses. Philip James Bailey is the author of a verse closing with the words, "He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best." Shakespeare said, "Ignorance is the curse of God, but knowledge is the wings by which we fly to heaven." Knowledge helps us to make choices between the good and evil, and aids us in living a well-balanced life instead of a lopsided one, just as the curriculum of a college allows major and minor subjects in order to give the student a well-balanced course. Only according to our ignorance are we helpless. Then he who feels the noblest lives in a realm of appreciation, and everybody enjoys the feeling of being appreciated. Even a mother who gives herself sacrificially by long years of toil for her family, can deny herself more happily and carry on more bravely; if she knows that her efforts are appreciated. Gratitude to God for past blessings makes for appreciation of the persistence of Christ's ideals. Lastly, we live in a realm of conduct. Actions speak louder than words, and Prof Peabody holds that our faith is exemplified not by talking but by walking. Not every one who saith, Lord, Lord, shall enter into His presence, but he who strives day by day to live according to the commandments and will of the Father.

At the close of the service the congregation was much pleased to receive two new members into fellowship, Mrs. Mary Shoemaker and sister, Mrs. Dora Guin, the latter an invalid, who are daughters of Mr. C. A. Vuncannon, living with him at 823 West Green street.

At 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening the two C. E. Societies, the Senior and Young People's, held their weekly meetings at the church.

At the Sunday evening service the minister delivered the second in the series of famous texts, being John Newton's text. He was a hymn-writer, 1725-1807, and some of his best known hymns were sung at this service. He and William Cowper, also a writer of popular hymns, were close friends.

On Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Woman's Auxiliary held its January meeting at the church with the vice-president, Mrs. S. S. Coe, presiding. Mrs. R. M. Andrews was in charge of the program, and the opening prayer was led by Mrs. C. L. Whitaker. The theme for the afternoon was Home Missions, and Mrs. Lester Peacock read an interesting account of Alvan Drew School at Pine Ridge, Ky., telling of the new building in process of erection there which will replace the old one recently destroyed by fire. This article stressed the splendid work of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Woodford, who have meant so much in the lives of the mountain folk of Wolfe County, Kentucky. Mrs. S. S. Coe then gave a comprehensive talk on the Dillonvale, Ohio, work presided over by Mrs. Hazel Greenwald. This mission is located in a mining town on the Ohio river, and the work is among the children of foreign-born parents, may of whom cannot speak a word of English. It is only four years old, and Mrs. Greenwald has accomplished much in so brief a time, especially in the kindergarten. The Auxiliary will serve a barbecue supper on Thursday evening, January 19th, at the church. Tickets will be sold for 35 cents and the menu will be barbecued pork, cole-slaw, rolls, jelly, and butter. Mrs. L. R. Peacock will be chairman of tickets, and Mrs. Ross Davis and her committee will have charge of the supper. There was an attendance of 35 members. A committee was appointed to bring forward names for officers of the Auxiliary during 1933-34.

The Wednesday evening prayer service will be conducted in the hospitable home of Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Coe, Hillcrest Drive, Emerywood.

The Central District C. E. officers held their January meeting last week in the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. Lester Ballard, Hendrix street, Greensboro. Those in attendance from High Point were Rev. W. R. Shaffer, past president, Misses Mabel Griffith, Ida Guyer, and Annabelle Thompson.

Miss Fern Ferree, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in High Point Hospital before Christmas, is still there, but her friends are gratified to learn that she is improving.

It is a source of pleasure to the friends of Mrs. Ralph H. Vance to learn that she has recovered sufficiently from her operation in Clinic Hospital, Greensboro, to be removed to her home on Montlieu, this city.

Mrs. J. P. McPherson, of Haw River, is spending a few weeks with the family of her brother-in-law, Mr. O. D. McPherson, Woodrow avenue.

Mrs. M. F. Hinshaw, of Randleman, who is a sister of Prof. J. H. Allred and a sister in-law of Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, of High Point College faculty, underwent an operation for appendicitis in High Point Hospital last Thursday, and is recovering in a satisfactory manner.

The congregation is delighted to receive back from Charlotte the membership of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Andrews, Misses Rosalie, Alma, and Dorothea, and Robert, Jr., but regrets exceedingly to lose to Lebanon church Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Miss Frances, and John and S. W., Jr.

Mr. E. L. Auman has returned from a visit to his parents at Seagrove. We regret to note the illness of Mrs. E. L. Auman and daughter, Anne, who are suffering from influenza. Mrs. Wade Marlette, treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, is also indisposed with the flu.

Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., who has been ill at her home on North Main street, is improving, her many friends will be glad to learn.

Rev. N. M. Harrison, of High Point College, went to Greensboro Sunday afternoon to assist with the funeral services for Mr. Paul A. Burns, who died Saturday in a hospital there. He was a well known member of the post office staff of Greensboro. Funeral was conducted at West End church, Greensboro, and burial was made in Oakwood cemetery, High Point.

West End, Thomasville.—We are very glad to have our beloved pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, back with us for another year. We are hoping and praying to make this the greatest year's work we have ever had.

Our mid-week prayer meeting was held on Wednesday evening, the 4th, at 7 o'clock in the basement of the church. Mr. R. L. Binkley acted as leader for the evening.

Our Senior C. E. Society met Sunday night, January 8th, at 6 o'clock with 59 on roll and 52 present. Miss Grady Wilson was the leader. All visitors are welcome at any time.

Mr. George Smith is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Hartman, on Barnwell street, we are very sorry to learn.

Bethesda.—We had Sunday school at 9:30 with 125 present; at 11 o'clock Rev. Mr. Maier preached another one of his good sermons. His text was: "And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." The more Rev. and Mrs. Maier are with us the better we love them. Mrs. Maier takes the children from 10 years on down in a Sunday school room and teaches them while Bro. Maier preaches to the adult congregation. I think the children enjoy this very much.

We had our Christmas exercise on Christmas Eve, which consisted of songs and recitations and a short pageant, "Christ Is Born."

We have started a new year and we hope we can make this a better year than the old year has been, although we have many things to be thankful for in last year, if the memory of this writer serves her right. We have not lost a member by death in the past year, although we have a very dear one lingering at death's door now, this being Mrs. Sallie Whitlow. She has cancer of the stomach.

We had several that did not miss a single Sunday at Sunday school last year. A few were not at church every Sunday, but were in Sunday school somewhere else. One has to make some sacrifice to be at church 52 Sundays in a year but I think we are well paid for the sacrifice.

The Workers' Council met the first Sunday. Several things of importance to the Sunday school were attended to.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets every third Sunday. Last year the Auxiliary started a birthday bank. We ask for a penny a year for all that had birthdays. Our bank netted us a right good sum, so we decided we would keep it going another year. We also started a missionary quilt. We put names on for 10 cents per name. We are making good with it.

Rev. and Mrs. Maier were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Clodfelter Sunday.

Mrs. John Brinkley does not improve very much. She has been suffering with a complication of diseases since last July.

DIED RECENTLY

Ex-President Coolidge, January 5th. He died suddenly and alone.

Paul S. Burns, of West End church, died last week and was buried on Sunday afternoon at High Point.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORLD CAMPAIGN

The Christian Endeavor World has on a special campaign at this time. I have entered the campaign as one of the individual workers in this state. If your Christian Endeavor does not take this paper, why not raise the amount of a subscription and subscribe for this paper? It is the source of life and activity for any C. E. Society.

This past summer the C. E. World was made a monthly rather than a weekly paper. I feel that this change has been for the better. There is a fuller treatment of the topics and a higher grade of materials in the present magazine.

The subscription rates are as follows:

"Get Acquainted" subscriptions for seven months	$1.00
One year	2.00
Two year renewals	3.50
Three year renewals	4.50

I will appreciate it very much if you are planning to subscribe for the C. E. World if you will send your subscription to me. Please state if it is new or renewal.

Does your pastor take this paper? If not, why not send in a subscription for him? Every pastor needs this good paper in his library. It will help him so much in planning his Young People's Work.

Hoping to hear from a number of you friends at once, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
T. J. WHITEHEAD,
Box 4674, Duke University,
Durham, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

Suppose—You were Secretary Gibbs in charge of the Department of Religious Education and responsible for the success of Young People's Day;

Suppose—You had put forth your best efforts to prepare a suitable program and to promote a full and hearty observance of the Day: and

Suppose—Your good friends—our pastors—were too busy, or too burdened, or too—?—to insist the Day be observed;

And It Wasn't! How would you feel?

Sincerely,
FRANK W. STEPHENSON.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

FROM PRESIDENT BROOMFIELD

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 2, 1933.

Dear Brother Pastor:

Greetings for the New Year. These are glorious days for the ministry and the Church, —days in which we much be "on our toes." January 29 is one of these days. It is Young People's Day and Brother Gibbs, in behalf of the Board of Christian Education, is seeking to rally our denomination to its support. He has prepared fine program material, and an abundant supply of envelopes. These can be had for the asking. Plan to observe the day, order the supplies, and help secure the $20,000 that is so much needed.

Fraternally yours,
J. C. BROOMFIELD, Pres.

IS YOUR LAND ADVERTISED TO BE SOLD FOR TAXES?

Because of the shortage of funds, has your land been advertised to be sold for taxes? Are you able to pay these taxes and the upkeep on the property and meet your other bills without embarrassment?

We have a plan which we would like to discuss with these tax-burdened land holders. We feel that our plan will mean money in your pocket and at the same time serve a worthy cause.

Get in touch with us and let us advise you about the matter.

Migratory Man

Not birds alone have caught the spell
That makes them go far hence to dwell,
That moves them on unwearied wing
Great stretch of space behind to fling.

The noblest creature on the earth
At first can find no troubling dearth:
There lie in sight not far away
The things he needs each coming day.

But time and sense new lessons teach
And bring great truths within his reach;
For man is greater than his space
And feels the need of larger place.

To distant scenes he longs to go,
That he a bigger world may know:
For complete change of habitat
He'll gladly give this world for that.

At length the lure of things unknown
Will draw him to a far-off zone,
He'll pass a goal whence none returns,
Yet find his soul with zeal still burns.

Now who will tell man's future place?
Will he become an extinct race?
Or will he join the angel bands
And bear God's word to unknown lands?

Character Training

Character is the chief end of life. And, it should be a Christ-like character, that is, a character should be fashioned after the life of Christ. Character training is highly important. Therefore, certain factors are employed in all normal and sound character training.

First, the physical factor is necessary. Physical training should begin with the parents, or even before, with the grandparents. Training should continue throughout the course of life. Even if ninety per cent. of all babies are born healthy, yet how long do they remain healthy? Then, too, do not the ten per cent. deserve a healthy birth? The individuality of children ought to be recognized and preserved rather than crush it by trying to make it according to a certain form.

The strongest factor in character training comes through environment. There are at least three elements in this factor. The parents are the greatest fashioners of character. The parents hold a most responsible position and the likeness of parents is impressed in the lives of the offspring. The attitudes of the parents are important more than the physical aspects. Children naturally want to do whatever their parents follow in life. The teacher is the next in importance in environmental training. The teaching profession is a lofty one. It has been said that children are like clay in the hands of their teachers, who are able to make them into good or bad characters. The teacher should therefore love the work of instruction rather than follow the profession as a job. Too, society is the third element in the environmental training. Society is composed of all kinds of people and many with strange attitudes and purposes. It is to be observed that the purer the social order the more wholesome the influences upon the growing life. Surroundings and companions exert an appreciable impression for character training. But, the parents and teachers can have a large influence in assisting the young life in making right choices.

The third factor in character training partakes of the spiritual nature. Moral life is made up in a large way from the combinations of all agencies. Friends have a wonderful part in guiding loved ones. But, the individual by meditation and prayer comes into contact with a supernatural force which enables him to rise above the material and social forces. Hence, now grows into the likeness of Christ. Each mountain-peak of character ought to encourage others to strive for a similar nature.

This Scrambled World

That something is radically wrong with the world is apparent to the most casual observer. The business man is keenly alive to the fact that the financial world is in a chaotic state, and he lives in dread of what may happen to him at any moment. The farmer, who is not supposed to know any more about business than the preacher, is obsessed by the idea that something has surreptitiously relieved him of all his profits, and in thousands of instances taken his home and his land. The fact is this old world is in a scrambled condition, and what is needed above everything else is some one to "unscramble" it, as the negro would say. But unfortunately there seem to be a hundred scramblers to one "unscrambler."

Men scrambled honest business principles in the hope of getting greater gain. Politicians scrambled patriotism in the hope of feathering their nests with the down of ill-gotten gains. Huey Long, the so-called king-fish of Louisiana, has scrambled the United States Senate so completely that all legislation, good, bad or indifferent, is impossible at present. Nation after nation has scrambled its obligations to other nations until international confidence and good-will have about been destroyed.

If we leave the business and political realms and turn to the moral and spiritual, we find evidences of the work of the scrambler even in these sacred precincts. Nothing is too sacred or too holy to be left alone. Marriage ties are being scrambled and homes are being destroyed. Religious obligations are being scrambled and men are turning again to the "flesh pots of Egypt." The beliefs of men are being scrambled by unscrupulous men who seek to get rid of the spiritual and the supernatural, substituting therefor "new thought," "new science," "new philosophy," "self-expression" and a new code of morals reeking with immortality. Some of these scramblers are holding forth in our midst at this time; but we hope the true and faithful will not suffer themselves to be moved. Christ in speaking of His church said that the gates of hell shall not prevail against it, so why should we worry? The only thing that will bring the world out of this scrambled condition is the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ as set forth in the Bible. Do not scramble your religion—your belief and trust in Christ.

STATEMENT ADOPTED BY THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OF AMERICA, DECEMBER 13, 1932

The Anti-Saloon League of America hereby declares its position on the salient features of the present prohibition situation, sends greetings to its constituency and to all the friends of prohibition throughout America, and makes appeal to the candid and patriotic citizens of the United States.

We would not, we could not in candor, minimize the seriousness of the present situation. For reasons not necessary here and now to enumerate, reasons for the most part familiar to our people, the persistent, highly financed and unscrupulous wet propaganda in the last year or two has deceived many good people.

The greatest achievement of the American people in constitutional and legislative enactment, the greatest both in social, moral, economic and commercial value, is now seriously threatened. It is not lost, as the wets assume and would have the people believe; it can and will be maintained if its friends can be brought to see the danger and can be aroused to united, aggressive, persistent, heroic action. Our reliance is upon the common sense and moral integrity of our fellow Americans.

We deem it expedient to state quite frankly our views on the following important matters:

Not a Mandate on Prohibition

1. By no fair-minded appraisal can the results of the recent election be taken as a free and untrammeled expression of the views and convictions of the citizens of the United States on the subject of prohibition. Both national party platforms and candidates for the presidency declared against the Eighteenth Amendment, one for blanket repeal and the other for modified repeal. With this situation confronting them, the voters could only follow party affiliations or cross party lines because of economic issues, which were acuate in the extreme and for which the party in power was held responsible in the public mind.

Those who interpret the results of the election as a mandate to Congress to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment or to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment by legalizing intoxicating liquors, do so either through a failure to consider the facts, or through a desire to restore to the sanctions of law and the protection of government the law-defying, criminal liquor traffic, and to fasten again the yoke of bondage to this traffic upon the necks of the American people.

Legislators' Primary Allegiance

2. A sacred and fundamental principle in representive government, such as ours, is that United States Senators and Representatives, as also members of state legislatures, owe their primary obligation and allegiance to their own conclusions and then to the constituencies that elect them, and not to national party platform declarations. If this principle is ignored or violated, representative government ceases, and we have an oligarchy controlled by political machines and bosses. If representative government is to be destroyed, we might just as well have an autocracy with a hereditary ruler as to have the autocracy of a centralized political machine controlled by a small group of wealthy men drunk with power and greedy for spoilation and plunder of the masses. For any political party to attempt to bind United States Senators and Representatives by the declarations of its national platform on a great moral issue, affecting the health and happiness and morals of the people, is a bold and unblushing attempt at the usurpation of the power which belongs to the people themselves.

Unless the masses of the American people have lost all their spirit and sense of self-respect, they will rebuke the party that makes such an attempt, and elect to stay at home such Senators and Representatives as bow to the bosses and yield to such shameless and un-American doctrine and demand.

Let the people of the several states and congressional districts speak promptly and in unmistakable terms to their Senators and Representatives upon this vital principle of government and upon the retention of the Eighteenth Amendment; let not representative government of the United States fail; let not our institutions established by the founders of the republic be destroyed.

Attempt to Stampede Congress Condemned

3. We unhesitatingly condemn the unseemly efforts in the House of Representatives to rush through a resolution proposing the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment immediately upon the assembling of the House, and even before Congress had notified the president of the United States that the Congress had assembled and was ready for the transaction of business.

We heartily congratulate the American people upon the failure of this effort to be-little the process of amending the fundamental charter of our liberties and institutions and we heartily commend the members of Congress whose sense of propriety and whose patriotic devotion to the right defeated this effort.

Oppose Ratification by Convention

4. The wets have urged not only an amendment to the Constitution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, but they have also insisted that such an amendment be proposed by Congress to ratifying conventions in the several states instead of legislature, to which all previous amendments, including the Bill of Rights, have been proposed.

Ratification of a constitutional amendment by state conventions would be an effort to open the way for political jobbery by corrupt political bosses in a large number of states manifestly contrary to the original spirit of the amending clause of the Constitution.

If the real purpose of the wets were, as they profess, to have the people more directly express their choice, consistency would indicate that they first of all secure an amendment to article five so as to provide that ratification of proposed amendments must be provided for by state legislatures or by a direct vote of the people in each of three-fourths of the states, as the one or the other method of ratification may be specified by Congress in the resolution proposing an amendment.

Not a Federal Function

5. We deny the proposal now being sponsored by the advocates of repeal that amending the Federal Constitution is a Federal function, and that Congress has the right to call state conventions for the consideration of amendments.

Nothing more revolutionary or destructive has been proposed. The states reserved to themselves the right of amending the Federal Constitution. Congress can only propose amendments and specify "the one or the other" method of ratification. Whether a state shall act at all upon the question of ratification of any amendment is entirely for the state to decide. The last vestige of states' rights would disappear and state autonomy would vanish like a dream of the past if the Federal government can so domineer over the states in a matter which the states carefully reserved to themselves. It comes with poor grace from those who have made loud acclaim about states' rights in the matter of controlling or abolishing the liquor traffic, that they should now propose to abolish the states in order to restore the liquor traffic.

Opposed to Legalization of Beer

6. The Anti-Saloon League is unalterably opposed to any and all proposals and efforts to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer with any increase in alcoholic content over and above the one-half of 1 per cent established in existing legislation for the purposes of effective enforcement. The standard of one-half of 1 per cent of alcoholic content in permitted beverages was established many years ago when the liquor traffic was licensed. It was established at the suggestion of the liquor dealers themselves and had as its purpose effective enforcement of the tax provisions of the statutes and was directed against the illegal traffic. No increase in the alcoholic content of beer or other permitted beverages would be satisfactory to those desiring intoxicating liquor, unless the alcoholic content were sufficiently large to make the beverage intoxicating in fact.

On the other hand, if Congress should attempt to legalize an alcoholic content that was intoxicating in fact this would be a plain effort to nullify the Constitution. The American people do not believe in and will not stand for nullification. Not a single argument has been made in favor of legalizing beer that is sound or has any basis of fact upon which to stand. Intoxicating liquor in all forms is a destructive force in civilization. For the government to attempt to legalize and protect an evil is commercially and economically unsound and is socially immoral and destructive. People cannot drink themselves sober nor drink themselves into prosperity. Against such a theory of government and such an effort on the part of the friends of liquor the Anti-Saloon League enters earnest and solemn protest.

Adequate Appropriations Necessary

7. The Anti-Saloon League, as always, believes in and stands for appropriations by Congress adequate to make the enforcement of the prohibitory laws effective. As shown in the reports of the prohibition commissioner, fines and forfeitures accruing under the administration of the law approximately cover the total expense of administration and enforcement as heretofore conducted. Altogether aside from any financial benefit accruing to the government from the enforcement of the law, the government is under the highest obligation to make adequate provision, financial and other, for as full, complete and effective enforcement of all its laws as is humanly possible. For such a policy the Anti-Saloon League and its friends throughout the nation take their stand, and we hereby call upon the president and Congress for appropriations for the enforcement of all legislation enacted in pursuance and support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

SCIENCE, RELIGION, GOD

The first fact which seems to me altogether obvious and undisputed by thoughtful men is that there is actually no conflict whatever between science and religion when each is correctly understood.

The purpose of science is to develop without prejudice or preconception of any kind a knowledge of the facts, the laws, and the processes of nature. The even more important task of religion, on the other hand, is to develop the consciences, the ideals, and the aspirations of mankind.

Both science and religion have reached their present status through a process of development from the crudest beginnings . . . .

It seems to me as obvious as breathing that every man who is sufficiently in his senses to recognize his own inability to comprehend the problem of existence, to understand whence he himself came and whither he is going, must in the very admission of that ignorance and finiteness recognize the existence of a Something, a Power, a Being in whom and because of whom he himself "lives and moves and has his being." That power, that something, that existence, we call God.

I am not much concerned as to whether I agree precisely with you in my conception or not, for "can men with thinking find out God?" Both your conception and mine must in the nature of the case be vague and indefinite. Least of all am I disposed to quarrel with the man who spiritualizes nature and says that God is to him the Soul of the universe, for spirit, personality, and all these abstract conceptions which go with it, like love, duty, and beauty, exist for you and for me just as much as do iron, wood, and water. They are in every way as real for us as are the physical things which we handle. No man, therefore, can picture nature as devoid of these attributes which are a part of your experience and mine, and which you and I know are in nature. If you, then, in your conception identify God with nature, you must perforce attribute to him consciousness and personality, or better, superconsciousness and superpersonality. You cannot possibly synthesize nature and leave out its most outstanding attributes. Nor can you get these potentialities out of nature, no matter how far you go back in time. In other words, materialism, as commonly understood, is an altogether absurd and utterly irrational philosophy, and is indeed so regarded by most thoughtful men.—Dr. Robert A. Millikan in Science and Life.

THE MEETING OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

In the early days of our church when there were no automobiles, no steam cars, no improved roads I have been told that those who attended conference would be gone from home two or three weeks, or more. There was no hurry. Having nothing much but time they used it. They enjoyed conference. They were great debaters. They say that the first resolution limiting debate was, "no member shall speak more than 45 minutes on any one subject but every member may have 30 minutes for rejoinder.' Another rule that seems strange to us was, "the stationing committee shall be composed of one delegate from each pastoral charge and the president of the Annual Conference." They met each night or oftener until their work was completed. For a decade or more the plan has been to meet at 10 a. m. on Wednesday and adjourn at 12 m. on Monday.

With present facilities for travel a majority of those who attend may leave their homes the day the session begins and be there for the opening and return to their homes the day of adjournment.

There has been some talk, perhaps not much, of meeting at 2 p. m. on Tuesday and adjourn at 11 a. m. on Saturday. The laymen who have mentioned it in my presence all seem to favor something like that.

As a member of the standing district committees I would like for this to be discussed in the columns of the Herald.

AN APPEAL FOR THE OBSERVANCE OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

On behalf of the Board of Christian Education, I wish to appeal to the leaders of my own conference to observe, wherever possible, the Young People's Day service, Sunday, January 29, or on some other convenient date. This day is dedicated by the Youth of the Church to Dr. Hugh Latimer Elderdice, President Emeritus, Westminster Theological Seminary. The materials provide a program for four services, as follows: Sunday School, Morning Church Service, Christian Endeavor, and the Evening Church Service.

We have had a very enthusiastic response. The orders are being filled rapidly. We will serve you as long as the supply of materials hold out.

The offering: We are asking for $20,000 on this day, $17,000 of which will go to our Seminary and colleges and $3,000 for the work of the Department of Religious Education. This special day is the last special day for Christian Education during this six-month's period. Regardless of the economic situation with which we are all acquainted I hope that your church will resolve to do the following:

Have a great celebration and take a large offering. If you can't take a large offering, have a great service and do the best you can—that will be great in God's sight. Anyway, use the materials and have a great observance of Young People's Day.

F. L. Gibbs, Secretary,
Department of Religious Education.

PATHFINDER'S HOME TO BE MARKED

It has been announced that within the next few months a large granite shaft is to be erected near Fredericksburg, Va., marking the birthplace of Matthew Fontaine Maury, "Pathfinder of the Seas." Maury was born in Spottsylvania County, eleven miles from Fredericksburg, in 1806. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy, and as a midshipman circumnavigated the world. He was author of a great work on "Wind Charts and Currents," often called "The Sailor's Bible," and of the once familiar "Maury's Physical Geography of the Sea." In a vote of the famous Berlin Congress of Scientists, he tied with Humbolt for the title of "the greatest scientist in the world," and we are told that before the lame Maury could rise, Humbolt stood up and said, "I yield that title to Matthew Fontaine Maury, the greatest scientist who has yet lived." Maury received more decorations from foreign governments than any American except Colonel Lindbergh. He furnished the brains for the laying of the Atlantic cable, and cast his lot with the Confederacy in the War Between the States. It was he who perfected the electrical torpedo. During his later years he served his native State in the chair of physics at the University of Virginia. Though honored by decorations from nearly every maritime country in the world, it has only been within recent years that his own country has shown the deference due his name and memory.—The Christian Sun.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Condition of Board of Church Extension

At a meeting of the Board of Church Extension I was asked to make an appeal to the members and friends of our church for a special offering to relieve the strain the Board is now in. Many years ago the conference instructed the Board to borrow five thousand dollars to aid two of our struggling churches. The borrowed money is still unpaid and it has gathered other dollars to itself. Now the Board finds itself unable even to pay interest on its debts.

But it is believed that with a liberal offering from every Sunday School and from each Church in the Conference this situation would be improved and likewise Dr. Brown might benefit by the overflow. The fact is we are asking for one thousand dollars. And this money is to be credited on your A. C. B. assessment thereby aiding each church to take care of this obligation many months before the end of the church year.

I have mailed letters to all pastors and most of the Superintendents of the Sunday Schools, have asked Rev. T. J. Whitehead to make an appeal to the Young People's Societies and Mrs. W. C. Hammer to call upon the Woman's Auxiliary to make an offering to this fund. The need is urgent and should be met at once and thereby get entirely out of the way of other claims such as High Point College, etc., etc.

The Herald

I have before me a postal card appeal from the Herald Committee which is certainly a good reminder of that allotment made to every church for the deficit in running the paper.

Then remember that quota for subscriptions; a pastor said to me it gets harder each year to get subscribers to the church paper. That may be the experience of most pastors, but then we must keep the Herald. Without it we would hardly be able to carry on in our conference. It was by the use of the Herald that the Children's Home and High Point College were built and it is through the Herald that the Home is greatly aided in getting maintenance funds. It is too bad that so many of these interests are in such dire need; and worse, that they should be so much in need at the same time, but even this fact should not keep us from attempting our best for every cause of our church.

Money! Money! Money! Money!

And this brings us to the conclusion, the Conference organizations must have money. They can't run without it and we can't "run" without the Conference. So there is only one thing to do about it; not complain, not postpone, not ask questions, not make promises; these will not relieve our needs. Money will do it and nothing else will. Let us make our contributions to these claims. Our gifts may not be large but we should make them just the same. We may have to deny ourselves to make our contributions but that is no more than others are doing. So let's all come in on this thing. Just raise your A. C. B. acceptance for this year and we will guarantee to carry on the conference activities and not mention money for these causes again before the annual conference meets in November.

State Street Church, Lexington, Rev. H. W. Maier, pastor.—I visited this church January 15 at the morning worship hour. Also attended the Men's Bible class. There was a very good attendance at the Bible class, which was taught by Dr. Bronnock. There was about the usual attendance at the worship services. The children were led in their worship by Mrs. Maier. This church has had a struggle from its organization but it has made progress. The present membership is more than 200 and there are quite a number of adult members who are regular in their attendance upon the services; and were it not for the debt on the church property, which has been such a burden upon the membership, these people would be most happy in their work here. This church ought to serve our denomination well; had it been erected decades ago, it would have served it much better for our losses have been many as members of our church moved here in years gone by.

Mr. and Mrs. Maier have entered heartily upon the work and the people evidently are co-operating with them splendidly. We predict for them and for the church a good year.

The interior of the parsonage has been completely done over. Brother Maier has demonstrated his ability to use the paint brush skillfully by the finish upon the floors and the walls. But the surprising thing is the low cost, not putting any value upon the preacher's labor. He did it about one-eighth the cost estimated by a decorator. Adding many hundred dollars to the value of the house. This is not written to induce those wanting interior decorating done to call upon this busy pastor to do it, but rather to show how a preacher can save his people money sometimes.

This is among our largest parsonages. It was built to afford a place for the religious services of the early church before the present house of worship was erected, it could therefore easily accommodate two average size families.

We feel hopeful that this group of church workers shall find a way out of their financial difficulties soon and then be able to give themselves more unreservedly to the denominational interests of the church.

MODERN GIRLS NEED WISE COUNCIL

Probably the best book that has been written within the last ten years for teen-age girls who need wise and helpful counsel on the problems of life is that written by Mrs. Alfreda J. Howell, Girls' Counsellor of the National and the New York Civic League.

This book, Girls Should Know, is the result of more than 25 years' work with girls, and it answers the questions which more than 40,000 girls have asked Mrs. Howell in her conferences and through personal interviews and letters, after she has spoken in the public schools. In fact she has spoken in more than 1,000 High Schools and Junior High Schools from our largest to our smallest cities and in rural villages, having addressed nearly 150,000 teen-age girls in the schools from the Atlantic to the Pacific. After her addresses she always holds personal conferences with all girls who wish to come and talk with her concerning their own personal problems, and many come.

A Few of Many Commendations

Dr. Howard A. Kelly of Baltimore, writes: "I have read 'Girls Should Know.' It is well written and all the necessary information conveyed. I would not hesitate to put it into the hands of any young girl. It can not fail to do a great deal of good."

The Baptist Standard, September 15, 1932, said: "The book is sensible, and one that would be a decided addition to any girl's library. The book is especially suited for girls from the age of 15 to college graduates."

The Presbyterian Advance, October 6, 1932, said: "No young girl or mother either could read this book without being helped and guided thereby."

The Record of Christian Work for January, 1932, said: "The book is intimate and conversational; free from overmuch technical terminology; plain-spoken and understandable; always with reserve and deliiacy. A mother or teacher who wishes to help young women with correct information and constructive suggestion, all in the fear of God, will find this book wise and helpful. She knows her subject and holds your attention. It is easy to believe that the author quickly gains the confidence of young people, and knows just how to meet their personal problems."

Every mother of teen-age girls, every school teacher, every Sunday School teacher of girls, every person interested in the moral and spiritual welfare of the girls of this generation, should have this book. The price is $1.50 per copy. This book is published by one of the great publishers of New York City. Orders for it should be sent directly to Mrs. Alfreda J. Howell, P. O. Box 627, Albany, N. Y.—The Civic Bulletin.

WRITTEN ON HIS FACE

While walking down the street of a city some years ago, with a mature Godly minister of the Gospel, we passed by a man who was shuffling along the way with his head dropped and his eyes upon the street in front of him. His entire appearance was that of a morbid self-pity, and dejection. No one could pass him by without noting his distressed and disheveled appearance. Hence, this noble minister of the Gospel said to me, "That man should look better than that. He is responsible for his appearance." I had not thought of it in that way, but as I have observed people since, I am almost convinced that our wounds are self-inflicted; however, they are none the less sad because they are self wounds.

We are responsible for that which is written upon our face and the story of our thoughts, ambitions, longings and desires are all portrayed there, clear and certain. More seen, by those who read carefully, than any other picture, are the lines made by sin, and, the softness and tenderness that comes upon the face through the years, on account of holy ambitions and desires.

Sometimes there comes upon the face of a man of God a deep, stern, noble expression that is the result of a fight and warfare that has been carried on within the soul to put down the temptations and unholy desires and to resurrect in their place standards of nobility and of holiness. That fight, although not announced to the world, is forever taking place and will go on until the last enemy has been destroyed.

We are responsible for the way we look and men must realize this ever and assume the responsibility.—Florida Baptist Witness.

KEEP THE SOUL OUT

"Love not the world, neither the things tnat are in the world" (I John 2:15).

If you will go to the banks of a little stream, and watch the flies that come to bathe in it, you will notice that, while they plunge their bodies into the water, they keep their wings high out of the water; and, after swimming about a little while, they fly away with their wings unwet through the sunny air. Now, that is the lesson for us. Here we are immersed in the cares and business of the world; but let us keep the wings of our soul. our faith and our love, out of the world, that, with these unclogged, we may be ready to take our flight to Heaven.—Charles Inglis.

—There is no better way by which a man can make what is best in himself such a wide and permanent influence for good in his community as by throwing himself heartily and vigorously into church work. To be an outside saint is better than nothing, but the best position is to be an inside laborer in the life of the church, thus helping to develop the finest character and bestowing the greatest blessings on mankind. A man is never more safe or more happy, never more useful, than when he has associated himself with the composite life in the spirit which the church provides. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good and thou shalt be to us instead of eyes."—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A HAPPY LITTLE GIRL

Sue sat in her big, shady yard all alone. She was sewing for her doll. Presently she looked up and saw another little girl, all smiles and bright nods, coming dancing down the street

“Yonder comes the little girl that's always laughing,' she said, quickly, to herself. “I think she's' silly. I don't like her and I don't want to play with her. So I'll hide behind this tree.”

And the big bow of ribbon on top of Sue's head flashed through the sunshine like the wing of a redbird as she darted to her hiding place.

“I spy,”' called the happy little girl, as she came into Sue's yard.

Sue was so surprised to be caught that she came from behind the tree at once. a

“But—but,” she stammered, “I—I was hiding from you because I—I—”

Then she suddenly remembered that it would be very rude to tell the littl egirl that she didn't wan to pla ywith her, so she stopped.

“Oh, I know,” laughed the happy little girl, because she never thought of such a thing as any one not wanting to play with her, “you wanted to have a game of ‘I Spy’ with me. But I haven't time now. I'm going down to old Mrs. Gibson's t otake these jonquils for mother. Come and go with me.”

“Now I'm going t ose the old man that mends shoes,” said the happy little girl. “Come on.”

Oh, no!” objected Sue. “He is cross, too, an dhe never gives me pretty pieces of leather to play with like the saddler on the corner.”

“There's the old man that sweeps the crossings,” whispeher Sue, hanging back as if she was afraid. “Let's go around the other way so we won't have to pass him He always tells me that all trash goe sbefore the broom, and pretends he is going to sweep me out of his way.”

“Let's make him forget to say that,” laughed the happy little girl.

And away she went dancing down the street with Sue behind her.

So the happy little girl smiled at the old man and gave him a bunch of flowers pinned to her dress. And he smiled back, twinkling his black eyes. Then he took off his hat with a sweeping bow, and stood aside to let her pass.

“And the ylook happy as soon as they see you,” cried Sue. “How do you make the mdo that?”

“Maybe it's bacuse I am so happy myself,” sparkled the little girl.

Suddenly Sue thought ho wnice it would be to have everybody laughing and happy as soon as they saw her.

“Ah,” she laughed, linking her arm through the happy little girl's, “I like you and I don't think you are silly at all. Won't you play with me this afternoon?”

IN THE DARK

“What are you taking that for, Uncle John?” asked Dorothy, as her uncle took down a big, old-fashioned lantern from its nail by the back door.

“We'll need it when we're coming home,” smiled Uncle John. “It will be quite dark along about nine o'clock, Dorothy!”

“Oh, how funny!” laughed Dorothy. Dorothy was a city girl, visiting her uncle and aunt in the country. She was used to brightly lighted streets and it seemed very, very strange to her that Uncle John would take a lantern to church with him. “Couldn't you find your way home without it?” she asked.

“No,” said Uncle John seriously, but with a twinkle in hi seye. “We'd go plum past the house without knowing it!”

But even so the lantern went along to church with them. Dorothy forgot about it as she listened to the singing and to the sermon. After the service was over she stood with Uncle John and Aunt Nettie while they talked to a few of the neighbors.

“I know,” she thought, “I'll go home and surprise them by opening the house. It is only a step and I've gon farther than this in the city. I've gone clear to my chum's house in the next block and this isn't much farther.” So while Uncle John and Aunt Nettie were talking, Dorothy slipped out and down the steps of the church. There was a light on the church porch and it was easy to see in its glow, but outside the circle of light it was very, very dark.

Before she reached the gate she had stubbed her toe quite badly. She hadn't thought the path was so rough and stony. Then she ran into the gate post. And then there was a step down to the road which she hadn't remembered, and she almost fell off that.

“Dear me,” she thought to herself, “I didn't know the country could be so dark!” She walke dalong very, very slowly and carefully, stumbling in spite of her care. Nearby there was a tall, dark shape and she remembered the stories she had heard of bairs and wolves. Perhaps that was a bear waiting for her. She stopped a second. Then she remembered there was no traffic policeman on the corner like there would be in town. There wasn't any one to save her fro mthe bear! Everything was dark around her; she couldn't see the house and the sky was overcast. There weren't even any stars to wink at her.

She turned around and saw the light of the church and she stumbled toward it. In her taste she tripped over a stone and fell, but she picked herself up and went on into the bircle of light again and up on the porch where Uncle John was still talking to a neighbor.

"My," said Aunt Nettie, "I just missed you. I wondered where you"d gone."

" I started to go home,' she said, taking hold of Aunt Netties hand, "but it was too dark."

When Uncle John was ready to go he lit his lantern and the three of them went together. The path which had seemed too rough and stony was clear and safe now. Dorothy didn't stumble once, for the light around their feet showed all the rough places.

A lon gtime afterward she heard a minister preach a sermon on the text:

A GENEROUS LITTLE GIRL

Jane was a child of the slums, a ragged, unkempt, forlorn little girl about ten years of age. Some one had given her a penny, and she hurried away to the store a ndhter epurchased a stick of striped red and white candy. She was sunning along the streets, proud an dhappy in her new and rare possession, when I saw her. Suddenly another little girl, equally ragged and forlorn looking, came limping out of the dark hallway of a dilapidated old rookery of a tenement house. She was very lame and had evidently suffered much in her short life.

The two little girls met, and the one with the candy held it aloft, exclaiming:

"Where di dyou get it, Janie?"

"Bought it."

"Where did you get the money?"

"A man gave it to me for scooting after his hat when the wind blew it off."

"Gimme some of it, won't you, Janie? Please do."

There was a wistful, eager, hungry look in the drawn little face.

Janie hesitated. Evidently sticks of candy came rarely to her. She looked longingly at the candy and then at the girl. Suddenly she rushed forward, saying eagerly, joyously:

"You take it all, Maggie; you can't scoot after gentlemen's hats and earn pennies, and I can. So you take it all and if I can get a chance to earn another penny I'll give it to you to buy anything that want with it."

Generous little heart, in which love of self had not yet foun dan abiding place! What al esson it should teach to all of us.—Wesleyan Methodist.

A NEW YEAR'S CALL

It was just before the New Year and Miss Henderson had been telling her small pupils about the pretty custom so common long ago of calling on one's friends on New Year's Day.

"I wish we could pay New Year's calls too," said Dora Day to her little friends after school was over.

"I don't see why we can't," said Polly Bliss. "I'm going to call on my grandma."

"I'd call on my mamma," tiny May Carrier told them, "because I love her bushels more than anybody else, only it would seem funny to call on somebody who lived right in the same house with you, wouldn't it?"

The children all laughed.

Margaret was a stranger among them. She did not know anyone to call upon. But, oh, how she wished she did!

She started homeward.

Polly and Dora looked after her thoughtfully.

Then there was a putting together of curly heads and much giggling and mysterious whispering. When New Year's came Margaret decided that the very best way to forget how badly she felt at the thought that she knew no one to call upon, was to do something. So she put the playroom in nice order and then dressed Araminta and Flossie Maria and all the rest of her dolls in their very best clothes and placed them upon chairs.

"I wonder what I can do now," she thought, and before she had had time to settle upon anything, the front doorbell rang loudly. She heard Nora, the maid, go to the door and open it; then she heard the sound of many feet that were trying to go softly, coming up the stairs.

Margaret wondered what it could mean.

A soft tap came upon the playroom door and Margaret was almost sure she heard a giggle.

When she opened the door there stood Dora and Polly and May, all dressed in their very best dresses.

"We've come to pay you a New Year's call," Dora told her.

"It was Polly and Dora's plan," said little May.

"We shall make our other calls afterwards," said Polly.

Margaret's face was shining with happiness.

"Why, I never thought of anyone's calling on me," she told them joyfully. "I just thought about my not having anyone to call upon. I'm so glad I dressed up my dolls. It was lovely of you to think of coming, seeing I'm a stranger."

"You aren't going to be a stranger any longer," laughed Dora.—Dew Drops.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By W. M. HOWARD

Topic for January 22, 1933
DANGERS IN LIVING JUST FOR THINGS

Scripture Text: Luke 12:13-34

The world is so full of people who are living just for material goods that we need a lesson which will warn us of the dangers which we face. Every man must provide for the needs of his family, but the pursuit of material things should not dominate his life. One who has sold his life to gain and wealth has lost the true meaning attached to it. Jesus gave a warning to the rich young ruler, saying to him to sell what he had and devote his life to Christian work. Material goods often blind men to the finer sensibilities in life. Spirituality does not flourish in an atmosphere of luxury and wealth. The ideals and motives are ruled by the love of gain. It is extremely dangerous for the average man to be rich for his eyes would be so clouded that he would lose all responsiveness to the best things of this world. "It is harder for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven than for a camel to get through the eye of a needle."

The economic upheaval in which we have lived for the last few years has added another valuable point to our discussion. Material things are subject to decay and change. Many men have considered themselves safe for life and then had their wealth swept away from them. Bank accounts are subject to the weaknesses of human failure and stock markets are too much subject to fluctuation. Money cannot add a minute to life, it cannot buy happiness and satisfaction, it cannot purchase health, nor shield one from suffering. We brought nothing into this world or do we take anything away, so the man shows himself wise who does not lay up for himself treasures on earth where moth and rust doth corrupt, but who lays by a goodly store of heavenly treasures.

The man who spends his life in the pursuit of material goods has showed himself the rankest of fools. Such was the judgment of God as He called for the soul of the rich young farmer. Ignorance of the permanent values of earth is shown in the first place. One also shuts out the chance for communion with God and closes the joys of Christian living. I am not saying that all men of wealth are sinners; I am saying that men who put material things above spiritual values are of all men most miserable. Some people spend all of their lives getting money that things might be made more comfortable and never get enough so that they might stop and enjoy what they have accumulated. Too many of us spend all of our lives getting ready to live. One is reminded of the couple who built a house which was so fine that they would not allow the children on the polished floors and would hardy use anything that was in the house. So is a man who spends his life to hoard a few dollars and never enjoys them for the strain of working.

The materialist is one who measures everything by the dollar; he is one who lives just for things; one who has blinded himself to the spiritual things of life. He is the man who, when you thank him for a favor, asks where that can be cashed. We Americans have been accused of being material-minded. We do not look at the beauty of a tree, but rather speculate on how many feet of lumber it contains. We would quickly tear down an old church to make room for an apartment house. Materialism is a dreadful disease that affects the social order and that is especially harmful to the soul.

In giving the model prayer, Jesus asked for only one thing which was material and that was for daily bread. "Lord, for tomorrow and its needs I do not pray," but trust Thee for Thy care and sustenance. God feeds the birds and clothes the lilies and He will never forsake the greatest of His creations. We never find rest and contentment in materialism, but "Thou hast made us for thyself, and our hearts are restless until they rest in thee."—J. Hastings.

Quotable Poetry

THE GREATEST WORK

He built a house; time laid it in the dust;
He wrote a book, its title now forgot;
He ruled a city, but his name is not
On any table graven, or where rust
Can gather from disuse, or marble bust.
He took a child from out a wretched cot,
Who on the state dishonor might have brought,
And reared him to the Christian's hope and trust.
The boy, to manhood grown, became a light
To many souls, and loved and preached for human need
The wondrous love of the Omnipotent.
The work has multiplied like stars at night
When darkness deepens: every noble deed
Lasts longer than a granite monument.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

Dear Brother Pastor:

The urgency of the need of the Board of Christian Education leads me to make this second appeal to you in behalf of Young People's Day, January 20. It is needless for me to remind you of the great work being done for our young people under the direction of Secretary F. L. Gibbs. I fear, however, that there are those in your congregation who are not aware of the fine progress that has been made in this department. Young People's Day provides you with a fine opportunity to do two things:

First, to acquaint your people with the program of the Board of Christian Education.

Second, to lead your Sunday school, Young People's Societies, and congregation in securing a liberal offering for this Board. We must depend on you. Don't fail us!

J. C. BROOMFIELD, President.

SUGGESTIONS FOR METHODIST PROTESTANT YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY AND C. E. WEEK

Sunday, Jan. 29-Sunday, Feb. 5, Inclusive

Sunday, January 29, Young People's Day.—Special program materials have been distributed for all the services on this day. The materials may be had free from the Board of Christian Education, Westminster, Maryland.

Monday, January 30, Alumni Day.—"Honor to Christian Workers Who Are Giving Their Best to Christ." Plan an appropriate service in honor of the older members of your church who made your Christian Endeavor Society possible.

Tuesday, January 31, Study-Class Day.—"The Best of My Thinking Consecrated to Christ." Begin a study class on this day.

Wednesday, February 1, Devotional Day.—"The Best of My Quiet Thoughts Committed to Christ." Attend the mid-week prayer service in a body. Take charge of the services upon the invitation of the pastor.

Thursday, February 2, Christian Endeavor Day.—"A World-wide Youth Movement—for Christ and the Church." Have presented the story of the founding and growth of Christian Endeavor.

Friday, February 3, Fellowship Day.—"Serving Christ Through My Friendship." Social fellowship event planned by the young people for young people and adults.

Sunday, February 5, Christian Endeavor Sunday.—"Serving Christ With My Best." Plan with the leaders of your local church in an apropriate service in celebrating Christian Endeavor.

The January, 1933, issue of the Christian Endeavor World contains detailed suggestions for carrying out the above program. I trust that our Endeavorers everywhee possible will plan a full week of activities.

F. L. GIBBS.

—Misses Rebecca Coble and Miss Mary Margaret Bates, of Calvary church, are among the high school graduates this week.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Hermon Church.—Services at Mount Hermon church opened at 11 o'clock by our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry. The lesson for the day was First Thessalonians, 5th chapter, 4th through the 24th verses. Then, before delivering the sermon, he told the boys and girls a short story. The lesson from the story was how older people find Christ through children.

The text was "Hold fast to that which is good." The lesson was centered around the practical problem of living a Christian life in the home, something we all must think about, for if you are a Christian you have to live a Christian every day, not just one a week, for you can't break the laws of our God.

The 22nd of January will be observed as Young People's Day in our church. The program is being arranged by the young people and will be given before Sunday school.

Haw River Circuit.—Prolonged silence may mean one of three things, viz.: death, coma, or quiet activity. We believe that in our case it is the latter. While there may be things that the second would relieve, and we hope the first is a great way in the distance.

This charge is doing something. We are not making a great noise, we are doing nothing spectacular, but we are steadily moving on. The church attendance is all one could expect, the co-operation in the main is undisputed, and the response to effort is manifest in practically every quarter.

Within the last three years we have sent one ministerial student to High Point College, and he is now a Junior, and in addition we have a Sophomore, and a Freshman, all of whom are outstanding Christian young people, and good workers in the churches from which they have gone. There are many more back home just like them, and others equally as good and true in other colleges throughout the state.

There is a spirit of brotherly love and cooperation here unlike anything we have seen in so large a group of people. The spiritual life in the main is good, and we have reasons for thanksgiving and optimism along this line.

We have enjoyed a steady increase in membership during the last four years. We have also experienced the loss of some of the best people in the church. Tragedy has stalked amid our people. Sudden death has overtaken some, old age has claimed others, few have left for other places, but through all this we have seen the membership roll grow larger for four years.

Our people are largely farmers. And perhaps you know that for three years the farmer has been the loser in many ways. Seasons were against them sometimes, and when they had a good crop they could not get anything for it. They have had little money, but plenty to eat.

And in this connection may I say if I took time and space to report not only the poundings, but the constant coming in of gifts from our people, I would not have space to write anything else. We have had plenty of what our people have had. Hardly a week goes by but that something good to eat is put in our car or left at the parsonage.

Some time ago I read in the Herald that someone suggested that the farmers bring the preacher's wood to him. Well, they do not do that, and I do not want them to do it, but one man has given me all the wood I will cut and haul for three years, and we have used plenty of it. The preacher who wants it brought to the parsonage would get good exercise and a great "kick" out of going to the woods after it. Try it, brother; the farmer will give you the wood if you will go after it, and if it isn't worth going after, it is not worth having; if you are sick or unable to work, then they will bring it to you; otherwise, we should not expect such things to be done.

We are planning to do some worth-while things this year, and hope to be able to see a greater degree of progress than in recent years. We have a good people to serve and a loyal people to help, and I see no reason why we should not move forward during the year. J. L. TROLLINGER.

Shoals, Mount Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—Our beloved pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, preached a splendid sermon on the second Sunday. Mr. Hunter always preaches very helpful sermons and does his work so well that we feel we have the best all around pastor in the Conference, and if we fail to do the very best it will not be his fault.

Our Sunday school has started the new year very well; about 60 on roll, and despite the rough weather we had 50 present Sunday. Sickness has kept same away. Dault Harvey cut his foot while hewing a log and has been confined to his home for several weeks. We hope he will soon be able to do his work and be back in Sunday school. We miss him at church, as he is one of the most regular attendants.

We would be glad to see more people come to our Sunday school. Perhaps they will when the weather improves. Let's try to go more, do more, and pray more this year that we may do our very best. REPORTER.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—We are very glad to have Rev. C. L. Grant and family with us for the new year's work. We extend to them a most cordial welcome. Rev. Mr. Grant filled his appointment Sunday afternoon and brought us an interesting message from the parable of the prodigal son, which will be helpful to us all.

Our Sunday school continues to grow and is doing fine work under the leadership of our superintendent, Bro. A. B. Dwiggins, and the followinv teachers: Men's Bible class, Mr. Henry Crews; Young Men's Bible class, Mr. Max Dwiggins; Women's class, Mrs. I. C. Ingram; Young Ladies' class, Miss Rachel Ingram; Boys' Junior class, Mrs. N. W. Warren, and Beginners' class, Mrs. J. M. Barrow.

Our Christian Endeavor Society held its first business meeting of this year at the home of Miss Rachel Ingram on Wednesday evening, January 11. The president, Mr. Ned Ingram, presided and the following officers were elected for the new year: Presidet, Miss Rachel Ingram; vice-president, Miss Nelda McGee; secretary, Miss Marie Dillon; assistant and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ned Ingram; treasurer, Mr. James D. Barrow, and reporter, Miss Deane Ingram.

We, the members of the C. E. Society and Sunday school, mourn the death of one of our most faithful and loyal members, Miss Inez McGee, Kernersville, N. C. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee McGee, and was born in Winston-Salem, December 1, 1918. After an illness of only a few days she passed away at the home of her parents on December 26, 1932.

Inez, as she was familiarly known to us, was always willing to do whatever was asked of her, and was regular in attendance of all the church services. She always wore a kind, loving smile and was dearly loved by all who knew her. We greatly miss her in our Christian Endeavor Society and Sunday school work. We extend to each member of the bereaved family our deepest sympathy.

Littleton Charge.—Our work appears to be progressing nicely so far as the spiritual side is concerned, and that is the most important part after all. However, we are seriously handicapped by the lack of funds with which to carry on the work of Christ. We could visit our members, put more time to consecation and study, and do many other things to arouse interest and enthusiasm if we could only get the necessary money.

However, we have some things to report that are encouraging and make us feel that the people are in sympathy with us. Just before Conference we received a kitchen shower from our church at Weaver's Chapel, and another just before Christmas from Corinth. It would take too much space to list all the things given. We appreciate each and every gift, and wish to thank you all for your thoughtfulness. May God bless and keep us all. P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Spencer.—Since our church has kept silent for some time I would like to write a few lines. We are glad Conference gave us Rev. W. M. Howard, and we are having better congregation since we have the 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. services. Our Sunday school is doing good work.

Our pastor brought two inspiring gospel messages Sunday.

We pray this may be a good year for our church. MRS. A. L. MOORE.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—Due to weather conditions the election of officers for the C. E. Society was postponed from December 18 until January 1, at which time the officers were elected as follows: President, Mr. Ray Leatherman; vice-president, Mr. Kyle Sink; secretary, Miss Stamey Leonard; pianist, Miss Vesta Troxler; chairman of music committee, Miss Vesta Troxler; helper, Miss Mable Berrier. On the lookout committee are Miss Grace Evans, Miss Mabel Leonard, Miss Ruth Sink, Miss Kathleen Kepley, Miss Mabel Berrier, Miss Blanche Sink and Mr. Japha Leonard. Social committee: Mrs. R. S. Troxler, Miss Reva Sink and Miss Arlene Michael; program committee, Mrs. Paul Leonard and Mrs. Kyle Sink; flower committee, Miss Florence Berrier and Mr. Homer Sink. Miss Emma Berrie was elected treasurer of the Conference budget, and Miss Blanche Sink was elected C. E. reporter.

We hope these officers and committees will do the best they can for the good of the society and the upbuilding of God's kingdom, and let our motto be "A larger and better C. E. for 1933."

The C. E. Society met Sunday evening, January 8, at the usual time, 6:30, and heard the lesson on "How Shall We Know God's Will?" led by Miss Lois McMahan. This lesson was interestingly discussed.

Next Sunday evening, January 15, Miss Vesta Troxler will lead the program on "How Unselfish Should We Be?" Come! You are always welcome at Shiloh.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—We are very grateful to the Conference for returning Rev. B. M. Williams and family to us again. The people of this church greatly appreciate them and we predict for them a successful year's work.

The regular appointment was filled the second Sunday by the pastor, which a thoughtful and interesting message based on the "Lord's Supper."

Due to sickness and the extremely bad weather, all departments of work have nearly been on a standstill during the past month. Since the conditions are better we hope that by hard work and earnest prayer we can make up the lost time.

The pastor called an official board meeting January 4 to make and discuss plans for carrying on the work of the year in a fore successful way than before. An "every-member canvass" is to be made to take care of the financial situation of the church. We feel that by earnest work and co-operation we can close this year up in a happy way, and feel that we have completed a big task.

With best regards to the readers of the Herald. REPORTER.

Forsyth Charge.—Although the pastor and several members of his family have been sick with flu and he had to miss three appointments, the work has by no means stopped. Two of the churches had splendid Christmas programs and the others observed the occasion in some appropriate way.

Since Conference I have received four new members into Union Ridge church. They have recently re-arranged the pews here, adding considerably to the seating capacity and making the auditorium much more attractive. This church is just inside the city limits in a beautiful and growing community and should become one of our strongest churches.

Mount Carmel, just south of the city, reported yesterday that the Sunday school had begun the new year with a better average attendance than at any time within ten years.

Maple Springs and Hickory Ridge, the churches nearest the parsonage, are doing splendid work and the outlook for a successful year at these places is bright.

During the holidays and since, many useful gifts have found their way to the parsonage, including practically a whole hog by Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cox and sisters, and a ten-pound hen for our Christmas dinner by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Long.

While we were shut in with flu the following remembered us with gifts: Mrs. I. W. Baity, Mrs. T. L. Speas, Mrs. L. C. Hine, Mrs. W. G. Henning and sister, Miss Livengood, Miss Flora Kiger, Miss Ida Long and the Woman's Auxiliary at Maple Springs. Numerous other showed their interest by coming in to see us and calling over the telephone.

Quite a number of our people are on the sick list, but so far as we know, none are serious.

Our desire is that this may be a good year for all our pastors and charges.

First Church, Burlington.—I'm sure it will be to the subscribers' interests to know that Dr. Paschall was able to be back on his job Sunday after being confined to his home by illness.

There is yet much illness in the church family.

The Sunday school attendance is holding up well, there being 301 present Sunday.

A well-filled house was greatly inspired by the message Dr. Paschall brought in the morning service. His stubject was "The Program of the Church." The duty of every church member was greatly emphasized in this message.

For the evening worship Dr. Paschall delivered a most interesting sermon on "The Value of Things."

Miss Frances Hinshaw was in charge of the C. E. program for the evening.

Lexington, State Street.—An interesting and good opening program and creditable sized attendance marked the Sunday school conducted by our very efficient superintendent, Mrs. H. S. Lanier. An attendance chart is being used very successfully and is creating and stimulating effort in all the classes. Gold stars are awarded classes having perfect report, silver ones for nearly perfect, and red ones for good report.

Dr. Andrews was with us at the 11 o'clock hour and gave a fine address from the parable of the talents. He also stressed the importance of prayer, faith and worthy effort on the part of each church member if we are to reach the goals we are striving for. He also earnestly requested the prayers of us all for himself that he may have divine gidance, physical strength and financial means with which to attain to the things so important and so dear to his heart. None of us should fail him. To be president of the Conference is at no time a simple matter, and now it means many difficulties and problems that did not exist until recently.

Dr. Maier brought us a most heartening and timely message Sunday evening on the benefits and beauties of the church. Without ignoring the fact that many failings, faults and mistakes are common to any organization made up of human beings, he dwelt in a very inspiring way on the work the church does and the great influence it spreads over the world.

The Auxiliary met last night at the home of Mrs. A. H. Evans, president. Ways and means for raising money are in progress. One of the ways is a chicken pie supper to be served in the church dining hall Saturday evening. We call it supper becaue we have a friend, not of our congregation, who says she will eat nowhere that the evening meal is called dinner. We want her to eat with us.

The Calendar Plan has been adopted and we hope will be a success. This method of getting as many as possible to give a penny a day above their regular pledges is well known to most churches and is a splendid way to raise money. Almost everyone can give a penny a day by exercising a little self-denial.

The parsonage is a lovely place now, beautified by a new coat of paint throughout the entire interior, the floors more beautiful than they were when the house was new and with Mrs. Maier's artistic ability to blend and beautify home furnishings and all that she touches a real transformation has been accomplished. The credit for the expense and labor all this has entailed goes almost exclusively to Dr. and Mrs. Maier. A few men of the church helped with the work. Dr. Maier expressed his appreciation to them for their help Sunday evening at the beginning of the service.

The Wednesday evening prayer meeting is growing in interest and attendance. All who attend receive spiritual strength and help.

We hope to see many from the regions 'round about Bethesda at the supper Saturday evening. REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—At the 11 o'clock worship hour Sunday morning the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, called his sermon subject, "If Technocracy Is Wrong, What of Today's Problems?" and the text was taken from Malachi 3:7: "Return unto me and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of Hosts." Technocracy is a new word not found in dictionaries which describes the philosophy of government in which business affairs are to be managed by the technically competent. Its question is this, "Has the point been reached when the machine has thown men out of employment? There has been a decided shift from muscle to machine. Is the machine age to be condemned for destroying the bodies and souls of men? Our ability to serve has exceeded our plans for service. The weaknesses of this new order are that we have not distributed wealth equitably and have failed to use our new leisure for social, mental, and spiritual advancement. There is no change in human nature, but all relationships are changed. We need to return to God by applying the teachings and spirit of Jesus. We must get back to simpler modes of living; we must make truth pay; and we must set up new spiritual ideals. Judge Dickens, of London, son of Charles Dickens, famous novelist and humorist, said that the crime wave which has swept the world for the past few years is the result in his opinion of the breaking down of home life and its influence, the insatiable desire for wealth and the things it brings, and the American movies. The last-mentioned is a serious arraignment against the most popular pastime of our American people, which is fast becoming a deadly menace to our children and young people to say nothing of adults. Is it not possible to substitute something better and more educating in their place?

At 6:30 p. m. on Sunday a joint meeting of the Senior and Young People's C. E. Societies assembled to hear an address by Rev. Lester Ballard, formor Director of Religious Education here, and who has spent the past two years studying in Boston University, Boston, Mass. He delighted the large attendance of young people by his address, and they were much pleased to greet him again. Mr. Ballard and his wife are great favorites with First church people.

At the evening service Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke on Sir Walter Scott's text, the fourth in the series of "Texts That Made Men Great." The Congregation was much pleased to hear a beautiful vocal solo by Rev. E. L. Ballard, whose splendid baritone voice has been improved by training in Boston.

The afternoon Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings on Monday as follows: No. 4, with the chairman, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, 711 West Farriss Avenue; No. 5, with the chairman, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, 805 Circle Drive; No. 6, Mrs. S. D. Shelton, chairman, with Mrs. Ross H. Davis, 605 Denny Street; No. 7, Mrs. J. H. Allred, chairman, with Mrs. J. B. Spencer, 407 Lindsay Street, and Mrs. Thos. D. Free, assistant hostess, and No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Gunn, chairman, with Mrs. Georget. Penny at "Pennybyrn" on Greensboro Rroad. The evening Circles will meet Tuesday evening: No. 2, Mrs. Lucy Oakes Harper, chairman, with Mrs. R. C. Boyd, 911 English Street, and No. 3, Miss Mary Wall, chairman, with Mrs. L. F. Honeycutt, 607 Woodrow Avenue.

The Woman's Auxiliary will serve a barbecue Supper at the church on Thursday evening from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Tickets may be secured from any member for 35 cents. "Buddy," an artist in his line, will barbecue two pigs for this event, and there will be other good things.

Miss Esther Pritchard was leader for a business and social session of the Senior C. E. Society at the parsonage on Colonial Drive on Monday evening.

The Wednesday evening prayer and praise service will be held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Pickett Ferree on Steele Street.

Mrs. Alice Paige White, Professor in High Point College, left Monday evenig for Washingdon, D. C., to attend a conference January 17-20, on the Cause and Cure of War. She is sent as a representative of the American Association of University Women, the Y. W. C. A., the Woman's Club, the Altrusa Club, and the W. C. T. U. On Thursday evening, January 26th, a joint meeting of these organizations will be held at the Y. W. C. A. building, and Mrs. White will address the assemblage. All members of these groups and all other interested persons are invited to hear this interesting speaker on a vital question, the cause and cure of war.

Mrs. R. W. Riggins, who became ill at Fayetteville while on a visit to her brother, came home last Sunday, accompanied by Mr. Riggins.

Dr. G. R. Humphreys, president of High Point College, accupied the pulpit of Wesley Memorial M. E. church by sperial invitation last Sunday morning.

C. L. Gray, Jr., appeared on the Schubert program of the Musical Art Club on Monday evening at the Country Club. He sang two numbers, "By the Sea" and "Serenade," with violin obligato by Mrs. Walter Kester and Arthur Fidler, and sang with Miss Dorothy Hoskins some duets from "Blossomtime," "Song of Love," "Tell Me, Daisy," and "My Springtime Thou Art."

At a meeting of the Alexander Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Tuesday, January 10th, Mrs. C. C. Robbins read a splendid paper on "Stamp Defiance Act," which was the main feature of the program.

Mrs. J. C. Whitesell will go to Burlington Wednesday to sing for the wedding of her friend, Miss Malone.

The sympathy of the congregation is extended to Prof. J. Harley Mourane, of High Point College faculty, in the death of his father, Joseph Mourane, aged 63 years, which occurred at 4 o'clock last Saturday at a local hospital where he had been a patient three days after a stroke of paralysis at his home, 1107 Cedrow Ave. After spending his active business life in Amsterdam, N. Y., he moved three years ago to this city to make his home with his son. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Dr. Joseph Rennie, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, and Rev. Roy I. Farmer at the late residence. The body was taken to the old home in Amsterdam, N. Y., for final burial services and interment in Hagman cemetery there. Mr. Mourane is survived by his wife, one son, Prof. Mourane, and two daughters. Prof. Mourane is a member of the choir of First church. Prof. N. P. Yarborough, Dr. C. R. Hinshaw, Dr. P. S. Kennett, Messrs. S. T. Buie, Henry Hall, and Frank Autry served as pallbearers.

Pleasant Union, Mount Pleasant Charge.—On Christmas day our Sunday school gave a very short program at the preaching hour. Due to sickness and conditions of the roads many children were not able to come. Dr. Johnson gave the story of "The Other Wise Man," which everyone enjoyed. Special selections of music were given by various members of the Sunday school and choir. The Baraca class was host to the children. Bags of Christmas treat were sent to all.

Dr. Johnson gave us a sermon on "New Year's" the second Sunday. I am sure that we are trying to make this a better year than the past.

Pleasant Union took part in planting trees on the parsonage lot and at Mount Pleasant church on their "Arbor Day." A tree was place on the parsonage lot by our church and one on the Mt. Pleasant church grounds also. We are hoping to have the grounds around the parsonage very pretty within a short while.

Our Sunday school seems to be growing and improving in every way, for which we are very thankful.

English Street Church.—Sunday was a good day for us. The Sunday school attendance was good. Both preaching services were well attended. We were glad to receive into our church Mrs. Setliff, who comes to us from the First M. P. church of this city. At the evening service our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, brought to us a very interesting and inspiring sermon on Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones. His text was foud in Ezekiel 37:3: "And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O, Lord God, thou knowest." After the sermon we had a wonderful testimonial meeting. The National Quartet of this city rendered four beautiful selections which were very touching to many receptive hearts.

The Christian Endeavor Society will hold its monthly business meeting Friday evening with Miss Bernice Livengood. Plans will be made for C. E. week, which begins January 29. They also plan to organize a Junior Society at our church during the week. An "Efficiency Contest" was put on in the society beginning January 8. The contest seems to create more interest, and is resulting in better programs. Our Intermediate Society is also doing splendid work. Miss Myrtle Moore and Charlie Loflin are the leaders.

Spring Church Charge.—Miss Virginia Grant, Miss Virginia and James Massey, returned to High Point College, and Miss Catherine Crew returned to State College, Greensboro, following a visit home during the holidays.

Plans are on foot to observe Young People's Day in each of the three churches on the charge. Miss Inez Massey, Mrs. W. W. Grant and Miss Aubrey Crew are the chairmen of a committee in each church to prepare for the service.

Mrs. R. M. Robinson, Mrs. J. M. Durham and Mrs. W. W. Grant were appointed by the pastor to represent the Children's Home in their respective churches.

The women are laying plans for a thank-offering service in each church during February.

Since last report quite a number have remembered us in various ways. Mr. Clifton Cook and Mr. Tom Barnes, one load of wood each; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dimick, our grocer, a real pounding; Mrs. John Hart, meat, and a dress for the girl; J. J. Massey, one pork ham. The following gave various articles and eatables that space forbids itemizing: Mrs. H. E. Vassar, Mrs. Will Harris, Mr. J. W. Crew, Mrs. Rose Crew, Mrs. W. D. Coker, Mrs. J. M. Durham, Mrs. J. W. Magee, Mrs. Ira Robinson, Mrs. W. W. Grant, and Misses Aubrey and Ollie Crew.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.

Asheboro.—The church work has started off well for the new year. There has been good attendance at the Sunday school and church services, considering the weather and sickness. The Christmas season was a busy one with all departments of the church. On Thursday evening, December 15th, Mrs. N. M. Harrison, Misses Helen Hayes, Enolia Presnell, Katie Belle Cagle and Cora May Fox were hostesses to the Philathea class at their Christmas social in the home of Mrs. J. S. Lewis. At the business session Mrs. L. F. Ross wa re-elected president of the class and Miss Helen Hayes elected teacher, with two assistants. Christmas carols were sung and "How Christmas Came to Other Nations" was a pageant in costume given by members of the class. Delicious refreshments were served on Friday evening, the 16th. Miss Olive I. Hodges, returned missionary from Japan, was with the Woman's Auxiliary in their Christmas meeting. Miss Helen Hayes conducted devotions for the evening. This being the quarterly meeting, full reports were given by the Circle chairmen and officers. Following the business, Miss Hodges gave an illustrated lecture of our missionary stations and workers in Japan, which all enjoyed and appreciated very much. Circle No. 3 were hostesses for this time and served delicious refreshments carrying out the Christmas idea. On Christmas morning the pastor preached a Chistmas sermon and the choir rendered special anthems and a quartet was also given On Friday evening before Christmas the Sunday school gave a pageant, "Christmas in Many Lands." A pantomime and other features were a part of the program.

Immediately after the program the members of the church went to the parsonage, where they surprised Mr. and Mrs. Stubbins with a bountiful pounding, Christmas and anniversary gifts, as Thursday, the 22nd, was their wedding anniversary.

The pastor and his wife expressed their gratitude to the people for their thoughtfulness and for the many gifts, and wished all a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

The Junior Choir and others sang carols, Christmas Eve, to the shut-ins, sick and other people. The Christian Endeavor Society was entertained in the home of Elizabeth Phillips at a "Watch Night Party" on December 31st. Miss Leona Wood is superintendent of this group.

The executive committee of the Auxiliary met with Mrs. Stubbins at the parsonage on Thursday evening, January 5, with a good attendance. A nominating committee was appointed to bring before the February meeting names of officers for next year. Plans were made to hold the Thank-Offering service Sunday evening, February 12th, in the church at the evening church hour. Mrs. Hammer, Thank-Offering secretary, is in charge of the program. A committee for the World Day of Prayer was appointed to plan for the service for March 3rd.

Mrs. A. J. Craven, who recently underwent an operation in High Point Hospital, is recovering nicely at her home.

Miss Virginia Lowe, who had an appendicitis operation last week in Memorial Hospital, is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Presnell announce the birth of a daughter, Helen Rebecca, on December 6th. Mrs. Presnell was Miss Helen Amick before marriage.

Announcements have been received in the city of the marriage of Mr. Thomas Redding and Miss Dorothy Hicks at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle in Elizabeth City, on Friday, December 16th. They are at home with Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., on Hill street. Congratulations and good wishes are extended to this young couple.

Miss Enolia Presnell has resumed her work in the local school after attending the funeral of her father, Mr. Virgil Presnell, in Charlotte on Friday, the 6th of January.

Rev. and Mrs. Stubbins attended the funeral of his brother's wife, Mrs. Carl Stubbins, in Greensboro on Christmas Day.

Mrs. B. F. Bulla died at her home here last week after a lingering illness. The funeral services were held at Charlotte M. P. church, where she was a member, on Wednesday afternoon, with a large number of friends and relatives present. Mr. Stubbins, Rev. J. E. Pritchard, of Winston-Salef, and Rev. R. S. Truesdale, of the Asheboro M. E. church, conducted the services. Asheboro M. P. choir and a male quartet composed of friends of the family, furnished the music. Surviving Mrs. Bulla are four sons and four daughter, one brothers, W. F. Redding, of Asheboro. The church extends sympathy to this family and all the others in this time of bereavement.

Charlotte.—Greetings to all. Our silence does not mean that we are asleep on our job. That may be true of some of us, but not all.

The Auxiliary met last Tuesday with Mrs. Hendry at the parsonage. Mrs. Little presided. Mrs. G. W. Stegall had charge of the devotional period. Rev. Mr. Hendry delighted those present with a solo, the accompaniment being played by Mrs. Hendry. The slate of officers for next year will be presented at the February meeting. Mrs. Little was elected chairman of the nominating committee. Mrs. Hendry was elected chairman of the Thank-Offering program for February. Mrs. Herbert Gaison will have charge of the Question Box for the next three months. Delicious refreshments were served at the end of the pleasant social hour.

The Ever Ready Philatheas and the Baraca class had their monthly business meeting at the home of Miss Lucille Sechrest. Forty-two members were present. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. Each of the classes has organized basketball teams and meet for practice Monday evening of each week.

Our members are happy to welcome Mrs. Hughes to our fold again. They have returned here to live from Gastonia. We have missed her sweet singing. She was a member of the choir before leaving here. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, of Monroe, have also joined our choir. On Sunday the choir made its first appearance in white robes.

Sunday morning Bro. Hendry preached one of his inspiring and helpful sermons. The subject, "Prayer," was preseted in an earnest and convincing manner and was enjoyed by a full house. This was the beginning of a revival service which will run two weeks.

There has been and is much sickness among our members; influenza is raging in Charlotte.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Penny will be pleased to hear of the arrival of a daughter, born Tuesday, January 10th, at the Presbyterian Hospital. Mrs. Penny and daughter are doing nicely and are receiving their friends.

REPORTER.

Hickory Grove, Guilford Circuit.—We were indeed very sorry to give up our former pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Peeler, but not what we want is best for us every time. We hope they will continue to carry on the good work that they did while with us and also that they will come back to see us again.

Everyone was glad to welcome our new pastor, Rev. D. D. Broome, and family into our community. We hope they will receive the co-operation of all the people in the advancement of the kingdom. May we all enjoy the fellowship to the extent that we all may profit, both spiritually and socially.

The work of the new Conference year is starting off a bit slowly. The weather has had a good deal to do with it.

We were planning a Christmas program but weather conditions were such the entertainment was cancelled.

We hope everyone has enjoyed a merry Christmas and as we celebrate this Holy Birthday of our Saviour, I wonder how many of us thought about the precious Gift that the Heavenly Father sent us to show His love. Can we, or will we use this precious Gift that was given to us in order that we might be saved from this sinful world? Sure! There is not a better time than in the beginning of the new year to give Him your heart and life and work for Him to show your appreciation of this wonderful Gift.

The first Sunday of the new year we had a very good attendance and teachers were elected for the coming year.

The second Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m., a large crowd attended Sunday school and at 3 p. m. Bro. Broome gave us an inspiring mesasge, after which the Lord's Supper was observed.

On January 22nd we will have preaching service at 11 o'clock.

MRS. J. T. TEDDER, Reporter.

Tabernacle, Tabernacle Charge.—The first Sunday in January communion service was held; doors of the church opened. Three new members were received, Mrs. Curry and daughters, Johnsie and Virginia. The church welcomes them and hopes both will be benefited by joining our church.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie McCulloch, of Wilmington, N. C., worshiped with the Tabernacle people some time ago. Mr. McCulloch still has his membership with us, and we are always glad to have him and his family worship with us.

The Auxiliary is planning a Thank-Offering service for the fifth Sunday morning.

A committee has been appointed to arrange for the Young People's program which will be presented the fifth Sunday night. This is always an interesting program and we are hoping for a large congregation to be present. Special music is being arranged.

The Christian Endeavor has recently been re-organized and the following officers elected: President, R. L. Jones, Jr.; vice-president, Ruth Smith; secretary, Virginia Curry. The society is meeting every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

With best wishes to the Herald and all its readers. REPORTER.

MY TASK

Let me fill a humble place,
I do not covet power,
Some service to give happiness,
Like silent wayside flower.

I seek not popularity,
Nor fleeting worldly fame;
I'm satiseld to do my part,
Although unknown by name.

A worthy task is all I ask,
With joy the hours to fill;
Contentedly from day to day
To do God's perfect will!

—Grenville Kleiser.

—Dr. C. W. Bates last Sunday night preached the commencement sermon to the graduating class of Greensboro High School. There were about 70 in the class.

—Daisy Jost, of Wisconsin, had a spell of sneezing which lasted a week.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE, EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The executive committee of the North Carolina Branch will meet at the Children's Home at 10 a. m., Tuesday, January 31. Members are requested to take lunch and Mrs. Dixon will serve coffee.

Reports from each secretary will be given; also a full report of Miss Hodges' itinerary. Plans for Branch Meeting will be discussed and an invitation will be in order.

MRS. GEO. R. BROWN, Cor. Sec'y.

SPIRITUAL LIFE DEPARTMENT

In the year just passed all of us have had our testing times, and in this the new year we will still be tested. To us come new opportunities, new duties, but with another chance to get closer to our Divine Master. What has contributed most to the growth of my spiritual life during last year? is a question asked you and me by Mrs. J. W. Armstrong, in her article, "The Technique of the Quiet Hour," in January, 1933 issue of our Missionary Record. To those who have not yet read that article, please do so. It is full of splendid ideas for us, and if we will do as Mrs. Armstrong suggests, this year will be different for us all.

We are too busy with home duties for that Quiet Hour, some may think—but note this: She says, Begin with 15 minutes. May we promise each other right now we are going to try it? Get your January Record and read her suggestions carefully and prayerfully.

To the Secretary of Spiritual Life: Will you see that Mrs. Armstrong's article is read at your own Auxiliary meeting? Thank you.

God wants us to talk to Him often. "Nothing lies beyond the reach of prayer, except that which lies outside the will of God." Let us ask Him for guidance all the way in all we do or say.

MRS. J. M. STONE,
Secretary Spiritual Life Department, N. C. Branch.

THE JOURNALS ARE OUT

If you have not received your supply by the time you read this notice, let me know. Two or three charges were left unsupplied, and in other cases I was not certain of addresses of pastors. If these will write me at once, the Journals for these charges will be sent immediately.

Now let me say a word or two about the Journal. In the first place, you will find it very much thinner than usual. That doesn't mean that there is much less in it than usual. By a rearrangement of matter, we have been able to shove the material in it closer. The reading matter, page for page, is about the same as was in last year's Journal.

While the number of pages is considerably less. (There were 151 pages in 1932 Journal and only 88 in this) the price remains the same. That may require a bit of explanation. The 1,100 copies printed last year, 151 pages, cost $498.00. That is at the rate of 45 cents a copy. It sold for 25 cents. The Conference Treasurer had to give me a check for $298.60 to make up that deficit. And that deficit, of course, came out of the apportionment to the Board of Church Extension and the Superannuated Fund. This year with only 88 pages, the Journal ought to pay for itself. do not have the bill for the printing, but as near as I can figure it, we will about break even.

Now, pastors, please sell your allotment of Journals as quickly as possible, AND SEND IN THE MONEY PROMPTLY. The Stockton Press is in desperate need of money. It isn't fair to ask them to print the Journal for us and then make them wait a year for most of their money. C. W. BATES, Secretary.

NOTICE

To 14th District—Mocksville, Shiloh and Kernersville Charges:

Rev. T. J. Whitehead, president of the Conference Council of Religious Education, will speak in the First Methodist Protestant Church, Winston-Salem, Wednesday night, January 25, at 7:30 o'clock. It is earnestly urged that a goodly number be present from all the charges. The Conference Council's districts do not coincide with the Conference districts; hence the three additional charges.

J. E. PRITCHARD, Temporary Chmn.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Honeycutt

Mrs. Rosa Bell Honeycutt, wife of A. F. Honeycutt, a member of First Methodist Protestant church, died Tuesday, November 29, at her home in Lexington. She had been in ill health for the past two years, and her condition had been critical for about a week prior to her death.

Funeral srevices were conducted from the home at 2 p. m. Thursday, December 1, by Rev. J. M. Hayes, pastor of the First Baptist church, Rev N. R. Honeycutt, Baptist minister of Trading Ford, and the writer. Mrs. J. M. Hayes sang a solo. Interment was in the Shiloh M. P. cemetery.

Mrs. Honeycutt was a native of Georgia and was a daughter of Levi and Mary Jefferson Marsden of Muscogee county. She was a member of the M. E. church there. She and Mr. Honeycutt had resided here for a number of years. Her husband is the only immediate survivor Our sympathy is extended to him in the hour of bereavement.

C. G. ISLEY.

Inmon

On March 12, 1925 the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Inmon was visited by the angel of love who blessed the home with a precious babe, which became the jewel of the fond parents and a joy to the home. This little one was soon given the name of John Clyde, Jr., and Johnnie Junior remained the center of interest in the Inmon home and a joy to the fond parents and others who learned to love him until October 15, 1932, when by tragic accident he was taken from this short life and given life eternal. From the home on earth he was taken and given a home in heaven. From the fond parents who so loved he was taken and given a place with Jesus who said "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." At his death he was seven years, seven months and three day old.

On April 4, 1926 Johnie was, by his parents, dedicated to the church and to the Lord by infant baptism, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. E. Lester Ballard who was then pastor of West End church. As soon as he was old enough he became a member of the Sunday school and was always faithful and interested in this work. He was always polite and obedient to his teachers and other Sunday school workers. While he was young he had and understanding of God and knew how to willingly put his trust in Him.

The cause of his untimely death was his being accidentally hit by an automobile while on an errand for his mother. He was taken to the hospital but it was found the skull had been badly fractured by the fall on the hard road and nothing could be done for his relief. He died in a few hours.

We do not know why the death angel was allowed to visit this home so soon after the angel of love came. But we do know that God knows best and what he does is best even though it comes through unwelcome death. We can also see how life and death work together to make heavenly joy for our loved ones who have gone on to be with Jesus and how heaven is made sweeter for those who yet remain waiting for the call of our Master to come up higher and enter into the sweet reunion of the blest.

A breath of joy, an hour of pain,
Dark paths to tread, white heights to gain,
A little love, a little strife,
And this is Life.

A little rest a swift new birth,
A snapping of the bonds of earth,
A joyous stride, a tingling breath,
And this is death.

For life and death walk hand in hand,
With never a span between,
And the same path leads to the other land
Where the sunlit fields are green.

The funeral was conducted in the West End church on October 17 in the presence of a large congregation by the pastor who was assisted by Rev. E. Lester Ballard. The body was then laid to rest under a great mound of most beautiful flowers.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Gatlin

Margaret Vuncannon Williams Gatlin, wife of W. S. Gatlin, was born May 28, 1856, and died at her home near Ulah, Randolph county, December 11, 1932. She was the daughter of the late Edmond and Elizabeth Vuncannon and was married first to William Williams, who preceded her to the grave several years ago. Later, she was married to W. S. Gatlin. She leaves behind a husband, two stepdaughters, Mrs. J. L. Moon, of Ulah, and Mrs. S. F Hearen, of Wadeville, N. C., six grandchildren, and one brother, Enoch Vuncannon

The deceased professed faith in Christ in early life and joined New Hope Methodist Protestant church. Of this church she remained a member to the time of her death, and we are told that she lived a consistent Christian life. Her husband feels the loss most heavily as he is now left alone. The pastor and the church extend the hand of sympathy.

Funeral services weer conducted by her pastor after which the body was laid to rest in the cemetery of New Hope church.

GEO. L. REYNOLDS.

Holton

In the year 1871 there came from Grey county, Canada, to Guilford county, N. C., a family that was destined to play a prominent part in the upbuilding of High Point and surrounding section, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tate, who were natives of England, and their family of nine young children. They located in the vicinity of Jamestown. One of the older daughters, Maggie, was a young girl 13 years of age at this time, and grew to young womanhood at Jamestown. When only 19 she married Albert A. Holton of Jamestown, who was quite active in politics for several years. He held a responsible position in the Federal Revenue service and later was Clerk of Superior Court of Guilford, and he and his wife lived in Greensboro. Subsequently he was appointed postmaster at High Point, and they came here to make their home. For the past 25 years Mrs. Holton resided at 221 Steele St., where her husband died four years ago.

As a young woman she was handsome, erect, and of dignified bearing. Quiet and gentle in demeanor, she was unselfish, and drew many devoted friends to her. One of the older girls of a large family, she was her mother's helper in rearing the young children, to whom she was devoted. Mr. Tate died at Jamestown in middle life, and the children married and made homes for themselves in different communities. After the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Holton to High Point, her mother, Mrs. Tate, made her home with them, and was tenderly cared for and nursed by her daughter "e'en down to old age," as she was in her ninetieth year, at the time of her death

Mrs Holton was reared in the M. E. Church, South, but moved her membership to the First Methodist Protestant church here, and was a faithful and consistent member for 30 years. She suffered an attack of pneumonia more than a year ago, from which she never fully recovered. About eight weeks ago she asked to be taken to her old home in Jamestown, now the home of close friends, Misses Horney, and her request was granted. There in the house where she lived in happy girlhood, she gently feel asleep on Friday, November 25, at the age of 75 years. Truly it may be said of her, "She hath done what she could," and she filled her niche in life where her Lord placed her in a most acceptable manner, having been faithful to every duty as daughter, sister, wife, friend, and neighbor. Her days were filled with "little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love."

Funeral services were conducted in First church Saturday afternoon, November 26, by her pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, assisted by Rev. G. Ray Jordan of Wesley Memorial M. E. church

Surviving are the following brothers, Messrs. William Tate, of Hamilton, Montana; Albert E., and Fred N. Tate, of High Point; John H. having died two years ago, and by four sisters, Mrs. Chas. Hawkins, Pontiac, Mich.; Mrs. J. N. Rumble, High Point; Mrs. A. L. Holton, Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. Walter Smith, of Charlotte, N. C.

Dean Stanley says, "the good thoughts, the good deeds, the good memories of those who have been the salt and the light of the earth do not perish with their departure—they live on still, and those who have wrought them live with them."

"God calls our loved ones but we lose not wholly
What He hath given;
They live on earth in thought and deed
As truly as in Heaven."

High Point, N. C. B. A. A.

Resolutions

Miss Florence Myrick, daughter of the late A. G. Myrick, departed this life at her home here in Worthville December 15, 1932, age 47 years. When 16 years old she professed Christ and joined the Worthville Methodist Protestant church of which she was a member at her death. So long as she was able she attended the services of the church regularly, was a faithful member of the Sunday school, serving as secretary and treasurer of her class for a period of seven years.

Miss Myrick had been an invalid for the past eighteen months. Little by little the Lord took down the tenement of clay, finally saying, "It is enough, come unto Me." In every way possible, she was ready to lighten the burden of others and build up the Kingdom of her Lord and Savior. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Therefore, be it resolved:

FIRST, That we, the members of Worthville M. P. Philathea class realize the great loss which we have sustained and desire to express our appreciation of her unselfish life for the Master's cause. Her zeal and faithfulness has been an inspiration to us.

SECOND, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and pray that God's richest blessings may abide with and comfort them. That her life may prove an incentive to them as they journey here below.

THIRD, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication and recorded in the minutes of our class record.

Crutchfield

William J. Crutchfield was born in Alamance County, N. C., October 29, 1864, and departed this life in the Duke hospital December 7, 1932. He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Cora Crutchfield, and two sons, W. Guy and James Crutchfield.

Brother Crutchfield was for a long time a loyal and faithful member of the Haw River M. P. church. He had represented his church at the Annual Conference sessions.

The funeral was held in Hawfield Presbyterian church on December 8, 3 p. m. The pastor of Haw River church was assisted by Rev. G. W. Holmes, a former pastor of the deceased. Interment was made in Hawfield's cemetery.

The bereaved family have our sympathy and prayers in this sorrow.

J. P. PEGG, Pastor.

Maxwell

Mrs. Katie Phibbs Maxwell, wife of Brother J. Walter Maxwell, of Friendship church, died suddenly at 6 o'clock on the morning of November 30, 1932.

Sister Maxwell had been in poor health for several years, but in recent weeks had appeared to be as well as usual, but it is thought the strain of the last few days had been too much for her strength, and so the frail body fell under the weight of suffering and silently the spirit went back to the God who gave it.

Sister Maxwell was one of the most consecrated women on this charge. Her heart was always beating with a desire to serve her church, and those with whom she came in contact. Her faith was strong, and it seemed during the last several years that faith was growing stronger as the months passed. Often she had told her pastor, "My prayers haven't all been answered, but they will be answered someday."

She was only 48 years of age, but 36 of those years had been spent as a Christian and member of Friendship church. She had served as Sunday school teacheer, class leader, and on various important committees. She will be missed in the community and church, but her influence will long be felt in the lives of those who knew her and were associated with her in Kingdom service.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, George S., who is Sunday school superintendent, W. Russell; one grand-son, "Bobbie" Maxwell; two brothers, W. S. Phibbs, of High Point, C. G. Phibbs, Burlington; and one sister, Mrs. B. A. Barber, Elon College.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Rev. W. F. Ashburn assisted the pastor in the funeral service at Friendship, and we left the tired, worn tabernacle of clay to rest under the oaks, awaiting the Dawn of a New Day, when a reunion of the redeemed will be the happy realization of all who, like her, fall asleep in Jesus. J. L. TROLLINGER.

Lloyd

Charles Lloyd was born on April 8, 1863, died on December 25, 1932, aged 69 years, eight months and 17 days. He was the son of the late Samuel and Eliza Foster Lloyd. He joined the Episcopal church on October 14, 1921 and remained a very faithful member until death. He was united in marriage with Mittia Jarvis on January 23, 1891. To this union were born four boys and six girls: Mrs. Edward Weaver, Mrs. D. L. Lanier, Mrs. Flora Jenkins, Mrs. Otho Jones, Mrs. Carson Melton, Mrs. Luther Myers, Fred, Carl, Thomas, and Alex Lloyd. There are also 31 grand-children and one great grandchild. He is also survived by two brothers and five sisters. The funeral was in charge of Rev. Robertson, pastor of the Episcopal church at Fork, N. C., where Brother Lloyd was a member, assisted by Rev. H. L. Powell and T. G. Madison.

The World's Worst Sin

Our Greatest Friend became our Guest
And waited not for our request;
The time was due and on He came
In hope to find receptive frame.

We gave Him place in cattle stall
And with the servants in the hall.
The birds we helped to build their nest:
To Him we gave no place of rest.

He was neglected, laughed to scorn,
Rejected as if basely born,
Pursued and hated and maligned,
He was to early death consigned.

Dishonored Guest, He lay at last,
A victim of mad tempest blast:
The world had wrought its wicked will
And scored a crime unequaled still.

No other sin so shocks and shames
Or mind of justice so inflames:
For this great sin had highest aim
And sought to darken God's bright name.

When Heaven demands that earth repent,
Sure first of all must this be meant—
That men in grief confess their sins
Against the grace that pardon wins.

The Parsonage

For some reason unknown to us little is said in the religious press about parsonages. The preacher because of his modesty we suppose, or because he fears some one will accuse him of being interested overmuch in his personal comfort and welfare, has little or nothing to say on the subject even if he does a lot of thinking about it. The layman because of his unwillingness to assume additional obligations, or because he is thoughtlessly indifferent to the comfort of his pastor, or because he can not ''speak a piece in public'' or because he can not write fluently and entertainingly, lets the subject severely alone. To say the least, it is a rare thing to see anything in our church papers about parsonages. Therefore, because the subject is not a hackneyed one, and because there is much to be said on it, we venture to ''take our pen in hand'' and write a few things about parsonages.

Under the old English ecclesiastical law a parsonage was ''a certain portion of land, tithes, and offerings for the maintenance of the parson of a parish,'' or it was the ''glebe'' and house, or the house only, appropriated by a parish or ecclesiastical society to the maintenance or use of the settled pastor or minister.'' In most instances sufficient land went with the house to enable the preacher to have a garden in which vegetables and flowers might be grown. But there was another reason why the ''glebe'' went with the house, viz., that the pastor might live close to nature and witness the ever recurring miracles of growth and fruitage wrought out by the invisible Hand. The closer the preacher was to nature during his leisure time the farther away from the harassing and perplexing things of the world he would be, and the closer would he be drawn to the Infinite. The time spent ''apart'' was a time of refreshing to his soul and mind.

In the light of these facts, we insist that too little time is given to the consideration of a home for the preacher. Under our itinerant system few preachers own homes. Those who own them can not live in them, and they become a vexation of spirit as well as an expense. For this and other reasons too numerous to mention in a brief editorial, each charge should provide a good home for its preacher. In making such a provision several things ought to be taken into consideration. In the first place, the location of the parsonage ought to be given more than a passing thought. It ought to be in a good community, convenient to church and school and on a good street or road. In the second place the house ought to be constructed of good material, and it ought to be carefully planned and erected by some one who knows his business. So far as our observation goes there are few parsonages in our conference having in them rooms set apart as pastors' studies. Thrice blessed is that charge that has had the good sense to provide in its parsonage a study for the pastor.

When we take into consideration the fact that most preachers never live anywhere except in parsonages it does seem to us that members of charges ought to have enough pardonable pride, as well as enough love and respect for their pastors, to sacrifice until it hurts in order to provide homes for them that will be credits to the denomination.—X.

The specialist in any undertaking labors under certain disadvantages. As he concentrates his attention more and more on some particular problem he runs the risk of breaking from a normal viewpoint of other people. Yet, of course, all learning tends toward specialization and there is no way to avoid it. The masses of humanity are not going to promote study and research. Somebody must by all means do the critical, technical work; but at the same time, in the very nature of the case, there is danger of carrying an investigation far beyond the capacity and appreciation of common people.

This condition was observed by James Harvey Robinson, causing him to write that book on ''Humanizing Knowledge.''

The author felt deeply the serious consequences of allowing the scholars to monopolize on learning while the masses had to stand on the sidelines. Knowledge always tends to outrun the plain man. There is, therefore, the constant need of "humanizing" the knowledge—need of bringing it back to common people.

Now this same tendency is met by the special worker in religion. One may pursue his study and research to the point where average people care nothing for his findings. When this stage is reached, the preacher or teacher comes to struggle over his own problems rather than those of the people he is serving, when the latter, of course, ought to be his chief concern. The people's problems are what need attention. It must have been this situation that lead the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table to argue that ministers, cultivating their own point of view, are tempted "to lapse into a state of quasi heathenism, simply for want of religious instruction."

In a few words, the dangers incident to specializing in religion may be stated about like this: The professionalist may rob the common people of their usual religious responses. They may come to say with one of old, "They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." Again, the specialist runs the risk of drying up the wells of emotions. He gets into the thin air of intellectual speculation. Then, too his system of religion is likely to turn out to be merely another scheme of social economy—a sort of spiritual technocracy. What is more, the extreme specialist may finally detach religion from life, and when religion is separated from life it is no longer religion.

Serious as these considerations doubtless are, it is not impossible to overcome them. There are three requirements. First, the person must have a great love for common people and keep in close touch with them. There is no substitute for this. A second essential demands a constant study so as to build up fresh acquaintance with other general fields of knowledge. He must keep his interests broad. Then, finally, of course, is the need for the cultivation of a warm devotional life. All this can be summed up in what Goldsmith said long ago about the minister being "more gifted to raise the wretched than to rise."

When this fine combination is found in our specialists, we can be certain of a wholesome type of religious progress. Much to our delight, this combination is actually at work now, and, in a very significant way, pointing to a better day in religious culture. P. E. LINDLEY.

The Expanding Loyalty

A noble loyalty to the finer ideals of life is a virtue worthy of our development; but a chauvinistic loyalty is worse than traitorism. Dedication to the highest goal is the true Christian ideal, but the pursuit of a mean objective is the business of little men and smaller minds.

Loyalty, like charity, should begin at home in the mastery of one's self. The first business of man is to master his animal instincts so as to be able to order them as his servants. Our instincts, however we may classify them, are the raw dynamics of life. They are the source of our power, but power unguided without our intelligence. God has not only given to "every man his measure of faith"; however, but to every man a measure of mind and a touch of His spirit for the purpose of man using these aids to help him master his otherwise unguided dynamic instincts.

Jesus also becomes man's ideal and example in order to help man. Thinking of Jesus from the human viewpoint for the time being, we say that he certainly was "master of his fate and captain of his soul." The key to Jesus' mastery is found in his continued loyal devotion to the will of God. The same way of self-mastery is open to each of us—loyal devotion to the will of God. The tragedy of the self which has not been mastered can be studied at length in the writings of Saint Paul, William James, and Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Loyalty of the instincts to a single goal may become frozen righteousness such as the Pharisees of Jesus' day possessed. A narrow loyalty then may become a terrible sin. Such a curse is upon our land today. Few men have embezzled public funds for a purely individualistic selfish use, but usually have embezzled funds for the use of a family or small circle of friends. Such conduct is loyalty, but too narrow loyalty! Herein lies the curse that is upon our land.

True loyalty must be expressed in a wider co-operative enterprise. Our business firms are fast learning this lesson. Our churches must learn also this lesson or else go the way of selfish individuals and selfish firms. These harsh days of our denominational struggle certainly are not a time for any church to raise its head above the denominational family. We must have an unbroken front of Methodist Protestantism if our church is to make any real progress in the solution of its denominational problems.

Loyalty to self and the denomination is not all, but there must be a loyalty to our world brotherhood. Economic crises can never again be local, but will always be international in scope. What a lesson this teaches us in reference to our missions! Christianity is destined to stand or fall in relation to its universality. It behooves us to exert every effort for good by mastering first ourselves, expressing that loyalty through a local church which in turn, with other churches, labors on a universal scale.

Our expanding loyalty is like the life of the sea animal Holmes spoke of in these fitting words:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
    As the swift seasons roll!
    Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
    Till thou at length art free,,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!"

—Next Sunday has been appointed as Education Sunday in North Carolina. Pastors and people are asked to give education a place in their meditations and prayers.

—Next Tuesday a meeting of citizens will be held in Raleigh in the interest of education in our state. Pastors of all denominations are asked to announce this meeting.

THE MOUNTAIN MOVERS

The synoptic gospels all place the healing of the lunatic boy immediately after the Transfiguration. Raphael places both scenes on the same canvass: symbolic of the closeness of our mountain top and valley experiences. One day Elijah was triumphant on Mount Carmel, and the next day down under the juniper tree. This law of life seems to operate both in the material, and the moral, and the spiritual realms. None of us have lived long without facing the stern reality of this universal law.

After the Transfiguration Jesus, Peter, James and John joined the rest of the apostles down in the valley. The eight apostles had failed in a real opportunity for ministering to the needy, and thereby making a name for themselves. They failed through lack of faith. Often, doubtless we fail without knowing why. Paul writing to Timothy describes certain people, who love themselves, money, pleasure rather than God; and have a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof. Many fail because their Christianity is mere form and formula; without that pulsating, soul stirring, gripping yea, satisfying power of the Holy Spirit within. Nominal Christians have never met either the deepest needs of the soul, or of the world.

Doubtless, the coming of Jesus to the disciples after they had failed, brought relief to them, who were hard pressed by the scribes. It is just like Jesus to come to the rescue of those who have failed and point the way to success, or take the work into His own hands. The tired fishermen, who had labored all night and caught nothing a fine example. The presence of Christ, the Christian's stay. The coming of Jesus on this particular occasion revived hope in the heart of a perplexed father, brought joy to the multitude, who were astonished at the majesty of God; and thwarted and discomfited the scribes, who were gloating over the failure of the disciples.

Jesus used the healing of the lunatic boy as a background for teaching the possibilities and power of faith. We understand that mustard seeds, and mountains are proverbial expressions, meaning something very small, and also something very large. We are not troubled over the fact that the naturalist has found a smaller seed than the mustard seed; nor the sceptic's inability to understand how faith can remove mountains. The Christian does not think of literal mountains, as the Alleghanies, or the Rockies as he reflects on the words of Jesus and Paul about faith removing mountains. The Christian interprets them as mountains of temptation, obstacles, sins, difficulties; all of which loom up before the Christian as almost insurmountable mountains.

The contention that a man never fails till his faith fails, has many illustrious examples on the pages of history. Abraham's faith failed when he reached ten rather than the long-suffering of God with wicked Sodom. Peter stayed on the surface of the water till he doubted. When Paul was in the inner prison at Rome, his enemies may have thought they had him defeated; but from there he exclaims, "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me." Stephen, whose face appeared as the face of an angel, died a martyr for his faith; but did not fail. The famous martyr Ridley, when asked what he was going to do the night before being burnt at the stake the next day, replied, "I mean to go to bed, and by God's will, to sleep, as soundly as ever I did in my life." Next morning when asked to decide between living and being burnt at the stake, he replied, "So long as breath is in my body, I will never deny my Lord Christ, and his known truth." As the faggots were being lighted, Latimer, who was burnt at the same time, spoke, "Be of good comfort, Master Ridley. Play the man. We shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace in England, as I trust shall never be put out." The men of faith never fail. They are the mountain movers.

THE PRESENT NOT A TIME TO SLEEP

(Note: I am giving here a letter recently published in The Times of El Paso, Texas, entitled: "The Relentless Facts." It was written by the Rev. Marshall Dawson, a Congregational minister. The disapproval of Mr. Garner's sentiments and conduct is significant. I imagine that the number of those who agree with the writer of the letter will largely increase within the next four years.—L.K.L.)

Those who refuse to face facts are in time run down by the facts.

Captain Falby of the Highway Police reports that intoxicants are involved in one-half of the year's automobile accidents. In Canada after the repeal of prohibition, automobile accidents have increased.

Before Prohibition, railway presidents refused to permit any drinking person to serve as engineer of a railway train. Now, in America, about every adult person is the engineer of a high-speed train licensed to run on the highways.

No one ever accused a railway president of fanaticism when he barred drinkers from the post of engineer. But, with the present wave of hysteria in America, the disposition is to revile those who would keep intoxicants from auto drivers.

Of course, if people will learn in no other way, they must learn by experience. When Mr. Garner has succeeded in flooding America with intoxicants—if he succeeds in that unwise attempt—the mounting tide of slaughter on the highways will bring grief into many homes. Into whose home—into yours, or mine?

The maxim, "Leave liquor alone and it will leave you alone" does not apply in a mechanized civilization. The sober driver may be killed by the drunk driver. No one is safe.

If the leaders of public opinion who have labored day and night to break down the Prohibition Amendment and encourage its violation had worked half as hard to persuade people to observe the law, there would not be nearly so much crepe on American doors today.

The price of crepe will surely go up if Mr. Garner meets with success. When he passes to his reward in a future world (if the old-time theology holds) he will meet, either in heaven or somewhere else, many shades who can thank him for their premature flight from this foolish little globe.

MARSHALL DAWSON.

THE HORNBILL, OR RHINOCEROS BIRD, OF BORNEO

The first time I was in Washington, in 1896, I visited the Smithsonian Institute.

Among the many interesting things I saw there, I have always remembered a specimen in the stuffed bird section. In a sizable tree trunk was a large cavity in which a bird had built her nest on which she was brooding, looking toward hatching a family of little ones.

This was a hornbill, or rhinoceros bird, from Borneo. The bill was very large. I was impressed with the fact that the opening to the cavity was plastered over with mud, or some other substance, leaving an opening only large enough for the bird to get its bill out into the open. It could not get its body through, and was dependent on its mate for food and drink during the incubating period.

During the last several years, I have spent considerable time in Washington. It is a great delight to make frequent visits to the New National Museum. This is a part of the Smithsonian Institute, but much larger. It contains new collections and covers a much wider field than does the parent building, which is still in use and frequently thronged with interested visitors.

Here in the New National Museum I have been glad to see, from time to time, the hornbill. It is not the identical specimen that was in the old Smithsonian, but it is mounted in the same way and it appeals to me as of old.

The hornbills, of which there are about seventy species, subsist upon fruit. Owing to their weight, they can only gather the fruit from the larger branches. The color is mostly black, with white under back part of the body and down the legs. The tail is white, with wide black bar across. There are white eyes at tips of tail feathers. The bill is large and sharp pointed. The comb is thick and heavy, with front part turned up. Legs are short, and the weight is about that of a medium-sized turkey.

According to my friend, Dr. W. O. Krohn, who made an extended visit to Borneo a few years ago getting specimens and curios of various sorts for the Field Museum in Chicago, this bird and its bill and feathers are of great importance to the Dyak "head hunters" of that far-away island. Dr. Krohn writes:

"To the Dyak, the hornbill, or rhino bird, is the embodiment of passionate fire. The sound of this majestic bird as he flies in a straight line overhead, thrills every fiber of a Dyak's being, causes his pulse to quicken, imbues him with dauntless courage and inspires him to deeds of daring. To him it is more than an emblem. It is his "American Eagle" enhanced to an infinite degree of regard until it amounts to fetish worship. These highly prized feathers can be worn only by the successful head-hunter and are used by him to adorn his war hats and war coats, and they are to him as sacred as the emblematic cross to the crusader of old."

Why does the male bird wall-in his mate when she takes to the nest for brooding? That is quite a puzzling question. Two answers may be given, and the answer that you and I will be inclined to place most emphasis on will depend largely on the sort of persons we are, and on our feeling for the feminine part of our race.

1. Mr. Hornbill confines Mrs. Hornbill to her nest during the incubating period because he wants to be sure that she will attend strictly to business until the young are hatched and ready to leave the nest. So he is willing to submit to the necessity of gathering quantities of fruit with which to fill her ample mouth, knowing that while away on this business there is no possibility that a gay Lothario can come along and persuade her to go for a walk or take to the air with him. Does this explanation appeal to you?

2. Father Hornbill walls-in Mother Hornbill to protect her from enemies while she attends to important family responsibilities. He understands, possibly better than she, the danger from day and night prowlers, large and small, who desire to feast on her eggs, her young, or her own body. So he is glad to bring food to her and to spend as much time as possible on a nearby limb for their mutual enjoyment and comfort. Do you like that explanation?

Doubtless there are women who are disloyal to the tasks of motherhood and family service. It grieves any one of us when a case of that kind is encountered. But, are women sinners above men in shirking family responsibility? I think not. Biologically the good mother arrived before the good father, and there is no probability that he will soon outstrip her in the race. In these days there is going on a new adjustment of the division of labor between men and women in the matter of earning and preparing food and clothing and shelter. Much that used to be done in the home and on the farm is now done in factories by men, women, and children—though families do not work together as in the days of farm and home manufacturing. The main thing is the maintenance of the moral and spiritual integrity of the family. Is that being done?

My impression is that that is being pretty well attended to. The hearts of the children are being turned to their parents, and the hearts of parents are being turned to their children. Husbands and wives are seeking to understand each other, and they are co-operating in building and strengthening the home.

Mr. Onlooker can but see that Mr. Hornbill is not the only one who walls in his wife and prospective children. Mr. Onlooker should also perceive that Mr. Hornbill is not the only one whose motives for carefulness have been called in question—but that they may always be given a worthy and fine explanation. Walls should shut danger out, and aid in developing love on the inside.

CALLING THE ROLL OF HEAVEN

A soldier, wounded during our last war, lay dying in his cot. Suddenly the deathlike stillness of the room was broken by the cry, 'Here! Here!' which burst from the lips of the dying man. Friends rushed to the spot and asked what he wanted. 'Hark,' he said, 'they are calling the roll of Heaven, and I am answering to my name.' In a few moments once more he whispered, 'Here!' and passed into the presence of the King."—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

January and February—Apportionment for High Point College to be raised.

January 29th—Young People's Day.

February, Second Sunday—Annual Thank-offering service, Woman's Auxiliary.

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

The Area Councils

We have planned to hold a number of meetings of Church workers in those parts of the Annual Conference which may be accessible to most of our pastors and official members of the church. We are calling these Area Councils because they are expected to cover the interests of the church in limited sections and to afford opportunity for all types of church workers to meet and to discuss together any problem which the church is facing.

The meetings are therefore open to all members and friends of the church. Pastors will make their quarterly reports at this time, so all of the pastors will be expected to attend at least one of these Council meetings, and it is hoped that most of the officials members of the church in the entire conference will also attend them. For if there shall be presented worthwhile plans and valuable discussions there, then some one must carry these back to the local membership and by some means get them in operation there.

But we are also anxious for the non-official member to be present too. It is our hope that these meetings shall by some means enlist some of that large group who, while members of the church, are not active in the work of the church.

A program will be published later, but just now we are giving the dates in order that our people may know the date and the place in advance and plan to be present at them.

Enfield, March 1; Henderson, March 2; Burlington, March 3; Greensboro, March 6, Calvary Church; Liberty, March 7; High Point, March 8, First Church; Thomasville, March 9, Community Church; Lexington, March 10, State Street; Winston-Salem, March 13; Concord, March 14; Charlotte, March 15; Fallston, March 16; and Asheville, March 17.

It is our expectation now to carry these meetings into other areas later by uniting with the District meetings and Fellowship meeting, jointly. We hope that the Chairmen of these districts will take notice of this expectation and begin to plan such meeting to occur during the month of June.

Back to the meetings under consideration for March, we want the assistance of the Chairmen of the Districts, the ministerial chairmen, the laymen who are chairmen of the fellowship groups and the women who are chairmen of the groups in their work. If we can get the assistance of these officials in these meetings we know that the meetings shall prove to be most successful.

A list of the items the pastors are to report to the president for this quarter have been mailed direct to each pastor, if any failed to received one, please let me know and one will be mailed to him.

Those Special Offerings for Board of Church Extension

I fear somebody failed to see what I said about the needs of the Board of Church Extension in my letter and notice sent out, so I am again calling the attention of our people to this item. It is so vital to the interest of our church that we do our best for every worthy claim, that I am loth to allow these opportunities for service to pass without every one possible having a share in them. It is not a large sum of money that we are asking for; you may not be situated so you can give a large sum, but even a small amount from our people would put the treasurer of both boards in good shape; so come along and have a share in the joy of this achievement when it is done, for we will do it; so let's have a share of the joy of the thing done well.

Grace Church, Rev. G. I. Humphreys and Rev. E. Lester Ballard, pastors. January 22nd, 11 a. m., I had the pleasure of speaking again to this congregation. It was much like returning home after a long absence. In fact, most of the leaders here now were the ones carrying burdens when I served as pastor prior to 1917. They, like the rest of us, have fallen heir to more leaves of the calendar than they are proud of it, but time's maturing influences have been kind, and we are not peeved by regrets because of the passing of the years.

I found a most attentive congregation and felt that the message was appreciated. Grace has not found it easy to keep their going of recent years. While the congregation has possibly the most beautiful and worshipful auditorium in the state the debt hanging over the heads of many of its worshippers like the sword of Damocles, has disturbed their repose too frequently to make it appear as a blessing, even in disguise.

Our lack of details and a knowledge of the condition of the church here prevents my speaking more fully of the situation. But I am trusting that a way of escape shall be found.

The church is now being served by Rev. E. Lester Ballard as Director of Religious Education and Dr. G. I. Humphreys is preaching at the 11 o'clock hour. This arrangement appears to be satisfactory to the membership and while no evening service for the congregation is held we are hopeful that the church shall grow under its present leadership.

Plan of Appointments

January 29: 11 a. m., First Church, High Point; 7:30, Lebanon.

February 5: 11 a. m., Calvary; 7:30, West End Church, Greensboro.

February 12: 11 a. m., Community Church; 7:30, West End Church, Thomasville.

February 19: 11 a. m., Kannapolis; 7:30, Concord.

February 26: Creswell.

March 5: 11 a. m., Mebane; 7:30, Graham.

"Is any are sick among you let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him."—Jas. 5:14, 15.

R. M. ANDREWS.

"I WAS BLIND BUT NOW I SEE"

The United Press, from Chicago, carries the following story:

"J. F. Fish, celebrated blind business man, sat in his easy chair at dusk listening to his wife read, just as he had done for thirty years.

"The world was in total darkness for Mr. Fish, but he was content. His business college had prospered exceedingly in spite of his blindness and he was happy with an excellent income, good friends and his faithful wife.

"Then the miracle happened. A veil seemed to be lifted from his eyes. Mr. Fish first saw a chair, then a picture and finally the woman who was reading to him.

" Something has happened,' he told his wife. 'I think—I think I can see.'

"That happened Monday and immediately there began for Mr. Fish the great adventure of discovering the world anew.

" When they took me to the corner and I saw the machines rushing at me I was terrified,' he said today. 'It is all too wonderful to believe. I still must touch everything to make sure my eyes aren't deceiving me.

" 'I always have thought of the women as wearing bustles, and trolley cars as the little cable cars and horse cars I knew before I was blinded.

" 'I never would have dared to walk through the city as I have all these years if I had known those buildings were towering above me and those automobiles were rushing everywhere.

" 'I recognize my wife now, but she is not the same as the girl whose picture I have had in my mind these thirty years.

" 'All my associates that I have only heard and never seen now are unreal somehow. I must shut my eyes to know to whom I am speaking.

" 'To see flowers again is very wonderful to me. I played being an artist before I became blind and all through those years I kept my sense of colors and form. So now only the flowers and the trees of all the things in the world still look just like I remembered them.'

"Mr. Fish was married in 1899. On his honeymoon in Ohio, he went strolling with his wife on his family's old homestead. A tree fell on the young bridegroom. His optic nerves were paralyzed.

"He spent more than $50,000 in a vain effort to regain his sight through various forms of treatment and surgical operations.

" 'And so,' said Mr. Fish, 'I think God has been very kind to me'."

Ponder that scene! Meditate on the lessons it teaches! What a different world a man finds after being blind thirty years! Think of the things he saw that were not here thirty years ago.

"I think I can see!" Too good to be true. Light and sight after thirty years of blindness. Tears of joy dimmed those eyes. What did his wife do and say?

The scientists will have reasonable explanations, but maybe God lifted the shadows to reward the patient loyalty of these two souls. Hear his words, "I think God has been kind to me!"—The Richmond Christian Advocate.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

Mabel was only seven years old when her mother allowed her one evening to go to church. She was a very earnest little worker in Sunday School and brought many new pupils. But she had not yet been permitted to go regularly to the evening services. She was a dear little Christian, and when she expressed a desire to go to the "grown-up folk" meeting, her mother gave her consent.

The minister often looked down on the blue-eyed child, but did not once catch her napping. She was an example to some older ones.

When the meeting was closed and the walk home was completed, Mabel was almost too sleepy to dress for her little bed. The room was chilly and her sister said, "Mabel, you may say your prayers in bed tonight. You are so tired and the room is so cold."

But Mabel replied, "Oh, no! I cannot say lazy prayers. I can stay awake long enough to talk to Jesus." And, so she knelt and earnestly prayed.

As her sister turned to go to her room she thought, "Surely this little sister of mine has taught me a lesson. How often am I likely to let slip the best opportunities for gaining spiritual strength? She has taught me a lesson which I shall not soon forget."

And so it was throughout the family, Mabel was a faithful example to them all, and her father declared she was God's instrument in leading him to become a Christian.—Publisher Unknown.

PERMANENT JOY

In Jesus there was profound, perpetual joy. "That My joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." It is a personal possession, "My joy in you." It is not the joy of circumstances; it is not the joy of money, for Jesus was poor. It is not the joy of youth, because youth was past, as it will always pass. It was not the joy of summer, because summer will not last.

But the joy of a life at rest in God's love, of a life at peace in God's will, of a life at work in God's purpose. That is perfect joy. "My joy in you." It is a permanent possession.—Rev. John MacBeath.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE BOY WHO WORKED WITHOUT REGARD TO HOURS

It was my privilege, a few weeks ago, to be helpful in securing a situation for a boy of about fifteen years, in the office of a friend. I met my friend yesterday and said to him:

''How is that boy doing?''

''Oh, very well, indeed,'' was the reply. ''He is inexperienced, but he is so willing to learn, and to do anything I ask him to do, that I am sure he is going to be very satisfactory. I have never had a boy who is so willing to do anything and everything without complaining that it was not 'his place' to do this, or that, or the other thing. I think that I shall raise the wages of your young friend in a few weeks, if he holds out as well as he has begun.''

I believe that he will ''hold out.'' I have confidence that he is just that kind of boy, and I wish that there were more boys like him. I am convinced that the failure of many boys to rise to better positions is because they are not willing to do things I know of a boy who was employed by a very wealthy and most that their employers have a perfect right to ask them to do. thoughtful and generous man as his office boy. It was his duty to respond to the bell of his employer, every time it rang, and to go hither and thither as he might be directed. One day this boy was sitting at his desk, doing nothing. His employer had not yet arrived and would not arrive for an hour. Presently, the business manager of the establishment stepped over to the boy's desk and said

''Robert, Mr. H——— will not be in for an hour yet, and, as you will have nothing to do, I wonder if you would be willing to go down to S—— street and do an errand for me?''

The boy looked out of the window and said:

''It's raining, and I don't want to go way down to S—— street, when it isn't my business to go on errands for anybody but Mr. H———.''

''Very well, Robert; you need not go.'' Then, turning to another boy, whose duty it was to fold and direct envelopes, the business manager said:

''Horace, would you be willing to put aside your work and carry this note down to S—— street for me? It is about a business matter of importance to the firm, and should be attended to without delay.''

Now, which of these boys, think you, is more likely to be advanced in that office? You know without guessing. You know that Horace had the interests of his employer far more at heart than Robert, and the boy who does not have the interests of his employer at heart is never likely to advance much, in any position.

I know of a boy, of but thirteen years of age, who was employed in an office in which there was another boy of about fifteen years of age. It was the duty of these two boys to sweep out the office and put everything to rights before they went home every night. There were four or five rooms in the office suite; but, as all the other employees left at five o'clock, the boys could tidy up the office and start for home by six o'clock. One night, when it was raining in torrents, the boys were ready to start home, when a messenger boy came to the office with a telegram. Harry, the younger boy, receipted for it, and looked at the envelope reflectively, while he said:

'' This may be something of special importance to Mr. Howard.''

''Well, what if it is?''' said Joe, the older boy.

''Then he ought to have it,'' said Harry, decidedly.

''Let him get it the best way he can, then. It isn't your place to run around delivering telegrams.''

''I know that it is not, but I would not like to have this telegram wait until morning if it is something that Mr. Howard ought to have tonight.''

''Oh, nonsense! There are a dozen telegrams a day coming to this office, and half of them don't amount to anything. Come on; let's go home, or we won't get our supper in time to go to that jollification the boys of our social league are going to have tonight. Get your hat.''

Harry hesitated, with the telegram in his hands. Suddenly he said with decision:

''You go on without me. I am going to take this telegram around to Mr. Howard's house.''

''What! you are going to trail way out to his house in this pouring rain? He lives half a mile from the end of the car track, and you can't go out to where he lives, and back to your house, in such a dark rainy night, in less than two hours.''

''I am going, all the same,'' said Harry, firmly.

''You'll miss our affair tonight, and you know that there is to be a spread.''

''Perhaps I can get around in time for that. But I am going to see that Mr. Howard get this telegram, spread or no spread.''

Joe shrugged his shoulders and said, contemptuously:

''Well, you are more of a softy than I thought you were. Catch me chasing around in the rain with an old telegram, even if I knew that it was important. I'm not hired to deliver telegrams.''

Harry, dripping wet, and with his last cent spent for car fare, reached Mr. Howard's house only to find that that gentleman had gone to a dinner party two miles distant; but Harry was a boy of pluck, and when he set out to do a thing, he did it. Securing the address of the friend with whom Mr. Howard was dining, Harry set off on foot for the house and reached it looking like a drowned rat. Mr. Howard was in the drawing room of his friend's house, with the other guests, when his host came up to him and said:

''One of the maids says that there is a boy at the door with a message for you.''

A moment later, Mr. Howard was standing in the vestibule of the house, and Harry was saying:

''This telegram came to the office after you had gone, sir, and I thought that it might be something you would like to know about tonight, so I brought is to you.''

''Well, you are a good boy, whether the message is important or not,'' said Mr. Howard, as he tore open the envelope containing the telegram. The next moment he said:

''Thank you for bringing me this. It is of the utmost importance, and an answer must be sent tonight. Had the reply been delayed until morning, it might have meant many thousands of dollars to me. You certainly will not lose anything by serving my interests so faithfully, Harry. How wet you are! And you didn't have even an umbrella to protect you from the storm? I will order my car, and, if you will ride to the nearest telegraph office with the reply I shall give you, to this telegram, the chauffeur shall take you home afterwards. I shall not forget what you have done for me tonight.''

The last I heard of Joe he was a sort of roust-about in a market, with a salary of five dollars a week. The last I heard of Harry, he had been advanced by Mr. Howard to a salary of twenty dollars a week. It pays to be willing to serve.—Success.

FIRST CHOICE

''I got here first!'' cried Bobby. ''I am first chooser!''

''No, I was first,'' said Ted. ''I got to the door first,'' insisted Bobby. ''I am the first chooser.''

''Suppose we all sit down,'' said Miss Ruth. ''We haven't said 'Good-morning' to any one yet.''

Bobby and Ted and all the other children went to their little brown chairs.

The good-morning song did not sound as merry as usual; and when it was finished. Miss Ruth said: ''Once I saw two little chickens quarreling over one worm. It was a long, long worm, quite enough for both, but neither would give the other one little bite. No, each one pulled and peeped and peeped until—what do you suppose happened?''

''A great, big, old rooster came along and scolded and flapped his wings and took the long worm away from the little chicks and ate it himself.''

''Oh!'' breathed all the children.

''And what did the little chickens have for their dinner?'' asked Sara.

''They went away and looked for another worm or maybe a bug,'' said Miss Ruth.

''And did they quarrel next time?'' asked Bobby.

''I was not there next time,'' said Miss Ruth, ''but I think they did not quarrel any more, at least not that morning. For they had been taught that quarrels do not pay. Now, shall we ask Rosalind to choose the first game because she was absent yesterday, and we are so very glad to see her again?''

''Yes, yes!'' cried the little girls and boys.

Bobby slipped his hand into his pocket and felt that new whistle he had brought up to help play ''Postman,'', and Ted sighed, remembering the new game they had learned yesterday. It was a good game.

But ''Ten Little Indians'' is a good game, too, and soon they were circling around the room like true little red men. They could almost believe they were out in the leafy forest. They could almost feel the mossy turf under their moccasined feet. They almost forgot they were little white children in their kindergarten room. But two little boys did not quite forget the story of the little chickens who lost their dinner because neither was willing to give up to the other.—The Christian Observer.

JESUS' LOVE SATISFIES

One day I heard of Jesus' love,
And what it really meant;
That He would give me happiness,
To make my heart content.
I felt His love so tenderly
Sweep o'er my soul that day,
I turned to Him, surrendered all,
He washed my sins away.

I would not doubt my blessed Lord,
I know His Word is true,
So I will trust Him all the time,
And He will take me through.
The world may say they're satisfied,
With all their so-called fun,
But I have tasted of it all,
And found that there is none.

There's nothing else can satisfy,
Like Jesus' love Divine;
So let Him come into your heart,
As He has come in mine.
I know I have eternal joy,
'Tis ringing in my soul,
I know the devil can't annoy,
For Jesus made me whole.

'Twould take so long for me to tell,
Of all that He has done,
And that none else can satisfy,
He is the only One.
Upon the solid rock I stand,
By grace I shall not fall,
Until at last I shall respond,
To His dear loving call.

GOD'S LIGHT

A beautiful story is told of a little girl whose faith in God may teach us a lesson.

The lamp had just been put out, and the little girl was rather afraid of the dark. But presently she saw the bright moon out of the window, and she asked her mother, ''Is the moon God's light?''

''Yes,'' the mother replied; ''the moon and stars are all God's lights.''

''Will God blow out His light and go to sleep, too?'' she asked again.

''No, my child,'' replied the mother; ''God's lights are always burning.''

''Well, mother,'' said the child, ''while God's awake, I'm not afraid.''—Olive Plants.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

WHAT GOOD IS OUR CHURCH DOING?

Scripture Text: Matthew 5:13-16

This week is set aside as Christian Endeavor Week. As we think of this we are reminded of the purpose which Dr. Clark had in forming the Christian Endeavor: he desired to give the young people of his church a place to go on Sunday night that would be recreational and helpful, and to aid the young people in training for active work. The Christian Endeavor is not an annex to the church but is a vital part of its program and work. No church can afford to be without an active Society and equally so, the best efforts of the Society should be used in the interest of the church.

The Christian Endeavor Society is the product of the church. Many of the young people's organizations grew up outside the church. The Young Men's Christian Association has no direct connection with the church and the Christian Endeavor owes its birth and direction to the organized church. Since this is true, there should be a special reason for close co-operation between these two great organizations.

Christ tells His disciples that they are to be the salt of the earth. It has been said that life is impossible without salt. Salt has the power to cleanse and purify. It is a good antiseptic and has all of the qualities of a purifying agent. It penetrates quickly and deeply and so does the Christian's influence; it is the symbol of purity and so must the Christian. Salt adds relish to foods and makes them tasteful; without it all things lose their taste.

The church, with its message of satisfaction, gives color and tone to life. As foods would be insipid and tasteless without salt, so would life be without the church. Salt is a preservative. It has the greatest saving power of any substance in common use. It is almost unthinkable to be without salt and its saving quality. The church is the messenger of salvation to the lost world and has the power to save mankind for Christ. The church is the salt of the earth, but if the salt has lost its saving power, how shall the earth be salted?

The church has stood through the ages as the representative of the best qualities and lasting values of life. The church educates in morals and ethics and gives the patterns of successful living. The church furnishes the finest ideals and patterns which one can adopt. Some of the greatest heroes of past years have been products of the church, the best relation between man and man is taught by the church, the best of social practices and qualities are upheld by the church.

The church of today is standing in need of young people of power and training and ones who are really consecrated to the task of saving the world. The work of the church is indispensible and should demand the support of the Christian Endeavorers. The church with an active society where young people are doing active work and praying, will have no fear in the future that its life is assured.

Quotable Poetry

We would fill the hours with the sweetest things
If we had but one day;
We should drink alone at the purest spring
In our upward way;
We should love with a lifetime's love in an hour
If the hours were few;
We should rest not for dreams, but for fresher power
To be and to do.
We should waste no moments in weak regret
If the day were but one;
If what we remember and what we regret
Went out with the sun;
We should be from our clamorous selves set free
To work and to pray,
And to be what the Father would have us to be,
If we had but one day.

HOW SHALL WE DETERMINE NEW IDEALS?

Scripture Text: Ps. 119: 129-136;
Matthew 5:1-9.

An ideal is a dream or hope which one has set up as a goal and toward which he is working. An ideal is intangible and beyond our grasp but it is near enough to be the incentive that leads us on. An ideal has a great place in life. A person may be chosen or a set of ambitions woven into a code, at any rate, a standard is set which the particular person wishes to attain. Ideals must be larger than man's capacity of attainment. As Browning said: "Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" It is advisable to have more immediate goals which are attainable so that one will not become discouraged and feel like quitting. There should be, however, a great ideal which is never attained. If a man is able to see his ideal fulfilled, he is assured that he set it too low. Only a short time ago, George Eastman, the great man of photographic work, ended his life and left a note saying that his work was done. It is a case for despondency when a man is able to feel that he has accomplished his life work and attained his ideal.

Ideals are ultimately grounded in Christ. There have been a number of great men who have taken Christ as their ideal and lived by the standards which He has set up. Many more have contributed to the welfare of the world who did not have Christ as an ideal, yet they had inculcated His principles. The great in man is the Divine in him. In selecting an ideal, it is advisable to go to the source of the ideals of men of greatness. The Bible contains life stories of many other men who would serve as good ideals. There is much in any great man which will do to copy but the final ideal is Christ.

It is important that people have ideals. Life takes a much straighter course when there is a goal toward which it is directed. Many of the wayward boys of our generation need an ideal as badly as they need anything. Parents should be more careful in placing before their children the lives and work of the great men of all ages so that the growing lives may find ideals which are worthy. Ideals tend to speed good works. When a definite goal is ahead, work will be directed and purpose will be given to it.

This is the anniversary Sunday of Christian Endeavor. We would like to think back to the night when Christian Endeavor was born in the parsonage of the Williston Congregational Church in Portland, Maine. The first society was organized by Rev. Francis E. Clark, on the evening of February 2, 1881. There must have been a great ideal in the mind of the founder of this movement that has spread to all parts of the globe and has grown from a few members in one church to millions of members in countless churches. If Dr. Clark had desired to organize a society within his own church and had set his ideal where it could have been so easily reached, we would not have the powerful and helpful Christian Endeavor Society which embraces people of all nationalities and members within about 80 evangelical denominations.

It is well that we know some of the ideals of Christian Endeavor so I am quoting from page 20 of the "Expert Endeavor" book. "Definite standards of service, and definite commitment to those standards. Open confession of Christ, and speaking for Him according to ability and opportunity. The cultivation of the devotional life by regular prayer and Bible-study. Training in Christion service by a variety of committee work. Loyalty to the church, and regular attendance upon the church services. Generous giving to Christian work. Christian citizenship. Interdenominational fellowship, and the promotion of peace and goodwill among the nations of the world. All of these endeavors to be made in accordance with the will of Christ, and trusting Him for strength. These are the purposes and the steady aim of Christian Endeavor."

These are great ideals and ones worthy of every Christian Endeavorer. They are almost as wide in their scope as the aims of the church. The ideal of Christ to bring salvation to the entire world was so large that it almost astounded those who knew Him, but here we have an organization which has an ideal almost as large. We shall never clothe our ideal with flesh but we are striving toward an end which may be realized in a few thousand years.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Pleasant, North Devidson.—The Sunday school is getting along nicely under the leadership of our new superintendent, L. H. Hilton. It is increasing in number and interest Sunday by Sunday.

We observed Young People's Day January 22. Rev. O. C. Loy delivered a special sermon to the young people. He said that he had not lost faith in the youth of today. The youth wants something to do that will bring out the best they have in them. They sacrifice just as the people of yesterday. About two-thirds of the church congregation is composed of young people. Lots of the good of the young people comes through the parents. The young people of today will carry the burdens of the church tomorrow. To give our gift of God, first, we have to give our hearts and lives. Second, we must serve God. Third, to get rid of the social evils of the people, Fourth, minister unto the physical and spiritual life. The words you speak have a great influence upon your fellow men, although you may not realize it. Be true to yourself, fellowman, and Jesus, so when the "great day" comes we will be ready. God bless, encourage, and strengthen the youth so they may go forward in the advancement of God's kingdom.

Auville, Pauline, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hedgecock rendered special music which we all enjoyed very much.

On Saturday night, January 28, the Ladies' Auxiliary is having a chicken pie supper at the church. The public is cordially invited.

Siler City Church.—Our silence for so long does not mean that all in our church have gone to sleep on the job; it is just the reporter. Anyway, we are here again. Rev. Mr. Isley has been with us at all the appointments in January and gave us some splendid messages. The third Sunday communion service was observed. A goodly number partook of this sacred feast. Special music was rendered by Mr. Evans Stone and Miss Minnie Cooper at these services.

Our Sunday school is holding up fairly well during the inclement weather. Recently we have had two new flues built, making it possible now for every Sunday school room to be well heated and comfortable.

Our mid-week prayer services are being well attended, especially by the young people. Our pastor is with us every other week and some of our members have charge when he can't be with us. Mr. E. D. Wood had charge two weeks ago and Mrs. T. L. Smith will have charge next week. We usually study some Bible character and all take a part.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at the church Wednesday afternoon, the 18th. In the absence of our president, Mrs. J. E. Fox, our vice-president, Mrs. Emma B. Siler had charge of the devotional and business. At this meeting it was decided to organize a 'teen-age girls' circle to get the girls of that age interested in mission work. We have some very enthusiastic girls and feel sure this can be made a splendid work for the right person. Miss Sallie Smith and Mrs. Paul Braxton were elected to look after this. The meeting was then turned over to the program committee, Mrs. C. E. Brady and Mrs. Paul Braxton. Mrs. Braxton read a poem on New Year's Resolutions and Mrs. Brady an interesting story.

Circle No. 1 met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Cooper Monday, 16th, with eight members present. This was a good meeting and some very interesting business was transacted. Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. J. N. Johnson Monday night, the 9th. Am sorry I do not have any data concerning this meeting, but feel sure it was interesting.

The C. E. Society is doing a good work under the splendid leadership of the new president, Mr. D. G. Fox. He always has something new and interesting for the society to look forward to. They are planning to observe Young People's Week and will have charge of the mid-week prayer service that week and quite a number of other events during the week. On the first Sunday night in February they will observe Young People's Day with an elaborate program, thus ending the week's activities.

Am sorry to report that one of our members, Mrs. D. L. Johnson, is quite ill at her home.

MRS. J. A. COOPER.

West Forsyth.—The pastor and family moved from the West Forsyth parsonage on Friday of last week after occupying the house for four years and two months. We are now located at 108 West Seventh Avenue, Lexington, N. C., and will be glad for any of the pastors and other Methodist Protestants to visit us when in Lexington or passing through the town. This change was made only for financial reasons. The churches seemed to be unable to raise enough money for the pastor to meet his living and traveling expenses. Each church on the charge voted to permit the pastor to move from the parsonage to Lexington where he will devote some time during week days to newspaper work. He will continue to serve the churches as heretofore, spending one or two days each week among the people.

We had one of the largest congregations at Harmony Grove church last Sunday morning in recent months. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered at the conclusion of the sermon. The pastor enjoyed a good dinner and brief visit at the home of Bro. J. E. Jarvis and family.

We are pleased to report that Miss Carrie Poindexter, member of Union Hill church, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Baptist hospital in Winston-Salem, has recovered sufficiently to be able to return to her home. Bro. Paul Cornelius, of Baltimore church, also had an operation for appendicitis at the same hospital about ten days ago, and we presume that he has returned to his home.

We regret to report that Miss Pauline Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter, is a patient at the City Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem, having undergone an operation last week. She is slowly recovering from the operation.

The writer will have the opportunity next Sunday of hearing some other pastor preach, as we will not have any appointments. The first Sunday we will be at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Mr. Ferree, our pastor, preached a soul-inspiring sermon last Sunday night, January 22. His topic was "The Way to Heaven."

"The Way to Heaven." What does it mean to me and what does it mean to you? Do you expect to get to heaven and see Jesus, or do you care enough about your soul to let it enter your mind? Are you traveling the straight and narrow way that leads up, up, up to heaven? Or are you walking in the broad, crowded road that leads down, down, down to destruction? Are you working for your Master? Think of the many souls that are hungering for the love of Jesus. Are you telling them of our Savior? Are you pointing the way to heaven? Should you die tonight, could you face your Savior with a smile and hear Him say, "Well done, my good and faithful servant?" Let these simple questions enter your imnd. Consider them seriously.

Our Sunday school is going just fine. We were very sorry that Mr. Ferree had the flu and couldn't be with us the past second Sunday. But we are glad he was able to be with us last Sunday night.

Our Christian Endeavor is coming on just fine. We elected new officers. They are as follows: President, Flora Mae Wooten; vice-president, Pauline Robertson; secretary and treasurer, Mary Ellen Harris; assistant secretary and treasurer, Rayford Templeton.

Did I but creep more closely to the shadow of His cross,
Content to count all earthly things for His
dear sake but loss?
Or when some deeper sorrow came, some wearying anxious care,
Did I only creep more closely to the shadow of His there?

Dear Lord, the day is ended, but thy blood can cleanse each spot;
And where thy child's steps have strayed love remembers not;
Thy banner still is o'er me and my heart is full of peace.
For through my love and faith, may fail, Thy love can never cease!

FLORA MAE WOOTEN, Reporter.

First Church, Lexington.—The work here at First Church is moving along nicely. We are having a good attendance at the preaching services and the Sunday school. Our mid-week prayer services are also being well attended.

The Ladies' Auxiliary put on a chicken supper yesterday evening at the Lexington Cafe, which is not occupied at the present time, and we are very grateful to the owner of the building; also to Mr. Wood Dorsett, who owns the fixtures, which are the most up-to-date to be found in town, and anyone who wishes to go in the cafe business here should get in touch with Mr. Dorsett. The supper was a real success, the ladies taking in something like $40.00.

Bro. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, is here conducting a revival meeting at the vacant church near the Wenonah Cotton Mills, and he is having a good meeting; the members of our church are co-operating with Bro. Curtis, which we are glad to note.

In our morning preaching service we received four new members into the church. We were very glad to have these new ones unite with us.

Several members of the Men's Class met this afternoon at the church and made a note of all the families near the church who were not attending church somewhere, and we are going to send committees to see them and try to get them in church somewhere.

We are glad to have Rev. C. B. Way and family move back in our community. Rev. Mr. Way will go to his churches each Sunday and preach, but will reside here in Lexington.

In the morning service Bro. Isley preached on "Things That Count in Life." He delivered a very interesting and forceful sermon, and those present seemed to enjoy it very much.

We extend a hearty welcome to all who will worship with us. REPORTER.

Bethany, Randolph.—We were not providentially hindered Sunday, January 15, which was a good day for us. Sunday school, and a good sermon by our pastor, Rev. Edward Suits, on the subject, "What Think Ye of Christ?" He impressed on our minds the relationship between the home and the church. "What do we think of Christ?" Our attitude toward the church proves what we think of Christ. Surely this applies to all walks of life that are worth while. All branches of the church, our homes, our schools. It takes the home, school and the church to form a well rounded life. If we have the right attitude toward Christ, our homes will not be failures. I hope we may strive to have just the right mental attitude toward Christ and the church, and I believe when we do we will find a way to meet our obligations, and all the finances of the church that are facing us.

The Lord's Supper was also observed at this hour.

There were 82 present for Sunday school January 22. The interest seems to be growing and I hope I will have some more good news when you hear from us again.

The work on the church roof has been completed since my last report.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Midway, Haw River Ciruit.—On the second Sunday of this month Bro. Trollinger brought us another wonderful message. We are very glad indeed to have him and family with us for another year, this being his fifth year on this work. He has proved his ability to carry on this task and we feel that if the entire circuit will co-operate with him we will come out victorious at the end of this year.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely under the leadership of R. P. Butler and Mrs. Joyner Lemons. We were planning a Christmas program and tree; the snow, rain and mud knocked up the program but we had the tree and a treat for the entire school.

Our church and community was made sad last Saturday by the death of one of our oldest members, Mrs. R. A. Carroll. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon by Rev. J. L. Trollinger, Dr. A. G. Dixon, Rev. W. F. Ashburn, and Dr. George Brown. Mrs. Carroll was a wonderful Christian woman and we feel that her influence will live on and on. Our sympathy goes out to the family and especially to the feeble and broken-hearted husband, who no doubt feels the loss more than anyone else. May the Lord strengthen and comfort him, and may he be restored to health. He is now confined to his bed with flu.

First Church, High Point.—The usual schedule of services was observed last Sunday, beginning at 9:45 a. m., with the Sabbath school under the leadership of John C. Whitesell, superintendent. At the 11 o'clock service a ladies' quartet, composed of Misses Laura Braswell, Eleanor Capps, Vera Smith, and Mary Frances Hayworth, sang very beautifully "The Lord Is My Shepherd," with organ accompaniment by Prof. Ernest B. Stimson. The worning sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, on the subject, "Jesus Healing and Saving the Blind Man," from John 9. "I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work." Blindness is very prevalent in Oriental countries on account of unsanitary conditions. Early in the 19th century much was done by doctors to relieve this affliction. Laura Bridgman, a little eight-year-old girl who was blind, deaf and dumb, was taken to a doctor in Boston,who by the sense of touch taught her to read, and she afterward became self-supporting. Louis Braille, a Frenchman, blind himself, invented a system of raised letters by which the blind can read by passing their fingers over them. This system is widely used in institutions for instruction of the blind throughout the world. Helen Keller, born in Tuscumbia, Ala., in 1880, at the age of 18 months became blind, deaf and dumb as the result of scarlet fever. Her faithful companion and teacher, Miss Sullivan, taught her for many years, prepared her for Radclige College, where she was graduated after four years. She learned to speak, and made several lecture tours over the United States. Christina Rosetti said, "He is not blind who sees Jesus." Every necessity of life will be relieved when we work with Jesus. We will never get out of this disorder and crushing depression until we go back of the cause and relieve it. Did you ever see a person who has sinned try to reinstate himself into society? He is scorned and spurned by so-called Christian neighbors.

"O Light that followest all my way,
I yield my flickering torch to thee;
My heart restores its borrowed ray,
That in thy sunshine's blaze its day
May brighter, fairer be."

At 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening the Young People's C. E. Society held its weekly meeting with Miss Mary Elizabeth Farmer as leader.

The Senior C. E. Society has decided to resume their meetings on Monday evenings, and Miss Annabel Thompson was the leader for last Monday evening.

On Monday afternoon the Woman's Auxiliary assembled at the home of Mrs. P. S. Kennett, and heard Mrs. A. G. Dixon present the Mission Study Book, "The Challenge of Change," in an interesting and comprehensive manner.

Instead of the usual Wednesday evening prayer service a district meeting of the Conference Council of Religious Education will meet in First church. Mrs. Henry W. Maier, of Lexington, has charge of the program, and the main feature of the hour will be an address by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, of Asheville.

All graduates of High Point College are cordially invited to attend a meeting at the college Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when an Alumni Association will be formed. C. Virgil Yow, assistant coach, is chairmon of the nominating committee to bring forward names for officers, the other members being Misses Dorothy Hoskins and Annabel Thompson.

Mid-term examinations at the college will begin on Monday, January 30, and continue util Friday, February 3.

"Hot Copy," the comedy-drama given at Christmas by the "Play-Givers," an organization sponsored by Miss Ruth Bellamy, instructor in speech, will be presented in Gibsonville High School February 10 and proceeds of the ply will be used to buy drapes for the stage in Roberts auditorium.

Photographs for the 1933 Zenith, college annual, have been completed, and are the work of Dunbar and Daniel, of Raleigh.

Next Sunday, January 29, Holy Communion will be observed, and on Sunday evening, February 5, a special program for Young People's Day will be presented at 7:30 o'clock.

Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. David E. White in the death of her sister, Mrs. Rosa Meredith Sechrest, widow of the late Mr. Lane Sechrest, who died in 1918. Funeral services were conducted from the home on East Washington street Tuesday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. G. Ray Jordan, of Wesley Memorial church, assisted by Rev. F. L. Conrad, of Emmanuel Lutheran church, and Rev. J. M. Hilliard, active pastor of North Main Street Baptist church. Her surviving children are: J. Vernon Sechrest, Mrs. D. F. Staley, and Mrs. B. C. Harmon, all of High Point. Mrs. Sechrest spent her entire life in this city, was devoted to her family and home, a kind neighbor, and possessed many friends. She was a member of Wesley Memorial M. E. church for many years.

Mrs. C. C. Robbins will entertain the Priscilla Club on Friday, January 27, at her beautiful country home south of the city.

Mrs. Johnsie Oakes Jackson entered High Point Hospital Sunday for observation preparatory to an operation.

Mrs. J. P. McPherson, who is a guest in the home of her brother-in-law, O. D. McPherson, on Woodrow Avenue, is improving from an attack of influenza.

Miss Altah Vuncannon has returned home from a visit of three weeks to friends in Columbus and other towns of Ohio.

Mrs. Lewis E. Teague is suffering from an attack of influenza.

The sympathy of a large number of friends is extended to Postmaster O. R. York in the loss of his father, Mr. John D. York, who died at his home in Archdale last Thursday after a long illness. Funeral services were held at his old home church, White's Chapel, near Ramseur, on Friday with a large assembly of relatives and friends in attendance. Active pallbearers were Messrs. W. T. Hinshaw, S. T. Buie, Pinkney Baldwin, G. R. Shiplett, C. F. Williams, J. R. York, M. C. York, and G. P. Kivett. Mr. York was a retired farmer, who moved from Ramseur to Archdale after the death of his wife, and is survived by four sons, all well known citizens of High Point: Postmaster O. R. York, C. A., a prominent lawyer, Walter and Shelly, of the staff of the Hood Industrial Bank, and one daughter, Miss Mamie York, of the home. Rev. R. I. Farmer assisted in the funeral services.

The congregation is much pleased to receive the transfer of membership of Mrs. J. E. Wagner from Bethesda, Davidson County, to First church, and we feel that she will make us a good member, coming as she does of staunch Methodist Protestant stock, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex Evans.

Mrs. R. I. Farmer was hostess to the members of the American Legion Auxiliary last Friday evening at the parsonage on Colonial Drive, associate hostesses being Mrs. Leigh J. Harper and Mrs. Oscar Smith. A pleasing feature of the evening was a group of old-time Southern songs by Mrs. Albert Stevens and Mrs. J. Irvin Groome, with Miss Evelyn Boyd as accompanist at the piano.

At the meeting of the Wayside Garden Club on Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Roy Spearman, Mrs. S. S. Coe will discuss "Insects."

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Our work seems to be progressing nicely so far as the spiritual side is concerned; that is the most important part.

The Sunday school continues to hold up well. We had 105 present for the Sunday afternoon service. Teachers and officers were elected the first of the year and a most promising year is being looked forward to.

Rev. J. Adrian Thompson, of High Point College, delivered an excellent sermon to an unusually large audience Sunday afternoon. Special emphasis was put on the Ten Commandments. A number of visitors were present, who always are welcome.

Mr. J. G. Trantham continues in a very serious condition with heart dropsy.

Siler City Charge—Christmas exercises were held at all three of the churches on this charge. Piney Grove and Siler City churches rendered very pleasing programs, after which a treat and presents were distributed to the Sunday school scholars and others. At Siler City a special offering was received for the Children's Home. At Hope church the exercises were held in connection with the Sunday school. It was not the pastor's privilege to be there.

Siler City and Hope churches are well organized and all the organizations seem to be functioning in a satisfactory way. A Woman's Auxiliary has recently been organized at Piney Grove which, we trust, will mean much to the church. Already plans are being made to place carpet in the aisles and pulpit. Misses Joy and Wilma Dark have recently donated a number of new song-books to this church.

Two of the churches, Siler City and Hope, have given the pastor generous poundings recently, consisting of flour, sugar, coffee, Irish and sweet potatoes, cheese, salt, cereals, grapefruit, apples, nuts, molasses, preserves, canned fruit, jello, hosiery, washbord and broom. The names of all the donors were not given, so we will not give any names. We are truly grateful to all who made donations. It is our desire to render the very best service possible. Piney Grove church has our thanks for a treat during the Christmas holidays.

Young People's Day will be observed at all three churches on this charge.

First Church, Concord.—We are sorry to report that our pastor, Mr. Morgan, has a severe cold and was not able to preach for us this morning. We hope he will soon be well again. Rev. Durant Nash preached for us today and will preach again tonight. We enjoyed his sermon very much and we are glad to have Bro. Nash and family with us; he is ever ready and willing to help us in our services. He preached about the "Three Crosses" this morning. I wish I could write every word of his sermon, it was so good. Mrs. Nash has been real sick with flu, but is better now, able to sit up some. Miss Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Durant Nash, is a great help in our choir. We were glod to have Miss Beatrice Waddell sing in the choir this morning. Miss Waddell has finished her training for nursing in Richmond, Va., and we are hoping she will take up her work near Concord so she can worship with us often.

We think our folks have started out well on the New Year. Our Sunday school is growing fact. We were proud to have some new members today and some visitors. If the Woman's class keeps on working like they have started I think they will soon outgrow their class room. Mrs. B. F. Waddell is the teacher of the class and they have on a contest in their class.

We are glad to say that Mr. Morgan was feeling much better tonight; he was out at church but Rev. Mr. Nash preached another fine sermon for us. His theme tonight was "The Vacant Seat." After the invitation was given to the sinners that they might give their hearts and lives to Jesus and put on the garment of righteousness and be ready to take their seat at the feast, one young lady responded to the invitation.

Since our last report our pastor has been giving us some wonderful Gospel messages. We feel and know that each one has received a great blessing by being present and hearing these good sermons.

Our Wednesday evening prayer meetings are a great help and blessing to our church and we are proud to see so many folks attending these meetings. We could not set a better New Year's resolution than to go to the house of God more. Home and the church are two of the dearest places on earth to a Christian.

Since our last report death has visited in our midst again and claimed the life of Mr. Arnold Stoker. Mr. Stoker was a member of the M. E. Church, but his mother attends our church when she is able. Mrs. Stoker has two boys that are sick at this time. They have our prayers and sympathy.

We still have lots of sickness in our church family. Miss Lorethea Louder is very sick, has been sick since before Christmas. Mrs. Lottie Brown Litaker and daughter, Agnes, Mrs. Robert Furr and Mrs. Lillie Ritch are all on the sick list. We hope and pray for them a speedy recovery. Mrs. Coy Little has been real sick with double pneumonia, but we hear that she is a little better today. Mr. and Mrs. Little are members of the M. P. church at Love's Grove, but as they are making their home in Concord now they attend our church. One of our neighbors, Mr. A. M. Honeycutt, is sick with heart trouble and he had a light stroke Wednesday after Christmas. Mr. Honeycutt is a member of the Baptist church. Friends, pray for the sick of our church and town. Not only for the sick, but let's all pray for each other and make this the best year of all for the churches all over the world.

One of our Intermediate boys, a fine-looking boy, smart in church work, and we all love him, is now in trouble: We ask you all to pray for this boy. He is not a member of our church, but we are interested in him and want to see him make a noble man.

Our Missionary Auxiliary is wide awake this year and each Circle is trying to co-operate and make this the best year in our misison work for us. Our regular joint meeting was held last Monday night in the basement of the church. The meeting was real interesting and Mrs. Ernest Litaker, our president, had many good thoughts for us. We enjoyed hearing the Winecoff girls and Miss Mildred Burris sing. We always enjoy hearing them sing. Mrs. Maggie Mann Sides had charge of the question box and I am sure everyone enjoyed it. She told us lots of things about our mission work that we did not know. Mrs. Daisy Burris and Miss Lucy Winecoff read letters out of our Missionary Record from Mrs. Maude Soderbom. They were real interesting. Our Circle report showed that 44 were present for the joint meeting, with four visitors. We have four Circles, and last Sunday evening an Intermediate society was organized with 19 present. Mrs. Daisy Burris was made chairman of this society. Several of our Circles have made quilts and hope to sell them in the near future, and some have been making candy and selling it. Each Circle has used the patch apron and find that to be a good way to make money.

At the close of our joint meeting Circle No. 3 had charge of the social hour. They put on a fine program. Mrs. Tom Blackwelder gave a very funny reading which everyone enjoyed. We were glad to have Miss Eva and Miss Maude Winecoff and Mr. Tom Blackwelder sing for us. After the program refreshments were served.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—A large crowd attended the regular church service on Sunday morning, January 22. Our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, delivered a most inspiring message on "Friendship." He took his text from I Samuel, chapter 19, the first part, and chapter 20, verses 41 and 42.

Our pastor presented some very fine thoughts on the subject. He called our attention to the fact that the people of today have lost the significance of friendship as portrayed in the story of two great friends, David and Jonathan. He gave us two explanations for the presence of David at the palace of Saul. One story was that King Saul wanted him to play on a harp to amuse him and to satisfy his vile spirit. The other was his fame as the giant-killer. While there David behaved himself wisely and did not let promotion turn his head, as a great many are prone to do in the time of success.

At the palace of Saul, David and Jonathan became very fast friends. Mr. Mabry told us that we should visit our friends and neighbors. We should find time to visit, if we do not seem to have it. We should talk to our neighbors and exchange our ideas with them. Friendship will make us more congenial and more like David and Jonathan. We should model our friendship like that of David and Jonathan and not like that of Saul, who was selfish and self-centered. David and Jonathan promised each other that they would always be friends and that there would be peace between their seed forever.

Our pastor said that he feared we were losing some of the virtues of friendship possessed by David and Jonathan. We cannot be a friend and be treacherous, deceitful, and jealous of them. In so doing we become like Saul. He promised to do no harm to David, but he broke his promise. He was jealous of the fame and success of David and threatened to kill him. We should not be jealous of the success of our neighbors, but we should get busy and make a success for ourselves.

In conclusion, he told us to make friends on earth and meet them in heaven. We should strive to make our friendship like that of David and Jonathan. He begged us to remember that good friend, Jesus, who always willing and ready to anchor us.

We have a splendid bunch of Sunday school officers and teachers for this year. With such a group of fine leaders we are sure that our Sunday school attendance will continue to be very good.

The Sisters' Class will have a class meeting at the home of its teacher, Mrs. Sidney Russell, on Saturday evening, January 28. Miss Dorothy Hargis will preside over the meeting. All members of the class are urged to be present. REPORTER.

Shiloh.—Rev. R. S. Troxler had a severe attack of stomach poisoning on Friday night before the third Sunday, and was really not physically able to come to church; but he came for the 11 o'clock church service and brought us the most earnest message he has brought this year from Psalms 30:5: "Weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning." God's strength is made perfect in weakness and so in Bro. Troxler's physical weakness God could reveal to him a vital message. Glad to report that he is much improved now.

Today being the fourth Sunday, we had our usual prayer meeting, which was led by our class leaders. It was one of the most helpful meetings held in many months. Bro. R. B. Sink and Miss Mabel Berrier read selections of Scripture; then Bro. Jeff Berrier made some very timely remarks on "Sin and Jesus Christ." We felt impelled to look within ourselves and examine our own relationship with Jesus Christ.

The Woman's Auxiliary meeting will be held on the fifth Sunday night of January, and that's next Sunday night. Please be there.

Mr. Gilbert Trantham is reported as slightly improved, though he is still critically ill at his home near Lexington.

Bethel, Mocksville Charge.—We are very proud of our Sunday school. It is making progress in various ways. Our superintendent is endeavoring to make it what it ought to be. The interest is fine. Our attendance is real good considering the bad roads. Class No. 3 very creditably entertained the school for a little while after classes by telling them what they had learned about the boy Jesus in the part four lessons.

Our pastor was with us the third Sunday in the morning with a splendid message. He is always apparently happy and cheerful. He has been very busy visiting the sick lately. He himself and part of his family has been been sick with flu. They are well now.

Mrs. Ab Foster, one of our members, is and has been real sick for some time. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. John Crotts is also very ill.

Pleasant Grove.—Our faithful pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, preached two wonderful sermons last Sunday. His morning subject was "Life and Light." St. John 1:4. In Christ we receive our life and light. He made it clear that Christ must be inside the life to drive out the darkness, in order that we may live the Christ life, giving light to others.

His evening subject was taken from II Kings 13:21: If we are spiritually dead we need the touch that will give us power. We have the same God that Elisha had in those days. He then mentioned the need of leaders in our day, and that the people must be willing to follow, and that Christ must lead the leaders and His followers.

Our pastor put before us again about building a hut. I really think all were enthused over the matter because a goodly number of our men promised to haul logs or do their part, whatever it might be. It was voted on and most all voted to build the hut, which I think will mean so much to our young people of the church. I for one am happy that we can have a hut. Let us all join in together and pray that this will be done as early as possible. Let us pray that God will be our leader in whatever we undertake to do at Pleasant Grove, and I am sure we will never fail. Let us pray more for our pastor and his good wife. Let us all work together in one body as one mind. May we ever strive to put out our church on top and keep her there.

Our Sunday school was some better than last Sunday, but not normal yet, a goodly number being out with flu. But we were happy to have back with us again Mrs. B. E. Kennedy, Miss Mary Kennedy and Mr. Joe Murphy, who have been on the sick list for about two months. We are so happy that God saw fit to spare their lives that they may be back with us again.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. W. H. Burton is sick; hope she will soon be out.

We missed Mrs. Clay Beck and children, James and Vera; hope they will be with us next Sunday.

Several from the Junior department were reported ill, among these being Hilda, Bernice, Catherine, and Harold Kennedy, Mary Charles, Fred Newby, Alby Robbins and Harold Payne; hope they will soon be out, for I am sure they were missed in the department.

The Ladies' Aid will hold its next regular meeting at the parsonage.

The Sunshine Auxiliary will hold its regular meeting with Mrs. J. R. Meredith. The meeting was postponed last month on account of the bad weather.

The Brotherhood will meet with Mr. Z. B. Morris.

Let's make up our minds right here and now that this is going to be the best year we have ever had. Let us be workers and do-ers, not just hearers of His Word. May we all talk less about worldly things and more about spiritual things. May we pray more and work harder than we ever have before.

May God bless all who are striving for the upbuilding of His kingdom.

West End, Thomasville.—Rev. H. W. Bell delivered a very interesting sermon Sunday morning, January 22, which was enjoyed by all present.

Class No. 5 was very sorry that their assistant teacher, Mrs. H. W. Armsworthy, was ill and not able to be with the class Sunday. We wish for her a speedy recovery. Class No. 5 was more than glad to have Miss Edna Clinard, a member of the class, back with them Sunday. She has been sick for some time at her home on Davidson street.

Mrs. Stamey Clinard and small son, Clyde, who have been ill with flu at their home on Miller street, were back at Sunday school Sunday.

Tabernacle-Julian.—In the report of a few weeks ago it was intimated that there were some reasons to hope for some further parsonage improvements. This was not false hope or hope against hope, for since that writing some things have happened to make pastor and family happy, and it is believed the people are happy also. The house had never been underpinned, but recently the whole house has been given a brick underpinning, which adds much to the appearance as well as much comfort. Mr. Jack Frost may come and the winds may howl, but they do not get under my house. The underpinning suggested the idea of a storage basement and flower house. Excavating has been done and the basement wall with stone so that there is a basement, roomy and fine, to a great extent weather proof against hot or cold. Windows have been so arranged that by the basement is a fine, roomy place, with southern exposure, for the caring of flowers. In more ways than one this is quite an addition to the parsonage. This has all been done without a great outlay of expense as a great deal of the labor was donated. On Monday of this week four teams with plenty of men were on hand to remove the dirt which had been taken from the basement excavation and to clean up the yard and place sand where it was needed. When they were through our place had greatly improved.

placed in the parsonage which is a beauty and a comfort. We are wondering what these good people will do next. They certainly have been fine to us since we have been in their midst.

The appeal made by President Andrews for immediate help on Annual Conference Budget is meeting with approval with us, as both churches have set as their goal one-half of the A. C. B. by February 15. We are working to this end and it is hoped that we may be able to reach the setgoal.

Both churches are planning for good Young People's programs.

We have been greatly pleased recently to have a number of friends visit us to whom we preached in other days. Bro. Odell Brown and family and friends visited us from Welch Memorial some weeks ago. Bro. Fry and Bro. Morgan, with families, also from Welch, visited us on another day. Bro. Ratledge and Bro. Swanner, with families, from West End, visited on last Sunday. All these are of the very best of those to whom we preached at their respective charges. We are always glad to have these as well as others of our good friends visit us.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Liberty, Liberty Charge.—Today was Young People's Day in our Sabbath school and church services. Rev. F. R. Love, our pastor, brought a helpful and timely message, using as his theme "Serving Christ by Serving Man." The Scripture lesson was read from Matthew 25, and the text from verse 40: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me." The text suggests a life of service. Often we are so high-minded and independent we will not condescend to help the poor outcast. We need more of the Christ-like humility.

Mrs. John W. Curtis sweetly sang "My task." A large congregation was present, for which we are very grateful. A sister of Mrs. John W. Curtis, Mrs. Irene Albertson, of High Point, worshipped with us the third Sunday.

At the evening service the pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," was presented by the young people of the Christian Enedavor Society, under the direction of the pastor. It was gratifying to see the interest and the co-operation manifested on the part of our young people.

Miss Bertha Mae Sfith was leader of the Christian Endeavor program Sunday night, January 15th, the topic being "How Unselfish Should We Be?"

The Woman's Auxiliary met in the church Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. F. A. Shepard, president, presiding.

Circle No. 2 will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. B. York as hostess.

Circle No. 1 will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. B. J. Gregerson as hostess.

Mrs. Mamie Smith has our sympathy in the loss of her sister, Miss Lula Patterson, by death.

Our church and community was again saddened by the death of Mr. J. Gaston Stockard on January 12. His wife, nee Miss Laura Moore, one son, Donald, a former student of High Point College, and two daughters, Phoebe and Emily, and two sisters, J. O. Overman and Mrs. E. P. Dixon, still survive. They have our sympathy in their bereavement.

Miss Helen Isley has secured a position as stenographer for the Liberty Hosiery Mill Company.

Mrs. Wade Hardin, nee Miss Myrtle Shepard, who has been teaching art at Siler City for the past two years, still continues her work there, and has painted a large curtain drapery for the church at Siler City, a divinely beautiful work of art.

Rev. and Mrs. F. R. Love and small son, "Bobby," and Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Holt were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Shepard and Miss Bertine Shepard Wednesday.

We would like to see an article written by Mr. Millaway again. When the Herald arrives in our home the first question by father and mother is: "Is there a piece by Mr. Millaway?" He was our beloved pastor for a number of years. We would greatly enjoy an article by Mr. Lowdermilk and Mr. Ashburn and Mr. Lindley, whom we haven't read an article from in some time. How can any Methodist Protestant home afford to do without our Herald?

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Henderson, Sunday morning delivered a wonderful sermon for us; we were glad indeed to see so many present.

Our Sunday school is getting along just fine. We are proud to see so many new faces. We have entered a contest with two of our sister churches, Stallings and Antioch. We see by entering this contest there has been much improvement made in attendance for the first two Sundays. We are wishing to see our attendance much larger. We hope to have 100 or more on roll at the end of this contest. We are striving to be on the winning side.

Our Christian Endeavor is still getting along just fine, with still more new members joining. We have been invited to carry a program to Weddington M. E. church, which we wish to do as soon as possible, for we are always glad to accept an invitation to worship with other churches, and we are always glad to have other churches worship with us.

There are a few cases of flu in our community; we hope that it will soon doe down and not any more will have it. We are always glad to see the nice weather which we have been having.

Best regards to the Herald and all its readers. BESSIE DEESE, Reporter.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge.—Having recently been appointed to the office of press reporter for this church, I will in my feeble manner endeavor to report the activities of this work from time to time.

Our Sunday school is moving on nicely under the leadership of Mr. L. K. Routh. Due to rainy weather, our attendance has not been when we would like, but our attendance today showed a record of increase which looks very much encouraging to us. We are hoping during the approaching spring and summer to build up a larger attendance. Mrs. Roy Davis, teacher of one of our Primary classes, has arranged for her class to open Sunday school next Sunday. We hope that we may have a good attendance.

Our pastor, Brother Suits, filled his regular appointment today at 11 o'clock. He preached another one of his interesting sermons, with a very large congregation present. We had several visiting members from other churches which we were very glad to have worship with us. I feel sure that all present enjoyed the splendid message that Brother Suits delivered to us. We are very glad to have him back for our pastor. We feel that we had a good year last year and we are hoping to do even greater work this year.

We are glad to report that Mrs. J. W. Brower, one of our members, is back at home again after undergoing an operation at the Clinic Hospital. We wish for her a speedy recovery, and trust that she may soon be able to attend church again.

MRS. HOBART LINEBERRY, Reporter.

Calvary.—Although the readers of the Herald have not had a report from Calvary in several weeks, we haven't been sleeping by any means. Our pastor has been giving us wonderful sermons all the while. Service was suspended on Sunday night, January 15, so that Dr. Bates could deliver the Baccalaureate sermon to the Seniors of Greensboro High School. Several prayer meetings were given over to the Ham-Ramsay meeting.

This next Sunday is to be set aside as Young People's Day. A sermon in the morning will be dedicated especially to the young people, and "The Legend Beautiful," a pageant, will be presented by the young people of the church instead of the usual evening service.

Our pastor with Dr. R. M. Andrews attended the Interracial Commission meeting in Raleigh this past week. While in that city they called on one of our church members, Mr. Clem Campbell, who with his wife and baby has established residence there.

We are indeed glad to report that Mr. Howard R. Neece has sufficiently recuperated from a serious illness of several weeks' duration to be up and out again. Quite a few of our people have been ill and several are still convalescent. Best wishes for a speedy recovery is extended to all of them, especially to little Virgie Wall, who has been in bed with flu and pneumonia since the week before Christmas.

The Woman's Auxiliary has obligated itself to make the yearly payments with interest on the parsonage debt. This seems to be quite an undertaking for the women, but their work in the years past has proven their strength for just such big things.

A reorganization of the Men's Brotherhood will be attempted Friday night of this week at the church hut. Circle No. 2 will serve supper, cafeteria style, at that time. All members of the church and their friends are invited to attend this supper from 6 to 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Bates is to be hostess at a buffet supper for the "Annie Forrest" and Business Girls' circles at their February meeting. A silver or silent offering will be taken as a means of adding to their respective budgets. Every member of both circles is urged to be present.

Clothing and Other Gifts

A Friend, Washington, D. C., 4 nursery books and 1 game for little children.

We are thankful for all these gifts. We note especially the personal gifts of Bro. D. A. Fishel and his good daughter, Miss Pearl. These good friends send similar gifts around the Christmas holidays each year.

Also please note the gift of Biltmore Homespun. This includes yards and yards of the very best materials for suits for our boys and coats for our girls. This is the largest gift we have received for some time. May the dear Lord bless and prosper all who have contributed.

Just Ahead

Just around the corner comes February, and during February of each year we have to put in a car load of coal. It will cost around $250.00 to $300.00, counting the freight. Then just beyond that, fertilizers and seeds must be had for spring planting. Please bear these things in mind in making your February offerings.

Can It Be Done and Will It Be Done?

The Annual Conference directed pastors to mail to the superintendent of the Home the names and addresses of societies for each local church. Six pastors have done this. You can help the Home very greatly by doing this at once. Pastors who read this will please get a post card and mail me these names and addresses by RETURN MAIL. Please do! I thank you.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

enjoyed a depression party at home of Mrs. Willis Booth this past week. The party was in connection with the rgular monthly meeting of the class. Everything was carried out in true depression style, from the costumes to refreshments.

We were glad to see Dr. J. F. McCulloch in the congregation this past Sunday. It is always good to see him there, and we sincerely hope that his health will permit him to continue to occupy his accustomed place.

We are both happy and proud to congratulate two of our own High School graduates: Miss Rebecca Coble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Coble, and Miss Mary Margaret Bates, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Bates. These young ladies graduated January 20 from the local High School. Both are to be commended on their accomplishments and fine school spirit. Miss Mary Margaret had quite a few honors conferred on her. Besides receiving a silver pin for good scholarship, she also received the Civitan loving cup for the best essay on "Citizenship." She was a member of both "Quill and Scroll" and Torchlight societies. Our hearty congratulations go to the proud parents also and best wishes for every happiness and success through life to their daughters.

Winston-Salem, First.—At the 5 o'clock vespers yesterday the speaker was Dr. S. D. Gordon, the internationally known lecturer and writer, author of the Quiet Talks. Our people were more than delighted with this wonderful man. Dr. Gordon, who has been living in New York City for a number of years, has bought a home and moved here.

The attendance at all the services yesterday was especially good.

Our reporter, Miss Pauline Branson, who has been sick for the past ten weeks, is still in the city hospital, but is making some progress now.

Mr. N. F. Carroll, one of our most faithful members, has recently been bereaved on account of the death of his mother near Reidsville.

On Thursday evening of last week one of the circles of our church sponsored an old-time spelling bee in the social room of the church. This proved to be quite a success. Mrs. Howard Barnes seems to have been the champion speller, as she did not mis-spell a word during the evening. The folks are clamoring for another one.

The young people will have charge of the Vesper services next Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Beginning with the first Sunday in February, our Sunday school will put on an attendance record. The entire enrollment of the school will be cosidered on the honor roll at the beginning. From Sunday to Sunday the names will be read out of all those who have missed a Sunday and their names will come off the honor roll, the object being to see how many can keep on the honor roll for three months.

Our slogan for this year is, "More than last year." J. E. PRITCHARD.

WOMEN ASKED TO COME TO THE RESCUE

No stronger appeal has come to the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work than this, which comes from the Board of Church Extension for our North Carolina Conference Budget. There is urgent need for $1,000 by the middle of February and every Woman's Auxiliary is requested to make a donation which will be credited on the local church budget. A recent report of Dr. George R. Brown, Conference treasurer, is additional reason for immediate response. Our women have never failed to meet emergencies as they have arisen, and will not now Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the North Carolina Conference, endorses the appeal and joins me in the request for the co-operation of the Women's Auxiliaries.

Very truly,

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Childres

Little Elden James Childres, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Childres, died December 19, 1932. Age 14 months, 19 days. Funeral service was conducted December 21, at Shady Grove, by Rev. L. S. Helms, and Rev. Plyler.

Those of us who have given up our babies, and loved ones, can sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Childres in their bereavement.

May God bless them and help them to walk closer to Him. RUTH AIKEN.

Cullom

George William Squire Cullom was born January 5, 1870, and departed this life December 22, 1932. Surviving are his wife, 7 children, and one grandchild. The names of the children are as follows: sons, Willie, Roy, Jimmie, and Richard; daughters, Anna Lue, Stella, and Mattie Ree.

Mr. Cullom was a faithful member of Hawkins Chapel church from a boy, from which church he will be greatly missed. The funeral was conducted by the writer, at his home, in the presence of a host of friends and relatives. The remains were laid to rest in the family cemetery not far from the home. We extend our tenderest sympathies to the bereaved ones. P. E. BINGHAM.

Mammon and His Worshipers

Upon his throne great Mammon sat,
In splendor decked and robed in fat.
His throne was large and lifted up,
He held in hand a drinking cup.

And as he drank he maudlin grew
And urged his men that they drink too;
A thousand times they drank his health,
He promised them unbounded wealth.

His empire stretched from shore to shore
And would be his till time was o'er:
He gave of all to whom he would
And who had most had greatest good.

His men were moved, the throng was stirred,
And such a roar was never heard:
A million times each nation cried,
We'll have the most or Mammon lied!

Thus Mammon's program won the day
And men had all the price to pay;
Today we see the peoples poor,
Like scattered sheep on mountain moor.

The Lord's Acre

Since "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof," why speak of "The Lord's Acre?" It is the name of a method for individuals and churches to meet their financial obligation in kingdom service. The full name is "The Lord's Acre Plan."

This plan, if worked, helps to do three things: First, it is acknowledgment of the fact that we understand that the earth is His, not ours, hence we will use a portion of it directly to extend His kingdom. Second, it gives a person, without recognized income, an opportunity to contribute something of his own earning toward extending the kingdom. Third, it helps to get the money the church so much needs.

The plan is: An individual or, in some instances, a small group of individuals, sets aside a plot of ground, an acre more or less, to cultivate in any crop desired and turn the entire proceeds from the crop into the church treasury.

Or, if preferred, an animal, as a pig or a calf, may, instead of a plot of ground be designated and when grown into sufficient value, sold and the proceeds turned into the church treasury. Or it may be a chicken or other fowl.

The plan is especially suited to churches in rural districts as in villages or towns where vacant lots are available. Any man or woman, boy or girl under supervision may work it successfully.

This plan is not a theory but a plan tested and found workable, growing in extent and popularity in sections where put into operation, as in the western part of this state and portions of South Carolina. A church near Anderson, S. C., of 78 members, an enrollment in Sunday School of 50, has 57 persons—men, women, boys, girls—engaged in projects under the plan. This church reports as part of the result an increase of attendance at church and Sunday School and the interest of the young people quickened in church activities.

Any person interested in the plan may write Rev. Durmont Clarke, care "The Farmer's Federation News," Asheville, N. C., enclosing stamp. Rev. Mr. Clarke is director of the Religious Department of the above named paper, and fostering this plan. T. M. Johnson.

That Church Register (Class Book)

Why our people should call a church register a class book is a question to be discussed under another subject. The subject here to be discussed is the keeping of this book. Pardon the writer when he claims that he has made a considerable study of church registers both of our own and those of a number of other denominations and he has found none better or even as good as our own. The old one was good but the one recently published is far better than any he has ever examined. Each church should have one. The experience with a large number of books with many and sundry kinds of keeps, much of which has been heterogeneous conglomeration has led to the conclusion that something should be said on this subject. With this in mind some suggestions are here being offered. Pardon the presumption.

Every church should have its own register even though there be more than one church to the charge. Many a church has lost its valuable records because of a combination circuit register and these records have gone with the change of boundaries. The registers should be kept by the pastor. But the word KEPT should here have its full meaning. We cannot all be big preachers commanding big pastorates and big salaries but any preacher should be able to master the page of directions found in the front of the register and be able to correctly keep a church register. In too many cases each pastor conforms to his own idea and plan about the register which might be all right were he to always be pastor of that church. But to the next man these ideas would not be known and they would mean nothing. We should ALL do the thing in the same way. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS IN THE BOOK. In many registers are found checks, figures, and marks of various kinds which perhaps meant something to the one who put them there but mean nothing or worse to those who follow and must deal with these things. But they do mean that such books are marred and in many cases ruined. Every pastor should have his own private pocket manual with a complete list of his members. This he should mark and check to his own delight but never should be abuse the church register which is not his property. It does not mean much effort or time for a pastor to make entries complete and full. Write the name in full, fill the columns how the member comes into the church and when he comes in and if he leaves the church when and how. This gives this member a complete record. But if the entry is made only by halves that record is awkward and incomplete. Never use dots or dittoes. The man who makes the dot may know what it means but in years it might not be known whether it is a ditto or some other dot or blur. The names of ladies should be given in full. When married a hyphen should follow her maiden name and the sir name of her husband attached. Then in parenthesis following should appear Mrs. with initials of the husband. With this plan any one would know what lady is meant by a certain name. The register should never be transcribed when it means leaving off the names of those who are dead or inactive. This means that sooner or later these names with their records will be lost. There are plenty of churches that have produced ministers or other useful persons which have no record to show that these persons have ever been members of said church. But there are churches where well-kept records have become very valuable in more ways than one. The reasons usually given for revising are about two. One to get rid of checks, marks, blurs, etc. The other to get rid of the large list of names that usually runs up during the years. The first should be no problem as these eye sores have no place on the pages. The other is overcome by the double entry plan provided for in our new register. From the organization of the church names should be entered chronologically, each name being given a consecutive number. Then these names are to be enterd alphabetically on pages provided and so arranged. The same number appearing by the name in the chronological list should be placed by name in the alphabetical list. When a name is wanted go first to the alphabetical list and get the number which will direct you to that number and name in the chronological list. It only means proper entries and then leave these entries alone. Baptisms and marriages should be carefully recorded. In the new register there are provisions for a summary of what is done during the year. There is a blank for each of fifty years. All these records are valuable and we should care for them.

Our people should be taught to appreciate the proper keeping of a church register. One of the best ways to create this interest and appreciation is to have a number of persons designated, class leaders preferable, to go over the book every year and report to the church. Others of course should be given privilege of inspection at pleasure.

Now finally I have come to the conclusion that in our conference course of instruction a study of the church register should be introduced. And I herewith offer my services as instructor. More presumption. GEO. L. CURRY.

THE WORKS ARE EXCELLENT

Some years ago—perhaps ten—my watch gave out. I went to a jeweler to trade it in toward a new one that would last me the rest of my days.

''I have here the works of a Howard watch, almost new,'' he said to me. ''It is one of the best watches made. You may have it for fifteen dollars. A case need not cost much, and it should do good service as long as you live.''

The owner of the watch had recently died, and his widow brought it in to exchange for a wrist watch. The jeweler showed her a $40.00 one that pleased her, and she went away with it, well satisfied. The old one was of unusually large size, housed in a solid gold hunting-case. He afterwards told me that he sent the case away and received $75.00 for it. He thought that the watch must have cost at least $150.00.

I had him put the works into a one dollar open-faced nickle case—this reduced the size and weight, and no pick-pocket would be reaching for a watch enclosed in such a case.

Something more than a year ago this watch fell and had to go to the repair man. It kept good time after this visit, except that occasionally it would stop. I took it back, but the trouble could not be located. Blowing out a little dust and tightening the case, he handed it back to me. I soon noticed that when I left it on the table through the night, it sometimes stopped, so I hung it at the head of my bed. Lately I observed that it did not always tick with the same sound—occasionally developing a decided knock, that did not please me.

A few nights ago I was visiting some friends in whose home lives a crippled young man who does a little watch repairing. He took a look at mine. Opening it up, he took out the hair-spring, the balance-wheel, and some other parts. Everything seemed to be all right. ''It is likely that there is something wrong with a jewel out of sight—it may be cracked or broken. It will be necessary to take the works all down in order to find it.''

Having paid the down-town jeweler for the repairs, my young friend thought it would be better to take it to him to be gone over again thoroughly. As he was replacing the parts he had removed, he exclaimed: ''Here's the trouble.'' He then called my attention to a small screw that had lost its head. This failure of a screw to hold had allowed a jewel to slip a little, which caused a pinion to wabble, and queered the whole works. Now, ''Everything is goin' to be all right.'' The works are excellent, the adjustments have been made, and the watch will serve for many a day.

Mary P.

I know a woman here in Washington—an Irish Roman Catholic. Some forty years ago she was married to an American Protestant—though he was not a member of any church. A protestant minister married them; and this woman, with strong religious convictions and feelings, attended a Protestant church—expecting to follow her husband's faith. But she didn't understand the service very well, didn't get hold of that way of preaching and praying—it was all so' different from what she had been accustomed to, her thoughts and feelings didn't run well in those grooves.

As her husband seldom went with her, she finally gave up trying to be a Protestant and drifted back to the Catholic church. There she finds a way of worship and a line of thinking familiar to her and her ancestors through many generations. She enjoys the church, and thinks she is in perfect harmony with all its beliefs and practices—though a friend, who knows her very well, thinks she has been much broadened and improved by her Protestant contacts.

There was one child by this marriage, a daughter, Mary P. Mary was brought up in a Protestant Sunday School, went to young people's meetings, became a member of the church, and is a loyal worker and supporter. She has a husband and two children—the children growing up in the church and Sunday School of their parents. For eight years this husband has been unable to work, and is not likely ever to be any better. On the shoulders of Mary P. rests the entire responsibility for the support of this family. I see her a few minutes every week or two. Her eyes are bright, her voice and laugh are cheery, her mind is clean and wholesome—and she smilingly carries her burdens without burdening others.

I am sure there are some mighty good "works" in the insides of this group of people. They may not always think and walk in the grooves that satisfy all their friends, nor see things as some of us do, nor always keep step with each other in minor matters, but they are all children of the King—and I am glad to number them among my friends.

Julia S.

I used to hold services on Sunday nights in a church on an island in the Potomac river. Many people from Washington, and other cities, had summer cottages on the island, or on the main-land. A retired physician from Washington had such a cottage, and was often seen in the church services. I knew that his daughter had a cottage next to that of her father, but I had never seen her, and did not know a single thing about her.

One Sunday I went to the island for dinner. A son of the family, who worked in Washington, was there—having brought Julia S. in her car. When dinner was about ready, he said he would drive to her cottage and bring Julia S. over to eat with us.

As she came into the dining room, I was really shocked. This woman was housed in one of the most broken and deformed bodies I have ever seen. She moved with the aid of two crutches. She was very short, for her back was humped, her chest was caved in, her legs bent and twisted, and her shapeless feet almost entirely helpless. Her arms were like slender pipestems, and her fingers clasped the crutches like bird's claws. But her eyes were fine and beautiful, and her mouth—though thin and somewhat drawn—was unusually expressive.

She was seated next to me at dinner. Did I have a good time? I'll say I did, and so did every one else at the table. Was I sorry for her? Was she sorry for herself? There were no indications of anything of the kind. Her mind was clear and active. Her sense of humor, her reactions to ideas, and her sallies of all sorts were delightful. Her afflictions were not referred to by any one in any way—the time passing pleasantly on a high plane of gracious and joyous fellowship.

There had been great pain, I was later told, during the early stages of the attack and development of the trouble what wonderful accuracy and beauty they must be fulfilling had not suffered so much. For the two years previous to this visit with her, she had held a good position in one of the departments of the Federal Government in Washington. She is self-supporting and lives a good and useful and happy life.

I often marvel at what must be the excellent condition of the internal "works" of her heart and mind. How admirably the parts must be fitted to each other, how well oiled, and with what wonderful acuracy and beauty they must be fulfilling their functions. What a triumph of spirit over flesh!

After all, it is the mind that is the man. What we think and feel, what we are interested in and what we love, are the most important elements in the make-up of our characters and lives. Can't we impress this upon our children? And upon the young all about us? Isn't it well that in these days we are being driven back to realities and the great essentials? I, for one, am looking forward to seeing, in the coming years, a world made richer and better because of the afflictions through which we have been passing since 1929—or, rather, because of the way in which the spirits of men and women have taken hold of the adverse conditions and events of these trying years, and subdued them to holy uses.

> "Lead us, O Father, to thy heav'nly rest,
> However rough and steep the pathway be,
> Through joy or sorrow, as thou deemest best,
> Until our lives are perfected in thee."

AN APPEAL TO THE CHURCH

We, the undersigned representatives of the Educational Institutions and program of the Methodist Protestant church, earnestly call upon all the constituency of the church to give thoughtful and prayerful consideration to the following conclusions which we have reached after mature deliberation.

I. The Present Situation

We call upon pastors, church officials and the laity in general to face with us the appalling fact that our educational institutions and Young People's Work are in dire peril and that our whole educational program is being jeopardized by the situation that confronts us.

Unless there can and does come immediate and sufficient relief, some of our colleges face the bitter prospect of having to close their doors. Such a result would not only set back our educational program beyond any hope of recovery but would likewise so shatter the morale of our people that every other interest would immeasurably suffer and every other agency be impaired for Kingdom service.

After more than fifty years of our century of existence as a church, we have succeeded in building and operating a Seminary and four colleges, representing more than three and one-half million dollars of investment. We are serving in our schools the Youth of our homeland to the number of 1500 a year. In these institutions are trained our ministers, teachers, missionaries, and lay leaders. These institutions are giving character, vision and loyalty to all phases of our work. Through the Department of Young People's Work we are serving 1000 Christian Endeavor Societies, 2000 Sunday Schools, with a combined membership of more than 200,000 and bringing together in our Leadership Training Schools approximately 2000 each summer. Shall such work die by financial starvation because a sufficient amount of the benevolences of our people are not reaching these interests and through them serving the cause of Christian Education? Actually this is what is taking place. Therefore, we are impelled by the responsibility resting upon us, by virtue of our respective positions, to make urgent appeal to our people for funds to save our educational work.

II. Why the Dire Need

Our only approach to the General benevolences of our people is through the Board of Christian Education by way of the General Conference Budget. We are convinced that the report of the Finance Committee of the last General Conference intended in spirit and as adopted did provide for a more adequate support through the distribution of all monies actually raised on the World Service Budget.

The present method of distribution, therefore, without equalization of the budget, since designations are given the right of way, prevents this more adequate support which the General Conference purposed to give to our institutions and Young People's Work. To illustrate: From May 1 to January 1 the total distributable receipts on World Service Budget were $55,673.41. Of this total the Board of Christian Education received only $14,454, approximately twenty-five per cent. This definitely shows what is now taking place.

III. Our Appeal

The only relief that can come in this emergency is that churches and women's auxiliaries, desiring as we believe to put their support and gifts behind the whole program of the church—expressed in the World Service Budget—shall use care to see to it that monies shall be designated for the Board of Christian Education so that at least the 67—33 ratio in contributions, as adopted by the General Conference, shall prevail. Only as this is done will our educational institutions and Young People's Work be cared for in such way as shall forestall the collapse that now actually faces our program.

We must have our institutions. We must train our Youth. We must conserve our life if we would serve.

Hence, our appeal. Relying on the necessity of the occasion and the reasonableness of our position, we send this message to the Church.

—Abraham Lincoln said: "I do not belong to the Republican Party; I support the Republican Party. I will continue to support the Republican Party as long as it is right and I will leave it when it goes wrong." It was for that reason that Abraham Lincoln left the Whig and supported the minority Republican Party of his time; otherwise there never would have been a successful Republican Party.—The Civic Bulletin.

"THROW OUT THE LIFE LINE"

Rev. E. S. Ufford was born in 1851 in Newark, New Jersey. In early years he pastored several Baptist churches in Maine and Massachusetts, but in later life devoted his time mostly to lecturing and evangelism.

The inspiration for the words of this song came to him while listening to an account of a shipwreck near Boston, and seeing the drill of the crew at the life-saving station. He heard the captain call, "Throw out the life-line" and going to his home he penciled the following lines:

There is a brother whom some one should save;
Somebody's brother! Oh, who then will dare
To throw out the life-line his peril to share?

Throw out the life-line with hand quick and strong,
Why do you tarry, why linger so long?
See! He is sinking: Oh, hasten today
And out with the life-boat; away, then, away!

Throw out the life-line to danger-fraught men,
Sinking in anguish where you've never been;
Winds of temptation and billows of woe
Will soon hurl them out where the dark waters flow.

Soon will the season of rescue be o'er,
Soon will they drift to eternity's shore;
Haste, then, my brother, no time for delay,
But throw out the life-line and save them today.

He sat down at his instrument and played an appropriate melody. In about fifteen minutes the song was completed.

In 1888 it was published in sheet music form. Later it was purchased by Ira D. Sankey, harmonized by Mr. Stebbins and published in Winnowed Songs in 1890. It has long been a favorite with singing seamen and in revival meetigs.

When Dr. Theodore Cuyler heard Mr. Sankey sing it he said, "There is more electricity in that song than in any other I have ever heard."

The following incident is only one of the many in which this Gospel song has been used in bringing souls to the Saviour. "One evening in a city in Pennsylvania, when a group of men were sitting in their club-room drinking and smoking and playing cards, they heard the voice of a lady singing the verses of this song, and a chime of mingled voices joined in the chorus. A room in the building had been rented for religious meetings, and that night was the opening meeting. Quietness settled on the gamblers and one of them said: "If what they are singing is right, then we are wrong." They left their club-room and went home; never to gather as they had before. The man who told the story years after to Mr. Ufford said: " 'Throw out the life-line' broke up the club."

Oh, that we, as Christians, might catch the sentiment of this song and let it burn into our hearts until we will get a vision of ship-wrecked souls perishing without hope unless we "Throw out the life-line" to them.—The P. H. Advocate.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

January and February—Apportionment for High Point College to be raised.

February, Second Sunday—Annual Thank-offering service, Woman's Auxiliary.

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

The First Quarter

Strictly speaking the work of the first quarter ends about the middle of February; we are fixing the date as the fifteenth. If all our church officials will try to tabulate the results of this quarter's activities; services held, accessions to the church, amount of money raised for each purpose, etc., and pass it on to the congregation, it might be an incentive to larger and fuller activity on the part of the membership. I happen to know that one of our pastors, there may be several of them, who keep a record of the attendance upon the worship services each Sunday and the attendance at Sunday School. This may cause stronger desire in the pastor's heart to increase these attendance records; it has in this particular case, we think. In fact, every church should try to arrange its work of the year so that it shall be done before the end of the year. Too many of us are just overwhelmed by what remains to be done to complete the year's work, late in October, often.

Even the amount to be raised in a large budget can be considerably lessened by weekly offerings from the congregation without impoverishing any one. This method is likewise being employed by several of our churches.

And if all our pastors shall be ready to make their quarterly reports at the Area Council meeting nearest to him and let us have them then, we can take these reports and reveal the results of the first three months's activities of our annual conference in our letters. Be sure to keep an exact record when the event occurs and a few weeks will reveal what is really being done or not done.

The Layman's Fellowship Conference

The last session of our annual conference took definite action regarding such an organization. A plan was outlined, see Journal page 56, a president, Mr. J. B. Hicks, was chosen and chairmen for each district were chosen also.

Just what this organization shall mean must be determined by what we shall do with it. If it is taken as a means to accomplish a worthy end, a fuller enlistment of the men of our church, it will be worth all the effort we shall put into it. For there is an obvious need of just this sort of thing. Our women are doing a great work through their organization, but it seems that our men assume that since they are members of the church there is no need of doing anything else with themselves except to listen to preaching and pay their assessments. As I understand this organization, it has fine capabilities in it. If made to serve the church faithfully, it will give a good account of itself within the next few years. It is too bad that we think of our church as being a great church for laymen and yet do so little with them; or that they do so little with the church.

The Conference Journal

Now that we have in our hands a record of what we did and of some things we said at Burlington, we might draw certain conclusions from it all. I think most of us appreciate the efforts of the publisher to reduce the size of the Journal within possible cost. It is a day when we hear much about balancing the budget. We ought to be able to print a Journal for twenty-five cents. It could be larger if more copies were sold, without increasing the cost per copy. But with all due regard to the most interested ones among us, the Journal is not published as a bit of literature so much as a tabulation of the acts, the purposes and wishes of the church as it plans its work. These records should be kept inviolate for in them is enshrined the records of the laborers who loved the church most; they must not be forgotten. But we ought to find a way to get our Journal for twenty-five cents, if that is to be the price of it, and we ought also to get it earlier, if there is any possibility of doing it. We do not know what can be done in either matter, but it is something for us to think about.

First Church, High Point, Rev. R. I. Farmer, pastor—We were at this church at the 11 o'clock hour. There was present a good congregation who gave good attention to the message. This is possibly the largest city church in our denomination in this state. The church has had a substantial growth during the past decade, making nearly 60 per cent gain. It has erected a new, large house of worship which is modern in every way and but for the indebtedness which troubles them, it would be one of the happiest pastorates in the conference. It has had pastors who served unusually long periods; Dr. Dixon was there for nine years and if we mistake not Dr. Brown also served the church for the same period; the present pastor is beginning his fifth year.

The fact that it is the "college church," the church most convenient for the students of High Point College to attend, also adds responsibility to the tasks of both pastor and people. This church with its membership and program exerts a potent influence in the city. It also has without doubt one of the most enterprising church reporters in the conference; nothing that is vital to the welfare of the church escapes her attention when making her weekly reports to the HERALD.

Lebanon Church, Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., pastor—We were at this church at the evening service. There was a large congregation present; we are informed that they are accustomed to have a large congregation at the night services as well as at the morning services.

Dr. Taylor is quite happy in his work here. It is his first year with this people, of course, but already pastor and people are zealously entering upon the work of the new conference year.

Lebanon Church has a bright future. It is well situated for a congregation and it has not suffered reverses in other years which crippled its efforts at usefulness. The church as it now is, does not have a parsonage, so the pastor may have the opportunity of helping the membership in the securement of one. The church building is amply provided at present, it appears, for both Sunday School and church services. It was a great pleasure to visit this church again.

The Herald Again

The report in the Herald revealing the number of churches which have taken the special for the deficit in publishing the Herald was really few. Of course we have had bad weather which must have hindered some in this matter, but the amount requested is not impossible for any church and we hope to see the reports come in rapidly from now on.

Likewise Herald subscriptions are much needed and we believe that our people need the Herald more than the publishers of the Herald need the money, and that is saying much. What we mean, of course is, that it takes the Herald to make a North Carolina Conference Methodist Protestant intelligent about what the church in this section is doing. So come along and subscribe for the paper for your own benefit.

ALCOHOL AND AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

A friend in California wrote The Bulletin editor under date of January 5, saying: "Yesterday at a luncheon I heard Mayor Porter of Los Angeles speak. He said that his Chief of Police had reported an increase of 300 per cent in drunken driving and 200 per cent in arrests for drunkenness in that city since the repeal of the Wright State Prohibition Enforcement Act, which repeal went into effect the middle of December."

That is a tremendous increase in drunkenness in a little over two weeks after the repeal of the State Prohibition enforcement law, and if the 18th Amendment is repealed, it is going to mean an enormous increase of drunken drivers and accidets all over the country. Auto accident policies will be increased probably at least 25 per cent for that reason. They have already been increased in Massachusetts since repeal of their State Prohibition enforcement law. Thousands of people who were just ready to buy a new auto are hesitating.

We heard one man say within a week that he had made up his mind to buy a new Buick automobile, but with the probable repeal of the 18th Amendment and with the great increase of drunkenness and drunken drivers certain to follow, he had decided to postpone indefinitely the buying of a car, until he sees how things turn out.

Another man, a large manufacturer, said to The Bulletin editor that he and his family had eleven automobiles, but that if the 18th Amendment was repealed and public liquor selling came back, he would sell them all except one little car to run errands around town. He would do no more long distance driving and have no use for most of his cars. There is no question but the automobile business and the oil business are two lines of business which are going to be tremendously hit and hurt by the return of public liquor selling.

Canada had a weak Prohibition law up until 1923, when it was repealed, and a so-called State Control law was adopted. The result has been that there has been an enormous increase in drunken driving in the last ten years. In fact, as computed from official figures of the Minister of Trade and Finance at Ottawa, Canada, there has been an increase of 554 per cent in drunken driving since prohibition was repealed in that Country! If drunken drivers increase five and one-half times the present rate in this Country after Prohibition is repealed, if it should be repealed, that will wreck the automobile and oil business in America.—The Civic Bulletin.

THOSE COUNCIL MEETINGS

President Andrews is calling "Council Meetings," March 1-17, ranging from Enfield to Asheville, thus putting one or more meeting in comparatively easy reach of every church and pastor.

Each of these meetings, no doubt, will be a reservoir of information and of inspiration. Of course, in order to profit by them, pastor and people must needs tap the reservoir close up. No pipe line, that will do as well, can be laid from the meeting to the church or member back home.

Three things I want from these meetings: To find out what our President wants me as a pastor to do by way of co-operating with him in my pastorate, to find out what he wants me as chairman of the Seventh District to do by way of co-operating with him in the district, and for my people to find out what the President wants the laity to do by way of co-operating in carrying out his plans.

To this end, I want to attend two or more of the meetings. I shall urge my people to attend in as large numbers as possible, at the same time announcing a members meeting for each local church for an early date following the council meetings, in which to talk over together the matters discussed in the council meetings.

We said in the annual Conference we want our President to travel. He is giving us in these council meetings a splendid opportunity to make his traveling count for much. Will it not quicken the work and set it forward if we'll give him one hundred per cent. co-operation. I move to make it unanimous. Can I get a second?

T. M. Johnson.

OUR STORY PAGE

GUS' AND GILDA'S GAME

Gus Jones and his little sister Gilda had been taught from infancy to make the best of things, whether they were pleased or not, and because they did this, there were very few days when they went about with frowns instead of smiles on their faces. But one particular day Gus came tiptoeing into the breakfast room with never the sign of a smile on his ruddy face.

''Well—'' exclaimed his mother, ''here we are—right on the verge of your fifth birthday, and never a smile!''

''But I don't see anything to smile about this dark morning,'' answered Gus, ''and there isn't any best way.''

Mother glanced through the window just as if she hadn't already seen the dark clouds rising in the west, and the prospects of a picnic lunch in the woods wholly disappearing.

''Let's play there's a best way anyhow,'' suggested Gilda.

''But there isn't any best,'' argued Gus, ''when a picnic is knocked out.''

''Wrong again,'' called grandmother from the back door, ''for I've just thought of a lovely way to celebrate the day that seemed spoiled.''

''You always have a way of seeing bright sides when there aren't any, grandmother,'' said Gus.

''Well,'' answered the old lady softly, ''since we can't go to the Zoo in the city park, as we had planned, I'm going to invite you and Gilda to come into my apartment at noon and just pretend we're all at the Zoo.''

''How can we pretend we are at the Zoo,'' Gus asked slowly, ''when we're ten miles away?''

''I've figured that out, too,'' answered the old lady. Suddenly remembering how fond Gus happened to be of riding a pony—''Just make-believe that the old rail fence is a pony, and that I am ten miles away, and to get there you and Gilda will have to ride.''

''And I'll bring a basket of sandwiches that mother has already made for us,'' put in Gilda.

Instantly Gus lifted his head and his eyes began to twinkle. With everybody playing the game, he couldn't help but feel inclined to do the same thing, and presently he, too, was making plans for the make-believe journey as happily as little Gilda, and 'ere long they were astride the old rail fence and clucking as noisily as if they were actually riding Frisky, their own pet pony.

On Gilda's arm hung a basket of nice sandwiches, and even though the skies were still gray, they felt very much like laughing.

Finally they decided they had ridden quite ten miles, and Gus called, ''Whoa!'' to the imaginary steed, and a few minutes later they were trudging into grandmother's kitchen, and the next instant shouts of laughter were filling the small room. For on the kitchen table, all lined up like a regular circus parade, were every animal that Gus and Gilda knew by name in the Zoo. Of course they were made of cardboard and tinted with colored crayons, but animals they were, at any rate, and Gus and Gilda shouted with laughter over them.

And then grandmother humoring the joke, began with the camel that headed the line, and told a story about each one in the procession, and then she invited the children to follow her into the dining-room, where a nice picnic lunch was already spread on a big, green rug instead of the table.

Just for a moment Gus stood looking at his grandmother in surprise, and then his arms went around her neck in a regular bear-hug fashion.

''Please excuse me, grandmother,'' he said softly, ''for losing sight of the best way; of course there is always a best way out of everything, and I'll never, never forget it.''

And true to his word, he didn't, and because the children were so happy and so anxious to run back and tell their precious mother of what a lovely surprise they had found, they didn't take the trouble to even pretend it was ten miles between houses—they simply left the rope bridle on the make-believe pony, and covered the distance between back-doors in the wink of an eye.—Olive Plants.

"PRAYING DICK"

Some of the railroad men declared it was only a fortunate accident; but others, even some of the wickedest, always insisted that it was a providence. As for Praying Dick, he would only say, ''That's the way it was,'' and never tried to explain it.

Dick Cameron, known to the other railroad men on the Missouri division of the A. T. & S. F. Railroad as Praying Dick, was day operator at .... In fact, he was the only operator at............, and also agent. He went on duty at 6 o'clock in the morning, and worked till half past seven in the evening, selling tickets, handling freight, baggage, and express, and doing all the telegraphing.

..........was a very sorry sort of a place; a little rain-splashed, sun-burned town of fewer than two hundred people. It was situated near the bank of a torpid, dirty river, and most of its inhabitants were of that class contemptuously referred to as ''river rats.'' There was not a church in town, and only one Sunday School, which met Sunday afternoons, as that was the only time that Cameron, the superintendent, could leave the depot.

It was his interest in this Sunday School, together with the constant appearance near his telegraph keys of a well-worn Bible, from which he sometimes sent messages over the wires when business was slack, that gave him his nickname.

The dispatchers sat at their keys in the railroad building at Mayfield, headquarters for the Missouri division. It was a pleasant May night. And a vagrant breeze wandered in through some open window and stirred the sheets on the dispatchers' table. One of the dispatchers relaxed for a moment, and yawned. Everything was running smoothly. The limited was on time, and there was no congestion anywhere along the line.

His companion, the dispatcher handling the east end, and on whose line was now the fast California Limited, checked that train out of M.........., looked at his watch—it was exactly 2 o'clock—and turned to speak to Griffin, the night chief, who had just come up and stood leaning on the railing behind him.

Instantly the dispatcher whirled and caught the key. Quickly and sharply he asked a question of the night man at W.............., and grew deathly pale as the answer came back hastily. With nervous haste he ordered W........ off the line and called M........., the next station below.......

"Is the Limited out of the yard?" The answer fairly cracked along the wires.

"Yes," came the answer.

"Goodness! Griffin"—the dispatcher turned a ghastly face to the night chief—"There is going to be a wreck. Fool at W......forgot orders. The Limited and fast freight headed straight for each other. Get out the wrecking crew, and take every doctor in town."

The terrible news ran through the building like a shudder; and the first thought in every man's mind was of the suffering and death in store for the passengers who were sleeping securely, and of their fellow-trainmen hurrying on those two monsters to their own death.

Every man about the building who could leave his post ran up to the dispatchers' rooms. Among them was the superintendent, who had just come in on a train, and stopped at his office to leave some orders.

The dispatcher was still trying desperately to find some way to stop one of the trains. The superintendent and others, most of whom were old operators themselves, stood with drawn faces, silently reading on the wire the messages that went and came.

"For pity's sake, man," the dispatcher was saying to the operator at M.........., "Can't you reach........some way? Can't you do something?"

"Nothing," came the reply; "Station there closed at 7:30; no night telephone service; no time if there was."

The dispatcher leaned back, and breathed heavily. He took out his watch, and most of the men did likewise.

"They will meet"—he stopped as if choking for an instant—"in six or seven minutes. It will be about a mile beyond ...., on that crooked stretch of road. Nothing on earth can save them."

No one spoke, but each man watched the second hand of his watch as it crept around and around. Outside in the yards the shrill whistle of the wrecking train blew again and again, calling the crew to duty; the trainmaster was busy at the telephone calling doctors; along the platform and in the yards men paced in preparation for the rescue train.

But inside, the men stood silent, paralyzed by the horror of it, watching the seconds tick away.

One minute, two, three, four—

The dispatcher could stand the silence no longer. He caught the key, and began to abuse the operator at W......

Then some one down the line broke in. The dispatcher ceased, and stared at the key as if he saw a ghost. And every man of the scared, anxious group leaned forward in amazement. . . . .

"The Lord is merciful and gracious," the message came slowly and evenly, "slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy * * * He hath not dealt with us after our sins—"

He grabbed the key, and called frantically:—

"CG, CG, CG!"

"As a father pitieth his children—"

"CG," desperately repeated the dispatcher, and then Cameron answered his call.

"Well, well!" exclaimed the dispatcher, "That is Praying Dick."

"Red light quick—stop train," said the dispatcher.

"All O. K.," came the slow, even reply, "Freight now on siding."

Several of the men turned away, not daring to look into one another's eyes.

The relief was too great; the dispatcher's hand trembled so that he could not hold the key. The night chief stepped in, and took hold of the instrument:

"How long have you been there?" he asked of Cameron.

"About five minutes," answered Dick.

"How did you happen to be up this time of the night?"

"Don't know."

"What waked you?"

"Don't know. Just waked up, and came to the depot. Heard dispatcher talking to M............... Got out and flagged freight."

That was all the explanation he ever gave, or ever could give.

The next day, Dick Cameron, the day agent at........., got a message from the superintendent, rather an unusual one from such an officer. It read:

"Praying Dick: Shake, and accept thanks. The Auditor will be down on 14 to check you out. You take charge tomorrow as agent at W........... 'All things work together for good to them that love God.' Laney, Superintendent."—Publisher Unknown.

MAN HOLDING DOMINION

Man has been able to hold dominion over the rest of the animal creation by reason of the greater efficiency with which he has directed his energy. His greater efficiency has been due (1) to his greater knowledge of and control over the forces of nature; (2) to his greater self-discipline whereby he has subordinated his immediate but lesser interests to his more remote but larger interests; (3) to his greater sociability, whereby he has combined his efforts with those of his fellowmen and worked with them for a common purpose. Any part of the human race which possesses superior efficiency of these three kinds will be able to hold dominion over the rest of mankind as surely as over the beasts of the field, the fowls of the air, and the fish of the sea. Any part of the human race which falls behind in any of these three particulars must give way before their more productive neighbors as surely as the Indian has given way before the European. This is the law of nature, which is the law of God, to deny which is to deny that this is God's world.—Prof. T. N. Carver in The Religion Worth Having.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By W. M. HOWARD

Topic for February 12, 1933

WHEN IS FRIENDSHIP CHRISTIAN?

Scripture Text: Acts 9:26, 27; John 15:13.

Most people have a circle of acquaintances which is small which they call their special friends. It is very easy to perform acts of kindness for these of the inner circle but it becomes much harder when the circle is extended to include a great many people and, in fact the entire world. It is well to have a few choice friends which are a little nearer to your heart for the person who tries to be a good friend to everyone generally finds that he has spread friendship too thinly. It is not to be discouraged that one selects some choice acquaintances but this does not prevent him from doing friendly acts to all who need his help.

We like to share the best things which we have with our friends. One would not think of eating a box of candy without asking his friend to share in the treat. If you have found Christ the most satisfying friend and His way the best for human lives, can you keep it to yourself? It might even be advised to win the confidence of a person and become his friend so that you will have a chance to win him for Christ. Do you have a friend who does not know Christ as a personal Savior, then you have not been a true friend if you have not attemptel to win that person for the Master. No doubt you delight in taking your best friends to the theatre or inviting them to your parties, then you should take them to church, the best place to which you go. Friendship is truly Christian when it is shared with someone else.

Friendship is Christian when it reaches out in pity to all those who need help. This keeps us from restricting our firendship to a narrow group. If you meet an African on the street who needs your help, it would be unfriendly and unchristian to pass him without aiding as best you could. Christian friendship is a spirit which knows no race or bounds. The ties of the human race and of the blood of Christ have made us one and precluded all chances to exclude those who are not in our social circle. It has become a truism that "a friend in need is a friend indeed." Christ set the bounds of neighborlinss with the story of "The Good Samaritan" and the true bounds of friendship are set in the same place as the other.

True friendship springs from love. We have no valid right to set off a few persons and say that these will be my friends and that I will have nothing to do with the rest of the world. Love for all of mankind is thus demanded of us. Then what demands can this universal love make on us? Christ said, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." In other language, the best that we have, the things that we prize most are asked in true friendship. The eternal example was set by Christ when He went to the cross for the entire world. "Herein is love, not that we loved God but that Christ loved us and gave Himself for us."

What should one do when his friendship is spurned? Did you ever have people to talk about you and show hostility? If so, what action did you pursue? It is a great temptation to retaliate with the same method that your adversary used. It is human nature to want to strie back and repay in the same measure that the other man used. Christ commanded, "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you and pray for those who despitefully use you." This is the method to open a gap that will never be bridged and that prevents friendship. Out of disagreements have arisen some rich friendships because the one who was wronged responded with love. Personal experience has taught that the best method of settling a misunderstanding is to go to the other fellow and talk it over; there might not be as much hostility as you had suspected. That is Christian friendship, to agree with an adversary quickly.

Read from your history books, accounts of early American especially of pioneer days. You will read stories of co-operation in the building of nw houses and in cutting wood and in all types of work. Guests were sheltered and treated royally. These are excellent examples of Christian friendship.

Friendship is Christian then when it reaches to all who need your help and when it is willing to give all for that love. Measure your life by this standard and see if your friendship is truly Christian.

Quotable Poetry

That I can never love you overmuch:
While I love my God the most, I deem
I love Him more, so let me love you too.
Yes, as I understand it, love is such
I can not love you if I love not Him:
I can not love Him if I love not you.
—J. R. Miller.

AN OUTRAGE ON THE PUBLIC BY LIQUOR MEN

North Wilkesboro, Jan. 25.—A school bus loaded with children en route to Mt. Pleasant high school at Champion was held up for nearly four hours yesterday while three drunken men, resisted efforts to get them to move their automobile from the center of the highway so the bus could pass.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Shiloh, Liberty, one quilt and 26 pair pillow cases.

Julian Auxiliary, Tabernacle, three quilts, 24 half gallon cans fruit and vegetables, one belt, three pair suspenders, three pair pants, one pair overalls, two pair stockings, three shirts and two pieces of underwear.

We are thankful for these contributions and pray God's rich blessings upon all who contributed in any way.

Last Week's Report

Last week the report read like Maple Springs had contributed $1,000 to the Home. We are sure the good people there wish they could, but their contribution was $10.00.

Please Read

Also in last week's paper we were asking for "The names and addresses of societies for each local church." What we meant to ask for was, The names and addresses of the solicitors for each local church. The last annual conference said, and who is the conference?—"Pastors shall appoint a soliciting agent for the Home in each local church, whose duty it shall be to keep the interests of the Home before the respective congregations. See that proper announcements are made, and to solocit funds, produce and coupons; pastors to furnish the superintendent of the Home with the names and addresses of the agents." Just seven pastors have responded.

We need these names and addresses in order to do the work assigned to us. We are pleading with pastors to do this speedily.

Please get a postal card and send us the names of these helpers by an early mail. If you read this we believe you will do it.

Thank you.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West Forsyth.—The writer unintentionally omitted from the report in the Herald last week an important occasion which was staged at the parsonage a few nights before the pastor and family moved out. It was the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Pleasant Hill church, held on Tuesday night, with Mrs. Way as hostess to the meeting. The members of the organization, and others, brought a nice pounding, consisting of various articles of food. These gifts were highly appreciated, and for lack of space we will not attempt to give names, but thank each one for the donations to our pantry supplies.

Since locating in our new home at Lexington we have had the following visitors: Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, of First church, Lexington; Rev. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington; Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Hargrove and Mrs. J. J. Thomas, of Burlington; Rev. C. L. West, and Ervin West, (nephews of the pastor), of Asheboro, and other friends of Lexington.

We are pleased to report that Miss Pauline Hunter, member of Pleasant Hill church, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the City Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem, is making very satisfactory improvement, and hopes to be able to return to her home soon.

The pastor will spent next Saturday and Sunday with the people of Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches and meet the appointments at those churches on Sunday.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington.—A Rally was held Wednesday evening at 7:30 under the direction of the Council of Religious Education of the N. C. Conference of the M. P. Church. Mr. J. W. Braxton delivered a most interesting address.

The Alamance County C. E. Union meeting was held Friday evening with about 150 people present. Miss Tula Paul, president of the organization, presided. The meeting opened with the song, "Blessed Assurance." The Scripture was read by Dr. F. W. Paschall, followed by prayer led by Dr. Woody, of Graham. Miss Nettie Mae Smith, president of the C. E. Society of this church, delivered the welcome address. Before starting into the business session, Dr. Paschall, song leader, led in the singing of two good pep songs. At the concluion of this, the meeting was declared open for business. In the absence of the secretary Miss Myrtle Foushee acted as assistant secretary. Report from various committees and the superintendent were very good. One new society, First Reformed Church C. E., was represented largely at this meeting. The Pleasant Hill Society, a rural society near Liberty, won the banner for the quarter, having the largest number of points. The High Point College C. E. Society was present and gave a very interestiny and helpful program. Fine talks were made on different phases of C. E. and its work, such as "The Value of C. E.," "C. E. and Its Serfice and the Results," "Citizenship and Friendship in C. E.," "Is It Worth While to Keep C. E. Alive?" All these talks were inspiring and enthusiastic. In their group was a boys' quartet which rendered a selection. The Imperial quartet of Burlington was also present and rendered several selections. An invitation was extended to us from the First Reformed church of this city to meet with them the next quarter, which will be in April. The meeting was dismissed with the benediction. A social hour was enjoyed in the hut at which time the Imperial quartet delighted the audience with several comical selections. Refreshments were also served. The hut was attractively decorated so as to carry out the Valentine spirit. A good time and good fellowship was enjoyed by all. At the conclusion of the social hour everybody grouped together and sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," after which Dr. Paschall dismissed with prayer. Everyone left declaring they had spent a most delightful evening.

The regular services were held Sunday with the exception of the C. E. meeting and evening worship. These services were called off due to the fact that a union service was held at the First Baptist church. This service was in honor of Pastor Martin Buck, who has served as pastor of the First Baptist church for the past 20 years and is now resigning.

Albemarle.—I would appreciate your publishing this about a friend who is taking treatment at the U. S. V. Hospital at Oteen:

We are all accustomed to seeing a write-up in the paper, after the death of a friend or loved one, which is very well as far as it goes, but why wait until they are gone to let it be known how much we appreciate them? True, we must sometimes be deprived of a person's company before we fully realize their real value to us. Most especially is this so in a church member, whose interest is such that they take a part in all the activities of the church. This is the case with our friend, C. L. Hatley, better known as Lassiter; so I want to say a few words in appreciation of him, whose presence we miss so much in the church and Sunday school.

Lassiter Hatley has been our delegate to the Annual Conference several times, and has many friends throughout the state who will be interested in his welfare. His father, who died two years ago, was well known throughout the Conference as "Uncle Marshall" Hatley, and his mother, who is still with us, is affectionately known as "Aunt Lou." No more loyal and devout members has a church ever had than these two "soldiers of the Cross."

A sereve case of influenza, followed by a stubborn attack of malaria, left Lassiter in a weakened condition, and on December 10 he went to the government hospital at Oteen to take the "rest cure." Although not in the active stage, physicians advised him to take the treatment as the safest plan to prevent any further advancement of the disease. His condition is gradually improving, and his prayers, together with those of his friends and loved ones, strengthens his faith that someday soon he will again be back with his brave little wife and three lovely daughters, who carry on so heroically during his absence.

We miss Lassiter in the choir, where he was our leading bass singer, possessing as he does, an exceptionally fine bass voice. The boys of the Sunday school class of which he was teacher miss his friendly council and advice, as he came to them each Sabbath morning. The church stewards miss him as they battle against the overwhelming financial problems of the church. These, and many other places which he filled, are needing him, and we feel sure that part of his ambition to get well, is that he may be of more service to his church and his God.

If, at any time, friends or acquaintances are passing throuyh Asheville, Lassiter would be very glad to have them drop by and give him a word of cheer. He would especially appreciate a visit from the pastor of our Asheville church. His address is Cornelius L. Hatley, U. S. V. Hospital, F. 3, Oteen, N. C.

A FRIEND.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Have you read our new Conference Journal, good folks? Now, while it is new is the best time. Anything is more interesting while new, don't you think? Since there were only 12 copies distributed in our church, it will be necessary for some members to borrow a copy to read it. You may have mine for the asking. I am glad to lend it to as many as will take time to read it. It is chock full of interesting reports. It is our duty as church members to keep informed regarding the activities of our church in general and we should feel a special pride in doing this. The ex-president's message is fine. The financial reports, the full reports from the various committees are interesting. Wouldn't you like to know how many charges paid the pastor's salary in full last year? It is right there in black and white, neatly tabulated in Table IV, pages 84 and 85. Take a look at the honor roll, pages 86 and 87. See those three churches with seven stars there? Fine! Some churches have only one star. I scanned both pages carefully, I thought, and yet I could not find the name of OUR church. It is too bad. Let's resolve right now to write the name of Lebanon on that roll next fall—write it with seven stars, too! Remember that seven is a typical Bible number, and while you have "seven" in mind, tell us how many times that word "seven" occurs in the Bible.

We already have made a fine start, if I be a good judge. Our S. S. is coming on fine, prayer meetings are the best we've had for months in both attendance and interest. The other organizations have taken on new life. Spring is near, the season for growth. Let's keep growing!

I don't see how we could be satisfied to fall short of that after hearing those two wonderful sermons of Dr. Taylor's on "The Bible." These services truly were a rich benediction to the soul of a Christian. Could we only keep in mind every day his text: "I will not forget Thy Word," Psalms 119:16, we would do well. But when we consider that people of great thought who are exalted to positions of honor and trust, acknowledge it as the book in a class to itself, the holy Scriptures written by inspired authors moved by the Holy Ghost, we should be careful to devote more of our time in searching for the truth. It is ever new The most intellectual person cannot sound its depth. God has Truth locked up in His blessed Word and He doesn't unfold it all at one time. Dr. Taylor tells us that one can read the Bible through in a month by devoting two and a fraction hours per day to reading it. One can read the book of Mark in one houre and 15 minutes. Suppose some of us try that. Then allow your names to go in our report just to show we have up more interest in Bible reading.

"Every hour I read you kills a sin, or lets a virtue in that helps me fight it."

On Sunday night, January 15th, Frank W. Stephenson, D. D., secretary of the Board of Education, preached in our church to a good audience. He chose for his subject, "Is my Absolam safe?" We enjoyed this sermon very much. He emphasized the giving of Youth a chance.

We are making preparations to observe February 4th all day as Young People's Day. An interesting program will be carried out. A large congregation is expected.

Mrs. S. E. Montgomery has been appointed representative in our church for our Children's Home. Mrs. C. B. Welch is appointed representation of the Herald. Miss Loula Thacker is attempting to raise the subsidy, $10.00, for the Herald.

The second quarterly conference will be held on Wednesday night after the first Sunday in February.

The Sunshine Band has been organized with 22 charter members, Mrs. S. W. Taylor in charge.

The Ladies' Aid had a very enthusiastic meeting last week; a good attendance; fine spirit of co-operation prevailing. They have planned some interesting endeavors to be carried out from time to time, one of which is to raise a mile of pennies. Counting 16 pennies per foot, how much cash will that be?

Glad to report that many of our sick have improved. There are still a few cases of flu however, but here's hoping these balmy days will aid in breaking up that.

Kannapolis.—We are very happy to note that our church is progressing fine spiritually and in number. We feel that the young people's interest in the church is gradually falling off from neglect of recognition from the older leaders. And it is indeed a wonderful pleasure to see the leaders and pastor, Rev. Clarence Morris, of our church recognizing the young people more. Young People's Day was observed on January 29. Opening services were conducted by the Sunday school superintendent, Mr. M. W. Henderson, with various young people in complete charge. Music for Sunday school was furnished by the Senior boys and girls, teachers being Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lisk. The Sunday school boasts of 130 present with two new members added.

The young people also had complete charge of the 11 o'clock service. The Senior boys and girls also had charge of the music at this hour.

We highly commend our faithful pastor for his success in securing the speaker for this hour which we had the pleasure of hearing, Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College. He delivered a wonderful message. We were indeed glad to have him with us. We also had several visitors at this hour from our own town and from Concord, N. C. We are glad to welcome visitors at any time, and trust that these and more will come back. We assure you that you are welcome at all times. At this hour two new members were added to our church roll, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McLaurin, son of Mr. D. A. McLaurin. We truly hope these additions will prove a blessing to us and us to them.

The C. E. Society met at 5 o'clock on this date with the president, Mr. Leonard Henderson, in charge of the program. Several very interesting talks were made by the young people, members of the C. E. Society.

The Junior C. E. Society met at the same hour with Mr. Joe Dwiggins as their leader. These Juniors are doing some fine work and all seem to be real interested workers.

The 7 o'clock worship was beautifully rendered by the young people: Prayer by Mr. J. V. Dwiggins, after which the pastor delivered a beautiful talk on "The Purpose of Young People's Day;" then a wonderful talk by both Mr. Edward Sides and Mr. Eugene Henderson; these boys are lined up for a wonderful work and we trust they will continue in the works of our Master. Following these splendid talks the pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," was rendered under the direction of the following committee: Mrs. W. T. Kiser, Mrs. J. G. Lisk, and Mrs. C. B. McCommons. The following were the characters of the pageant: Mr. W. T. Kiser, the Monk; Mr. M. N. Henderson, the Vision; Mrs. Clyde Fagen, Miss Zula Carter, Miss Elva Sides, Miss Colleen Lisk, Miss Mary Frances McCommons, Miss Beatrice Cartner, Miss Edna Foxx, Mrs. J. G. Lisk, Mr. William McCommons, Mr. Leonard Henderson and Mr. Beauford Roberts, beggars.

We are very sorry indeed to note that two of our most faithful members are still unable to be with us: Mrs. N. F. Harris and Mr. C. B. McCommons. These members are missed more than we can tell and we trust that the Great Spirit of this great universe will bring them back to us soon. But since they can not be with us we trust that the Savior will hover ever near and protect them from any danger of this world's temptations.

State Street, Lexington.—Sunday being Denominational Young People's Day, Mrs. Maier conducted the 11 o'clock service. It was an hour of uplift and instruction and a challenge to all Christians to aspire to noble service and to prove in their own lives the words of the Savior: "Whosoever loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

A chicken pie supper was served in the church dining room on Saturday evening, January 21, by the Woman's Auxiliary. About $30.00 was realized which will be used to meet some of the obligations of the Auxiliary.

On Tuesday night of last week Dr. N. M. Harrison, of the faculty of High Point College, was with us to promote interest in a leadership training school here. Mrs. Maier conducted the devotionals at this meeting. At the close of the meeting plans were made for the opening of a leadership training school the first of March. Mrs. Maier is chairman of Religious Education in this district and will direct the workers of the school. We feel that this is a movement of great importance and one much needed.

On Wednesday evening Dr. Maier had charge of the regular mid-week prayer meeting and just following, the Woman's Auxiliary held their meeting.

Thursday evening the Women's Bible class held a business and social meeting in the church basement. The Men's class and all the teachers were guest of the ladies' class. After the devotional period, conducted by Mrs. C. L. Koonce, and the transaction of business, a social period was greatly enjoyed by everyone, and last, but by no means least, a delicious spread of sandwiches, cake, pickles and coffee was served in picnic style.

Next Sunday morning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed.

At the evening worship hour the Friedburg Chorus of Friedburg Moravian church of Forsyth County, will furnish vocal music for us. These fine singers have been with us before and we are looking forward to their coming again with much pleasure.

Mrs. Maier and Mrs. C. L. Koonts are today (Tuesday), attending a meeting of the executive committee of the North Carolina Branch of the Missionary Society, which is being held at the Children's Home.

The many friends of our loved Sunday school superintendent emeritus, Mr. J. W. Lindsay, were glad to know he was able to attend the class meeting Thursday night.

Creswell Charge.—We feel certain some of the Herald readers will be interested in hearing from this, the eastern outpost of Conference. We believe we are holding the line against the armies of unrighteousness. We ask your prayers that we may never give an inch to the enemy.

Our Christmas Day service at Mt. Elma was the outstanding event of the first quarter. The church was well filled at both services. At the night service we had the pleasure of an addition by reaffirmation of faith, and there was a fine response to the pastor's plea for putting away all ill will or malice onthis day of "peace on earth, goodwill to men."

We take this occasion to acknowledge generous poundings at Thanksgiving and Christmas by the Rehoboth and Mt. Hermon churches, as well as a continuous shower of good things from individual members of all the churches. Our people have been especially generous in sharing their meat at hog-killing time. One of the brethren at Mt. Elma put aside one of the 11 he killed for the preacher and salted it down for him. This, with other meat he has received, will keep the parsonage table plentifully supplied with meat this year.

We are grateful to Conference for sending us back, and to the good people of the charge for asking us back and pray that this year of our labor of love together may redound to the glory of God, the salvation of the lost and the building up of the saints in the most holy faith through the ministry of the Word.

J. C. RUSSELL, Pastor.

English Street Church, High Point.—The Sunday school was in charge of the C. E. Society this past Sunday, as this was the beginning of Christian Endeavor Week. Miss Kathleen Embler, president of the society, acted as superintendent. All classes were taught by members of the C. E. Society. Mrs. W. C. Carter preached for us at the 11 o'clock hour. She used for her text I Cor. 10:4: "And That Rock Was Christ." On Sunday afternoon the Senior C. E. Society organized a Junior Society. Misses Carrie Moore and Kathleen Embler are leaders of this group. Sunday night instead of the evening sermon a community singing was held at our church.

The National Quartet, the Spring Garden Chorus, and several other quartets made up the entire evening program.

The C. E. Society is celebrating C. E. Week. In the hut they have an exhibit of many reminders of past meetings, banquets, and social, also baby pictures of the members of the society are posted. To take care of the expenses of the week each member has made an article to put on sale. On Monday night a "Sunshine Meeting" will be held with a shut-in. Wednesday prayer service will be in charge of the C. E. Societies, the program being planned by Miss Myrtle Cates. Thursday the society will celebrate the 52nd birthday of Christian Endeavor at a picnic supper, which will be in the hut. Miss Iris Caudle is preparing the program for this night. On Sunday night, February 5, the societies will give a program in the church. A very effective service is being planned.

Mr. Frank B. Stamps is teaching a ten-night singing school at our church. The school began January 23, and will continue until February 3. The public is invited to attend this school. REPORTES.

Bethesda.—On the fourth Sunday of this month Bro. Maier brought us another wonderful message, his theme being "He setteth an end to darkness." We are very glad to have him and Mrs. Maier with us, this being his first year on this work. We feel that if we will co-operate with them we will have a good year in the Master's service.

Pastor Maier was with us again the fifth Sunday. He brought us a message which was inspiring.

We are planning to have a thank-offering program some time in February.

Since our last report death has visited our church and community and claimed the soul of Mrs. Sallie Essick Whitlow. She had been a sufferer of cancer of the stomach for a long time. She bore her suffering without a murmur. In her early life she joined Pilgrim Reformed church, later transferring her membeship to Bethesda M. P. chuch, where she remained a faithful member till death. One desire of her life was to get able to go to church to hear her new pastor. She leaves a kind husband, Mr. Edward Whitlow, five sons, Flavius, Everette, Willard, Hoey, and Voight; one daughter, Ruth; three brothers, one sister, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She passed away the 26th and funeral services were held the following day at Bethesda by her pastor, assisted by Rev. H. L. Powell, a former pastor. We feel that a good woman has gone. She will be greatly missed in her home and church and community. But may we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

MRS. D. D. BRINKLEY, Reporter.

Charlotte.—The revival service which has been held for the past two weeks closed Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hendry preached at every service to an interested people. He is an earnest, convincing speaker and many souls were won into Christ's kingdom and around 34 members were added to the church. Rev. Hendry is a zealous worker for the Master and busy in Kingdom service.

Tuesday evening there will be a barrel party at the church climaxed by a sandwich supper.

The Mecklenburg County Sunday School Convention for young people is to meet at the First M. E. church Thursday morning and afternoon business sessions with a banquet and closing session in the evening. A number of our young people have registered to attend.

The regular monthly business meeting of the C. E. will be held at the church Friday evening at 7:30; a full attendance is expected.

Several weeks ago group prayer meetings were organized for Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. It is gratifying to know many requests from various sections have been made for the meetings. Unite with us in prayer that the good work begun will continue to bless and save. REPORTER.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—We are still moving along. Mr. Williams preached the fourth and fifth Sunday afternoons. His message was wonderful. Only wish more of the young people could have been out to the service.

Plans are being made to underpin the church, and enlarge the cemetery; the work on both is needed very badly.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—Last Sunday morning, January 29, Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the North Carolina Conference for the second time, paid his official visit to First church and occupied the pulpit, delivering a "peppy" and cheerful message on the subject, "A Way Out For the Church." His text was chosen from Exodus 14:16-16, "And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Isroal that they go forward; but lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it; and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea." Dr. Andrews said that from observation as he travels to and fro over the state he is convinced that the people of the Conference are determined to shoulder their responsibility and carry on bravely and hopefully through the year. The church seems to have lost its morale. We are having an easy time compared to the early saints, who "were obliged to face wild animals in the arena." The modern saint goes forth to face a test. First, the church has lost morale by unkind citicism. We have criticized the Bible until by some people it is considered no more than Shakespeare. We have criticized our pastors, but it is futile to try to please everybody. The church has been hurt by service clubs such as Kiwanis, Rotary, Civitan, although each is a fine organization. Many men pride themselves on their record of 100 per cent attendance at the Rotary club meetings, but who boasts of a perfect record of church attendance? Then the automobile and radio have hurt church attendance. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity," and God wants us to do hard things. We must learn not to trust to material things, but go back to the old order. This is no time for Christians to give up. Since we must keep the church open, let us keep on with our jobs; gird ourselves and put on the breastplate of faith. We need a new attitude toward the church, the Bible, and the pastor. We must get out of the slough of despond; renew our allegiance to Jesus and the church with hope, faith, courage, and sacrificial service. Let's be practical, and stop spending more on confectioneries than on education, and less on the movies and give more to the church.

The Young People's C. E. Society held its weekly meeting on Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, with Robert Rankin leader. The Senior Society, which has changed the hour of meeting, assembled Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. W. L. Albertson leader.

The Wednesday evening prayer and praise service will be conducted at the church, sponsored by the two Christian Endeavor Societies.

Next Sunday morning, February5, Holy Communion will be observed, and will be followed by quarterly conference on the subrequent Wednesday. On Tuesday, February 7, the stewards will hold an important meeting.

At a meeting on last Saturday at Belmont, N. C. State executive officials decided to convene the annual state C. E. Convention on June 12th, 1933, at High Point College for a four-day session. Attending this conference from High Point were Rev. Roy I. Farmer, Misses Ida Guyer and Mabel Griffith. Mr. Luther Medlin, of this city, who teachers in Belmont High School, is president of the State Association, and had prepared special music and other features, including a banquet at the Belmont Hotel and a tour of inspection through Belmont Abbey, the well-known Catholic school. An effort is being made to secure a nationally-known speaker for the Annual Convention here next June.

Next Sunday evening, February 5, Young People's Day will be observed at 7:30 o'clock, and the pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," by Miss Dorothy Elderdice of Westminster, Md., will be presented by a group of young people as the close of the nation-wide C. E. Week.

Mr. John J. Mangan, veteran of the World War, died at his home, 1112 English street, last Tuesday afternoon, January 24, after an illness of several years' duration. He is survived by a widow, who was beforemarriage Miss Elizabeth Setzer, formerly a member of First church. Funeral services were conducted on Thursday afternoon from the home by Rev. F. L. Conrad, pastor of Emmanuel Lutheran church, and were attended by a throng of sympathizing friends. Members of Andrew Jackson Post No. 87, Americian Legion, served as pallbearers and were in charge of the services at the graveside. During the services the choir of Emmanuel Lutheran church sang "In the Hour" and "Asleep in Jesus." The many beautiful flowers were borne by members of the A. M. Idol Philathea Class, who performed many loving services for Mr. Mangan and his wife, herself an invalid, during his last days upon earth. The cordial sympathy of the entire congregation is extended to the bereaved widow in her loneliness and affliction.

Our organist, Prof. E. B. Stimson, and his sister, Miss Kathleen, were called to Statesville last Friday by the sad news of the death of their brother. A large number of friends extend condolence in their loss. On Sunday, owing to the obsence of Prof. Stimson, Miss Beulah Moton presided at the organ in a most efficient and admirable manner and surprised the congregation and her many friends with her beautiful renditions.

Dr. A. Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., came to High Point last week during the furniture exposition to buy furniture for the college dining hall. His host of friends and admirers here were sorry that he could not remain long enough to give us a word of greeting and good cheer.

At the meeting of the Men's Club of the First Reformed church on Thursday evening, Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, delivered a thoughtful and timely address on the subject, "Where Are We? Thoughts for the New Year." He declared that in several phases of life man does not know where he is. He is marking time financially. We have been gambling, and building on the idea that we must take a chance; but we are not living in a world of chance, but rather in one of cause andeffect. The test of a man is whether he can master conditions or let them subdue him. Man must have a sane philosophy of life. He urged his hearers to return to the philosophy of Christ which He brought to earth 2,000 years ago.

At the evening service last Sunday the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, concluded the series of sermons on "Texts That Made Men Great" on the subject, "Charles H. Spurgeon's Text." He said the first Sunday morning of 1850 a care-taker of a Primitive Methodist church in London wondered wether anyone would come to church on account of a raging snow storm. About a dozen came, and in the gallery sat a boy of 15 years, who had started to another church. The minister did not attend on account of the distance and the storm, but a layman, a thin-looking man, a shoemaker or tailor or somethig of that sort, was urged by the stewards to say something. He took as his text although unprepared to speak, "Look unto me and be ye saved," from Isaiah 45:22. That boy in the gallery, who had felt anxious about his soul, was converted, and as he went out into the snow storm he felt like David who prayed "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow." The boy was Charles Haddon Spurgeon, who became famous the wide world over, and preached in London 40 years with great power. His last words in the Metropolitan Tabernacle were "If you will wear the livery of Christ, you will find Him so meek and lowly of heart that you will find rest to your souls: His service is life and peace and joy."

The A. M. Idol Philathea class, with Mrs. Wade Marlette, president, and Judge Lewis E. Teague, teacher, closed an interesting contest last Sunday. The members had been divided eight weeks ago into two groups, No. 1, with Mrs. Ross Davis, chairman, and No. 2, with Mrs. L. R. Peacock, chairman. The points were attendance at Sunday school, punctuality, visits made to the sick and prospective members, church attendance, obtaining visitors and new members. Mrs. Ross Davis' division won out, and will be entertained later by Mrs. Lester Peacock's group. Forty new members were enlisted and the class now numbers 65 members. On last Sunday morning they occupied front seats of the auditorium in a body, and made a fine-looking addition to the congregation. In their class room at Sabbath School, an entertaining service was observed, the program being in charge of Mrs. N. P. Yarborough. Miss Mary Young presented an interesting History of Philathea. Mesdames Allred and Whitesell sang a lovely duet, "He Leadeth Me," and Miss Ruth Bellamy of the college faculty read two beautiful poems. There were 65 members in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Marlette went to Saxapahaw Sunday to attend the birthday celebration of the former's mother, Mrs. Emily Teague Marlette, who passed her 76th milestone on January 29. She and her husband have been married 54 years. The Marlettes are an interesting family, all five of the children are living, and all are past 70 years of age.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge. — Sunday night Young People's Day was observed by the presentation of a beautiful pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross." Are you willing to bear the cross, but the one you choose rather than the one God appoints for you? Are you willing to bear your cross if the public did not know it? Do you wish to bear a beautiful cross to be seen of men? Do you worship the cross instead of bearing it? Or do you accept the cross Jesus appoints you and bear it willingly for a while, but because of trials and tribulations get discouraged and lay it aside? These are a few of the simple yet serious thoughts brought out in the pageant. At the beginning of the services our pastor, Mr. Love, gave us an inspiring talk on the subject. We are hoping the weather will soon permit his family to worship with us.

We were indeed glad to have Brother Lee Leonard, of Greenville, worship with us the past third Sunday. We hope he will come back every time possible and bring his wife and children.

Miss Mary Sue Massengale, of Atlanta, Ga., spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Massengale. We were glad to have her back in our services while here.

Mrs. W. R. Harrison was able to be back at services Sunday night after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. J. S. Greer, the former Miss Ethel Compton, attended services Sunday after an illness of several days.

We missed Mrs. J. K. Poole, also Mrs. W. N. Compton, from our services. We hope they will be back with us next Sunday.

With best wishes to the Herald and its many readers. REPORTER.

Thomasville, First.—Young People's Day was observed in our Sunday school and church the fourth Sunday. For the morning service Rev. Mr. Madison delivered a splendid sermon on "Serving Christ by Serving Man." The young people had charge of the evening service, giving three ten-minute talks as follows: "We Would Bring Our Intellectual Gilfts," by Pauline Bailey; "We Would Bring Our Gifts of Right Attitudes," Finch Jackson; and "We Would Make Our Lives a Living Sacrifice," Woodrow Myers. Special music was rendered by Virginia Brown Jarrett and Finch Jackson. On last Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor observed this special day program, with Ishmael Dorsett as leader. The theme used was "What Good Is Our Church Doing." Virginia Brown Jarrett talked on our "Denominational Papers;" Marks Teague discussed "Current Events From Our Mission Fields," and Woodrow Myers used as his subject "How the Department of Religious Education Serves the Local Church." There were 63 members present. We appreciate the fine work the young people are doing in our church, and the interest manifest in the church program at large.

Rev. J. P. Hornbuckle, Jr., preached for us Sunday evening. Mr. Hornbuckle is the son of one of the ministers of our town, and we were glad to have him with us. His thoughts were based on the first verse, 12th chapter of Hebrews, and the message was an inspiration and a challenge to Christian people to go forward.

Mrs. M. C. Lanier is in the City Memorial Hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis about two weeks ago. Mrs. Lanier has been quite sick, but we are happy to report that she is now getting along nicely.

Rev. and Mrs. Madison spent last week in Roanoke Rapids with Mrs. Madison's mother, Mrs. L. R. Pearson, who has been ill for the past few weeks.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet next Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. John Watts, on Taylor street, with Mrs. Sina Westmoreland associate hostess.

The City Union Christian Endeavor will meet Thursday evening with the First Reformed church. The Reformed Society will have charge of the program, and we are expecting a large attendance and a good service.

Since our last writing we have had Rev. D. D. Broome worship with us in our Sunday evening service and Rev. O. C. Loy with us in a Wednesday evening prayer meeting. We were happy to have these good pastors with us. We always welcome visitors in any of our services.

MRS. W. G. MYERS, Reporter.

First Church, Concord.—Sunday was another great day for us. Our Sunday school is still growing. We will start a contest next Sunday with the Sunday school in Lexington. We hope this contest will prove a blessing to both churches. Our superintendent, Mr. Ralph Waddell, told us that the contest means for us to get out and get the folks that do not go to Sunday school anywhere and especially those who do not know our Savior. We must not work just for the number but for the advancement of God's work.

Our Wednesday evening prayer meetings are so interesting that we can hardly wait until Wednesday. Our pastor said last Wednesday night that the churches have become so popular with the world that it seems we are at ease. Just rocking along. Oh, that the churches might make up and see the great field that is before us and go to work. Our pastor preached two soul-stirring sermons Sunday. Sunday morning he read from the 51st Psalm. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation. David prayed as a sinner. Sin is not a respecter of persons. It will enter into the life of a wealthy person the same as in the life of a poor one. The more we try to do for God's work the harder the Devil works to pull us down. Nothing pleases the Devil more than to cause a minister to go wrong. If a minister sins we see it printed in big headlines in the newspapers. Sin is awful and when we know we have sinned we should pray as David prayed. We cannot sin without sinning against God and breaking His laws and wounding His heart.

Sunday night our Scripture was taken from the 15th chapter of St. Luke. This gave us a picture of the Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin, and the Lost Boy. The shepherd represents the church. The shepherd went out to bring in the lost sheep, and it is the business and duty of the church to go out in the world and help save the lost people. There is not a greater work in the world than to help save some lost soul. What would it profit a man if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or what would a man give in exchange for his soul? The salvation of our souls is worth more to us than a thousand worlds. If our hearts are right with God we have meat and wealth that the world knows not of. We may not have much of this world's goods but we know that earthly things will perish.

Our Intermediate girls and boys sing for us every Sunday and I am sure that all of us grown-up children enjoy hearing them sing. We are proud of our C. E. Society for what it means to our boys and girls. It makes them so brave and willing to stand up for the Lord and do any kind of church work when they are called upon.

Our Baraca men and boys are doing work; they have put a new coat of paint on their class room and have bought new song books, and they are doing their part in helping to pay the building and loan on our Sunday school plant. The Adult Bible class is also doing lots of good work and they are helping on the building and loan as well as the B. and S. Woman's class. I think most all the classes are paying on the building and loan, but the Baracas and Adult Bible class pay more than the others. We are hoping that business will soon be better so we can get all of our loan paid up in full, including our church budget and all other debts.

We were glad to see Mrs. Lillie Rich and Miss Lorethea Lowder back at church Sunday. Mrs. Lottie Litaker and daughter are improving. We are sorry that we have two members in the Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte, N. C., Mrs. W. B. Newton and Mr. G. A. Winecoff. They have both had operations. We hope they will soon be able to return to their homes and to church. Mrs. Coy Little is still improving and can have a little company now. Mrs. Ruth Green is confined to her bed. Mrs. Green has spent several months in the Sanatorium, but they could not do anything for her, so she came home Christmas. Mrs. T. F. Newton's mother is sick at this time. We hope Grandma will soon be well again. We are sorry to see Grandma suffer so much.

Moriah.—This is our first report since Conference. We are very sorry that we haven't reported, but it seems that so much sickness has been in ou midst, but we find that it is getting better. We hope to hove our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. E. P. Sharpe, back with us soon. He has been very sick, but is improving.

Our pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, has been bringing us some interesting messages. Lat Sunday his subject was "The Soil, the Seed and the Sunshine." His lesson was taken from I Cor. 3. Bro. Chambliss has been with us two years and we are very glad to have him for the third year, and we hope many more.

Our Sunday school is doing fine work under the leadership of Mr. C. F. Scott, assistant superintendent, although we have been having lots of sickness and bad weather.

The C. E. Society has been unable to meet lately, but we hope the bad weather will soon be over so we can get started again.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet February 2 with Mrs. B. S. Kimrey on Asheboro street. A very interesting program is being planned. We hope that all members will be present as it is a very important meeting.

Bro. Chambliss spent last week with his mother in Viginia; we are glad to know that she is well and enjoying life.

MRS. GEORGE L. GLENN,

West End, Thomasville.—Rev. T. J. Whitehead, former pastor of West End church, was here Thursday night, January 26th. He made a very interesting talk to a fine audience on Religious Education.

Rev. H. W. Bell brought us a very interesting and touching sermon on Sunday night, January 29th.

Our mid-week prayer meeting was held on Wednesday night, January 25th, in the basement of the church. A large crowd was present. Stamey Clinard had charge of the meeting.

Our C. E. Society holds its own in attendance. We had a very interesting program Sunday night, January 29th. Bennie Templeton, leader. You are always welcome to our society.

Mr. George Smith, better known as Daddy Smith, passed away Sunday morning, January 29th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Hartman, of Barnwell street. Daddy Smith was loved by everybody who knew him. He will be greatly missed in this community. His friends regret very much his passing.

Reidsville.—We entered upon our seventh year as pastor this charge immediately after Conference. One of my Rotary friends informed the Club that the reason I was returned was due to the fact that I couldn't get any other church, and the Reidsville church couldn't get any other pastor. I think the reason is a good one, don't you?

The week before Christmas we were heavily pounded by the members of the church, much to our delight. These poundings have been annual events ever since we came to Reidsville. The depression so far has not been serious enough to kill this habit formed years ago by the members of this church. We are grateful for this expression of love and esteem.

The Woman's Auxiliary has had some much-needed repairs made inside the parsonage since Conference. They had the necessary funds in hand to pay for the work before the contract was let. These women believe in doing business on a strictly cash basis—a splendid plan for all of us to adopt and live upto.

Through the kindness of our members we were permitted to spend the Christmas holiday in Florida with our daughter and her family. The weather was ideal and we had a delightful time while there.

Under the fine leadership of Miss Lola McCollum a room has been provided in the church for the Cradle Roll members. The mothers who bring their children to Sunday school may remain for the preaching service if they desire, and their children will be cared for in this room.

The ladies of the church served a chicken pie dinner recently, from which they realized a neat sum of money to be used in their missionary work. Mrs. Mary Hopkins, the "champeen" chicken pie maker of Rockingham county, if not of the state, superintended the cooking.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gunn with their son and daughter, John and Cordell, are spending the winter at Lakeland, Fla. We miss them from our services.

The members of our church sympathize deeply with Mr. D. L. Carroll and Mrs. C. H. Garrison and with the other members the family in the loss of their mother, Mrs. R. A. Carroll. GEO. R. BROWN.

Welch Memorial.—Our church is still on the up-grade. The attendance and the spiritual condition are both good, and there is more enthusiasm than has been seen in several years. If Dr. Williams' sermons would not bring out the best there is in people they would be a dead bunch sure enough.

We are sorry we can't stand by him financially as we want to, but our people are still out of work. However we are trying in other ways to show him we love and appreciate him.

We have recently had four new members in the church. Mr. and Mrs. James Leazer and Mr. and Mrs. Lambeth have moved near the church and cast their lot with us. These are splendid people and we are glad to have them.

On last Friday night the ladies served an oyster supper in the back hall of the church and made a right nice little sum, not as much as the good ladies of Lexington, but we were pleased.

We observed Young People's Day Sunday with a program by the Christian Endeavor. This was good.

I don't believe we have ever announced through the paper about our Brotherhood. Our men have a very good organization with several members. They have had good meetings each time, with a speaker from another church, either a pastor or layman. They meet Thursday night after each first Sunday. The meeting next time is to be with Mr. T. L. Jackson, on Asheboro road.

Dr. Williams, Jr., was at home Sunday, very sick with flu. We hope he will soon be out again.

He and wife are home for a service most every week. We are always glad to have them and want them to feel themselves one of us.

Kistlers, Cleveland Charge.—We were greatly pleased when we got our same pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, back for another year. He has filled all of his appointments since the new Conference year began. We are looking forward to next Sunday, as this is our regular preaching service, at which time the Lord's Supper will be observed.

Our Sunday school attendance is gaining again since the flu has died down. We are glad to have Bro. Julius Martin in our Sunday school. He is one of Oak Grove's members, but has moved in our community and is attending Sunday school with us.

Mrs. Lero Ivester has been sick for several weeks, but am glad to say she is improving now.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

A PLEA TO EVERY METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

Our Aim: A Thank-Offering Program presented and an offering received for Missions in every Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina during the month of February.

We are anxious that you help us to realize this big "Aim." In fact we cannot do it without you. I refer you to the Thank offering program as given in the January issue of the Missionary Record. Any church can easily put this on—enlist a person in your church who will take the lead (or do it yourself), secure the assistance of others. You can get it up and put it on in a week's time.

The offering goes for "Missions." We no longer say "Home" and "Foreign" Missions but "Missions" combines and includes the two. I will send you the envelopes if you need them, to give out, asking each person to contribute something to be received at the service, or you can use the "Candle Lighting" at the close of the program when each circle and Sunday school class can take their collective offering up to the altar. The last suggestion is the most effective for a night service. The money will count on your Church and Auxiliary budget. Just send the money to Mrs. S. W. Taylor, treasurer, at High Point, N. C., marked Thank-Offering.

I shall be glad to answer any requests and please send me reports of your efforts to take to Branch Meeting, just a postal will delight me.

The saying that "I have more time than money" was never truer than now and that is all the more reason why we should respond with our time in putting on our church programs. It will be good for all, the church strengthened and its influence far reaching. In fact during this financial depression the church should be more active in its religious programs, administering to the spiritual needs of mankind and strengthening the faith that God is still able to perform miracles in our lives and in our country if we look to him for help. "My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth." Psalms 121:2.

Thanking you and hoping to hear from you, I am,

Yours sincerely,
MRS. J. W. BOYLES,
Sec. of Thank Offering N. C. Branch.

ANENT PASTORS' SALARIES

Speaking of Farm Relief: what about Rural Pastors' Salary Relief?

A careful study of the 1932 Conference Journal, shows that 40 rural and semi-rural charges failed to pay salaries in full. The salaries promised were approximately $45,000.00 from a membership of over 18,000. Of this promised salary, these pastors report $12,668.00 yet unpaid. The average salary for those charges is approximately $1,105.62½, with a balance unpaid averaging $316.70. We are forced to say that such a condition is a serious factor in the business conduct of our church, and is likely to produce alarming consequences and seriously cripple our ministry.

When I remember the conditions of many roads traveled by these pastors, and consider the up keep of their automobiles, I am made to believe that the County Welfare Board could do a good work among some of our pastors.

Merely mentioning, and elaborating upon a bad situation never solves the problem it produces. I maintain that a salary promised a pastor is as binding as that wage promised a ditch-digger, or plow-man. Some of us know church officials who would not dare fail to pay the ditch-digger, or the plow-man, who will and DO allow the pastor's salary to remain unpaid and thereby bring a sting of reproach upon his entire church. Now, you ask, "What is 'an easy solution' of this problem?"

I have some knowledge of living conditions among the membership of 23 of the above mentioned chargs. I know that in most cases the members are "good livers," and do not want for anything to satisfy the call of appetite, and they are not shivering from cold.

The pastor buys many things the farmer-parishioner does not have to buy. The list of these items reaches all the way from wood-pile to the dining table whether company is there or not doesn't matter. So here then is the suggestion.

The Stewards in the above mentioned charges should make a survey of members on this book, finding out just what each member can and will contribute from pantry, smoke house, woodpile, barn-yard and dairy-house, to apply on the unpaid salary of last year. Take this list then to your pastor, telling him why you have come, and ask him to accept these things for the purpose they were given. If he is the kind of man I believe all these pastors to be, your contribution will be gladly accepted. Of course it is not necessary to bring all donations at once, bring them only as needed. One steward should be relieved of financial collections for the proper time needed, and give full time in the capacity of "Steward of Unpaid Salary." Such a plan need not hinder the collections of cash for the current year's salary.

Looking over this group of charges, we find some pastors moved this year. This need not hinder in the least. Load a truck, or several cars, which is better, drive over to the new parsonage home, and make the preacher happy because you have tried to pay up for last year. Some churches think because a pastor moves, or they move him, the salary will not have to be paid and that automatically clears the account. Not so. As long as that salary remains unpaid in cash or kind that pastor has a right to expect it, and to expect interest on the amount in arrears. It is a moral obligation, and the Christian duty of the members in that church or charge to see that it is paid. I know a pastor who served a charge longer than any other man in the history of the charge and at no time during the pastorate did he receive his salary in full. Maybe he had to stay because he COULD NOT move. What ever was the cause I am frank to say, that charge was lowered in the estimation of all ministers acquainted with the facts.

Brethren of the pew—that man standing in your pulpit is very human. His mind is often perplexed by the very fact that he has not received enough salary to purchase necessities for the home. His morale is weakened, and often broken because of this very thing, and what afore-time was a good pastor, and good preacher, is today on the verge of being neither. As he sits in your home; as he eats at your table; as he conducts funerals, drives over the country answering calls for his service, how do you know, but that back yonder in the parsonage are members of the family with not quite enough to eat, and not willing to go in debt because of unkind criticism of such an act, subsists on what is almost little better than nothing. Their professional and personal pride forbids their complaining, their Christian optimism makes them hope on, their faith in God lights up the way for a better day a little farther on. Such was the case in some parsonages last year Was it in your parsonage? Will it be in your parsonage this year?

DO PASTORS READ THE HERALD?

If pastors do read the Herald we suggest that they turn immediately to the report of the Children's Home and read the request of the superintendent. It would be easy to respond to that request and thus help with the work at the Home.

IRISH INTO A LAPLANDER

An Irishman was about to sit down in a bus. It made a bound forward and he landed in an old woman's lap. Just as he scrambled to his feet the bus stopped suddenly, and he fell into a young lady's lap.

"Sir," she said indignantly, "may I ask what you imagine yourself to be?"

He replied: "Miss, when I came into this bus I thought I was an Irishman, but it seems that I have become a Laplander."

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

MARRIED

Hunter-Holyfield

On Wednesday, December 21st, 1932, at 1 o'clock p. m., Miss Nina Hunter, youngest daughter of Rev and Mrs. A. L. Hunter, was united in marriage to Mr. Carl C. Holyfield, of Winston-Salem. The ceremony was performed by the bride's brother, Rev. R. A. Hunter, and took place at the parsonage at Pinnacle in the presence of the members of the family.

These young people are making their home at present with the bride's parents. Their many friends and acquaintances wish for them a happy and useful married life.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names, to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

A Sound in the Mulberry Trees

David was to save Israel. The Philistines annoyed him. They would crush his government in its infancy. But David's enemies forgot that God was with him. Even so today—whenever Christ's kingdom advances it is insulted and attacked.

From past experiences alone David would have resorted to old methods of outlaw days. But he began with an inquiry of God. Once God allowed him to wage destruction. But again David was told to wait—"A sound of going in the tops of the mulberry trees" was to be his sign. Then, "God is gone forth before thee." (I Chron. 14:15). Victory came.

It is irksome to wait and listen. We want to step on the starter. But when spiritual storms are brewing, it is as necessary to know when to seek refuge as when to attack. If "we would smite the host of the Philistines from Gibeon even to Gezer," we must inquire of and wait for our God.

Conquest of self precedes and often leads to conquest of enemies. Our spiritual success in the battle "against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places," lies in following the leading of the Holy Spirit. Of course, it is easier to comprehend the discipline of going on than that of waiting. It tests our souls to know that right will come but not be able to show its appearing now. But all great movements of the universe are silent—that of the stars, of love, of spiritual crises—"Love knows how to be silent."

When we have done our best we must leave results to God. But our best must be done. Waiting with God is not lethargy—it is energy, hope, trial of patience, perfecting of faith. Jesus sometimes went away from men to be near them. But He was with God in the quiet tryst. Charles Hanson Towne wrote of Silence:

> "I need not shout my faith: Thrice eloquent
> Are quiet trees and the green, list'ning sod;
> Hushed are the stars, whose power is never spent;
> The hills are mute: Yet, how they speak of God."

My Partner

Partnership is the world's secret of success. Nations formulate treaties and work in concert with one another. Families form matrimonial alliances, and so increase their wealth and strengthen their position. Individuals form partnerships and so strengthen their business capabilities. The early apostles went out two and two. So the Christian of today is worthless if he stands alone. "Without me ye can do nothing," are the words of the Master, and any work carried on without Him as a partner is a failure. In worldl yaffairs this is of immense value. Here is a young man with brains and knowledge, but no money. He forms a partnership with capital and his business is a success. Here is another young man with money, but without knowledge and experience, and he finds a man with those requisites and a fortune is the result. Now, as a Christian, I have ambition, desire for service, longing to overcome, but lack in strength and wisdom, and so forming an alliance with God, who possesses these, my life becomes a success.

My partner has unlimited capital. "The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." Do unexpected calls come, sickness, accident, bereavement? Then I have a solvent bank to draw upon. Do I come to some transaction whic hrequires great wisdom and prudence? Then my partner says, "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God who giveth liberally and upbraideth not."

My partner relieves me of all anxiety and care. How many death certificates could be written in one word "worry?" My partner comes to me and says, "Casting all your care upon Him." Can I pay my way? Can I meet my rent? Of course I can. Does not my partner clothe the lilies of the field and provide for the birds of the air? Then away with worry!

My partner not only provides for me, but lays by for me. Bankruptcy is coming upon this old world. I am not going to be left out in the cold. There is no more deplorable sight than an old man without a competency. A man may work faithfully for years, but as age increases wages decrease and at last he is turned adrift with nothing but the poorhouse before him. How often repeated is the story: A firm to all appearances prosperous, partner missing, collapse and ruin. I can trust my partner. Every penny not needed is laid up. Everything I do bears interest. The cup of cold water, the word of kindness, the look of love. The trouble is we do not always use Him. Let us take Him as our partner, then we are safe for time and secure for eternity.

FROM PRESIDENT BROOMFIELD

We have just closed the period of six months, with its three special days, allotted to the Board of Christian Education. On February 1, we entered upon the six months allotted to the Board of Missions. The first of the three special offerings to be given to this Board is the February Thank-offering. This is the oldest of our Thank-offerings, and was given originally for the work of our women in Japan, China, and India. The offering now is given for our mission work at home as well as abroad.

The Board of Mission is in dire need of funds, and I appeal to you to plan with your congregations and schools, and auxiliaries to make a liberal Thank-offering during February. We have none to depend upon—only YOU.

HOW MUCH WHISKEY AND GIN?

Mrs. Roosevelt, the next First Lady of the land, came to Washington a few days ago to look over the White House. She wanted to ascertain just what changes in furnishings may be necessary before moving in.

This is to be her home during the next four years, and she wants it as she wants it—which is a perfectly natural and proper attitude for a new tenant to take.

I have been wondering whether Mrs. Roosevelt realizes that for several months—especially since the Chicago convention—she has been preparing the bed on which she will repose, more or less comfortably, during her stay in the White House—and throughout all the remaining years of her life.

In the course of a recent radio talk she inserted amongst the fluffy feathers of that bed a bunch of prickly nettles, that, I trust, will disturb her rest—as it has already irritated many good people who would very much like to be her friends. She said:

"The average girl of today faces the problem of learning, very young, just how much she can drink of such things as whiskey and gin, and sticking to the proper quantity."

Robert Quillen, after quoting these words of Mrs. Roosevelt, in the Washington Post for January 28, adds, tersely and wisely:

"Understand, first of all, that Mrs. Roosevelt did not mean to advise or defend drinking by young girls. She meant only to describe a condition that she considered deplorable.

"But her choice of words was unfortunate and her advice, if such it was, is wholly and indefensibly wrong.

"If any law under heaven compelled girls to drink it would certainly be advisable for them to test their capacity in private and thus avoid the shame and danger of being overcome in public.

"But there is no reason why the average girl or any girl should drink at all. If millions of men let liquor alone, despite the fact that other millions drink, why should the average girl find it necessary to learn her capacity?

"It would be as reasonable to say, since some girls think chastity old-fashioned, that the average young girl should 'pet' and 'neck' to see how far she can go without losing it."

Governor Roosevelt's attitude toward the Eighteenth Amendment in his acceptance speech in Chicago was an occasion of grief to many people. But some excused him, saying: "This is politics, and the Governor very much wanted to become President. So, naturally, he must bid for the votes in the galleries—and beyond the galleries."

In the weeks and months following, Mrs. Roosevelt put herself so completely and so stridently in line with her husband—in what seemed an unwomanly and unmotherly attitude toward the entire drink problem—as to cause still deeper grief. Then came her radio talk—the "unkindest cut of all."

Some of us remember when Mrs. Hayes—a former much-loved First Lady of the land—entered the White House and, with a bit of white ribbon and what it stood for, swept intoxicants from the tables at State social functions. While it is true that the feeling of many people against strong drink is somewhat in abeyance just now, that feeling has not been destroyed.

In order to square herself with a very large section of her constituents who still desire to think highly of her—without regard to political parties—a word of apology from Mrs. Roosevelt would not be out of order.

THE VALUE OF THE CHURCH PAPER

(A Statement Officially Adopted by the Recent Quadrennial Meeting of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America)

The Federal Council of Churches deplores the fact that, despite the high character of most of our church papers, the local church and the Christian home make but meager use of them.

We have failed to emphasize sufficiently the necessity for religious reading in the homes of our people. The great mass of our people are getting their views of life and of the supreme problems of our time, not from the church press but from secular journals, scenarios and commercialized radio broadcasts. The loss in subscriptions has brought some of our most honored journals into financial distress and has greatly restricted their influence for good in the churches.

It is the conviction of the Federal Council that in the years which lie ahead the greatest possible emphasis should be placed on developing an intelligent and informed church membership, sufficiently interested in religion to read the publications of the church as a means of learning what the churches are doing and ought to do, and of securing a Christian point of view on all questions seriously affecting human life.

We recommend that our constituent bodies be urged to use the most effective means possible to promote in the congregations the ideal of "a church paper in every Christian home" and also to inspire the faithful reading of the same.

THE CHURCHES AND THE GEORGIA BICENTENNIAL

The two hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the colony of Georgia, which begins on February 12, is attracting attention in church circles, not only in Georgia, but throughout the country. The Federal Council of Churches has recognized the importance of the occasion and has called attention to two factors which give the event religious significance. These are: first, the humanitarian interest of General Oglethorpe in the founding of the new colony; and second, the prominent place occupied by Georgia in the early work of John Wesley.

The Georgia Bicentennial Commission has invited the churches of Georgia to hold commemorative thanksgiving services for the blessings that have come through the settlement of this English colony upon American soil two centuries ago. Competent historians state that the founding of this English colony in the South was the chief factor in making the entire country an English-speaking nation, instead of a nation divided between the English and the Spanish.

HYMNS SUITABLE FOR AMATEUR CHOIRS

Considerable interest was shown in the prospect for young people's choirs in our churches at the meeting of the District Directors of Religious Education recently. As an outcome of the discussion on Church Music, a request came for a list of suitable hymns for new choirs to sing. Such a list will be found below.

The hymns are exceedingly varied. This was done in order that choirs of all degrees of ability may find hymns suitable to them. Some were selected because of the words, while others were chosen because of the music; some, both. Five hymn books were used, not because all of these are the best on the market today, but because it is probable that at least four of these are most generally used in our churches. The numbers of the hymns in all books are given, by this key:

HOW ABOUT THOSE MORTGAGES AND LOSSES?

Farmers have been hard hit in these years since the war. Many of them bought land at high prices, going deeply into debt. Now, in many instances, the mortgage calls for a larger amount than that for which the land can be sold, and the farmer is unable to meet even the interest on the debt.

Mr. Roosevelt and some Congressional candidates received many votes in agricultural sections because of their assurances that, if elected, they would do something to get the farmers out of their desperate straits. Is anything being done?

Not much. The so-called allotment plan has the approval of President-elect Roosevelt, and may possibly become a law. By it farmers are to be guaranteed certain prices for certain crops in return for their agreement to reduce their production by twenty per cent. This would in all probability become—in case it is enacted into law—nothing but a failure. It means class legislation, and looks toward the development of an administrative bureau that would be exceedingly complicated and expensive, and that would readily lead to all sorts of corruption.

Inflating the currency does not seem a likely way out. Senator Tydings' plan to revive Bryanism, by proposing the free coinage of silver at the ratio to gold of sixteen to one, was promptly squelched by the Senate.

Stimulating the production of gold on a large scale, it seems to me, might be a help. That would increase the amount of money in circulation—money that is either gold or based on gold. Already in different parts of the country individuals are doing fairly well on a small scale recovering gold from old workings. But larger numbers and more speed are required if adequate results are to be achieved.

Several years ago my oldest brother in Illinois sold a small tract of land for $2,000. When I visited him a year and a half ago, he told me that up to two years previous the interest had been paid promptly and $1,400 on the principal, since which time nothing had been received. The man offered to relinquish the land and call it square. My brother was living in town and did not always get enough returns from his farm to pay the taxes, so he could not make any use of this land. "You may keep the place and do what you can with it," he said to the debtor. "We will forget about the interest. From now on, whatever you can pay will go toward reduction of the principal."

I imagine that the number of creditors who are following a similar plan must be very large throughout the country. The principal of some debtbs will be considerably reduced. Interest rates may be cut in two, the date for the payment of the principal may be moved ahead several years, and accumulated interest canceled. In the main, the hearts of men and women are kind and considerate, causing them to help each other over the rough places in life. Both debtor and creditor are cutting down their expenses, doing without many things they used to consider necessities, reconstructing their ways of living to correspond to their prospective incomes.

In a more or less similar way, others besides farmers are accepting losses and making adjustments. Bonds are lower than they were. If one wants to sell he must usually take much less than he gave. Stocks pay reduced dividends, or none at all, and there are decided losses when one is required to sell. Employes of these corporations have lost their jobs, or their pay has been seriously cut. Old people, who counted on subsisting comfortably during their last years on a modest income from carefully invested savings, now find that income is too meager for anything more than the bare necessities.

We are all in much the same sort of boat. A few of us may have been dealt with dishonestly, probably more of us were over enthusiastic and invested our savings in enterprises that promised great profits—but of which we knew nothing, and failed to seek advice from conservative friends or wise financiers. Is there any better plan than to hold our chins steady while we take the knocks that are due us, and then go on with patient, persistent effort resolving to co-operate with our fellows and to profit as far as possible by all the experiences that come to us in this rather exacting school of life?

> "Fill up each hour with what will last;

> Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
> Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
> And find a harvest home of light."

NET RESULTS OF OUR PARTICIPATION IN THE WORLD WAR

Speaking before the school of politics of the Women's National Republican Club, our former Ambassador to Germany, Hon. Alanson B. Houghton, said that the net results of our participation in the World War were that "we helped break down the German rule of Europe and set up French rule." He said that today there is a new Europe, "held together in its present form by military force, a new Europe that wouldn't last a single moment in its present form if it were not for military force." The 5,000 miles of European tariff frontiers before the war are now 12,000, he pointed out, and the 17 currencies have been increased to 28, "and unless steps are taken for the creation of an economically sound situation, the picture looks very hopeless."

He said the picture would be more hopeful if we were in it, actively and earnestly participating in all movements in Europe to bring in a brighter and happier day. Europe is a sad picture any way one looks at it, but Uncle Sam feels especially blue when he looks at it as a debtor land where he sunk billions which he will never see again.—The United Presbyterian.

BRIEF THOUGHTS

Work, don't shirk. The shirker is a candidate for discontent. Life is rich with opportunity to labour and achieve. You elect for yourself whether the day will be fruitful in results or not. Resolve to do constantly better, and you will find your life steadily expanding into beauty and happiness.

Be diligent in your search for the truth. Hold tenaciously to the truth. The more truth you acquire the greater will be your capacity to receive more and greater truth. Study proofs rather than statements, essentials rather than incidentals. The supreme quest of mankind is for eternal truth.

Culture manifests itself in refinement of mind and conduct. Culture combines simplicity and courtesy. Culture is the growth of all the graces of love, beauty, truth and service. Culture practices the small humanities and has an innate desire to do the right thing. Culture includes not only knowledge, but also intelligence and sympathy.

Life is worth while if you are growing daily in spiritual knowledge. Life is worth while if you are constantly unfolding in nobility of character. Life is worth while if you are faithfully fulfilling every obligation and responsibility. Life is worth while if you keep hopeful and radiant. Life is worth while if you are developing a deeper consciousness of your personal alliance with God.

Mellowness, contentment, and repose should mark the advancing years of a well-planned life. Youth is alert, expectant, and energetic, but mature years should bring a sense of inner peace, power, and confidence. In later years one should listen and meditate much, to come into intimate touch with the spiritual. Thus may life be rounded out into harmony and fullness.

BEYOND THE MOUNTAINS

No nature loving soul could ever spend much time in Westminster, Md., and ever forget the wonderful sunsets, and the beautiful scenery lying west, with the picturesque Blue Ridge mountains in the distance. The writer motored the other day from Baltimore through Westminster west, crossing the Blue Ridge Mountains near Waynesboro, Pa. It was with reluctance that all this charming scenery was left behind. But suddenly as the mountains were crossed, it dawned on me, that it was just as beautiful on the other side. There were the beautiful valleys; fine, lime stone farms; thriving cities, and the towering Alleghanies in the skyline. Furthermore I wondered, after we have crossed the present mountains of depression, confusion, industrial break down; if we will not find things equally as beautiful, thriving, and prosperous, as in the good old days when America was making millionnaires. Through the mists, fogs and shadows God gives us the light to see that the best of life is yet to be. "To him that overcometh, to him will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the Paradise of God." W. A. Ledford.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

January and February—Apportionment for High Point College to be raised.

February, Second Sunday—Annual Thank-offering service, Woman's Auxiliary.

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

Western Pastors' Federation

This meeting of the Federation was held at Love Grove Church, Midland charge. Pastor Reed and people did their part before we arrived. And so all we had to do was to carry out the program prepared by Brothers Bingham and Short. Most of the pastors were present and many participated in the discussions. I do not have a program before me so will not attempt to give a report of the meeting, this doubtless will be done by some one else. It was a pleasure to meet with these pastors and friends of the pastors and to engage in the discussion of some of the problems which face the church worker these days.

Dr. S. W. Taylor Gives Part Time to Board of Education

At a recent meeting of the Board of Education, Dr. Taylor was requested to set up a campaign or a plan to secure money to relieve the present strained situation of the Board. Certain creditors of the Board of Education are urging, (demanding) that immediate effort be made to raise money enough to satisfy them. The total amount is between fifty and sixty thousand dollars. While every member of the Board realized that it is not a good time to try to raise this much money, all agreed that under the circumstances nothing else should be done but to make a heroic effort to do our best in this matter. Dr. Taylor begins to set up his plans this week to this end. While he cannot give his entire time to this work, he must continue to fill his Sunday appointments, we are hoping that all pastors and laymen upon whom he may call will give a cordial response and further this movement with every effort and good word. Possibly but few of us can give largely to this cause but most of us can give something to it and therefore let us do our best and do it now. Those who can help at all even though with a small amount should respond gladly.

Facts Gleaned From the Conference Journal

There are seventy-eight pastors in our conference, i. e. there were that many actively employed by the conference and depending upon it for their support. Forty-nine of them received the salaries promised for the year. Ten received five hundred dollars or less, the smallest salary received by a pastor out of which he had to pay house rent was $223.00.

Of the 232 churches just nineteen of them were on the A. C. B. honor roll. That is, just this number paid the amount assessed for the Annual Conference Budget.

The grand total paid by all the churches for all purposes was $176,784. Of this amount $152,286 was paid for local interests; pastor's salaries, church and parsonage debts, repairs, etc., etc. Most of the W. S. budget was raised by the Women's Auxiliaries. There appears to be a growing tendency of the local church to leave this budget to the special days and Women's Auxiliaries to raise. It would indeed be unfortunate for the church if its members, those not in the Auxiliaries, should have no sense of responsibility for the general work of the denomination. There can be no general church very long without a local church. We are dependent upon each other; one must not be sacrificed for the other. The "Home base" will be of little use in the game when it becomes the only base. It requires more than a home base to play the game right, let us therefore be "good sports" in this matter. Or more seriously, let us be loyal to the whole church in our labors and gifts.

St. Paul's Church, Greensboro, Rev. D. I. Garner, pastor—We arrived in the midst of what evidently was a good collection. It had been taken in the Sunday School period, but it was for the pastor. I know that he feels quite well today, thank you. There was a good attendance at the S. S. and what might be called a fairly good attendance at the preaching service. I was reminded of the day when the lot for this church was secured. Some of those who were there then are still loyal and faithful members. This church, while apparently well-located has never increased in membership as other churches in the community. There are doubtless local conditions which might explain this; but Pastor Garner seems to be doing a splendid work here and we feel hopeful of substantial gains. There is evident a spirit of interest which will greatly aid him in his labors. This is the third year of Pastor Garner. St. Paul's was the second church of our denomination organized in Greensboro. Its present membership is now or was at conference, 148. The parsonage belongs to the owners of the mills but is furnished without rent; likewise the church receives for support of the pastor one-fourth as much as paid by the church for that purpose. This custom obtains with all churches in Revolution, White Oak and Proximity Mills. It is a gracious act on the part of the mill owners.

West End Church, Greensboro, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, pastor—I visited this church at the night service. It is never a good time to visit a church, it is not for the conference president, but since the days are as they are, I must use the nights in order that I visit as many churches as possible. This is another one of our churches that loaded up on debt when money was easy to borrow. They did not waste the money, however, they have a splendid educational building to show for it. But although they are finding it hard to keep the interests and payments met promptly, they have no notion of quitting. I was greatly pleased with this attitude of the official members.

I also had a share in starting this church; organized it while pastor of Grace church. It has had a substantial growth. While the pastor is still carrying certain subjects at Duke School of Religion, he is carrying on the work here in a most satisfactory manner. The people are encouraged and willing to co-operate with him in his plans. I noticed a church bulletin here which is quite inexpensive and it certainly relieves the worship service of an uninteresting part the pastor has to perform twice every Sunday. It would be well for many of our churches to make an effort to shorten what is known as the preliminary part of the church worship period. The sermon often has such a small part of the period that the preacher must be a wonderful master of homiletics to get his message across in the allotted time. I spent a pleasant hour here and trust that some good may result from the visit.

DON'T FORGET THE COLLECTION FOR CHURCH EXTENSION.

Pastor's Reports

These reports should be made at the Area Council meetings. We would like to have the following with any other items of importance:

Amount promised pastor, amount paid to date.

Amount promised W. S. budget, amount paid to date.

Number of members received by profession, by letter.

New projects undertaken.

Amounts raised on debts.

Bring your problems for discussion at the meetings.

If possible make a comparison of the work done, the money raised on your charge with what was done the first quarter of last year.

Brother H. M. Crysler has resigned from the pastorate of South Winston Church.

Plan of Appointments

February 12: 11 a. m., Community Church; 7:30, West End Church, Thomasville.

February 19: 11 a. m., Kannapolis; 7:30, Concord.

February 26: Creswell.

March 5: 11 a. m., Mebane; 7:30, Graham.

"ACCORDING TO YOUR FAITH be it unto you." "Lord increase our faith."

Fraternally yours,

R. M. ANDREWS.

ARE THESE THINGS TRUE?

A winner never quits, and a quitter never wins.

A mule cannot pull while he is kicking and he cannot kick while he is pulling. Neither can you.

SEEKING AND FINDING IS THE SPIRIT OF BOTH RELIGION AND SCIENCE

The finding of one generation will not serve for the next. It tarnishes rapidly unless it be preserved with an ever renewed spirit of seeking. It is the same too in science. How easy in a popular lecture to tell of the findings, the new discoveries that will be amended, contradicted, superseded in the next fifty years! How difficult to convey the scientific spirit of seeking which fulfils itself in this tortuous course of progress towards truth! You will understand the true spirit neither of science nor of religion unless seeking is placed in the forefront.

Religious creeds are a great obstacle to any full sympathy between the outlook of the scientist and the outlook which religion is so often supposed to require.

I recognize that the practice of a religious community cannot be regulated solely in the interest of its scientifically-minded members and therefore I would not go so far as to urge that no kind of defense of creeds is possible. But I think it may be said that Quakerism in dispensing with creeds holds out a hand to the scientist.

The scientific objection is not merely to particular creeds which assert in outworn phraseology beliefs which are no longer held or no longer convey inspiration to life. The spirit of seeking which animates us refuses to regard any kind of creed as its goal.

It would be a shock to come across a university where it was the practice of the students to recite adherence to Newton's laws of motion to Maxwell's equations and to the electromagnetic theory of light. We should not deplore it less if our own pet theory happened to be included, or if the list were brought up-to-date every few years. We should say that the students cannot possibly realize the intention of scientific training if they are taught to look on these results as things to be recited and subscribed to. Science may fall short of its ideal, and although the peril scarcely takes this extreme form, it is not always easy, particularly in popular science, to maintain our stand against creed and dogma.—Prof. Arthur S. Eddington in Science and the Unseen World.

A SOFT PILLOW

Thomas Guthrie, the celebrated Edinburgh preacher, and founder of the Ragged Schools, once said towards the end of his life that when he lay down to sleep at night he always found one part of his pillow made soft by the recollections of what he had done for helpless and homeless children.

It is a fine thing to go to bed at night and find one part of your pillow soft, and made so by your thought of what you have done to ease the burdens and brighten the lives of others.

It is so easy to secure in advance a soft pillow that one wonders more do not do it. A seat in the crowded car surrendered to womanhood or old age, a word of interest in the newsboy, a telephone call on an invalid, a turning aside for a minute or two on the street, leaving the hurrying throng to say to an acquaintance how sorry you are to hear of his loss, a smile or word of appreciation to your own at home—this is all it costs to have a soft pillow.—Western Recorder.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE LITTLE LAME BOY OF BOTTLE ALLEY

"How's the stick today, Jackie?" That was Peter Gee's greeting to Jakie Kane, the little lame boy of Bottle Alley. Peter peddled apples from door to door and often came upon Jackie sitting upon the doorstep of the Thomas home. The sun seldom reached the alley, but Jakie used to slip around into the street and enjoy an hour of sunshine on Mrs. Thomas' steps. She was kind and never drove him off.

"This is the beautifulest place I was ever in," said Jakie to Mrs. Thomas one morning as she came out to see who was decorating her steps.

"The view is so lovely from here, and the sunshine takes a lot of the ache out of my back. Then it's lonesome in the alley with mother gone all day, and you can't see 'cause so many clothes lines are in the way. Do you live here all the time?" When answered in the affirmative he added, "Then you must be happy all the time." After this conversation Mrs. Thomas let Jakie sit on her steps as long and as often as he wished, though Mr. Thomas thought it "no place for beggar-boys." Jakie's little pale face, square head and padded crutch became a familiar sight.

On this particular morning, Jakie had reached his position earlier than usual. Peter tossed him an apple, explaining, "It's specked some," for Peter knew very well that Jakie would not accept an apple which he could sell. Peter's inquiry about the "stick" was funny. You see, Jakie was very sensitive about his poor, little crooked back (his drunken father had done the sad work in one of his angry, drunken fits), very rarely did Jakie pronounce the word "back," because it brought a hurt into his heart, too. So Peter got in the way of asking if his "stick" (crutch), felt well. Jakie seemed to understand Peter's meaning perfectly; and they talked together about the "stick," meaning Jakie's back all the time!

"Well, it gave me a rampage last night," answered Jakie. "It ached so I had to get up and hop to the fire escape, but I was glad afterward 'cause I could look straight up and see just one star; and it was shining straight down on me. You know Jesus put it there and I seemed to hear it saying to me, 'He's loving you!' Peter, did you know He's loving you too?"

Peter was silent for some time. When he did speak it was to say, "Jakie, what makes you talk that way? All I can see is buying apples by the peck and selling 'em out by the piece, making nineteen cents on the peck. I got no time to think about Heaven, and being saved, and all that talk. You seem to have a liking for it. Where d'ye get it, Jakie?"

"I never knew about Jesus and Heaven and things till Miss Goodman came to visit our alley. She's the 'parish visitor' and goes around in all kinds of places hunting up boys and girls for Sunday School. But my legs couldn't ever carry me so far; so she has Sunday School at our house for me and she tells me about Jesus. I got acquainted with Him and He took all my sins away, and Miss Goodman says He'll do it for anybody that asks Him. Better ask Him, Peter."

"Oh, I'm too bad, Jakie! I can't be a good little boy like you. I'm bad every day; couldn't be good if I tried."

"O Peter, you don't have to be good! Jesus is the good One, and His goodness makes up for everybody's badness. You see it's only Jesus' goodness that counts. God doesn't like our kind of goodness. God puts Jesus' goodness in the place of our badness." Jakie had been running on talking—partly to Peter, partly to himself, but Peter had absorbed every word.

"He's a wonderful comfort, Peter, when you're all alone and feel lonesome and think you're no-use at all," said Jakie looking far away beyond the pavement, Peter's basket and his own little crutch.

Peter considered a while and then decided that Jakie must be right.

It was arranged that when the parish visitor came next time, Peter should be there to meet her and to ask questions. She most readily talked with Peter and helped him to find Jesus.

"If it ever depended on my goodness, Jakie, I should never have been saved; but now I'm trusting His goodness, just as you said, Jakie."—C. B. C., in Pentecostal Boys and Girls.

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When funds are low and debts are high,
And you want to smile but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about,
When he might have won had he stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow—
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up,
When he might have captured the victor's cup.
And he learned too late, when the night slipped down
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you can never tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar.
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worse that you musn't quit.
—Baptist and Reflector.

One of the most fallacious ideas is to think you would do better work and make greater effort under other circumstances. Be alert to the opportunities now at your ready hand. Apply yourself with intelligence and diligence to the work before you. Make the most of today's chances, and thus fit yourself for larger responsibilities. GRENVILLE KLEISER.

WHY MARRIAGES SUCCEED OR FAIL

Scripture Text—Ephesians 5:1,2;25-29.

When we consider the increasing number of maarriages which end in divorce, we will realize the need of such topic as we have tonight. What is the real reason for the failure of so many marriages and the breaking of so many homes. There must be real reasons and it is our endeavor to find, if possible, what some of these are.

Marriage should be looked upon as a permanent thing. It is indeed disastrous to the institution of marriage when people take it so lightly. Many couples have entered into a marriage contract feeling that they can release themselves when they wish. It may be unadvisable to force men and women to live together when they cannot agree and live happily but there is no doubt that marriage has often been taken as a pastime. The idea of permanence takes into account the inadvisability of hasty marriages. Men and women should have a thorough understanding of each other and be sure that they will be able to live together. It is a thing for serious reflection when one thinks of choosing a companion for life. It would be an easy matter to endure living with a disagreeable person for a short time but when it becomes a lifetime matter it is different. Marriage partners should be chosen with the idea in mind of living together until death parts them.

It may be considered foolish that love is a requisite to happy marriages. With some people it is business matter that they are entering in taking a companion. The girl may have a substantial fortune coming to her or her family may be able to help the boy get a good position in the business world. These are not adequate reasons for marriage. True love is the only real basis for marriage and any other reason for it is too weak. Love is a force that makes things agreeable that else would be distasteful. It is easier to be unpleasant things for a loved one than for a person who is hated. A man and a woman who are in love will never ask for a divorce.

The man and woman must become one flesh. Others must be disregarded and only one be the center of affection. There is a unity of desires and aims and even of flesh that makes marriage successful. St. Paul pictured the union of man and wife as the union of Christ and His church. They are so closely connected that all the powers of earth cannot separate them. This means a process of giving and taking. No more is required of one than of the other, it must be mutual. When one of a couple wants the other to give over in all desires or to take all the rough talk and unkind words, there is no basis for true marriage.

If I were called on for the greatest reason why marriages are unsuccessful, my answer would be that there is no home life to make married life happy. When people stay around a house long enough and enough of the time to make attachments to the objects around the house, there grows up a sentiment. This love for the place and for the ones at the home will guarantee a permanent tie. When all of the evenings are spent at some club or at the theater or some other place, there can be no home life. In a warm home life there also grows common ideals and desires. Many couples have become separated because the husband and wife had different ideals. There is nothing that makes home life like children. Every couple should make plans for children in the home for there is made then a source of mutual desires and hopes, and purpose is then given to life. Many times couples are held together because there are children in the home and the parents cannot separate and deprive the children of the home life.

Many marriages have failed because God was left out. There is a power of union in kneeling beside the same bed and praying to the same God. Few cases are recorded of divorce where God is truly honored and feared. When life becomes so flippant that God is not reverenced, one may expect marriage vows to be broken. Religion brings a mutual understanding and sympathy. How unfortunate are husbands and wives in a house where God is not reverenced and where His principles are not observed. It is worthless to attempt a happy marriage without God in the contract.

Quotable Poetry

"How calm and quiet a delight
It is, alone,
To read, and meditate and write,
By none offended, and offending none.
To walk, ride, sit or sleep at one's own ease,
And, pleasing a man's self, none other to displease.

"What are we on earth for? Say, to toil;
Nor seek to leave the tending of their vines,
Nor all the heat of day, till it declines,
And Death's mild curfew shall from work assail.
God did anoint with His odorus oil,
To wrestle, not to reign."

Executive Committee Meeting

The Executive Committee of the N. C. Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary met with us last Tuesday, January 31. They had a busy day, but a good meeting. Several ministers were present during the day. It was a day of good fellowship. We enjoyed the presence of both the women and the ministers and hope they will come again. It was a happy day for us at the Home.

Our Statement to the Committee

Cash contributions for the Home from all sources from conference, 1931 to January 31, 1932, $4,653.51.

Sunday, November 27th, Thanksgiving Sunday was a very cold, rough Sunday. Many churches did not hold services at all, and others were poorly attended. And the weather has been rough on every first Sunday since conference. That is the Sunday on which the majority of Sunday Schools take their offerings for the Home.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

The Executive Committee of Woman's Union in North Carolina met on Tuesday morning January 31, at the Children's Home, High Point, for their regular quarterly session. Twenty-seven members and visitors were present including the following ministers: Dr. R. M. Andrews, Dr. A. G. Dixon, Dr. S. W. Taylor, Dr. Geo. R. Brown, Rev. C. W. Bates and Rev. H. F. Surratt.

The devotional service was conducted by Dr. R. M. Andrews, newly-elected President of the North Carolina Conference. Following the devotions the group assembled stood in appreciation of what Dr. Andrews has meant to our conference and as a pledging loyalty to him during his term of office.

The reports of the various secretaries were read and accepted. Mrs. Brown read a letter from Mrs. Marie Thompson, Executive Secretary, explaining in detail the new report blanks recently sent out.

Miss Mary Young, Assistant Treasurer, gave her report, and stated that 42 different boys and girls had been helped through the Student Loan Fund of High Point College. She emphasized the great need of this fund and urged continued contributions. At 12 o'clock the meeting adjourned for lunch and was dismissed by Rev. H. F. Surratt.

Those present enjoyed a delicious box lunch spread in the dining room of the Girls' Dormitory. Mrs. Dixon furnished coffee which added greatly to the pleasure of the meal.

Dr. Dixon announced that the month of May, 1933, would bring the date of their silver wedding anniversary. Instead of having a silver wedding celebration just for themselves he and Mrs. Dixon graciously and unselfishly said they wanted a celebration for the Children's Home in order that the silver offering might go for the children. He asked the assistance of the women of the North Carolina Branch in arranging this. The motion was made that Mrs. Hammer, president appoint a committee to work with Dr. and Mrs. Dixon.

Following lunch the committee reassembled for an afternoon session. Dr. Dixon led the devotionals. Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, chairman of districts, spoke of the splendid results of Miss Hodges' visit to North Carolina, and what an inspiration she was to the churches and auxiliaries scattered over our state.

Mrs. Homer Ryan was unanimously elected secretary of Young Peoples' work.

Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point college, was introduced and spoke briefly of the financial status of the college. He urged the co-operation of every loyal Methodist Protestant in North Carolina in helping relieve the present financial strain.

An invitation from Winston-Salem was given by Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, for the 1933 Branch Meeting. This was accepted with a rising vote of thanks.

Mrs. Hammer appointed the following committee to confer with her relative to time and program for Branch Meeting: Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, Mrs. Geore R. Brown, Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Mrs. J. M. Millikan, and Mrs. H. C. Nicholson.

A prayer was offered by Dr. S. W. Taylor at this time asking that our minds and hearts be given a deeper and fuller understanding of what God would have us be.

Dr. A. G. Dixon expressed his sincere appreciation for the meeting being held at the Children's Home and gave us a most cordial invitation to return. Mrs. Hammer responded to this in her most gracious manner.

Mrs. C. W. Bates was asked to notify the Secretary of Benevolences in the various auxiliaries that it was their duty to visit the Children's Home and to report the needs of same to the local auxiliaries.

The following Nominating Committee for the Branch Meeting was elected: Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, chairman; Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, and Miss Mary Young.

Dr. Glasscock read a report from Mrs. J. R. Holden, chairman of District No. 5. Following this Dr. Dixon dismissed the meeting with prayer.

MRS. J. M. MILLIKAN, Rec. Sec.

SPRING CHURCH CIRCUIT AUXILIARY

Our January meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Will Harris. Due to sickness and bad roads, we had only six ladies' present.

The project we used for this month to add to our treasury was to buy enough ever fast print, at a January sale, to make twelve dresses. The different members will make the dresses and sell them in their own community at a profit of 50c to the dress.

On February 1 we met in the home of Mrs. L. J. Kee near Seaboard. Although it was raining and Mrs. Kee lived about 15 miles from some of us, we had 15 ladies and four babies present, and making an average attendance of 100 per cent. Little Trilby Tucker (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tucker) and Little John Glover (son of Mrs. Cinderella Hart Glover) met with us for their first time. We were mighty glad to have Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Glover meet with us again.

We have gotten back six of the calendars that were placed in the different homes last spring. We hope to get the others by our next meeting.

Our project for this month is to order and sell 24 Christy Polishing cloths. If there are any auxiliaries who would like to try these you can get a free sample by writing to Christy, Inc., Newark, N. Y.

At our last meeting Mrs. C. E. Demick was elected president; Mrs. G. J. Mitchell, vice-president; and Mrs. H. E. Vassar, secretary and treasurer. The other officers remained as they were as they hadn't been appointed but a few months.

On the second Sunday night there will be a Thank-offering service given at Pleasant Hill church. One is to be given on the fourth Sunday morning at Spring church, and one at Lebanon on the first Sunday in March. After these services have been given we will be able to answer "yes" to eight questions on the Efficiency Chart, which will make our auxiliary a Standard Auxiliary. We feel the Lord has been with us in our work.

We are very sorry that Mrs. Neese's health is still so bad that she can't meet with us. But we have felt the effect of her prayers. She is planning on going to Durham some time the last of this month for another operation. We are asking all readers to join us in prayer that this operation will be a success, and that she will soon be well and strong again.

MRS. RUPERT M. ROBINSON.

THANK-OFFERING SERVICE IS ON

Every Church Is Asked to Observe the Day

February, "Thank offering" month, has for many years meant much to the womanhood of the Methodist Protestant church. The observance of Thank offering commemorates the origin of Women's Work, and it is of unusual significance. This year when announcement has been made that a large part of the proceeds raised in the North Carolina conference will be used for the Minnis family, North Carolina missionaries in India. Rev. Minnis has suggested that inasmuch as the three year term under which he went to India expires in the fall, that they be permitred to return this spring, and the Mission Board acquiesces in this. Extra money will be needed and North Carolina must not fail. Extra copies of Thank offering programs are in the hands of Mrs. J. W. Boyles, Thomasville, N. C. Will each auxiliary hold a Thank-offering service and try to get at least one other church to do likewise? Let us make this, the banner offering, even during these strenuous times. Give for gratitude upon this occasion.

MRS. WM. C. HAMMER,
Pres. N. C. Branch, Woman's Work.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION

To the Branch Executive Committee Children's Home, High Point, January 31, 1933

Since being elected to the office of Secretary of Missionary Education at Burlington in November, not much has been done that can be reported in a definite way. But since this office is more or less an advisory one, your secretary has been trying from various sources to get together lists of books and pamphlets which may be recommended from time to time. I am naming some outstanding books and magazines in this report and giving a separate list, all of which, will be found very helpful in preparing and reviewing our study books, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China" and "Indian Americans."

Newspapers in recent months have carried so much news of the regrettable trouble between China and Japan that I fear we get only the news reporters' views of the whole affair. It is necessary, then, before we take a definite stand on either side, to read material from a different and more sympathetic standpoint. We know of no editor whose views are broader and expressed more clearly, and who has a more understanding sympathy for Christian missions than Stanley High editor of the Christian Herald. It would be helpful to us in our study of missions to read his pamphlet, "So You Don't Believe in Foreign Missions," and also his interpretation of the report of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry. The latter appeared in the December, 1932, number of the Christian Herald. Pearl Buck's book, "The Good Earth," gives us a vivid picture of place of women in China, particularly among the lower classes. "The Young Revolutionist" by the same author gives an excellent background of the position of youth in China, and this has been carried in serial form in the Christian Endeavor World during the past few months. Other books and articles by Mrs. Buck appear from time to time in both the Christian Endeavor World and the Christian Herald. Our mission study books are delightful and fill admirably the purpose for which they are being used.

Since Miss Hodges so recently spent several weeks in North Carolina lecturing and talking to us individually about Japan, our interest in that work has been quickened and our store of information has been added to greatly. I am sure all of you have read with interest articles by Mr. Minnis and others of our missionaries that appear from time to time in the Missionary Record and church papers.

We regret that the work at home and abroad is having to suffer because of a lack of finances and we admire the noble spirit of sacrifice every work is manifesting in every field of our endeavor. We believe that every auxiliary is working tirelessly, sacrificing cheerfully and praying earnestly for our mission work everywhere, so we are hopeful of the results.

I realize that this report so far has not been helpful so far as getting missionary education material and information distributed among our various auxiliaries. That is our problem. How can we solve it? My suggestions would be:

1. That we lend our wholehearted co-operation to the Conference Council of Religious Education in establishing a refreshing and interesting course in Missions, under a competent teacher, at our Leadership Training Schools and that every auxiliary be urged to designate at least one young person if not more in each church to take the course in Missions and prepare and teach the study books. Of course that means that a competent person be sent to the Leadership Training School for that purpose. It would be money well spent if the auxiliaries helped to defray the expenses of such a person. I would also suggest that the same person, or persons, be urged to take the course in Training in Worship and the Devotional Life. This would help greatly in arranging programs for the local churches.

2. Realizing that the price of many religious magazines is prohibitive in these trying days, I would suggest that groups pool their funds and subscribe to such magazines as the Christian Herald, the Christian Endeavor World and the International Journal of Religious Education in addition to the church papers and the Missionary Record, for in all of these there is valuable information. We cannot work without tools, and certainly all of these magazines merit the price we pay for them.

3. The reviewing of the study books at District meetings is an excellent method in communities that lack leadership, but there is danger of its becoming long and tiresome when business and other items of an all day program have to be crowded in. A quiet study among small groups, with opportunity for discussion, seems a much better plan.

4. Many churches have no organized groups for mission study among the young people. Where such is the case, then splendid work may be done through the departments of Sunday School. In my own church the Junior and Intermediate departments have a missionary program once a month. This is not a perfect plan so far as finances are concerned, but at least it is imparting missionary information and helping to build up proper attitudes among the children and young people.

5. Our Vacation Bible Schools are doing invaluable work in establishing peace and world brotherhood in the hearts of our young people, and co-operation in that most effective project is urged. The number of our churches conducting Vacation Bible Schools is increasing steadily each year and there is much the woman's auxiliaries can do to help.

All of these suggestions have been given many times before, but all of our churches have not accepted them yet and we still hear the cry, "Where can we get programs and information?" Dr. Francis E. Clark's little granddaughter was entered in a boarding school in Belgium with many girls of various nationalities. The room mate assigned to her was a little Persian princess, daughter of the Shah of Persia. When her father heard this he was rather disturbed. "But isn't Homa a Mohammedan"? he asked. "Why, yes," said his little daughter, "but it doesn't matter; she doesn't do anything about it." Isn't that true of our mission work sometimes? We know the need, we have the opportunities, and we know the source of information, but we don't do anything about it.

I am giving below a full list of books, magazines and pamphlets from which we may get valuable information to be used in connection with our study books, or for any program in mission study. I earnestly hope that many auxiliaries will use it freely.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. E. LESTER BALLARD,
Sec. of Missionary Education.

—The Animal World tells us that in Europe at least the circus is becoming a thing of the past. Ten years ago there were 48 in Grmany, now only eight. It further says, "The continued existence of another circus is now in the balance, as its recent tour in Holland has failed, largely owing to the work of the Dutch Jack London Club."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Winston-Salep, First.—Our record for yesterday shows that we had 140 in Sunday school, 102 at the morning church service and 46 at the vesper service at 5 o'clock. Yesterday was the beginning of the attendance record which is to run for three months. All who were present yesterday were considered on the honor roll of the Sunday school and these will remain on the honor roll until they are absent just one Sunday. If those present yesterday will be present next Sunday we are sure the attendance will jump up considerably as there will be a good many present, doubtless, next Sunday ,that were not present yesterday.

Our church is glad to announce the names of four of our young people who have recently graduated from the R. J. Reynolds High School. They are: Archie and Margaret Smith, Helen Carroll and Wilmer Martin. These, along with any who may graduate in June, will be honored when the church has its service in honor of its graduates in June.

We are hoping to make needed improvpents on our building within the next few weeks, either by making a dining room and kitchen under the present Sunday school assembly room or by building a kitchen in the quadrangle back of the pastor's study. Either of these will be a very great improvement.

Miss Pauline Branson, our reporter, is still in the City Hospital, but is making progress now.

The Baraca class, R. N. Hauser, president, had a most delightful meeting with a supper Friday evening. It is significant that all of the 26 members who were present Friday night were present at Sunday school yesterday.

Mrs. J. J. Taylor was received into church membership a week ago, coming to us from Sharon M. E. Church, South, in the country.

Next Sunday we hope to get our assessment for Herald Subsidy.

Oak Grove, Cleveland.—The depression has not taken from Pastor Ridge any of his assets of the knowledge of the Bible. We have been fortunate in having him preach for us three Sundays in succession. Our regular appointments are the third Sunday night and the fourth Sunday morning. Last Sunday being the fifth Sunday, he brought us another great sermon.

Our fourth Sunday service was one to be well remembered. Pastor Ridge chose his Scripture from Isaiah, "The betrayal of Judas and the denial of Peter were greatly responsible for the crucifixion." His text was: "He was rejected and deniod." Bro. Ridge stressed the great need of keeping ourselves in the straight and narrow way, and not having too much confidence in ourselves as Peter did. He also made it plain how Judas had made his plans with the Roman soldiers to betray his Lord and Master. Upon realizing this, Jesus knew their attitude, so He called them all together for the first and one great event, the Lord's Supper.

On last Sunday night (the fifth Sunday) our pastor brought us another forceful message of how Paul was tearing down the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ by slaying every Christian with whom he came in contact. He told of how brave and bold Paul was when he was commissioned and sent out to bring back those who were preaching Christ, and before he had arrived he (Paul) changed his attitude, after he had come in contact with Christ.

With the stoning of Stephen and the attitude of Paul (before and after he had come in contact with Christ) as a background, Bro. Ridge held the attention of the congregation.

Our congregations have not been up to standard for some time on account of flu in our community.

From the Herald and all its readers, also the entire denomination, we ask your prayers.

I want to take this opportunity to express our thanks to the Conference in sending back our present pastor. We are very grateful for having him in our midst.

ROBERT G. POWELL.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—The usual morning programs were carried out last Sunday. First, Junior C. E., following by Sunday school, and then the 11 o'clock sermon. At this service Misses Jewell and Iris Welch favored us with a delightful violin and flute duet, "Saved By Grace." Dr. Taylor chose for his text Matt. 16:18, "I Will Build My Church." This was a wonderfully inspiring sermon. In his usual interesting manner, Dr. Taylor pointed out how the church is not a man-made, nor a man-conceived organization, and he explained in a masterful way the beauty and worth of the three institutions, the Christian Sabbath, the Christian Home, and the Christian Church. He also pointed out some of the dangers of this age of free thinking, companionate marriage, jazz, and ultra-materialism which is so detrimental to Christian work.

We were glad to have Dr. R. M.Andrews, president of the North Carolina Annual Conference, visit us and preach for the evening service. His subject was "The Church's Way Out." (Ex. 14:15). His words of cheer and inspiration were very timely spoken and effective. In this discourse, he emphasized the fact that this is no time to quit, nor is it a time to remain in the Slough of Despond. If any be blue or despondent, they should arise to action, look upward and outward, do something worth while! We were also very pleased to have present, at this service Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point College.

This week being Young People's Week, the C. E. Societies will have charge of the prayer service for Wednesday evening and we will meet in the main auditorium of the church in order to have room to accommodate the large audience expected.

Next Sunday, February 5th, we expect something special in all department throughout the day. At night, 7:30, a special program by the Senior C. E. Society will be given instead of the regular preaching service.

The Woman's Auxiliary circles are meeting this Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Percy Payne on Richardson street, and Miss Loula Thacker on East Lexington Ave. Circle No. 4 meets with Miss Lois Hedgecock on Homestead Avenue Friday evening at 7:30. All Thank-Offering boxes will be opened at these meetings this week.

The second quarterly conference will meet on Wednesday night after the first Sunday in February.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Misses Wray and Brooks on North Hamilton street Monday night of last week. They report 22 members present, three new members, and an interesting meeting. The devotional was conducted by Mrs. J. B. Deaton.

A committee composed of Mrs. S. E. Montgomery, Miss Emma Wray, and Mrs. H. B. Johnson was appointed to nominate officers for the coming year. Following the business sesison, a very enjoyable social hour was spent. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

I want to mention here an item that should have been included in the first paragraph. It is this: Those beautiful flowers in church last Sunday were given by the ladies of the Aid Society. They were enjoyed and appreciated greatly.

Your humble servant sealed a report last week and handed it to a friend to drop into the mailbox. It probably was miscarried or posted late as it was not published.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—The Sunday school at this place is doing very well under the leadership of Mr. C. P. Suits. We have an enrollment of about 75 and an average attendance of about 70. We are planning to have our Young People's Rally on the fourth Sunday night of this month.

We are sorry to report that our pastor and family are ill with influenza, but they are recovering. Brother Pegg hoped to fill his appointment at Glen Raven.

Mrs. J. R. Stuart, one of our members, has been ill about two weeks, but is improving now. Mrs. S. S. Stafford is also sick.

T. S. COBLE.

Enfield.—We are still having a campaign to raise money in the Woman's Auxiliary. Just recently we had an oyster and chicken salad supper. It was quite a success and the Auxiliary appreciates the support the people are giving these suppers.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. Ernest Stallings last Monday afternoon. We had a very interesting meeting. Miss Mary Collins was assistant hostess.

The fourth Sunday we observed Young Peole's Day. In the morning our pastor, Rev. O. E. Peeler, brought us a splendid message, his theme being "Serving Christ by Serving Man." Sunday night the young people had charge of the program, Mr. Harry Williams presiding. In a few well chosen words he stated the purpose of Young People's Day. We then had three short talks by Miss Mary Collins, Mrs. P. S. Bellamy and Miss Ruth Barnes and a special message to young people by our pastor. These talks were well prepared and received. Many words of praise from the large audience which heard them.

On Tuesday, January 24th, at 7:30 o'clock a meeting was held in the hut, in which our program of religious education was presented. Rev. J. W. Braxton was present and made the address. Several churches of the district were represented. After the speaking and business, all enjoyed a social hour of games, stunts, etc. Hot chocolate and wafers were served.

We appreciate the whole-hearted way in which our pastor and his wife are entering into the work with us. They haven't been with us long, but we already love them and are finding out that we have a splendid pastor. He has been bringing us fine messages every service. Mrs. Peeler certainly is an efficient worker also, and we trust our members will co-operate and give them our prayers and support.

There are quite a few on the sick list at present. Mrs. Exum Bellamony had her tonsils removed and has been in for about two weeks. We have missed her, especially in the choir. Mr. P. S. Bellamy also had his tonsils removed and has been in for some time. Mrs. Lucy Rives is ill at her home at present. She spent some time in Tarboro Hospital. REPORTER.

Lebanon, Spring Church Charge.—We held our Young People's program last Sunday. Those taking an active part were Miss Thelma Burnett, Miss Louise Hubbard, Miss Mildred and Rebecca Grant, Miss Edith Moore, Edison Burnette, Andrew Wrenn and William Grant. We have a fine group of young people here and all that they need is a little experience to make them good leaders, and I do wish that every one of them could go to the Young People's Summer Training School. It would mean so much to them. I think that every Sunday school should pay the expenses of at least one of their class each year to the training school. Our Sunday school is not large but those that come enjoy it and we hope when the spring comes that we will have more.

Bro. Neese always brings us a good sermon, and we enjoy having him in our homes. He took dinner with Mrs. J. M. Floyd last Sunday. He is very thoughtful about visiting the sick.

Mr. Jorn Woodruf has been sick in bed for several months. He does not seem to get much better. He has our sympathy. We have missed Mrs. Neese at church since she has been sick. We hope she will soon be able to be with us again.

The Woman's Auxiliary is planning to have a thank-offering service soon.

Connelly Springs Charge.—The young men's prayer meeting is still growing in interest and also in attendance, and all services are also being well attended.

The ladies of Shady Grove decided to make a quilt to be sold and the money to be used for the benefit of the church; they all decided to work names of the church members and charge the small amount of ten cents per name, and finding that they did not have names enough to fill all of the blocks, the next thing to do was to find the names. They got together and decided to finish it out with the names of preachers of the conference. We liked the idea. When the quilt is sold maybe some preacher would like to bid on it. It will be a dandy good one. So if you do, just send your bid to me and I will turn it over to the ladies. If any want to pay for their names, do likewise and we will see that it gets to the proper treasurer. They did this to honor the preachers and not to charge them.

The following are the names: R. M. Andrews, W. F. Ashburn, C. W. Bates, E. A. Bingham, J. W. Broxton, G. R. Brown, J. E. Carroll, E. G. Cowan, G. L. Curry, A. G. Dixon, R. I. Farmer, G. B. Ferree, D. I. Garner, L. W. Geringer, L. S. Helms, G. H. Hendry, C. H. Hill, A. L. Hunter, R. A. Hunter, J. R. Hutton, C. G. Isley, T. M. Johnson, P. S. Kennett, F. L. Gibbs, P. E. Lindley, F. R. Love, O. C. Loy, W. M. Loy, H. W. Maier, J. F. Minnis, J. M. Morgan, J. D. Morris, W. H. Neese, F. W. Paschall, C. E. Ridge, S. W. Taylor, W. T. Totten, R. S. Troxler, C. B. Way, B. M. Williams, J. D. L. S. HELMS, Pastor

Democrat Charge.—We have not purposely neglected sending in a report of our little big work, neither rave we been quiet up here in the great mountains. Our work has been a little out of the ordinary lately, as we are now living in a different part of the work than what we were last year. We were warmly received into the new quarters and are liking it much better, for several reasons; first, because we are among the largest group of our co-laborers, and are in a very short distance of four of our churches; second, we are in close reach of two of our brother pastors, Brother Cowan, of Weaverville, and Brother Carroll, of Asheville. We were greatly delighted to have Brother and Sister Cowan to spend the day with us one day last week, besides another short visit prior to this time. Brother Carroll also visited us Friday of the past week. Brother Casto, superintendent, of Bethel Home, also paid us a visit a few weeks ago. Brother Fred Love also paid us a short visit recently. It greatly helps us for any of our peacher brethren to visit us, and we give any and all a hearty welcome. Third, because we have a much better parsonage here at Democrat than we had at Pensacola, although we regretted very much to leave the little flock at Pensacola to whom we had become very closely attached; it was almost like leaving home. We still have the Pensacola people at heart; we have not forgotten them because we have moved from among them. There is a great future for the church there and we trust it will continue to grow. We have had two additions to that church this year; we baptized them Christmast Day. The Sunday school has increased 50 per cent this winter; this is unusual for any Sunday school in a rural church, but we have there a few faithful, good sisters that are going out into the highways and hedges and bringing them in. Our last appointment there was very uplifting and was enjoyed by the pastor. A very large Sunday school was in session when we entered and upon being asked to teach the adult class we discovered that they had not been able to secure their literature. In the beginning of the regular service we greatly urged that funds be raised to get the literature, especially for the large number of children. A special offering was taken and the funds raised. A very large congregation gathered for the worship service; the church was full despite the inclemency of the weather.

The people at Mt. Valley seem to be taking on new life. A nice congregation awaited us for worship service on our last appointment. Just after service one of the stewards informed the pastor that they lacked about 25 cents in raising their allotment to pay for the pastor's auto plates; that amount was gladly given by Brother Henry Rathburn, a good Baptist, but a good attender of our services. Then, a few days later, we were presented with a large amount of canned fruit and vegetables and other useful things, for which we are indeed thankful.

We enjoyed the Sunday school with the Pleasant Gap folks the fifth Sunday. The Sunday school there is putting on a campaign for new members and are making a go of it. We are hoping to do great things at Pleasant Gap before long. We have become greatly attached to this people, and they have stood close to us since we have been here. We are indeed grateful to them for gathering us a large supply of wood, as our supply was low, and since, came a large snow; indeed we thank them.

We still have our regular services at the Democrat church, although we only have 11 members there, still we always have a very large congregation each service. We are now also giving the Democrat church two regular services each month, since we are here close and can give them an evening service. One of our most dependable members of Democrat church, Dr. I. N. McLean, has been in declining health for the past two years. Upon the advice of other physicians he has gone to Florida for a few months' rest. Before leaving for Florida, the doctor sent his pastor a nice dressed pork of about 80 pounds, which we accepted with great pleasure. Our trust and sincere prayers are that Brother McLean will return to us soon greatly improved in health. Dr. McLean has given his life to the poor people of this and other communities.

We are eagerly looking forward to the coming of Brother Andrews in March.

May we pause long enough to ask all you brothers and sisters to remember us in your prayers? We need them.

EARL COOK, Pastor.

West Forsyth.—The services at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches last Sunday were fairly well attended, considering the cold weather and muddy roads. After the service at Baltimore church the pastor went to the home of Bro. George Nicholson by special invitation, where a birthday dinner was served in honor of their son, James, who is district sales manager of a manufacturing concern in the eastern half of North Carolina. All of the children of the family were at home for the occasion.

The pastor enjoyed visiting in the home of Misses Millie and Nancy Smitherman, and their brother, J. T. Smitherman, last Saturday night. Brother Smitherman is in declining health, and had spent all of last week in bed. He was able to be up during Saturday. We hope he will soon regain his health.

We were called to Baltimore church last Saturday afternoon for the funeral services of Mrs. J. F. Hennings, who passed away at her home in Forsyth county Thursday. The funeral services were held at the home at 2 oclock, and at Baltimore church at 3 o'clock. Rev. R. A. Hunter, pastor of Forsyth charge, led the services, being assisted by the writer.

Mrs. Hennings was 48 years of age, and is survived by her husband, three children, her mother, Mrs. Mary Pilcher, and a number of brothers and sisters.

On Tuesday of last week we were called to Pleasant Hill church to conduct the funeral services for Brother William W. Whitman, of Tabernacle church. Brother Whitman died almost suddenly on Sunday night after several months of declining health. He was 45 years of age, and is survived by his wife, eight children, two brothers and three sisters. He was a regular attendant at Tabernacle church, where members of his family were members. He was buried at Pleasant Hill cemetery, where his mother was buried November 28, 1932. Rev. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, assisted the writer in the funeral services.

Miss Pauline Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, who has been a patient in the City Memorial hospital, at Winston-Salem, for the past three weeks, is recovering rapidly, and expects to leave the hospital this week. We regret to report that Miss Carrie Poindexter, of Union Hill church, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem a few weeks ago, is not getting along so well. She is confined to her bed at her home. We trust she will soon recover.

It was the privilege of the writer to attend several services at First M. P. church, Lexington, during last week, and hear Rev. Mr. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, in an evangelistic campaign which lasted almost three weeks. Brother Curtis is a young preacher of the Baptist denomination, and gives promise of becoming an outstanding evangelist. There were about 40 professions and reclamations during the meeting.

Our appointment for next Sunday will be with Union Hill church at 11 o'clock a.m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington.—Young People's Day was observed Sunday and special programs were prepared for the occasion. The Sunday school was well attended. We were pleased to have the Burlington Junior quartet with us, who rendered two selections.

The morning worship was in charge of the pastor, Dr. F. W. Paschall. Dr. Paschall brought a most helpful message on "The Blessings of Christian Service." His many hearers were greatly inspired by this message.

We were fortunate in having with us for the evening service, Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College. Dr. Smith delivered the evening address. His subject was "Youth and its Challenge of Life."

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Young People's Day was a good day for us.

Our pastor, Dr. Taylor delivered a wonderfully helpful sermons which was well received by a large congregation. He is preaching a series of sermons now on the subject: "The Church." At the 11 o'clock hour and for the evening service he is preaching a series of sermons with "Jesus" as the central theme.

We enjoyed an excellent program Sunday evening at 7:30 rendered by the Senior C. E. society. At this time we were highly delighted at having Miss Virginia Frank visit our church and render first nupber on the evening's program. She played "Song of the Evening Star," accompanied by Miss Mary Agnes Crooks, pianist. Miss Frank is a mater violinist, and we felt very much favored in her coming to us. She is instructor in stringed instruments in the city schools of High Point. A number of our boys and girls are members of the classes in both junior and senior orchestras.

Misses Iris Welch and Anna Briggs sang a duet, "Calling." Mr. Herman Yokeley made an interesting talk on "Serving God With Our Time."

Miss Juanita Hayworth spoke on "Serving God With Our Talents," and Mr. C. A. King spoke on "Serving God With Our Means." These speakers brought out fine thought. We are proud of the prevailing good will among our workers, and appreciate their progressive spirit.

The first Sunday in March is to be membership Sunday. We hope this will be a real red-letter day with all members present ready to rally to the cause of the church.

Asheville.—The past two months have been extremely busy ones for members of the Ashevill church.

During December our attention was focused upon the presentation of a choral picture which was based upon Margaret Tarrent's painting, "The Star of Bethlehep." The setting was painted by Mr. C. B. Baker, of our church, and formed an effective background for the characters who posed to form the complete picture. An augmented choir rendered appropriate music throughout the pageant. Probably the largest number of people ever attending our church witnessed the production. This is the first time a program of this nature has been attempted in the city, and the novelty and effectiveness of it caused much comment.

Our church services continue to be well attended. The fembers of the church appreciate the earnestness and sincerity of our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll. His sermons show careful preparation and depth of thought, which appeal to all who hear him.

The Sunday school is making progress, not only in number, but also in the working out of details which tend to make conditions better for each department. A workers' council, composed of officers and teachers of the S. S. meets each month to plan for the betterment of the school. So far every suggestion has been carried out and the results are gratifying.

The Adult Bible class, which for several years has been taught by Mr. E. C. Fawcett, honored him recently by adopting his name and is now known as the Fawcett Bible class. Monthly business and social meetings are held. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Foster entertained the class last week with a delightful social at their home on Monteford Ave. Mr. J. A. Hornaday is president.

The Young Women's class is carrying out the program which was outlined at the beginning of the conference year. The Social Service committee of which Miss Louise Hanner is chairman, is sponsoring a pageant-drama, "The Lost Church," which will be given next Sunday evening. Scenery is being prepared by Miss Novella McIntire, teacher of the class. Those taking part in the play are: Guy Allison, Howard Carter, Betty Marlowe, Mr. Carroll, Mrs. D. L. West, Mrs. C. B. Baker, Misses Arlene and Louise Hanner, Margaret and Elpa Fawcett and Nancy Clouse. The offering will be applied on the class pledge to the church budget.

Young People's Day was observed Sunday, January 29. The program outlined by the denomination was carried out. The pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," was well received by a large audience. The offering amounted to $15.00. The committee in charge of the program for the day consisted of Rev. Carroll, Mr. C. B. Baker, Misses Nell Carter, Arlene Hanner and Margaret Fawcett.

The Senior C. E. society held its annual banquet January 18. Over one hundred persons were present. A splendid program was enjoyed during the banquet and over $25.00 was realized which will apply on the society budget of $200.00. Annual stunt night will be held the latter part of February. A reception was held at the church Saturday night in honor of Mr. Luther Medlin of High Point, state C. E. president, who spent the week-end in the city. Mr. Medlin was the speaker at a vesper service and tea held at theChristian church Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the City C. E. union. We were glad to have Mr. Medlin and a group of his friends worship with us Sunday morning.

An Intermediate C. E. society was recently formed. Mrs. C. B. Baker is superintendent and Eva Moore is president Betty Marlowe was chosen president of the Junior C. E. for the year. Both societies are doing good work.

The Woman's Auxiliary is planning to hold its annual Thank-Offering service, Sunday evening, February 26. Mrs. J. A. McIntire, Mrs. J. S. Williaps and Mrs. C. B. Baker compose the committee which is working out details of the program.

Mrs. H. O. Charnock who has been ill at Baltimore Hospital has returned to her home, but will be confined to her bed for several weeks.

Miss Josie McNeill of High Point College spent tht week-end with her parent, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McNeill of West Asheville.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed on last Sunday morning at our 11:00 o'clock service. The story of the suffering of our Savior, Matthew 27:27-44, was used as responsive reading with our pastor, Mr. Grant, as leader, after which Mr. Grant preached a very inspiring sermon from Mark 14:12-26, about our Lord's last supper with His disciples before He was crucified. At this time Jesus tells His disciples that one of them will betray Him and that He will be crucified. He interprets His plans to the twelve, whom He has chosen from the different walks of life, and tells them it is left in their hands to bear the great news to fallen man so they may come back to Him and be saved. He must have some one help Him carry forth the Gospel for the hour must come when He will be taken away. Because these men and others have followed Christ we are celebrating His death and passion on the cross today. Are we living in peace with our fellowman so we may celebrate the death and passion of our Savior, Are we prepared to meet Christ? May the Lord help us to prepare ourselves for the last sad hour. Jesus, after talking with the Father, planned this supper and, also, the plans for disciples. The disciples began to do His will and it is still being done today. Is He our Savior? Do we appreciate the wonderful gift Jesus has given us? May this be the day and hour that we see we need Jesus. We are not only living this life but preparing for one later on and in the last hour of this life we will all want to know Him. May we have more faith and live closer to Him so we will be prepared for the last sad hour and have everlasting life with Him on high.

We are very glad to report that Mrs. J. M. Ingram who has been ill with rheumatism for the past two weeks, is improving. We hope that she may be able to be with us in our church services soon.

Mrs. A. B. Dwiggins, wife of our Sunday school superintendent, who has been in ill health for some time, is still unable to attend our church services, we are sorry to say. We all wish very much that she may regain her health and strength so that she can worship with us again.

We are very sorry to report that on last Thursday afternoon Mr. Allen Warren cut his leg, and was unable to attend the church services last Sunday. We hope that he may soon be able to be back with us in our church services.

Young People's Day will be observed at our church on next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

DEANE INGRAM, Reporter.

Moriah.—We had a good attendance at Sunday school last Sunday, with several visitors. We hope it will improve soon.

The sick are slowly improving and we trust they will all be back with us soon.

Communion service was held last Sunday. The first this year. Our pastor brought us an interesting sermon on the "Blood Covenant."

The Ladies' Auxiliary pet with Mrs. B. H. Kimrey last Thursday. A very interesting program was given. The leader being Mrs. Ethel Sharpe. The attendance was small on account of sickness.

A silver tea will be given Tuesday afternoon February 14 from 2 till 5 at the home of Mrs. Ethel Sharpe. The benefits will go to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the church. We trust that many will attend.

First Church, High Point.—Christian Endeavor Week from January 30-February 6, was observed by the two societies in a happy manner. Monday evening, January 30 was "Alumni Night," when an effort was made to have as many former members as possible present; on Wednesday evening they sponsored the Prayer and Praise service; on Thursday evening a Sunshine service was held for Mrs. Welborn who is an invalid, at her home 427 S. Wrenn St.; on Sunday evening they sponsored "Young People's Day at the church with an interesting prograf when inspiring talks were made by Tyson T. Ferree, Ralph H. Vance, and Miss Vera York. Miss Irene Reynolds read the Scripture lesson, and Misses Erma Suits and Beulah Moton and Messrs. J. H. Mourane and W. C. Ferree, Jr., sang a lovely quartette. Rev. R I Farmer delievered a splendid address on "Religion of Youth" On Monday evening, February 6, the weeks' activities were brought to a close with the regular weekly peeting with Miss Gladys Snipes leader. Miss Irene Reynolds is president of the Senior C. E. society, and William Vance of the Young People's society.

On Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service, after Rev. Mr. Farmer read Paul's account of the institution of the ordinance, Holy Communion was observed, in which almost the entire congregation united.. The minister was assisted in this solemn rite by Dr. A. G. Dixon and Mr. V. W. Idol. A beautiful anthem, "Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates," was rendered by the choir with solo parts sung by Messrs, Lester Teague and W. C. Ferrce, Jr., with Prof. Ernest B. Stimson at the organ. Miss Anne Robbins sang with very pleasing effect "The Lord Is My Light." According to our custom on the day of the observance of the Lord's Supper an extra collection was taken for the needy of the city.

On Monday afternoon the executive committee of the Woman's Auxiilary held its ponthly meeting with Mrs. H. U. Oakes on Montlieu Ave.

On Tuesday evening, February 7, the stewards will hold an important meeting preparatory to Quarterly conference.

On Wednesday evening, February 8, the usual prayer and praise service will be observed, followed by the first Quarterly conference of the year, over which President R. M. Andrews will preside. Written reports are expected to be read by the various leaders.

On Friday evening, February 10, in Roberts Hall, High Point College, Circle No. 3 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. N. P. Yarborough chairman, will give a social, admission being one penny for each inch of your foot's length.

The Annual membership meeting of the Young Woman's Christian association will be held at the cottage, corner E. Green and S. Wrenn Sts., on Thursday evening, February 9. One of the features of this feeting will be the election of 12 new directors, of which number Mrs. R. W. Riggins is a nominee. Our church is represented at present on this board by Mrs. L. R. Johnston and Miss Mary Wall. Another feature of this meeting will be an address on the "Y. W. C. A. and Community," by Dr. I. G. Grier, new manager of the Mills home of Thomasville. Mrs. M. J. Wrenn, efficient president of this worthwhile organization for several years, will preside at this meeting, and special music will be rendered by an instrumental trio, Miss Evelyn Sharpe, violin; Miss Iris Welch, flute, and Miss Ernestine Vuncannon, piano

The Parent-Teacher association of Ada Blair school on Grimes St., held its monthly meeting Monday evening, February 6, at which President Arnold J. Koonce, presided. He also made a talk on Founders' Day.

Miss Jean Rankin, daughter of Capt and Mrs. A. M. Rankin, was hostess to the Junior Music Lovers' club on Saturday afternoon. A delightful program was given, which was devoted to the study of a group of the famous hymns, their origin and composers. Some of these hymns were chosen from the list selected by the N. C. Federation of Music clubs for the hymn contest this coming spring. A number of recent outstanding events in the world of music were discussed. After a musical contest the hostess served dainty refrehments. Miss Florence Blair is advisor of this group of ambitious young musicians, and among the pembers are found besides the hostess, Misses Mary Elizabeth Farmer, Anne Auman and Peggy Teague.

S. W. Taylor, Jr., will again be soloist for the A Capella choir of High Point College under the direction of Prof. E. B. Stimson Master "Sammy" is the 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, and possesses a sweet boyish voice of unusual power.

Mrs. L. H. Zimmerman is a patient in High Point hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis last Thursday. Her numerous friends will be gratified to learn that she is making satisfactory improvement. Mrs. Spencer Jackson has returned to her home, 220 Montlieu Ave., from the same hospital, having recovered from a recent operation.

Dr. H. McLeod Riggins of New York City, who had been to Asheville to visit a patient, stopped in High Point to spend two days of last week with his brother, R. W. Riggins.

D. A. Neese and his daughter, Miss Margaret, are at their home on Montlieu Ave., suffering from influenza, their friends will regret to learn.

C. L. Gray, Jr., has recovered from an attack of the flu, and is able to be out again. He was sadly missed from the choir.

Mrs. R. I. Farmer spent two days last week in Duke University hospital, Durham, for treatment. Her host of friends are hoping for an early improvement in her health.

The Senior C. E. society is asking every members of the church to send contributions of discarded articles of gold and silver, jewelry, tableware, spectacle frames, coins, vases, candlesticks, etc., for a treasure chest, which will be placed in the rear of the church auditorium for two weeks. At the close of this drive, the articles collected will be sent to a refinery, and the Endeavorers will be paid full value for the collection. Old rings, watches, brooches, hat pins, earrings, silver ware of all kinds, sterling or plated, anything made of gold, silver, or platinum are asked for. The young people will use the money obtained from this novel plan for their work and especially they want to help with the Church Budget this year. It is hoped that the treasure chest will be filled to overflowing.

Kernersville Charge.—The work is going very well considering the cold weather and a lot of sickness. The pastor has found many good people on the charge.

The Sunday school and C. E. observed the Young People's Day at Sandy Ridge with a large congregation present the fifth Sunday night.

The fourth Sunday there were nearly one hundred in Sunday school, and a large audience for the preacher's service. We were glad to have Rev. Mr. Knuckles of Smith's Grove Baptist church worship with us.

The C. E. society of Kernersville church had charge of the Young People's Day last Sunday night, a splendid program was rendered and enjoyed by all.

The Sunday school is gaining fast in numbers, as well as the preaching services. One thing here we are proud of is the men's class, with a good number already on roll and others coming. Renewed courage seems to exist here. The Ladies' Auxiliary is wide awake and ready to do its part in any way possible. The Boy Scouts rendered a fine program at the Kernersville church Sunday, February 5.

At Piney Grove we found a lot of good people. They have a good Sunday school and a splendid C. E. society. The second Sunday night "Young People's Day" will be observed here. The Piney Grove people are always ready to go forward in trying to advance the Kingdom of God. Here we have one of the best group of working young people to be found anywhere.

When we entered upon our duties we found Ai without a Sunday school. We are planning to organize a Sunday school at an early date. The congregations here are small, although we find some of the very salt of the earth.

Among those on the sick list at present are Miss Pearl Frazier, who recently had an operation for appendicitis at St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro; Miss Lucille Ingrim, a nervous breakdown; Mrs. Madison Ingrim, with rheufatism. The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sapp Peoples has also been very sick. There is a lot of flu in the community.

Recent visitors at the parsonage include the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Tedder, of Greensboro; Mrs. Ella Whisnant, of Lawndale; Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Peeler, of Enfield; Miss Edith Lee, of High Point; Rev. and Mrs. L. F. Strader, of Stanfield; also a number of people on the charge.

The writer would like to thank the good people for the gifts for the table that have been brought to the parsonage.

C. L. GRANT.

Graham.—Our people here observed Young People's Day at the fifth and first Sunday morning services. The attendance on both of these services was good, but the offering was not as large as we hope it might be. Everyone was pleased with the Young People's service.

The Annual Thank-Offering service will be conducted by the Auxiliary on the third Sunday night.

The president of the Conference is to be with us on the first Sunday night in March.

Young Men's Wide Awake Class, Shiloh.—The Y.M.W.A. class of Shiloh experienced a good day Sunday. We had a very large crowd present and had a good service. Our teacher, Mr. Evans, taught a splendid lesson on Jesus choosing His twelve disciples. He sad that all of us should be disciples of Christ and help Him in every way possible. He told us to always watch and pray because Christ had to pray even though he was perfect; that He prayed all night before choosing His disciples and after praying all night He chose one who betrayed Him.

Miss Lois McMahan, a member of our church, and who has two brothers in our class, is seriously ill and was taken to the hospital in Winston on Saturday night. We hope and pray for her speedy recovery so that she may be back with us again.

Shiloh.—The pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, brought a message today on "The Uncertain Call of the Church," using as his text 1 Cor. 14-8, "For if the trumpet giveth and uncertain sound, who shall prepare hifself for battle?" He emphasized the great need of the church taking her stand against the sin and evils of today.

On the fifth Sunday in January, Brother Modlin, now a retired minister of the M. E. church, preached at Shiloh. While in the M. P. conference, Brother Modlin was pastor at Shiloh for five years, and it was a delight for those who were associated with him then to renew the friendship of other days. Many of our present members were led to Christ during his ministry here. It has been 35 or 40 years since his pastorate here, yet many remembered him and quite a crowd came to hear him preach, which he can still do with vigor. And do you remember how he could sing? Well, he can sing yet, and it was a joy to hear his voice ring out on those old hymns. We hope Rev. and Mrs. Modlin will visit again.

Mr. Sam Byerly, who had been in ill health for several months, died at his home last night and will be buried at Reeds Monday at 2 p. m. Mr. Byerly leaves a wife, and one daughter, Lucile. He also leaves two brothers, Joe and Julius Byerly, who live in the same community.

Lois, the daughter of Mr. Frank McMahan, was carried to the Baptist hospital in Winston last night in a serious condition. We pray that the Lord may speedily restore her to health.

Lexington, First.—Work at our church is still getting along fine, on last Sunday our Sunday school began a contest with Concord which we are hoping will prove a help to our church; we had 295 present Sunday morning but we trust on next Sunday we can say we had even a greater number than this, as a large number of our most faithful members were not present this past Sunday.

Brother Wayne Curtis just closed a three weeks' revival in our community on last Friday night for which many souls were born into God's Kingdom, most of these being grown-ups. We are praying that God will now show these some work they can be doing and that they will prove a blessing to our community and town. We were very glad to have Brother Curtis with us through this revival and hope it will be to his convenience to be with us in our services at other times.

Our Sunday morning and evening services are being well attended. Brother C. L. Hedrick filled the first Sunday appointment Sunday morning as Brother Isley preached at Mt. Carmel. Brother Hedrick showed clearly to the listening congregation that God was no respecter of persons but was a friend to all men. Pray for our success.

First Church, Concord.—Our Sunday school entered into a contest today with the First Church of Lexington. Our attendance today was 377. The attendance at preaching was very good for the weather to be so cold. The junior church worshiped with the senior church as the Lord's Supper was observed at this hour. Our Scripture lesson was the 13th chapter of St. John. Text, "A new commandment give I unto you, that you love one another even as I have loved you." We cannot be good Christians if we do not love our fellowmen. We Christians are known by our mutual love.

Our Scripture lesson Sunday night was the 12th chapter of Exodus. The text was "When I see the blood I will pass over you." God caused Moses to see the burning bush and told him to take off his shoes because he was standing on holy ground; then he told him all about the work He wanted him to do. Moses began to make excuses, just like we often do. He thought he could not talk well enough to do the work, but God sent Moses' brother Aaron with him to help in the work. God had to send many plagues on Pharaoh and the people before he would let the children go forth. When God said He would smite the first born in each home where they did not have the blood on their door post, many of the people did not apply the blood because they did not believe about it. If some of the people could have stopped the Death Angel as he came, maybe they would have asked him to wait until they could put the blood on the door post. Christ spilled His blood for us and all we have to do is to believe on Him and be cleansed by His precious blood. It would take up too much space to write all the sermon, but it was so good I can hardly keep from writing it all.

We were glad to see Miss Agnes Litaker able to be back at church today. We hope Mrs. Lottie Litaker will be able to be at church next Sunday. Two of our Cradle Roll babies are sick at this time, little Ernestine Litaker and Betty John Morgan, both with head trouble. We hope it will not be serious. Mrs. Litaker carried Ernestine to Charlotte today but returned home this afternoon. The doctor had to puncture both ears. Jeanette Litaker is sick with bronchitis. Mrs. Lillie Beaver is sick with measles. Grandma Thomas is still real sick. Mr. Coy Smith and Eunice and Edward have been sick with flu. Mr. S. A. Winecoff has returned to his home from the hospital and we hope he will soon be able to be back at church. Mrs. W. B. Newton is still in the hospital. We hope she will be able to come home some time this week. Mrs. Fred Helms and baby Bobby were absent Sunday on account of being sick. We are glad to have Mr. Charles Garmon and family back with us. They are living on Odell street.

Our Senior and Junior Stewards held a meeting last week and Mr. B. F. Waddell, chairman of the Senior board, made a report Sunday morning. The report shows we are right much behind. He said we will try to make next Sunday pay-up day. Mr. Waddell said sometimes we say, Well, I will wait until tomorrow; but he said tomorrow was a wonderful day, but tomorrow never comes; so we hope to all do our very best next Sunday. Mr. Ralph Waddell made the report for the Junior stewards. He said the Junior church was doing fine and the children have paid in $11.25. We think that is fine for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Little are receiving the congratulations of friends on the birth of a son, Ross, Jr. Mr. Little is the teacher of our young people's class.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

A Good Letter

The following good letter is typical of many that come to us these days. "You will find inclosed check for $______, which is a small monthly offering from __________. Sickness and bad weather have made our congregations small, so our offerings are not as large as we would like, but we hope we may soon have larger offerings to send, because we are greatly interested in the upkeep of the Children's Home." These are the conditions we have had to meet since conference, so when the congregations do increase please remember us.

Solicitors

A few more pastors have responded with names and addresses of solicitors for the Home in each local church. This is in response to conference action. Please hurry these names and addresses to us. Our plans just ahead call for these names. Please, Brother Pastor, may we have them at once? Thank you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

White

Henry Franklin White was born May 1, 1851, and departed this life January 24, 1933. He was married to Ruthie Ramsey about 61 years ago. To this union were born three sons and five daughters. Three daughters and his companion preceded him to the life beyond. He was again married to Benie Canipe about six years ago. He leaves the companion, three sons, D. E. White, F. E. White, R. C. White; two daughters, Mrs. John Newton, Mrs. Bertha Newton; two sisters, Mrs. Rosa Bivens, Miss Nancy White. There are 30 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Bro. White professed faith in Christ and joined Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant church about 65 years ago. He lived a consistent member of same until death. He served as superintendent of the Sunday school, and class leader for a number of years. He was a good man and will be greatly missed by his church and pastor.

The funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. D. Morris, a former pastor, on Wednesday afternoon, January 25, at 3 P. M., and interment was in Pleasant Hill cemetery. C. E. RIDGE.

On Sunday evening of January 22, the young folks met in the church auditorium at 6:45 o'clock and organized a Christian Endeavor. The following persons were elected executives: President, Mrs. D. M. Davidson; vice-president, Miss Esquirida Yow; secretary and treasurer, Miss Lessie Fawcett; chairman program committee; Miss Georgie Clapp, chairman music commitee, Miss Ruth Huffman; chairman lookout committee, Miss Kellam. Each executive has appointed his assistants, will hold a meeting on Thursday of this week at 8:00 p. m. in the hut.

A pageant for Young People's Day is being prepared.

Miss Ruth Huffman is doing some excellent work in directing the church choir. A practice is held on each Thursday night at 7:30.

For Whom To Pray

For those who err, for those who stray,
Whose hearts pursue the evil way,
Whose ways are set and doom is sure
Unless they find the heavenly cure.

For those who lie on beds of pain,
All bruised and broken, near insane,
Their case is urgent—life's at stake,
At once to God petition make!

For those whose minds are dull or blind,
Who halt and fall so far behind,
That they may see the way to go
In all this journey here below.

For all God's creatures whom He loves—
Angels and men and little doves,
Thus rising on the steps of prayer
You'll share with God His loving care!

Church Extension

Perhaps some will say, "Why bring that up?" What, Church Extension at a time like this when there is such a scarcity of money? That is just the reason the writer sees for bringing it up now.

Some of our strongest churches have forgotten, perhaps, that they are children of this very board. They were cared for when they could not have pulled through without this aid. To forget at a time like this is to act as the child who forgets his parents in their time of extremity, after being nourished and cared for in infancy. Then, too, there were churches who were not creatures of the board who were strengthened in the act of helping to care for these dependent children. People always have their sympathies enlarged and their care for the Kingdom made greater by helping those who are weak. This is the Christ law of enlargement.

It may be that there are those in the lead in some of our churches, that once did so much for this cause, that have come to their places of leadership since such help was given and cannot be blamed so much as those who have forgotten; but such could enlare their capacity for doing good by making inquiry as to the places where help might be given.

There are two places in the North Carolina Conference that have a bright future at the present, and have had since their establishment as churches, that the Conference should come to the rescue of just now. Both of them need an all-time pastor at the present it seems to me, more than at any other time since their organization. No more loyal band than can be found at Fountain Place and State Street churches. They are sticking to their church debts and paying all they can. All in these churches may not be paying all they can, but those who have the church at heart are doing all they can I am sure. Give these people your prayers and sympathy at this time, and with this the material help that will prove the two former.

N. G. Bethea.

Liberality

What is liberality? Some one may say it is giving large amounts. But that depends. Some one may give a dollar and that would be more liberal than some one giving one hundred. What say you?

Liberality comes in when there is some sacrifice made to give to the cause that is in need. Some time back when we were prosperous we thought we had become liberal overnight. Some even wondered at what they were giving and boasted of what they called their liberality. But were we not giving in most cases what we did not need? Is not the present a time to test our liberality? Are we gaining in soul weight by giving now when there are so many calls that are worthy and are really in need?

We hear a great deal today about dieting. "Don't tell me I'm gaining," some one will say. It has recently been said that if you want to come into disfavor with a lady, just tell her she was gaining in flesh. Well, I am not so sure of that. But one thing I do know, that those who are lean want to get fat, and those who are fat want to be lean, in most cases.

But really have we not dieted so far as soul fatness is concerned till we have become so lean that in some cases we have lost interest in everything about the Kingdom but our own church? Yes, in some instances only enough interest there to save our faces.

Is there any let up in the pleasures of today, the movie, the unnecessary riding, luxuries in dress and in eating? Have we not sympathized with ourselves about having a hard time until we are so sorry for ourselves that we think God makes no demands upon our material substance any more? This is a deceptive thought. Let us beware lest the present time become a snare to us rather than a time of spiritual strengthening and uplift.

N. G. Bethea.

DID YOU EVER TANGLE THE GRASS FOR ANY PERSON'S FEET?

In early spring-time, did you ever run barefooted over the short, soft grass in the meadow? I recall that sport as one of the pleasantest experiences of my childhood.

But when the well-grown grass is bending under the weight of heavy, clinging raindrops, a wind easily makes a tangled mass. Then it is not so simple a task for a boy to chase, through such an entanglement, a wayward pig or calf. Many a time I have grown weary, and regretted that the beasts of the field were not yet in subjection to boys—however much they might yield to the dominion of men.

Boys have been known to tie together, across a narrow foot-path, the loose ends of grass growing on either side. Many a stumble and humiliating fall have resulted. Such a trick could be played on a large scale—if there were plenty of victims at hand—in the tall tangled grass of a meadow.

I heard an interesting story during the last political campaign. It was told by a speaker who was present at a certain gathering and, as no reporters were there, it is thought that it never got into print. Both President Theodore Roosevelt and Vice-President Fairbanks were on the program.

Mr. Fairbanks was the first of the two to address the company. Speaking along the line of the dependence of people on each other in the common affairs of life, he emphasized the obligation of every man to be a help, rather than a hindrance, to his fellowmen. Climaxing his remarks with a pointed personal testimony, he said: “I have never tangled the grass for any man's feet!”

This, according to the report to which I was listening, was received with considerable enthusiasm. There was a possibility that some of the more enthusiastic individuals were thinking in their hearts that their own lives might have been much easier had they been allowed to run their not-always-honorable course without let or hindrance.

When President Theodore Roosevelt rose to speak, his eyes and teeth and nervous fingers all indicated that he had something to say. Acnowledging the beauty of the central idea in the remarks just made, and the fine spirit of the Vice-President, he added, in substance, and with characteristic emphasis:

“But I have frequently taken pleasure in tangling the grass for the feet of certain men, and I shall be delighted to do the same thing again. It is entirely too easy for men to do contemptible things, and then make an unobstructed get-away. We need to be on our guard against them—and to tangle the grass for their escaping guilty feet.”

“The way of the transgressor is hard.” This is a statement of the method of Providence, the law of Nature, the way of God. That is to say that, on the whole, Providence, Nature, God, sees to it that bad people truly have a hard time of it—the grass is tangled for their feet.

Men may legitimately assist Providence in setting snares for the feet of the ungodly—especially may officers of the civil government do this yet it is well to remember that there are limits to that sort of thing. “Rejoice not when thine enemy stumbleth,” is good counsel for all of us; for we are too much inclined to take these matters in a personal way, as meant for our own vindication and gratification. “Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord.” Vengeance is far too sweet for mortals; it is best to leave ‘recompense’ in the hands of a wise and good God. Therefore, “if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst give him to drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.”

“God send us men alert and quick
His lofty precepts to translate,
Until the laws of right become
The laws and habits of the State.

“God give us men with hearts ablaze
All truth to love, all wrong to hate;
These are the patriots nations need,
These are the bulwarks of the State.”

LUTHER K. LONG.

WHAT SHALL WE DO ABOUT IT?

On my desk are no less than seven appeals for general and annual conference budgets. The same appeals have been published in our church papers with other similar ones. Our church boards and institutions are in a desperate plight, while annual conferences are operating on borrowed money.

What is to be done about this situation? It is evident to any one who has thought about it at all that something must be done. We might ignore these calls but for the peril to both our denominational enterprises and our own spiritual life. It is easy enough to say that expenditures should be curtailed but rather difficult to get it done. If it were not for being branded as a critic I might suggest that from general conference on down through annual conferences and local churches the strictest economy should be practiced. Already many pastors have taken their cut in salaries ranging as high as fifty per cent, while many laymen have seen their incomes diminish to the vanishing point. It is unreasonable to expect that ministers and laymen engaged in general church work should be willing to take their cuts along with the rest and take them like Christians?

However, that is not the main purpose of this writing. At this time as never before during my ministry the necessity is upon us to emphasize the importance of financial support for our church enterprises.

With a desire to help those who read this paper to see the matter as it is I call attention again to what our great Book of instructions tells us about our Father's plan for financing his kingdom. Here it is in both Old and New Testaments. Deut. 16:17: “Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which he hath given thee.’ I Cor. 16:2: “Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him.” Study every word of these passages. Then couple with these Ex. 23:19: “The first of the first fruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the Lord thy God,” and Lev. 27:30: “All the tithe of the land, . . . is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord,'' and you have in a few words God's plan for financing his kingdom.

But many are saying their income has been so reduced that they are not able to give as they once did. True many of us are not able to give as largely as formerly, but the Book does not say the gift shall be as large as formerly, but ''as ye are able.'' The cost of living is about one-third less than three or four years ago. That being true, our ability to give has not been curtailed as badly as some think, for ability is measured by the ratio between income and necessary cost of living. Our ability varies not only according to the increase or decrease of income but according to the increase or decrease of necessary living expenses. I conclude then that we should not withhold our offerings because they can not be as large as in other days. It is feared, however, that many are doing just that. Remember the widow's mite is acceptable provided it represents ability. I think the ideal way to finance the kingdom is with many gifts from many people.

Think this over also. Our ability to give is not measured by what is left over after we have spent all we want on ourselves. If so, who would ever give anything? Nor should we wait until all debts are paid before we give. One could always be in debt and never give anything. ''The first of the first fruits'' belongs to God. So says the Book.

Money is more of an ''acid test'' today than it was in 1918 when Dr. David McConaughy wrote his stewardship book, ''Money the Acid Test.'' Giving in these days of diminishing returns requires more grace and consecration than in days of plenty. Giving is now a real test—a test of interest, of loyalty, of love, of character. Men's characters are being tested no less by the temptation to withhold what belongs to God than to take what belongs to their neighbor.

Nothing new have I said but merely called attention to an old truth that Christian people must not forget. If we continue to enrich those who manufacture and sell the non-essentials and who commercialize the human instinct for amusement and excitement while the church has to beg for enough money to keep its doors open, we must not blame God if the windows of heaven remain closed and prosperity continues to stay ''just around the corner.''

FIVE THOUSAND LOYALTY LEAGUERS

In his report of last week President Andrews called attention to the fact that I have been requested by the Conference Board of Education to head a movement for the relief of the Board in the matter of certain pressing financial obligations that the Board incurred in the building program of the college. The church that I have the privilege of serving has agreed that I may have some time for this work.

The movement is now getting under way, and we have met with gratifying attitudes on the part of church groups with whom we have counseled. This is not a good time, of course, to raise money; but no time is entirely free of difficulties, and when an emergency faces us, we can't wait for good times. That is the situation with the Board of Education now, and that is the reason that every member of the Board feels so earnestly the necessity for this undertaking. And after all, it will not be a difficult undertaking if our people will have a mind to do it, and stand together in a determined purpose to let no one suffer who has loaned his credit to the church. Small amounts monthly from a great many of our people will tide us over this crisis. We can not hope to secure large gifts at this time, but we do hope to enlist enough of our people in this undertaking that out of their small contributions we shall be able to relieve this pressing obligation of the Board. Our plan, therefore, is to organize in the conference a Loyalty League of 5,000 persons who will agree to pay a monthly membership fee, in keeping with their means, over a period of twelve months. An average of 25 members from each of our churches, and the thing is done. Well, probably it won't be so easy as that; BUT IT CAN BE DONE. Who can set bounds in this matter to the will and the determination of 30,000 loyal Methodist Protestants? Of course it can be done. More next week.

Yours with you in this undertaking,

S. W. Taylor.

SERVICE

Service is a common word in the vocabulary of today. It is applied to all kinds of activities and organizations from service stations to service clubs. People like to be served and the world has learned there is a great appeal in service.

Jesus set the world an example of service. His service for others covered the whole range of human need. It touched all ages, from the child in its mother's arms to the man in the tomb. He healed the sick, fed the hungry, instructed the ignorant, forgave the sinful and saved the lost. He teaches men how to live and serve here, that they may live and serve hereafter.

A life of service is the only certain and happy one; and never before in the history of the world were there more opportunities for serving God, country and humanity than today. The three are so closely related that we cannot serve one and not serve all. We cannot serve God and be indifferent to the needs of the world; but if we use ourselves and what we have for the service of country and humanity at the same time we are rendering service to the Master who says, ''In as much as ye did it unto the least of these ye did it unto me.''

The day has come when we do not have to look for opportunities to be of service. We can serve people by giving them encouragement and hope. This service is needed everywhere. There are so many discouraged people about us. They are wandering aimlessly along the highways and streets, many of whom can not secure work and are begging food from door to door. There are those that are miserable as they go about their work because they lack courage and hope. It is up to the Christian people to impart the courage and hope of Jesus to these discouraged ones, and as Paul says, ''Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ.''

In our community we should encourage clean living, wholesome surroundings, clean sports and worthwhile interests as they help to make a community what it ought to be. We should constantly ask ourselves the question, ''What would Jesus do if He were to take our place?'' It will help us to see as Jesus would see; and in doing what he would have us do we shall prove the truthfulness of His words that "it is more blessed to give than to receive.'' He set the example in that He come not to be ministered unto, but to minister and give His life a ransom for many.

Men have varying opinions as to the service of the church for Christ. There is but one thing to do—that is, do His will. Our duty is to hear His commands and to make our plans for carrying them out in the most effective manner. The supreme mission of the church is missions or in the fulfillment of the great commission.

We all like to read the accounts of great men and women whose lives of usefulness have done so much for the spread of the gospel and suffering humanity. There are those who by their acts have said I will give up my all, my life, if necessary which many of them have done. All of us cannot go with them but let us not forget that our prayers and hopes can go with them all the way. There is work on every hand to be done. Work we can, and must do.

"There's an aching heart here,
A needy one there,
A burden to be lifted,
A cross we should share,
An aching brow to be soothed
There a troubled sigh is heard,
Rough and stony places to be smoothed
Then let service be our watchword.''

A life of service should be the aim of all our young people. I am afraid at times some of us think and plan too much for our own selfish pleasure and not enouh for the suffering people around us. The poor and needy should occupy a large place in our hearts, the sick and suffering should claim our attention. The sinful and criminal should awaken our deepest sympathy.

We should not balk at the service we might render because we think God does not require that of us or because we think the service too little to render. Jesus set the example of humble service and rendered His disciples a service they were ashamed to render each other. He told his disciples that the one should be counted greatest who served most.

The real materials out of which our characters are formed are the little occurrences of every-day life. So let us build a character that will count for a life of service instead of a life of uselessness. EMILY FLOYD.

THE FUTURE LIFE

I talked, said a man, with Phoebe Cary the day before she died and conversed concerning her early life. She said she wished to go back to her old homestead before she died, and see her lover's grave. She added: "Before he went from this world, I never questioned whether there was an Eternity or not. The thought never seemed to have any power over me. Men talked about it and preached about it, and I read about it, but it never struck my heart and touched my life. I had no desire to know of eternal things. But when my loved one went so suddenly, falling dead in the street, I asked over and over, Is there another world? Will I meet him? Will I live with him forever? And then I desired to know. That desire led her to that beautiful poetry which is in the hymn books of all the world today.

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er,
I am nearer home today,
Than I ever have been before.

G. F. MILLAWAY.

APPRECIATING THE JUVENILE COURT

The service of juvenile courts is accepted as a matter of course in these days. Many parents and children, and communities, thoroughly appreciate the good work they have done. In the early days it was not so. The courts had to be explained—their distinguishing character set forth. President W. D. Hyde, of Bowdoin College, made some fine distinctions that are still well worth remembering. He said:

"Viewed superficially the Juvenile Court looks like a mere change of names—from bench to platform, indictment to petition, warrant to summons, policeman to probation officer, crime to delinquency, jail to detention home, bars to heavy wire screens, and the like. Fundamentally, it is a radical change from retribution to aid, from indifference to sympathy, from ignorance to intelligence, from a hollow mockery of merciless justice to the vital reality of a just mercy, from treatment of the symptom to treatment of the person; in a word, from blind, brutal barbarism to clear, kind Christianity.''

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE

President W. D. Hyde for many years conducted classes in religion, made up of several denominations. There was perfect freedom of thought, of question and answer, and statement of opinion. None shifted from one sect to another, but, because of the intimate associations and discussions, all underwent considerable change. He said:

"The Universalist is deeper, the Methodist more rational, the Congregationalist more spiritual, the Hebrew more sympathetic, the Catholic more ethical, for having discussed these great themes in an atmosphere of candor and reverence.''

In Season and Out of Season

Dr. S. W. Taylor's statement this week may surprise some. Our people paid grandly for the building of High Point College. Still the total was not sufficient for all necessary buildings. A Greensboro bank and an insurance company kindly lent us money to supplement our building fund and we were able to go forward with our plans. The bank now needs its money and we are honor bound as well as legally bound to raise it. We hope we can do it despite the stringency of the times. Rev. W. A. Bunch once remarked that it is the way of Methodist Protestants to wait to do a thing until it becomes as hard as possible and then do it.

Every kindly word and feeling, every good deed and thought, every noble action and impulse is like the ark-sent dove, and returns from the troubled waters of life, bearing a green olive branch to the soul.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

January and February—Apportionment for High Point College to be raised.

February, Second Sunday—Annual Thank-offering service, Woman's Auxiliary.

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

''And now concerning the collection''—HAS IT BEEN SENT IN?

I had a pleasant time with Asheboro Church and First Church, High Point, in their first quarterly conferences. The Asheboro conference was attended on the second instant, at the parsonage and the First Church, High Point conference on the eighth. It was a pleasure to be with these pastors and their official groups.

February 12th, Communitmy church, Thomasville, Rev. H. F. Surratt, pastor.—I was at this church at the morning hour for worship. The attendance was not large but the people appeared interested in the message.

Pastor Surratt appears to be doing well here. Several members have been received since conference, a class of young men has been added to the Sunday School and other group efforts started which will most likely bring in good results.

The Thomasville situation is unusual for us, with three churches in a town of that size it is very difficult for the churches to make substantial growths. And yet after a more mature consideration of the situation it appears that our churches are well-located here. First Church and West Thomasville, having the field very largely to themselves; and were we to withdraw another denomination would enter at once. The situation at Community church is unusual, but by no means impossible. However, the opportunity for rapid growth here is quite small, and it will call for a continued persevering, patient effort on the part of its leaders to get enough people into that large auditorium regularly to make a service count for all it is intended.

West Thomasville church, Rev. H. W. Bell, pastor.—We attended this church in the evening. It was not the regular service but there was a fairly large congregation present. This church is well-located and has a bright future when business conditions become normal in Thomasville again. The members have not yet recovered from their losses occasioned by the strike there last summer, but the pastor says he has several who are tithing their income and turning it into the treasury of the church. They have not yet caught up with their Building and Loan payments from last summer but are faithfully working on it.

The salary of the pastor is quite small; so small that he has to work in the factory to supplement it, but he is doing it willingly and by so doing he gives the church regular services and adding to the church membership from time to time. Brother Bell has endeared himself to this people by his faithful ministry and we are expecting a good report from this group of Christian workers next Conference.

Those Area Meets

I am daily more convinced that both pastor and people must give more thought, effort and prayer to the work of the church. That there is a decided lack of interest in the work of the Lord is evident. Many who led in religious activities have ceased to be concerned and there is almost a hopeless attitude on their part. Many have lost their jobs, some lost their homes; their church buildings are loaded down with debt, and the future does not look so bright to them.

We admit that it is hard to labor under such a condition and yet there is no other wise course open to us. Should we give up the church our civilization would crumple and our properties depreciate even more than they have as yet. It is bad enough as it is, but few of us can imagine the conditions that would confront us in a decade were all of our church leaders to do just what some have done—quit.

Time and time again, I am told as I visit churches, ''How I wish we could have had present so and so—meaning that ever enlarging group of members who have lost interest in the church. And since we may have fewer people to help us, and those who are willing have less to help with, it behooves us to be faithful in the discharge of our duties regardless of whether our helpers are few or many.

It was with the hope of correcting this very situation that the idea of the Area Councils was set up into form. It is our hope to hold at least three series of such conferences this year and to carry them into different sections of our church, thus making every effort to ''Take the mountain to Mahomet'' when Mahomet fails to come to the mountain, in order that we may re-enlist the workers who have lost their interest and to enlist many who have never attempted any thing for the Lord in definite religious work.

Yes, it will be hard. It will take lots of work; hearty co-operation on the part of those who attend them, and an untiring persistence in following up the results of these meetins. It will be worth it. We must do more than hold the regular services in our churches. We may have to change our methods of church work; even may have to learn a new homiletics, for these are new times we are in, the spirit of this age may break old bottles should we try to use them longer.

Is not the Lord proving us with these very times? It is a great opportunity for those who are willing to serve. There is so much to do and so few to do it—there is certainly no scramble for the positions of responsibility in the church. And after all is it not in such labors as these that we are to save our souls? It was of the tireless workers, of the sacrificial service, it was of those who toil, sorrow, yea even death that the Apostle John was told, had washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

THE LAST KEY

George MacGregor once told how he frequently used to visit an old minister in his Scottish manse. The old man was a devout child of God, a great Bible student and faithful minister. His wife was an invalid; for a long time she had not been able to leave her room.

''Every time I visited my old friend,'' MacGregor said, ''I felt there was something wanting in his spiritual life. I could not think what it might be. It seemed as if there was something he was afraid to surrender to God.

''One morning as we were on our knees in fellowship, he suddenly got up in the middle of prayer with a short apology. He rushed into his wife's room. 'Darling,' he said, 'you know I loved you better than anything on earth; but, dear, I love the Saviour more. If He should make it clear to me that I should have to go to China and leave you, you will not be disappointed if I go?' The dear saint smiled bravely at her husband and said, 'Then you go. For years I have been praying that I might not be a hindrance to you.'

''The old man had surrendered the last key into the Master's hands. The devil had been taunting him with it, that he loved his wife more than the Lord.

''That same evening the nurse went into the room to make the old lady ready for the night. She was lying in bed with her eyes closed, a graceful smile on her lips. The Lord had called His child home. Startled, she ran down-stairs to break the news to the old man. There was no answer to her knock. She opened the door. The old man was bending over his Bible. She came nearer. He did not move. He had been afraid to have to leave his wife behind. He surrendered the last key. The Lord graciously and mercifully took them both home together.''—The Life of Faith.

AN ANSWER TO PRAYER

A New York boy caused his parents anxiety, for they had made up their minds that he was an idiot. He had frequent convulsions, and as he grew older showed fewer signs of average intelligence. But one day the father overheard the boy praying, and the pathetic prayer brought hope in his heart. ''Thou knowest, Lord, that my father and mother are disappointed in me,'' the lad prayed. ''They find nothing in me for which to be glad. Thou knowest why, and Thou knowest why Thou hast given me the burden of these terrible convulsions. But I trust Thee to the end.''

The father left his business and took the boy for a trip around the world. On their return the boy was sent to school again, and he made rapid progress in his studies, excelling all his classmates. ''When a University section of the Y.M.C.A. was started for the graduatees of the medical, science and law colleges, of four thousand men, my son was chosen president,'' said Dr. W. F. Bainbridge, the now happy father. ''When the World's Congress of Surgeons and Physicians met at Brussels, my boy was chosen Vice-President—the idiot boy who told God that he could trust Him, the boy who believed even though he could not understand.''

That boy is now one of the leading specialists in appendicitis and is known the world over for his remarkable success as a surgeon.—Tarbells' Teacher's Guide.

CONSTANT COMMITTING

Watch against anxious thoughts. Dr. A. B. Simpson used to say, ''Worry is as bad as worldliness.'' We are not to take anxious thought for the things of tomorrow; in fact, we are not to take anxious thought at all. We are to be careful for nothing; but in everything, by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, to let our requests be made known unto God. Do you get that word Everything? I have heard some people say, ''I don't want to bother the Almighty with trifles.'' Trifles are surely included in this Everything. A trifling fire may lead to a mighty conflagration.

What is the effect of committing everything to the Lord, with prayer and supplication and thanksgiving? The Apostle tells us, ''The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.'' The thought in the original is that He will garrison our hearts and minds. If we have committed all to Him, the Lord of Hosts will send an angelic host to garrison our hearts and minds; nay, better than that, He has declared in Psalm 121 that He Himself will be our Keeper.—Full Gospel and Rescue Journal.

OUR STORY PAGE

A LITTLE DISCIPLE

"How do you do?" called Hetty across to the new little girl at the house next door. She was a nice, cheerful-looking little girl and Hetty was eager to become acquainted.

"I'm Hetty," the first girl said.

"I'm Ruth," came back the answer across the low hedge separating the lawns of the two homes.

"I have a flag," said Hetty, waving the tiny banner she had carried in the Sunday School parade.

"So have I," Ruth made reply, waving a banner precisely like Hetty's. "Mother got it for me at the five-and-ten-cent store."

"I got mine at our church," Hetty quickly answered. "I go to Sunday School."

The little girl beyond the hedge stood silent. "I do not go," she said timidly. "Mother does not take me."

"I will take you,' Hetty generously offered. "I will go now and ask mother if I may do so." Eager for her mother's consent, Hetty ran into the house. "Yes, indeed, you may take her," said Mrs. Miller. "But you will first have to go to Mrs. Comer and ask if Ruth may go with you."

"Of course she may go with you," Ruth's young and pretty mother pleasantly answered, when on Saturday Hetty went to the house next door and asked if Ruth might go to Sunday School with her. "But do not be surprised if you are obliged to bring her back before Sunday School is dismissed. Ruth is a great fidget. She cannot remain quiet long at a time."

Before the close of the day, Ruth's mother had cause to change her mind regarding this fault of her daughter. Ruth not only kept quiet, but she was such an earnest, attentive listener that Miss Crone, the teacher, praised her in the presence of every member of the class. "It is the very nicest place ever I was at," Ruth, on reaching home, told her mother.

"I think I too must visit this 'very nicest place'," laughed Mrs. Comer.

When next Sunday morning Hetty called at the Comer home she found two waiting to go with her to Sunday School. Mrs. Comer liked it so well that she kept on going. And one beautiful Sunday morning the three of them came bringing Ruth's father. "It is all Hetty's doings," Mrs. Comer in her happy way declared. "She is a perfect little missionary."

Mr. Ford, the pastor of the church, where they all now go to Sunday School, laid his hand on Hetty's head and said, "She is Jesus' own little disciple."—Children at Work.

THE BLOTTING OUT OF SIN

A little boy ran in one day to his mother, after he had read that promise: "I will blot out as a thick cloud thy transgressions." He said, "Mother, what does God mean when He says He will blot out my sins? What is He going to do with them? I can't see how God can really blot them out and put them away. What does it mean—blot out?"

The mother said, "Didn't I see you yesterday writing on your slate?"

"Yes," he replied.

"Well, bring it to me."

He brought the slate. Holding it in front of him, the mother said, "Where is what you wrote?"

"Oh," he said, "I rubbed it out!"

"Well, where is it?"

"Why, mother, I don't know."

"But how could you put it away if it were really there?"

"Oh, mother, I don't know! I know it was there and it is gone."

"Well," she said, "that is what God means when He says, I will blot out thy transgressions."—Apples of Gold.

OUTDONE BY A BOY

A lad in Boston, rather small for his years, worked in an office as an errand boy for four gentlemen who did business there. One day the gentlemen were chafing him a little about being so small, and said to him:

"You will never amount to much, you never can do much business, you are too small."

The little fellow looked at them:

"Well," said he, "as small as I am, I can do something which none of you four men can do."

"Ah, what is that?" said they.

"I don't know as I ought to tell you," he replied. But they were anxious to know, and urged him to tell what he could do that none of them were able to do.

"I can keep from swearing!" said the little fellow. There were some blushes on four adult faces, and there seemed to be very little anxiety for further information on the point.—Little Christian.

LIFE'S LITTLE DAY

One secret of a sweet and happy Christian life is learning to live by the day. It is the long stretches that tire us. We think of life as a whole, running on before us. But really there are no long stretches. Life does not come to us all at one time; it comes only a day at a time. Even tomorrow is never ours till it becomes today, and we have nothing whatever to do with it but to pass down to it a fair and good inheritance in today's work well done, and today's life well lived.

It is a blessed secret, this of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, till night-fall. Any one can do his work, however hard, for one day. Any one can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly, purely, till the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever really means to us—just one little day. "Do today's duty, fight today's temptations, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them."

God gives us nights to shut down the curtain of darkness on our little days. We cannot see beyond. Short horizons make life easier, and give us one of the blessed secrets of brave, true holy living.—Unknown.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By W. M. HOWARD

Topic for February 26, 1933

HOW CAN WE MAKE CHRIST ATTRACTIVE TO THE AMERICANS?

Scripture Lesson: Acts 2:1-11

Many people have looked with disfavor on foreign missions and said that they were willing to aid home work; these should give a ready response to the topic tonight. When we consider that 63 per cent of the men and women in America make no profession of Christianity, we are amozed and also challenged by the task before us. We have lost our title as the Christian nation when we are unable to teach those in our own land.

An increasing per cent of our population is becoming foreign born. This increases our responsibility to instruct these people in culture, education, and morals. The large cities of America have a great number of inhabitants who have no estimate of our standards of living and of our religion. Christ taught that His religion was not limited to the Jews, but that disciples were to be made of all people. We should no longer speak of our foreign problem but of our American challenge. There are heathen at our doors as surely as there are in Africa. You and I are to share in this task of makingChrist attractive to those who do not know Him.

We must care for the education of the newcomer to our land. The foreign born person comes to America with no adequate idea of our customs and standards. The environment in which he has been reared is quite different from ours and naturally some of his actions and beliefs are queer. There is no way by which these people can be taught to respect and understand American laws and habits except through the public school. It is indeed dangerous to keep families or even communities where the customs and language of the old home are used. Such persons will never become citizens that will be worth anything to our nation. Put the foreigner under the influence of our schools and he soon becomes an American.

America owes a social responsibility to those who have newly come to her shores. I would not advocate intermingling of the groups, but they cannot remain as widely separated as they were when the ocean was between and become friends. Foreigners need social sympathy and friendship which we are respônsible to supply. Many of the foreign settlements in our cities are "slum districts" which need the socializing influence of the better classes. When will the slums cease to exist if the Americans remain aloof? The influences of superior culture and standards of living need to get into the foreign areas in our large cities.

We owe to the New American a religious duty which we can never escape. It is stated that the impression which foreigners gain from missionaries is never upheld when they come to America and see us at home. This is indeed unfortunate and each of us bears a part of the responsibility for such a situation. Christ commanded His followers to make disciples of all men. This places a duty on us as individuals which we cannot escape. He, who has found Christ attractive, will be glad to tell those whom he meets. The power of Christiantty has ever been the contagion of it and when another is unable to catch it from you then you have failed in your part. Too many of our church members have gotten the idea that their church is a social class. When a church becomes this way it had better close its doors. Have you ever asked a foreigner to your church? Did you really mean it when you asked him? A church which would not welcome a person of foreign birth would not welcome Christ. To us Christ was a foreigner, for He was not born in America. The issue is plain, if we do not Christianize and socialize our foreign born population, we are creating a dangerous situation in having them in our country.

What is our duty to the newcomer to our land? We should introduce him to the best places which we have. Libraries, playgrounds, schools, churches, and places of wholesome amusement are the impressions which are valuable of America. Herding such people in a slum district where vice and sin predominate and where the first lessons of America are of the gangster world, gambling rooms, and liquor joints will never make respectable citizens of them. Subject them to the good influences of our schools, ask them to our churches, counsel them by your superior culture, tell them of your Christ; these things will make Christ attractive to the new Americans and also to those who have never accepted the Christ.

Quotable Poetry

Hark, the voice of Jesus calling,
  "Who will go and work today?
Fields are white and harvests waiting;
  Who will bear the sheaves away?"
Loud and long the Master calleth,
  Rich reward He offers free;
Who will answer, gladly saying,
  "Here am I; use me, use me."

If you cannot cross the ocean,
  And the heathen lands explore,
You will find the heathen nearer,
  You can help them at your door.
If you cannot give your thousands,
  You can give the widow's mite;
And the least you do for Jesus
  Will be precious in His sight.

Let none hear you idy saying,
  "There is nothing I can do,"
While the souls of men are dying,
  And the Master calls for you:
Take the task He gives you gladly,
  Let His work your pleasure be;
Answer quickly when He calleth,
  "Here am I; use me, use me."

SOME YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY RESULTS

A total of 386 Young People's Day orders were received. Many of these orders represent more than one church. The number from each conference was as follows: Maryland 98, North Carolina 57, Ohio 40, Pittsburgh 27, Eastern 23, Indiana 22, W. Va. 17, Alabama 14, Onondaga 11, Mississippi 10, Texas 10, Ft. Smith-Oklahoma 9, Michigan 9, Missouri 7, Iowa Missouri 7, Kansas 5, Louisiana 5, Texhoma 3, Georgia 3, Arkansas 4, Illinois 2, Kentucky 1, S. C. Colored 1, Florida 1.

Some of the results have been reported to use as follows: Most of the churches reported splendid congregations and much interest in the type of program presented. The following is the name of the church and the amount of offring of those reporting to us:

Westminster church, $189.00; Nichols Mem'l, Baltimore, $81.00; Delmar, Del. $55.00; Sharpsburg, Pa., $35.50; New Market, Mt., $27.00; Fawn Grove, Pa., $25.00; Amity, Pa., $20.23; Union Bridge, Md., $20.00; Gibbsboro, N. J., $18.50; Cumberland Circuit, Md., $18 00; Mt. Lookout, Ohio, $17.33; Lynbrook, N. Y., $17.00; Syracuse, N. Y., $16.30; East Liverpool, Ohio, $13.95; Aurora, Mo., $11.55; Harmony, W. Va., $11.00; Manasquan, N. J., $10.38; Middletown, Ohio, $10.00; Ft. Myer and Walker's Chap., $10.00; First Church, High Point, $10.00; Madison Park, $9.50; Trinity, Baltimore, $9.07; Ash Grove, Kans., $8.80; Manchester, Ohio, $8.55; Kendallville, Ind., $8.00; Henderson, First, $8.00; Thomasville, First, $6.50; South Butler, N. Y., $6.00; New Haven, Ind., $5.56; Pennsville, Ohio, $5.25; Haywood, W. Va., $5.00; Stockport, Ohio, $5.00; Parksley, Va., $5.00; Orange, N. C., $5.00; Spring Church, N. C., $5.00; Newcomerstown, Ohio, $4.86; Palestine, N. J., $4.25; Brooklyn, Md., $4.10; Wellsville, Ohio, $4.00; Guilford, N. C., 3.6; Friendship, N.J., $3 31; Monett, Mo., $3.13; Sunflower, Miss., $3.00; Calvary Elkhart, Ind., $3.00; Pittsburgh, second church, $3.00; and Stone Mills, N. Y., $3.10.

The Young People's Day offering should be sent to your Annual Conference Treasurer and marked Young People's Day offering. Under no circumstances can this be designated for any other purpose. I wish to thank again all those who have helped to make the day successful.

M. P. BOOK GETS HIGH HONOR

"Human Nature and the Church," by Dean Lindley has just been named by the Christian Advocate, General Organ of the M. E. Church, South, as one of the twelve best books of the past year. The list appeared in the issue of that paper on January 20. The publication is printed at Nashville, Tennessee, and reaches throughout the entire denomination.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ATTENTION! PLEASE READ!

To each local Auxiliary Secretary of Spiritual Life:

I hope to reach one in charge of the department of Spiritual Life by this means of communication. To those who have not already done so, and I know some have, will you please begin now to plan for the Prayer Service for the World Day of Prayer which comes on Friday, March 3rd. I recall that some wrote me last year to mail them the program. You order this material from Mrs. Marie Thompson, 516 N. Charles St., Baltimore.

By referring to the January, 1933, "Missionary Record" on page 2 you will get the information necessary. The program, "Follow Thou Me," 2c each, is one you will find easy to prepare, but be sure to have enough copies for your audience to assist in the service to be most effective. Where it can be done a union of all the churches in a community has been proven a splendid way. Work out any plan whereby you may reach the masses the better. Will you begin at once to arrange for this Prayer Service? There is the need of a more spiritual awakening we know. It has been said that "Prayer is a greater power in the transformation of the world than legislation or force of arms. The center of its power is in the heart which utters it; the radius of its influence is as infinite as the mind of God." "Lord, teach us to pray." Luke 11:1.

HUMAN NATURE AND THE CHURCH
By PERCY E. LINDLEY

In his new book Human Nature and the Church, Dean Lindley has rendered the great host of church leaders of the country an incalculable service. Many of these leaders have been unable to keep abreast of the rapid developments during recent years in the psychological and social sciences. They have been unable to profit in the fullest measure from our increasing insights into the nature of personality and the influences which affect its growth. Dean Lindley has accomplished the difficult task of bridging the gap between modern research and its practical application to particular situations in the local church and has thus brought within the range of the average reader a veritable mine of essential knowledge. A sub-title of his book might well have been "Practical Psychology for the Church Worker."

It must be apparent to every intelligent student of modern life that the church is faced with the necessity of adapting its program to the needs of our changing times. Dean Lindley has pointed the way to adaptations that are within the range of possibility of every church, however limited it may be in leadership or financial resources. I would recommend the study of his book to every pastor and other church leader. We are including it in our list of basic reference materials for students taking courses in religious education.

SPIRIT OF MEBANE WOMEN

Dear Brother McCulloch:

Find check for $7.50 for Herald as asked for by last conference. I think that is the amount Mebane should pay. If it is not correct I'll make it so. Anyway give Mebane church credit for same. This was paid by the Ladies' class of S. S. and the Ladies' Aid. They seemed just to be waiting to be asked. Perhaps if some of our women will push this, more of our women are waiting or at least willing to help. It would be hard at this particular time to collect for anything in our church. Since so few have work, but our women have not become discouraged and want a share in all the interest of the church. Personally I feel the Herald has meant more to the church in North Carolina than anything. We can't live long without it I fear. It is always a joy for me to lend my efforts in doing for the Herald the things asked of my church. I hope to be able to do something in the way of subscriptions later.

Sincerely,
MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON.

MRS. C. J. CHERRY CALLED HOME

Mrs. Emma Mayo Cherry, wife of G. J. Cherry, president of the North State Lumber Company, died February 1 at Riverside Infirmary, Charleston. Mrs. Cherry was 65 years old and a native of Forkland, N. C., where she was born September 10, 1867, a daughter of Joseph Hopkins Mayo, and Mary Joyner Mayo. Mrs. Cherry has lived in Charleston, and Tryon, N. C., since 1906. She was a member of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church. Surviving are her husband and three brothers, Hughes Mayo, Charleston; John R. Mayo, North Carolina; Charles H. Mayo, Butte, Montana; and a sister, Mrs. Helen Harper, of North Carolina.

As you doubtless know Mr. Cherry is a Methodist Protestant, and a member of Rehoboth M. P. Church on the Creswell circuit.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. O. M. Ong, Washington, D. C., five towels, six wash clothes, five yards kitchen toweling, four cakes soap, two pencils, two dresses, two pair stockings, two ties, two brushes, two combs, three tooth brushes and one box talcum powder.

We are thankful for all contributions in above report. It is exceedingly short following the first Sunday, but again the rough weather on the first Sunday in February, we suspect, is responsible.

In this day of tottering and topling banks please send money for the Home just as soon as collected, and we will try to cash checks immediately and thus save ourselves the lossage we so frequently sustain.

Those Solicitors

Several more pastors have responded with names and addresses of solicitors for the Home, as per conference action. We thank them. We are making this one more appeal to pastors for these names and addresses. When we have waited a reasonable time after you have received this copy of the Herald, we must prepare a letter and mail to each pastor who has not mailed us these names and addresses. Please DO IT NOW and save us the expense of sending the letters. Surely you will, and we thank you.

God bless His work and His workers in every task of Kingdom Service.

Yours in His name,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

First Church, Lexington.—Our Sunday school was off some today owing to the unfavorable weather; there were only 252 present today. We had several new members to join the Sunday school today, although Concord had 82 more present last Sunday than we had. We are hoping to do better and make the contest more interesting.

In our morning preaching service, Rev. Mr. Isley preached a very interesting sermon. He had the members of the Scout troop to sit in a body and he made a good talk on the necessity of kindness; all who heard him seemed to enjoy the message very much.

We were very glad to see Mrs. J. J. Mallard, who teaches one of our Sunday school classes, back at the church today. Mrs. Mallard has suffered an attack of flu, but we are glad that she can be out again.

In the evening preaching service the church was almost filled in spite of the snow and ice which is on the ground. Bro. Isley preached on "The Three Crosses," and delivered a good sermon, holding the close attention of the large number present. We extend a cordial welcome for all to worship with us.

Albemarle.—On Sunday, Feb. 12, our pastor brought us another one of his splendid sermons using as his subject "À Vision of Christ". The Scripture Lesson was found in John 1:29. Rev. Anderson explained every point so plainly that even a little child could understand just how we can get a Vision of Christ. We always enjoy his sermons and go away feeling that we have been greatly benefitted in being present.

A good many of our members and their families have been sick for the past several weeks end we miss them when they are not able to attend church services.

Among those who have been indisposed during the past several weeks are Mrs. J. E. Gantt and son Billy. Mrs. D. F. Harkey and little Misses Jonnie Lou and Fay Anderson daughters of Rev. and Mrs. Anderson.

We are very proud to state that work on the parsonage is about completed and our qastor moved in last week. The house has been remodeled and painted and much improved in appearance and comfort.

Plans are already under way to beautify the yards with shrubbery

Last Tuesday Feb. 7 being the regular meeting day for our Ladies Aid Circles, the Lucy Hatley Circle met in the home of Mrs. D. J. Hatley. Mrs J. D. Smith had charge of the devotionals. Three new members were added to the roll. Plans were made to give a play in the church basement in the near future.

Mrs. G. D. Troutman invited the circle to meet with her next month. The hostess assisted by Mrs. J. E. Gantt and Mrs. Ira Smart erved a delightful salad course and coffee.

The Cam Snotherly Circle met with Mrs. C. E. Lowder on Tuesday night, with Mrs. J. A. Furr in charge of devotionals. Plans were made for a Valentine party and Parcel Post Sale to be held in the home of Mrs. J. U. Whitlock on Tuesday evening, February 14. After transacting other business the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Anderson, served block ice cream with cup cakes suggestive of the Valentine season.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smart, Mrs. J. C. Gaddy, Mrs. C. L. Hatley, and Mr. D. L. Hatley visited Mr. C. L. Hatley on Sunday, February 5. Mr. Hatley is a patient at U. S. V. Hospital at Oteen. They reported finding him getting along nicely and much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Moton spent Sunday, February 5, in High Point as guests in the home of Mr. Moton's mother, Mrs. J. H. Moton.

Mrs. John R. Johnson, of Charlotte, visited relatives here on Sunday, February 5.

Our sympathy goes out to Mr. S. R. Andrew, whose mother died on Thursday, February 2. Mrs. Andrew lived at Staley, N. C. She had made many friends here during frequent visits in the home of her son and was much loved by all who knew her.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—The Sunday school is progressing under the leadership of Mr. J. L. Craven. Mr. Henry Byerly opened Sunday school last Sunday.

At the usual evening service on the first Sunday, February 5, we observed Young People's Day. An inspiring sermon, especially for the young people, was delivered by the pastor, Rev. O. C. Loy. He expressed in many ways that the youth of today are as good as the youth of yesterday. It is true that there is more immortality and that conditions are worse, but it is not altogether the youth's fault. The youth are face to face with great temptations. It is our place, as the youth, to try to resist these temptations. The burdens will soon be upon the youths' backs and things will keep moving as they are now.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry Byerly.

The Christian Endeavor Society held its meeting on last Sunday after Sunday school, instead of Sunday night. The subject for the program was: "How May We Know God's Will?" Mr. Robert Swaim gave the leader's talk. Miss Bertie Craven is leader for the next meeting which will be on the fourth Sunday night.

The Christian Endeavor Society was delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. Robert Swaim on Friday evening, February 3.

North Davidson Charge.—Our attendance for both Sunday school and preaching is encouraging, regardless of the bad weather. At some of our churches the attendance is the best it has been for a number of years. However, there is yet room for improvement and we shall not be satisfied until even greater interest in the church is realized on our charge.

As to finance, we are doing about as we did last year. In this respect we are crippled by prevailing conditions. Though we are not doing as much financially as we have done, yet we are making the greatest sacrifice to carry on our work we have ever made. We find it takes much effort to do little, but this shall not cause us to quit the task. Farm produce is much more plentiful than money on our charge and the members have kept their pastor well supplied with good things to eat and plenty of good wood. Spring Hill, Canaan and Mt. Pleasant each have pounded their pastor. All these poundings were large and appreciated very much by pastor and family.

We have observed Young People's Day on our charge, but regret to say that the offerings were pitifully small. J. C. LOY.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham is always at his appointments. The second Sunday in February was cold and sleety, but he preached a good sermon on "Giving." There were 25 or 30 present to hear him.

Some are sick and could not attend.

We will have preaching the fourth Sunday for the next three months, as well as the second Sunday. All are invited.

ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, met his regular appointment with us the first Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour. He brought us another fine message, using as his text the "Prodigal Son." If we will listen to the advice that he gives us from time to time we will be better able to carry on our work for the Master.

The attendance of our Sunday school is increasing some, also the roll; but there are people in our community who need to be enrolled in our Sunday school. Our Sunday school is havig something special every Sunday. This is helping to create more interest in the Sunday school. Each second Sunday one of the classes has charge of the opening exercise.

Mrs. T. H. Moore has been appointed agent for the Children's Home for this church and Mrs. Grey Hargrove agent for the Herald. Let's give them our heartiest co-operation in this work.

Young People's Day was observed at this church the first Sunday evening. Owing to the cold weather, our attendance was small. We esjoyed the good talks that were given by the following: Rev. Mr. Holt, Mrs. Loy Roberson, Miss Verdie Marshbanks and our pastor.

The Woman's Auxiliary plans to hold its regular Thank-Offering program Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Greer's Chapel, Shiloh Charge.—The Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of Superintendent J. S. Fitzgerald. It seems that each member is beginning to realize his duty more fully and striving to perform it. More interest is being shown now than ever before. The service yesterday was the most impressive the writer has ever known. C. F. Fitzgerald, teacher of the adult class, analyzed the parable of the Sower in such a way that it could be understood by everyone. Surely everyone should prepare the soil (himself) that the seed pay grow and bring forth much fruit.

Rev. R. S. Troxler delivered a sermon such as is seldom heard. I wish it were possible for that one sermon to be preached from everf pulpit in the United States. After reading a lesson from the Sermon on the Mount, he preached a sermon from the text found in I Cor. 14:8. His subject was, "The Uncertain Call of the Church." He brought out the fact that the church is not measuring up to the standard set set by Christ and carried out by the Apostles. The fact was clear that we, as church members, are not doing our duty to rid the country its evils. As he stated, we are playing hands off and letting the world drift on and pull the church with it. We should each one do our duty and let our cause be plain and clear, backed by the Word of God.

Mr. Troxler's subject for the fourth Sunday will be "The Test of a Christian." Let us all be present to hear this pessage and see if we can measure up.

A MEMBER.

Whitaker's Church.—I am not writing because I have a great deal to report, but because some of our members in other places like to see something from home, and to let people know we are still living and, I hope, holding our own.

Our young people had charge of the Sunday services on the fifth Sunday and first Sunday night, with very good programs at each service. Weather conditions and an epidemic of flu have prevented some from attending.

We started out with a sincere desire to get off some of our Conference claims early in the year, but have met with poor success so far; however, I hope we will do better. Our pastor and his wife seem very desirous to help in any way they can to advance the work of the Kingdom, and I hope more people everywhere will wake up to their individual responsibility in the Master's service.

REPORTER.

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge. — Sunday morning at 11 o'clock our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, delivered a wonderful message from the subject, "Fainting." He said there are but two kinds of fainting—the physical and the spiritual. He said there would be no danger of physical fainting if we have good health so our body can overcome faiting, and there would be no danger of spiritual fainting if we have our faith and hope rooted and grounded in God.

Our attendance at Sunday school has been good since the new year started, in spite of an epidemic of flu.

We wish to invite all who do not attend Sunday school anywhere else to come and be with us each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

LIZZIE BAILEY, Reporter.

Friendship-Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, filled his appointment Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We enjoyed the sermon very much.

Our Sunday school attendance is not as good as we would like. Bad weather and roads may be partly the cause. We hope every member will be as regular and prompt as possible.

The first Sunday in March Rev. K. G. Holt will bring us a message which we are sure will be a helpful and inspiring one.

Mrs. O. C. Loy has been ill for some time. We are glad to report that she is improving, and hope that she will soon be well again.

Mrs. A. C. Isley passed away at her hope at Burlington January 31. Her death came as a shock to her relatives and friends, although her health had been declining for some time. Mrs. Isley is survived by her husband, two daughters, and six grandchildren, also other relatives. Funeral services were conducted from the home February 2 at 2 o'clock. Rev. L. E. Mabry was in charge of the service, assisted by Rev. S. W. Taylor, Dr. F. W. Paschall and Rev. Mr. Mann. The remains were laid to rest in Pine Hill cemetery, Burlington.

Mrs. Isley had been a faithful member at Friendship for 45 years, having joined at the age of 12 years. We believe that she is with Him whom she loved and that all her suffering is over and her soul is at rest. May God comfort all the bereaved.

There will be a misisonary thank-offering service at Friendship on the third Sunday afternoon of this month.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—The usual program of services was observed last Sunday, February 12, with the exception of the evening session, which was omitted on account of the meeting at Wesley Memorial M. E. church. The Sabbath school under the superintendency of Mr. John C. Whitesell convened at 9:45 a. m. There are classes in the different departments for all ages from the Cradle Roll to adult classes for men and women.

At the 11 o'clock worship hour the popular and beautiful "Humoresque" was played at the organ by Prof. E. B. Stimson, and the choir sang a lovely anthem, "I Am Alpha and Omega," with solo parts by Miss Anne Robbins and C. L. Gray, Jr. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an appropriate and impressive sermon on "Conformed or Transformed" apropos of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, who was born February 12, 1809, the same year in which so many noted men first saw the light. He said that to be popular with all classes, or a "hail fellow well met," as the expression goes, costs too much. To lead a conformed life is to drift and follow the same routine line of action or the line of least resistance. To be transformed means to advance, to change the character or to transform the commonplace into something unusual. Pilate and Agrippa were conformed, but Stephen and Paul did their own thinking and moved not with the common throng. To be a Christian is not to shut oneself up like a monk or a nun, but to live in the world, but not of it. I may live on the same street with a bootlegger, but I am not compelled to fraternize with him. The new morality means that it is little use to teach our children temperance and then send them out into a world filled with the temptations of legalized liquor. That is the reason why America has stamped out the whisky traffic. Someone said that it took only one night to get Israel out of Egypt, but 40 years to get Egypt out of Israel. Lincoln was a transformer; his mother taught him to read, and on her death-bed said to him, "Abe, be somebody!" He loved and feared God and read his Bible. He held high his integrity and a lofty idealism. He said, "Come what will, I will keep faith with friend and foe," and at the close of the War Between the States he exclaimed, "It is no pleasure to me to triumph over any man," and there was no triumphal entry into Richmond. He walked alone to Jeff Davis' room and with his head bowed in his hands, wept. He lived to see the realization of one fond dream, the emancipation of the slaves, but he wanted also to drive out the liquor traffic. It was a bitter day for the Southern people when the bullet of John Wilkes Booth cut short the career of the man "who belonged to the ages," and whose favorite maxim was "Faith in God is indispensable to good citizenship."

A conference on Missions and Spiritual Life, far-reaching in influence and power, was held at Wesley Memorial M. E. church, beginning at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, presided over by Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, of Charlotte. Bishop Paul B. Kern, general superintendent of missions in the Orient, lately returned from Shanghai, delivered the principal address, dealing with the missionary situation in the world today. Dr. A. W. Plyler, of Greensboro, editor of the North Carolina Chritian Advocate, concluded the conference with a message on "A United Financial Program for Methodism." At the conuclusion of this address, Presiding Elders W. A. Newell, of Greensboro, and L. D. Thompson, of Winston-Salem, presided over meetings for their respective districts. This conference was part of a movement in Southern Methodism to emphasize the benevolent and missionary work of the denomination.

On Sunday evening at 6:30 the Young People's C. E. Society, of which William Vance is president, held its weekly session. On Monday evening at 7:30 the Senior Society convened with Miss Josephine Ferguson leading a discussion on "When Is Friendship Christian?" These young people, who aid materially in the leadership of the church's activities, are now asking for contributions of old jewelry, watches, tableware, trinkets, in fact, anything containing gold, silver, or platinum, which will be sent to a refinery and sold for their market value. This money will be used for their work.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, associate hostesses being Mesdames L. J. Diffee, S. D. Sholton, and D. A. Neese. An impressive devotional service was conducted by Mrs. G. I. Humphreys on the topic, "The Joy of Jesus." A favorite hymn, "Take Time to Be Holy," was the first number. Then Mrs. Humphreys made a beautiful talk on "I Want My Joy to Be Your Legacy." She said that the church with its more than 500,000,000 members is the biggest business in the world. We are instruments for building it up, and it calls us to service for others. We must both work and pray if we would be worthy of this great legacy of Jesus. Her talk was closed with an earnest prayer. The secretary, Mrs. R. M. Riggins, read the minutes of last meeting and also of the executive board. Mrs. Wade Marlette, treasurer, reported a balance of $60.00 in the treasury after paying $25 to the college and sending a contribution through Mrs. S. W. Taylor to the Children's Home. Mrs. P. E. Lindley has resigned as secretary of thank-offering, and in her stead has been appointed Mrs. R. M. Andrews, who announced that the February service will be held on Sunday, February 26th, with a sermon by Rev. R. I. Farmer and a collection, for which $55 is needed, and she urged every member to begin now to save to this end. Three families of our own denomination are being cared for this winter, and all are asked to take their donations to the Circle meetings next Monday. Miss Mary Young, secretary of Young People's Work, urged all mothers of children from 5 to 14 years of age to send them for the organization of a Sunshine Circle. Circle No. 7, Mrs. J. H. Allred, chairman, will sell and deliver Brunswick stew next Thursday evening, February 16, for 25 cents per pint. Mrs. J. C. Whitesell reported that Prof. E. B. Stimson will be present to conduct a concert by the A Capella Choir of the College on Tuesday evening before Easter Sunday, April 16. New officers of the Auxiliary were elected for 1933-'34 as follows: President, Mrs. J. C. Whitesell; vice-president, Mrs. P. S. Kennett; recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Allred; treasurer, Mrs. Wade Marlette. Coffee and sandwiches were then served to the 40 members in attendance by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Clyde Cox and Mrs. Jack Tucker, daughter of Mrs. Moffitt.

Mr. L. F. Ferree has been appointed chairman for the Methodist Protestant Herald, and if he equals Mr. E. L. Douglas in efficiency and as a "go-getter," he will be obliged to hustle in and out of season.

The stewards are earnestly urged to attend an important meeting Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross H. Davis will be hosts to the Wedneday evening prayer service at their home, 605 Denny street.

We regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. John H. Walker and Mr. J. S. Pickett.

Mrs. Robert G. Garland spent the week-end with Mrs. Frances Wray Bello in Readsville.

Mrs. L. H. Zimmerman, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in High Point Hospital, has recovered satisfactorily, and was taken to her home on Montlieu Avenue last Sunday. This is good news to many friends.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. O. R. York in the death of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Anne Patterson at her home near Ramseur, following a brief illness from influenza and a heart affection. She lived her entire life in the same community, and was well known and greatly loved. Her funeral was held last Friday afternoon at Patterson's Grove church, of which she was a faithful member since her early childhood.

At the meeting of the Alexander Martin chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. H. Harriss on West Broad street, Miss Anne Robbins sang very sweetly two appropriate solos, "Live On, Washington" and "Father of the Lord We Love."

Miss Ruth Bellamy, instructor of expression in High Point College, will have charge of the program at the meeting of the Music-Literature department of the Woman's Club on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edgar Whitener. A number of poems about Lincoln will be presented.

Formal dedication exercises of the new gymnasium at the college will be held Thursday evening when it is opened for the first time. Coach C. C. Collins, of the University will deliver the principal address. Mrs. W. T. Bost, of Raleigh, state commissioner of charities, will be present. Dr. S. W. Taylor, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the College, will accept the building. Harvey Warlick, of Fallston, president of the Senior class of 1932, which sponsored the venture, will make the presentation with Carl Smith, of this city, who is president of the present Senior class. Dr. G. I. Humphreys and Mayor C. S. Grayson will also appear on the program. Rev. Nat M. Harrison has arranged this entertaining program. The gymnasium is not yet entirely finished, but is ready for games and the formal dedication.

Draper.—Our church is still on the upward road. There is a spirit of revival with us. Souls are being saved at both preaching and prayer services. There have been 28 additions to the church since Conference.

Our Sunday school is still on the increase; so is the congregation at preaching services. We have a fine C. E. Society, with Miss Leona Loy as president. The young people are showing a good interest in church work.

We were indeed glad our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, was back with us Sunday. He had been called to Georgia on account of the illness of his mother. His health has not been so good for several weeks. We are trusting in God that He will heal his body and give him strength to carry on the noble work he is doing in Draper.

Our church has shown a steady growth ever since he came to us as pastor. Pray for us as a church that we may stay humble at the feet of Jesus, giving God all the honor and glory.

Brower's Chapel, Richland Circuit.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, though we've had some bad weather and many could not get to church. There is much sickness in our community. My father, Mr. Isaac Brown, is seriously sick. He has been ill several weeks.

We are glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Joyner back with us again. We have two services a month at our church, the fourth Sunday at 11 a. m. and the second Sunday at 2 o'clock.

An interesting meeting of Circle No. 1 was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Vestal in Asheboro February 2. Mrs. Thomas Brown made an inspiring talk on the duties of a church member; then Miss Effie Brown gave a reading, the title being "The Song We Meant to Sing;" Mrs. E. M. Ragsdale then gave a reading on "The Hidden Kettle." Following the conclusion of business a report from the apron committee proved of intense interest. An apron had been covered with patches under which offerings were found to the amount of $11.00. Upon roll rall by Mrs. Zelle Brown and payment of dues the total amount of money collected was $15.25. There was general satisfaction expressed over the pleasure and results of the meeting. The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting and a social hour was enjoyed. The next monthly meeting will be held the 2nd of March at the home of Mrs. D. A. Henley, of Asheboro.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ridge, Wednesday, February 1st, a daughter, Mary Katherine. Mrs. Ridge was removed to High Point Hospital last week for treatment and at this writing is very ill. Her many friends are hoping for her recovery.

The first quarterly conference was held at the parsonage on Thursday night, February 2nd. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the Annual Conference, was present for the conference. Reports showed all phases of the work of the church were moving forward.

The following Sunday, February 5th, communion was observed with a large number of members and visitors partaking. The pastor's subject was "Bread." We were glad to receive into church memberhip at this time Mrs. Thomas Redding and Miss Leona Wood.

"Does It Pay to Pray?" was the pastor's evening Bible talk in the social room of the church. All are enjoying these evening talks on requested subjects. Last Sunday morning we enjoyed a very helpful message on "Suggestion." At this service Mr. and Mr. Euclid Auman and Miss Dorothy Lewallen united with our church. We were happy to receive these.

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held interesting meetings in the various homes last week.

The February thank-offering sevrice was held in the church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. A missionary pageant was presented by members of Circles 4 and 5, with Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., and Miss Exie Calicutt, as chairmen, in charge. Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, secretary of Thank-Offering, gave an interesting talk on Missions. The offering for missions was very good.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—The first Sunday of this month Sunday school was opened with the Christian Endeavor program being led by Mrs. Joyner Lemons. C. E. was also reorganized at this time; Mrs. Lemons, president; Alice May Butler, vice-president; Joe Butler, secretary; Howard Apple, Marguerite Bartee and Elbert Wright, program committee. Last Sunday night the society met at the home of Mrs. John Bartee with Durward Apple as leader. Bro. Trollinger was with us Sunday morning and preached one of his best sermons. It seems the longer he stays with us the more we people at Midway learn to appreciate him. He is doing a great work in his quiet way.

There has been a Ladies' Aid Society organized at this place. We hope to do good work.

The menfolks also have a mind to do things. They are working on and trying to beautify the church grounds and cemetery. Pray for us that we may be faithful.

Concord.—On February 5 I was with Bro. W. M. Loy at Concord, Saxapahaw Charge. Young People's Day was observed at that time. The young people showed their interest by being present. Some of them took part on the program, and their selections were real good. I enjoyed being with Bro. Loy very much.

Last Sunday I was with Bro. H. L. Isley on Siler City Charge. Young People's Day was observed at Hope church. The attendance was good, even though the ground was covered with ice.

After services were over we were invited to take dinner with Bro. Vestal. The meal was enjoyed by all.

In the afternoon we went to Pine Grove. As this was the regular preaching appointment, Bro. Isley filled the pulpjt in that capacity. The sermon was as good as I have listened to in some time. The writer made a few remarks at the close of the sermon. The attendance was good, and everyone seemed to enjoy the service very much.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—On Sunday, January 29, Young People's Day was observed at Mt. Zion. Some of the other churches on this charge were represented by Pauline Watson and Louise Gordon. Our church, Mt. Zion, was highly entertained and enlightened on the purpose of Young People's Day by the splendid reading of appropriate articles which were rendered by Miss Lola Barbee and Mr. Elbert Love. The program was made more interesting because of the presence of Mr. J. L. Christian, who addressed the young people. During his discourse the writer understood the speaker to say "The young people of this day and age are as good as ever," and I surely agree with him. The young people today as I see them, are following the example set by older people. I might also add, by older church members. How can we expect our boys and girls to grow up to be good Christian men and women if we older church members do not set the best example we can? We can talk to boys and girls about the correct ways of Christian living, and they will answer you with something like this: "Oh, I don't guess that's wrong, Mr. So and So. Mind you, nine times out of ten an older church member was with us." So it behooves us as church members to set the right example. In closing his address Mr. Christian advised the young people to hold on, not lose hope; hold to the strands of faith and attend church services. I feel, though, that our pastor brought the best message of all. Brother Hunter declared that if we wished to enjoy prosperity once more, to finance the church and "pay our Lord His dues." It is a fact our preachers will never bring back prosperity, neither will they save the world, but if we would make the sacrifice that they do I'll just say that Mt. Zion would go over the top financially. It's not a very hard job to raise $25.00 or $30.00 at a gathering for some amusement. Now get this same crowd in the church and pass the hat around and see what kind of magic takes place. Here is what happens: After the baskets have given everyone an opportunity to contribute and have settled back in their accustomed places they contain about one-fifteenth as much as they contained for amusement. What's the matter with us? Broke? Yes, but not altogether. We just don't feel that the church suffers. How about it?

Our attendance holds its own very well during the long spell of inclement weather. We hope, though, for better attendance when the "ground-hog" spell of weather is over.

We are glad to find ourselves able to report that those who were on the sick list in our last report are improving.

Quite a change is taking place around Mt. Zion church. Those in need of employment around Mt. Zion are being relieved through the Red Cross in the form of work which is being done on the church grounds. We are planning to sell some wood to pay for the paint which we plan to put on our church. This, we hope, will be completed in the near future.

We feel ourselves at Mt. Zion weakened since the death of Mrs. Sally Ann Lane. She was born in 1872, and died in 1933. Her husband preceded her beyond. She is survived by 10 children, three sisters and a host of grandchildren and friends to mourn their loss. Sister Lane professed faith in Christ and joined the church at Mt. Zion in 1883, living a beautiful, sacrificing Christian life until her Maker called her home. The floral tributes spoke the esteem with which she was held by her loved ones. Services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, after which the remains were laid to rest beside her husband in the Mt. Zion cemetery. We extend to the bereaved family our sympathy.

Charlotte.—Pastor Hendry has been confined to his bed for a week with tonsilitis; consequently, we had no preaching Sunday. He is improving.

May God grant speedy recoveries to others who are ill at this time.

The basketball teams, both boys and girls, are enjoying their games. They get beat occasionally, but what of it? They are good sports. Indian Trail beat them at their most recent game. Good news was imparted to them Sunday by Brother J. C. Penny. Within two weeks some good fairies are erecting a building for sports on the lot back of the church.

The Auxiliary will meet Tuesday with Mrs. Fowler. Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter will have charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Little, the president, will preside.

Our C. E. met at Caldwell Memorial church Sunday evening with the other C. E. societies of the city in a joint program commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the C. E. by Dr. Clark.

We are delighted to have Mrs. Carpenter back with us in the work after an extended absence. We need our good workers.

It is good to read in the Herald of the activities of our young people. We have an interesting, wide-awake crowd of them here. Due to a misunderstanding of the time they will put on their program later. Since the organization of the Young People's Department under the supervision of Mrs. J. H. McCall and Mr. Herbert Garrison they have their own opening and closing exercises.

The C. E. had a Valentine party in the Sunday school rooms Friday evening, despite the ice-covered ground. They had a good time.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Circuit.—We have have not reported in so long that we hardly know where to begin. Sunday services were very good for unfavorable weather. The attendance at both Sunday school and church was fair. Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, gave us a wonderful sermon: Exodus 14:14-15: "The Lord shall fight for you and ye shall hold your peace. And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

We all need to be filled with a keen desire to press onward and upward, to do bigger and better things, in a bigger and better way.

Our Sunday school attendance has been off some during the winter season but as spring opens we are hoping our attendance will be better than ever. We want to make this the most successful year we've had.

Our next preaching service will be the fourth Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. We hope to have a large crowd present.

We are very glad to have our beloved pastor back with us another year. We are thankful that we can have such a man in our community.

Quite a few people in the community have been sick with flu. We are wishing for all the sick a speedy recovery.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. P. E. Bingham was a little late on account of car trouble. The class leader called on Mr. E. B. Pair to say a few words. He brought out some fine points about our Sunday school lesson. When Mr. Bingham arrived he gave us one of the best sermons he has ever delivered. His text was found in St. Matthew 25:40: "I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

Three of our classes have consolidated. Miss Erma Hawkins is the teacher in Mr. Ambrose Pittard's place.

Miss Clara Hawkins had charge of the C. E. Society Sunday afternoon.

Miss Erma Hawkins and Miss Mildred Powell spent the week-end with Miss Maggie Hawkins.

We are glad to report our church yard is being cleaned up nicely for the coming spring.

Mr. Leo Pittard was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pittard, the third, fourth and fifth.

Mr. Bingham and Mrs. J. M. Morris were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pair Sunday.

Miss Clara Hawkins and Miss Linda Powell spent Saturday night with Miss Esther Hawkins.

Miss Vera Morris was the dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hawkins Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawkins visited Mr. Hawkins' uncle, Mr. J. D. Hawkins, Sunday.

West End, Thomasville.—Rev. H. W. Bell brought us an interesting message Sunday morning. His subject was "The Way Out."

Dr. R. M. Andrew brought a very interesting message Sunday night, February 12.

The Men's Bible Class entertained the Ladies' Bible Class with an oyster supper at their regular monthly class meeting at the Binkley storehouse on Tuesday night.

The Thomasville C. E. City Union held their monthly meeting at the Heidelburg Reform church on Thursday night, February 2. West End church won the banner from the First M. P. church for the next month by 190 points. The Reform people put on an interesting program.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school Sunday was 306. The attendance at the preaching service was good and Mr. Morgan gave us another good message. His subject was "What a Christian Ought to Be." Text: "Ye are the salt of the earth."

We were delighted to have the Baraca boys and men sing for us at the 11 o'clock hour. They gave us two selections. We hope they will sing for us often.

Mr. Durant Nash, and daughter, Miss Mary Lillie Nash, gave us a beautiful selection.

Sunday night Mr. Morgan read for his Scripture the 7th chapter of II Kings. The subject was "The Four Lepers." Sunday night the Intermediate choir sang very sweetly "In the Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

Last Wednesday night Mr. Durant Nash had charge of our prayer service. He made a very interesting talk and he and his daughter sang a duet. Mr. Nash has over 100 hymn stories, and we hope he will tell us all of them. Last Wednesday night he gave us the story of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Next Wednesday night he will tell us the story of "Just As I Am."

On Tuesday night of this week the Ladies' Aid Society will have a Depression Valentine Party. They are expecting a good crowd and they are hoping to put on a good program. A silver offering will be taken.

We are glad to report that some of our sick folks are much better, but we still have some who are very sick. Grandma Thomas is still real sick. Mrs. W. B. Newton has returned from the hospital but she is not getting along so well. Mr. G. A. Winecoff is still improving. Little Ernestine and Jeanette Litaker and Betty Jolene Morgan are some better.

Miss Eva Winecoff and Mr. Guy Bradford were married November 9, 1932. We just read the announcement in our daily paper Saturday. They will make their home for the present with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Winecoff. They were married in the Baptist parsonage in Charlotte. Dr. Luther Little performed the ceremony. We wish for them a bright and happy future.

On last Friday morning at 8 o'clock our hearts were made sad when the death angel came and claimed the life of our neighbor and uncle of the writer, Mr. A. M. Honeycutt. He had been in bad health for some time with heart trouble, and his condition became worse last Thursday. His funeral was conducted from the McGill Street Baptist church Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Clyde E. Baucom, pastor of the church, and Rev. E. S. Summers, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. J. M. Morgan, pastor of the First M. P. church, had charge of the funeral service.

Mrs. Small, mother of Mrs. Tom Rabon, fell last Saturday and broke her hip. She was carried to the hospital, but complications set in and she died at 6 o'clock Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Rabon are members of our church and Mrs. Small was a member of the Forest Hill M. E. church. Rev. Paul Harden and Rev. J. M. Morgan will have charge of the funeral service.

BERTHA EARNHARDT, Reporter.

State Street, Lexington.—The attendance at Sunday school was unusually good Sunday morning considering the very inclement weather.

Dr. Abernethy, pastor of the First M. E. church here, preached for us Sunday evening while Dr. Maier preached for Dr. Abernethy's congregation at the M. E. church.

Our people were helped and delighted by Dr. Abernethy's address and the M. E. congregation appreciated very much Dr. Maier's address to them. Many who heard Dr. Maier Sunday evening have expressed great appreciation for the inspiration they received.

A week ago Sunday evening the Friedburg Chorus delighted a large audience with splendid vocal music. We are hoping to have these fine singers with us again soon.

We were glad to have a number of our young friends with us as visitors a week ago Sunday morning. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Leonard, of Charlotte; Miss Mildred Leonard, student at High Point College; Miss Lila Aron, of the faculty of Reeds High School, and Mr. and Mrs. Earnhardt, of Thomasville. Mrs. Earnhardt was Miss Ruth Maier before her recent marriage, and is a niece of our pastor.

All the departments of the church's activities are doing good work. A new department has been created since the coming of Dr. and Mrs. Maier—that of a Junior congregation, directed by Mrs. Maier Sunday mornings. All the children up to about 12 years of age have their separate worship period in the church basement while Dr. Maier addresses the older children and adults. This feature is proving very satisfactory in every way. The children are enthusiastic about it and receive great help from it.

Worthville, Randleman Charge.—The Sabbath school met as usual on Sunday morning under the leadership of Superintendent F. E. Allred. The different departments are organized, with classes for all ages from the Cradle Roll department, under Mrs. D. J. Allred, the Primary under with Mrs. C. C. Ward, Juniors under Miss Josephine Giles, the Juniors Philatheas under Mr. J. A. Ferress, the Junior Baracas under Mr. F. E. Allred; Miss Mattie Yow in charge of the Home department; Mr. C. C. Ward, Senior Baraca department, and the Senior Philathea class under the leadership of Mr. C. O. Boyd.

At the 11 o'clock service Rev. Joel B. Trogdon brought a very helpful sermon. The communion service was held at this service.

The Junior Philathea class held their monthly meeting last Thursday evening at the home of Misses Josephine and Opal Giles, with Mrs. W. L. Ward, Jr., conducting the devotional exercises, after which Mr. J. A. Ferree led in prayer. The entire class joined in singing "Take Time to Be Holy," and "We Shall See the King Some Day." Mrs. W. L. Ward, Jr., president, presided over the business session. It was decided the next meeting would be held with Miss Joyce Johnson. Miss Ruth Ward was elected program chairman for the next meeting.

At the conclusion of the business session the members enjoyed games and contests appropriate to the Valentine season. A Valentine box was enjoyed and delightful refreshments were served. REPORTER.

Corinth, Little Charge.—Pastor Bingham delivered a very impressive sermon on the first Sunday.

The third Sunday night service was discontinued until April.

There has been right much improvement made on our church cemetery and church yard by the Federal Relief Employes. We can thank B. F. Morris for looking after and having this work done.

On January 31st Mrs. Walter Cooley's funeral was preached in this church by her pastor, Rev. Kirk, of Halifax, assisted by Rev. Kirk, of Roanoke Rapids. Interment was in the church cemetery. Our deepest sympathy goes out to her husband and children.

Friday, February 3rd, funeral service for D. Travis Fletcher, who passed away at his home in Durham, was conducted at this church by Rev. P. E. Bingham. Interment was in the church cemetery by the side of his wife.

A marriage of much interest throughout this section was solemnized Saturday, February 4th, when Miss Mary Louise Inscoe became the bride of Mr. Tommie Fleming Partin, of Scotland Neck, N. C. The ceremony was performed in the Baptist church at Emporia, Va., Rev. Trimball officiating. Mrs. Partin is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Howard Inscoe of this community and has been a lot of help in our church. She is a member of the faculty of Dawson community.

TEAMS, WAGONS, TRUCKS, AND TRACTORS WANTED AT H. P. COLLEGE

We have been given about $15,000 worth of free labor for the purpose of completing our gymnasium, making drives and walks on the campus, transplanting trees and shrubbery on the campus, and beautifying same in general. Also for the purpose of building a much needed athletic field.

To get the most out of this labor we need teams, wagons, tractors and trucks. For instance, one pair of mules with a drag pan will move more dirt in a day than fifty men will with a wheelbarrow, or one tractor with a tractor scoop will move more dirt in one day than two teams will with a drag pan, and not require any more man labor. We need these things to get the maximum out of this free labor.

There are many Methodist Protestants over North Carolina who have just these things standing idle and which they would like to contribute to this cause.

We will feed the team and take good care of it; we will also provide the fuel for the trucks and tractors; we will send for them and return them whenever the owners desire. If you can spare them for only a week at a time it will help greatly. Those who would like help in this respect will please notify the undersigned at once.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Sykes

Mrs. Daisy Sykes died Sunday morning, February 5th, at her home in Elland, N. C. Funeral services were conducted by W. M. Loy and the writer February 6th at Chestnut Ridge church, after which the remains were placed in the church cemetery.

Sister Sykes had been a member of Chestnut Ridge church for a number of years. She lived to see all her children grow to young manhood and womanhood, and become members of the church.

Her husband died about 16 years ago, leaving her with six small children. "She hath done what she could" in keeping them together and seeing them all become members of the church.

May God comfort all the bereaved ones.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Chandler

Bro. C. C. Chandler, born May 2, 1861, died January 4, 1933. He was a native of Montgomery county, and was a son of the late Wilson and Katherine Chandler.

On January 13, 1888, he was married to Miss Ella Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Morris, of the Denton section. This union was blessed with two daughters, both of whom he saw crowned in womanhood.

For a number of years he had been a patient sufferer, but for the last year had been practically confined to his room and bed. He was a loving and gentle father and husband, a devoted and helpful citizen and neighbor. Kindness and a cheerful word to those he chanced to meet were crowning characteristics of his deportment and life. He was a loyal and devoted member of the Methodist Protestant church, for several years serving it in official capacity.

He leaves to mourn his going his beloved wife and companion, who had stood by him in sickness and health for the last 44 years; two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Cates, of Raleigh, and Miss Lillie Chandler, who still resides with her sick mother, who has been practically an invalid for the last 18 months; his step-mother, Mrs. Nettie Chandler, of Salisbury; four brothers, John and Mock, of Albemarle, and Sam of Salisbury, and Dock, of Charlotte. Two grand-children, Miss Marjorie and Charlie Cates, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held in Denton M. P. church in the presence of a large concourse of people. The services were conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogdon, Rev. E. A. Bingham, former pastors, Rev. A. B. Sisk, and the Rev. D. R. Martin, of this city. The body was laid to rest in Denton cemetery beneath a bank of flowers which bespoke the high esteem in which he was held. May the God of all comfort be with his dear loved ones who feel so keenly their loss, to heal the aching voids and occupy that vacant chair. We feel sure our loss to the community, church and home is his eternal gain. The words of Montgomery are fitting:

> "The pains of death are past,
>   Labor and sorrows ceased;
> And life's long warfare closed at last,
>   His soul is found in peace.
> Soldier of Christ, well done,
>   Praise be thy employ;
> And while the eternal ages run,
>   Rest in thy Savior's joy."

—A Friend.

P. S.—The family wishes to use this means to offer their humble thanks to those who have cheered and helped them in these hours of grief and bereavement. Your kindness is beyond price, and our gratitude cannot be expressed in words.

Mrs. Chandler and Family.

REV. E. G. COWAN IN HOSPITAL

Weaverville, N. C., Feb. 11, 1933.

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

Just a line to let you know Mr Cowan has just undergone an operation at Norborn Hospital, Asheville. He has rallied nicely and hopes to be here only two weeks longer. The people of our charge have been very kind and thoughtful of us during this affliction. The people of Weaverville have indeed been friends. Rev. J. S. Williams and his wife have indeed been the good samaritans in taking me in so I could be with Mr. Cowan more. They surely have proved that they live their religion daily.

Through the Herald I wish to thank everyone for their love and kindness.

The work is doing nicely. The cold is severe; also some of our roads are very bad, but God's love still shines above.

Best wishes for the Herald, its readers, editor and publisher.

Yours truly,
MRS. E. G. COWAN.

HOW CONFERENCE MIGHT BE ENTERTAINED

We think it a serious condition in our church that our Annual Conference has had no invitation to meet with any church. Is it because it holds such a long session? If that be so, we suggest that the time used for anything except Conference business be cut out and shorten the session. We believe it would be a blessing to any circuit in our Conference that has church room sufficient to entertain it, have meet with them and let all the churches of the circuit help entertain by furnishing the meals (dinner and supper as it used to be called) on the ground, ones convenient rooms and breakfast, and there would be no cost to Conference and the ones who furnished would be no poorer. No one was ever made poorer by willingly entertaining people who meet to transact the Lord's business.

Our rural people are becoming poor in spiritual things since preachers cease to spend nights, or even taken meals, unless especially invited, with church members. When preachers lived with their people they had less empty pews. Has the automobile been for the uplift of our beloved Zion? We see where the question has been asked, to solve the gas problem for the pastor. We suggest to ones physically able to park their cars convenient to home and do like Jesus did. St. Luke 19:5: go uninvited and walk, which will save money and produce and foster healthier bodies. We know some who are not able to do this, but there will always be someone who will furnish horse or mule to ride. We realize the serious condition of money matters in our churches today, and to our women who are having bridge parties we suggest that they have Bible parties, and given money which is used to entertain to the urgent needs of the Lord's cause.

Our state and nation need to get back to God's law. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." How many are raising a protest to Sunday athletics? God will surely punish if it is allowed, for none of His laws have been changed. Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel for the glory of God and the upbuilding of our church and nation.

A METHODIST PROTESTANT.

FOR SALE

I have decided to sell my Theological Books. Pulpit Commentary, etc., a a great sacrifice. Some young man that needs them can now get them at a price that here before he could not afford. Can't tell they have been used.

I also have a Chrysler Sedan, 77, 1931 model looks like new and runs like new. I will sacrifice at $600.00.

I need money is why I am doing this. I must live some way. I am not a superannuate. I have no work. My little business is too small to get much of a living out of. I have cut to the bone to try to exist.

I've sent the above thinking that some one may need and can buy the books at the sacrifice price. H. L. POWELL.

WESTERN PASTOR'S FEDERATION MEETS AT LOVE'S GROVE

On January 30 the pastors met with Brother Reed and the Love's Grove people.

After an impressive devotional service led by M. C. Henderson, Dr. Andrews, president of the Federation, took charge. He brought the message of the morning, which was inspiring and challenging.

New officers were elected for the coming year as follows: G. H. Hendry, president; E. A. Bingham, secretary.

The Program committee was requested to prepare a program on evangelism for the next meeting, which is to be held at Lincolnton M. P. church, on Monday after the fourth Sunday in May.

It did not seem like any depression to see such a bountiful table spread at the noon hour. We certainly do thank these good people and their pastor for this fine entertainment.

In the afternoon the speakers were A. D. Shelton, Robert Short, J. R. Anderson, and G. H. Hendry. They each brought out some helpful thoughts on the benefits to be derived from the depression.

We thank each one for taking their part on the program. E. A. BINGHAM.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

SILER CITY C. E. SOCIETY

The C. E. Society observed Young People's Week, beginning by having charge of the Wednesday evening prayer service. At this time a play was given, "Hold Me Close to Thy Cross." This was a very impressive play and each character did his or her part to perfection. We were indeed glad to have our pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Isley, with us at that time, and also for the remarks Mr. Isley made at the close of the service.

On Sunday, February 5, the society had charge of all church services beginning with Sunday school. The program sent out by Mr. Gibbs was used at each service. In the devotionals for Sunday school, Misses Verda Shaw Fox and Lucille Poole sang a lovely duet, "Come Unto Me," which was enjoyed by all those present. For church service Miss Minnie Cooper sang as a solo "The Prayer Perfect," by Stenson. Mr. Isley was with us and delivered a very inspiring message to the young people. He read for the Scripture reading a part of the 34th chapter of 2nd Chronicles, using as his text a part of the third verse, "While he was yet young he began to seek after the God of David his father," the theme being "Youthful Piety."

The society had its regular meeting at 6 with Miss Cleta F. Andrew as leader. Talks were made by several of the Endeavorers and also one by Mr. Isley. Miss Arlena Poole sang a special number for this meeting.

At 7 a pageant, "The Legend Beautiful," was presented. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Braxton and Miss Sallie Smith proved themselves very efficient leaders for this occasion, Mr. Braxton taking the reader's part while Miss Lucille Poole and Garland Roberts acted the part of the monk and Vision very effectively. The music for all the services was under the direction of Miss Minnie Cooper and Miss Verda Shaw Fox acted as soloist for the evening. Also Mr. Evans Stone sang a beautiful number, "Think on Thy Way," by Scholfield. The pageant was made more beautiful by the use of spotlights with the different colored gelatins which was operated very skilfully by one of our Endeavorers, Mr. D. G. Fox. At each of the above services a very generous collection was taken, but not what we would like for it to have been.

Jesus Saves

Consecration

Change and decay is all I see
In that which speaks of earth to me;
For things of time and sense deny
Our God His place beneath the sky.

O God, my Father, Helper mild,
Make me discern I am Thy child;
My life from Thee who made it came,
A child of God is still my name.

All I possess Thou lendest me
Because Thy grace is full and free;
Some higher purpose Thou did'st plan
Than sordid use of what's in man.

It is by power of grace divine
That consecration may be mine;
Then help me, Lord, from day to day
Thy Spirit's call hear and obey.

Four Things

At least four things have been outstanding in the growth and progress of our conference. Neither should be esteemed above another, for each one holds a unique place and should demand an equal amount of consideration and justice. The Methodist Protestant Herald, successor to Our Church Record, has no doubt been the greatest single influence in promoting every worthy cause started by our conference. As we do know, the Methodist Protestant Publishing House of Greensboro, which was one time the principal means of support, has been sold and used for building our college. This leaves our church paper practically without any support except from the subscribers, which is far from enough to meet the expense of publication. Is there any cause in the conference more worthy of immediate attention and fair consideration than the paper that has meant so much to our conference, our church and our homes?

Next in our conference and in our hearts is our Children's Home. This institution, called "the heart of our conference," has been the rallying point of the interest and love of our people. The spiritual life of our conference has been greatly quickened by the Children's Home. Many churches and individuals that had never done any definite Christian work have found themselves in responding to the call of "these little ones." At present this Home which is sharing its life and property with our college must receive its just share of attention or else our candlestick may be removed out of its place.

Our superannuates are the men and women that have laid the foundations on which we are trying to build. Whatever we may do a large share of the credit goes to them. A study of our conference Journal will tell us these "Soldiers of the Cross" that have come up through lean years, larger fields, rough roads and small pay are not receiving fair consideration. At present their means of support provided by the conference is "tied up," and we don't know how or when we can untie it. These are they that have enough "not their own"—all the more reason why we should remember them.

The High Point College, our educational center and youngest child of the conference has been the pride of our conference for several years. The growing child needs more food and attntion than at any other period in life—hence the many calls. If we respond now we may have cause to point with still more pride in later years, when this institution shall be a prime factor in the educational life of the state and church.

I have written of four causes in our conference that call for special attention and to conclude with saying, treat all alike—for it is never right to rob Peter to pay Paul or any one else.

—Brother F. L. Gibbs, Secretary of our Board of Young People's Work, has been called to a broader field in a similar work for an interdenominational organization. We wish him success in this larger field if sense of duty moves him to accept it.

—Congress has voted to resubmit the prohibition amendment to the people of the states in conventions. This imposes a burden on the advocates of prohibition to prevent the wets doing away with prohibition altogether. A call for a dry convention signed by nearly a thousand citizens has been issued. This convention will be held in Washington, D. C., on March 7 and 8. All are invited and we hope some of our readers may attend.

—Correction: In Brother Gerringer's article last week, second paragraph, fourth line from the last, read Is it unreasonable—instead of "It is unreasonable."

—High Point College Gymnasium is now a reality. Brother Harrisons' enthusiasm for it has prevailed. The depression helped build largely. The Federal Government gave the labor of unemployed men whom it was supporting. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good."

—Two attempts have been made to assassinate President-Elect Roosevelt; with bullets and with a bomb. He is closely attended by guards, as usual.

WANTED, A LIGHT THAT PENETRATES FOG

In a lighthouse on Heligoland Island, a German possession in the North Sea, there was a ten thousand candle power kerosene light.

With the development and use of electric current, kerosene seemed a bit out of date, and something more powerful was wanted. The result was that this ten thousand candle power kerosene light was replaced by a one million candle power electric light.

Not long after this change, messages began coming into the offices of the British Shipping Board. Mariners complained that this new light could not be seen well through fog.

Testings by experts showed that there was some good quality in the kerosene light that was not so abundant in the electric light—namely, the red rays. These were especially needed to enable light to penetrate fog.

Night is not always dark. Sometimes, and in some places, the moon and stars make the night almost as light as day—with some added intriguing interest and beauty. Even a pitch dark night is not so bad if you have a good lantern, a flash light, or an automobile headlight.

A night that is not only without the light of sun, moon, and stars, but is also filled with fog, is indeed difficult to overcome. Any light penetrates only a limited distance, illuminating only a limited area. The purpose of experts is to get the best, the most penetrating light possible.

Such is life, intellectually, morally, and spiritually. We need a light that will successfully pass through the dense fog and confusion, the uncertainty and vagueness of much of our present-day human thinking and living.

There are many spheres, or activities, of life where added light is needed in these times. Banks of fog surround and rest upon problems, and penetrating red rays are required. Here are a few of the more important matters that greatly concern our people these days.

1. Light is needed on how to make a living, and on how to provide for old age and disability. While men live in this world they are of necessity to be concerned with what they shall eat, what they shall drink, and with what they shall comfortably clothe and shelter themselves—and with how they may provide for themselves when old age, disability, or unemployment set them to one side.

The time was when Benjamin Franklin was our philosopher and guide along these lines. Early to bed and early to rise, and the long waking hours filled with honest unremitting toil, was the foundation for the material well-being of the American family. Economy, making the most of the resources and opportunities at hand, and seeing that the last bit of wear was extracted from every garment and tool before they were discarded.

There is still large place for such teaching. Prosperity cannot be induced to return by a program of spending and wasting. Our daily requirements should be reasonably well-provided for, but it is only by saving and wise investing that capital can be built up and great enterprises be made possible.

We are in need of another prophet to supplement the homely advice of Franklin. Multiplied machines, immense factories, and mass production have changed many things. Who will teach us to so utilize machines as to secure for the operatives a fair share of benefits from them, to so work men and women in large numbers in immense factories and on great out-door projects, and at the same time elevate and enrich their lives instead of dehumanizing them? Who will teach us how to turn the wide stream of food, and other products, brought in such abundance to the markets, into the homes of the multitudes who are so eager in these days to engage in mass production?

Paul's statement of the two-fold principle of the Christian social life is a light that should penetrate much fog: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ . . . For each man shall bear his own burden." We should, like real men, be glad to do our full share of the world's work. If we are Christian men, we should be ready to secure social justice for the weak, and to help the unfortunate over life's difficult places.

2. Light is needed on national and world problems and enterprises, looking toward peace and good will among men. Our world becomes smaller as the means of rapid communication and easy travel increase. But that is in no reason why the minds of men should retain littleness and narrowness. Members of the Know Nothing party had their day. Knights of the Ku Klux Klan—with hatred for Jews, Negroes, and other races and nationalities generally—has gone the way such organizations deserve to go. The talk about one hundred per cent Americanism, recently rife in the ranks of the D. A. R. and the American Legion, is, fortunately, not so frequently heard now. But the cry, "Buy American," is loudly sounded in many places—from the halls of Congress down, or up. Do we want to turn back from our shores the products of Shakespeare, Tennyson, Goethe, Wagner, Jenny Lind, Gunod, Raphael, and their spiritual children? Do we want to live without tea and coffee, and the many fruits and spices we draw from other lands? Do we want to give up the prospect of selling our goods to residents of other lands?

Only a divine light can penetrate this dense fog of ignorance and prejudice. The people of the earth are one people. It is only by acquaintance, understanding, co-operation, a mutually profitable exchange of goods, and a sharing of our religious and cultural acquisitions that we may expect a real and abiding prosperity. These will give not only material well-being but what is of even greater importance just now, comfort and poise in the midst of distraction and distress.

3. We need a light to penetrate the fog and darkness by many associated with the thought of the life beyond. Natural clouds and darkness are indeed round about us as we gaze toward the other side. Literal, definite, Utopian assurances—lacking any substantial foundation in reason and philosophy—are not to be relied upon. However, there is a light which lighteneth every man—even Jesus—and he has come into the world. It is our privilege to walk in the light as He is in the light. Rays of comfort and hope reach us through science; and such men as Robert Millikan and Michael Pupin are strengthened by that light, and they are sharing their confidence with others. Lyman Abbott passed on in peace, his mind adjusted to the changes in thinking made necessary by the never learning. Dr. S. P. Cadman, Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, and many others are working on in that light as the evening shadows lengthen.

Life is one. The here and the there, the present and the future, are all together in one. The feeling grows among thoughtful men, I think, that as God now and here lifts up the righteous when he falls, and strengthens the weak as they endeavore to walk in the way of righteousness, so he will be with us in all lands—even in the land that is very far off.

THEY PRAYED—SOMETHING HAPPENED

Does it pay to pray? Well Noah prayed and found favor in the eyes of the Lord in a time of judgment crisis his family was saved and he condemned the world that then was becoming heir of ''the righteousness which is by faith.''

Abraham prayed until the fire fell upon his sacrifice and God spoke a powerful covenant out of heaven.

Joseph prayed until God delivered him out of his affliction.

Moses prayed in the wilderness until forty years was expired and there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord in a burning bush.

Daniel prayed and what happened.

Elijah prayed and no rain fell for three years and again he prayed and there was the sound of abundance of rain.

Elisha prayed and the son of his friend was restored to life.

David prayed until Saul and all his well-trained army could not catch him.

Solomon prayed and became the wisest of men; our blessed Lord found prayer to be far more important than teaching or performing of miracles.

Moody prayed and became a soul-winner.

And if we church members would pray as God would have his children to do something would happen too, but, oh we are too busy to pray. We have so much to do and no time to read our Bible and have family prayers any more, just going in a rush from morning till night but just wait till trouble comes upon us, then we have time to pray; yes we don't mind going down on our knees, for we feel the need of Lord then. It is a wonder if the Lord don't send more things upon us than he does.

There are mothers and fathers that know that their children are on that downward road that leads to hell but still they haven't time to pray for them.

Oh, I wish we did have more praying church members. Put an egg in a warm place and it will hatch whether it is under a hen or under a goose, it is the atmosphere that makes it hatch, and it is the atmosphere of heaven prayed down that turns sinners into Christian. It is our privilege to pray until God comes down. Of course we won't force the will but he will as he did with Saul.

I think if it has ever been a time to live close to God it is now. O, what a happy feeling to have to know in times of depression like we are having now, to lie down at night and to feel the presence of Christ hovering over us just as the old hen hovers her chicks under wings.

But there are so many men and women going around with long faces worrying their lives away, bringing gray hairs upon their heads when they ought to be smiling and rejoicing at the many blessings that they have had. Why worry when we can pray? God takes care of the little birds and He will surely take care of His children if we will only do His will.

But we have so many today in our churches that are not doing God's will. I believe we have men standing behind the sacred desk that are not doing as God would have them to do I believe today that is the reason there are as many lost ones in the world are out roving the highways night and day. If our leaders were more true to God and prayed as Daniel did and put that money spent for tobacco and drinks and moving pictures and all other things against bringing God's Kingdom on earth to some good. There are plenty today that spend more on things like that than they give the Lord. Don't you know we will never win souls for Christ till we cleanse ourselves of all ungodly things and show to the world that we are pure and clean and we will never enter the Kingdom of Heaven if we are not pure and clean and nothing but the blood of Christ can cleanse us from all our sins.

A READER OF THE HERALD.

MRS. ROOSEVELT GROWS SENSITIVE ON REPEAL?

It is proverbial that the head that wears a crown does not rest well. Not less restlessly tosses the head that conceives and utters unwise counsel and takes unworthy attitudes on moral and social questions—especially where the heart is really concerned with social progress.

The attention of Mrs. Roosevelt, the soon-to-be First Lady of the land, has been called to the dissatisfaction of many people with the now well-known statement in her recent radio talk: ''The average girl of today faces the problem of learning, very young, how much she can drink of such things as whiskey and gin, and sticking to the proper quantity.''

This dissatisfaction probably had some influence in causing a little change of front on her part. According to an Associated Press dispatch there was printed a few days ago in the Yale Daily News, a student publication, an interview with Mrs. Roosevelt in which she said:

''Although I am a dry, I am for repeal because I am not satisfied with conditions as they are. The thing has not been successful.''

One might ask, Why has prohibition not been successful? Compared with the enforcement of laws against murder, stealing, sexual vice, and other irregularities, it has been more successful than some folks would have us believe. But why has it not been more successful? It may be largely accounted for by the attitude of such people as the Roosevelts, who, in the main, mean to be decent, law abiding citizens—but who so burn with desire for office that they will do almost anything to secure the political support of all sorts of people.

"But we are a Nation that leans to extremes," continues Mrs. Roosevelt in this interview. "Just as in 1920 we plunged to the limit as prohibition got under way, so if repeal goes through we are in danger of going to the other extreme. It is a serious problem, and I would especially like to see the women of the Nation really take an interest in the matter. I believe, too, that we must all, young and old, co-operate in a program to meet the problems repeal will bring forth."

It is something to be thankful for that she realizes there is danger of going to excess in the fight against prohibition. She "would especially like to see the women of the Nation take an interest in the matter." Doesn't she realize that in co-operation with her, many women have been doing all they could to break down the temperance morale of the Nation?

She thinks that "we must all, both young and old, co-operate to meet the problems repeal will bring." Isn't that a strange call? Heretofore her co-operation has been with the wettest of the "wets"—not against the evils grown up around prohibition, but against prohibition itself. Now she appeals—not to the "wets" to guard against the excesses that she feels they will surely bring in with repeal, but, evidently—to the "drys," who alone can be counted on to guard against the excesses of the "wets", that she is doing all she can to make possible by working tirelessly for repeal.

Will the excesses of the "wets" under repeal—in case repeal comes—be any less objectionable than the so-called Puritanical excesses of the "drys" under prohibition? It is no doubt good for our souls to admit that there have always been some rantankerous cranks in our prohibition crowd. But, on the whole, our folks are rather a decent lot. Will the "wets" dare to enter such a claim in behalf of their crowd? I like to think as well of people as Ican—especially of those who are chosen for high office. Nothing would please me better than to see those who are soon to occupy the White House lining up with the finest folks of the Nation. Have they the inherent moral stamina that will eventually compel them to do that very thing? We shall see what we shall see.

LOOKOUT FOR THAT GOLD-BRICK!

If we heed the slogan of The Better Business Bureau, "Before you invest investigate," we shall not take that gold-brick being forced upon us. Before election it was declared worth two billion dollars, now only one and a half or two million! Investigation proves it is a gold-brick and a deadly boomerang!

"Beer is the poor man's drink" and to get even two hundred million in beer revenue would take from pockets of wage-earners about five times that amount—one billion dollars—leaving them and their families that much less for food, clothing, shelter, and other necessities and comforts. Also earning power and hence buying power of drinking workmen would be further decreased.

According to a statement of S. W. Luitwieler in the Contributor's Column of the Boston Evening Transcript founded on figures from the Census Office, "It takes 484 men in ordinary industry to produce as much as 100 men produce in the brewing industry." Loss to other industries of one billion dollars spent for beer would throw many laborers out of jobs while taking on slightly more than one-fifth that number in the beer industry. So the return of beer would increase unemployment!

Diverting one billion dollars from productive industry to beer would retard business recovery.

Furthermore an appalling amount in taxes and private charity goes for medical, nursing, and hospital care for the poor, and drink would increase their number. Wet physicians admit "Alcohol is a poison" and there is much of it even in 3.2 percent beer in the quantity ordinarily drunk and it slowly but surely poisons the body and injures health.

The National Tuberculosis Society stated, "Alcohol opens the door for tuberculosis," the disease that until our intensive campaign against it carried off more victims than any other disease. Money spent for beer instead of food results in undernourishment, malnutrition, sickness and disease among the members of the family.

Beer of low alcoholic content will not be revenue producing; if high it will be intoxicating—as will also a large amount of beer of low alcoholic content. What matters it to you what per cent of alcohol is declared non-intoxicating if one who is easily susceptible—the amount varies with different persons—is just enough affected so he cannot stop his car instantly resulting in the death of you or your child?

It will be easier for bootleggers to avoid detection with beer legalized than under prohibition, and brewers have already asked to be protected if beer comes back. They tremble at thought of what the racketeers will do.

The wets are now silent about return of the saloon, they know it will return with legalized beer.

Underneath all this cry for return of beer and for repeal the real underlying motive is greed. It is the brewers, liquor interests, and those holding stock in these interests who are clamoring for return of beer and for repeal, and some millionaires who want to shift taxes to the shoulders of the working people, and also want to pave the way for the return of high-powered legalized intoxicants for themselves, also some foreign born, the smart set, and those who ape them.

Shall we rob millions of our children of food, clothes, health and happiness to enrich brewers, liquor dealers, and millionaires? Will our church people stand idly by and see our children robbed, and the souls and bodies of our people sold for an illusive liquor revenue? Are we as a nation willing to fall so low? It is unthinkable! If we do shall we not hear the voice of God saying, "Thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground."

I MADE HASTE

A person was lately complaining in my presence: says Mr. Jay, "O, sir, I do not like this railroad pace to Heaven." "Why, sir," said I, "it is the scriptural pace. It is good to be always zealously affected in a good thing; and you can never go to Heaven in a hearse. Does not David say: 'Then will I'—crawl along? No. 'Then will I'—walk along? No. But, 'Then will I run in the way of Thy commandments, when Thou shalt enlarge my heart'."—Scattered Seed.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

January and February—Apportionment for High Point College to be raised.

February, Second Sunday—Annual Thank-offering service, Woman's Auxiliary.

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

The South Winston Church

We have here a fine prospect to render a real service to people. The community is almost without church facilities and the people are desirous of a place to worship without having to go to the larger, uptown churches.

The church was organized by Brother Kinnaman, I believe, and now has a membership of sixty-five, an indebtedness of less than one hundred dollars. The building is quite large, really too large for the immediate needs of the congregation. It was built by the membership, using materials which were either donated or bought in small quantities at the time. The house is not ceiled and is yet without the top floor, but is used by the community for S. S. and for preaching service. If they can raise about two hundred dollars, the interior will be ready for use; already a furnace is installed and seats; and in warm weather the house is usable. I am really anxious to see this building finished and believe we can do it, even though many of our congregations are also loaded with about all they can carry. Let's split our tithe with the Winston people. I think quite a number of our ministers will gladly do this and there are numbers of our people who never give all their tithe to their local church—reserving the right to give to other causes, so COME ALONG, FOLKS, and join us on the South Winston project. We have ten dollars to start with, you may add to this amount.

Those Area Meetings

There still appears some uncertainty about these meetings. The object is to get as many of our church people to attend them as possible. Those who do not usually attend such meetings as well as the church officers. We must have a fuller enlistment of our church members in the work of the kingdom. If those who are interested will attend these meetings and make an effort to get others there, then we shall make a success of them.

We want to make them meetings largely for discussion—open discussion—by all present. There are serious problems facing the church, let us face them and find a solution. We can find one if we faithfully search for it. Yes, we want the pastors' reports then because we can make them as a basis for other discussions. The items of general interest in them will be syndicated and passed on to the church. Therefore no pastor should fail to attend them. Bring your church member friend, we do not object to those not members of our church coming, they are welcome, but the meetings are held with the hope that our own people will attend them and get inspiration.

That Inferiority Complex

There are people who are said to have an inferiority complex—have an attitude growing out of a low opinion of themselves and of what they possess and belong to. Dollars depreciate in their lands—the price of land they own gets on the tobogganing at once. Their church is not quite on a par with the church of their better class of neighbors. They have the habit of thinking of their efforts as inferior, of their influence as far below par, and of their church as being a small affair. It so happens that some of this kind joined the Methodist Protestant Church and put this inferior state of mind into their denominational activities. Moses had some of them, they called themselves grasshoppers then. And the peculiar thing about them was, that although they never got close to the giants they said that they appeared as grasshoppers in the minds of the giants. So that settled the question of invasion with them. Grasshoppers against giants. We still have giants, these giants usually are hard situations, big debts, little churches, small membership, no good leaders, poor preachers, low social standing, etc. Here are some of the modern giants which confront these grasshoppers today. And what can a grasshopper do—hop off—quit. Who has this inferiority complex anyway? Let all such go to their tents. Today calls for heroic deeds and whoever heard of a heroic grasshopper?

Kannapolis Church, Rev. Clarence Morris, pastor.—This little congregation reported 100 members last conference, with a church debt of one thousand dollars. The church is one of the younger members of our denominational fold and lingered between life and death for quite a while after its birth. In fact, the members tell me that both pastor and church officials despaired of it. But a huskier ecclesiastical fledgling would be hard to find than this former sick child.

I was there at the morning hour of worship, saw a goodly number at Sunday School, many children, yes, but also men and women; and they appeared to be interested. The superintendent announced a number of projects for the week which showed somebody had been thinking about the work. And the worship service was well attended. A large choir which has in it a male quartet gave us a sample of their work. The attention was all one could ask with the words of appreciation of the message from many. In other words, there were many evidences of the right attitude of mind towards their church problems. Two were received into the church. Pastor Morris is doing his first year's work in the pastorate and is showing fine qualities of leadership. The people appreciate his efforts and believe in his ability to lead. Taken as a whole, this church is going to make a good record this year although the members are handicapped by the mills running only part time at present. Finances are somewhat behind because of this condition. We greatly enjoyed our visit to this faithful band of workers.

Concord Church, Rev. J. M. Morgan, pastor.—We visited this church at the evening service. The house was practically filled. Two choirs, senior and junior choirs, were in their places and both took part in the worship. The pastor told me that they also had a junior church service at the morning hour; so it appears that the young people are not being neglected at this church.

This is Brother Morgan's second year and he has done a good work. Last year the debt on the church was greatly reduced, being much less than one thousand dollars now. This is carried in the Building and Loan, I was told. Concord has had the reputation for many years of also having the largest Baraca class in the county. So it appears that there are those who plan between the Sundays what is to happen when they again assemble. The church membership reported last year was 272, with a Sunday School membership of 658. Concord Church is feeling the pinch of the depression quite keenly too. Our people here are more or less dependent upon the mills for their support and they are not running full time as yet, so most naturally both pastor and people are feeling the depression. But they are facing the future with hope and courage which two elements of success properly mixed will surely bring them out with a good measure of success.

Plan of Appointments

February 26.—A. M., Creswell Charge.

FIGHTING ON

While political leaders move toward early repeal of the 18th Amendment, the Allied Forces has launched a new study course for young people which attacks "the problem of alcohol" at a half-dozen angles.

"Alcohol and My Generation," as the new outline is called, was released today for national distribution by W. Roy Breg, Director of Activities of the Allied Forces, representing the young people's division of the movement, which is known as Allied Youth. The Allied Forces now has a nation-wide enrollment of more than 1,600,000, and more than half the number is made up of young people from 17 to 30. The youth leaders are said to be enthusiastic concerning the study course, which they produced with the assistance of a limited number of adult sponsors, educators, and older young people.

The British Control Board, Dr. Walter R. Miles of Carnegie Institution, Dr. Haven Emerson, Dr. Irving Fisher, and "The Brewers Journal" are among the authorities quoted by the dry youth group in pointing ways to a "a realistic study of the alcohol problem." Chapters include "Alcohol and My Life," "Alcohol and My Crowd," "Alcohol and My Town," and a procedure for registering the personal opinions of the subject held by members who complete the study course. Among the questions raised in the study are the following: "What does the drinker suppose that alcohol brings to him? Distinguish between freedom, guaranteed by our Constitution, and so-called 'personal liberty.' Is drinking popularized by reason of the comparatively heavy cost of buying intoxicating beverages?" Wet textbooks as well as dry are included in the reading lists proposed for students engaging in this course, which will be taught in schools, clubs, church groups, and by Allied Youth councils in hundreds of cities and villages.

Initial organization of Allied Youth was established in every state during a ten months' field campaign for prohibition and law observance, conducted in 1931 and 1932 under the leadership of Dr. Daniel A. Poling and ten associates.

THE FIRST STEP TOWARD FOLLOWING

A Bulgarian missionary was talking with a German Jew. "I want you to consent to be a Christian for twenty-four hours, then you may see how it seems and how you like it," said the missionary.

The Jew consented. "Well, then," continued the missionary, "I want you to believe that Jesus died on the Cross for the sins of the world."

"Impossible, impossible! I could not believe that."

"But it is only for twenty-four hours."

"Well, all right; I will till tomorrow."

"I want you to believe that Jesus arose from the dead, and that He ascended into Heaven."

"Oh, oh, that I could not do."

"But just for the time being." He consented.

"I want you to kneel down with me and pray to Christ the Saviour." And the Jew prayed, "O God! Jehovah! If Christ be the True Son of God, let Him save me!"

The next day the Jew came to the missionary and said, with a smile on his face and peace in his heart, "I will take Him for another twenty-four hours."—Publisher Unknown.

ADVENTURE

Dear Boys and Girls:

What do you think I am going to talk to you about today? Adventure! Even the word makes you think of daring deeds—most of us like having adventures, don't we? We all love to read adventure stories. Have you read the story of King Arthur's Knights of the Round Table? To me they are most thrilling! Do you remember the story of the Holy Grail? The Holy Grail was supposed to be the cup which our Saviour drank from at the last supper. A vision of it was eagerly sought after by the knights—the supposed vision only appeared to those who were pure in heart—so it was the high ideal of each knight to be pure in heart! Boys and girls, God is calling us to be His knights. The moment we come to Him and accept Him as our Saviour He makes our hearts clean and puts His Holy Spirit within us to help us to be His.

True Knights

Just think of it, boys and girls, you can be God's knights! I challenge you—can you find a nobler purpose for all your wonderful powers than to be knights of God—to be the knight of the One who made the world! What a life of adventure it is! True adventure lies in following King Jesus. The greatest fight is still raging, boys and girls. God is calling for knights to fight against sin and Satan—and He will give us all the strength and power that we need so that we can be victorious. Your first great victory is when you have fearlessly taken your stand on the side of King Jesus. Then all your powers and enthusiasm you can dedicate to the service of the King of kings.

I once heard Bishop Taylor Smith tell of how he was once in one of our universities and a boy came up to him and told the Bishop how one day he hoped to be a missionary. "Are you saved?" the Bishop asked, "Yes, sir." "Then you are a missionary," said the Bishop. The field is the world, and where you are living in the world, after you are saved, there you have to be a missionary.

There is a great picture—I expect some of you have seen it, called the Vigil. It is of a young knight. He has dedicated himself—his sword—his armor—his all to the service of God, and there he kneels in silence for the light of Heaven to shine upon him, before he goes forth to fight for God in the world. Now, unlike the knight in the picture, God lights us when He makes us His knights. We cannot be His knight unless He has lighted us. You remember what King Jesus said of one of His greatest knights, John the Baptist: "He was a burning and a shining light." Boys and girls, life lies fair and fresh before you. What are you going to do with your life?

Away in Quebec there is a stately monument standing in a beautiful park. It marks the spot where the great General Wolfe fought and died that the Dominion of Canada might be won. The simple, but eloquent inscription reads:

Wolfe Died Here Victorious

He died a conqueror, and the Lord Jesus enables His knights to Live Victorious

A little boy went into a sweet-shop one day to buy some sweets. He walked round and round looking at the sweets most carefully, till his mother got tired of waiting and called to him, "Hurry up and spend your penny my son, we must be getting on." To this the boy replied, "But mother, I have only one penny to spend, and I must spend it carefully."

Boys and girls, we have only one life to live, and what a sacred thing that is. If we had half a dozen lives to live, we need not be so careful how we live this one. But life gone is gone forever, and any ideal short of the best folly. Aim high!

Now Great Thoughts, Noble Desire, Starry Ideals, Lofty actions come by reading the knight's text Book the Bible, and talking to God every day—God who is the Fountain and Source of all wisdom. King Jesus is calling you His knights to the highest and the best and the noblest life. Oh, the greatness of His call! When you meet with dangers and difficulties on the road of life—no Christian's life is free from these—think of the knights who have gone before, think of Abraham, Moses, Joseph, Samuel, Daniel, and Paul and Stephen—men who hazard their lives for their God. See David slaying the lion in the strength of his God. See the three companions thrown into the blazing furnace, and hear their thrilling words: "Our God . . . will deliver us out of thy hand, O King."

But if Not

"We will not serve thy gods." Think too of Columbus who defied the waves in a cockle shell of a boat and found America. "Still going strong for the Top" was the inspiring message of Mallory the mountain climber.

Remember, boys and girls—

"Lives of great men all remind us—
We can make our lives sublime."

And remember our lives will be grand and great for all eternity. Let us always remember that in all our adventures for God, He is not only watching us, but He is with us. I have written in my Bible these words:

"Remember that every soldier of the Cross has what a soldier covets most—He is fighting under the Eye of his General! Remember!"

Would you not like to share a secret with a great General? Listen, King Jesus reveals some of His secrets to us when we read our Bibles. There is just time for me to tell you about One. It is so wonderful. It is that the Lord Jesus Christ is coming back to this earth to reign for a thousand years, and we can reign with Him if we are faithful.

Isn't that perfectly thrilling? Fancy reigning with the dear Lord Jesus. God wants you to be His knights so that He can give you a place in His Kingdom. He wants all you children to be in His Kingdom, and how we live our lives here and now, decides what He will have to say to us when we stand before Him. It is the little things that matter most.

''Daily deed and thought
Slowly into habit wrought,
Raise the temple base or fair,
Which men call our character.''

I often teach my children, at the Missions I take, this little chorus:

''We are building day by day
In our work and in our play.
Not with hammer, blow on blow,
Not with timber, sawing so—
Building a house not made with hands,
Following Jesus' perfect plans,
Little builders all are we,
Building for eternity.''

During the dark days of the struggle for liberty in Italy, most of the people looked upon Garibaldi as their great deliverer. Prisoners hurried away to loathsome dungeons would be cheered as they passed along the streets by friends whispering in their ears, ''Courage! Garibaldi is coming!'' Men would steal out at night and chalk on the walls and pavements, ''Garibaldi is coming.'' And when the news of his approach near to a city was announced the people would break out into a rapturous shout, ''Garibaldi is coming!'' He came, and when he came they regained their freedom never to be so enslaved again.

But some One far greater than Garibaldi is coming to God's people to rescue them. The Lord Jesus is coming, is coming to reign, and in His Kingdom will be such happiness as we can scarcely even imagine. God compares our life to a race (I Cor. 9:24-27). Now in a race only one gets in first, as a rule, and only one gets the prize. ''Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain . . . Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown (one that will fade and get old); but we an incorruptible.'' This verse refers of course to the ancient Greek races. The prize was a crown of laurel leaves, and was a highly coveted honor. God has a prize for you and for me, which He will give us when we appear before what the Scripture calls His Judgment Seat, if we have been faithful. Won't it be absolutely lovely to receive a crown from our Lord and Saviour? But we won't get it if we have not earned it by our faithfulness to Him. You don't get a prize at school unless you have earned it; do you? And if you do not obey the rules of the school, you get punished. It will be awfully sad, boys and girls, if, at His judgment seat the Lord Jesus has to be displeased with us, and instead of giving us a crown has to say we are not worthy to reign with Him, because we have not been faithful knights.

Oh, dear boys and girls, aim for the highest and the best—the choice rests with you—

''God has His best for the few
Who dare to stand the test,
God has His second best for those
Who will not have His best.

To hear my name confessed.''

CHRIST'S MATCHLESS LOVE

''Where are you reading, my dear?'' said a lady to an apprentice dressmaker, who was busily perusing the New Testament.

''I am reading, ma'am, in the fifth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans,'' she respectfully replied.

''Why do you choose that chapter?'' said her friend.

The girl remarked, ''Oh, I delight in it much.''

''On what account?'' was the immediate inquiry.

''Because,'' answered the girl, ''it just meets my case. See, ma'am, is not that delightful?''—pointing to the 6th verse—'' 'For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly'?

''I am indeed a sinner, and without strength,'' continued the girl; ''but here is the remedy, 'Christ died for the ungodly'.''

It was once asked of another young believer, ''How do you know that Christ is a King?'' She replied without hesitation, ''Because He has subdued me to Himself.''

In these simple illustrative cases we are supplied with special marks which distinguish all the true children of God. Needy sinners they know themselves to be, but they are ever delighting in their glorious and all-sufficient Surety and Substitute. His matchless love has constrained them to abandon every competitor. His infinite beauty has so powerfully attracted them that they count all but loss and dung that they may win Him for themselves. They have yielded to Him the throne of their affectations. They have surrendered to Him their will. Can we honestly, as in the sight of God, claim such characteristics as our own?—H. K. W., in Scattered Seed.

TWO PRAYERS

John B. Gough once described the prayers of two London preachers. The one was in a large church, before a fashionable audience. His prayer had ''nobody, nor nothing, for an object.'' The other was a street preacher, holding service with a small company of outcasts at 2 o'clock in the morning. In his prayer that street exhorter seemed to take each wretched creature to God, asking him to be merciful for Christ's sake. Here Gough exclaimed: ''That's prayer!'' So it is. True prayer is feeling the burden of the soul's present need, and carrying that burden to Him who is all-powerful and all-gracious.

A Scotch lad being very sick and given up by the physician, the father and mother, as the last resort, knelt in prayer for their boy. The father began in his usual family-prayer style, the customary subjects claiming attention, till he came to the Jews, when the heart-broken mother, able to stand it no longer, said: ''John, John, you are lang drawn oot about the Jews; but remember, man, that our wee Wulley is dying.''

There is altogether too much of this ''long drawn out'' in many prayers about things and persons that might well be omitted, while the great needs of broken hearts, of lost souls of men and women dying without grace, and of the Church of Jesus Christ in her conflict with the wicked world, do not fill the whole mind and heart.—The C. U. Herald.

Topic for March 5, 1933

DISCOVERING JESUS' PRINCIPLES FOR OUR LIVES

Scripture Text—Matthew 5:1-9, 21-24.

Many people measure themselves in their own way which is much greater than their true weight. Someone has said that if you could buy the average man for what he is worth and sell him for what he thinks he is worth, you would get rich. We would like to determine our true Christian weight and also the diet which would help us to gain as Christians. The first requisite is the inward look. When a man discovers that he has faults there is hope that he will correct them. It has been said that the first thing in learning to speak correctly is to learn that you make mistakes. One who aspires to dicover Jesus' principles for his life must first learn that he is imperfect. Jesus can use a man who is teachable but the man who knows everything is hopeless.

Hearts must be cleansed that they may be able to really understand the purposes of Jesus. As long as the sins are present, there is little chance that people are going to improve but with the mote out of our eye we see clearly. The person who lives in a house with dirty window lights can not see what is going on outside and also he is blinded to things which are within.

To really discover Jesus' principles for our lives we must have some of the same spiirit which Christ had. This means that we are willing to trust God for His strength. With the spirti of Jesus we are able to overlook many of the smaller mistakes which beforehand we noticed so plainly. The love of Christ will give us also a love for mankind which enables one to interpret with love the acts which the other man does. Keep yourself from condemning others and this can be done only by a determined effort on your part and the help of God.

The Scripture for the meeting which is taken from Christ's Sermon on the Mount, gives many of the principles of Christ which we should attempt to discover in a personal way for our lives. It is insufficient to know the right, but one must be disposed to follow what he knows. It is easier to know what is right than to do it but out of a need character is born. You have never really discovered Jesus' principles for your life until you have attempted to place them in your daily action. These principles cannot be carried out by the force of man alone but all things are possible to him who has faith. As our Christian Endeavor pledge says "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength," we will attempt to do these things.

Quotable Poetry

If clearer vision Thou impart,
  Grateful and glad my soul shall be;
But yet to have a purer heart
  Is more to me.

Yea, only as the heart is clean
  May larger vision yet be mine,
For mirrored in its depths are seen
  The things Divine.

—Walter C. Smith.

Oh, let my weakness have an end!
Give unto me, make lowly wise,
The spirit of self-sacrifice;
The confidence of reason give;
And in the light of truth thy bondman let me live.

PRESS ON!

Are you discouraged?
Press on, don't give way;
Know there will come
A brighter day.

Are you dismayed?
Cast out all fear;
Be of good courage,
God is right here.

Are you distracted?
Surrender self-will;
Today you may hear
His "Peace, be still."

Are you disparaged?
Cleave to the right;
God will defend you,
Walk in the light.

Are you disgruntled?
Rebuke foolish pride;
Rise in true manhood,
Put self-love aside.

Are you despondent?
Be stout of soul;
Truth today calls you,
Press on toward the goal!

CHURCH LOYALTY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES

I requested all C. E. Societies in the Conference to pay as much as one dollar for A. C. B. before February 20. Those Societies which complied with this request are as follows:

Thomasville, West End; Guilford, Mitchell's Grove; Cleveland, Pleasant Hill; West Forsyth, Harmony Grove; Spring Church, Pleasant Hill; Graham; Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon; Littleton, Hawkins Chapel; Haw River, Fairgrove; Lincolnton, Lincolnton; Anderson, Liberty Hill; Enfield, Enfield; Mt. Hermon, Belmont; Anderson, Fairview; total, 14; amount paid, $14.00.

Look at what 14 of our C. E. Societies have done for our Annual Conference. Let me urge other societies to do as much. Our C. E. Societies should pay one hundred dollars on the A. C. B. before March 20. Keep sending in your money in the name of the C. E. Society. Watch the Herald for the names of the societies that are paying something on the A. C. B. Will the name of your society be in the list?

I want to thank these societies for their support in this campaign. I hope they may continue to be as loyal to the church in its other programs. T. J. WHITEHEAD.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

THANK-OFFERING SERVICE, CENTRAL CHURCH, THOMASVILLE

On Sunday evening the dramatization and program as outlined in January Missionary Record was given to a good sized audience. The characters did their parts well, after which the Candle Lighting was held with the secretary of the Auxiliary calling the roll. First, the pastor, then the Woman's Auxiliary, then the Circles and Sunday school Departments down to Beginners' and Cradle Roll taking part. Lastly, ushers passed the collection plates for audience contribution. The offerings from each were collected and placed in envelopes previously and a person chosen to bring the offering forward in response to roll call and placed offering on altar, and the Spirit of Missions lighted a candle from hers and gave to each one, while Spirit of Thank-Offering handed each a copy of the creed. All remained grouped around the altar with those who had parts in the play and repeating creed in concert, closing with a hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." The benediction was pronounced by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Surratt.

Flags were very effectively used on the stage, and a group of flags of a number of different nations was on display with a large Christian flag waving over them.

The offerings amounted to $41.63. We were much pleased with the results of the evening.

We have received reports of a number of churches that have held and are yet planning to hold a Thank-Offering service, which is fine. Dr. Broomfield says the Mission Board is looking to February as a time of relief. Let's do our best here in North Carolina and send all our thank-offering money to Mrs. Taylor, marked as such, remembering our own North Carolina Missionary, Rev. Mr. Minnis, and family, who will be coming home soon and will need money for that purpose; also our prayers for a successful closing of his efforts in India and a afe voyage home.

If Mrs. W. C. Hammer or I can be of service to any nearby churches or Auxiliaries, let us know and we will meet with you and try to help you in your thank-offering program.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES, Secretary
T. O. in N. C. Branch.

"Did anybody drop a roll of bills with a rubber band around them?" asked an old gentleman in the trolley car."

"Yes, I did," said several voices.

"Well, I just picked up the rubber band," said the old gentleman, calmly.

Poet—My poems are the children of my brain, I tell you.

Editor—In that case I would urge you to send them to a reform school.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

St. Paul Charge.—Although you have not heard from our charge for some time through the columns of the Herald, it does not mean that we have not been busy or that we have not been accomplishing something in the work of our church.

The Sunday school and church service are increasing each Sunday. We received one new member yesterday on profession of faith. This makes a total of 22 new members received this Conference year.

We were glad to have the president of our Conference, Rev. R. M. Andrews, with us on Sunday morning, February 5. He brought us a message on the Conference and general church interests in a very pleasing and profitable way.

Our church observed Young People's Day on Sunday, February 12, the pastor bringing a special message to young people at the morning hour. The young people had the evening service in charge. They had a splendid program. An offering was received for the Board of Education.

The first quarterly conference was held on February 13 and the reports made by various officials disclosed some very interesting facts, some of which are the finance of the church are nearer paid up to date than they were a year ago. The Ladies' Aid Society, which has paid the allotment of our church to the superannuates each year under the present pastor, turned over the allotment for our church this year to our church treasurer at their last meeting.

The Sunbeam Misisonary band will have a George Washington social on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the hut. The public is invited to attend.

There has been much sickness among our members, but I am glad to report that most of them are well and in their accustomed places of worship and service in the church and community.

D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

Winston-Salem, First.—Yesterday was one of the best days during the present pastorate here. There were 149 in Sunday school, 91 at morning church service and 76 at the vesper services at 5 o'clock. At the morning church service four members were received by letter, Mrs. E. M. Arrington and daughters, Pearl and Mrs. F. D. Pfaff and son, Moyer, all coming to us from the Burkhead M. E. Church, South, in this city. They were once members of our church and we are delighted to have them back.

The Woman's Auxiliary had charge at the vesper hour with the Rev. R. E. McAlpin, a retired Presbyterian missionary, as the speaker. The Rev. Mr. McAlpin has completed 48 years of missionary service in Japan and just arrived here a few weeks ago to spend the remainder of his days. And what a treat it was to hear him! He has known personally every missionary that our church has had either in Nagoya, Yokahama or Hammamatsu except Mrs. Paul Warner, who went to Japan during the past summer. He was there when Miss Brittain, one of our first, arrived. He and the late Dr. Fred C. Klein were close friends. In 1891 he and Rev. E. H. Van Dyke and others were holding an early morning prayer meeting when an earthquake began to shake the building. They ran for the door and just as they went out two chimneys that had been standing close by but which had been thrown into the air, came down, cutting a gash on Dr. Van Dyke's head that made his brain visible and burying five others in the debris. He and Dr. L. Layman of our church were close friends for many years and when had grown old and grown considerable beard they had their pictures taken together. He and J. W. Frank, a former pastor of the church here, climbed Mt. Fuji together. In his address he paid high compliment to Miss Coats, Miss Williams, Miss Hodges and all of those who have gone out in our stead as well as the work of our schools and churches there. Somehow as these reminiscence were brought to us it seemed like the pages of history had been turned back and that we were made companions of all who have gone before. Mrs. H. G. Paschal, secretary of thank-offering, presided over the service and gave a splendid program, some of the items being responsive readings, hymns, prayer by Rev. C. B. Way, who was a visitor, recitation by Bettie Joe Hauser, and a song by the Mission Club.

At the close of the morning service yesterday it was voted to take enough money out of the fund which the city paid our church in damages when the yard was taken away for widening the street, to build a kitchen in the quadrangle between the pastor's study and the class room that has been used for a kitchen. We already have three walls to which we can attach the new building.

Our reporter, Miss Pauline Branson, is still in the city hospital, but is making progress now. She is now in the 14th week of her illness. J. E. PRITCHARD.

Shoals, Mt. Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—On the second Sunday our pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, traveled over eight miles of dirt road as bad as they are after all the rain, snow and freeze to preach one of his splendid sermons.

Our Sunday school is picking up in interest. We have a Bible reading contest that is proving to be helpful to our school and seems to grow in interest week by week.

We do not see how many chapters we can read in three months, or how many in a week, or who will read the most as we would be inclined to read too fast and fail to get the meaning.

Our plan is to have a Bible question to find each week. This way we read carefully and try to understand what we read so we will not fail to find what we are looking for.

Mrs. Mary Jane Campbell selects all questions and receives all answers. She keeps a record of all answers handed in. We choose the two advanced classes in this contest and number them 1 and 2. The last half of last year No. 1 handed in 147 answers and No. 2 handed in 134 answers. Mrs. J. P. Owen handed in the most answers on No. 1 side. On No. 2 side Odell and R. T. Moser and J. P. Owen and R. D. Hauser tied for second place.

Mrs. Campbell gives the name of the book, and a certain number of chapters, that the answer can be found in.

We are in a new contest now, with Mrs. J. P. Owen and Mrs. T. J. Westmoreland, captains; from the interest that is shown now there will be several tied for top place at the close of this contest.

ODELL MOSER, Reporter.

First Church, Burlington.—The regular routine was observed Sunday with the exception of the evening service, at which time a most impressive thank-offering program was presented. This program was given by the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. M. A. Coble, president. This program was given by the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. M. A. Coble, president.

We were fortunate in having with us Miss Helen King, who rendered two violin selections. Although I don't have the exact estimation of the offering it was very liberal.

REPORTER.

First Church, Concord.—The Sunday school had a good increase over last Sunday. The attendance today was 350. We hope to have yet a better increase next Sunday.

Our 11 o'clock service was excellent. Pastor Morgan's text was taken from the third chapter of First Corinthians. A very good crowd was present at this service. We were glad to have Dr. Andrews with us for the night service. He talked about the delivery of the children of Israel from Pharoah's army at the Red Sea compared with present conditions. This was fine and it gave lots of encouragement to our people.

Our Wednesday night prayer service was well attended.

The Ladies' Aid held a Depression Valentine party in the basement of the church on last Tuesday night. The program was fine and everybody had a wonderful time. Mrs. Ernest Litaker received the Valentine prize and Mr. Faulkenbury the depression prize.

The reporter was absent from all the services Sunday, being called to Gibsonville on account of the death of an aunt, Mrs. J. M. Ridenhour. The reporter appreciates very much the help of our Sunday school superintendent making notes so we could send in a report this week.

BERTHA EARNHARDT, Reporter.

Friendship Station.—Nearly one-third of the Conference year is now passed; our record is being made very fast according to time; what will the annual report be? How many souls will be brought into the love and service of our Lord? How many soldiers will be added to the Christian army? How many dollars will be raised for "gospel ministry and for the benevolent enterprises of the church?" How many pastors are, or will be in debt for the necessary things of life? These questions can not and will not be answered by the pastors alone, but by every church member. We are living in a time that is truly testing the loyalty and the faith of every Christian.

Tte work at Friendship is an intensive work. We are trying to develop that which we have. Our attendance at church services, Sunday school and Christian Endeavor has been very good during the winter months considering the weather, the condition of the roads and sickness of members.

Last Sunday evening the following officers were elected in our C. E.: President, Miss Mary Harward; vice-president, Dean Ellsworth; secretary and treasurer, Miss Faye Lowder.

We are looking forward to the coming of President R. M. Andrews on the second Sunday in March. We are praying for and expecting a good attendance and a good service.

Ruby James Harkey, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey, is recovering from an operation in the Yadkin Hospital in Albemarle.

Miss Stella Lefler has been very sick at her home. We are glad that she is improving at this time.

Bro. Jona Hurlocker remains quite feeble.

Please join us in prayer for these suffering ones.

O. B. WILLIAMS.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Dr. Taylor spoke to the congregation on the topic, "The Church." The text upon which the thought was based was found in Acts 20:28: "Take heed, therefore, unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." This was a powerful sermon. It called forth many complimentary remarks from interested listeners. The Scriptures speak of "ears that hear" and "ears that hear not." It is even so in this present age, but we are gratified to know that many having ears to hear are listening to that still small voice of the Spirit and do belong to that group of worshipers who are happy in the endeavor to serve the blessed Master.

At the evening worship service Dr. Taylor, always good, was at his very best. In a most eloquent and masterful manner he discussed the subject, "Association With Jesus." The Gospel text was Acts 4:13, "And they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus."

He pointed out so clearly that a child could understand how association with Jesus gives tetimony, it gives courage, it gives power. Stressing the importance of prayer he said: "All great spiritual movements have been preceded by prayer." "I believe," he continued, "that enough earnest people praying could set loose enough power to transform this city, enough earnest prayers ascending to the throne of God could create enough power to transform this entire country.'

Will the membership of this church kindly keep in mind and also help to spread the news to those who have not heard, that March 5th is membership Sunday. Every member is urged to be present for services on that day. Holy Communion is to be observed at that time. The doors of the church will be open also, in order that anyone desiring to unite with this church may do so at this time.

The different departments are progressing nicely. Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 200. The C. E. Societies are keeping their usual good record.

Messrs. Charles King, Will King, J. W. Montgomery and V. F. Crouch sang a quartet, "Have Faith in God," in the service Sunday evening.

Miss Louise Welch sang a solo for the morning service.

Mrs. D. C. Montgomery placed a "depression plant" in the church last Sunday. It was quite lovely, rather grand looking in its erect build and rich coloring. In fact, a person not acquainted with this modern wonder would ever think it had any resemblance to depression. The wonder about it is how it grows so quickly an object of beauty from so unpromising a source. Just a few pebbles, a piece or two of coal, a little salt, water, bluing, and a few drops of coloring, plus warm air for a few weeks, gives an object of beauty.

Should not that be an object lesson for some depressed folks? The power of God has not diminished.

Charlotte, First.—The Woman's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Fowler on Louise Avenue last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter was leader for devotionals. Mrs. Little, the president, presided. After an interesting program and routine business was dispensed with, the report of the nominating committee was read. For president, Mrs. J. H. Daughtry; vice-president, Mrs. Herbert Garrison; secretary, Mrs. L. O. Fesperman; treasurer, Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter. The report was accepted and adopted by unanimous vote. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served.

At a business meeting of the Philathea class Tuesday afternoon a very interesting discussion was engaged in as to getting new members. The teacher, Mrs. J. J. Atkins, cannot attend regularly on account of the illness of her mother, and assistant teachers were elected to serve in her absence. The next meeting will be in March at the home of Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter, to which the husbands will be invited for the social hour.

The Ever Ready Philathea class will hold its regular monthly business meeting and social Monday evening at 7:30 in the class room at the church.

I am glad to report that our sick are all improving: Rev. Mr. Hendry, Mr. G. W. Stegall, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Garmon. Sorry to report the recent illness of Mrs. Hendry, wife of our pastor. She was resting comfortably this morning. The doctor assures her that after a few days' rest and quiet she will be out again. We hope to have Mr. Hendry preach for us Sunday morning.

In the absence of our pastor, due to illness, his pulpit was filled by Rev. Mr.Surratt , a visiting pastor in the city. His subject, "The Way of Eternal Life," was delivered in a most pleasing manner. His earnest and appealing presentation of the Scripture was impressive and inspiring. Truly, he is filled with the spirit.

Last week Mrs. L. O. Fesperman entertained her Sunday school class with a weiner roast. Miss Mildred Younginer also gave her class a weiner roast at Independence Park.

Several of the Sunday school classee of the church and friends presented Rev. and Mrs. Hendry a "purse" with which to purchase license plates for their car, and were they pleased! You should see their smlie.

There is nothing like good friends. Our parsonage was much in need of being freshened up. Well, here is the story: Sisters McCall and Stegall called on the Southern Paper Company in regards to the papering of two or three rooms. The paper was given for the parsonage. "No charge; it is a pleasure." Three brothers, John M. Neese and C. B. Hollifield, volunteered to be the paperhangers, so the work was soon finished and a good job of it, too. Brother G. W. Stegall cleaned and polished the floors, and do they shine! Well, the parsonage is rather large for a rather small family, so a bit more furniture was needed. Friend again! Sisters Blake and Daughtry came to the rescue with the pieces needed for the sitting room and bed room. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilburn furnished the dining room with a beautiful suite. All these furnishings are appreciated. They add greatly to the comfort of our beloved pastor and his wife, and are to be used as long as they are needed.

The cottage prayer meeting will be held Wednesdap afternoon with Mrs. Secrest on Pecan Avenue. Mrs. B. W. Little is the leader.

Due to illness in the family I could not attend the revival services, but it is reported to have been a wonderful meeting. Many were added to the church and service of our Master. I hope in due course of time you may have a better report from our pastor.

REPORTER.

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Rev. Mr. Isley Sunday afternoon delivered an excellent sermon, choosing as his subject "Love, Hope and Despair." He made very clear the way of each and gave warning to those that were not followers of Jesus.

Our Sunday school continues to have a larger attendance than that of last year and we are expecting a larger enrollment than ever before the year comes to a close.

Mr. J. G. Trantham continues in a very serious condition.

Mrs. R. M. Fritss and Mrs. E. Hedrick were appointed as solicitors for the Children's Home.

Our next appointment will be the first Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Visitors are always welcome at Mount Carmel.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—Sunday morning, February 19, Rev. C. B. Way took as his text "I had a vision," taken from the sixth chapter of Isaiah. Miss Juanita Hunter sang as a special selection a solo entitled "No Greater Love." The service proved very helpful to all present.

The Missionary Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting with Miss Lola Long Tuesday night, February 21. New officers were elected and details worked out for the year.

The thank-offering service will be held at the church Sunday night, February 26. The program will be under the direction of Miss Lola Long, thank-offering secretary, and Mrs. W. B. Speas, Misionary Auxiliary president. A large attendance is desired.

REPORTER.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—On last Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock our pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, brought us a very interesting message from James 5:11-16, using for his subject, "Prayer." Prayer is the source of communicating with God. Prayer is the heart of religion. Prayer draws us closer to God and is the soul's sincere desire. Prayer kept the lions from tearing Daniel to pieces in the lions' den, and it also delivered the Hebrew children out of the fiery furnace. Prayer harmonizes us with the things of the earth, with the Divine, and also with each other just as it does with God. Prayer will help us become essential to things of life. Prayer helps us to overcome temptations. Through adoration we come to God in prayer and because He is mindful of us we thank Him through prayer. We go to Him and intercede for our loved ones through prayer, but the most important point is when we submit ourselves to Him. Prayer is the only source to make preparation to meet God and may each one of us pray more so we will be ready when our call comes.

On last Tuesday evening, Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Grant entertained the members of the Christian Endeavor Societies from the following churches: Kernersville, Pine Grove, and Sandy Ridge, at a delightful Valentine party given at their home in Kernersville. Interesting games and contests were enjoyed during the evening with Miss Jessie Ingram and Roger Linville winning prizes for their skill. At the conclusion of the games delicious refreshments were served to the guests.

Thomasville, First.—Mr. James Barber was host to Mrs. A. H. Ragan's Sunday school class on last Friday evening. These young men are meeting monthly in the homes of its members and progress is being made in their work. They had an attendance of 22 in class last Sunday.

We extend our sympathy to Mrs. I. A. Teague in the loss of her mother, Mrs. J. E. Meredith, who passed away at her home on the High Point road Sunday morning. Mrs. Meredith was a member of Pleasant Grove church and funeral services were conducted from that place on Monday afternoon.

Second quarterly conference was held last Wednesday evening. Messrs. D. R. Connell and Walter Loftin were nominated as delegates to Annual Conference.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met on Thursday evening, the 8th, with Mrs. J. J. Watts. Mrs. A. H. Ragan presided over the business, with Mrs. J. W. Baity as program leader. This was the best attended meeting for several months. A committee wa appointed to nominate officers for the new year, and election will be held March 9th, when the society will meet with Mrs. T. G. Madison.

The World Day of Prayer will be observed by First Church on March 3rd. A program is being arranged for an evening service at 7:30.

Thank-offering service will be held on Sunday evening, the 12th, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. W. C. Hammer will speak for us, and we hope to have a large crowd for this special occasion.

Shiloh.—Two hundred and sixty-two of the 273 enrollment were present at Sunday school this morning. Shiloh is glad that so many are physically able and so inclined to go to the house of the Lord on the Lord's day; yet there are many yet un-reached, even in our own community, so let us not cease to work, nor be satisfied with present attainments.

Rev. R. S. Troxler preached at the 11 o'clock hour an earnest and stirring sermon from Rom. 8:9: "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none ofhis." Using also the fifth chapter of Galatians, he used as his subject "The Test of a Christian." He asked, "Will we let the flesh or the spirit rule?" He closed with the plea that we not permit the works of the flesh to predominate in our lives, but to have such close relationship with Christ that our lives might yield the fruits of the Spirit. At the end of the sermon our C. E. quartette sang a beautiful song. We hope to hear them again soon.

The second quarterly conference of Shiloh Circhit will meet at Friendship on Saturday before the second Sunday in March at 2 p. m. Come if you can.

Mr. Gilbert Trantham continues critically ill at his home near Lexington. His son, John, who is so faithfully nursing him, is also suffering from ome very painful boils.

Mr. Joe F. L. Sink, who also lived near Lexington, died of pneumonia Saturday morning. His funeral was conducted from the First Lutheran church of the city and his body laid to rest in the city cemetery. His wife, who has also been ill with pneumonia for two weeks, is thought to be improving. His sister, Aunt Mag, who has been confined to her bed for seven years, continues about the same. Our heart-felt sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Miss Lois McMahon has returned from the Baptist Hospital of Winston-Salem and is improving. She is now at the home of her brother, Elmer McMahon, who lives near Mr. Marshall Byerly in the Friendship community. We hope for her a speedy recovery and an early return to church.

Mrs. R. S. Troxler was sick last Sunday, but we are glad to report that she was able to be at church today.

The Woman's Auxiliary will have charge of the service at Shiloh on next Sunday night at 7:30. You will be welcome. Come.

First Church, High Point.—As the subject of his Sunday morning discourse the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, raised the question, "Is God Near or Far Off?" In the longest Psalm, No. 119, David declares in the 151st verse, "Thou art near, O Lord," and Robert Browning expressed the same splendid faith when he said "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world;" Lord Tennyson exclaimed, "Speak thou to Him for He hears." There is a story of a teacher who once wrote for a copy, "God Is Nowhere," but a child in innocent faith transformed it into "God is now here." God comes down and walks with men. It is not distance that separates God from us, but sin does; neither distance nor space, nor time, but our own misdeeds. It is our contradictory experiences that change our feelings. St. Augustine sometimes missed Good; Cowper cried out "Where is the blessing I once knew!" Sarah Flower Adams, author of one of the sweetest hymns of the ages, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," confessed that she did not always feel the presence of God; even Jesus on the cross cried out, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" O, my friends, if you do not feel the presence of God near you, it is because of some neglect or sinfulness of heart. When you turn to God, He is near. Thrice happy is the man or woman who can feel the Heavenly Father's nearness as he or she goes about the daily tasks, in shop or store or office, in humble duties of baking, sweeping, dusting, or washing little faces!

"Jesus, Savior, pilot me
Over life's tempestuous sea;
Unknown waves before me roll,
Hiding rock and treach'rous shoal;
Chart and compass come from thee,
Jesus, Savior, pilot me."

At the evening service Rev. Mr. Farmer commenced a series of sermons on Happiness, something which everybody, old and young, rich and poor, high and lowly, desires and yearns for. Even Ingersoll conceded that the way to be happy is to make others happy. The secret of a hppy life is simple: "Fear God and keep His commandments;" "to do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God." "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

The Young People's C. E. Society held its weekly meeting Sunday evening with Miss Alene Vance leader. The Senior Society, of which Miss Irene Reynolds is president, met as usual on Monday evening, and Miss Margaret Lewis discussed the all-important question, "Why Marriages Succeed or Fail."

Dr. H. Augustine Smith, of Boston, world-known hymnologist and author of the widely used "Hymnal for American Youth," spoke at chapel exercises at High Point College Monday morning. He was introduced by Rev. E. Lester Ballard, who studied under him for two years in Boston. Dr. Smith came over from Greensboro where he made four addresses on Sunday.

Another distinguished and consecrated minister appearing in High Point this week is Dr. Egbert W. Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., who occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church twice on Sunday and who will speak every evening until Wednesday. He is a son of the distinguished and greatly beloved Dr. J. Henry Smith, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Greensboro for 40 years, and sire of a remarkable family of preachers and men of letters. Dr. Egbert himself has been connected with foreign missionary work for more than 25 years.

The circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon in homes as follows: No. 4, with Mrs. W. A. Davis; No. 5, with Mrs. John C. Whitesell; No. 6, with Mrs. G. I. Humphreys; No. 7, with Mrs. A. A. York; No. 8, with Miss Gertrude Teague; Circles Nos. 2 and 3, composed of young women and business girls, will meet Tuesday evening with Mrs. Lee Collins and Miss Annabel Thompson, respectively.

The American Legion Auxiliary heard a delightful talk on Americanism by Mrs. R. I. Farmer at a well-attended meeting last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. S. R. Matthews. She said that our country has a peculiar responsibility to people of other nationalities since she has become to a great degree the "melting pot" of the world for the many immigrants who have voluntarily come to our shores, and who have become of late years such a tremendous problem. Theodore Roosevelt defined Americanism as "the triumph of real democracy and popular government, and of an economic system under which each man shall have abundant opportunity to show the best there is in him." Mrs. Farmer's splendid address was closed by reading Henry Van Dyke's "America For Me." With a little practice Mrs. Farmer will rival her husband as a forceful and thoughtful speaker, and he may well look to his laurels.

At the meeting of the Musical ArtsClub Monday evening at the Country Club Mrs. J. Norman Wills, of Grensboro, gave an interesting sketch of the life of the composer, Edward McDowell, and the colony at Peterboro, N. H., where she spent considerable time. With Miss Kathryn Tate, of Greensboro, Mrs. Wills played four numbers from "Four Hand Piano Suite" and the second and third movements of Sonata Tragico as a piano solo with masterly power and beautiful interpretation. Mrs. Wills is an accomplished musician, and has done much to encourage and foster musical art in North Carolina. Appearing on the program were numbers by McDowell by Miss Anne Robbins, who sang "Thy Beaming Eyes" and "Love Song." Miss Margaret Opal Neese sang "Cradle Song," "The Wounded Birch," and "Day Is Done." The Women's chorus of which Miss Genevieve Moore is director, and of which Mrs. R. W. Riggins is a member, sang some elections.

The new gymnasium at High Point College, a pretty brick veneer building just in the rear of McCulloch Hall, the boys' dormitory, was formally dedicated with appropriate exercises last Thursday evening. Rev. Nat M. Harrison had charge of the program and introduced the speakers, chief among whom was Coach C. C. Collins, of the State University. A number of members of clubs and individuals who made this building possible, were introduced and properly thanked. The gym is an important addition to the college plant, and will add greatly to the health and happiness of the college students with "sound minds in sound bodies."

The weekly prayer meeting will convene in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Whitesell Monday evening.

Young Joe Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. June Gray, is improving after an illness.

Mrs. J. A. Gray was summoned to Charlotte Sunday morning by the sad news of the sudden death of her father Mr. W. J. Hutchinson. When Mrs. Hutchinson arose at 6 o'clock, she called her husband, and upon his failure to answer she found that he had passed into the Great Beyond. A physician was summoned at once, but he gave his opinion that life had been extinct about an hour. What a blessed release to fall into peaceful sleep on earth and awake with the hosts of the redeemed with God! Mr. Hutchinson, one of the outstanding citizens of Mecklenburg county and a prominent busines sman of Charlotte, having been a director in the Independence Trust Company and other banks of the Queen City, was affiliated with the Presbyterian church, being a member of the Second Presbyterian church, Charlotte, at the time of his death. He and his family lived five miles from Charlotte on the Statesville road, and he owned a considerable real estate and business holdings in the city. Mr. Hutchinson was a man of the finest type of Christian character, of high integrity and honor, a devoted husband and father. He is survived by his widow, who was before her marriage Miss Martha E. Cochrane; three sons, J. Olin, T. Roy, and W. Bruce Hutchinson, who with his wife make their home with his father and mother, and three daughters, Mrs. Reed Surratt, Mrs. Nat S. Alexander, all of Charlotte and Mecklenburg County, and Mrs. J. A. Gray, of High Point. One son died several years ago. There are also a number of grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted at the home on Monday afternoon, there being a large concourse of relatives and friends in attendance and an unusually beautiful display of flowers. The body was laid to rest in lovely Elmwood cemetery, Charlotte. Those attending from High Point were Mr. and Mrs. June A. Gray and oldest son, Alson, and Mrs. C. L. Gray. Heart-felt sympathy is extended by a host of friends to Mrs. Gray, one of First Church's popular and best loved members.

The sympathy of the entire congregation is offered to Mr. D. A. Neese in the loss of his mother, Mrs. W. A. Neese, who passed away Sunday morning, February 19, after an illness of a few weeks from influenza which developed into pneumonia. She had attained the ripe age of 80 years, and possessed the love and esteem of a large number of friends, besides a number of family connections; she was born and reared near Liberty, N. C., in the same community where her entire life was spent. Funeral services were conducted at Pleasant Union on Mount Pleasant charge on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock by her pastor, Dr. T. M. Johnson.

On Sunday morning, February 26th, the annual Thank-Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary will be observed. Rev. Mr. Farmer will deliver a missionary sermon, and a special offering will be taken. Our church is asked for a donation of $55.00 this year.

Circle No. 5 of Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, chairman, is planning to give a chiecken-pie supper Thursday evening, March 9, from 6 to 8 o'clock at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins on Archdale road. The menu will be appealing and toothsome; the charge will be 35 cents per plate, and all our friends are invited.

Miss Myrtle Davis is spending this week in Randleman as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Loui Davis.

Mrs. J. H. Richardson, of Asheville, who has been a guest of her brother, Prof E. B. Stimson and sister, Miss Kathleen Stimson, has returned home.

We are pleased to announce that Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, who has been ill, is much improved and able to be out again.

Rupert T. Pickens left last night for Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., on business.

Mrs. D. A. Neese is serving a cafeteria supper this evening to parents at Ray Street School at the regular price charged the children, after which a visit will be made to the different class rooms, and an entertaining Founders' Day program will be presented for the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Tabernacle-Julian.—Our ladies at Tabernacle conducted their thank-offering service on January 29 with satisfactory results. The pastor could not be present and does not know the exact amount of the offering but reports were to the effect that there was a good program and a good offering. The Julian ladies are to have their thank-offering soon.

Young People's services have been conducted at both churches. At Julian this service was conducted on January 29 at the morning service. The Tabernacle service was to have been on the night of January 29, but because of bad weather and some other disappointments the service was postponed until the night of February 12. At this time the weather conditions were unfavorable and the attendance was not as large as had been hoped for, but the pageant and other parts of the service were good. At both churches the offerings were not as good as we wish they might have been but with weather conditions, the condition of country roads and other winter conditions, the programs, the attendance and the offerings were very satisfactory.

Our churches have attempted to raise one-half of the Annual Conference budget at this time to help relieve the great need of the Conference. Tabernacle has not yet reached the "over the top," but Julian has gone over the top with a little plus.

It was the great pleasure of the pastor and family to have in the parsonage on the evening of February 10 Drs. Humphreys, Johnson and Taylor. It was the first time our home has been so honored to have three Doctors of Divinity and three ex-presidents in our home at the same time. We were indeed glad to have these distinguished brethren dine with us. These brethren came to talk to us about organizing the Loyalty League. But weather conditions were such that only a few of the brethren of the church could attend the appointed meeting.

We were indeed glad to have Rev. T. F. McCulloch and Dr. Taylor in the service at Tabernacle on last Sunday. Bro. McCulloch came to pay a visit to the church which he learned to love in early life and has never lost that love. Dr. Taylor came in the interest of the needs of High Point College. We were glad to have these two good brethren with us and to have them take a part in the services. Come again, brethren.

Our sick people are improving. Bro. Walter Hardin, who had a very serious operation some time ago, is improving, and Bro. E. T. Coble, who has been confined to his room for a number of weeks, is now able to be on a business trip to New York.

The people are still good to the people of the parsonage. When a request is made that the pastor and wife be sure to stop by, and when this request is complied with, the result being a fine ham, package of flour and a package of corn meal is deposited in the car for the use of the folks at the parsonage, that is fine treatment. This is exactly what happened recently at one of the Julian homes. But the pastor was warned not to mention names. So names are being omitted, but God konws and we know. Thanks.

Miss Virginia Jackson, of Star church, Baltimore City, is the house guest at the Tabernacle parsonage. We are always glad to have Miss Jackson with us. She was a member of Broadway church when the writer was pastor of that church. Her visits to our home have always been pleasant and it has always seemed like a return of home-folks.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Lexington.—As First M. P. church, Lexington, is running a contest with Concord in our Sunday school we wish to run just the attendance of our Sunday school for a date until a fuller report can be sent in.

On last Sunday our Sunday school had 287, for which we are proud. We are praying that God will be with us and that we can reach our 350 goal and more if possible. Pray for us. REPORTER.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Self

Mrs. John Self, born September 30, 1850, departed this life January 25, 1933. She was married to John Self March 10, 1870. To this union were born 12 children, ten living, two dead.

She professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Protestant church at Moriah in early life, and lived a faithful and consistent member until death.

She leaves to mourn her going ten children. (Two children and her husband preceded her to the grave); 55 grandchildren, 61 great-grandchildren, three brothers and two sisters and a host of friends and loved ones.

The funeral service was conducted by the writer at Mt. Moria church Thursday at 2 p. m., in the presence of a large congregation, and burial took place in the church cemetery. Perhaps it will be of interest to some of our readers to know that Sister Self was the mother of one of our pastors of other days, Rev. J. W. Self, who is now living at Cherryville, N. C.

Isley

Mary Elizabeth Islay was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isley. She was born October 11, 1875, and passed away at her home in Burlington, January 31, 1933. She was married to Alson C. Isley September 3, 1896. To this union were born three children. Her only son, Carl Henry, preceded her to the grave on December 17, 1932.

She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. R. C. Moser, Mrs. C. M. Mann, of Burlington; one brother J. G. Isley, of Burlington, Route 6; one sister, Sarah Isley, also of Route 6, and six grandchildren.

She united with Friendship Methodist Protestant Church at the early age of 12. She was a faithful member of this church for 45 years. She attended the church services as long as her health permitted.

The funeral was conducted at her home, 609 Maple Avenue, Burlington, by the writer, assisted by Dr. S. W. Taylor, Dr. F. W. Paschall and Rev. J. W. Mann. Music for the occasion was furnished by a group and quartet from the First church, Burlington.

The large number of relatives and friends that gathered at the home showed some of the high esteem in which she was held by all who knew her. The floral offering also gave a striking evidence of her large host of friends. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in the Pine Hill cemetery.

Her immediate family, husband and two daughters, will feel the loss most keenly. Only a few weeks ago the only son of the home was called to his reward. May those who feel the loss most severely have grace to say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." We join with a vast host of relatives and friends in extending to the family our tenderest sympathies. May they take courage and follow in the steps of a devoted wife and a godly mother.

L. E. MABRY.

Bulla

Harriett Redding Bulla, daughter of the late Thomas and Eliza Steed Redding, was born April 21, 1859, and departed this life January 9, 1933.

On April 18, 1878, she was married to Benjamin F. Bulla, who passed beyond in May, 1919. To this union 12 children were born eight of whom survive. They are Mrs. G. I. Davis, of Johnson City, Tenn.; Fletcher Bulla, of Asheboro; Mrs. S. E. Henley, of Asheboro, Route 2; Michaux Bulla, of near Burlington; Earl and Dewey Bulla, of Asheboro; Mrs. J. B. Farlow, of Sophia, and Kate Bulla, of Asheboro. She is also survived by one brother, W. F. Redding, of Asheboro, and several grandchildren.

She was noble in character and a loving and devoted wife and mother; until ill health overcame her she was never idle.

When a young girl she became a member of Charlotte Methodist Protestant church and always remained a loyal member. She will be greatly missed by her relatives and friends.

The many and beautiful floral offerings were reminders of the love and friendship of neighbors and friends who were saddened by her departure.

Funeral services were conducted by Revs. R. C. Stubbins J. C. Pritchard, R. S. Truesdale at Charlotte M. P. church.

Whitman

William W. Whitman was born at Dosier, Forsyth county, North Carolina, June 8, 1887, the son of John Wesley and Florence Conrad Whitman and was called from this life January 29, 1933. He was married March 18, 1909, to Miss Mary Alice Speas, and to this happy union were born eight children, all of whom are living: Mrs. Hugh Pfaff, Mrs. C. O. Boyles, Jr., Wilbur Whitman, William W. Whitman, Jr., George Whitman, Abraham Whitman, Ozelle Whitman and Mabel Whitman. Two grandchildren, Peggy Pfac and Leo Wilbur Whitman, Jr.; two brothers, E. L. Whitman, and R. J. Whitman; three sisters, Mrs. Fannie Holder, Mrs. Alice Beroth, and Miss Lillie Whitman also urvive.

Brother Whitman wa converted in 1913, and had been a regular attendant at church and Sunday school, although he had never united with the church. It was said that he expressed his purpose and desire to become a member of the church only a few weeks before his death. He was a noble citizen, a kind husband and a loving father. For many years he engaged in the cattle business, following the same occupation of his father, who passed away several years ago.

Funeral services were conducted in the home and at Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant church, West Forsyth charge, Tuesday afternoon, January 31, by the writer, assisted by Rev. F. W. Grabs, of the Moravian dhuruh.

"God knows, God loves, God cares,
Nothing this truth cand dim;
He'll do the very best for those
Who leave their choice with Him."

Burns

Paul Allen Burns was born at Ansonville on March 19, 1882. He passed away at Clinic Hospital in Greensboro on January 7, 1933. He had been failing in health for several weeks.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Myrtle Spoon; two daughters, Misses Dorothy and Phyllis Burns, and one son, Paul M. Burns, all of Greensboro; two sisters, Mrs. George Andrews, of Mount Gilead, and Miss Nannie Burns, of Ansonville; two brothers, George Burns, of Ansonville, and Ernest Burns, of Jacksonville, Fla., also survive.

Bro. Burns had made his home in Greensboro for more than a quarter of a century. He was connected with the postoffice all the time he lived in this city. His work put him in contact with a host of people, and they all became his friends. Everyone who knew him loved him.

Bro. Burns was among the first 12 to join West End church in Greensboro, during the pastorate of Rev. R. A. Hunter, the first pastor of this church. He was a faithful and loyal member until he was called to his reward in the other world. May his example always be a guide to his family and host of friends.

The funeral service was conducted at West End church on Sunday afternoon, January 8, at 3 o'clock. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery, High Point. The writer was assisted in the funeral service by two former pastors, Rev. N. M. Harrison and Rev. Geo. L. Curry, and a friend of the family, Rev. J. H. Barnhardt.

Wiliams

Again, Flat Rock church is saddened over the passing of one of its best loved, oldest, and most loyal members, J. W. Williams, or "Babe," as he was lovingly known by all his friends. One instinctively felt when in his company that he was in the presence of a good, true man. He was quiet and unassuming, and gentle, and his life, both private and public, was an inspiration to others.

He died in his 76th year. He joined Flat Rock church when quite a young man. He was steward of the church for 40 years. He was happily married to Miss Emma Wall. Mrs. Williams said to me while he was sick that they had been so happy together; that it had seemed such a little while since they were married.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. T. M. Styers, of Summerfield, and Carey Williams, of Greensboro, and one brother, G. D. Williams, of Reidsville.

His funeral was conducted in Flat Rock church at 3 o'clock by his pastor Rev. J. R. Hutton, assisted by Rev. W. F. Kennett, a former pastor. The large audience proved the esteem in which he was held by the community.

The doors of his home were always open to the preachers, and one always felt that there was genuine hospitality there. He was always interested in, and faithful to, all his church duties. We can say of him, in the words of Paul, "Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord."

ONE LESS AT HOME

One less at home,
The charmed circle broken and a dear face
Missed day by day from its accustomed place,
But cleansed and saved and perfected by grace!
One more in heaven.

One less on earth!
Its pains, its sorrows, and its toils to share;
One less the daily cross to bear,
One more the crown of ransomed souls to wear—
At home in heaven!

One more in heaven!
Another thought to brighten cloudy days,
Another theme of thankfulness and praise,
Another link on high our souls to raise,
To home and heaven!

One more at home!
That home where separation can not be,
That home where none are missed eternally:
Lord Jesus, grant us all a place with Thee—
At home in heaven.

Kiger

Mary Ellen Kiger was born June 15, 1854, died December 25, 1932. She was married to R. F. Kiger October 1, 1878. This union was blessed with seven sons and two daughters, 28 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. Two brothers and one sister survive her, they are: D. M. Moser, Pinnacle, N. C.; J. H. Moser of Tennessee; and Mrs. J. R. Barber, Siloam, N. C. Children surviving are: A. C. Kiger, King; W. F. Kiger, Mocksville; J. W. Kiger, Pilot Mountain; W. E. Kiger, Elkin; Babe Kiger, Siloam; Mrs. R. M. Battle, Guilford College; and Mrs. A. C. Stilley, Pilot Mountain, N. C.

She joined Mt. Zion M. P. Church in early life and lived a consistent Christian life until she was called up higher.

For the past 12 years she has made her home with her children. She was a loving mother and in her last days expressed herself as being ready to meet her Maker, and wanted to go.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer after which the remains were laid to rest in Mt. Zion cemetery. The bereaved have our sympathy.

A. L. HUNTER.

Isley

Carl Henry Isley was born August 21, 1899, and passed away at home December 17. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Wilson Isley; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alson C. Isley; two sisters, Mrs. B. C. Moser and Mrs. C. M. Mann, all of Burlington.

He had been a long sufferer from asthma. For several years he was unable to be very active in life because of this disease. Prior to his going he talked freely of his great hope in heaven. He told his immediate family that the day of his departure was at hand, and that he had no fear of the change. In a conversation just previous to his passing he bade his loved ones and friends good by and admonished them to meet him in yonder world where sickness nor pain ever trouble or molest.

The wife, parents, and friends have our sympathy.

L. E. MABRY.

Lane

Sally Ann Lane, wife of the late J. W. Lane, was born September 15, 1872 and departed this life, January 12, 1933.

She has been a member of Mt. Zion church for about 40 years. She lived at beautiful Christian life and attended her church just as long as her health would permit. She leaves to mourn her passing ten children: B. W. Lane, Elbe, N. C.; E. A. Lane, Advance, N. C.; Mrs. P. A. McCoin, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mrs. Robie Wagoner, Pilot Mountain, N. C.; R. V. Lane, Mrs. B. L. Moser, Mrs. Bill Hutchins, Mrs. Claude Hutchins Wilson, and Estelle Lane, all of Pinnacle N. C.

She will be greatly missed by all of her relatives and friends but we feel that our loss is her eternal gain.

Her husband preceded her in death about two years' ago, and since then she hasn't seemed to have much desire to remain here.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer; interment was in the church cemetery. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved ones.

A. L. HUNTER.

Huneycutt

William Matthew Huneycutt was born on March 19, 1914, and died at the Yadkin Hospital, Albemarle, February 17, 1933. He was the son of Mrs. Frank Mason and step-son of "Uncle" Frank Mason. The other members of the family that survive him are four half-brothers and three half sisters.

Matthew was a member of Friendship church, and his funeral was held in the church Saturday, February 18, at 11 a. m., conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. M. Morgan and Rev. W. D. Reed. The large number attending the service and the beautiful flowers were a taken of the love and respect they held for him. The pallbearers were young men that were numbered as his close friends. The burial was in Friendship cemetery.

Our prayer is that God will bless and comfort his mother, who was overcome with grief. To all who read this we are asking that you join us in prayer for Brother and Sister Mason and for the other members of the family who grieve for him.

O. B. WILLIAMS.

Mrs. Newbride—Kenneth, darling I think the butcher cheated me.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Asheville, 15 scrap books for little children.

Mr. Sykes, Durham, 1 suit for boy.

A friend, 1 bushel irish potatoes, 1 bushel sweet potatoes and some jelly.

Mrs. D. M. Kennedy, Pleasant Grove, 1 pair pants.

We are thankful for all these gifts, both of money and of substance.

Those churches which are from time to time sending in additional Thanksgiving offerings encourage us.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smerdon, of Henderson, were our long-time friends. They were also long-time friends of the Home. Brother Smerdon preceded his good wife to the glory world, and when it came her time to go it was found in her will that she hadbequeathed to "The Methodist Protestant Children's Home" the sum of $250.00. We greatly appreciate this expression of Mrs. Smerdon's love for this Home and its children. She has gone to her heavenly home, but her substance is still blessing the orphan child. We praise the Lord for Christian people and for their gifts to His needy ones.

The Contest for Coupons

The contest for coupons from the Octagon products for the Home closes with next Tuesday, February 28th. Please see that all packages of coupons are mailed to us not later than that date.

We thank you, and may God bless you every one.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

Bride—Cuthbert, dear, how does my record so far compare with your mother's?

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

FIRST QUARTERLY CONFERENCE ROCKINGHAM, SEPTEMBER 15, 1933

Pastor, C. W. Saunders, in chair; secretary, Miss Ruby Martin. Scripture reading by the pastor. Miss Ruby Martin was elected secretary for the ensuing year. Officials present were: W. M. Jenkins, W. I. Dunn; absent, Mrs. Fields. Advisory Committe:e W. M. Jenkins, W. I. Dunn, Mr. Maness. Committee to examine anyone who wishes to enter the ministry: H. W. Snead, W. T. Bown, C. W. Saunders.

Class leader was present and gave his report. He says that not much has been accomplished but hopes that much may be accomplished in the future. It was suggested that all the members back up the leader and be present at each class meeting, and in this way much good can be done.

Committee to get members and people who have gone astray: Mrs. W. T. Brown, W. I. Dunn, W. T. Brown, W. M. Jenkins, J. T. Maness.

Pastor—Received on Pastor's salary $14.08. Has filled all appointments since being elected pastor. Has made one visit. Pastor recommends that each home establish a family altar also that all the church co-operate with its superintendent, teachers, and classleaders. We are glad to say that since we came to this charge we have found the people very fine in spirit and believe we will have a great year.

Secretary reports amount taken in Sunday school since last quarterly conference $18.87; amount paid out since last quarterly conference, $15.74; average attendance of scholars, seventy.

Our Sunday school superintendent feels that some other might fill his place better, but promises he will never shirk his duty as long as he holds this important office. He urges the Sunday school to stand by him that he may do his best.

Officers elected for the Brotherhood are: President, W. M. Jenkins; secretary, H. W. Snead; members, C. W. Saunders, W. M. Jenkins, W. I. Dunn, W. T. Brown, J. T. Maness, and H. W. Snead.

Ladies' Aid society officers are: President, Mrs. W. T. Brown; secretary, Annie Belle Martin.

Stewards chosen were: W. T. Brown, H. W. Snead, and Mrs. W. T. Brown.

The meeting was adjourned.

VOLUME XXXIX GREENSBORO, N. C., MARCH 2, 1933 NUMBER 15

The Hills of God

The eternal hills of God I view
With their stately forms both tall and few
With a wonder-stricken mind;
They inspire my soul with courage new
And instill a spirit kind.
There they stand majestic and content
With the purpose of their God;
They fulfil such mission as He meant
While the heavens bright applaud.

Though the hand of man by grace divine
Has shaped much that merits praise,
Yet the hand of God doth e'er design
From a plan which doth amaze.
With their stately forms both tall and few
Mountains dwell withdrawn apart;
But rare sunlight sheds effulgent hue
Never found in crowded mart.

Yes, our God abides above the mount
Which remains unmoved by time;
It is there with Him I find the fount
Of His love and grace sublime.
I will lift mine eyes above the hills
Whence doth come that help so strong;
For the Lord of hills is He who fills
My dull heart with joyful song.

The Church or the People?

The question is, are the people to save the church, or is the church to be a means of saving the people? It seems that this question is too often viewed from the wrong angle, especially in these days of economic depression. In almost every issue of the church papers, and in too many of the sermons, there is an urgent appeal for both finance and co-operation, which usually ends with the thought, either expressed or implied, that we must save the church. It is true that if the church is to serve as a means of saving a people it must itself be spared. But, the primary objective is to save the people and let the salvation of the church take a secondary place.

The salvation of the church has been harangued until the man of the street, and many of those who were at one time active church workers, have come to feel that the church is just another mental and financial burden, which might easily be left off, until the depression ends, so far as its administering to the actual needs of life is concerned. Thousands of members look upon the church as a pleasant luxury but not as a necessity. They attend its services, when attendance involves no inconvenience, but stay away in times of personal sorrow or disaster because they do not seem to think the church is able to offer any practical aid.

The church must be ''resold'' to the people, even its own members. And if it is to be ''resold'' it must be carried to the people. The church must serve the people, whose needs today may be entirely different for what they were even ten years ago. If the church will meet the needs of the people then the people will care for the needs of the church. Therefore, if a people, or generation, is not supporting the church let the church ask itself whether or not it is facing and trying to meet the actual needs of that, so-called, wicked people or generation.

Well-Balanced Lives

So much is being written and spoken about ''balancing the budget'' that we wonder if more emphasis should not be placed upon ''balancing our lives.'' To balance the budget means a long step toward material prosperity, be that in business or in the church. To balance our lives means a great advance toward spiritual perfection, which we as Christians should be seeking.

Living the Christian life today is as difficult as it ever was. As we read the history of the Christian Church and the biographies of the church fathers and other outstanding Christian leaders, we find that they ''endured hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ.'' And that word, ''hardness,'' signifies deprivation, self-denial, sacrifice, persecution, yea, martyrdom.

With the change of the ages, following an upheaval of war, of religion, of scientific discoveries, different standards are raised, new temptations arise, other obstacles are encountered. Yet, in the main, the Ideal of the life and teachings of Jesus remains the same. We still need to ''press toward the goal for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.''

This is an age of skepticism, of doubt, of laxity. It is easier in some respects to perform questionable moral acts and get away with it. And so, the moral and religious stamina of the Christian is tried to the breaking point. Many are unable to endure, so they yield; surrender some of their traditional and cherished virtues; incur the disappointment of their friends and fellow-Christians; perhaps cause the wavering or destruction of faith on the part of a weaker one; sell their birthright for a mess of pottage. With many Christian men and women today, it is as difficult to hold fast to Christ as it was in the days of Nero. Quite different, to be sure, but the principle is the same.

We mean no discouragement nor pessimism by the foregoing assertions, for there are thousands upon thousands whose names do not appear in the public press, nor are whispered questioningly from mouth to ear, who are armored against all the wiles of the evil one and are fortified against all the storms of life. The power of the gospel to save and keep saved is evidenced today as never before.

It is the well-balanced life that we plead for as the most potent factor in the promulgation of the gospel. Miss Olive Hodges, our returned missionary from Japan, in her splendid address before the Greensboro audience, said, "What is most effective in Japan is living the Christian life." In other words, the lives of the professing Christians are open books, "known and read of all men."

It is so easy to over-emphasize one phase of Christian living and ignore or slight another of equal importance. It is so common a practice to criticize and judge our fellow-Christians for the sin of omission, when we are guilty of other phases of the same sin. It is so evident that we ofttimes "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel," as well as fail to "first cast out the beam out of our own eye."

We have been told that an admirer of a certain professional evangelist rather boastfully asserted before a large group of people that, though he owed a good-size grocery bill, and his income was very small, he would give ten dollars as a love offering to the evangelist. In relating this, a friend remarked to us that the boaster did not make the gift, but the grocer did. As a consistent Christian, that man needed to first make adjustment of his obligation to his creditor. "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

Summarizing, the well-balanced Christian life consists of: Irreproachable moral conduct; Christ-like attitude toward other races; zeal for national and international peace; assertive conviction against all forms of intoxication; wide vision of Kingdom interests. "And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as unto the Lord . . . for ye serve the Lord Christ." (Col. 3:23, 24).

B.

HOW RICH ARE YOU?

It is my policy to allow children to ask many questions, just such questions as their developing minds, and the situations in which they find themselves, may suggest.

"Papa, are we very rich?" It was my small daughter Helen who came at me with that inquiry. Recalling that I had four children—two girls and two boys—and knowing my income, and how careful the wife and I had to be in order that the outgo might not exceed that small income, I could but hesitate a bit before answering, and smile at the questioner.

"Are we, really, Papa? I want to know." The child's good face and clear, frank eyes were turned appealingly toward me, and I must stir myself to find an adequate answer.

"Well, let's see," I replied. "We have our family in pretty good health, and that counts for a lot. This parsonage is a comfortable place in which to live. We have many friends both young and old, we have books and magazines which we all like, our flowers furnish much enjoyment, the birds delight us throughout the greater part of the year, and we all have interesting things we take pleasure in doing. Yes, Helen, I think we are quite well off."

There were numerous well-to-do people in that parish, and the children of some of them were quite conscious of the worldly possessions of their parents—lands, houses, business, live stock, money, etc. Evidently these children had talked such things over in the presence of Helen—a sort of conversation that had little place in the parsonage—and she naturally became interested to know how her family stood in this matter that seemed so important to these children. As a matter of course, and quite commendably, she went to her father for information. I am glad I have never discouraged such a serious approach on the part of a child.

What are some of the marks, and sources of enjoyment, of one who possesses real riches? I speak of some of my own present experiences and conditions.

My room and board are not as high-priced as are the ones some other people think they must have—though they are adequate to my needs—but I am able to pay a month in advance.

My clothing is comfortable, I am welcome in very nice homes where live excellent people, the pews and pulpits of many churches large and small are open to me, I am admitted to conventions, learned lectures, libraries, art galleries, and receptions—from the White House down.

I have a pair of house slippers, a pair of rubbers, and three pairs of shoes. This is not as extravagant as you may think. When I am through with shoes nobody would want them. I do not often wear the same ones an entire day. By shifting from one pair to another they have a chance to rest and be aired, and my feet are much more comfortable for the change.

I have two sets of cuff and collar buttons—with some to spare—so I do not have to change them from one shirt to another until the garment is ready for the laundry. It doesn't break my heart, nor greatly disturb my temper, when one rolls out of reach or is lost in the trash.

I use all the postage I need. I write all the letters I want to within the limits of my time and strength. Perhaps I use more postal cards than before the rate on letters was raised to three cents—one can get quite a long type-written message on a postal card, and it is more expeditious to dispatch a card than a letter. But I do not regret the cost of stamps, for the service rendered by our postal system is very efficient and really beyond price.

Skimping on paper is one of my pet methods of economy. But I come by that honestly. When the Editor of THE HERALD was my room-mate in college he used to exasperate me by using unusually small and irregularly shaped bits of paper for making notes. These were copied on better paper when he desired to send them out or to permanently preserve them. So I take a more or less wicked delight in sending him contributions typed on vari-colored sheets of paper single-spaced, instead of double as the rules require.

A man of wealth was asked to name the greatest advantage that came to him because of his large income. After a moment's reflection, he replied: "That I can continue wearing my old coat that has become comfortably shaped to my shoulders, without my friends being sorry for me because I am too poor to buy a new one. Possibly I may reach that state of affluance in the course of time.

If I were still richer, I should probably attend more of the high-priced concerts, lectures, and theatrical performances.

sum. They are not willing to take a lot of things they do not like, to get the things that are so very important. Some people refuse to go into the church because of a dislike for some person in it. Individuals should be willing to overlook some difficulties in order to live a Christian life. Procrastination is another reason that people go away from Jesus. Everyone has a desire to live a right life, and he should make himself realize that now is the accepted time. Some go away from Jesus as backsliders, but they will die in their sins if they do not return to God. They will have to live a life of repentance. Salvation is a long process. To confess God and join the church is only the beginning. Thus, we are urged to accept Christianity as a whole and live by it. If we have departed from God we should come back to Him.

Quarterly conference will be held at this church on Saturday afternoon, March 18th, at 2 o'clock. Dr. Taylor will be with us at that time. He will make a talk after the business session.

Mrs. Mamie Keck is ill with the flu.

Class No. 5 held its monthly class meeting at the home of its vice-president, Miss Mattie Pickett, on Thursday evening, February 23. The meeting was in charge of the president, Miss Dorothy Hargiis. After the business session the members had a most pleasant social hour. Miss Pickett, assisted by Miss Alma Mae Hargis, served orangeade, fruit salad, and vanilla wafers. The next meeting will be held with Miss Maybell Hill.

REPORTER.

Liberty, Liberty Charge.—Today was a good day for us at Liberty, both in Sabbath school and church services.

Rev. and Mrs. F. R. Love have won the love and esteem of all whom they have met. We are very fortunate indeed to have them with us.

On Sunday morning Mr. Love gave us a forceful Gospel message, using as his theme, "Sacrifice," based on the text from Hebrews 10:1. The Scripture lesson included the first 15 verses. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

Dr. T. M. Johnson brought the message for the evening service. We are always delighted to hear Dr. Johnson. We hope he may come again soon.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock Important business is to be transacted.

The Teachers' Council will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30.

The Christian Endeavorers enjoyed a Washington program and social hour in the church parlors Wednesday night.

One of our members, Miss Lucile Ward, left last week to take up training in a hospital in New Jersey.

The Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening, the topic being "Discovering Jesus' Principles for Our Lives." Miss Marjorie Elkins was the very capable leader. One of the sweetest thoughts in the Bible is: "He cares for me." Not a tear drops from the eye of the suffering and sorrowing that our Heavenly Father does not see.

Miss Margaret Shepard, who is a senior at Woman's College, spent Sunday at home with her mother, Mrs. F. A. Shepard.

Mrs. Walter Yow, of Asheboro, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Mamie Smith.

We are hoping that spring-time is just around the corner.

HISTORICAL SKETCH, ORANGE CHAPEL METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

TThe Methodist Protestants organized a church at Flint Hill log schoolhouse some time before 1850, or about that time. It is thought that this church was organized by Rev. Also Gray, D. D., who was then pastor of Orange charge. After its organization it was attached to Orange Circuit, making five churches for this charge.

One of the earlier pastors was Daniel Thompson, a local preacher. Other pastors who served this church were C. F. Harris, George E. Hunt, G. A. T. Whitaker, and J. R. Ball. When members were received they were admitted on six months' probation. If they were faithful to the church vows for six months they were received into full membership. About 1877 the members decided to build a new church. Daniel Foust donated two acres of land on which to build the church. Before the building was erected Mr. Foust sold his farm to John Crawford, who added one and three-fourths acres, making three and three-fourths acres in all. In 1901 this land was deeded to the following trustees: David M. Lewis, Charles D. Edwards, Samuel S. Thompson, William M. Ferguson, and George D. Crawford. Mr. Lewis and Mr. Crawford are now deceased. The new church was built about one mile west of Flint Hill on the Hillsboro and Pittsboro road. It was named Orange Chapel for the county. There seems to have been a controversy about naming the church. Some wanted it called Daniels Chapel, in honor of Daniel Foust, and others Gray's Chapel, in honor of Alson Gray. Logs were cut for a log house, but the members decided to erect a frame house. Sawmills not being plentiful in those days, all the timbers were bewed by hand.

Rev. Preston Ferguson, a local preacher who belonged to this church, conducted the first service in the new church. It is said that Mr. Ferguson had great natural ability and preached remarkably well, being instrumental in saving many souls. His body now lies sleeping in the church cemetery. The following pastors served this church. W. W. Amick, R. R. Michaux, C. A. Cecil, W. C. Kennett, D. A. Highfill, and J. D. Williams. When Saxapahaw Circuit was created abont 1894, Orange Chapel was attached to this charge.

The present building was begun in 1901 and completed the next year. William M. Ferguson and C. C. Crawford have the distinction of cutting the first log to build this church, a splendid rural church building. This church has been served by the following pastors: G. H. Auston, W. M. Pike, J. H. Bowman, G. W. Holmes, H. S. B. Thompson, J. Clyde Auman, T. A. Williams, J. M. Ridenhour, D. M. Loy, H. L. Isley, O. C. Loy, T. J. Whitehead, and W. M. Loy.

It seems that a Sunday school has been running since the church was organized. Among the names of the Sunday school superintendents listed are the following: J. S. Crawford, Tom Rogers, J. J. Crawford, J. S. Morrow, Mrs. Foust Thompson, Clyde Ferguson, Ira Lewis, James Morrow, Floy Ferguson, Foust Thompson, and Mrs. Lizzie Ferguson Maynard. ONE OF THE MEMBERS.

THANK-OFFERING SERVICE

First M. P. Church, Burlington, N. C.

Directed by the president, Mrs. M. A. Coble, and the Thank-Offering Committee, Mrs. Herbert W. Wade and Miss Swannie Coble, the Thank-Offering service appearing in the Missionary Record for January, supplemented by the "Candle-Light" service, was impressively presented by the Woman's Auxiliary February 19 to a large and appreciative audience.

Miss Swannie Coble read the Scripture and prayers were offered by Mrs. Ed Ausley and Miss Ila Stafford, followed by the Lord's Prayer. Throughout the service the choir and Miss Helen King, violinist, accompanied by Miss Sadie Steele, rendered beautiful and appropriate music.

The pageantry of the Thank-Offering presentation, "To Lighten the Word's Darkness," itself, was enhanced by costumes brought directly from our mission field in India by Mrs. J. F. Minnis and from Japan by Mrs. Clyde Auman, and graciously loaned for the occasion. The portrayal of the "Spirit of Missions" by Miss Carleen Crutchfield and the "Spirit of Thank-Offering" by Miss Tula Paul deserve especial credit. Speaking for the four nations represented were: India, Miss Sarah Thompson; Japan, Miss Eula Wheeler; China, Miss Nettie Mae Smith; unprivileged children of America, Miss Margaret Phillips. Representing these countries were: Mesdames Isley, Williamson, Reitzel, Dollar and Misses Stafford, Holt, Smith and Moore. As the "Spirit of Thank-Offering" closed her appeal to the audience with:

"Bring an offering to the Master. What, beloved, shall it be Worthy of His wondrous kindness who has given all for thee?
Bring thy best, for He is kindly. Bring thy offering full and free.
Thou canst never match His bounty, for He gave His life for thee.

"Look on all His gifts around you—gifts that make it joy to live;
Best of all, oh, regal kindness, He has given thee power to give.
Oh, to give with gland thanksgiving—freely, freely, we receive;
Counting this our crowning blessing, that He gives us power to give"— the figures representing the nations left the platform to lift the offering. Misses Crutchfield and Paul sweetly sang, "How Long Must We Wait?" This dramatization so vividly depicted the need, the simple direct earnestness of the appeal so stirred the hearts of those who saw and heard with gratitude, thanksgiving and responsiveness that the offering amounted to $115.35.

Following the collection of the offering the "Spirit of Thank-Offering" called for the Thank-Offering previously collected by the Circles and a representative of each Circle presented her Circle's offerings, receiving a lighted candle and taking her place on the platform. Representing their respective Circles were: Mrs. E. H. Moore, Miss Arthula Cheek, Mrs. N. L. Hunley, Miss Mamie McPherson, Mrs. Ed Ausley, Miss Edna Perry, and Mrs. Ollie Moser. Lifting high the lighted tapers these representative members repeated togethtert the Thank-Offering Creed. All the figures of the pageant then returned to the platform for the benediction by Dr. Paschall.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

OUR OPINIONS

In Dr. Lindley's "Self Expression Through Discussion," he says the church that provides no outlet for individual opinions is doing violence to human nature. Everybody wants a vent for his own views on various topics. I expect the editor thinks we all like to use the Herald as a vent for our opinions. That is one good thing about our church paper. We can discuss all topics that get on our mind, argue, air our opinions and "talk back," provided we are nice about it.

I read lots of articles that make me want to "talk back," but then you see that is just like a woman. However, this "back talk" costs three cents and I don't always decide that it is worth it.

We have had some articles on financing the pastor that made me want to say in red letters, "Pay his salary and pay it monthly."

As for the visiting gas, I think some of us might get up some butter, eggs, etc.—anything that he has to buy and help out on that expense. Don't know but what I would risk his displeasure in trying it if my pastor should do such a thing as visit me.

I have just finished reading Dr. P. E. Lindley's book on "Human Nature and the Church," and I would like to air my opinion on that.

When I read the chapters on "The Naturalness of Religion," and "The New Approach," I thought they were good. When I got to "The Appeal Through Beauty," and "Physical Comfort in the Church," I thought they were better. I dare say my pastor has accused me of being asleep when those glaring lights behind him hurt my eyes so I had to close them. Then I knew the chapters on "Social Hunger" and "Self Expression" were the best. But by the time I got through I knew that they were all the best. One only has to read the book to know that Dr. Lindley understands human nature and its needs.

For my part I am glad we have such a man connected with our church and more than glad that we have such a man connected with our college helping train our boys and girls.

Every church member should read the book, but more especially our preachers.

The chapter on "Hero-Worship in the Church," is well worth reading by every pastor and leader. MRS. J. J. CRAWFORD.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XXXIX GREENSBORO, N. C., MARCH 9, 1933 NUMBER 16

Ye Winds of March!

Whence ye come or whither go
See we not and cannot know:
But we're sure ye are our friends
Whom our God in goodness sends.

Rousing us from winter's numb,
Telling us the spring has come,
Calling us to life anew
In the tasks we have to do.

All the earth your call does hear,
Living creatures 'gin to stir;
Resurrection morn it seems
When ye wake us from our dreams.

Vital Religion

There is a very noticeable lack of vital religion in the life of church people. Through the years we have said with boldness, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea"; enthusiastically we have sung, "All you may need He will provide, God will take care of you"; and we have declared that the peace of Christ completely satisfies the yearnings of the human soul. But in the midst of the crashing and crumbling of things when through bank failures and the crashing of a stock market we have lost our money, stocks and bonds, when through the failure of real estate companies we have lost houses and land, we have been driven to and fro as a ship having no anchor, many have gone down into a suicide's grave, others have gone into moral and spiritual bankruptcy, still others complain, grumble and growl until all the fine, beautiful things we have said appear to be as "sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." We are very much like the servant of God who lived in another age. He had said what God would do for him and had boldly declared his faith in God. But he is caught in the grip of trying, vexing circumstances and under those circumstances he so conducts himself, becomes so alarmed and so disturbed, that people say of him, "There is no help for him in God."

There is sufficient, yea, abundant help for us in God. He can supply all our needs; He can completely satisfy the yearnings of the human soul; He can give a faith that will withstand the thunder's shock and every storm and tempest; He can make us a peculiar people, set apart, different, through whom His glory doth shine and His power doth work. But we are not manifesting that kind of religion. The channel, which is our life, is too often clogged, clogged with things sinful and worldly. The world beholds our feeble faith; hears our grumblings and growlings; notes our utter helplessness when things material are lost; sees our sins and mistakes and exclaim, "There is no help for him in God." The story is told of a Sunday School teacher who endeavored to teach a class of young men. The young men were baseball enthusiasts. In the classroom they wanted to talk about the game they played the previous week or the one they expected to play the following week. It was exceedingly difficult for the teacher to get their attention, but she put her best thought and a deeply consecrated life into each effort. One day God saw fit to take the teacher unto Himself. The young men wanted to carry the casket to its resting place, they wanted to fill in the grave and arrange the flowers. These things they were allowed to do. When the grave had been fixed as they wanted it and the crowd had gone, they remained. After a silence one of the young men said, "I believe in God" and another said, "I believe in heaven because this woman lived." Soon the entire class knelt about that grave and surrendered their lives to their teacher's God and the following Sunday united with the church she had so faithfully served. The teacher had lived a vital religion and what a glorious harvest!

Faith or Fear

In preparation for a series of lectures to be delivered to a college group by one of the distinguished men of our generation a questionnaire was sent out in advance to the student body asking them to indicate any subject of special interest to them that they wished to have this versatile man discuss. They, by an overwhelming majority said: "Let him tell us how to conquer fear."

Fear is on hand today with banners streaming. There is a surplus of fearfilled folks of all classes in evidence on all sides. One of the things that is hard to account for is this. One of the richest of all nations, one of the most comfortable of all people as measured by what they have in mind, home and store, should now be pulled into disconcertion, the victim of a nervous, galling fear. Certain fears have their seat in the physical nerves. I wonder if the generation has not almost lost its nerve.

A recent suicide left a note on the day of his death explaining his act: "I am afraid to go on with life." Why should any man or woman be afraid of life? Fear is the greatest enemy of man. That was the trouble with the majority of the ancient spies and because of it they were made a crowd of crawlers, and cringers and hoppers. Fear is driving us to the worst. As I write, the money channels of America are clogged and thus commercial paralysis is threatening. This happened because financial fear amounting to a panic threatened the worst.

Why should we be victims of fear? If we could remember that most of our fears never materialize and that all dark situations, and questionable sequences are given a lurid gleam if fear reigns in life.

What are we going to do about our fears? Will we simply look out for a comfortable seat for ourselves and take it all out in looking helpless? Will we weep and wail and bemoan our sad lot? Never!

Faith is the panacea. Fear enervates, faith strengthens. Fear baffles. Faith buoys. Fear shackles. Faith frees. Faith is the most important matter of all. To have faith is to rise above circumstance, however dark and foreboding. To have faith is to have an anchor in life's wildest storms. Now what do you do with an anchor when the gales break in fury? There it is in the boat. Pick it up and fling down out there where it belongs. Your security is in that act. "Trust in the name of the Lord and stay upon . . . God."

We need to win our freedom again. Not from an English yoke but from a servile slavery to fear that threatens to steamroller the generation.

Give religion a chance. Put purity foremost. Let righteousness be exalted. Place Jehovah on the throne of the nations. "Our help cometh from the Lord."

"This is the victory that overcometh the world, even your faith."

God is in His heavens and all will ultimately be well. Remember that.

G. H. Hendry.

CAN YOU READILY CHANGE IDEAS AND PRACTICES?

"Our people have no stability. Overnight they make the most radical changes, and that without right or reason or common sense. Look at the results of the last election!" Thus might a thoughtful observer deliver himself.

"We, as a people, are as slow as molasses in winter, when it comes to changing customs and laws. An arrangement that might have been all right years ago, but has become outgrown, holds its place for years after everybody knows a change is needed. See how long we were in getting rid of the so-called 'lame duck' hold-overs in Congress!" So another equally astute citizen might express his sentiments.

When I moved to Calumet, at the center of Michigan's copper mining industry, I noticed a large amount of heavy machinery on a railroad platform of the Calumet and Hecla company. This was never used—though it had cost $100,000—because, by the time the manager was ready to install it such changes in the methods of mining and treating copper rock had come about as to render the machinery obsolete.

They couldn't afford not to scrap it. Only foolish men would have said: "We must install and use this machinery until we get out of it the money it has cost us." Later the Calumet and Hecla erected a foundry and pattern shop. This scrapped machinery and much else was passed through the foundry and made into other products that could be utilized. I have often wished that many other things—ideas, customs, laws—might be as thoroughly scrapped and used for practical purposes.

Our Presbyterian friends are having quite a time about their General Assembly. Some think that, because of the difficulty in raising the money needed for various important enterprises—missionary and educational—it would be well to omit the next scheduled session of this great body. The Assembly is admittedly a large and cumberson and expensive organization. Some are saying that it should not expect to meet each year, that it is too large, that the number of Presbyteries should be reduced—thus decreasing the number of Commissioners to sit in the General Assembly. One of their ministers writing in the Presbyterian Advance, puts things quite pointedly:

"While we are thinking of a 'smaller assembly' (and surely something should be done, the expense and cumbersomeness of an assembly is a shame), the writer would like to once more raise the question of the size of Presbyteries.

"Our Illinois Presbyteries, twelve of them in this one state, were made when Illinois was at times a 'sea of mud,' with poor, crude means of travel. Transportation and communication were most uncertain and difficult. Today we have twelve thousand miles of paved roads, fifteen thousand more of oiled gravel roads. We have annihilated distance! This very fact has reduced the number of our small competing churches. Our Presbyteries are not numerically large.

"We need four in down state, and then, of course, that of Chicago! Why is it—does The Advance know?—that when our forefathers did things based on local conditions and known facts, that when those conditions and facts have changed in an unbelievable way, it is so hard to change minor regulations which they made? And have we not the same God-given right to change a boundary of Presbytery that they had? The answer would seem easy and obvious, but these are facts:

"Within the past year, in a purely personal way, I have written and talked to forty-eight of the ministers in our synod who have been here longest. Forty-six have said: yes, we need fewer Presbyteries and larger. Only two objected. But without exception all said 'it can't be done now, it will be bitterly opposed, perhaps carried to the civil courts. It will take twenty-five years of quiet persistent action to get our Presbyteries to change their boundaries.'

"One man, more bold than the rest, said: 'We Presbyterians are the most stubborn people in the world when nothing is at stake. We love to make a "mountain of a mole hill," and then watch somebody chisel at it—it is good spiritual exercise for those with little to do'."

We are all willing to admit that Presbyterians are "stubborn"—but are they sinners above all others? Aren't Methodists at least a close second?

I happen to know a good deal about the religious situation in a certain Maryland county. There are numerous churches of the M. E., M. E., South, and M. P. denominations. Each of these denominations has confessed shame that it has so many small churches near each other—and yet finds itself unable to consolidate and make effective its own organizations. The cemetery, the old church building situated on the corner of a good brother's farm, fear that in the shifting, some one else might gain a bit of advantage, down-right stubbornness—these are some of the things that make it impossible to do what every sensible person knows should be done.

The three Methodist denominations in that county held a joint unofficial meeting to ascertain if they could adjust their affairs so as to accomplish more. The President of the Maryland Annual Conference (M. P.) was there. So were the District Superintendents of the two other churches, and their bishops were within call. Could anything be done? No! Nobody had authority, nobody had a plan void of objectionable features. There was plenty of talk, but that was all. Things go on as before. Rather, they don't go on very well for the Kingdom!

Recently I was asked to conduct a seminar on Church Union in the men's class in a Sunday School here in Washington. The members of the class, and some visitors, had various denominational backgrounds. Considerable uncertainty as to what certain denominations stand for was evident, there was doubt as to the evangelical standing of one or two denominations, and there was also a commendable absence of bitterness toward any Christian group. But we could get very little further, in our limited time, than some sincere expressions of good will toward others, and the hope that by and by something might be done to end the acknowledged un-Christ-like situation in which the church finds itself. LUTHER K. LONG.

THE RIGHT TO BELIEVE

It is amazing to plain men that certain agnostic leaders of our time should talk so dogmatically, and show such conceit in their own disbeliefs. Bertrand Russell, the English philosopher, for instance, has been telling us that man is a mere accident in a universe that is itself only a soulless mechanism grinding on without rhyme or reason. The whole human race is doomed to perish as completely as though it had never been in the final vast death of the solar system. Then he gravely assures us that "all these things, if not quite beyond dispute, are yet so nearly certain that no philosophy that rejects them can hope to stand."

What supreme arrogance! One ventures to remind Mr. Russell that a philosophy totally denying "all these things" in his confident theory has already stood for many long centuries, and is today held by millions of clear-thinking people. Brains quite as keen as the brilliant Englishman's heartily reject his materialistic, hopeless conclusions. One who calls the roll of thinkers who have kept a heart of faith in the presence of modern scientific discoveries need not be ashamed of the names thereon. For a single example, we learn that one of the main errands of Professor Einstein in coming to this country was to confer with Professor Robert Millikan of California, the physicist who has done such wonderful things with atoms. Now it happens that Mr. Millikan is not only a professing Christian, but a convinced and enthusiastic churchman.

One need not, however, merely juggle with distinguished names in order to present his case. The average man may make his own investigations, and arrive at some personal conclusions. He may find, to be sure, that the case for theism falls short of any absolute demonstration. There is, indeed, a "mystery of Godliness" that every generation has been recognizing anew, ever since St. Paul reported that same finding to his young friend, Timothy. But when all the difficulties have been faced, and all the facts are in hand, the mystery of "ungodliness" is seen to be far the deeper and darker. It may be hard to believe in God, but not to believe in Him is harder—and it is also most distinctly drearier. The believer, at least, walks on the sunny side of the street of life. For purposes of cheer and courageous endeavor in this earthly pilgrimage nothing equals the conviction that an intelligent, benevolent Creator is over all His creation, and that righteousness has the pull of the universe on its side. That is the rich bonus of moral satisfaction the religious man enjoys—which the unbeliever must somehow get along without. It is always better to believe the best.

Notwithstanding all that some of our contemporary pundits and some of our terribly clever critics are saying, the modern man has a perfect right to his Christian faith. Sir Oliver Lodge of the University of Birmingham once declared, "I will not believe that it is given to man to have thoughts higher and truer than the real truth of things." On New Year's Day, 1933, just four days before he passed beyond the veil, Calvin Coolidge sat in his study in Northampton and talked familiarly with one of his Amherst College classmates. The former president expressed himself as being deeply concerned over the losses and uncertainties of our troublous times. Then he added, "I tell you, Charlie, there is only one thing that is solid today—and that is religion.' Wise men are not going to surrender this mighty defense, this supreme incentive at the behest of confident and casual doubters—for they do not need to. FRANK B. MCALISTER.

17 Edgewood Road, Lexington, Mass.

A NEW LEG IN HEAVEN

Tom Hunt had also suffered the amputation of a leg. He lived in a Worcestershire village, and the leg that deputized for the departed member was one of the old-fashioned dot-and-carry-one type. He was a regular attender at his chapel, where he used to occupy the front pew, because that was the only place where he could dispose of the artificial member comfortably. One day he went to hear the popular young preacher Campbell Morgan, and had a great time. The preacher's subject that day was "Heaven," and he pointed out how largely the happiness of that dear abode would consist in the absence of things that hurt and trouble and annoy down here. In heaven there would be no tears, no pain, no sorrow, no lack. All would be perfect, and all would be joy. Then Tom, whose delight in the discourse had been evident from his frequent ejaculations of "Glory!" and "Hallelujah!" suddenly amazed the preacher by unstrapping his wooden leg, holding it aloft before him, and apostrophising it by saying: "Ah! peggy, you'll never go to heaven! Glory be to God! A new leg for me up there!" And then, having finished addressing his stump, he laid it down on the seat beside him, and, looking up at the preacher, said, "Go on, lad. Let's have some more! "Glory!" And, with some difficulty, the preacher did as he had been adjured, and proceeded with his discourse.—Methodist Recorder (London).

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

Creswell Charge, Rev. J. C. Russell, pastor.—I visited Mt. Elma and Creswell churches on this charge on the 26th of February. The congregations at the first two churches were very good, the one at Creswell did not appear much smaller than it did upon my former visits, but the church was poorly lighted and I could not see the congregation very well.

This group of churches is so far removed from the other churches in the conference it is hard to co-ordinate their activities with the activities of the churches in the central part of the state, but it is not an impossible task. There are some very fine workers on this charge who proved their loyalty in other days by carrying on the work under difficulties greater than most of our churches have to face. This is Pastor Russell's third year and he reports that while contributions in coin have not been great the people have not permitted him and his family to be in need.

We are hopeful of carrying to this section one of the District meetings held during the year and thus to help them keep in contact with the conference plans and programs.

Area Meetings

We held the first of these meetings at Enfield. There were forty-five people present. Every pastor in the Area reported. Brother Russell was absent but sent his report—all the others reported in person. The object of these meetings is to carry to the people the program of the church and the need for supporting it loyally. We were assisted in this meeting and the one in the Henderson Area by Rev. J. W. Braxton as speaker and by the pastors in the District.

The discussions which followed the addresses showed clearly how deep was the concern of those present for the success of their churches. While the amounts paid on pastors' salary and on the budgets were in no case what we might wish, some were in advance of what was generally expected. We are not attempting a tabulation of the payments since they would have to be made on the percentage basis and require quite a bit of labor as I shall handle all the reports of the pastors for this quarter in their meetings.

Thursday the Area meeting was held at Spring Valley church, Vance Circuit. This church is only a few miles out of Henderson and although has a small membership it is one of the most active organizations in this section of the Conference. There were sixty-five persons present here. Pastors Braxton, Spencer and Gerringer were there and their reports did not reveal a discouraged people.

From the point of discussions this meeting also exceeded the one at Enfield. Many topics of vital interest were discussed with animation. And we heard from a number that the meeting was indeed worth while.

Friday, the meeting was held in First church, Burlington. There were forty persons here. The following pastors in the area were present. Paschall, Auman, Bethea, Pegg, Isely, Johnson, Burgess, Loy, Williams, Smith and Mabry. Brother J. L. Trollinger was a visiting pastor from the Greensboro area, so was Dr. Johnson. I was assisted here by Dr. C. W. Bates as the speaker. He spoke upon the topic "A Fuller Enlistment of Church Members," etc. It was a well arranged and thoughtful presentation of the subject. While the participation by those present in the discussions was not so full as at Henderson, many of the pastors expressed the conviction that the meeting was well worth while.

While the announcement had been made that those visiting would provide their own lunch, those who carried lunch seem to think there might be some there who did not bring lunch. The lunch was ample at all three places.

Mebane church, Rev. C. I. Smith, pastor.—Brother Smith was appointed to this church after conference and recently moved into the parsonage. But little has yet been done towards the conference program, I was informed. The congregation was very good at the worship service and we are hopeful of progress here. However, our people here are facing a most serious situation in financial matters and of course until this shall change the church will not become normal in its giving. But Mebane has had its place among the best churches in the Conference when it came to doing things; while not so large as many others, the proportionate appraisal of its labors has ranked high since its beginning. And our confidence in their ability to return to such a standard abides. It was a pleasure to renew old acquaintances here and to speak to this congregation. I was there at the 11 o'clock hour last Sunday.

Graham church, Rev. J. C. Auman, pastor.—I visited this congregation at the evening hour. Having held the second quarterly conference in the afternoon. The congregation was really good for an evening congregation and the attention to the message was all that a speaker could crave. Brother Auman served this church before going to Japan and is now on his third year in the present pastorate. He appears happy in his work and under the circumstances is doing a fine piece of work. His people is also greatly hindered by the failure of the mills to run full time. There was talk of a parsonage here. A committee to consider the matter was reported. The pastor is also seeking a fuller enlistment of his members. I missed the faces of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Goley who do not attend the night services very much, I was told. Likewise, was told that their efficient superintendent of the Sunday School, Brother J. L. Amick had not yet returned from seeing the new president take his seat. But these and others have stood by the projects of the church through all these years with a loyalty that commends itself to others for its unflagging spirit.

Plan of Appointments

March 10—Area Meeting at Lexington (State St. Church).

March 12—A. M., Friendship; P. M., at Albemarle.

March 13—Winston-Salem (Area Meeting).

March 14—Area Meeting at Concord.

March 15—Area Meeting at Charlotte.

March 16—Area Meeting at Fallston.

March 17—Area Meeting at Weaverville.

March 18—A. M., Pensacola; afternoon, Pleasant Gap.

March 19—A. M., Mt. Zion; afternoon, Clark's Chapel; night, Asheville.

March 26—Connelly Springs charge: 11 A. M., Shiloh; afternoon, Burke's Chapel; at night, Shady Grove.

All Area Meetings are scheduled for 10:30 A. M. and to have afternoon session.

FERNS OF THE SOUL

There are ferns in the garden of the soul, as well as flowers. The flowers grow best in the sunshine, the ferns grow best in the shade.

There is the fern of Patience, and the fern of Long Suffering, and the fern of Meekness. And the great Gardener of the soul delights in the ferns, and purposes to save them from destruction in the garish day.

And so He takes us into the shade—the shade of disappointment, or the shade of sorrow, or the shade of sickness and pain. But it is the shadow of the Almighty. And here the ferns flourish and the cloudy day makes the garden beautiful.—J. H. Jowett.

TIMELY ADVICE

If you are impatient, sit down quietly and talk with Job.

If you are just a little strong-headed, go and see Moses.

If you are getting weak-kneed, take a good look at Elijah.

If there is no song in your heart, listen to David.

If you are getting sordid, spend a while with Isaiah.

If you feel chilly, get the Beloved Disciple to put his arm around you.

If your faith is below par, read Paul.

If you are getting lazy, watch James.

If you are losing sight of the future, climb up the stairs of Revelation and get a glimpse of the Promised Land.—Selected.

UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCE

An aged disciple once declared that it would give him great joy if he but knew that he had been instrumental in saving one soul. But he was without that happy knowledge. At his funeral a man stood weeping sadly, a genuine mourner. "You are a relative, I suppose," said one beside him. "No," said the man. "A very dear friend, doubtless," remarked the person. "I can hardly say that," replied the man. "I never spoke to him, but he was the means of my salvation." Ah! How many sweet revelations will be in Heaven to those who are faithful in the Lord's service here!—Publisher Unknown.

STANLEY JONES COMING HOME

Stanley Jones is coming home after some months on the China road. In Foochow, where five years ago they were burning mission buildings and expelling missionaries, "the crowds were wonderful" that came to hear his gospel. He found "Shanghai a city of smouldering hate." He found that the student throngs were "most interested in the Sermon on the Mount—would it work?" Canton was once the seat of the anti-Christian agitation. Doctor Jones had to repeat his address in order to reach the people who wanted to hear. In this hot-bed of radicalism 1,000 signed cards, and came around the next night for a special inquirers' meeting. Nowhere did students heckle the speaker. But they did want to know what he thought. For themselves it was either Communism or Christianity. At a Nanking round table conference a leading Chinese said to Doctor Jones:

"I am not a Christian, but I would say that Christianity is now on trial in China. Its hour has come. If it can do anything to save the country now is the time for it to exert itself. If it can do anything to save the situation we will all follow."

Three thousand cards were signed in Doctor Jones' meetings, and 12,000 copies of his books (in Chinese) were sold at cost. In a letter to the Indian Witness of January 12 Doctor Jones says:

"It has been the most fruitful period of my life and I am grateful to those who helped through prayer. I simply could not have carried on sometimes without your prayer-help. My interpreter broke in the midst of it and went to bed. That I did not do the same was because new resources were tapped just in the hour of need."—Christian Advocate (N. Y.)

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE

We have been reading again Ian Maclaren's tribute to Henry Drummond. We have never read anything more beautiful. These eminent men were fellow-students and boon companions. They remained close friends until Drummond went home, and now the friends are together again. How blessed the thought that some day we are going to be again with our loved ones who have gone before. We give the closing paragraph of this noble tribute to Drummond:

"As Fra Angelico could paint the holy angels because he had seen them, but made poor work of the devils because to him they were strange creatures, so this man could make holiness so lovely that all men wished to be Christians; but his hand lost its cunning at the mention of sin, for he had never played the fool. From youth up he had kept the commandments and was such a man as the Master would have loved. We take for granted that each human has his besetting sin, and we could name that of our friends, but Drummond was an exception to this rule. After a life-time's intimacy I do not remember my friend's failing. Without pride, without envy, without selfishness, without vanity, moved only by good will and spiritual ambitions, responsive ever to the touch of God and every noble impulse, faithful, fearless, magnanimous, Henry Drummond was the most perfect Christian I have ever known or ever expect to see this side the grave."—The Watchman-Examiner.

CROSSING THE FERRY

Three happy children had to cross by a ferry-boat, for which they had a penny each to pay, and mother had given this sum to Susie, who was told to guard it carefully. But running along the fields, or climbing the fences, Susie had let the money slip somehow, and when they came to the ferry she had nothing to pay. What was to be done? They knew not. The young ferry-man, to whom they were perfect strangers, would not take them across until the "pennies" were paid, and, of course, promises to "pay tomorrow" were of no avail.

Just when they were making up their minds to return home, downcast and sad, a gentleman came along the road. He saw there was something wrong, and asked what was the matter. Susie told her sorrowful tale and then burst into tears. The gentleman took in the situation in a moment, and patting her cheek smiled and said, "It's all right, Susie, I will pay the ferry for you," taking out three pence and laying them in her hand. Susie wiped her tears away, as she said, "Thank you," and in a moment the children were down at the ferry signalling and shouting to the rigid ferry-man to come and take them across. "Where did you get the money?" he asked, as he drew the boat to the steps, and before Susie had time to answer, Harry shouted out "The man paid for us."

This simple story of school-days reminds me of greater and more important things. I know some one else who will want one day to get across a deeper river, and who has "nothing to pay." Who do you think that is? Just my little reader. You will want to cross over to the fair eternal shore, I know, to dwell in "love's own country," as dear Samuel Rutherford called it. But you have nothing to take you there, and the demands of Divine justice cannot be relaxed. You have nothing to pay, nothing to give or offer, that could gain you a passage across death's river into the land of life. But there is one who has paid. His Name is Jesus—Saviour. He saw your helpless condition, and in order to make it possible for you to go to Heaven, He paid in full at the demands of justice. Wasn't that wonderful?—Sunlight for the Young.

THE INVISIBLE LISTENER

Bertha was ready for that long-promised trip, and when Uncle Harry called for her, a willing little girl was waiting for him. Uncle Harry was connected with a large business house. One particularly interesting part of his work was the supervising of programs to be broadcast over the radio.

"You can go with me to the studio," he told Bertha, "and see how we do it. Every Friday night we put on a program, and along with it advertise our products. Maybe I will let you talk for me occasionally."

"We will tune in on every program," her father said, "and whenever you talk you will know we are listening."

"Won't that be splendid?" Bertha said. "I will be sure to say something when I know you will be listening."

The first program Bertha did not say anything. She listened and watched the others who were rendering the program. She heard her Uncle Harry describe the products of the company who employed him.

"Next week I want you to learn this little speech, and give it in my place," he said. "At the close of it you can say a few words to your parents."

Bertha did this. It seemed queer to talk to folks you could not see, but she knew there were many of them listening. And she did not forget her parents.

"Hello, papa and mamma," she said. "I am all right and having a splendid time. Please send me the book I intended to bring and forgot. Good-by."

Two days later the book arrived with a letter telling Bertha they had heard her request. After Bertha had returned home, they talked about this request and how it was granted.

"You know we were listening even though you could not see us," her father said, "because we told you we would tune in. And you asked for the book, believing we would send it. Now isn't that just the way God deals with us in prayer? He is always listening, waiting for us to speak. We are to ask, though we cannot see Him, and we know He hears us because He gives what we ask for in His Name. As your parents waited to hear you, so God waits to hear His children talk to Him."—Selected.

THE CREED OF A COUNTRY GIRL

I am glad that I live in the country. I love its beauty and its spirit. I rejoice in the things I can do as a country girl for my home and my neighborhood. I believe that I can share in the beauty around me: in the fragrance of the orchards in spring, in the weight of ripe wheat at harvest, in the morning songs of birds, and the glow of the sunset on the far horizon.

I want to express this beauty in my own life as naturally and happily as the wild rose blooms by the roadside.

I believe I can have a part in the courageous spirit of the country. This spirit has entered into the brook in our pasture. The stones placed in its way call forth its strength and add to this strength a song. It dwells in the tender plants as they burst the seed cases that imprison them and push through the earth to light. It sounds in the nestling note of the meadow lark. With this courageous spirit I, too, can face the hard things of life with gladness. I believe there is much I can do in my country home. Through studying the best way to do everyday work I can find joy in common tasks done well. Through loving comradeship I can help bring into my home the happiness and peace that are always so near in God's out-of-door world. Through such a home I can make real to all who pass that way their highest ideal of country life.

I believe that my love and loyalty for my country home should reach out in service to that larger home we call our neighborhood. I would join with the people who live there in true friendliness. I would whole-heartedly give my best to further all that is being done for a better community. I would have all that I say and do and think help to unite country people near and far in that great Kingdom of Love for neighbors which the Master came to establish—the Master who knows and cared for country ways and country folk.

I believe in the country—Epworth Herald.

WHAT WAS JESUS' ESTIMATE OF HUMAN LIFE? CAN WE LIVE BY IT?

Scripture Text: Matt. 18:1-6; 16:26.

Modern life has become so thickly veneered with superficial customs and practices that we have almost lost the significance of the individual life within. We have a biased opinion of life which has made us look wrongly at it. Jesus considered human life or personality the crowning achievement of Divine craftsmanship.

Creation places man at the summit. Man was created in the likeness of the Maker and made with the power of communion with God. There is a vast difference in this respect from the animals in that man was made far above them. The fact of physical makeup may not be so great, but the power of communion with God is a wonderful faculty. This is a fact which forever separates man from the most aristocratic of the animals, for the soul, which is the Divine in man, is not in them. The dominance which man was given over nature gives him a distinctive place. All the beasts of the field and the herbs were made for food for man and to contribute to his comfort.

The Old Testament places an importance on man far above that of any of the animals. There is a growing conception of personal worth which finds its crowning summit in Christ. The teachings of Jesus are replete with examples of personal worth. The woman taken in adultery had a personal worth far greater than the empty observance of an ancient law. The worth of one soul is given in the story of the Prodigal Son as given in Luke 15. It is not the will of Jesus that any should perish, but that every individual soul should be saved.

The fact of immortality is an example of the worth which Jesus placed on a soul. It is unthinkable that the crowning work of God shall be snuffed out in a moment. Christ died that man might have life and have it more abundantly, so if there be no resurrection of the dead then His life and death were vain. If God is immortal, then man is, for they bear a spiritual likeness and have the same indescructible qualities.

Even if this high estitmate is placed on life Jesus taught that too great a store was not to be placed on life. There is no reason why man should spend such a large part of his time in estimation of his personal worth. The disciples of Jesus had heard the news from Jesus that He was soon to suffer and die, but they had placed their hopes on a temporal kingdom. Peter had seen himself as prime minister, Judas as treasurer, and the others had selected places no less important. While they were quarreling over who should be greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven, Jesus gave them the classic lesson of humility. He called a little child to the midst and used the qualities of childhood as the basis for His teachings.

The child is humble. There is no effort on the part of the child to force its place into life and get the best place. This is a lesson which adults teach the children. This was valuable to the disciples, for they were bargaining for the best place available. The child is pure in its ideals and actions. All infants are born pure and become otherwise only by association and contamination from the world in which they live. The child is trustworthy and trustful. The child depends on the power of God through nature to supply it with food and takes no care for what it shall eat nor for what it shall put on. When Jesus said, "Ye must be born again" He meant that the qualities of childhood must come into man's spiritual nature. To say that a man must have the faith and trust of childhood does not mean that he must become childish in his actions and words. A childish prayer from a grown man does not impress anyone, but a prayer of childish trust and faith does.

Here is an example of childish faith: The story is told that at one time Henry W. Grady wrote his mother and told her that He had lost faith in God. She wrote her son to come home to the place where he first learned his lessons of faith. The night after he returned, Grady's mother read to him from the Bible as she had done in former days, and as he went to bed she told him to kneel beside his bed and pray as he had in childhood days. When he was in bed his mother came and tucked the cover in as she had many times before and kissed him good-night. The next morning Henry Grady said, "Mother, it is all right now."

Quotable Poetry

I think when I read that sweet story of old,
When Jesus was here among men,
How He called little children as lambs to His fold,
I should like to have been with them then.

I wish that His hands had been placed on my head,
That His arms had been thrown around me,
And that I may have seen His kind look when He said,
"Let the little ones come unto Me."

—Jemima Luke.

NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

The North Carolina Conference Leadership Training School will be held at High Point College from Monday, June 26, to Saturday, July 1. Do not forget this date. I wish to announce that the following courses will be offered:

No. 3—The Old Testament, Rev. T. M. Johnson, instructor.

No. 5—The Message and Program of the Christian Religion, Rev. Fred W. Paschall.

No. 010—The Life of Christ, Dr. C. E. Forlines.

No. 108—Dramatization and Pageantry, Rev. J. T. Bowman.

No. 110—Social and Recreational Leadership, Rev. J. W. Braxton.

No. 112—Music in Religious Education, Rev. E. L. Ballard.

One or more missionary courses will be offered for members of the Women's Auxiliaries. I hope that each local Auxiliary will begin to make plans to send at least one member to this school. The caurses offered will count on the Standard Training Diploma. Courses and instructors will be announced in this department at a later date.

Dr. F. G. Holloway, president of Westminster Theological Seminary, will deliver the evening addresses.

Mrs. H. W. Maier has charge of the Young People's courses. Some announcement will be made about this department in the near future.

The executive committee of the Conference Council voted to set the price for attendance at $5.00. This includes room, board and tuition. Each student will be expected to furnish his own text-book and paper.

Young People, begin to lay up 25 cents each week to pay your expenses at the Leadership Training School. By doing that from now until June 26 you will have enough to pay your way to this school. Why not organize a Savings Club in your church and a number of you young people go in together on this savings project.

I want the names of those who are making plans now to go to the Leadership Training School next summer. Please drop me a card telling me if you plan to come. Please suggest the name of a friend that you would like to see go to this school.

T. J. WHITEHEAD,
President of the Council.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOLS IN HIGH POINT DISTRICT

Three Leadership Training Schools will be held in the High Point District in the centers during the month of March. The Lexington School is in progress now, there being an enrollment of 53 on the opening night of the school; we are expecting a much larger attendance during the rest of the time. Four churches are co-operating: State Street, South Lexington, Mt. Carmel, and Bethesda. The school is being conducted by the Director of this District and the meetings are held in the State Street church.

Tuesday night, March 14th, the Thomasville school will open with the pastors of the churches there and nearby co-operating. Meetings will be held in Community church. Dr. Lindley will teach the course on "Principles of Training," Miss Mary Young, "A Study of the Pupil"; Rev. T. Glenn Madison, "Christian Living." The second course for young people, "Christian Stewardship" will be offered and the instructor for this unit is yet to be chosen.

The Lexington school is presenting two standard courses, "Primary Methods," by Mrs. Koontz and "A Study of the Pupil," by Mrs. Maier. Rev. H. W. Maier is teaching the course on, "Christian Living" and Rev. Isley the course on Stewardship.

The High Point school will open Tuesday night, March 20th; sessions will be held in this school, as in others, three nights one week and two the other. Four standard units are being offered in the High Point school. Prof. C. R. Hinshaw will present "Principles of Teaching"; Miss Mary Young, "A Study of the Pupil"; Mrs. Curtiss Koontz, "Primary Methods" and Mrs. H. W. Maier, "Worship and Training the Devotional Life." Dr. S. W. Taylor will teach the Young People's Course on "Christian Living" and Rev. N. M. Harrison the one on, "Stewardship." All meetings will be in First church.

Worship services will be conducted each evening. Mrs. Harold Lanier, superintendent of State Street Sunday School, led us in a most impressive worship service last evening on the opening night of the school. She will continue this work during the school.

Please may we urge that the Pastors in the High Point District give these schools their fullest support and co-operation. We are anxious to have as many of our folks in these schools as we can possibly have. The dates fo the Lexington school are March 6, 9, 10, 13, and 16. For Thomasville, March 14, 16, 17, 21, and 24. For High Point, March 20, 23, 27, 28, and 31.

MRS. H. W. MAIER,
Director High Point District.

HIGH POINT LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

June 26 to July 1st

Friday, two weeks ago, the Executive Committee of the N. C. Council of Religious Education had a meeting at High Point College. The writer of this article had been previously requested to have charge of the registration campaign, which he was rather hesitant in assuming, knowing as he did some of the difficulties involved. The usual registration fee was eliminated and the cost of the school to the pupil for the week was reduced to $5. And let me add right here that on account of this reduction in cost we expect to have one of the largest, if not the largest group of our young people and church leaders at High Point which you have ever seen. Aside from the reduction cost we have the promise of one of the strongest faculties which we have had in recent years. And in addition we will have the use of the "brand new" gym for our recreational activities. Begin now to save your money and plan to be there.

To help you help each other to get there it has been suggested that we organize a L. T. S. club for the purpose of enlisting into an active working group those who want to go but do not have the means. Folks, here is a way we can have group which may be more or less a permanent working group in the interest of Leadership Training in our church or on our charge, and particularly just now it can keep alive the interest in the coming High Point school. There will be many ways that this group can make their own money. And it will not be foreign to the purpose of such a club if some of its members should be those who do not anticipate going to High Point but want to help others to go. There will be many ways which you will think of to swell your treasury. And here let me add that each club ought to have a treasurer as well as a good chairman and secretary. Stated meetings should be held to make plans and keep interest alive. The success of such a club as far as the applicant for the High Point Leadership Training school is concerned will depend on organizing immediately and going to work. The longer you have the more money you will have to pay toward your $5 on June 26. May I enlist the hearty co-operation of all church leaders and pastors in getting such a club started in your church. If you do not have enough applicants in a single church then organize one on the charge. Get you a piece of paper and write at the top L. T. S. club and ask those who would like to join to sign on the dotted line.

And do not forget your Apportionment to the council. We need money to carry on our work.

J. CLYDE AUMAN, Treasurer.

THE PEARL OF GREAT PRICE

The precious pearl of price,
  I sought to make my own;
Far and wide I searched,
  But came back tired and lone.

In books I looked in vain,
  Enquired of learned men;
And when morning dawned,
  My quest began again.

Hopeless seemed the search,
  At last in deep despair,
One way still left to me,
  I turned to God in prayer.

"Go sell all that thou hast
  And give unto the poor;
Then yours will be the pearl,
  And happiness secure."

—Grenville Kleiser.

STANDARD LEADERSHIP TRAINING COURSES THROUGH CORRESPONDENCE

We have recently made available two additional leadership training units which may be had from the Department of Religious Education, Seminary Building, Westminster, Maryland. These units are:

Course 101, The Life of Christ, prepared by Mrs. J. W. Shell, Pittsburgh, Pa.

In addition to these two courses, the following are available:

Course 1. A Study of the Pupil, prepared by F. L. Gibbs.

Course 2. Principles of Teaching, prepared by F. L. Gibbs.

Course 3 The Old Testament, prepared by M. J. Shroyer.

Course 4. The New Testament, prepared by M. J. Shroyer.

Course 5. Message and Program of the Christian Religion, prepared by M. J. Shroyer.

Course 6. Teaching Work of the Church, prepared by F. L. Gibbs.

These courses are prepared for those not able to attend leadership training schools and for those desiring to secure additional units on their diplomas. These units may be had for $2.00 per course.

F. L. GIBBS, Secretary.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ATTENTION, AUXILIARY PRESIDENTS

At the branch meeting last April the new office of the Secretary of Exhibits was created, and I was elected to that position for this year.

The purpose of this department is to encourage the making of posters, or, in other ways, set forth the program and work of the Auxiliary in picture or graph form.

It is hoped that you have already been doing this during the months of this Missionary Year, and will see that this material is placed in my hand the first day of the approaching Branch Meeting in Winston-Salem in April.

I am sure that your posters or graphs will give valuable suggestions to the ladies of other Auxiliaries and doubtless theirs will give you some suggestion for your work.

A place will be designated at the Branch Meeting for exhibiting this material.

May I suggest that you place the name of your church and charge on the front side of each exhibit.

MRS. N. M. HARRISON.

PERSONAL LETTER FROM MR. MINNIS

The following letter has just been received from Mr. Minnis, who is laboring so faithfully and so acceptably in India. It was written to Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Bates in acknowledgement of a personal gift Mr. and Mrs. Bates sent to Mr. Minnis when they learned he had been going for such a long time without any salary. The splendid spirit in which he is serving our church is evidenced by the fact that he used the money intended for a personal gift to buy Bibles and song-books for the village work in which he is engaged. His letter is a most interesting and appealing one, and we want to share it with North Carolina Methodist Protestants.

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Bates:

"Thank you for the money. You can never know how much it was needed and how much good it may do. Just when it came we needed Bibles for village work, so I bought a whole suit-case full of Gospels and small song-books. Thank you, also, for the expression of love. Knowing that you are finding it hard to keep going makes it more appreciated. As I hear from home folks I learn that you at home are possibly suffering more than we can know. For that reason, I have not written more about conditions here on the field. I am happy to say that while our finances are shorter than ever, our work is the best ever. My department, evangelistic, is engaging more attention than ever before. I feel that a revival must soon break out. We have enjoyed the work as never before. We have tried a new system and believe it to be the real way to do missionary work.

"But our days are numbered. Unless something develops within the next ten days (the letter was dated January 26, 1933) we shall be following this letter by only two months. We have cabled for a longer term but have not heard from the Board. We have been recalled to take effect this spring in March or April. But what a pure waste of cash to send new missionaries out and at once call others home! Besides, the passage money would go a long way. However, we are not complaining. We shall take it as God's will. Just within the past nine months our work has taken a new turn and good caste people have become most friendly. There is a better understanding of the meaning of Christ and His teachings. So just at this time we hate to leave the field, as much of the changed attitude has been by personal contact and personal friendship. It takes a long time to build up contacts, and after one has built them up the work of preaching has just begun, and it can be done much more effetcively and with a hope of results.

"Just now we are doing work out of Dhulia only a few miles. We are in camp in a village. We get the dust and smells of the village and come daily in contact with the people. We have been here three weeks today. The head man or patil (mayor) is at the point of becoming a Christian. He has given us a house for the preachers who are with me. Also, the water is drawn by his hired men and for our use he has a buffalo. Daily we get about a gallon of milk free. This is an unheard of thing in our district. Last Sunday the head man took in the service at our settlement. He still has all the marks of a Hindu—ashes on the face and a patch of hair left uncut from youth on the top of his head. He removed his hat, which is not usually done by Hindus in a public place. He seemed most devout in the service. So, with him being a man of means and some prominence, it will mean a lot if he comes to the Lord and is saved. He knows that his religion has nothing to offer and he seems to be honestly seeking the light. In this case it is his personal respect for me which has created the change. By his friendly attitude the other people are impressed and we are having splendid crowds here.

"But it is hard to get them ready to break caste. They are sure we are right, but cannot think of losing relatives and friends. It is hard, too, I know. I am praying that God will give them grace to leave all and follow the Lord like the fishermen of old. Now if we are called home this work will all go back, as I am the only village worker. By the time you get this we shall either be getting ready to start home or preparing to stay on. It all depends on the reply to my cable.

"We are aware of the financial burdens on the N. C. Conference which are all but breaking the back of the Conference. We cannot at this time appeal to you as a Conference to make another effort, and if we are forced to return we shall do so with a feeling of regret, but shall come to North Carolina to do our best with you. Yet the need is so great and we seem to be just getting started by learning how to do the work. But we are in the Lord's keeping and if it means coming home we shall gladly come. If it is to stay, we shall be as happy as we know how to be. We are somewhat like Paul in this respect.

"I do want to assure you that we appreciate what our North Carolina friends are doing for us. We thank you for your gift and pray that God will richly repay you.

"We are all in the best of health and enjoying our work. I have not heard from North Carolina through the paper for months. For some reason my paper does not come any more.

"Regards to all our friends.

"J. F. Minnis."

PRESIDENT'S SUGGESTION

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7, 1933.

Dear Bro. Pastor:

On April 30 the books of the treasurer of the General Conference will close for another fiscal year. We are always anxious to close the year well; and to that end, for a number of years, we have been regarding April as UP TO DATE month. By this we have meant that as far as possible our apportionment for the General Conference interests would be PAID UP TO DATE.

As an aid to that end we have suggested that our people TITHE THEIR INCOME for April, and give that tithe as a special offering to the General Conference.

During April you will observe Easter, and make your offering to the Board of Missions; but in addition thereto I am asking you to lead your people in paying on their apportionment without designations, so that all the interests of our General Conference program shall benefit thereby. Begin now to plan for April.

J. C. BROOMFIELD, President.

NOTICE

To All Those Who Are Expecting to Attend the Area Meeting at Concord, March 14th:

The ladies of the church are planning to serve lunch at 25 cents. So, come; let's enjoy the day together. J. M. MORGAN.

Water Glass?

Little Kathryn, from the city, who was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. N. M. Harrison, was found one cold day out in the yard busily engaged with a trowel in scooping something from the dog's pan of water. She explained, "There's glass all in this water, and I'm dippin' it out!"

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT, NOTICE!

This is to remind you of the Area meeting to be put on by Dr. Andrews, the President of the Conference and to be held in the First M. P. Church in Winston-Salem, Monday, March 13, beginning at 10:30 a. m. All pastors of the district, all official members of the churches and just as many of the non-official members of the churches as can come are urged to be present. There will be both a morning and an afternoon service. While the church is not attempting to make any provision for lunch, yet there are plenty of restaurants close by where lunch can be procured at a reasonable price or if you prefer to bring your lunch you can do so.

The charges in the district are Forsyth, West Forsythe, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion, Winston-Salem, First and Winston Salem Southside. Both men and women are expected to be present. J. E. PRITCHARD.

Please note than this report includes all receipts from Conference to and including February 28. Hereafter I shall send a weekly report to the Herald, provided, I have anything to report.

Anyone who wants to take the time to add the above columns of figures will find that we have received $588.30 for all purposes since Conference, or an average of $147.07 per month. I have received for A. C. B. a fraction more than enoegh to pay the president's salary for one month. I suppose the president's car is running on its reputation, and that he and his wife are living on love; but I wonder what his children are living on. Brethren, if we are not going to do better than this, we ought to declare a moratorium on all church work for a year, during which time all of us ought to clothe ourselves in sackcloth and ashes and beg our God to have mercy on our selfish, stingy souls. "Nuf ced."

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. J. P. Payne, Cedar Cliff, a fine selection of dahlia roots.

Mr. Geo. T. Penny, High Point, 6 jars of "Penny's Hep-U-Rub," a preparation for colds and sore throat and muscular soreness. It is manufactured in Greensboro. We heartily commend it.

We are thankful for all these gifts.

Our Stressing Condition

We hesitate to urge anything upon our people right now with financial conditions as they are, but our people in every nook and corner of the Conference must stand all the closer by us just now or we suffer. Credit is being taken from us, and we can not blame anybody, but that means that we cannot continue to get the actual needed food for our children and the necessary seeds to plant our gardens and fields without cash. Where the cash is to come from we cannot tell. God knows.

Looking forward through the next 90 days, we face actual privation and suffering unless our people rally to us in a peculiar way. Anything to eat will help. But all of you know that money, the scarcest thing of all, is what we need most. So, pastors and Sunday school superintendents, will please see that every Sunday school, even the smallest and most remote, takes a collection each month and send us the money at once, however small the offering.

This is just as much your family as is the one that sits about your own table. You will continue to share with us, and we thank you.

May God bless and speedily lead us all out into a brighter day.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

—Ferdie Stout, of Grace church, this city, has been elected vice-president of the Greensboro Merchants' Association.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West Forsyth.—Last Sunday being a fair and beautiful day, there was a good attendance at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches. At Baltimore there were 78 in Sunday school. Rev. J. W. Doub, who served as superintendent of the Sunday school for over 60 years, has retired and Bro. Grover Griffin has been elected to succeed him. Bro. Griffin was formerly teacher of the men's class, and this position has been given to Bro. Frank Wooten. After the service the pastor and two children were invited to the good home of Mrs. Ella Doub, where a splendid dinner was enjoyed. A large dish of opossum and 'taters graced the table, and many other delicious foods were in evidence. Other guests for the dinner were Mr. Santford Davis, father of Mrs. Doub; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Butner, and son, Mrs. Butner being a sister of Mrs. Doub; Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Phillips, the latter a daughter of Mrs. Doub.

We found an interested congregation at Stony Knoll for the appointment there at 2:30 in the afternoon. We regret not being able to accept invitations to homes of the people of that church after the service, but expect to visit in that community later.

Last Saturday was spent visiting some of the people of Baltimore church, and Saturday night was spent very pleasantly at the home of Bro. A. A. Doub, who was delegate to the Annual Conference at Burlington. Before departing from this home Sunday morning Bro. Doub placed a bushel of potatoes in our car, for which we are grateful. We also thank Rev. J. A. Blackburn for a nice, large pumpkin.

We are glad to report the condition of Bro. J. T. Smitherman, member of Baltimore church, who is ill at his home in East Bend, slightly improved. He has been confined to his home with illness for over a month.

Our appointment for next Sunday will be at Union Hill church at 11 a. m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Mt. Lebanon Church, Randleman.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 122. The 11 o'clock service was well attended. Our pastor, Rev. J. B. Trogdon, gave us a message of wisdom and inspiration, which was enjoyed by all present.

Our C. E. Society is getting along fine with the aid of "the faithful few." We are hoping and praying that it will grow and prosper.

Directed by Mrs. J. B. Trogdon, Mrs. J. G. Hall and Miss Nora Hughes, the Thank-Offering service appearing in the Missionary Record for January was impressifely presented by the Woman's Auxiliary of this church last Sunday evening at 7:30 to a large and appreciative audience. Miss Mae Caudle read the Scripture and prayers were offered by Mrs. S. F. Smith and Mrs. John Daniels. Throughout the service the choir and the Tabernacle quartet rendered beautiful and appropriate music. The pageantry of the thank-offering presentation, "To Lighten the World's Darkness," itself was enhanced by costumes brought directly from our mission field in India by Mrs. J. F. Minnis and graciously loaned for the occasion. Speaking for the nations represented were: India, Mrs. Ross Wood; Japan, Mrs. Dave Ferree; China, Mrs. Robert Allred; Unprivileged Children of America, Mrs. Otis Trogdon. Other places represented were: Pine Ridge School, Miss Juanita Wood; Bethel Home, Mrs. Hardin; Children's Home, Miss Rozelle Smith; Spirit of Christ, Mrs. J. B. Trogdon. At the conclusion of the pageant Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, gave us a very interesting impressive talk on the missionary work. The offering at this time amounted to $10.50.

The Ladies' Aid Society has recently bought some shrubbery to set out at the church and parsonage which has added very much to the appearance of both.

We are praying for a prosperous year in His service.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—The usual services were held the fourth Sunday morning. Pastor Williams brought us an inspiring sermon. His subject was "The Cross." We had a very good attendance considering the cold weather.

Our Sunday school is going forward. We have several new members.

The Woman's Missionary Society is giving a Thank-Offering program Sunday night, March 12, at 7:30. A pageant, "To Light a New World's Darkness," under the direction of Miss Nannie McAdams, will be given. Professor Swain, superintendent of the Efland school, will give an address at that time.

REPORTER.

First Church, Burlington.—The regular routine was followed Sunday. The services were all well attended. We had 349 present for Sunday school. We were pleased to have with us the Junior Quartet, who rendered two selections.

Dr. F. W. Paschall, pastor, brought a very inspiring message Sunday morning on the subject, "Love One Another As I Have Loved You." In this message he stressed the fact that "we did not visit one another often enough. Therefore, we didn't know one another."

The C. E. Society has been somewhat on the "drag" for the past few months, but we are starting anew with more pep, vim, and vigor to make our C. E. one of the best. We aren't completely re-organized but we have made a good start.

Miss Tula Paul was in charge of the prayer meeting Sunday evening. Miss Paul had prepared a splendid program on the subject, "Developing Christian Character." A debate was a very interesting part of the program. The query was, "Resolved, That it is possible to be a Christian and still be popular." The speakers on the affirmative were Misses Frances Hinshaw and Sara Thompson. Those on the negative were Misses Margarette Dixon and Virginia Thompson.

We were also favored by a duet rendered by Misses Paul and Corlyene Crutchfield. We had 25 present to worship with us. This was about 10 or 15 more than we usually have. We feel that with this increase in number we are going to do more in extending the kingdom of God throughout our land.

We had a well filled house for the evening worship also. Dr. Paschall used as the basis of meditation Psalm 73:17.

NETTIE MAE SMITH, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—"Does Jesus Care?" was one question which Dr. Johnson put before his congregation Sunday morning. The Scripture reading was taken from the Sermon on the Mount, Matt. 6:24-34. "God Cares" was the direct theme throughout the sermon. When we feel in a helpless condition, it is to Jesus that we go to find help and comfort. While Jesus was here on earth He went about doing good. Since Jesus is the same yesterday and today, it is plain that He still cares. Jesus does what He can to better existing conditions by working through humanity. "Do we care about others? We must learn the lesson of interest in humanity," said Dr. Johnson.

Dr. Johnson told the children the story of Jesus healing a blind man. The children seem to enjoy their period in the preaching service. Dr. Johnson varies their program from time to time. Sometimes a child sings, reads a poem, or tells a story; at other times Dr. Johnson gives the children an object lesson or a Bible story.

The interest and attendance at Christian Endeavor are improving. Sunday night one feature on the program will be a debate, "Reolved, That a man's value depends entirely upon his principles." Our meeting will be held at 7 o'clock. You are invited to come.

MARGARET CAUSEY, Reporter.

First Church, Charlotte.—We are delighted to have our pastor in the pulpit after an illness of three weeks; also Mrs. Hendry, who has been ill. Yesterday the service of communion was observed; it is a joy for Christians to so acknowledge allegiance to their Master.

We were happy to welcome into our church Sunday Mrs. J. G. Smith, Mrs. H. C. Rogers, and Mr. M. D. Fink.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Little were called to Hickory Sunday morning on account of the death of little Billie Austin, 20-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Austin. Mrs. Austin, a sister of Mrs. Little, was before her marriage Miss Lula Pritchard, of Asheboro.

On account of the area meeting to be held here Wednesday, the 15th, the Auxiliary meeting has been postponed one week. Dr. R. M. Andrews, of High Point, president of our Conference, and Rev. J. Elwood Carroll will conduct the meeting. All those attending are asked to bring sandwiches and the ladies of the Auxiliary will serve coffee.

I regret to report the continued illness of Bro. Steve Condor. Let us all pray for his recovery.

Miss Marie Walters is entertaining her Sunday school class with a weiner roast Friday afternoon. She has an interesting class of Junior girls.

Sorry to report the death of Mr. Henry Muse, father of Mrs. Leon Blake, Mrs. J. A. Pressley, Mrs. Blair, John and C. B. Muse. He resided with his son, C. B. Muse, on the Plaza. He died of a heart attack. Funeral service was held at the Tabernacle A. R. P. church Wednesday at 3 p. m., by Dr. Ernest Neal Orr, pastor.

Mrs. Eli Pritchard, of Asheboro, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. B. W. Little.

The cottage prayer meetings are well attended. Interesting and inspirational services are being conducted by a different leader each week. Those attending enter into the discussions wholeheartedly and enthusiastically. Those of our number who do not come and bring a friend are missing a blessing. Mrs. G. W. Stegall is leader this week.

A delayed session of quarterly conference was held Sunday evening at the church. Important matters were discussed.

The Auxiliary ladies are giving a chicken-pie supper at the church Thursday evening. A full supper for 25 cents—one of the kind you have heard about. The ladies at Lexington can tell you all about these famous suppers. Come on, folks and friends, enjoy eats and a social hour afterward.

The Christian Endeavor Societies are growing in numbers and interest. We are proud of our young people and the interest they are taking in the work. REPORTER.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—It has been quite a while since anything has been reported from Rehoboth but our "faithful few" have been on the job even though the roads have been almost impassable up to the last two Sundays.

Our pastor had to sometimes leave his car at a member's house and walk the rest of the way to church, but he went, and others went with him.

On the third Sunday in February Bro. Spencer gave us a splendid sermon from Romans 1-16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first and also to the Greek." The congregation was small, owing to bad roads, but those that went were greatly benefited by this grand sermon.

On March 5 the day was lovely and the roads were good, so a large crowd came. Besides the regular members there were visitors from Raleigh, Durham, High Point, and Henderson to worship with us and again Bro. Spencer gave us a splendid sermon. His text was taken from John 17:15, "I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world but that shouldst keep them from the evil." We are hoping now that as spring comes we can get our Sunday school and church attendance back to normal.

Our last Auxiliary meeting was held on February 22 with Mrs. H. L. Wright. We are doing fairly well with our collections, but not what we would like them to be.

Forsyth.—Since our reporters write to the Herald so seldom I will give here a few interesting items concerning the work on this charge.

Since Conference, Union Ridge church has received nine new members and has organized a Woman's Auxiliary and a Christian Endeavor Society. A few Sundays ago the Sunday school there reached the high water mark of 179. They are pulling for 200. On the last fifth Sunday this church had a community singing, under the direction of Brother P. W. Mock. This occasion drew one of the largest congregations assembled at this church in many years.

Thank-offering services have been held recently by the Woman's Auxiliaries of Maple Springs and Hickory Ridge churches and on last Friday afternoon a union prayer service with the First church, Winston-Salem, was held at Maple Springs church. This service was sponsored by the women of the church in observance of the World Day of Prayer and was well attended. Mrs. T. L. Speas led the meeting.

The organized Sunday school classes of Mt. Carmel church are holding regular monthly business meetings at the church. The classes assemble in the main auditorium of the church for a brief devotional service and then hold their business sessions in the class rooms. The Workers' Council of the school meets quarterly.

The people of the charge continue to remember us from time to time with good things to eat. Recently Brother E. F. Kiger and family, of Maple Springs church, "pounded" us with flour, butter and eggs. We thank all who are in any way contributing to our comfort and happiness.
R. A. HUNTER.

First Church, High Point.—The usual program of services was observed Sunday, opening with the Sabbath school session at 9:45 o'clock under the leadership of John C. Whitesell, superintendent.

During the morning hour for worship, the Junior church service for children ranging from 7 to 11 years of age was conducted in the assembly room by Miss Naomi Dawson.

At 11 o'clock the adult congregation worshipped in the main auditorium, and the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered the first of the Lenten sermons. After reading Matt. 4 and Hebrews 4, he announced the subject of his discourse, "Tempted like as we are, yet without sin," from Hebrews 4:15. He said that temptation is universal, and no one escapes. When our resources are nearly exhausted, and hunger stares us in the face, we raise questions about the goodness of God. Jesus knew God personally. I want you to carry away with you the conviction that God is not careless or indifferent about moral values or our needs. Sonship does not exempt anybody from temptation. Goodness, righteousness, and faith win out. Somehow temptations come unexpectedly as to Moses as he came down from the mount. Peter did not intend to yield to temptation when he denied that he knew the Lord. We are tempted when our resistance is low. Ttemptation will come to the new president as he has new power. God grant that he may rise victorious over it. You and I may grip God if we have faith in Him, and if we obey Him without question, we shall not be troubled with doubts. If you would not yield to Satan, keep out of his way. Miss Margaret Neese sang very sweetly, "Out of the Depths," by Rogers, and the beautiful anthem sung by the choir was "The Voice in the Wilderness," by Scott. Professor Stimson played as a prelude Nevin's "Silver Clouds."

In the evening service old hymns were sung by the congregation and Sam Troutman, student in High Point College, played a clarinet solo. Rev. Mr. Farmer delivered a very helpful sermon on "To Have and Hold Happiness." He declared that happiness is based more on what we are than what we have. True happiness is that emotion excited by the expectation or acquisition of some worthy thing desired. It is one of the divinest gifts—a real soul tonic. It lifts burdens and puts a song into the heart. Man is the only creature endowed with the power of laughter, and he shows his character by what he finds laughable. The happiness that comes with a vision of our Lord is inward. Happiness is achieved and not inherited. There are no short cuts, and we must deserve it. 'Set your affections on things above" and it is inevitable.

The Young People's C. E. Society met as usual on Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The Senior Society held its meeting Monday evening with Ralph Vance, leader.

On next Sunday morning the second in the series of Lenten themes, "Pictures of Jesus from the Wilderness to the Garden," will have for its subject, "Stoned for Good Works." (John 10:32).

On Wednesday, March 8, an Area Council will be held in First church, presided over by President R. M. Andrews. A number of these meetings is being held in the different districts of the North Carolina Conference, and important questions will be brought up for discussion, especially the task of getting a larger number of church members interested in some form of definite work and service; another is the problem of making church services more spiritual and uplifting instead of letting them drop into the round of monotonous mediocrity. Two sessions, one at 10:30 a. m., and another at 2p. m., will be held, and each one from out of town will bring lunch and coffee will be served at the church. All ministers in this area are expected to attend, and laymen and laywomen are urged to do so, and take part in these discussions of vital importance.

The Workers' Council of the Sabbath school will meet Tuesday evening, and the minister and superintendent plead for co-operation among members of the church to assume leadership and parents to see that their children attend regularly.

Last Saturday the Artemesian and Akrothinian Literary Societies of High Point College held their annual society day. The morning program at 10:15 o'clock opened with the society song. Devotionals were conducted by Miss Doris Keener, and the visitors were welcomed by Miss Ina McAdams, president of the Artemesian Society. The speaker, Keith Harrison, an alumnus of the college, who recently passed the bar examination, was introduced by Joe Craver, and spoke on the educational problems of the day. Dwight Davidson, president of the Akrothinian Society, then presented the annual gift to the college, a number of valuable books to the Library and a contribution to the College Annual. This gift was accepted by President G. I. Humphreys. The activities of the day were brought to a close with a delightful banquet in the dining hall at 8 o'clock, at which "Ma Whitaker" surpassed herself. The hall was elaborately decorated with the national colors, red, white, and blue, and at the conclusion of the banquet medals were presented to members of the Akrothinian

Society. The Furches improvement medal, awarded for greatest improvement in general society work during the year, was won by Joe Craver. The Mulligan medal for best work in athletics and debating was awarded to Dwight Davidson, of Gibsonville, and he also received the oratorical award for his oration, "Unfinished Symphonies."

Dr. P. E. Lindley, past president of the Kiwanis Club, has been appointed to a committee on Kiwanis education for the district of the two Carolinas.

At a meeting of the Mid-week Garden Club last week at the home of Mrs. Ingle Mrs. Richard H. Shaw gave an illustrated lecture on "Wild Flowers," which was greatly enjoyed.

Dr. S. S. Coe will speak before the Parent-Teacher Association at Oak Hill School on Tuesday evening on the subject, "What the Community Owes the Child." All the patrons of this school and other interested friends are invited to be present at this meeting, which will be helpful.

At the Training Course of Boy Scouts officials, which will be held at Elon College March 11-12, Prof. L. R. Johnston, principal of the local high school, will speak Sunday on two subjects, "Character Values of Scouting and How Obtained" and "Scouting Appied to Life."

The Community Exchange is proving of great service and helpfulness in High Point. The women of the different churches are taking turns in having charge of the Exchange rooms, answering phone inquiries, and putting people in touch with those who want work done. For instance, a woman who wants to do work in exchange for food and clothing for self or children, is put in communication with those who want that kind of work done.

In these dark days of gloom and depression the following lines from the pen of Miss Vera Idol, gifted member of the faculty of High Point College, may bring comfort and good cheer to some burdened and weary soul:

"Oh, weak and wavering spirit,
  Afraid of the pain and the care,
When life is gloomy and troubled,
  And the dark hovers everywhere—
    Will you wait for the dawn?

"Have faith in the Being Eternal,
  Who brings the brightness of day;
As the darkness of night He scatters,
  He will drive your sorrow away—
    If you will wait for the dawn."

Shiloh.—Even though weak because of intense suffering on Saturday night, Rev. R. S. Troxler brought a message marked by intense earnestness at the 11 o'clock hour. Ps. 73:2: "But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped." What tripped the psalmist? He was envious of the wicked. He had been taught that the righteous would flourish, but now he saw the wicked prosper. We, too, see the righteous suffer, and sometimes we get to the same place the psalmist was in and say we had just as well quit. The psalmist almost lost his grip on God and his faith in God's care.

What saved the psalmist? He went into the sanctuary, or as we would say, the church. "Then understood I," said he. Then he discovered that the prosperity of the wicked was not what it seemed; he had magnified it. He found that God helps and cares and only God can satisfy. The message was followed by a beautiful song by our C. E. quartet, which is composed of Miss Vista Troxler and Misses Emma, Mabel and Arline Berrier.

Again death, grim and relentless, has reached his unwelcome hand into one of our Shiloh homes. This time he tarried at the home of Mr. Jim Shoaf, and departing carried away his mother, Mr. Fanny Shoaf, wife of the late Jake Shoaf. Though not a member of Shiloh, yet when able she came with her son to Sunday school and was a member of the "Mothers' Class." Our faithful old mothers and fathers of Shiloh Sunday school are a great inspiration which remains with us even after they have crossed to the other side where they seem to beckon us on. Grandma Shoaf was laid to rest in SandyCreek cemetery by the side of her late husband. The funeral service was held in St. Luke's Lutheran church, of which she had long been a faithful member. She is survived by several children and grandchildren.

Mr. Albert Michael is reported to be right feeble for the past few weeks.

Mr. Gilbert Trantham is reported improving and it is now hoped that he may be able to get up again.

The thank-offering service was given by members of the Woman's Auxiliary and directed by Mrs. Troxler. The offering amounted to almost $10.00.

The prayer meeting, which is held each fourth Sunday is steadily growing in number and in interest. On the fourth Sunday of February Mrs. Roy Leatherman led, assisted by her Sunday school class; 168 wer present, and we are sure all received great inspiration. If it be so that the prayer meeting is the pulse of the church, then Shiloh seems to be gaining in real spiritual strength.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Rev. J. P. Pegg filled his appointment at this church Sunday, February 26. We had a very good congregation. All present seemed to enjoy the service very much. At the night service the young people had charge and they rendered a very nice program. They spoke on the future of the church and the program was enjoyed by all present. At the close of the service an offering was taken for the work of the Conference.

I noticed in the Herald by Brother Andrews that the Conference had nowhere to go this fall. I suggest that some of our rural churches entertain next Conference. Why not Mt. Hermon, Mt. Pleasant, or Tabernacle invite our next Conference? It has been many years since a rural church entertained our Conference. T. S. COBLE.

Love Joy Church, Why Not Charge.—Due to the muddy roads and bad weather, we have not had as large attendance as usual, but when spring opens up we expect our Sunday school to grow. We have a very lively Sunday school and a great deal of interest is shown.

There has been much improvement on the church grounds. We are to plant shrubbery in March. We want to thank Bro. Reynolds, our pastor, for his help and advice. We want to make Love Joy one of the most beautiful spots in Montgomery county.

We organized a Christian Endeavor Society last summer, but were forced to close this winter. However, we expect to open again this spring with renewed interest.

The Young People's class has a Bible-Reading Campaign on now. The class is divided into Reds and Whites. At the end of a month the losing side will have to entertain the winners. The side which reads the most chapters will be the winner.

Quite a few of our members are ill or have been ill in the past month. One of our members has gone to the hospital for an operation this week. Please pray with us that this member may recover and be back with us before long. A MEMBER.

First Church, Concord.—The reporter made a mistake last week in the Sunday school attendance. The attendance was 374 instead of 366. The attendance last Sunday was 348. We don't know where all the folks were; we know some were absent because of sickness, and then sometimes it is hard to get out when the weather is cold.

Rev. Mr. Morgan gave us a wonderful message Sunday morning. His subject was "The Power of the Cross." Scripture lesson was the 12 chapter of John. Text, the 32nd verse: "And I if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me." A large crawd was present to hear this fine message.

Sunday night he gave us another good message on sin. The Scripture lesson was the 6th chapter of Romans, "The Wages of Sin Is Death."

On next Saturday night the Ladies' Aid is planning to serve a fish fry and chicken and noodles to be sold at 25 cents a plate for adults and 15 cents for children. We are hoping to make real good on the supper. We think the women folks are planning to make our church look better inside, and if ever a church needed something done, our church surely does. We feel like this is a move that all the women folks will go into whole-hearted as we are sure they want to see our church look better on the inside. Seems like we can't ever get able to build a new church, so why not try to make what we have look the best we can?

On Tuesday night, March 14th, an area meeting will be held in our church, and we are hoping to have a good crowd and good meeting. The Ladies' Aid is planning to serve lunch for the pastors and folks at the meeting.

The Junior Stewards are planning a real good program for their next meeting. Each official of the church and all the Sunday school teachers and officers are expected to be present.

Last Thursday night Mrs. Ernest Litaker entertained the members of the B. and S. Sunday school class. Mrs. B. F. Waddell is the teacher of this class. The home was arranged with spring flowers, the color scheme of pink and white being attractively carried out in the refreshments. A short business session was held, presided over by the president, Mrs. L. M. Williams. Reports of committees were given and several items of business discussed, after which Mr. L. M. Burris directed the guests in a number of games. Later in the evening refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. L. M. Burris, Mrs. Lee Haynes, Mrs. Luther Davis, and Mrs. L. M. Williams. Forty-two members and several additional guests were present. This class is a crowd of wide-awake women, many of whom are not members of our church, but they are every ready and willing to help in any work for the church and we are glad to see so many of them stay for the preaching service.

Next Sunday a teachers' training class will start at our church. The class will be taught during the Sunday school hour. This class is something we have needed for a long time, as our superintendent has a very difficult time in gettintg volunteeer teachers when some of the regular teachers are absent. We are proud to see all the classes taking more interest in the preaching services. Sunday school is fine; we don't think we could do without it, but we need to all be at preaching also.

We are hoping when spring opens that all the sick folks will be well and our attendance at Sunday school and church will be better. Miss Bertha Brown is confined to her room with flu. Little Leonard Eudy was sick last week with a severe cold. Mrs. W. B. Newton is improving; she can be up most of the day now. Grandma Thomas is much improved; can sit up for a short while each day now.

First Church, Lexington, and Mt. Carmel.—The attendance of our Sunday school and church continues to show some improvement. Our pastor continues to bring very helpful messages that are always inspiring. Rev. Mr. Isley chose as his subject this morning "God Answers Great Questions."

The ladies of the church never believe in being idle. We have decided to make a quilt for the Children's Home that will be completed in a short while and sent to the Home.

Mr. J. G. Trantham shows a little improvement. His condition has been serious for the past seven weeks.

The following teachers and church workers have registered and entered the teacher-training school that is being conducted at State Street church: Mr. W. W. Swicegood and Mr. J. T. Swicegood and Misses Effie Mae Swicegood, Beautus Waitman and Zula Fritts.

English Street Church.—On Sunday evening our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, brought to us a very inspiring sermon. His subject was "The Way to Heaven." His text was taken from Jeremiah 6:16. He said in part: Christ set up a life that we may follow. He came to the earth to establish righteousness. He is as old as His Word. The way to heaven can never be changed. There are those who try to climb up some other way; but there is only one way: that is the way of Holiness. He also pointed out that we all are travelers, going somewhere. We should be sure that we are on the right way. Jesus Christ is a sign-post, ready to point the way to Everlasting Life. Eternity is a place where we are all going. We should be interested in the way, also in the end. He also gave warning to those who are drifting along the downward grade to destruction, warning them to get on the old path of righteousness, the way of Faith, and use the Bible, which points toward heaven and immortal glory.

We were glad to see several of our members back at church after being absent on account of illness. We were very glad to have Mrs. Hill back with us Sunday after an illness of a few weeks.

The Sunday school is doing nicely.

The choir has improved wonderfully since Mr. Frank B. Stamps held a singing school here. They are now having choir practice every Tuesday night.

Things are looking better around our church now since the parsonage and hut have been painted, and quite a lot of work has been done on the yards.

The Christian Endeavor is still doing splendid work. On Friday, February 24, the society presented a very inspiring program. This a candle service, the theme being "The Church Spreading Light." The Lebanon and Welch Memorial societies were visitors at this time. On Thursday night of this week a program will be given in the church. This will be the second try-out for the "Efficiency Contest" the society has on. Mrs. Jennie Lee is preparing the program. She is using for the subject "Service."

The second quarterly conference will be held at our church Friday evening, March 10.

Asheville.—According to reports made by the different organizations of the church to the second quarterly conference held recently, the Asheville group has completed a very satisfactory unit of the year's work. Written reports from all organizations showed active interest and well formulated plans for continued growth.

A novel plan for keeping the members informed as to the financial status of the church was presented by the pastor in the form of a chart painted by Mr. C. B. Baker. This gives an itemized statement of the church budget for the year, and also a wheel of progress, the spokes of which represent the months of the year. When the required amount is raised per quarter the spokes are to be painted. The chart will be displayed in the church at the first of each quarter.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. E. C. Fawcett for the February meeting. More emphasis is being placed upon the worship service and interesting discussions have marked the past few meetings. Several plans for helping the budget are being worked. A quilt, the material for which was contributed by local tailors, is being completed by Mrs. Y. D. Eller and will be placed on sale at the next meeting. Also at this meeting the miniature aprons which were distributed several months ago are to be collected. The offering in the pockets of the aprons will apply on the budget.

An impressive thank-offering service was held Sunday evening, February 26. The program and pageant outlined in the Missionary Record were carried out. A feature of the program was the address by Rev. Mr. Carroll on the subject, "Is There a Case for Modern Missions?" This was exceptionally fine and proved an appropriate climax for the program. The offering amounted to $8.00.

The Workers' Council met last Wednesday evening to discuss needs of the Sunday school. The optimism of the pastor was evident as he expressed his appreciation of the splendid work being done by the adult classes. The Fawcett Bible class has more than doubled its attendance in the past two months. Mrs. C. C. McNeill and Mrs. Sue Carter were joint hostesses to the class last Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Foster on Montford Avenue. This was the regular monthly business and social meeting. Members of this class had entire charge of the opening of Sunday school Sunday and had arranged an interesting program on the subject, "The Healing Power of Jesus." Mr. J. A. Hornaday, president of the class, was in charge. Those on the program were: Mrs. S. C. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Faucett, Mrs. C. C. McNeill, Mrs. H. L. Hanner and Mr. L. R. Pratt.

The Social Service Committee of the Young Women's Bible Class sponsored the pageant-drama, "The Lost Church," February 11. This was one of the most outstanding programs yet given at the church. The play is a dramatic presentation of the value of the church and its contribution to civilization. Mr. Carroll took the part of a typical man of the world who saw no reason to give the church his support. In a dream he was permitted to live for a day in a churchless community; then he realized that the common blessings of life owe their existence to the church. He was supported by an able cast including Mrs. D. L. West, Mrs. C. B. Baker, Betty Marlowe, Guy Allison, Howard Carter, Misses Nancy Clouse, Arlene and Louise Hanner, Margaret and Elma Fawcett. The play met with such approval that it was given last Sunday evening at Mount Zion M. P. church, near Weaverville. It will also be given within the next two weeks at the First M. E. church and Central M. E. church in Asheville and the Fletcher M. E. church.

Miss Margaret Fawsett's class of Intermediates recently presented a splendid dramatization of the story of Baby Moses at the opening exercises of the Sunday school. This group is increasing in number as a result of the constructive program outlined by Miss Fawcett.

The Senior C. E. Society held the February business and social meeting at thte home of Misses Arlen and Louise Hanner. A large number attended and written reports from all committees were read. A box supper will feature the March business meeting which will be held Friday, March 10, at the church.

A number of our members have been absent from services because of illness. Miss Novella McIntire and Miss June Hornaday were at church Sunday after an absence of several weeks. Dr. and Mrs. Robey Wilson are confined to their home with flu. Little Miss Mary Foster is recovering from a broken arm sustained in a fall on the ice several weeks ago. Mrs. H. O. Charnock is improving after an extended illness.

Mrs. G. P. Younginer and Miss Mildred Younginer, of Charlotte, were visitors at the service last Sunday evening. Mr. G. P. Younginer, who was a patient at Biltmore Hospital last week, was able to return to his home. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Winston-Salem, First—Our reporter, Miss Pauline Branson, who was in the hospital for a number of weeks, has returned home and is improving nicely. We hope she may be able to give you the news again before many more weeks.

We are still missing from the services Mrs. H. O. Sapp. Mrs. Sapp has been active here so long that it seems strange to try to get along without her. We trust she may soon be able to be with us.

Robert Brown, who for a number of years was a member of the family at our Children's Home, united with our church last Sunday morning.

The attendance record which is to run for three months in our Sunday school is doing good. There are slightly more than 100 who have not missed a Sunday since the record started the first of February. Last Sunday morning the Sunshine Circle, under the direction of Mrs. R. H. Shouse and Mrs. S. E. Hauser, put on a short program for the closing part of the Sunday school.

In our 5 o'clock vesper services Sunday, Mr. J. T. Morgan, a well known radio singer here, sang three selections, much to the delight of our people. We were glad to have in the audience and later for a visit to the parsonage Misses Esther Ross, Lollie Jones, Kate Hammer and Exie Calicut, of Asheboro.

In the second quarterly conference last week Bros. N. B. Braswell and J. C. Ball were elected nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference.

Mrs. Matilda Powell, aged 77 years, a member of our church here for the past few years, passed away at the home of her step-son here. The funeral was held at Pilot church on Wednesday afternoon of last week, and was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. D. Smith, of Pilot Mountain. Mrs. Powell was thee widow of the late A. G. Powell, who was a brother of Rev. H. L. Powell, of our Conference.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Sunday evening Rev. P. E. Bingham read from Psalms 19 through the 16th verse. His text was from the 11th chapter, "Thy word have I hid in mine heart that I might not sin against thee." His main subject throughout his sermon was "The Bible."

Miss Helen Fowler and Miss Mary Virginia Hawkins sang a duet Sunday evening.

Our Sunday school is still awake. Miss Erma Hawkins, the Senior teacher, made a very good speech in Sunday school the fourth Sunday morning.

We didn't have any prayer service Sunday morning. The class leader, Mr. C. F. Hawkins, had called on Mr. E. B. Pair to hold it. Sorry to learn he was ill.

Please don't forget preaching service next Sunday at 11 o'clock and Christian Endeavor Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Baldy Green, Mrs. Clarence Hawkins and Miss Maggie Hawkins have charge of the Easter program.

Sorry to note Mr. Forest Hawkins is ill

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—On last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service the Christian Endeavor Society gave a very interesting program, entitled "Life's Choice." Many interesting talks were given explaining what it means to our lives how we choose our life's choice of education, marriage, and God. Our pastor, Mr. Grant, also bought us a very helpful message on the subject.

The C. E. Society held its regular weekly meeting on last Friday evening with Mr. Joshua Motsinger, leader. The program had been well prepared and many helpful points were brought out. Mr. Early Ingram will be the leader on next Friday evening.

We are very glad to report that Mrs. A. B. Dwiggins, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is slowly improving.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Lineberry

On Wednesday morning, December 21st, I had finished washing dishes and was sitting at my kitchen window to rest a minute when my telephone rang. It was a friend telling me of Mrs. Lineberry's passing. I then went back to the window to view the snow-covered hills, but someway I could not see; my eyes were full of tears and my heart was heavy. I realized what a loving, good friend had gone and what a devoted wife and mother was gone, yet I could not weep more, as I knew she had lived a wonderful Christian life and was prepared to go to her Heavenly Home.

She was ever ready to lend a helping hand to all. She loved everyone and everyone loved her. We must remember that God does all things for the best and if we do not understand why our loved ones are often taken so soon we must submit to the Heavenly Father's will, and live as He would have us live, so when death comes we will be prepared. So, my dear ones, when you stand before the throne, and the wisdom, riches, and glory of God's gracious providences are being enfolded to your understanding, you will realize that He "hath done all things well."

I believe memory in heaven will not have forgottetn our earth-home. So the meeting and recognition of loved ones will be a source of great pleasure and delight, Love being the supreme love of life in Heaven. True cimpanionship will doubtless be a source of happiness in Heaven. To meet there and recognize those with whom we lived, toiled, rejoiced and wept in this world, to talk over again the experiences of our earth life, our hopes, fears, joys, sorrows, when once forever saved in Heaven. And to admire and adore the love of Jesus and the great salvation he purchased for us with his own blood. Therefore, let us earthly pilgrims remember that our journey from the cradle to the grave fixes our eternal destiny. Shall it be in Heaven?

A FRIEND.

Holloway

The death of Mrs. A. L. Holloway on Tuesday, February 28, came as a great shock, not only to her family, but to the Henderson Methodist Protestant church and to a large circle of friends. She had been ill for a month and in the hospital five days prior to her death.

Funeral services were conducted at the Middleburg Baptist church Wednesday afternoon by her pastor, assisted by Rev. R. A. Hunter, and interment was in the Middleburg cemetery.

Mrs. Holloway is survived by her husband, four children, three step-children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bredlove, seven brothers and two sisters. All of these have the sympathy and prayers of the pastor and church people, but especially does our sympathy go out to Brother Holloway and the dear children. May the dear Lord be gracious to them.

Mrs. Holloway had been a member of the Henderson Methodist Protestant church for the past five years, having transferred her membership from the Baptist church to which she had belonged with all her people from childhood. She was a faithful, loving companion to her husband a devoted mother. Her neighbors and friends spoke in terms of highest praise of her. In her last hours she assured her loved one that she had no fears, telling them not to worry and that she was happy. In the comfort of her testimony and the blessed assurance that your Christian faith gives you may look forward to meeting her whom you loved over in the better land.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Biggs

Mrs. Mary Biggs, who had been ill for several months, passed to her heavenly reward February 24, 1933. The Funeral service was conducted by the pastor in the Henderson church the next afternoon, and interment was made in the cemetery at Fullers Chapel Christian Church five miles from town.

Mrs. Biggs had been a member of the Methodist Protestant church for 66 years, holding her membership first at Union chapel, and then at Henderson, where she had been a member for about 40 years. For several months before her death she was unable to attend the services, but she maintained her interest in the church, often asking the pastor about the services, and during the last few months of her life she lived next door to the church where she could hear the singing, which she enjoyed a great deal.

Though she suffered a great deal she told us often that the Lord was with her, and when the last days came she left the assurance that her faith was sustaining her.

She is survived by one son and one daughter, also a sister and two grandchildren. May the bereaved be comforted, and may they also have faith that God is with them all the way.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Renn

On March 4 the Henderson Methodist Protestant church lost by death one of its oldest members. Bro. A. S. Renn, who had lived to the ripe age of 70 years, had been ill for five months with a complication of diseases which led his children to despair of his recovery. After all that could be done by doctor and his loved ones he passed away peacefully and triumphant in the faith. For 37 years he had been a member of the Henderson M. P. church. Though his health prevented him from attending the services regularly since the present pastorate began, yet he was sometimes seen in the services, and enjoyed having the pastor call on him and have prayer with him.

Brother Renn is survived by five children, two sons and three daughters, a number of grandchildren and many friends who are grieved by his going. A large number of his friends with whom he had associated through the 45 years that he had lived in Henderson were honorary pallbearers.

The funeral service was conducted by the pastor in the church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the presence of a large congregation of sympathizing friends. The large audience and beautiful floral offerings testified to the large place Brother Renn and his people occupy in the esteem of the community.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

That he finished his sojourn here trusting in God is a source of great comfort to those left behind. May the peace of God fill the hearts of those who sorrow, and may the Christian faith sustain you through all the experiences of life and bring you at last to meet with loved ones who have died in the faith.

Ruth Allred

We were grieved to learn of the death of one of our faithful Sunday school attendants, one who came even when the weather was cold, although she lived over a mile from church and often walked. We will always miss her.

Ruth was only 20 years old, so young to go; but God saw fit to call her away for reasons best known to Himself, and I am sure she is happy, for she was faithful to her Savior and was ready to go.

I believe she has seen her mother again. They are happy and rejoicing together in the Beautiful City of God.

Ruth died Sunday night, February 26, and was buried Tuesday, February 28, at the Methodist Protestant church, Rev. J. B. Tdogdon conducting the funeral services, assisted by our pastor, Mr. Joyner.

Isley

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom hath seen fit to call to Himself our beloved sister, Mrs. Mary Isley, therefore, be it Resolved by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Friendship Methodist Protestant church:

1. That in her death our society laments the loss of a faithful and consistent member, one who was ever ready to lend a helping hand. Her liberality and the hospitality of her home have contributed much to the success of our society. May we gain inspiration from her useful life, and carry on the work she loved.

2. That we extend to her loved ones our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to our heavenly Father, who in His goodness knoweth and doeth that which is best for all.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Methodist Protestant Herald, and a copy be placed on our records.

Lane

Mrs. Irene Whitt Lane died March 1 at the home of her father near Kernersville. She was born January 22, 1906. She had been in bad health for a year or more. She leaves her husband, two children, four brothers, three sisters, and her father, to mourn her passing.

Irene professed faith in Christ in early childhood at Ai Methodist Protestant church, and was a faithful member until death.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by T. L. Hill, of Colfax, and C. P. Bowls, of Greensboro. The body was laid to rest in the Oak Grove cemetery beneath a large mound of flowers.

May God comfort all the bereaved family.

Ways of Salvation

The love of God and hope of men
Discovered ways, some eight or ten,
By which the people may be saved
By simply walking ways all paved.

The way of law and sacrifice,
As sure to win as playing dice,
Approved itself to earnest men,
For if they failed they'd try again.

A second way seemed surer still,
Although its steps were all uphill:
It was the good old way of works
Quite sure to him who never shirks.

Some dreamy sage in foreign land
Will tell his dream and take your hand
To lead you on to lasting bliss,
But lose you in the chilling mists.

Seeking the way we're led afar
And lose our sight of guiding star;
In utter darkness we despair—
Can only hope to perish there.

A voice of hope comes from above,
A voice of hope and deepest love:
"I am the life, the truth, the way;
I'll be your Guide through all the day!"

And honest men will find it so
In all the world they're led to go.
With human voice and heavenly power
He guides and guards through every hour.

"Come . . . Tarry . . . Go"

Something fascinating about those words. Something not found in words of mere men. Something gripping, inspiring, electrifying, unlike other thrills coming into one's life.

"COME"—What a beautiful picture! Amid the multitude of earth's disappointed, standing with outstretched arms is a man inviting, yea, pleading with those about Him. "Come unto me, all ye that are weary." He promises rest from sin's weariness; happiness in place of disappointment, and peace for those distraught by the disillusions of sinful living.

"GO"—Answered by eleven men, whose going increased their number, until today their name is Legion. Millions like them, have given, and are giving their best in Christian service.

Men must come before they can tarry; tarrying is the most important factor in one's preparation to go. No Christian experience is worth while without this process in its making. It is most necessary to an adequate Christian service. Foolish is he who endeavors to "go" without the dynamic received as one tarries the appointed time in the appointed place.

Have we tarried long enough? Tarrying long, and alone in Gethsemane fortified Christ against the ordeal of the Cross. Tarrying apart from the world of things, disciples received a fire that is still sweeping across the pages of Christian history. Had these failed to tarry, we would not read of "tongues of fire" and the revival at Jerusalem. If Saul had refused to tarry with Ananias of Damascus, Paul would not have been freed from the Philiphian jail, and we would have lost the inspiration of his matchless pen.

Have we failed in our tasks? Are we embarassed in our efforts at Christian service? Are we facing problems hard to solve? We have failed, in a measure at least. We are embarrassed, and face problems, whose solution seems to evade us. If we desire relief, and power for success, we will find it as we tarry in the Room of Communion and Meditation. As we wait, not hurriedly, but patiently, and quietly, we will receive the power for which we long, without which we can not achieve that whereunto we have been sent.

"COME"—What a gracious invitation! "GO"—A commission unequaled anywhere! "Tarry"—An experience fraught with fellowship unknown to the world, without which we can not know the joy of success in Kingdom service.

Why Prayer Is Not Heard

There are some who are not interested in this inquiry. They offer no prayer. There is in their case nothing to be heard. They are content with the things which are to be had without asking. Such are in a bad way, and I suspect they sometimes themselves think so. That dependent creatures should habitually and devoutly acknowledge their dependence before God; and that needy creatures, whose necessities return every day, should ask God to supply them, is too reasonable a thing for men to neglect it, and yet be at perfect peace with themselves. But why are many prayers not heard?

Some prayers proceed from a conviction of want, while there is no sense of want. The persons judge that they need the things they ask for, but they do not feel their need of them. Prayers which come from no deeper source than the understanding are not heard. They must come from the heart for true prayer always originates in the heart. It is the heart's sincere desire. Another has well defined it, "It is a sense of want, seeking relief from God." Sometimes the lips pray for one thing and the heart another. The request is, perhaps, to be delivered from all sin, but the desire is to be delivered from all but one or two favorite sins. Would it not seem strange if God should grant our request and disregard our desire? Many really wish to be religious, and they pray that they may be so, but they do not on the whole desire it. Again, some sincerely desire the progress of the Gospel and pray, "Thy Kingdom come," but they desire still more to take their ease or to keep their money. Effectual prayer is the expression of intense desire. The examples of successful prayer recorded in the Bible evince this. The woman of Canaan sincerely, supremely, and intensely desired what she asked. Such was the character of Jacob's desire for a blessing, and of the Publican's for mercy.

Sometimes prayer is not heard because not offered in faith. "He that cometh to God must believe." He must "ask in faith, nothing wavering." Sometimes it is for want of a consistent submission to the will of God. He who said, "Let this cup pass from me," added, "Nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt." Sometimes a specific direction is given concerning something to be done in connection with prayer, which being neglected, the prayer by itself is unavailing. Thus, in order that we may not enter into temptation, we are commanded to "watch and pray." Vain is prayer to secure against temptation if vigilance be omitted. Prayer is sometimes ineffectual because too general. It appears that the heart is incapable of being at the same time the subject of many intense desires. Does any one suppose, that when prayer was made of the church for Peter, being in prison, they prayed for everybody and everything first and only brought in Peter's case at the close?

Many a Christian hinders his prayer by unbelief which surmises that what he asks is too great a thing for God to bestow on one so unworthy as he is. He forgets that the greatest gift has already been conferred in God's own Son, and the foundation therein laid for the argument, "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things."

UNIFORM PROSPERITY

During the World War I read a letter with this expression, "If only we could hear the beautiful word Peace." Perhaps, Prosperity is the beautiful word the world would like to hear today. The intense longing, yearning for its return creates a wholesome atmosphere in which to study prosperity. The daily press informs us that this country has already survived twenty periods of depression. Each has been followed by prosperous times. Depressions and prosperity periods may be likened unto the tides, or intermittent springs. The Church of Christ stands in the changing times proclaiming the Everlasting Gospel, which is more abiding than heaven and earth.

Prayers for prosperity are nothing new, either in our country, or in the world. Long, long ago the Apostle John was praying for a uniform development of Gaius' prosperity. "Beloved, I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." Here we have the aged Apostle praying that the material and bodily prosperity of this beloved friend might measure up to his soul's prosperity. While he had an unbalanced prosperity, thank God, his soul was not impoverished. Depressions had not caused him to barter his soul for a mass of pottage; nor violate the commandments of God for the world's raiment; nor sell his Lord for thirty pieces of silver. If it had been at all possible, I hardly think, he would have exchanged his souls prosperity for the riches of the whole world.

The multitudes, who allow the cares of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches to choke the word of God, and impoverish their lives spiritually, is enough to cause the saints to mourn and the angels to meet. The politicians are speaking often now about "A new deal," and the unemployed are breathlessly awaiting to learn what it is going to be. They dream that it is for them. We hope they are not misled. If they are ever going to have "a deal," surely it should be now. The world has been ruled long enough by "The Rule of Gold," with results that call for the Golden Rule. There has been a disposition to follow the example of the Rich Fool rather than the Command to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness. It is better a thousand times to be a material beggar with a prosperous soul, than to possess the wealth of the world with an impoverished soul.

Could the plight the world now finds itself in have been brought on by people forgetting God? Would it not be in order to give God "a new deal?" The church people spend more money for gas to burn on the highways than they do to give the Gospel a chance to shine in the dark places of the world. Our Statesmen seem to listen to the thunders of the wets more than to the still small voice of God. Who doubts it? Perhaps, there are lonely souls saying, "Look . . . No man careth for my soul," while so-called Christians are away from their pews in the churches, seeking the pleasures of the world. "Back to God. Back to the church. Back to uniform prosperity," should be our slogan.

CHARLES PROTEUS STEINMETZ

That was not his original name. His parents called him by a very much more complicated combination of German names —Karl August Rudolph Steinmetz.

The "Charles" in his improved name is simply the English, or American, form of the German "Karl," which Steinmetz preferred to use after he had been in this country long enough to feel that he had become a real American. He dropped the "August Rudolf" because he did not want to carry about such a load of German sounds. The "Proteus" he chose for himself, for reasons of his own, after he had left his native land and had become settled in his adopted country. The idea of it goes back to his early student days in the University of Breslau, Germany. I quote from his biographer, J. F. Leonard:

"Every German student has a nickname even if he has only one friend to call him by it. These nicknames may be mere contractions of the regular first name or may grow out of some personal peculiarity. But they are bestowed formally at a special club meeting called for the purpose.

"Steinmetz came to such a meeting with some misgivings. The traditional nicknames were not apt to be tender ones. He might come out with a name that would stick to him like a curse for the rest of his life. Many had done so before him and his appearance certainly offered plenty of opportunities for practical jokers.

‘‘The ‘foxes,’ or first term men, were lined up before the committee and as each man was called he would step forward to receive the name which was to be used in all future meetings. Steinmetz was the third in the line. The first man was called. He stepped up and with a smile received the name of ‘Archimedes.’ He never learned the reason for this, but ‘Archimedes’ he remained to the end of his university career. The second didn't fare so well. He was given the name of ‘Agag,’ the unfortunate king of the Amalekites who was ‘hewn to pieces before the Lord.’ This was because of a calling down he'd suffered from a short-tempered professor. Then it was Steinmetz' turn.

‘‘ ‘Half a glass to Proteus,’ he said. ‘Proteus the versatile, the ever changing, who knows economics, and mathematics, who can answer questions on every subject.’

‘‘The members drank duly their half glasses and Steinmetz sat down. He was Proteus now. It might be worse. He thought it over. There were worse names. But he knew his classics too well to be completely delighted.

‘‘When the meeting broke up Steinmetz walked home slowly and alone. He was turning the new name over in his mind.

‘‘ ‘So,’ he thought, ‘they call me Proteus because I'm versatile and quick-changing. Perhaps they think I don't know more about Proteus than that. But I know the Odyssey from beginning to end. Proteus was the old man of the sea. That's what he was. If you caught him he'd change inyour hands to a hurricane, to a fire, to a sea serpent. But if you kept firm hold he'd finally change back to his real shape, a wrinkled old hunchback, and tell you all the secrets of the world.’

‘‘He hitched along crabwise for a few blocks. It was late and the widely spaced street lights made his shadow even more grotesque as it writhed on the pavement.

‘‘ ‘Yes, I'm the old man of the sea. I'm Proteus. I shall keep that name and post it up where all the world can see it. And if anyone sticks to me through thick and thin I'll tell him the secrets the world has never known before.’

‘‘He hitched on in the darkness toward his bleak little room on the Tauenzienstrasse. Those same street lamps are brighter now and Steinmetz had a lot to do with it.’’

According to Leonard, ‘‘Steinmetz was in a class with Newton, Leibnitz, Einstein, and the other theorists whose abstract reasonings made it possible for men with less penetrating minds to design practical machines. His greatest achievement was the method of dealing with alternating current. Before men could put this force to work they had to understand its habits and possibilities. They had to have a mathematical tool firmly in their heads before they could predict with any accuracy what their devices would do under practical conditions. The methods which Steinmetz developed were so complete and painstaking, so craftily considerate of every possible phase, that a designer who understood them could hardly make a mistake.’’

A distinction is to be drawn between Steinmetz, and such men as Edison and Marconi. The biographer continues:

‘‘It would be silly and unjust to try to take away credit from men like Edison and Marconi. They are very important in the great process of discovering a principle, working it into a useful device, and getting that device before the public where it will make life pleasanter and easier to live. But they should be given credit as inspired and far-sighted business men—not as scientists. The scientists are grubby fellows hiding away in laboratories, shunning reporters, and finding in their work the reward for a life of effort. All they get credit for is eccentricity.

‘‘Steinmetz was one of this latter class. There is no well-known invention to which his name can be attached. He had a hand in the perfecting of many devices originated by other men. And almost all electrical designers have used his mathematical methods for working out their own schemes. He must be given credit for every machine activated even indirectly by the alternating current.’’

In conferring upon Steinmetz the Master's degree at Harvard University, President Elliot made the following brief and characteristically discerning address to the candidate:

‘‘I confere this degree upon you as the foremost electrical engineer in the United States and therefore in the world.’’

Everybody knows that Steinmetz was born with a dwarfed, misshapen body—as his father before him. But his mind was all right. It is a fine tribute to the dominance of mind over matter that, while everyone was shocked on first seeing Steinmetz, long association and intimate acquaintance made one forget his body in the presence of his wonderful mind.

The General Electric Company was formed with the then unusually large capital of $35,000,000. Other companies were combined and valuable patents taken over. Nothing, however, was of such value as the acquisition of Charles Proteus Steinmetz. For the newly formed company realized that with him they were acquiring many valuable ‘‘unborn patents.’’

Steinmetz never married, though he was essentially a family man and wanted a home. He had a young engineer live with him. On the latter's marriage and removal to a home of his own, the older man was lonely. Frequent visits to these young people did not fully satisfy him, and he invited them to live with him in his house. Here three children were born that to all intents and purposes became his grandchildren. This acquired family became eminently satisfying to him. The biographer says:

‘‘In matters relating to sex Steinmetz never grew up. Perhaps he decided not to. He was capable of it. At any rate his reactions to the whole subject were never those of an adult. To borrow a word from the vocabulary of psychology he ‘‘sublimated’ his sex impulses into scientific enthusiasm. Mathematics occupied completely that central part of his mind which if he had been a normal man would have been dominated by sex.’’

Three paragraphs in his own words express some of Mr. Steinmetz' thoughts as a social idealist:

(1) ‘‘To succeed is to make a living at work which interests you. The work that interests you may not make you rich. What of that? The wise man learns to live. The shrewd man learns to make money. But the man who has learned to live is the happier of the two. Because his work interests him it is not work at all.''

(2) ''The mechanical development of industry is tending more and more toward the short working day. The problem of production has been almost solved. The workmen in many factories do hardly more than feed the machines and pack up the finished product. But this improvement is not yet reflected in increased freedom. How soon is humanity going to reap the benefit of this advance? Men still work long hours, and their tasks, having none of the interest of individual work, are much more wearing to their bodies and degrading to their spirits. They have gained very little except additional ways to spend their money.''

(3) ''Wouldn't it be better if the workmen instead of using their increased wages to pay for non-essentials like radio sets and automobiles were to refuse to work more than four hours a day and spend the rest of the time developing those higher parts of their natures which get no chance for expression in the mechanical modern factory?''

Men differ as to plans and specifications for a reconstructed and improved organization of life and industry. But there is increased agreement that reconstruction must come and that its benefits—material, intellectual, and spiritual—are to be more largely shared by the common run of people. Steinmetz contributed immensely to the mastery of the laws and forces of nature, and he stood for the rights and well-being of the people.

A FEW WORDS FROM WASHINGTON

This is the eve of Inauguration Day. President-elect Roosevelt arrived in the city last night. Many visitors of many sorts and from many places are here for the interesting events.

It is cause for gratitude that Mr. Roosevelt escaped the assassin's bullet in Miami. Everybody sympathizes deeply with the innocent victims of the criminal. It is hoped that all will recover.

Probably yielding to some sort of pressure, Mrs. Roosevelt finally gave up her plan to make a spectacular drive in her auto—alone with her dogs—from New York to Washington. She came on her husband's train.

There is an under-the-surface feeling on the part of police officers in connection with the ceremonies of Inauguration. Special precautions are being taken to safe-guard prominent persons and to avoid occasions for disturbances. Still, we are hopeful that everything will go off smoothly.

Universal regret is felt at the sudden and untimely death of Senator Walsh of Montana. He was easily the leading personality in the new administration. His ability and integrity were beyond question, and his experience in legislation and administration were expected by all parties to be of great value. As Attorney General in the coming Cabinet—and a decided believer in prohibition—he was being counted on as a tower of strength for enforcing the law until, and if, it should be repealed. He would have given a good account of himself. May his mantle fall on a worthy successor!

VIGILANTES SMASH MARYLAND MOONSHINERS' PLANT OUTLAWS THREATEN MURDER OF CAPTAIN GASTON

Early yesterday (Friday) morning in a raid instigated by Captain Edward Page Gaston, Commander of the New Vigilantes of America, a large moonshiners' plant was dynamiated at Ripley, Charles County in Southern Maryland, under authority of Colonel Thomas Bailey of Waldorf, Chief Prohibition agent in that section, assisted by sub-Federal agents Messrs. Keer, Mitchell, May and Hall.

''This is the beginning of a series of illicit still-smashing raids which the New Vigilantes are arranging in various sections of the country,'' said Captain Gaston afterward; ''and it was a special satisfaction for me to begin these operations in one of America's worst moonshining centers, which is less than thirty miles from Washington. My life has been threatened repeatedly by the moonshiners of that notoriously bad district if I ever appeared there.

Clever Work by Federal Officers

''A recent letter, for instance, addressed to me and the Vigilantes said: 'I hail from Southern Maryland. I am also a moonshiner. All of us Southern Marylanders are of pioneer stock and we won't take insults or orders from no Yankee like you Gaston as we are true Southerners. Any attempt to ruin our private possessions will be met with bullets and we can shoot, too. So let this be a warning to the modern Vigilantes.'

''The plant destroyed was in an extensive woods about seven miles from La Plata and Colonel Bailey's party not only dynamited the copper still but a thousand gallons of rye whiskey mash which was still warm from the night operations conducted by notorious negroes in the neighborhood. Much credit is due to these Federal officials for their smart work in locating and destroying this important still, which was the second one our party tried to dynamite last night from confidential information received.

A National Anti-Moonshiners' Campaign

''Unfortunately we are not able to capture the moonshiners actually at work, as the very rough country over which we had to travel in secret had delayed our night party in carrying out our time schedule. The principal accused distiller has been summoned to appear before the District Commissioner at Marlboro on Saturday morning as he and his family connections have a bad record in this line.

''This still-smashing raid is an illustration of what can be done in many parts of the country most usefully by citizens co-operating with the Federal authorities, many of whom have expressed great satisfaction that there is at last a real fighting body in our New Vigilantes which can render this unpaid patriotic service to the overworked Government officials. We are receiving requests from many parts of the country for our services in breaking up not alone liquor outlawry but all kinds of illegalities and we are developing the National scope of our operations as rapidly as possible,'' concluded the Vigilantes Commander at their National headquarters, 1416 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Arrests continue to be made of prominent bootleggers, he announced, from the efforts of the Vigilantes to dry up Washington.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

Area meetings have been held at the following places since last report: Calvary church, Greensboro, a large attendance of ministers and a good discussion. Dr. Lindley assisted me here.

March 7th, Liberty, Dr. Johnson and Dr. Bates conducted this meeting in my absence; a good attendance for the day was reported.

March 8th, High Point, I was assisted here by Dr. Lindley and there were present thirty-five persons.

March 9th, I was here assisted by Dr. Lindley also, attendance twenty-five with six ministers of the Area.

March 10th, I was assisted here by Dr. Pritchard, there were five pastors present.

March 12th, 11 a. m., I preached at Friendship church, Rev. O. B. Williams, pastor. I found the official members concerned over some plan to raise the budgets of the church. We suggested some and hope that they shall find a workable plan which will bring results. I was present only at the closing of the Sunday School of which Brother J. H. Snotherly is superintendent; the review of the lessons seems to be conducted by different people. A splendid review of the lesson was brought by a young high school girl of the church. She did it splendidly showing poise and an understanding of the lesson. Pastor Williams reports attendance about as usual but finances a little behind what was paid last year.

Porter Church, Rev. J. R. Anderson, pastor, I visited this church in the afternoon. There was a very good congregation present for Porter and the people gave good attention. This church has but a small membership and has never been able to do very much for the general activities of the church.

Sunday night I was at Albemarle Church, Rev. J. R. Anderson, pastor. There was a good attendance at the worship service and they gave good attention to the message. Our people here are feeling most keenly the debt upon their church building because so many of their people are employed only part time; but they are meeting the issue with courage and we are hoping that they will early find the burden easier.

We were glad to visit these three churches. Here we have some of our very best people. Friendship church entertained the Annual Conference many years ago and has in its membership some very fine people. This is one church which so far as I know has no church debt. The three churches situated as they are make a little community of Methodist Protestants and should get much pleasure by commingling in special day programs.

As I am on the road still engaged in Area meetings we are making but brief reports of the meetings held at this time.

Plan of Appointments

March 17—Area Meeting at Weaverville.

March 18—A. M., Pensacola; afternoon, Pleasant Gap.

March 19—A. M., Mt. Zion; afternoon, Clark's Chapel; night, Asheville.

March 26—Connelly Springs charge: 11 A. M., Shiloh; afternoon, Burke's Chapel; at night, Shady Grove.

All Area Meetings are scheduled for 10:30 A. M. and to have afternoon session.

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." R. M. ANDREWS.

LOOKING TOWARD PROSPERITY

Prosperity may be expected to return, and when it does it will come, partly, in response to desire.

The sort of prosperity desired will have some influence in hastening or delaying its coming.

An important conviction is slowly emerging from this present welter of dissatisfaction and distress. It is this: All people are one people.

We are one people in this country—rich and poor, educated and illiterate, strong and weak.

We are one people throughout the world—Europeans (including Russians), Asiatics, they of Africa, the whole of the two Americas, and the isles of the seas.

1. So the sort of prosperity which we Americans should set our hearts on must be one to include all our people in this broad land. Hatred of the rich must be given up. Despising the poor is unpatriotic. Opportunity for service and advancement must be opened to all sorts and conditions of men.

2. The sort of prosperity we desire must be one that includes all the peoples of all the nations of the earth. It must include France and Germany, Russia and Japan, and all the other peoples who have offended us. We must expect to rise together, or we shall go down en masse.

So at home our people need to use common sense by cooperating in every way—the rich and the poor and all others working together for each other's good—adjusting debts, developing confidence, starting work, sharing opportunities.

So in the larger international relationships we must get together in debts. Europe lost the Great War—though some nations thought they won it. Americans thought they were profiting by public and private loans to Europe. We are now accustoming ourselves to our losses.

There needs to be international trade—trade that is profitable to all concerned—if all are to prosper. The slogans: "Buy British," "Buy French," "Buy American" must go the way of the K. K. K. and the 100 per cent Americans—unless we want, eventually, to reduce ourselves to "Me and my wife, my son John and his wife; Us four and no more."

LUTHER K. LONG.

A TRUE STORY

Just a few days ago I went down the street to deliver some milk. I had been gone about two hours and when I got back in hearing distance of my house I heard a terrible noise, sounded like a baby crying. I knew I had my baby girl with me. I looked towards home and I saw the trouble. My little boy had tied his billy-goat in the stable and he had broken loose and had got wrapped around a peach tree where I had two bee hives, and in trying to get loose he had turned both over and I have never heard anything so pitiful in all my life, as that billy was yelling ba ba ba, sounded like he was almost dead, one cry after the other. I have high blood pressure and the doctor told me not to walk fast, but I was bound to break my promise, at least I felt like I had to. I ran a few yards to get to him and oh, what a terrible sight I did see! He was standing right in between both gums and could not move his head and bees were all over him just stinging all they know how and when I got close enough one old bee just made for me. I forgot all about having high blood pressure and the way I went, trying to outrun that one bee. I soon found out I could not do it so I just stopped and said to myself, will I let one bee keep me from saving that poor billy's life; so I went to the house and got some scissors to cut the rope with and my little girl said to me, "Mamma, the bees will sting you just like they are stinging billy." I said, "Maybe not." I had been telling her some Bible stories at night, so I referred her to Daniel. I said to her, "if Christ kept the lions from killing Daniel maybe he would not let these bees sting me." So I had no one to call upon; my nearest neighbor is just as scared of a bee as he can be, so I knew it wasn't any use to call him. One car passed before I could get there. I said to myself, I do hope he will stop and turn the billy loose, but he did not even notice the billy at all, kept going, so I went to God in prayer, and my girl down by my side with me. I got up and went out there believing I was not going to get stung, not a thing over my face. I put on some gloves and I have never had as many bees on me before, all over my face, just all over crawling, not one did I hear like he was mad. I cut the goat loose and set my gums back up and before I got back to the house not a bee was on me; not a single one stung me, not one; and when I got to the house my little girl said, "Mamma, did they sting you?" I think she was expecting to hear me cry like the goat. "No," I said to her, "not one has stung me." She said, in earnest, "I did not pray for you." I said, "Didn't you pray for me?" She said, "I prayed a little bit but not much."

And oh, doesn't this true story represent the Christians today? So many are praying just like my little girl, "praying a little bit but not much."

It seems to me some times that people don't realize it is a living Christ. They go to everybody else with their trials and troubles, instead of taking our burdens to the Lord and leave them there. Oh, I just wish we would pray that our eyes would be opened to the condition of the world at present and if people could see as I see they would not stop with a little praying, but they would be on their knees more than once, sending up their petition to the One that has all power and has promised to give us what we ask for. Of course every prayer that goes up is not answered, for me don't know what we need, but Christ does and when we pray we ought to say, if it be Thy will, not mine.

We today resemble that ship that started across the waters and when she got out in mid-ocean the head one said to his people, I believe we are going down, we are too heavy-laden. What must we do? We have got to do something quick so they commence throwing off till they could go on safe. And if we so-called Christians would just unload ourselves of some of these worldly things we could do something for Christ and if we don't some of these days we are going down like that old ship that was too heavy-laden.

Mrs. L. R. Pearson.

A TESTIMONY

A few days before she graduated from high school, my daughter, Mary Margaret, was called into the office of the principal and told that the high school faculty had voted to give her the scholarship awarded by Greensboro College to a member of the senior class of the Greensboro high school. She was somewhat taken aback, and answered a bit abruptly, "I don't want it," without any explanation as to why. When she came home and told me about it, I told her to explain the reason why she had refused it. First, because she had been left an amount of money sufficient to see her through college, and the scholarship was therefore not needed, and could be given to some one who really did need it. And, in the second place, that she had already made up her mind to attend High Point College, which she will enter this fall.

The point that I am making in this statement is not of course to call your attention to the fact that my daughter was awarded a scholarship, which she refused; but to emphasize the fact that while she will have at her disposal the money, to pay her way through most any college she might care to go, she has chosen High Point College, and that without any pressure being brought by her parents.

I have a feeling that such an attitude on the part of Methodist Protestant children in the North Carolina Conference, would go a long way toward solving the problems of High Point College. It is, after all, largely a problem of getting a larger number of boarding students; and they must come from our own people. C. W. Bates.

HOW THEY CONQUERED

William Bramwell, who to this day stands out as one of the most eminent of Methodist evangelists, spent six hours a day in secret prayer. Few could imitate him now, but how very few even approach him! It is said of David Stoner, that if all the time could be calculated which he spent in prayer, it would amount to no inconsiderable portion of his life. Of "Uncle John Vassar," the Tract Society colporter, successful almost beyond comparison in his dealings with men, his pastor says: "He absolutely prayed day and night—prayed about everything, prayed for almost everybody he met. He prayed before every religious service, and then prayed all the way through it. I have occupied the same room with him night after night, and rarely went to sleep without hearing him at prayer."—Publisher Unknown.

MT. HERMON RECOGNIZED

This is the first charge to send in a list of Loyalty League members. A batch of 24 names was received last Saturday from the pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, all of whom are officials. He says the movement will be well supported on his charge, and indicates that another large batch of names will be sent in soon. This response on the part of Brother Mabry and his people is greatly appreciated.

Since our last report we have been in area meetings at Liberty, High Point, Thomasville, and Lexington. In these meetings we met with splendid responses, and heartening assurances of co-operation. Today we go to Concord to be in Dr. Andrew's area meeting, and on next Thursday we expect to be in the meeting at Fallston. As rapidly as possible the conference will be covered and our people acquainted with the plan and the necessity of this movement. An information leaflet is also being printed and will be ready soon for distribution. Our belief is that our people will make a heartening and worthwhile response to this effort when it is gotten before them and they see the reasonableness of the plan and the necessity for it. Organizations have already been set up on a number of charges, and we expect reports from other pastors in a few days. If any charges feel the need of outside help, and will notify us, we shall be glad to undertake to supply workers for them. It is gratifying to report that the services of Mr. H. A. Garrett have been secured, and that he will devote a month or more to this undertaking. The services of a number of pastors are also available. But let us say again that it is the "steady pull" and not the "whirlwind movement" that we are depending on. Just a little patience, and a lot of steady pulling, and much prayer, and the thing will be done.

THE IMP OF DISCOURAGEMENT

This splendid little story, which is quoted from an old clipping of unknown origin, points its moral so plainly that there is nothing we need to say to simplify the lesson it teaches:

In the Street of Life, walking in the darkness of the shadows, hungry old Satan was out hunting with his dogs, the little imps of human weakness. A man came walking down the street. Satan said to the little imp, scowling with a bitter face: "Go, get him for me!"

Quickly the little imp crossed the street, silently and lightly hoped to the man's shoulder. In his ear he whispered, "You are discouraged."

"No," said the man, "I am not discouraged."

"You are discouraged!"

This time the man replied, "I do not think I am."

Louder and more decidedly the little imp repeated, "I tell you, you are discouraged."

The man dropped his head and murmured: "Well, I suppose I am."

The imp, darting back to Satan, said proudly: "I've got him; he is discouraged."

Another man passed. Again old Satan said: "Get him for me!"

The proud little demon of discouragement repeated the tactics. The first time he said: "You are discouraged," the man replied emphatically, "No!" The second time the man replied, "I tell you I am not discouraged!" The third time he said, "You lie! I am not discouraged." And he walked down the street, his head erect, going toward the light.

The imp of discouragement returned to his master, crestfallen. "I couldn't get him," he retorted. "Three times I told him he was discouraged. The third time he called me a liar, and that discouraged me."—Publisher Unknown.

DOES GOD FORGET?

When my days are dark and dreary,
  When I think of all my wrong;
Then my soul is sad and weary
  I can scarcely sing a song;
God knows my sins were mountain high
  I worry o'er them yet;
And then this tho't comes with a sigh;
  Does God forget?

When I open up the blessed Book
  There comes a welcomed rest;
My sins! removed so far, oh, look!
  As the East is from the West.
How glad I am God knows my heart;
  My courage now is set,
What cheering news! just read this part;
  God does forget.

Sometimes my spirit is so weak,
  There's not much I can do.
Then in God's Holy Word I seek—
  I know the Book is true.
My work's so feeble, oft I fear;
  My eyes with tears grow wet;
But God's Word says, "Be of good cheer."
  God don't forget. —Ira P. Dean.

"NOT ANSWERING AGAIN"

Titus 2:9

Never allow yourselves to answer again, when you are blamed. Never defend yourself. Let them reprehend you, in private or in public, as much as they please. Let the righteous smite you; it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove you, it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break your head. Never so much as explain your meaning, under any invitation or demand whatsoever. "It is a mark of the deepest and truest humility," says a great saint, "to see ourselves condemned without cause, and to be silent under it. To be silent under insult and wrong is a very noble imitation of our Lord. O my Lord, when I remember in how many ways Thou didst suffer, who in no way deserved it, I know not where my senses are when I am in such a haste to defend and excuse myself. Is it possible I should desire any one to speak any good of me, or to think it, when so many ill things were thought and spoken of Thee! What is this, Lord; what do we imagine to get by pleasing worms? What about being blamed by all men, if only we stand at last blameless before Thee!"—Alexander Whyte.

SELF-DENIAL

Robbie went to a missionary meeting and heard, for the first time, about the poor heathen who bow down to images of wood and stone, and who do not know God. The children were asked to bring in money to help missionaries to go out and teach them about God.

Next day Robbie coaxed his mother to give him a nickel.

"Now," said he, when the money was in his hand, "I'll buy me a stick of candy. I've wanted some so long."

"Is that the best use you can make of your money?" asked his mother.

"Why, yes," said he, "I want it."

So off he ran to the candy store across the street. His mother watched him from the window and saw him running quite fast. Then he stopped and then ran on again. Then he stopped quite short again, and she thought he must have lost his nickel. But soon he ran on again, never stopping until he reached the door of the candy store. There he stood quite still for a few minutes, with his hand in his pocket holding his money, and his eyes on the candy in the window.

Was he choosing what kind he would buy? No; she was very much surprised to see him turn around from the store and run home as quickly as his little feet could carry him.

Soon he rushed into the room, shouting, "Mother, the heathen have beat! The heathen have beat!"

"What do you mean, Robbie?"

"Why, mother, as I went along I kept hearing the heathen say, 'Give us your nickel to help send us good missionaries. We want Bibles. Help us'." That is what the nickel went for.—Publisher Unknown.

BESSIE'S DELIGHT

One day Uncle Dick was giving little Ruth Allen and Junior, her baby brother, rides on a sled, and pulling them up and down a hill near their home. How they did scream with delight every time they thought they were going to fall in the snow! "Oh, aren't we having lots of fun!" said Ruth every few minutes.

When they had been riding for some time she happened to see Bessie Burns standing near, watching the other children playing. Now Bessie, Ruth knew, never had good times like other little girls and boys, for she was lame. Ruth felt sorry for her. Suddenly she said to Uncle Dick, "Will you stop a minute? I want to ask you something. Will you give Bessie Burns some rides? Junior and I can stand and watch you."

"Surely I will," replied Uncle Dick. "I think you are very kind to want her to share your pleasure."

He then pulled the sled over to where Bessie stood, and said, "Ruth wants you to have some rides instead of Junior and herself, Bessie, and you can trust me not to let you fall."

"Oh, thank you!" said Bessie. "I would love to go for a ride if Ruth wants me to." She was a very happy girl when she started off with Uncle Dick. He gave her many rides that afternoon.

How she did laugh and scream! She never seemed to grow tired, and before long her cheeks were red and her eyes were shining with joy. She was having such a good time. "At last I am having fun like the other children," she told Uncle Dick.

"I think it is time for Ruth and Junior to have some more rides before it grows too cold," said Bessie. "I thank you very much for your kindness to me."

Uncle Dick replied, "You are very welcome, Bessie, and I am glad that you have enjoyed yourself."

Then when they pulled up where Ruth and her brother were standing, Bessie said, "Thank you very much. I shall tell mother how good you were to me."

Uncle Dick then gave them a few more rides because they had been kind to the little lame girl. On the way home he told Ruth that he was very happy because she had been so unselfish and had tried to give Bessie a good time. Her usefulness made Ruth very happy too.

Don't you think that Ruth was enjoying herself too? Of course she was, for when people are trying to make others happy they are certain to find happiness too.—Our Little Ones.

PUMPS AND PEOPLE

Joe burst into the kitchen and dropped his pail. "Well's dry," he announced. 'I've pumped and pumped, and no water comes."

Uncle Len, waiting for Agnes to get breakfast, rose and laughed genially. "Not quite a country boy yet, are you, Joe? There is plenty of water in the well, but the pump is dry. When that happens you have to pour water down to get water up. I will show you." He took a dipperful from the pail by the sink and went out with Joe.

Presently Joe returned with a brimming pail of fresh water. "What else have I to do?" he asked Agnes shortly.

"There is the wood-box," she answered in the same short tone.

"Sure, there is the wood-box," muttered Joe, "and after that the porch to sweep, and after that something else. It's nothing but jobs all day long." He stamped out to the shed.

"I should think Joe might see," said Agnes to herself, "that this new life is harder for me than for him. I work without stopping for him and Uncle Len day in and day out, but Joe never says a word of thanks or affection. I don't believe he loves me at all."

She filled the pitcher from the fresh pail, and just then she remembered Uncle Len's words: "There is plenty of water in the well, but the pump is dry. You have to pour water down to get water up!"

With the pitcher in her hands Agnes stood gazing across the fields to the hills beyond. Was that the trouble, a dry pump? Perhaps the well was full of brotherly affections, and all it needed was a little sisterly love poured down to bring up a brimming pail.

Joe came back with his arms piled with wood, which he dropped into the wood-box.

Agnes put down her pitcher, curved her mouth into a genuine smile at the thought of her experiment, and crossed to her brother. She put her arm around his neck and kissed him. "Joe," she said, "you are such a comfort. I don't know what I would do without you!"

Joe wriggled free, but the flush on his cheeks was not all embarrassment at the unusual cares. "That's nothing," he said, "you do lots more than I do, Agnes. You are all too good."

"I love you lots," Agnes said with a soft laugh.

"Give me a dish, and I'll pick you some strawberries for breakfast," Joe offered, and went off whistling.

Uncle Len, who had heard it all, nodded his wise head. He knew a good deal, both about pumps and about people.—Publisher Unknown.

TRUE GREATNESS

True greatness doth not always lie
In outward works; nor doth the eye
Of man behold within the soul
The spirit calm, that peaceful flow
Of joy that only true born know
  Who trust in God.

The truly great are men who stand
For truth, tho' wronged on every hand:
The world and wrong now rule the throne
While God and Truth must dwell alone.
Yet, within this veil He claims His own—
  Who trust in God.

Some may refuse to suffer wrong;
Yet Christ, so patient, suffered long;
Endured the Cross, and by it bore
A joy that sets His gaze before:
With greater hope for each poor soul—
  Who trusts in God.

THE DIFFERENCE IN RELIGION

"As for me, I think one religion is about as good as another. It's mostly a matter of climate and race and tradition."

"That's so," said the other man. "Christianity is sentimentally attractive. But what has it ever really done? It has broken down under the war. It's no better than any other religion."

The world is small, and travelers in America may expect the unusual. The two men were on a transcontinental train. A man seated across the aisle who had the air of a foreigner suddenly leaned forward and said very politely:

"Pardon. But your remarks, which I could not help hearing, deeply interest me. May I say why?"

"Surely. Go ahead," the first speaker replied, looking curiously at the foreigner.

"Thank you, sir. I am an Armenian. I was born in Bitlis. Bitlis has about forty thousand people. Have you a town of that size you can think of in America?"

"Just the size of my own town," said the second man.

"Take your own town, then, and call it Bitlis; and say of your town these things: no hospital, no doctor, no dentist, no church except the mission and the Armenian, no press, no telephone, no sanitation, no water system, no library, no transportation, no nurse, no public school. And that is your town, here in America. That is, you understand my town of Bitlis in Turkey.

"The one bright spot of my town is the Christian mission, which supports a dispensary and a school and the hope of life. During the recent uprising against the Armenians, in which over three hundred thousand of them were massacred, the missionaries in Bitlis, aided by those in Van, at the risk of their lives saved me from torture and death. All my relatives were murdered and our property was utterly destroyed. My wife and children were tortured and burned alive in my house.

"Do you wonder that I cannot agree with you that one religion is as good as another? Gentlemen, it is Christianity that has stretched out its healing hand to the tortured people of Europe, and after the war it will be the spirit of the Master that will build up life on the ghastly ruins. I am a witness of it."

The men who had flippantly dismissed Christianity in two sentences spent the next hour learning some wholesome truths about Christian missions and the heroes of the Cross. The Armenian was helping the Bitlis missionaries raise money for a hospital in his city. The two travelers pulled out their pocketbooks to make a contribution.

"Send it to the headquarters in Boston," said the defender of Christianity. And they did, to the agreeable surprise of the treasurer.—Youth's Companion.

THE DELIVERER

It is said that during the direful scourge of yellow fever in New Orleans the people anxiously prayed and waited for the frost which, it was said, would kill the germ and stop the dreadful disease. One morning during the great scourge the people awoke to find a hoar-frost all over the city. It is said grateful fathers, mothers, husbands, and wives hurried out of their homes, and whenever they found the hoar-frost on plank or fence they pressed their lips to it and kissed it, while tears of gratitude rolled down their joyous faces: grateful for the agent that had come to destroy the germs of death. Do you not see in it a picture of Calvary? When death was abroad in the land, there was no hope, except in the Blood of Christ, and as His Blood came forth on Calvary to destroy the germs of sin and death, how our grateful hearts ought to sing:

E'er since by faith I saw the stream
  Thy flowing wounds supply,
Redeeming love has been my theme,
  And shall be till I die.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By W. M. HOWARD

Topic for March 26, 1933

IS IT PRACTICAL TO LIVE WITHOUT WORRY?

Scripture Text—Matthew 6:24-34.

An aching tooth can never be pleasant company but it has the value of warning that something is wrong. Worries are not pleasant but they are a warning also. Worry then is merely a danger signal that requires immediate attention. A young fellow said some time ago that he had seen his mother worry over such trivial things that he had attempted to do away with worry in his life. He had been so successful that he said he would not worry if he went home and found that their home had burned. This seems quite foolish at first thought but it is rather practical. After all what problems does worry solve? The pain in the tooth will never stop the decay for it is only an indicator, and so is worry. The basic cause must be eliminated in each case.

Fear is one of the paramount causes of worry. The recent financial crisis through which we have been passing has afforded us numerous examples of worry and what it will do to people. Many immature lives have gone to a suicidal grave because of worry and many people have lost their minds. Worry is caused by lack of faith. There is as much money today as there was in 1927 but the trouble is that faith has been lost and credit withdrawn. Worry is a growing evil; it is a poison which will finally affect the entire system.

Man is prone to worry excessively about his livelihood. The scripture lesson which we have taken from the words of Jesus is warning his hearers and followers of future generations against worry. The animals which are a part of the creation of God are fed and clothed and take no care or worry for these things. Jesus is not encouraging laziness or idleness, for He believed in work. We are seeing today the result of idleness and indolence in our social order. Jesus teaches, however, that there is no necessity to lose faith in the world and in the power of God to supply the material needs of life. Freedom from worry demands a strong faith. There are few people, even in this day of want and poverty, who are in want who are really righteous and have faith. The man without faith always supposes that this crops will fail or that something great is impending, this is needless: the man who achieves has a strong faith.

Many people have worried about the world. True enough, somebody needs to be seriously concerned about it, but our worrying will not help. Why worry about the end of the world? If it does come in our generation, God will bring something beautiful out of it. I heard a person recently who was worrying over the suitableness of heaven and wondering if it would be much superior to earth. That is foolishness, heaven will not disappoint a single citizen of it. Trust God that the world and heaven will be as bright as we have expected.

Many people have worried over the problems which loomed up in the future only to find that they had disappeared when they arrived at the difficulties. The pilgrims in "Pilgrims' Progress" saw a lion in the distance. The evil persons became frightened and turned back but the Christians went on to find that the lion was chained and could do no harm. It is easy for the evil to imagine vain things, for they do not have faith. We are in need of a cure for our worries today. There is but one way to solve them and that is by faith. Faith comes only to the righteous, so those who have set their affection on God can expect to be freed from worry. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee." Every problem which we have mentioned is solved with Jesus. Worry saps the vitality of any mind, soul, or body, and is worthless. Why worry when Jesus can cure your worry and give you a life of peace.

Quotable Poetry

If you are tired of the load of your sin,
  Let Jesus come into your heart.
If you desire a new life to begin,
  Let Jesus come into your heart.
    Just now your doubtings give o'er,
    Just now reject Him no more,
    Just now throw open the door,
  Let Jesus come into your heart.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE! AUXILIARY PRESIDENTS AND SECRETARIES OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

You have noticed in this issue of the Herald a call to glean for High Point College. May we count on you. Auxiliary Presidents and Christian Education Secretaries, to organize your women for their gleaning for the college. May we count on you to immediately set some project in motion which will mean either a special offering or special receipts for the college, the offering to be made at the Branch meeting. We are counting on you. If you should fail, there will, in all probability, be no gleaning in your field, and our college has need of you.

MRS. H. W. MAIER,
Sec. of Christian Education.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO AUXILIARY TREASURERS

As Branch meeting begins on the 5th of April this year, I cannot credit any money on this year's budgets that reaches me after March 31st. I must close my books, have them audited, and make up my report for the year, and you see I will have a very short time in which to do it after March 31st.

I have not sent out statements to the Auxiliaries this year because it takes so much postage and so much time, so please get out your receipts and count up for yourselves.

All the checks that were deposited the day before the bank holiday was declared are being returned to me so I don't know where any of us stand. Please send P. O. Money Orders from now on.

Chestnut Ridge, Hope, Julian, Maple Springs Enfield, Mt. Hermon, Shiloh, Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary, Thomasville, Community, and West End are the only Auxiliaries that have paid all three budgets in full so far, so I hope to receive lots of mail during the remainder of the month.

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treas.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF BRANCH MEETING

At Winston-Salem, April 5 and 6

The North Carolina Branch meeting of the Woman's Work will meet in Winston-Salem on April 5 at 9:30 a. m. The meeting will continue for two days 5 and 6. The evening session on April 5, will be in charge of Christian Education Secretary. Dr. Humphreys will give a brief message. Music will be furnished by the High Point College students.

Dr. S. D. Gordon, a speaker of national reputation, will have charge of the devotional during the meeting.

The Executive board will have a session at a luncheon meeting April 5, noon.

MRS. W. C. HAMMER, Pres.,

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Welch Memorial.—The services have been of about he usual order unil Sunday. The Woman's Auxiliary had their thank-offering program. Miss Margaret Perryman gave hs a splendid address on her trip to the Holy Land. It was very interesting and instructive. Miss Perryman is a good woman and an interesting speaker, and we are glad indeed to have heard her.

Quite a few of our members remain sick. Mr. J. I. Nance, one of our older members, has pneumonia and is in a critical condition. Mr. L. F. Cassells child, who has been so seriously ill, is still very sick. Mrs. W. W. McLean has been sick over a year and her condition grows more grave. Her daughters, Misses Kathleen and Emma (two of our best young workers), have not been able to attend church regularly recently owing to her condition. We miss all these good people and hope they can soon be with us again.

Our attendance is good and new faces appear often. All seem to enjoy the messages Dr. Williams brings. Each one seems better than the last and fits right in with the need of the times.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Last third Sunday, being the time set for a Thank-Offering service, the Missionary Society of this church planned to give a pageant but due to the absence of some of the members they were unable to give it. Instead, our pastor Rev. L. E. Mabry brought to us a wonderful message.

Our Sunday School attendance is still low. We are hoping spring will bring us a better attendance.

Rev. K. G. Holt brought to us an inspiring sermon Sunday. Scripture Text was taken from St. John the 14th. chapter. His main subject was "Jesus Meeting Our Needs." The service was enjoyed by all.

The second quarterly conference will meet at Bellmont March 18th, at 2 o'clock.

This church is planning to help support the Loyalty League of High Point.

Reporter.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—We are still moving on with God's help. We are so glad to have Rev. Mr. W. R. Henderson and family with us this year. They are doing great work on Mecklenburg charge. He is bringing great messages to us twice a month.

Sunday Mr. Henderson gave us a most interesting and inspiring sermon found in Number 21, 1-9. Those that heard him were greatly inspired.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Love, Mrs. Henderson's mother and father and friends from Concord worship with us Sunday.

Sunday School is growing. Average climbing every Sunday. We are pulling for a higher average in the next three months. Having prayer services twice a month at 11 o'clock. The Sunday school is also beginning an Easter program.

Ladies' Aid society is meeting every month. Last month met with Mrs. J. E. Hartis. This society with the aid of the church is planning with God's help to finih paying the debt on the church this year. At an early date we are giving a play. After devotional and business session. Refreshments were served. Next month April society will meet with Mrs. Henderson.

Second quarterly conference will convene at Beulah Saturday night, March 18th.

The parsonage is a new home to us all. The porches have been remodeled. The inside has been painted and wallpapered. Also a double garage has been built. We are not only proud of our parsonage but also our church. The church has been receeiled overhead, also interior painted. Planning on painting the woodwork on the outside right away also beautified the lawn. We will give Mr. Henderson the honor of putting this work on foot.

Pray for us that we may be made stronger in the Master's works.

MRS. J. E. HESTER.

First Church, High Point.—The Lenten season is being appropriately observed by the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, who is delivering a series of impressive sermons on "Pictures of Jesus From the Wilderness to the Garden," the subject of the second being "Stoned for Good Works," which he presented Sunday morning. His text is found in John 10:32-33: "Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me? The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God." He recalled the modes of punishment in the days of martyrdom: hanging, the cross, burning, torture on the rack, plucking out the eyes, cutting off the hands and feet, stoning to death. Jesus was asked to leave town, and, as today, He would not stay where He is not wanted. He was expelled from town because His teachings interfered with their ill-gotten gains. In this Lenten season we must examine ourselves and acknowledge our sinfulness. I am humiliated when I think of the race prejudice in America; we treat other races as the black and yellow or any that happens not to be white with as much contempt as the Jews who had no dealings with the Samaritans. We in America have bidden Jesus to depart. Lent ought to mean the time of cleansing our lives with broken hearts and contrite spirits. You must love your neighbor as yourself; be like Jesus and go about doing good.

Rev. Mr. Farmer has been invited to hold a meeting of ten days' duration in Calvary Morafian church, Winston-Salem, Dr. Edmund Schwarze, pastor, beginning next Sunday. Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College, will occupy the pulpit on March 19, and the following Sunday, March 26.

A Leadership Training School will be held in First church next week with the first session on Monday, March 20. Classes will be conducted at 10 a. m. and 7 p. m. A course in "Christian Living" will be taught Dr. S. W. Taylor and one in "Stewardship" by Rev. Nat M. Harrison. Miss Mary Young will present "A Study of the Pupil;" Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, "Principles of Teaching;" Mrs. H. W. Maier, of Lexington, "Worship and Training the Devotional Life;" and Mrs. Curtis Koontz, of Lexington, "Primary Methods." Sessions will be held three evenings one week and two the next, and four standard units are being offered.

A meeting was held in First church last Saturday to formulate plans for the State C. E. Convention which will convene in annual session at High Point College June 15, and contitue for four days. Arnold J. Koonce, past state president, was elected Convention chairman.

In the Tri-State debate tournament held last week at Salisbury, N. C., State College won first honors, Lenoir-Rhyne and High Point tied for second place. Teams participating were from ten colleges in both Carolinas, Virginia, and one visiting team from Pennsylvania. The subject for debate was "Cancellation of Inter-allied War Debts." Dr. Albert Keister, of Lenoir-Rhyne College, directed the debates.

The Woman' sAuxiliary held its March meeting, the last of the year, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. T. Pickens, 704 West Broad street. Associate hostesses were the following: Mesdames C. L. and J. A. Gray, W. P. Bodenheimer, and J. R. Montgomery. The president, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, was in the chair. Mrs. R. M. Andrews led an impressive devotional service, and read a splendid paper on "The Portrait of Jesus," touching on the four phases of the subject we have been studying in the devotional program for the past months, "The Head of Jesus, The Heart of Jesus, The Feet of Jesus, and The Joy of Jesus." Mrs. Minnie P. Harrell read Dr. J. C. Broomfield's inspiring article on "My Church," and Miss Ida Davis read 'What Is the Most Important Thing in Life?" by Dr. Haddaway. Delegates to the Branch Meeting to be held in Winston-Salem in April were elected as follows: Mrs. J. C. Whitesell and Mrs. J. H. Allred by virtue of their offices as president and secretary, Mrs. H. A. Moffitt and Mrs. L. R. Peacock, alternates, Mrs. R. H. Davis, Mrs. H. U. Oakes, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, and Mrs. R. T. Pickens. New officers to serve the coming year were installed: President, Mrs. J. C. Whitesell; vice-president, Mrs. P. S. Kennett; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Allred, and treasurer, Mrs. Wade Marlette. The list of membership of the new circles, eight in number and a Home Circle, was read. These groups will meet later and elect chairmen and other officers. The treasurer, Mrs. Marlette, reported that the Auxiliary has raised over one thousand dollars to date, with more to be collected in the next few weeks. At the conclusion of business the donations for needy families were collected, and the hostesses served coffee, small cookies, and salted peanuts to the 45 members in attendance.

Rev. R. I. Farmer went to Winston-Salem last Monday to speak in the Area Council in First church, which was called by President R. M. Andrews. One is being held in Concord today (Tuesday), March 14.

Congratulations are being extended by a host of friends to Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Dowdy on the arrival of a second son on Thursday, March 9, at their home on Woodrow avenue. The little boy will bear the name, David Astor Dowdy, Jr.

We are sorry to note the illness of Mrs. Wray Ward, who is suffering from influenza at her home on Sixth street.

Friends of Mrs. Geo. L. Reynolds, who has been ill for three weeks, are pleased to see her out again.

Relatives here and at Greensboro are much distressed to see in the list of dead in the earthquake disaster at Los Angeles, California, the name of Jack Freeman, and they have grave fears that it is their brother, who with his wife and nine-year-old son left Cleveland, Ohio, for Los Angeles three weeks ago. Messages have been sent there, but no replies have been yet received. Mrs. W. C. Hammond is a sister, and many friends sympathize with her in this blow.

At the monthly meeting of Alexander Martin Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Katherine Raymond on North Main street, an excellent sketch of the Plank Road from Bethania to Fayetteville, which passed through High Point, and was largely used just prior to the War Between the States, and of the early history of High Point, was read by Mrs. C. W. Tilden, of Jamestown, who is a daughter of the late Rev. Alexander Robbins of honored memery. The chapter has lately set out four lovely elm trees on High Point College campus.

Orange Charge.—The Second Quarterly conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, March 25th, 2 p. m. Hope to have a full attetndance. We are asking all who can to bring or send something to this conference for the children of our home at High Point. Anything that a family of over 100 can use will be accepted. Food, clothing, cash. We are quite sure Dr. Dixon will send a car down at this time for the produce.

We are expecting President Andrews to preach at two of the churches the first Sunday in April as follows: Union Grove 11 a. m.; Efland 7:30 p. m. Hope he can visit the other churches later.

The writer conducted funeral services for Mrs. Wm. F. Dodson at Union Grove church, March 3, 1933.

Dr. A. G. Dixon, Brother Smith (pastor of Mebane M. P. church) and the writer conducted the funeral services of Mrs. Lizzie Pardue, March 6, at the home of Albert Sykes in Mebane. Burial in Mebane city cemetery.

May God comfort all the bereaved ones, especially her children, brothers and sisters, and mother, Mrs. Joe Sykes.

Mt. Hermon Charge.—It isn't because we have had nothing to report that we have not appeared in these columns, but we have left this largely in the hands of the several reporters from the four churches on this charge. Mt. Hermon charge is about up to par in almost every respect, so far as I have been able to observe. The bad weather and sickness has tried our faith some, but for the past several weeks a very noticeable increase in the several congregations has been quite evident. The conditions did not get so bad but that we were able to have an audience, though sometimes rather small, at each appointment.

The Sunday schools at all the churches is very much alive. Nor should we fail to mention the activities of the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Christian Endeavor. Both of these organizations are doing good work.

The Loyalty League is going over in a fine way it seems, and when the campaign is finally completed, we think the amount asked for on this charge will be realized in good pledges.

The Second Quarterly Conference will be held at Belmont church, Saturday, March 18, at 2 p. m. Dr. S. W. Taylor is expected to be present and give us further details and encouragement concerning the Loyalty League.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Herman Charge.—We had our regular service Sunday, Sunday school and preaching. We had a very good attendance, being double of that of last Sunday. Also had nine new members in Sunday school.

Mr. Mabry gave us a very good sermon. It was about "Heaven." He will continue this subject the fourth Sunday evening.

We have several on our sick list.

Mr. J. D. Payne has been sick for quite a few weeks, but is slowly improving.

Mr. B. M. Payne underwent an operation at Duke hospital and is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Charlie Payne has been sick for a week with head trouble.

Our crowd is increasing and we feel that our Sunday school is growing rapidly.

Lexington, First.—Our Sunday school continues to grow: on last Sunday we had 324 present and today we had 310 present. We are glad to see our school making such good progress and we hope it will continue to grow.

On last Tuesday the Ladies' Auxiliary of the church fed the local Rotary club and there were a good number of the members present to eat with the ladies.

In the morning service the church was filled and Rev. Isley preached a good sermon, his subject being, Prayer a farce or a force, and asked those believing in the power of prayer to gather at the altar for prayer that God may see fit to restore better times and that the church may go forward. And a large crowd responded.

The evening service was also well attended, the church being filled.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—The church work has been moving along right well. We are having Sunday school every Sunday. We have preaching twice a month in February and March.

We pray that people will get more interested in the church work and this will be a better year than ever before.

Community, Thomasville.—At a most delightful affair held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Perry on Tuesday evening, February 28th, an Intermediate choir was organized, having at the initial meeting some 13 or 14 girls ranging from 14 to 17 years of age. Mrs. C. F. Finch is director of the choir, Pearl Perry, assistant, and Lela Maud Boyles, pianist. This choir will work in connection with the Senior choir, and we are greatly pleased with the talent shown in this group.

On last Thursday an all-day meeting was held at our church, composed of the pastors and other representatives of all Methodist Protestant churches in this district, with Dr. R. M. Andrews officiaing. About 40 or 50 people attended this meeting, which proved quite interesting. These meetings are to be held periodically, and are for the purpose of keeping in touch with each other in an effort to forward the work of our church and stimulate individual interest. Dr. P. E. Lindley gave a very fine talk on "The Program of the Church," taking each item used in the worship services and discussing the merit of it as pertaining to worship. This discussion was entered into fully, and some very good points were brought out which we feel sure will be beneficial in working out services to create the attitude for real worship. Rev. T. G. Madison, of First church, invited us to meet at his church next time, which will probably be some three months hence.

The Ladies' Circles held their regular meetings Monday, Circle No. 1 meeting with Mrs. A. M. White, Circle No. 2 with Mrs. J. W. Saunders, and the Y. L. Circle with Miss Pearl Perry. A good attendance was reported at each meeting. These women of our church are doing some fine work.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 377. We were proud to see several stars on the board. The Intermediate department is sure working in the contest. The Intermediate girls and boys give us some fine messages in song every Sunday. Last Sunday night three of the girls sang for us. Master Fred Walters and Floyd Richardson gave us a beautiful cornet duet. We enjoyed it very much and hope they will play for us again sometime.

Sunday morning we were glad to have Miss Margaret Honeycutt sing a solo for us. We hope she will come again sometime. Miss Honeycutt sang for the Young People's class at Sunday school. Mr. Hal Warlick, of Mt. Pleasant, N. C., taught the Young People's class Sunday.

Our pastor gave us two real good sermons Sunday.

This week is a very busy week for our church. On Tuesday morning and afternoon the area meeting will be held in our church, and Tuesday night the board of stewards will put on their program. We think Dr. Andrews will stay over for this meeting. Their program, we think, will be very interesting and helpful to all of the church members. The first thing on the program will be a talk by Mrs. Esther Litaker. Her subject is: "Is the Church Worth While?" "Is the Church Worthy of My Support?" Mr. Ralph Waddell; "Who Should Support the Church?" Mr. B. F. Waddell; "What Attitude Should a Member Have to the Officials of the Church?" Mr. Tom Rabon; "What Is the Steward's Obligation?" Mr. Carl Lefler; "Why Does a Church Grow Cold?" Mrs. Lillie Ritch; "What Does It Take to Make a Good Church Member?" Mr. Fred Sides; "Should a Sunday School Teacher Attend Church and Encourage the Pupils to Attend?" Mrs. Maggie Sides; "What Makes a Church Grow?" Mr. Ross Little; "What Does the Lord Expect of Us?" Mr. Bill Widenhouse."

Our Missionary Circles will meet Monday night. At the meeting the Circle chairmen will be elected for the next year. We are closing our year of Missionary work. I don't know how we stand on our budget, but hope we will not be so far behind this year.

The chairman of the board of stewards made a report Sunday and the report shows that we are some behind with our budget, but we hope yet to go over the top before the last of the year.

We are glad to report that some of our sick folks are improving, but it seems as though when some get better we find others sick. Our pastor's wife, Mrs. J. M. Morgan, was real sick last week with flu and a touch of pneumonia but she is some better today. We hope for her a speedy recovery. Grandma Thomas was real sick last Friday and Saturday but some better today. As we have two Grandma Thomases in Concord some folks in reading the report did not know which one is sick. One of the Grandmas is Mrs. L. H. Sides' mother; the other, the one that has been sick for sometime, is Mrs. T. F. Newton's mother. Little Adelaide Blackwelder was absent from church Sunday on account of illness.

Piney Grove.—Pastor Short preached a wonderful sermon on Sunday.

I have been sick so much of the time since Christmas I couldn't attend church as I would liked to have, therefore couldn't report.

Glad to say Mrs. J. C. Delk is improving; hope she will be able soon to be back at church with us. We miss her very much; she is our organist and one of our leaders.

Mrs. J. A. Morgan has been very sick but is better.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Horney, of Farmer, worship with us Sunday.

Pray for us that we may be made stronger in the Master's work.

MRS. J. A. GARNER, Reporter.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, Sunday morning delivered a wonderfully inspiring message which was of great interest to both large and small. He used the 15th verse of the 14th chapter of Exodus as his text, his subject being "Go Forward."

Our Sunday school is progressing some, we are glad to say. We have now 89 on roll and 72 present Sunday, March 5.

There is right much sickness in our community at this writing. We hope they will soon be able to attend church again.

Mr. H. B. Bailey, one of our charter members, who had the misfortune of getting his leg broken February 10 at a wood-chopping, is able to be up in a rolling-chair, we are glad to say. We hope he can soon be out again.

LIZZIE BAILEY, Reporter.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. Society continues to hold its regular weekly meetings each Sunday night. The programs have been interesting this quarter and have been well attended considering the weather conditions. We have an enrollment of 86 with an average attendance of nearly the same. We are always glad to see visitors present; they are always welcome at Shiloh.

Last night, March 12, following the regular program, the finance committees, each having a group of names, called their groups together at different places in the church auditorium for the purpose of raising the C. E. budget for this year. The pledges amounted to something over $100.00. This committee which looks out after the finances, is composed of Mr. Ray Leatherman, chairman, Mr. Ventry Koonts, Miss Louise Swicegood, Miss Mabel Berrier, Mr. Kyle Sink and Mr. Japhie Leonard. There is a prize offered for the group which collects the most by the end of this Conference year.

The program last night was led by Miss Lessie Lanning, the topic being "The Kind of God Jesus Revealed." This proved to be a very interesting discussion.

Next Sunday night, March 19, our topic is "What Was Jesus' Estimate of Human Life? Can We Live By It?" and will be led by Miss Katie Edna Leatherman. Come.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—It is encouraging to note the interest manifested in our church work at present and, also, the large congregations that hear Dr. Taylor's splendid sermons.

Last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the children enjoyed that four-minute sermon that had been promised them by Pastor Taylor. The grown-ups enjoyed it, too. Taking a lead pencil, he showed it to them, explaining its purpose—to make a mark. "Children are like a pencil in many respects," he said. They should make a good mark. They must be sharpened before they are useful. The home, the school, and the church serve as sharpeners to prepare boys and girls for a useful life. And then there's that beautiful consoling thought that the eraser is there to blot out errors which are sure to come in every life. Jesus, our best Friend, over all, blots out our mistakes." Dr. Taylor has endeared himself to the children. That is fine. It makes our hearts glad.

"Jesus, the Solution of Our Problems," was the subject of his discourse at the same hour. Scriptural text was John 6:5-6. There is no problem, individual, industrial, or national—of home, or of church, for which there is not a solution, in Jesus Christ.

Pastor Taylor has appointed Mr. J. W. Montgomery and Mrs. Lena H. Thacker to serve as a committee in our church to work up interest and encourage attendance in the Leadership Training School which is to be held in First church, this city, March 20, 23, 27, 28, and 31. It is hoped that many of our people will be interested sufficiently to attend the first of these sessions. Getting started is half the work. Once started, it will be an easy matter to continue.

The first Sunday in April is designated as Organization Day at Lebanon. At this time the dierent organizations of the church will have some special part in the services. Plans are being made for this special day's program. It is hoped that this will prove very beneficial to our people.

We were pleased to have several visitors worship with us Sunday.

On Sunday, March 5, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Pritchard were received into membership here. They came by letter from Winston. We are pleased to receive them. On this date, also, Holy Communion was observed. About 125 partook of the Lord's Supper. Our pastor made a beautiful talk on the "Institution of the Lord's Supper." In part, he said: It is an ordinance that should magnify Jesus. The death of Jesus was just as real as His life. His was not an ordinary life, nor was it an ordinary death. The death of Jesus was God's appraisal of human life. Christ died on the cross that sin in us and through us might die. In the participation of this ordinance we should be lifted above the ordinary life. It should be a means of grace to us.

All circle meetings have been held with favorable reports. The general meeting of the circles was held yesterday in the church. They have re-organized, making three circles in place of two adult circles. A chairman was appointed for each; call meetings will follow and later the names of officers announced. A fourth circle will be organized soon to give opportunity to those who prefer to attend a night meeting. Probably a Home Circle will be organized for those who cannot attend the regular circle meetings.

All business was transacted in harmony and love, and while the finances are not quite up to normal we hope to come up with at least an average report at the close of the year.

Kannapolis.—This is my first pastoral work and my first report of same to the Methodist Protestant Herald. I am very grateful to these good people of Kannapolis for calling me to this work, and to the North Carolina Conference for appointing me to the same. In a spirit of meekness and humility and a feeling of unworthiness I commit myself to this task which has already proven a greater blessing to me than I could express in this brief report.

I have already learned to love these people who bear me up with their prayers and love. A fine Christian spirit exists among them; a spirit of co-operation, which enables the church to move in harmony; a spirit of brotherly love, which reacts in helping each other in times of sickness and distress.

This church is especially blessed with good leaders and energetic workers. The Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Mr. M. W. Henderson, superintendent. He has a competent staff of teachers who are doing splendid work. Uncle Bob Sides, licensed exhorter, is teacher of the adult class. He can also be relied upon to fill the pulpit.

The ladies in the church are very energetic, carrying out various projects, getting up special programs, and helping to realize the budget of the church. Last year they raised a considerable sum, and they're making fine progress this year. We couldn't get along without the ladies.

The Thank-Offering service was held the fourth Sunday evening in February with good results. The pageant by the Missionary society was most impressive and well received by a large congregation. Mrs. J. G. Lisk had charge of the program. It would be very hard indeed to find a person more enthusiastic in Foreign Missions than is Mrs. Lisk. In the service she opened up her heart to us, stating that years ago she heard the call to go to the foreign fields, but since she could not go she says she's going to do what she can at home. Who knows but that God will raise up someone to go in her place, perhaps her own daughter.

Kannapolis church is blessed with three fine Christian Endeavor Societies, and they are steadily growing and improving. Leonard Henderson is the capable president of the senior society, and he is well assisted by Miss Beatrice Cartner. Mr. M. E. Marlow and Mr. Joe Dwiggins are the superintendents of the Intermediate and Junior societies, respectively.

This church as a whole is progressing nicely. Four new members have been added to our flock—Mr. and Mrs. B. E. McLaurin and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Barbee. We sincerely trust that these young couples will prove a blessing to this church.

We are very glad to have Mrs. Harris back with us again. The first Sunday in March was the first time that she has been able to attend since before Christmas. She spoke a few words to the congregation, thanking everyone for their prayers, sympathy and help during her illness. Mrs. Harris is a most faithful and untiring worker in the church, and it's our prayer that she can be with us continually now.

We are very grateful to Mr. D. A. McLaurin for making it possible to place 21 "Heralds" in the homes of our membership.

Just now we are in the period of Lent, and we're conducting a series of evangelistic services leading up to Decision Sunday, which is Easter Sunday. We especially need your prayers during this season, that we may have a great ingathering into the church.

We were glad to have a good delegation from our church attend the Area Meeting at Concord M. P. church Tuesday, March 14. The second quarterly conference of Kannapolis church will be held Saturday evening, March 18, at 7:30 o'clock. We hope to have a good number present at this meeting.

Our people are suffering as all people are at the hand of the depression, but they're standing up fine. Some are in a very difficult spot just now, but if they trust God we're sure He will sustain them. The church is a little behind financially, but I feel sure that with a little extra effort we'll come through. This is no time to become discouraged. We must put on the full armor of God and battle to win. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

At the present time I am somewhat handicapped by not being in Kannapolis except over the week-ends. However, as soon as college is out this spring I hope to be on hand full time.

We plead for your prayers for this church and its pastor who is serving his first pastoral work. I am assured of the prayers of a mother, friends, and the good people of Kannapolis church. Thanks be unto God for praying people.

CLARENCE P. MORRIS, Pastor.

Thomasville, First.—The Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting at the parsonage on Thursday evening. Mrs. J. A. Hedrick led the devotional service and Mrs. T. G. Madison was program leader. The nominating committee made report and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. H. Ragan; secretary, Mrs. S. R. Westmoreland; treasurere, Mrs. W. G. Myers; secretary Young People's Work, Mrs. T. A. Loyd. As a surprise to the pastor and Mrs. Madison, the ladies brought packages, consisting of groceries, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Madison were very grateful for this act of kindness.

The Minnis Circle met at the church Monday evening. Twenty-one young people were present. Miss Virginia Brown Jarret was elected delegate to the Branch Meeting which will convene in Winston-Salem in April.

Sunday was observed as "Father and Son" day in Christian Endeavor. Ralph Leonard was leader, and we are grateful to him for the splendid program. In addition to the 55 members present, there were 15 visitors. We were happy to have among the visitors, Rev. H. L. Powell. Bro. Powell is a former pastor of the church, and we always welcome him to our services.

The Ladies' Auxiliary conducted their Thank-Offering service Sunday evening, with fine results. Mrs. S. R. Westmoreland, secretary of thank-offering, prepared the program. We were indeed glad to have Mrs. W. C. Hammer with us for this service. Mrs. Hammer brought us a message on the missionary work that was pleasing and profitable.

Calvary, Greensboro.—The county Christian Endeavor Rally and banquet, with Edgar Allred, president of the City Union, presiding, was held in our church on February 28. During the banquet novel stunts were put on by the different societies represented. The devotional period was conducted by Rev. Mr. Shaffer, of High Point, in the church auditorium. Dean Lindley of High Point College made the address of the evening. Approximately 125 young people attended the banquet with others coming in later for round-table discussion led by Rev. E. L. Ballard, and the address.

On February 24 the Missionary Study Class conducted by Mrs. E. L. Ballard met at the parsonage for an all-day meeting. More than a dozen ladies attended. A covered-dish dinner was served.

On the 28th of this month the Auxiliary will sponsor "A Trip Around the World" as its last money-making project before the new Misisonary year. Five countries will be visited, something entertaining and educational to be seen and heard in each country. The tour will end in America where a varied program will be some lantern slide pictures that Mr. David Glass collected while on his tour abroad last summer. There will also be a booth of fancy-work made by the ladies of the Auxiliary, for sale. Hot dogs and confections will be sold also. Mrs. D. E. Curtis has been elected Auxiliary president for the coming year; Mrs. J. F. Williams, vice-president; Mrs. Willis Booth, treasurer; Mrs. E. D. Overcash, secretary. Mrs. J. F. Coble was our very efficient president during the past year and with the financial difficulties that have been ever present we think that she has brought us through one of our best Missionary years. Our deepest appreciation goes to her for her fine and faithful leadership.

The choir is giving much time to the practices of an Easter cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," with Mr. Arthur Fiddler, of High Point, directing.

Calvary church observed World Day of Prayer with nine other denominations at the First Reformed church, this city, March 3.

The Brotherhood of the church is to have a fish-fry at its next meeting, March 21, in the church hut.

We are glad to report that J. C. Coe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Coe, was uninjured in the California earthquake, and we are praying that Mrs. Emma Murchison will soon receive good news of her son, Cannon, who is located in that district.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE GLEANERS

For the next three weeks the women of the church are invited to be Gleaners for High Point College. The field in which we must glean does not abound in a plenteous harvest, and yet a few handfuls have been left on purpose for those who are willing to glean.

At a recent meeting of the program committee arranging for the Branch Meeting to be held in Winston April 6 and 7, plans were made for a Christian Education demonstration and offering on Wednesday night of the Branch Meeting. If this offering is at all commensurate with the need, the women of the church are going to have to do some real gleaning. We are going to have to glean in some old fields and in some new, and let us hope that some people of means have let some handfuls fall on purpose for our High Point College Gleaners.

Our offering for Christian Education on April 6th will be designated for High Point College and will go to help meet some of the many needs of that worthy institution. Your special offering for Christian Education at the Branch Meeting will do four things:

1. It will be made available immediately, every penny of it, for High Point College.
2. It will apply on your Auxiliary World Service budget for next year.
3. It will help to pay the Branch's obligation to the Board of Christian Education.
4. It will help to keep High Point College going during these trying days of stress and strain.

We are asking that not just a few of our women do the gleaning, but we are hoping that every woman will be a gleaner for High Point College. Because the time is short and our work must be done in three weeks, we are going to have to begin our gleaning at once.

Where shall we glean? First, in the field of special gifts. Let us approach those who are in position to make a really worth while gift for the cause of our college in this area. There are many women in the church who are in position, even during these days, to make a worthy contribution. Then, there are many, many women who can contribute, not largely, but perhaps a dollar or even a quarter, and we shall welcome the dimes and pennies. Let us glean in the field of special offerings. Then, there is the field of special service, and we can all glean in this field. Why not have a special High Point College project, the financial returns being used for your offering at the Branch Meeting. This project may be a food sale, peanut sale, a special High Point College supper, when the members of the church come together. To be sure, they will pay for their meal, and if the food is donated, the receipts will be the greater. College pennants may be used for decorations. A covered dish dinner may be enjoyed, and an offering made for the college. The first Sunday in April may be used as a Gleaning Sunday when everyone will bring an offering for High Point College. So we may do our gleaning in the field of special offerings and in the field of special service.

The important thing is that we must all be gleaners, and we will bring the results of our gleaning together in a celebration on April 6th at the Branch meeting in Winston.

We are only giving cash report this week. We have been helping with garden work and have only a few minutes to give to this report. We are planning to produce everything possible on the farm and gardens. But until vegetables begin to come in we need your hearty co-operation, in aiding us with both produce and money, just a bit more than we ever have before. We thank you for your interest and your continued co-operation.

God bless and prosper each of you.

A BIT OF EXPERIENCE BY H. L. POWELL

I noticed in our president's report that some of our pastors are having pretty lean picking now in the midst of this little depression. Not enough money to buy gas and etc. pretty hard.

I have seen it much worse. I have seen cotton at 4c; cotton seed 7c per bushel; peanuts 27c per bushel; corn 20c per bushel; tobacco barely enough to pay for warehouse charges. I remember my first little crop. Dad gave me about one acre and said to me, "You must clear that piece of ground and plant and cultivate it; have all you can make. Buy your own clothes and pay for fertilizer you use. Well, I did and had a good piece of tobacco; when cured and stripped, hauled to market, sold, 392 pounds netted me after paying warehouse charges and half price for hauling $1.35. Ask me how I paid for clothes and fertilizer. Well, I worked it out at 25c per day during winter. Yes, I've seen it worse but I never saw the country more hopeless. Then we sent statesmen to make our laws, now now we send politicians; a politician means a crook. Not much to eat, not much to wear, not much money. No banks to rob the people, but you could borrow on honor, people would trust you. Statesmen received small salaries and lay a small tax for actual expense of government. Now politicians levy burdensome tax; pay themselves large salaries; put their families and relatives and other political crooks on pay roll and say to the people: "We love you and because we love you we'll raise your tax and loan you whatever is over enough to take care of us at 6 per cent interest."

Yes, I've seen it worse but never more hopeless. Well, all I know is what little I've seen, lies, and some truth I've heard. In 1889 I walked 55 miles to get to a high school, could scarcely read and write my name, rented a room, made bedstead out of bark-edge scantling, carried scantling a mile up Main street; girls looking at me as I hauled scantling and bark-edge plank on my cart. My bedstead had one leg. I paid 10c for feathers enough out of Sanford Phillips' straw stack to fill my bed tick. I lived in those days on an average of $1.95 per month for eighty and one-half months. I did a part of my own laundry. I would wear a shirt two weeks, reverse my collar and change ends with my cuffs. Cracked my biscuits between two stones, sopped molasses, drank water and never enjoyed better health. I went with the best folks and was respected and helped because I was trying to do something. I borrowed money on open note without security or interest. A man now will not let you have money on good real estate mortgage. Well, all I kown is what little I've read in books, papers, the lies and what little truth I've heard.

I taught school on a first-grade certificate for $25.00 per month. All the law would allow a first grade tteacher and waited three months for half of my pay. The fall of 1903 I was elected delegate from my home church to attend my first Annual Conference at Lagrange, N. C. We were scarce of preachers in those days. I had been preaching during summer before and conference borrowed me from school and assigned me to the Calf Pasture, Washington County, salary promised was $225. I had been offered the principalship of two high schools at $45.00 per month, lights and board. I felt I must preach or God might kill me. I walked charge, sometimes 25-miles trip, took me a whole day to make it. I lay in rooms where heat from fire never struck it. I've lain flat of my back and looked up through the boards on roof and gazed at the twinkling stars and think if the outside of my Father's World was so beautiful; what must the inside be! I received about $75.00 for a whole year's work up to about three weeks before conference. At that time we only had about three charges that paid as much as $500. Henderson paid about $700. And my! how every fellow wanted to get to Henderson and how big Henderson felt to be the biggest church in conference.

Well, if my experience gets in print and you like it; I may tell you a little more about what I have seen, the lies and the little truths I've heard.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Williams

In the passing of Mr. J. W. Williams, Guilford and Rockingham counties have sustained a distinct loss, and Flat Rock church one of the strongest of the late surviving members.

For some 40 years he served as steward here. Astute, earnest, faithful; how he canvassed ravines, hills, and farms backed by the urge of God for funds; and the parishioners loved him. An agriculturist by trade, he represented millions.

And we wonder if he walked and talked not with God. Ever his home, the home of his pastor and "Large was his bounty and his soul sincere." Backed and cheered by his refined and tender comparison, he seemed so untiring. The infallible promise of our risen Lord is to the faithful. Converted in youth, he ever found his way to the sanctuary, and we believe today, translated.

"Christ through some heavenly alembic,
Snowy white did from crimson bring;
Stamped his name on his and bore him,
To the palace of the King."

He was a guileless man and a friend to all. With what solicitude he watched over his children, and deeply they revered him. His wife he looked upon as the angel of his home. Blessed by the tender ministry of her, he fell asleep.

"On some fond breast the parting soul relies,
Some pious drops the closing eye requires;
Even from the tomb, the voice of nature cries,
Even in our ashes live their wanted fires."

But today, in her widowhood, she laments:

"He is not here but, far away,
The noise of life begins again,
And ghastly through the drizzing rain,
On the bald street breaks the blank day."

May the spirit of the Eternal God and the Living Christ comfort her forever.

Rev. J. R. Hutton preached one of his ablest sermon on "Job."

"Oh, what wondrous visions wrapped us,
Heaven's gate seemed opened wide;
Even we (kindred and friends), stood clean and faultless,
Close beneath the pierced side.
Faultless in His Glorious Presence;
Faultless in that dazzling light,
Christ's own love, majestic, tender,
Made our crimson snowy white."

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

THE COMMITTEE.

MEETING OF DISTRICT NO. 4

A get-together meeting of District No. 4 will be held in Burlington, First church, Friday evening, March 31, at 7:30. Guest speakers will be Mrs. H. C. Nicholson of Mebane, and Mrs. C. W. Bates, of Greensboro.

The district is composed of the following charges: Fairview, Gibsonville, Glen Raven, Fountain Place, First Church, Graham and Haw River. The women of these churches are urged to attend this meeting.

Reports will be given by the presidents of each auxiliary in the district.

MRS. J. W. JENNINGS,
Dsitrict Chairman.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

An Emergency Call

Our readers know that the receipts of the Methodist Protestant Herald do not pay all the expenses of publication. Before the Publishing House was sold we told the Annual Conference meeting in special session in Asheboro that it would be so. By the loss of receipts from the Publishing House other source of subsidy was made necessary. The last Annual Conference in Burlington proposed other subsidies in a report which was adopted. As you may know, we are deeply in debt to our printers for work done through several years. They are pressed by their creditors and cannot continue to serve us unless we make payment of at least a considerable part of the balance due. If they could receive in the next 30 days $750.00 in addition to the ordinary receipts it would enable them to tide over.

I know of no other printers that would print the Herald so well at so low a price. The continuance of the Herald is really at stake. The publisher has been continuously for over 30 years putting most of his surplus cash into the payment of Herald deficits and is now cheerfully putting all in, but that is not enough. Promptness on the part of those asked for small subsidies will save the day. May I ask for such consideration?

Fraternally,
J. F. McCulloch,
Editor and Publisher.

Excuses

Since the beginning of creation the habit of making excuses has been an outstanding characteristic of the human race. Adam, the first man, and Eve, the first woman, originated the "art" of making excuses, and it has been inherited from generation to generation down to our day.

In the realm of human society, in the world of business and commerce, and in the religious life of the people the habit or practice of rendering excuses exists. We may think of the "art" of making an excuse as that of offering an alibi. What did Adam do but offer an alibi when he said to God, "the woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat." Eve also offered an alibi when she said, "the serpent beguiled me, and I did eat."

The best example of excuse-making in all of the Bible, according to the opinion of the writer, is in the account of the great supper, recorded in Luke 14, in which we are told of three persons, supposedly men, who rendered excuses for not attending the supper to which they had been invited. The first said, "I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it." The second said, "I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them." The third one declared, "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come."

Men and women in this age are making excuses in the social, business and religious relations of life. The progress of the church and Christianity in our day is greatly hindered on account of the habit of many people in the churches who offer an excuse when asked to do some specific work in the Sunday School or church. When they have an opportunity to render some real and effective service for the furtherance of the Kingdom of God, they find some kind of excuse or alibi for not doing what they are called upon to do. All pastors and Sunday School superintendents know that there is this class of people in almost every church in our conference.

We may wonder what can be done about this habit or "art" of making excuses. What remedy may be found and applied? The writer will not attempt to prescribe the remedy but will suggest a possible "cure" for the "malady," by saying that the excuse-making member needs a good dose of divine medicine, described as the love of God, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ and a baptism of the Holy Spirit, all of which is calculated not only to check the "malady," but eliminate it entirely. Such a remedy would surely result in a life of real, active and effective Christianity, if applied properly.

We believe the supreme need of the church today is a membership possessing the qualities of true repentance, unfailing faith, full and complete consecration, real devotion, genuine loyalty and zealous labor. If our churches had people in their membership with these Christian qualities, our beloved Zion would move on as never before, and we would hasten the coming of the Kingdom of God on earth.

C. B. Way.

An Adequate Standard for the Church in the Country

It will be impossible to discuss this topic thoroughly in this short space, but I hope these suggestions will cause our people to give some thought to the needs of the rural church. We need to hold before us ideals and work toward them.

First, the rural church must have adequate space, building and equipment if it is to do its work well. There are still a large number of rural churches which have only a small plot of ground and a one-room building. There is not room enough to carry on the present day church program. If the church is to serve the community, it must have space to carry on a program of religious education, a recreational and social program as well as a worship program.

Second, the church needs an adequate leadership. In the first place, there must be a well-trained pastor who gives his entire time to the task. In the past it has been impossible for the best trained pastors to go to the rural districts and do an effective work. They did not receive enough salary to permit them to give their best to the task. Many pastors have to divide their time between two or more churches. Some rural pastors have to serve seven or more churches. Under such a system it is impossible for any community to have an adequate pastoral leadership. For the pastor to do his work well he needs to serve but one community, and that church and community need to give him adequate financial and moral support. In the second place, the church needs a more capable laymen leadership. Every church must have Sunday School teachers and officers, musicians and church officers if its work is to grow. When there are so many churches in the community, there are only a limited number of leaders in each church. These leaders have to carry the entire burden. The church should be so organized that it could place its laymen leaders in the place where they could serve best. The church also needs enough strength to train its leaders through a program of leadership training.

Third, the church must have an organized financial program which will furnish support for all the modern programs of the church. When churches are small, they have to struggle to support their leader, the pastor. The other phases of church work have to suffer because there is no way to support them. If the church is to serve the community, it must find some way to expand its program. The first step to be taken is to find some way by which the program may be financed.

Fourth, the rural church must have an educational, vocational, recreational and social program in addition to its religious program. Of course, the religious program is of primary importance, but these other programs are so closely related to the religious program that they help to strengthen and reenforce it. The Sunday School has found its way into about three-fourths of the rural churches of America. Sunday School and preaching constitute the program of a majority of the rural churches. The vocational, recreational and social programs have not found their way into a majority of the rural churches yet. But those churches that have built up such a broad program in their communities have become vital agencies in social reorganization.

THE DREAM OF CHILDHOOD

I thought everybody in the church was good. I have not found it so. I thought the preachers walked and talked with God almost face to face, I have not found it so, have you? I thought life would be unbroken sunshine, I have not found it so, have you? Life is not all sunshine, nor all shadow. If we had no cloudy days we could not appreciate the sunshine. "Life without its shadows is life without its grace."

Sunshine and shadow is our experience. Is it yours? We ought to thank God for the cloudy days as well as for the sunshine. But we are always more ready to moan when cast down, than to praise when we are exalted. Job 2:10: But he said unto her, thou speakest as one of the foolish women speak: what? Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil.

DR. G. W. HADDAWAY REPLIES TO REV. J. F. MINNIS

Dear Sir:

I have just read a personal letter from Brother Minnis published in your paper. The article contains many good things about Brother Minnis and his work, all of which are true.

The Board of Missions has not recalled Brother Minnis as he stated in the article referred to. There is a vast difference between a recall and granting a request. Brother Minnis put it up to the Board of Missions to furnish him with a bungalow or bring him home at the end of his contract, which is in the near future. The Board knew of no way by which to secure the bungalow, hence notified Brother Minnis that we were compelled to grant his request.

To bring him home is not the desire of the Board of Missions, providing we can arrange to support him in the foreign field. But this question was not raised in his communication to the Board of Missions, neither did the Board raise the question of support in replying to him.

The latest word received from Brother Minnis stated that he is willing to remain in India without the new bungalow. I hope that the North Carolina Conference will make it possible for him to remain in India, even though he may consent to a reduction in salary.

Another statement is, "what a pure waste of cash to send new missionaries out and at once call others home." The Board of Missions has not sent out any new missionaries recently. Mr. Wesley Day, who went to China last fall was sent out at the request of Mr. J. O. Bogart of Indiana, who supports him and we have recalled no missionary to date.

G. W. HADDAWAY,
Executive Secretary.

WHAT ABOUT THAT CHOIR?

What about the Young People's Choir in your church? Have you organized it? Is it developing well? Do you have regular rehearsals? If you can answer these questions in the affirmative, you are well on the way to have better music in your church, and to arouse a greater interest on the part of your young people.

An enthusiastic singing group of young people have been organized into a choir at one of the churches on Vance Charge, Rev. J. W. Braxton, pastor. This wide-awake young pastor and his choir are greatly interested in preparation for the contest at High Point College on the first night of the Leadership Training School, June 26th. Central Church, Thomasville, has organized an Intermediate Choir, with prospects of splendid service to the church in the future. Other choirs are in the process of organization.

Perhaps a suggestion or two would be timely. It is deemed advisable to set the minimum age limit at 14 years, because that is the youngest age anyone will be admitted to the Young People's courses at the Leadership Training School. About 24 years would be a suitable maximum limit.

As promised heretofore, below is a short list of simple anthems, which range in price from eight to fifteen cents each, a publisher's discount being allowed on quantities. Anthem books, containing from about 30 to 50 anthems, in two, three, and four parts, may also be purchased. The writer will be glad to furnish a list of publishers upon request.

GOOD AND BAD IN FOUNDATIONS

A few days ago the Washington Evening Star—a paper that did not support Governor Roosevelt in his campaign for election—said editorially:

"The President, with the country behind him, is fighting fear. And the inspired forces of confidence, under the President's fine leadership, have already vanished some of the forces of fear and have them on the run.

"The Senate, meanwhile, is in a death struggle with another kind of fear. The old fear of the veterans lobby still lives. It is the sort of fear that makes ambitious policians break out in cold perspiration and tremble as the wind sighs around the eaves in the middle of the night and lonely thoughts turn to the next election."

Since the editorial was written, the Senate has passed the economy bill and the President has signed it. So the expenses of the Veterans' Bureau will submit to a drastic cut.

While Mr. Roosevelt dodged the bonus and veteran issues in his campaign—being conscious, no doubt, that they represented votes at the polls—it is refreshing and cause for gratitude that he has now taken a strong stand for the right in his recommendations to Congress on this matter. It will save billions of dollars to the Federal Treasury if this issue is faced courageously whenever it comes up again. Any one familiar with the pension scandals following the civil war must realize that the cost to the Government since that war will be but as a drop in the bucket compared with what will be drawn from the Treasury, in case the raids of World War veterans—backed by vote-seeking politicians—go on unchecked.

How I wish President Roosevelt had been equally wise in his recommendations to Congress concerning beer! Of course, in his acceptance speech he pledged himself to work for beer and the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment—thinking such a pledge necessary to secure a certain large section of votes. But if he is justified, as I think he is, in asking Congress to grant him large emergency war-time powers to fight depression and bring in normal business, why does he use that power to urge Congress to bring in beer? In order to secure $125,000,000 of revenue, several times as many millions will have to be spent by the people for the drink that decreases the moral, physical, and financial efficiency of the same people. Those millions will be withdrawn from the purchase of food for the family, from payment on homes, from the purchase of needed furniture and clothing, and from many higher uses to which the money of the multitude should, in these times, be helpfully applied.

The whole transaction points to the dark and sinister influences that politics and the lower elements in the population of our country exert over many of the so-called higher-ups. Prayer for rulers and co-operation with the Government in the things that are right will help. Clearing our minds and utterances, as reformers, from narrow-minded ideas and expressions will be an advantage. And persistent opposition to phases of our national life that are evidently wrong seems to be the indicated course for good citizens. L. K. L.

WHEN YOU SMILE

When you smile the sun shines brighter,
  And the sky seems twice as blue;
As you mete it out to others,
  It is measured back to you.
When you smile the load grows lighter,
  And it shortens many a mile.
Why not try it? You will like it,
  If you smile, smile, smile.

When you meet a friend or neighbor,
  It's not up to you to groan,
He doesn't want to hear about it—
  He has troubles of his own.
Bite your lips and keep on smiling.
  Think of something glad a while.
Folks are glad to see you coming,
  When you smile, smile, smile.

LIVING WITH CHRIST

Three things we are to practice. Wherever we are, coming to Jesus. He is always ready to hear; there is the Mercy Seat where God has promised to meet us. There is the throne of grace where we can obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

And bearing His yoke! If you are in line with God, then the furrow you have to plough is directed by the Lord Jesus Himself; and though Providence may be a very great mystery, grace is not.

And it is the manner of life rather than the matter that you and I have to be concerned with. God will see to the matter of life, if you will only see to the manner of it.—Rev. F. W. Ainley.

"GOD'S ACRE" MOVEMENT HAS HELPED CHURCHES

The continuing spread of the "God's Acre" movement is credited with infusing new life into hundreds of country churches in a number of southern states.

Because of this plan, which gives church work definite shares in farm crops, many depression-hit churches once in danger of shutting down or of curtailing their activities are showing renewed material and spiritual growth, say reports from leaders.

In Georgia where the modern movement began it is found in every section, and James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention, estimates that the number of persons participating last year was double that of the previous one.

Variously known as "God's Acre" plan, the "Lord's Acre" plan, the "Lord's Plot" plan, "Planting for the Lord," and the "Lord's Portion" plan, the movement aims to have its participants dedicate a certain part of their acreage to the church. The proceeds are given to carry on the activities of the denominations as well as of the local church.

Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and the Disciples of Christ have churches following the plan.—Exchange.

NOTICE

The Conference Council of Religious Education is badly in need of some money. I would like to request all Sunday Schools and C. E. Societies to raise their apportionments at the earliest possible date. The following is the schedule of Apportionments for Sunday Schools and C. E. societies:

A SELF-DENYING BROTHER

One day while Dr. James H. Franklin was seated in a Pullman, a negro porter asked, "Say, boss, is you a preachah?"

"Why, yes," Dr. Franklin replied, "how did you guess that?"

"Oh, I just saw a book in your seat and I thought by the book, you must be a preachah. I was almost a preachah mahself once."

"Why did you give it up?" Dr. Franklin questioned.

"Well, sah, I'se got a brothah and I told him I wanted to be a preachah, but he'd been converted and preached hisself, boss. Well, sah, we talked it all ovah and decided he'd go ahead to college and be a preachah and I'd come back on the road and work and so I did, boss, and every month I sent him money and he went to college."

"And did he finally become a preacher?"

"Yes, sah, in Africa. They call him Bishop Scott."

"Bishop Scott!" exclaimed Dr. Franklin as he gazed at the noble figure before him.

Later Dr. Franklin met Bishop Scott and told him of the incident on the train and asked him whether that negro porter was his brother.

"Yes," said Bishop Scott, "he's my brother and may God bless him. I owe everything to him."—The C. U. Herald.

THE BOYS WE NEED

We need the boy who's not afraid
To do his share of work,
Who never is by toil dismayed
And never tries to shirk;

The boy whose heart is brave to meet
All lions on the way,
Who's not discouraged by defeat,
But tries another day;

The boy who means to always do
The very best he can,
Who always keeps the right in view,
And aims to be a man.

Such boys as these will grow to be
The men whose hands will guide
The future of our land; and we Shall speak their names with pride.

All honor to the boy who is
A man at heart, I say;
Whose legend on his shield in this:
Right always wins the day.

SILENT TESTIMONY

A young lieutenant, fresh from a Christian home, came for his first time to his quarters in a French camp. There he was shocked to find how some of the men were living. They had pasted on the walls of the mess hall pictures which were degrading and far from uplifting. He was troubled, yet did not dare express his views openly before the other men. One night while going through his luggage he found a copy of Leonardo da Vinci's head of the Christ. At the sight of the picture he loved so well he took courage and quietly slipped into the mess hall. There in the midst of the pictures of another nature he hung this one of Christ. This picture was one of beauty and goodness surrounded by evil on every side. The soldiers did not fail to see the contrast. Within twenty-four hours all the evil pictures had mysteriously disappeared. The soldiers responsible for them had crept in and taken them all away. The beautiful picture of the Christ was the only one which now hung on the wall. Without any words spoken as an argument for good on the part of the lieutenant he had successfully held up the Christ in the camp.—Unknown.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

We closed the Area meetings at Weaverville Friday the 17th of March. In all the meetings there were seventy-six pastors present; six ministers present who are not pastors. Altogether there were about 500 persons present in the meetings. To put the meetings on required a mileage of travel for me of 1,000. I am greatly indebted to Brothers Braxton, Bates, Lindley, Farmer, Johnson, Pritchard, and Carroll, all of whom made set addresses and to all others who by participation made the meetings a success. Of course, it is difficult to tabulate the results of the meetings, as it also is of such meetings, but there were so many evidences of good results coming from them that I am greatly encouraged.

It is now my hope to put on a series, after the end of the second quarter, of Area meetings of the church stewards. At these meetings we hope to have a setup of what has been done up to that date by each pastoral charge and obtain a report of what we may expect from these charges for the remainder of the year. When this information is in our hands we can approach the problem before church with greater wisdom, knowing what remains to be done by the time conference meets.

Weaverville Charge, Rev. E. G. Cowan, pastor.—I visited two churches on this charge at the Sunday worship service and was at the Weaverville Church at the Area meeting, so I was privileged to speak in all the churches on this charge and to meet a number of the people. The attendance at all the meetings was good and the spirit of the members is hopeful; so is the attitude of the pastor. Really the pastor feels that the work here is making progress. That is fine. Our work in this part of the church has never had a normal growth. Many things have militated against us—things which this brief report cannot even state, much less discuss. So it is with joy that we report the spirit of hopefulness here.

I was due to preach in two churches on Democrat work but was forced to remain in my room because of a stubborn cold. I am indebted to Brother Carroll for supplying for me there.

Asheville Church, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor.—I visited this church on Sunday evening; there were possibly between seventy-five and eighty-five people present. Several visitors, but many of the members, I was told.

Brother Carroll is pouring a ceaseless stream of enthusiastic labor into this little church which will certainly bring about gratifying results. In fact he has already done that. He appears to be having the hearty support of the entire membership and the services are going on nicely. He is also putting system into the raising of the needed funds for church operations and this system is likewise bearing fruit. The debt on the church building and parsonage building does not worry them here—there is none, but there are some arrears and the cost of a new furnace which are enough with the pastor's salary and the conference budgets to give them some opportunity to practice raising money.

Two Sky Pilots

There are two of our ministers in this "land of the sky" who are surely deserving of this title. I speak of Brother J. S. Williams and Brother Homer Casto. I know no record kept by men's hands will furnish us with the extent of their labors and yet it is quite impossible for one to be near them very long without being conscious of the deeply spiritual service they daily render. It is true that their ministry is more nearly with the sick than with those with sound bodies; yet those in trouble or sorrow find in them comforters of great power. It is the most difficult of difficult tasks which fall to the minister's lot to perform—to enable men and women who are facing death to meet it unafraid—to go out of this life with a note of triumph on their lips while their souls are anchored to the Great Eternal God, surpasses all other mintries known to the servants of the King. We thank the Lord for their constant, untiring service. We rejoice to know that while we claim them as members of our communion they belong to the group whose services far exceed the bounds of their denominations.

Plan of Appointments

March 26: Connelly Springs—three churches: Shiloh, Burke's Chapel and Shady Grove.

April 2: Orange Charge: Union Grove, 11 a. m.; Efland at night.

April 9: 11 a. m., Roberta Church; afternoon, Greer's Chapel.

April 10: Spencer, 11 a. m.; Mt. Carmel, afternoon; Lexington, night.

April 23: Saxapahaw Charge.

April 30: Calvary Church, Greensboro, 11 a. m.; district meeting afternoon.

R. M. Andrews.

SIMPLE WORDS BLESSED

Illustrating the ease with which souls can sometimes be won, Bishop C. C. McCabe (U. S. A.) tells how when paying a cabman he grasped his hand and said: "I hope to meet you again in Glory." He had often done the same before, but this time the arrow went home.

About midnight the man came back to the house, and insisted on seeing the bishop, although he had retired, assuring the host that the bishop would see him, which was the case. When they met tears were on his cheeks. He said: "If I am to meet you in Glory, I have got to turn round. I have come to ask you to pray for me." And what a privilege it was to point him to Jesus!—Pathway of Blessing.

JERRY MAKES A BARGAIN

Whiz! Bang! Crash! A large window in Mr. Norton’s house opposite the school grounds crashed into pieces.

Dick Carroll and Jerry Bennett, who had been playing ball, quickly looked about in consternation; then Dick started on a run for the big cedar hedge back of the school-house.

“Hurry, Jerry, if you don’t want to be caught!” he advised.

Like a flash, Jerry, too, sought the protecting hedge.

“Why did you strike so hard?” censured Dick.

“Didn’t. ’Twas the way you pitched,” Jerry defended.

“That’s right! Put the blame on me!”

“I told you we shouldn’t play so close to Norton’s. Mr. Norton threatened to arrest the next boy that did mischief on his property.”

“Guess he’ll have to catch him first!” sneered Dick, “Nobody saw us! Mr. Norton went away in his auto an hour ago, and there’s not a soul around the school grounds.”

“What I want to—”Jerry began, but was cut short by Dick’s “Hush! There’s Norton’s car now. Whew, listen! He’s just discovered the window.”

“Come on,” urged Jerry, “we might as well ‘fess up’ first as last.”

“What do you mean, ‘fess up’?” Dick’s eyes opened wide.

“Tell Mr. Norton who did it, of course, and offer to pay for it.”

“Haven’t any money to give him!” retorted Dick. “Besides, since he doesn’t know who did it, it’d be silly to own up to it.”

“Not according to my code!” Jerry’s lips tightened.

“If you’re such a goody-goody, what’d you run for, and why are you hiding now?” taunted Dick.

“ ’Cause I was a coward just on the spur of the moment! I’m going back now. Come or not, as you like.”

“I’ll not go,” Dick declared, “but I suppose you’ll tattle on me!”

“Have I ever?” Jerry glared at his companion a second; then turned on his heel and struck out boldly across the campus.

A moment later as he stood on the Norton porch, awaiting an answer to his ring, he saw Dick sneak from the hedge, skip across a vacant lot, and disappear around a garage.

Jerry’s heart beat fast when he heard footsteps approaching from within.

“I—I’d like to speak to Mr. Norton,” he stammered to the maid who opened the door.

“Come in,” pleasantly replied the girl. “Mr. Norton’s in the library,” she led the way into a spacious, home-like room whose walls were lined with books. A roaring fire blazed in the wide-mouthed fire-place, for even in October evenings are chilly. A red-shaded floor lamp cast a cheery glow over a table strewn with magazines. In a big, rose-colored, overstuffed chair before the fire sat Mr. Norton.

At the maid’s entrance he glanced up inquiringly.

“I’m Jerry Bennett, the boy who broke your window,” Jerry introduced himself.

“So you’re one of those scamps who persist in annoying me, eh?” snapped Mr. Norton. “Didn’t I tell Superintendent Ferris I’d arrest the next boy that damaged my property?”

“I’m sorry, but we—but I was so interested in the game I hadn’t noticed how close we were—I was to your grounds.”

“Well, let me tell you, young man, it’ll pay you to notice. I’ve been bothered with you boys breaking my shrubs and flowers, tramping over my lawn, and roller skating on my sidewalk. Now I intend to make an example of you lads that’ll teach your schoolmates a lesson. You weren’t playing alone, were you?”

“No, sir, but I—I was the one who struck the ball through the window,” Jerry’s gray eyes fell before Mr. Norton’s angry frown.

“I’d rather not implicate any one else,” Jerry’s face twitched. “I’ll pay for—” he broke off, “if you’ll give me time,” he qualified. “I’ll earn the money, and pay you every cent the new window costs.”

Mr. Norton gave Jerry one searching look; then the tense set muscles of his face relaxed.

“What’s your father’s business?” he asked, rather irrelevantly, Jerry thought.

“Father’s dead. Mother does suit alterations at Weston’s Emporium. Oh, sir, you would not arrest her, would you? Please don’t!” pleaded Jerry.

“Who’s to pay then, if you can’t?”

“But I will! Please, just give me time.”

“How can a boy of your age earn sixty-five dollars? That’s plate glass, I’ll give you to understand.”

“I can mow lawns, or,” remembering the season of the year, “shovel snow,” he added. “It’ll take a long time, but my mother—Mr. Norton, you just don’t know; my mother isn’t well, and lots of days she can’t work at all. Surely you wouldn’t—Oh, you couldn’t worry her about this!” The lump in Jerry’s throat all but choked him.

Jerry nodded.

“Tell you what I’ll do, Jerry,” Mr. Norton’s voice was friendly. “I’ll let you work for me to pay for it. How’ll that be?”

“If you only would!” Jerry replied wistfully.

“I’ve a load of wood coming tomorrow. Couldn’t you carry it into the shed and stack it up neatly?”

“Indeed, I will. Thanks!” Jerry sighed with relief. “I’ll come right after school.”

“Very well! Here’s a little book in which you can keep track of your time,” he handed Jerry a small notebook that he took from the table drawer, “and you’re to work for me until the debt is paid. Is that a bargain?”

"Yes, sir!" Jerry took the book, gladly. "I'm very grateful," he added.

"That's all right. We won't say anything more about the incident. It's just your affair and mine."

Having thanked Mr. Norton again, Jerry went out into the dusk of the evening and home.

Of course, he told his mother first thing. He always told her everything. And, although she expressed the hope that thereafter he'd be more thoughtful of the rights of others, nevertheless Jerry knew he had her sympathy. Jerry's mother always seemed to understand.

Months went by, and still Jerry was working for Mr. Norton. He had cut wood, carried it into the house, shoveled snow and tended furnace. Still the debt was but half paid. It was no easy matter to get up at six on those snapping cold mornings when the snow crunched under his feet as he walked three blocks to the Norton home. The stairs creaked and groaned as he went down them to the basement to fix the fire. Often the padlock on the door was white with frost. Tantalizing it was, too, to sniff savory hot cakes, appetizing fried ham, and fragrant coffee, cooking in the kitchen above, while with almost frozen fingers, he piled wood into the hungry old furnace, knowing he must go home to a frugal breakfast of bread and oatmeal.

How he longed to own such a home as Mr. Norton's! He pictured his mother enjoying the beautiful rooms, the works of art, rich velvet rugs, and the spotless kitchen with its tiled sink and floor.

"It's like a bit of fairyland," he often told her.

Winter passed; spring followed; and summer came. Jerry trimmed the rose bushes, spaded and weeded the garden, mowed the lawn. Later, he helped with fruit picking; for the Norton grounds resembled a small farm. Finally, the total in the little time-book had crept to sixty-five dollars.

With fear and trembling, Jerry went to report to Mr. Norton. Would he lose his job now, or would he be allowed to work on for "real money?" he wondered. There remained over a month of vacation. Time in which to earn money for a school suit! It was Jerry's senior year in high school. He would be needing extra money for several things. Besides he wished this year to earn something toward college expenses.

"Once I've an education," he told his mother, "you'll not have to work any more. I'll earn a living for us both."

Mrs. Bennett smiled fondly upon her son, and encouraged him in the realization of his ambition.

"So the debt is paid!" remarked Mr. Norton, having adjusted his spectacles and studied the column of fine-written figures. "And what now?" he asked, smiling kindly into Jerry's anxious face.

Not waiting for an answer, he continued, "Jerry, I've a proposition to make you. Since you've been working for me, I've been studying you. I never had a boy of my own and I've thought I'd like to help some lad through school and, perhaps, into business afterwards."

Jerry's pulses raced.

"But," Mr. Norton went on, "somehow, all the boys I've observed have seemed unworthy."

Jerry's face fell.

Mr. Norton laughed. "Present company excepted," he assured him. "From the time you came to me last fall and in your manly way acknowledged your part in the window affair, I've admired you."

A flush swept Jerry's tanned cheeks.

"When you refused to involve Dick Carroll, don't think I didn't see him make his get-away from behind the hedge, you went up another notch in my estimation. I liked you because of your desire to shield your mother from anxiety, and because of the shipshape and painstaking manner in which you have done my work. I've come to believe in you." He paused and Jerry's heart was filled to bursting with happiness.

"I believe I couldn't do better than to put a little of my spare cash into your education."

"O Mr. Norton, I'd do my best to deserve it. I truly would."

"I'm sure of it. You talk it over with your mother and, if she's willing, it's a bargain. To bind the agreement, I'll keep this time-book of yours, if you don't mind, and give you a different one in place of it." He handed Jerry a black leather pass book on the savings bank.

Astonished and scarcely able to believe his sight, Jerry saw the account had been opened in his own name with an initial deposit of sixty-five dollars.—The Friend.

THE SAVED HAND

Some years ago a minister of the Gospel was preaching about the benefits of blessings that may be obtained through prayer.

"I once knew a little boy," said he, "who had a very bad sore on his right hand. It got worse in spite of all that was done for it. At length it began to mortify, and the doctor said it would have to be taken off in order to save his life.

"The day was fixed for the operation. The little boy was a Christian. He had a little, retired, shady spot, in a corner of his father's garden, where he used often to go and take his book when he wanted a quiet time for reading.

"When he heard the doctor say that his hand must be cut off, he felt very sad; he did not like to lose his right hand. So he went to that quiet, shady spot in the garden, and there he kneeled down and prayed that God would make his hand better, and let it get well again without having to be cut off.

"The next day when the doctor came to look at his hand, he was very much surprised to find it looking a great deal better. The next day it was still better; and the third day, he said he thought it was going to get well, and that it would not be necessary to have it taken off.

"This little boy grew to be a man. He became a minister; and this," said the speaker, holding up his hand, "is the right hand that was saved, through prayer from being cut off. And I hold up this hand before you as a proof of the blessings that may be obtained in answer to prayer."

"In every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God" (Phil. 4:6).—John Three Sixteen.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

CAN AND SHOULD WE LOVE ALL MEN, EVEN OUR ENEMIES?

Scripture Text: Matthew 5:43-48

Jesus' Estimate of Love

The Jewish law of love had been founded on the principle that a man was expected to love his friends and hate his enemies. Jesus re-stated the law for His hearers, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, strength, mind, and body and thy neighbor as thyself." It was a long step for the Jews to take in thinking of loving neighbors. Then Jesus gave an answer as to who was a neighbor in the story of the Good Samaritan. There was enmity between the Samaritans and the Jews and this had the equivalence of telling the Jews to love their enemies, for if His followers love only those who love them, what do they more than the Pharisees? It is easy for us to love those who love us and do something for us, but when it comes to loving those whom we dislike we encounter the same difficulties as the Jews.

Jesus not only was a master teacher, He was an example of the principles which He taught. It was unusual for a man to say that the height of love was to die for a friend, but when Jesus died for His enemies and then prayed for those who did the wrong, He set a precedent in love. Jesus considered love as the great tie which binds mankind and which makes it possible for men to live together.

Love At Work in Society

If every man allowed his native impulses to have full sway, a large society would be impossible. Restraint is very necessary, and without it men could not get along. Love at work in the human heart makes it possible to overlook the slight mistakes of the other fellow and see much that is good in those whom we had avoided before. Love is a great force which erases slight differences and makes society a fellowship. If the spirit of love could permeate society, bringing its leavening influence, there would be fewer quarrels and crimes. As love increases, crime and misunderstanding will be reduced proportionately.

Love As An International Factor

People of the world are thinking more than they have in the past how a spirit of friendship and understanding can be effected between the nations of the world. We view with more horror than ever before the disastrous effects which will come with war. Statesmen parley over reducing armaments and coming to international agreements. There is one force which will make arms unnecessary and which will bring harmony in all relations, that force is the love of Jesus. When the souls of the nations are filled with the love of God, they will no longer rise up one against another and the instruments of war will be turned toward peaceful enterprises.

Effect of Love on the Individual

Society is changed by changing the individuals which make it up. When one looks at a large brick building it seems impossible that it was built one brick at a time, but it is true. If the love of Jesus reaches enough hearts the entire lump will finally be changed. Love in the individual heart brings a change. We pass from death unto life and we have a love for the other members of society when this change is made in our lives. If you have habits which you have been unable to change, be assured that the love of Jesus will change them. If you do not have a tolerant attitude toward mankind, you need the love of Jesus.

Jesus made love the basis for His kingdom, for He realized its transforming power. It will make a new creature and put a different attitude into the heart. Love is the greatest factor at work in the world today and the cure for the ills of national and individual life.

Quotable Poetry

My Jesus, as Thou wilt!
  O may Thy will be mine;
Into Thy hand of love
  I would my all resign.
Through sorrow, or through joy,
  Conduct me as Thine own,
And help me still to say,
  "My Lord, Thy will be done."

My Jesus, as Thou wilt!
  Though seen through many a tear,
Let not my star of hope
  Grow dim or disappear.
Since Thou on earth hast wept,
  And sorrowed oft alone,
If I must weep with Thee,
  My Lord, Thy will be done.

My Jesus, as Thou wilt!
  It shall be well with me;
Each changing future scene
  I gladly trust with Thee.
Straight to my home above
  I travel calmly on,
And sing, in life or death,
  "My Lord, Thy will be done."

We are profoundly grateful for these gifts of cash for the Home. This is the week in each month when we usually have a good long list to publish. We suppose that the banking conditions have made this report so exceedingly short.

We do not know how we are to keep the Home going unless there is a greater response from all our Sunday schools. We haven't the heart to publish just the conditions through which we are passing.

Clothing and Other Gifts

This includes two week's report. First Church, Lexington, two new bedsteads, one bundle cloth for shirts, one large bundle white cloth, five pieces cooking vessels, one boy's suit, six dresses, four dress patterns, three shirts three pair overalls, three pair pants, three sweaters, two chairs, one pair stockings, one dozen glasses, six glasses of jelly, five quarts fruit and two packages oat meal.

924 Walker Avenue, Greensboro, one new dress.

Mrs. Jones, Lebanon, High Point, about a peck of tangerines.

Lebanon, High Point, 38 quarts of canned fruit and vegetables and three glasses of jelly.

Haw River S. S., Glen Raven, one dress pattern corduroy goods.

Denton, one truckload of lumber, additional T. O.

Concord, 48 quarts canned fruit and vegetables, two packages of grits, five glasses of jelly, one pumpkin, three cans Velvet milk, 15 pounds sugar, five pounds rice and a small package of sweet potatoes.

We greatly appreciate these donations in substance. They come in well when something to eat is so scarce.

May the dear Lord bless and prosper His people.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP AND BENEVOLENCES

I am asking all the Secretaries of Stewardship and Benevolences in the Branch to report to me at your earliest convenience what you have done in this phase of our work; that is, have you had a stewardship course taught in your Auxiliary? Have you given stewardship pageants this year? What and how many Auxiliary devotional programs have you had?

Have you presented the benevolences of the church during the year just closing? It is one of the duties of Secretaries of Benevolences to visit the Children's Home to find out the needs, and report the same to the Auxiliary. Please report to me soon so I can report to Branch meeting.

DR. JOY HARRIS GLASCOCK,
Sec'y Benevolences and Stewardship.

REGARDING DELEGATES TO BRANCH MEETING

The N. C. Branch Meeting will be held in First Church, Winston-Salem, April 5 and 6, beginning at 9:30 a. m. Will each Auxiliary see that the names of their delegates are sent in at once? We want them in hand not later than April 1st. And may this request be made: In sending your names, say whether you want entertainment or not; and if you want to room together. If you have friends you are expecting to stop with, or are going back to your home at night, let us know. We will provide homes for those that ask for a home, and give supper and breakfast. At the noon hour you will get your lunch down town. We have lots of eating places near the church, at any price you wish to pay. If parties coming just for the day want to bring their own lunch they can do so. If you are coming on train or bus let us know so we can meet you. Rush your names right in, and help us to get ready for your coming. Send names to

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD,
906 Carolina Ave.,
Winston-Salem, N. C.

AUXILIARY REPORTS FOR BRANCH MEETING

Several days ago I mailed report blanks to 93 organizations. These have at some time been reported to me as Auxiliaries. I know that many of them do only local work, and are, therefore, Aid Societies; but I keep hoping that they will get a broader vision of the work of God's Kingdom and contribute something to help feed the "other sheep."

In addition to the Auxiliary report blanks, I included a blank for Missionary Education, an Efficiency blank and an important letter from the Secretary of Exhibits, Mrs. N. M. Harrison. I hope that a hundred per cent of these blanks will be filled out and returned to me by March 25.

Please notice the question: "Have you paid your Contingent Fund?" Let me explain that in North Carolina this fund is included in the N. C. Branch budget, so if you have raised this budget in full you have paid your Contingent Fund.

Let us try to make the Branch Meeting of April 5 and 6, 1933, the best we have ever held. Do your very best to raise your budget, and glean some sheaves for the College.

Forget the depression. Brush up your old clothes and with them put on a spirit of hope, faith and helpfulness. Try to forget your worries and think of your blessings and of the great privilege you have of being a co-worker with God in the establishment of His Kingdom on earth.

If you are not a delegate, come as a visitor for one day at least, and give and get inspiration for another year of work for the Master.

MRS. GEO. R. BROWN,
Cor. Secretary.

PLAN OF ORGANIZATION FOR HIGH POINT COLLEGE GLEANERS

The women of the church in North Carolina are being organized as High Point College Gleaners; they will bring the results of their gleaning to the Branch Meeting, where, on Wednesday night, there will be a Christian Education Demonstration and a public offering for High Point College.

The Executive Committee of Branch As Gleaners

The members of the Branch Executive Committee have been asked to glean in the "Field of Special Gifts," to write and ask their friends and those of the college for a special gift for the college to be presented during the Christian Education Demonstration at the Branch Meeting. Candles will be lighted for each special gift of five dollars or more. The first group of gift-bearers will be the members of the Branch Executive Committee who will bring their gifts arranged in the form of a small sheaf, paper money being used for the making of the sheaves. We are hoping that it will be possible for each executive member to bring in a real worth-while offering since the needs of the college are so many.

District Chairmen As Gleaners

We are assigning to District Chairmen two tasks in our gleaning project for the college. First, glean in the field of Special Gifts since you are a member of the Branch Executive Committee, and second, write to the Auxiliary presidents of your district, urging them to carry forward some financial project, the receipts of which may be given during the Christian Education demonstration at Branch Meeting.

Auxiliary Presidents As Gleaners

Auxiliary presidents are requested to glean in the "Field of Service," initiate a money-raising project which will result in some money which may be used for the college. Most of us will probably complete this year's work within the next few days. We are asked to mail our reports by March 25th. We will have ten days between the time when we mail our reports and the Branch Meeting. This is sufficient time for carrying out our special money-raising project for High Point. Of course, plans must be made almost immediately, and we are depending upon our Auxiliary presidents for this very important part of the project. You will make up the second group of gift-bearers in the special demonstration. If possible, have your money in the form of paper money arranged in a small sheaf. April 5th will be the occasion of "Bringing in the Sheaves" for our college in this area.

Christian Education Secretaries As Gleaners

We want all of our people in all of our churches to have a part, even though it be small, in our special effort for Christian Education in North Carolina. Therefore, we are asking our Secretaries of Christian Education to glean in the "Field of Offerings," and are suggesting that April 2nd in all of our churches be a time when the Christian Education secretaries receive an offering for High Point College. This may be any of the following forms:

1. Offering through the Sunday school by classes.
2. General offering throughout the church.
3. Inviting individuals to contribute privately.

Offering to Be Applied On World Service Budget For Next Year

All money received through this special project will be applied on your Auxiliary World Service budget for next year. If we begin working immediately, and then put forth a very special effort between March 25 and April 5, we will have a fine beginning on our World Service budget for the new year just ahead of us.

Let Us Pray As We Glean

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Of course, we all know that gleaning will be difficult, and that the fields in which we must glean have suffered much because of the trying days. But God holds within His power the wealth of the universe, and we can have a part of it for our college if we are sufficiently in earnest in our asking and in our efforts to obtain. Let us glean, but may we never cease to invoke divine blessing and guidance in our efforts.

MRS. H. W. MAIER,
Sec'y Chritian Education.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM, FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING OF NORTH CAROLINA BRANCH, WOMEN'S WORK

Winston-Salem, April 5-6

The fifth annual meeting of the North Carolina Branch, Women's Work, will convene in First Church, Winston-Salem, April 5 and will continue through the afternoon of April 6. Each Auxiliary is entitled to four delegates, and it is especially desired that representatives of Young People's work attend. Churches where there are no Auxiliaries are urged to send representatives.

Mrs. H. W. Maier, secretary of Christian Fellowship, will have charge of an interesting feature of Wednesday evening's program, "Gleaning in the Field of Special Gifts," for her department, with designation of offering for High Point College. Dr. G. I. Humphreys will make the address and the musical part of the program will be under the direction of the Music Department of the College. The program follows:

MISSIONARY NEWS FROM SPRING CHURCH CHARGE

One afternoon last August during our revival meeting at Lebanon the ladies were invited to remain after service for the purpose of organizing a Missionary Auxiliary. A number of the ladies remained and an Auxiliary with 15 members was organized. Since then others have joined. Officers elected were: President, Mrs. William H. Neese; vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Grant, and secretary and treasurer, Miss Macon Floyd. We met for the first meeting the first Sunday in September at which time plans were made by which we hoped to create missionary interest and also help to raise the church budget.

On the fourth Sunday night in September an interesting Thank-Offering service was held. Owing to illness, the writer has not been permitted to meet with the society since that time, but encouraging reports have been coming in from time to time. The vice-president has taken the lead and the members are rallying to her support and we are expecting good results. A thank-offering service was given by them the first Sunday in March. Right here I want to say that Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary has prepared and given six thank-offering services since last Branch Meeting. I'm wondering if there is another charge in the Conference with the same number of churches, (three) that can report the same thing. I'm not boasting, (I didn't do it), but I just want the folks over the state to know that we have some live missionary wires down here. It did my soul good last week when I read in the church paper that our Auxiliary was one among the number that had paid all three budgets in full. Just a few more words about Lebanon Auxiliary: Yesterday when my preacher husband came from Lebanon he brought a box of good things to eat (a regular pounding) from the Auxiliary to their shut-in president. Included in the pounding was a brand new dollar bill. Was I thankful? Did it make me happy? Well, those of you who have been fortunate enough to have had a like experience know just how good it makes one feel to be thus remembered. The following names came with the box and I take this method of saying Thank you, and God bless you: Mesdames Maud Ingram, Bessie Rash, House, Will Burnette, J. C. Cook, Charlie Moore, Walter Moore, Jack Camp, W. W. Grant.

We would not forget to mention those from the other churches that keep remembering us with good things: Mesdames Margaret Robinson, Rupert M. Robinson, J. J. Massey, J. W. Crew, C. E. Dimick, J. M. Dunham, J. W. Magee, W. W. Harris and Miss Aubrey Crew.

Mrs. Rupert M. Robinson has been reporting missionary news during the writer's extended illness, but she did not report the splendid thank-offering program she prepared and put across at Spring Church the fourth Sunday in February. It was not my good pleasure to attend it, but reports were that it was a splendid service.

We are hoping that this work may be represented at the Branch Meeting.

MRS. Wm. H. NEESE,

FOURTH DISTRICT RALLY

Just to remind you of the Fourth District Rally to be held in First Church, Burlington, Friday night, March 31, at 7:30. We are anxious to have every Auxiliary and ladies' organization in the district present.

MRS. J. W. JENNINGS, Chairman.

LOLALTY LEAGUE ENROLLMENT

We give below the list of those who have enrolled in the Conference Loyalty League to date. We are publishing the list by charges, and in the order in which it was received.

Mt. Pleasant: Rev. T. M. Johnson, J. E. Stafford, Mrs. J. E. Stafford, H. D. Smith, Ramah Shoffner, A. U. Shaffner, Mrs. A. U. Shaffner, J. G. Smith, Mrs. J. G. Smith, Miss Davis Mendenhall, Mrs. J. T. Shoffner, Donald C. Bowman, Miss Lala Amick, and D. Grant Coble.

Mt. Hermon: Rev. L. E. Mabry, Mrs. L. E. Mabry, George A. Payne, George M. Isley, Mrs. George M. Isley, W. L. Isley, E. H. Coble, C. C. Holt, Nina Crabtree, June H. Coble, G. F. Holt, Mrs. L. P. Holt, T. F. Overman, Mrs. Offman, H. A. Garrett, Mrs. H. A. Garrett, Norman Johnson, Lee Moser, Nannie Coble, Reid Brown Paul Lowden, Rozell Coble, Homer Hargis, Mrs. Clay Holt, Kenneth G. Holt, Dr. J. A. Pickett, Miss Mary Williams, Annie Crabtree, W. T. Coble, Edna Coble, Mrs. Burk, and A. G. Cooper.

Orange: Rev. B. M. Williams, Mrs. B. M. Williams, Archie Gray Williams, H. N. Blackwood Mrs. J. M. Lloyd, and L. M. Riley.

Lebanon: Rev. S. W. Taylor, Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Frances Taylor, and John Taylor.

Junior League

Frances Stafford, Mt. Pleasant; Robert Forest Love, Liberty; Ragan Mabry, Mt. Hermon; George Thomas Garrett, Mt. Hermon; and S. W. Taylor, Jr., Lebanon.

Encouraging reports are coming in from pastors, and we believe that the movement will grow in favor with our people as they become acquainted with it.

A Loyalty League information leaflet is just off the press, and is being mailed out for distribution among our people. The work is still going on also through group meetings and local committees. We were heard with deep interest and a good response in the quarterly conference of the Mt. Hermon charge, held at Belmont last Saturday. Tomorrow night we are to be in Denton for a group meeting with our leaders there, and Saturday Dr. T. M. Johnson and I are to be with Brother B. M. Williams and his quarterly conference. We are pressing the matter just as rapidly as possible, and we believe that worthwhile results will ultimately crown this effort. The Loyalty League is worthy; it is necessary; and it is easily within the reach of all of our people. Let's give it a boost—everybody.

We hope to announce very soon that our pastors are enrolled ONE HUNDRED PER CENT.

—Hope church, Bonlee, had extraordinary fire in its service last Sunday—not in the pulpit but in the roof. It was soon extinguished and did little damage.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville.—We are glad to report that the work is moving along beautifully. The Sunday school is growing, both in attendance and interest.

We find choir practice every Wednesday evening very helpful; also Christian Endeavor work.

We were delighted to have Bro. Cowan with us last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. His sermon was fine. It was the first time he had been abe to fill his regular appointment since his operation.

Mrs. Cowan was still suffering from her throat and was unable to meet with us, but we truly hope they will soon be well.

We have adopted the plan of weekly giving at Mr. Grider's suggestion. This proves a great help on pastor's salary.

Plans are being made for an Easter program.

Best wishes.

LOUISE CHEEK, Reporter.

Rockingham.—Rev. C. W. Saunders filled his regular appointments Sunday, March 12. His text for the 11 o'clock service was taken from the fifth chapter of St. Matthew, "Be ye herefore perfect, even as your father which is in heaven is perfect."

Pastor Saunders was present at the Ladies' Auxiliary, which met at 6:30, and presided over the meeting. He gave an interesting talk on the important place that the Auxiliary holds in the church.

A good audience attended the evening service.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—We are moving along nicely. Our Sunday school is doing good work and the attendance is fine.

Our pastor, Bro. Henderson, delivered a soul-stirring sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. At the close of his sermon he gave an invitation for all that wanted to get closer to the Lord to come and give him heir hands. A great number responded, and we were greatly revived. Bro. Henderson is a great worker; the congregations are growing larger. The messages he brings are most timely and impressive.

We were pleased to have a number of visitors Sunday morning: Mrs. Henderson's parents and family; also Mr. Hudson's family from Roberta. We bid you a hearty welcome and invite you to visit us again. We are always glad to have visitors worship with us.

We have remodelled our parsonage and we feel greatly indebted to Bro. Henderson for this great improvement. He not only showed us that it could be done at little cost, but he put on his work clothes and went to work. If it had been necessary for us to buy all material and hire the labor it would have cost about $150. All of the churches joined hands and went right to twork. They built a new porch to the parsonage and painted four rooms and wall-papered two rooms. As soon as we got through with the parsonage we went to work on the church, which was in great need of repair. We took down the beaver-board overhead and ceiled it with cealing. We have painted the church on the inside and are going to paint the woodwork on the outside next week. Brother Henderson says that we now have one of the best rural churches in the Conference. We certainly are proud of our church.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met Thursday evening, March 2, with Mrs. J. E. Hartis. Mrs. M. L. Stallings led in prayer. We had good attendance. After the program Mrs. Hartis served delicious refreshments. We adjourned to meet at the parsonage with Mrs. Henderson next month.

We are glad to report that Mrs. P. L. Garmon is again able to be up.

Pray for us that we may receive many blessings during this year.

Best wishes to the Herald and all its readers. MRS. M. L. STALLINGS, Reporter.

Whitaker's Church.—Since my last report we have lost by death our oldest member. Some others of our number are on the sick list; hope they will soon be well again and in their accustomed places. Some of us attended the Area meeting in Enfield and enjoyed it.

We are expecting to observe Easter with an appropriate service.

Our attendance at Sunday school is not as good as we would like.

We had very good attendance at church services a month ago.

Best wishes for the Herald.

Mt. Hermon Church.—Our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, preached Sunday morning, March 19. The scripture lesson was taken from the 34th Psalm. The text for the lesson was a continuation of a series of sermons on "Heaven," "Lay up treasures for yourself in heaven." If we do not make provisions and lay up treasures in heaven we need not expect to have treasures there. The pastor commented on the large attendance today. May we surprise him next time by having a filled house; let's all ask a friend or neighbor to go with us. Quite a few old faces were missing in the congregation; hope to see them back with us on the first Sunday evening at 3 p. m. Come in time for Sunday school at 2 o'clock.

We are planning for our Easter service, which comes on April 16th. It is hoped that a large attendance will be present on that day. REPORTER.

Tabernacle.—On Sunday, March 5th, our pastor gave us another one of his splendid sermons, using as his subject, "Strength vs. Weakness." A large crowd was present to hear this fine message.

Our C. E. Society holds its own in attendance. It is very interesting, as our pastor, Mr. Curry, is lecturing every Sunday night on the Bible. You are always welcome to our society.

Circle No. 2 met Wednesday, February 15, at the parsonage with Mrs. Curry. Miss Margaret Curry opened the meeting with a piano solo; Mrs. Curry conducted the devotionals. Rev. Mr. Curry then spoke. Mrs. P. A. Hardin read a paper, "Gratitude for Lives Transformed." During the business session officers for the new year were elected: Chairman, Mrs. Eddie Horney; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Milton Causey. The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Curry.

Plans are being made for an Easter program. Members of the C. E. are to present the pageant, "The Lord of Life."

Miss Margaret Curry visited friends in Greensboro last week-end.

Miss Jessie Curry spent the week-end with her parents.

Miss Mary Emily Jones spent the week-end with her parents.

Miss Kate Smith spent the week-end with Miss Mae York at Julian.

With best wishes to the Herald and all its readers. REPORTER.

Thomasville, First.—Our reporter has been reporting regularly the activities of our work and doing it so efficiently that it has not been necessary for me to write. But some things happen to a pastor and family that naturally call for expression on their part. Such was the case last week.

Someone announced a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary which had been duly scheduled to meet at the parsonage on Thursday evening, March 9, and in making this announcement she stated that they were going to "storm the preacher with such a crowd he will not have room to accommodate us." And sure enough, they did it! Both men and women! And the appearance of men at such a meeting was a sure evidence that something unusual was going to happen. Another evidence was that everybody carried a package and arrived at the same time. No one made a halt until he had reached the dining room and deposited his load on the table. When the table was filled to its capacity they placed the remainder on the floor around the table.

Well, it is useless for me to say that we are happy in the thought that we will not have to buy many groceries for a while. We appreciate very much the value of the gifts, but it is not their value that we appreciate most, but rather the spirit that prompted the giving. We only hope to be able to render service to our people worthy of their kindness. T. GLENN MADISON.

Corinth Church, Littleton Circuit.—Rev. P. E. Bingham gave us a grand sermon on the first Sunday morning. His subject was "The Bible." After the sermon the Lord's Supper was observed.

Since our last report Mr. Jesse Day and Miss Louise Giles, two of our young members, were married at Emporia, Va., on March 1st. We wish for these young folks much happiness through life's journey.

On the first Sunday in March Mrs. Pattie King, who died in the Henderson hospital, was buried in the church cemetery beside her husband. Mrs. King once held her membership with this church, but after moving away from the community she moved her church letter. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved ones.

Thursday, March 16th, Mr. George Johnston's funeral was preached at this church and his body laid to rest in the church cemetery. Mr. Johnston was taken with pneumonia and lived only a few days. Mr. Johnston was one of our most faithful church members. For several years he was one of the stewards. He was never absent from a quarterly conference as long as he was an official member, and as long as he lived near the church he was never absent at a preaching service or Sunday school, and he always brought his car full, too. The church has certainly lost a good member. The large crowd present at his funeral and the floral offering showed in what high esteem he was held. Our deepest sympathy goes out to his wife and children.

South Winston.—Last Sunday was a beautiful Sabbath day. There was something in the air that seemed to suggest that spring was approaching. The sound of the bell seemed to call the men, women and children of our community to come and worship.

Our attendance, has been somewhat off during the winter months. Our building, being incomplete, it has been disagreeable to hold services in it, but through the coldest and roughest weather the faithful few have struggled thus far, and we believe that now that the weather is getting better, our attetndance will grow and by next winter through prayer and co-operaion our church will be completed.

The building committee have suggested that each class should finish their own classroom. I think it's wonderful to know that the Beginners' class has already raised enough money, bought ceiling, and their classroom is almost finished.

We wish to express our gratitude to the president of our Conference and all Methodist Protestants who have helped us raise funds. May God bestow His richest blessings upon each and everyone.

Next Sunday our pastor, Brother Atlas Ridge, will be with us for both morning and night services.

Winston-Salem, First.—Family Day, observed yesterday morning, was quite a success. There were a number of families present a hundred per cent strong, and this in spite of an electric storm and heavy rain. All the members of families had been asked to sit together. Even the members of the choir were allowed to go down and sit with families following the worship service. First honors went to Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Carroll, who had a family of ten present. Second honors went to the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tise, who had nine present, while the families of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Voss and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith tied for third place with six each present.

Our reporter, Miss Pauline Branson, who has been sick for the past 17 weeks, is beginning to walk a little now. We hope she may be able to attend church before many more weeks.

People of this city and the adjoining counties are to have a great treat next Sunday by the coming of Dr. E. Stanley Jones of India, missionary, author, preacher, one of the most outstanding missionaries of this generation. He is advertised to spend two hours with the ministers at Centenary M. E. Church, South, beginning at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. At 7:30 o'clock there will be a union service of all the churches in the Reynolds auditorium. We are hoping that Methodist Protestants for miles around will take advantage of this wonderful opportunity of hearing him.

Rev. Roy I. Farmer, of High Point, is assisting in a revival meeting at the Calvary Moravian church here. This church is one of the largest of the dozen or more Moravian churches in or near this city. Much interest is being manifested. On last Friday night there were something like 40 professions and reconsecrations.

Rev. H. F. Surratt will assist in our revival services beginning Wednesday night, April 19. J. E. PRITCHARD.

Midland.—Our work here at Midland is growing with increased interest. Sunday school is growing rapidly in numbers, as well as preaching service. The stewards are showing greater interest than last year, with much better results. The circuit called a steward's meeting of the charge and with other important measures adopted, put on an eggs program. Each member is to contribute one dozen eggs or its equivalent each week. The people are talking hold of it with a will and fine results are being realized. It looks now as if this will solve our financial problems.

Sunday was a busy day for us—traveled 90 miles, conducted one funeral, preached twice, visited some sick folks and got in at 10 p. m.

Our second quarterly conference will be held at Pine Blue church on Saturday before the first Sunday in April at 2 p. m. Come on, officials; the conference will tell who is interested. W. D. REED.

First Church, Charlotte.—The usual services of the church are well attended and new members are being enrolled from time to time in the various departments.

Our pastor, Rev. G. H. Hendry, and wife are assisting in a series of sermons at Monroe. Much interest is manifest and many souls are being brought into the Kingdom. The pastor of the Monroe church, Rev. Mr. Clark, and Bro. Hendry exchanged pulpits last Sunday. Bro. Clark delighted his audience with an inspirational and refreshing sermon on Character-Building. Good folks, you are losing a blessing when you absent yourselves from the house of God.

The cottage prayer services are gaining in numbers and interest.

The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its monthly meeting with Mrs. J. J. Atkins Tuesday afternoon. Since this will be the last meeting before Branch Meeting we hope to have a large attendance.

The first Sunday in April we will observe the anniversary of the founding of our church here; hope to give you something more definite in regard to the program next week.

The C. E. Society had charge of the evening worship hour last Sunday in the absence of the pastor. Mr. Luther Medlin, of Gastonia, state president of the C. E., gave the principal address, which was well received by an interested audience.

The various Sunday school classes are arranging weiner roasts and various outings now that spring days have come again.

Miss Barbara Younginer was elected superintendent of the Young People's Department at their meeting last week.

We are glad to report that Mr. Steve Condor is able to be out again, after an illness of several weeks. We miss our good, faithful members when they are absent.

The Area meeting last week was an interesting event. While the attendance was small, those present entered heartily into the discussions and were well repaid for having come. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll was the principal speaker and he delighted his hearers with his message concerning the needs of the church and some of the suggested ways to enlist and interest the church people.

The chicken-pie supper was a success from every standpoint and our treasury was benefited to the amount of $12.75. We hope to have another soon. REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—The attendance and interest at our services for the past two Sundays were good and our work is moving along as well as usual. The second Saturday and Sunday were spent with the people of Union Hill church, and last Saturday and Sunday we were with the people of Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle churches. The services last Sunday were fairly well attended, considering the unfavorable weather.

On our return from the appointments at Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle churches last Sunday it was the pleasure of the writer to stop in Winston-Salem and worship with the congregation of the South Winston church. It was my first visit to this church and I enjoyed it very much. Rev. Atlas Ridge, of Lexington, has been preaching for the church since the resignation of Rev. Mr. Crisler several weeks ago. It was my purpose to hear him preach, but he persuaded me to speak to the people, and it was an inspiration to speak to them, because they were very attentive. They held their quarterly conference just preceding the service Sunday night.

Any of our pastors or other friends outside of Lexington who may wish to visit the writer and family will find us located at 205 West Seventh Avenue, Lexington. We shall be glad for our friends to call to see us when in Lexington or passing through the town.

Next Sunday will be spent with the people of Harmony Grove church and the regular service will be conducted there at 11 a. m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—Another lovelp spring Sabbath day has passed and again we had a lovely and inspiring service, or I should have said three services, as it was divided into Sunday school, Thank-Offering service, and a short service by our beloved pastor, Bro. C. L. Spencer.

Our Sunday school attendance was very good, 60 being present; all officers and teachers were on the job. Our temperance lesson was very appropriate just as this time when when our whole nation is so aroused over the political question of prohibition. May God bless us and help us to stand firm and strong for the right.

After Sunday school we had a short Thank-Offering service with the following program: 96th Psalm, read by Mrs. H. L. Wright; duet, by Misses Marie and Carolyn Hight; recitation, Miss Shirley Harris; recitation, Miss Virginia Harris; recitation, Sue Margaret Harris; "A Story," read by Miss Collins; duet, Mrs. Oscar Lloyd and Miss Collins. Mr. Spencer gave us a short sermon, taking his text from Romans 10:14-15: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed, and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard, and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they be sent? As it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things." The collection was fair, considering the stringency of the times.

We had cause to be doubly thankful today when one of our dear members, Mrs. W. H. Greenway, wife of our very efficient steward, was able to come to worship with us for the first time in three months. Mrs. Greenway, who is one of our most faithful workers, has had a very serious illness; in fact, for days her life was despaired of but, thanks to Him who doeth all things well,she is able to be with us again.

Our Auxiliary meeting will be held March 22 with Miss Crystal Bobbitt. As this will be the last meeting of the missionary year we are hoping for a large attendance and collection so we will have a good report to send in. And may God bless us and guide so that when we make our final report it may meet with His strict approval and we may hear His blessed "well done." REPORTER.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, filled his appointment last Sunday afternoon at 2:30. He brought another splendid sermon, using for the scripture lesson the 13th chapter of First Corinthians. We were delighted to have the Ingram Pals, male quartet, sing for us at this service.

The Christian Endeavor Society held its regular monthly business meeting and social at the home of Misses Nelda and Edna McGee on Wednesday evening, March 8. The president, Miss Rachel Ingram, presided during the business session. After the business was transacted the social was held and a good time was reported by all.

Our Sunday school continues to grow and is doing fine work. We hope with spring here it will still grow both in spirit and number.

We are glad to report that the sick in the community are improving.

English Street Church, High Point.—Sunday evening our pastor brought to us a wonderful message on "The Empty House." His text was taken from Matthew 12:44. He made a beautiful comparison of a man's life without Christ—to an empty house. An empty house, with character left at home, is a desolate place. So is the life of man when the evil man is driven out, and the spirit of God is not invited in. He stated that man can not stay in this desolate, lonesome condition long. If Christ is not taken in Satan soon becomes master of the situation, and there finds dwelling. He also pointed out that we are landlords of our own souls. We can invite whom we wish to some into our house; also we can shut the door to God or to Satan. We are in a dangerous position, because our house can not stay deserted. There is one remedy: it is Jesus Christ. The love of Christ will drive out the evil spirit, and lead the way to an eternal home.

Preparations are being made for Easter programs. Miss Carrie Moore is in charge of the children. The C. E. Society is also planning to present an Easter pageant.

Much interest is being shown in the Wednesday evening prayer services. On last Wednesday we had a good attendance and an inspiring meeting.

On Tuesday, March 14, at the quarterly mass meeting of Christian Endeavor of High Point, our society was presented the award for the best work during the quarter. The total points acquired were over 2,000. The society reported seven new members. Much work has been done in putting on programs of various kinds. The report also showed a good deal of work in social service and that of philanthropic nature. The Intermediates were also the recipients of the award given to Intermediates.

Mrs. J. A. Bowers has been ill for the past few weeks. We regret to report that her condition doesn't seem much improved. We hope she will soon be well again.

First Church, High Point.—The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, is conducting a series of services in Calvary Moravian church, Winston-Salem, of which Dr. Edward Schwarze is pastor. In his absence the pulpit on Sunday morning was occupied by Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College, who delivered a comforting message on the theme, "Signs of the Presence of God With Us," from Leviticus 26:12, "And I will walk among you and will be your God, and ye shall be my people." He gave four proofs by which we may know that God has not forgotten us today: if we have power to overcome temptation, He is with us; if love is moving in the hearts of men, God is here; if great humanitarian movements, of which there are 150 to 200 in effect in the world toda, go forward, then we may know that God is present with us; and if peace dwells in the hearts of men, we feel God's presence, and know that He reigns in the earth. We can not live as Christ did when among men, but we may live in His spirit. The choir rendered a lovely anthem by Nevin, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," solo parts being sung by Miss Anne Robbins and C. L. Gray, Jr., with beautiful effect. Prof. Ernest B. Stimson was the accompanist at the organ. At the same hour the Junior church service for children between seven and eleven years of age was directed by Miss Naomi Dawson. The evening service was conducted by Dr. Lindley, and C. L. Gray, Jr., sang very beautifully "Hear My Cry," by Milligan.

The Young People's C. E. Society by special invitation attended services at Calvary Moravian church, Winston-Salem, Sunday evening.

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held their final meetings for the fiscal year on Monday afternoon in the following homes: No. 4, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, chairman, with Mrs. W. P. Pickett, 802 North Main street; No. 5, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, chairman, with Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., 612 North Main street; No. 6, Mrs. S. D. Shelton, chairman, with the chairman, 1204 Shelton street; No. 7, Mrs. J. H. Allred, chairman, with Miss Ida Davis, 109 Parkway; No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Gunn, chairman, with Mrs. F. R. Auman, 801 Montlieu avenue; No. 2, Mrs. Lucy Oakes Harper, chairman, will meet Tuesday evening with Miss Nellie Martin, 600 North Main street, and No. 3, Mrs. N. P. Yarborough, chairman, place and time to be announced later. In the future, according to a change made at the last Auxiliary meeting, the Circles will meet each first Monday of the month, followed by the general Auxiliary meeting on the subsequent Monday; the executive board will be called to meet on convenient and necessary dates. The Auxiliary is closing up the year's work, and it is found that the sum of $1,500 has been raised for the past year, $900 for the missionary budget and $600 for the church building fund. At a called meeting last Sunday morning following the worship service, it was voted to instruct our delegates to Branch Meeting that we will accept the same budget again.

The Senior C. E. Society met in weekly session Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and Mr. Lester Furr, of the College, led discussion on the topic, "Why Should I Belong to the Church?"

The annual Leadership Training School of the High Point District is meeting Monday evening in the first of a series of sessions, other being Thursday evening, March 23, and three sessions next week on Monday, Tuesday, and Friday evenings. Prof. C. R. Hinshaw will teach a course on "Principles of Teaching;" Miss Mary Young, "A Study of the Pupil;" Mrs. Curtiss Koontz, of Lexington, "Primary Methods," and Mrs. H. W. Maier, of Lexington, "Worship.' Dr. S. W. Taylor will teach a young people's course on "Christian Living." and Rev. Nat M. Harrison one on "Stewardship." While the Methodist Protestant church is sponsoring this training school, other denominations are cordially invited to send representatitvets to take this training. Rev. Mr. Harrison will be he dean of the school and Dr. Taylor will conduct the devotional periods.

The music contest in voice and piano will be staged at High Point College on Saturday, April 23, and registration must be made with Prof. Stimson not later than April 15, according to announcement by Rev. Nat M. Harrison. The winner in voice or piano will be awarded a music tuition scholarship at the College for 1933-34. A reservation fee of $5.00 must be deposited before July 1. An oration and essay contest will be held at the College on April 23, and a similar one at Columbia, S. C., on April 6 and 7. The same awards will be made in South Carolina as in this state. Already 65 contestants have registered . Winner of first place in the oration and essay contest will be given free room, board and tuition at the college for next school year. Second place winner will be given a $100 tuition scholarship and winner of third place will receive a $50.00 scholar ship.

It was a source of disappointment to many adherents of prohibition that Dr. Ira T. Landrith, former college president and leader of temperance reform, was compelled to cancel his engagement to address a mass meeting at Wesey Memorial M. E. church last Sunday on account of the serious illness of his daughter.

The cordial sympathy of many friends is extended to Mrs. J. H. Jennings in the death of her father, Mr. Henry Yow, aged 82 years, at her home, 1001 Lindsay street, on Tuesday evening, March 14. Mr. Yow had made his home with Mrs. Jennings for the past eight years, and had been ill for one year. He had been a faithful and consistent member of Pleasant Grove Christian church in Randolph County for 52 years. He is survived by two daughters and seven sons. Brief funeral services were conducted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings on Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock by Rev. R. I. Farmer before the funeral party left for Pleasant Grove, where at 1 o'clock p. m., the funeral proper was held by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Green. Grandsons of the deceased served as pallbearers, and the flowers were carried by several granddaughters. Mr. Yow was the grandfather of Miss Louise Jennings, librarian at High Point College, and of C. Virgil Yow, assistant coach at the same institution.

Next Monday, March 27, at the College, Miss Mary Young plans to conduct the Foreign Study Book, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China," in an unique manner. A group of College students will present a playlet, "Thanksgiving Ann," the theme of which is "Tithing" in the auditorium. Then the party will move from one room to another for each of the 12 chapters of the book, pausing ten minutes in each room, and closing the progression in the dining hall where refreshments will be served. Every member of the Auxiliary is invited to attend. Mrs. A. G. Dixon presented the Home Mission Study Book a few weeks ago at the home of Mrs. P. S. Kennett.

Congratulations are bestowed upon the following young friends, pupils of City High School and Junior High, upon the attainment of grades high enough to place their names on the honor roll: Margaret Dixon and Leonard Koonce, seniors, John W. Thacker, Junior, Dorothy Davis, Sophomore, and Mildred free, Reginald Hinshaw, Raymond York, Joe Gray and Y. S. Cecil, Freshmen. In the Junior High School are listed Mary Louise Boyd, Martha Moffitt, Jack Lee and Burke Koontz.

Prof. R. T. Pickens will go to Charlotte Wednesday with a party of friends to attend the State Conference, Daughters of the American Revolution. The sessions will be held in Hotel Charlotte.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our Sunday school still improves as the weather does, and we hope to continue so. Our number on roll is 111 and on the second Sunday, including a number of visitors whom we are always glad to have, we had present 111.

Our pastor, Mr. Love, preached two interesting, inspiring sermons the second Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. Love have won the love of all they have met. "They are so friendly," you hear everyone say. We feel they are going to prove a blessing to the church and community are hoping we will be one to them.

We are looking forward to having Mr. Tracy Burton, a young man formerly of this community, preach to us the fourth Sunday morning.

An Easter program has been started under the sponsorship of Miss Emma Lee Poole, Mrs. N. G. McClimon's and Mrs. R. I. Bennette. Our first practice will be Wednesday night of this week at the church.

Several familiar faces were missed at Sunday because of sickness. This included Mrs. Tom Gaston, Miss Lucille Davis, Little Benjamin and Junior McClimon and Elaine Harrison. Mrs. W. R. Harrison is still confined to her home. We wish for one and all a speedy recovery.

We are indeed proud of the fine work being done on the church grounds. The grove of trees below the church has been topped and cleared of underbrush so that it is possible to view the spring at the foot of the hill from the church. Formerly there had been a spring there but because of the situation, with the graveyard at the top of the hill, no one dared drink the water. But several weeks ago some of the men of the church sent for the Spartanburg health officers who examined it and told them how to fix the spring so it would be pure and the surface water would be run off. They built a cement spring cemented to the rock to prohibit the surface water running in. There are also cement steps leading to the spring from either side. Two weeks after the spring was finished the health officers took some of the water to examine it—and found it pure! So this is something of which we are extremely proud.

We ask the prayers of all praying people for a successful year. REPORTER.

Gibsonville-Fountain Place.—To say we are not making progress, notwithstanding the fact that finances are farther behind than usual, would not be putting it in the true light. After all, it is not what people give so much as what they would give had they the ability. There are many folks who have not learned to practice self-denial is the reason that there is a shortage in the Lord's treasury. When Moses said, "Would God all the Lord's people were prophets," to be sure he did not mean for them all to prophesy, but to have the spirit of self-denial that the true prophet must have if he does God's bidding.

Our congregations are encouraging. Owing to the fact that there were no evening services at Gibsonville for a year previous to the present pastorate, it took some time to build up the congregation for that hour. But that is much better now and there is a marked increase in the other services. But even then there is great room for improvement. There is an increase in the attendance at Fountain Place also. We are planning to try to get those who have become careless about church attendance to come to some of the services during the month of April. Members who have been so faithful in other things are being asked to make a special effort to get these to church.

We are not planning any stunts to interest them when they come—nothing but the plain Gospel as best we understad it, for so many stunts have been tried now that many are "stunted" spiritually. Will you please pray for us in these efforts?

It is a great thing to live in a good neighborhood. Especially does this give encouragement in a time when money it not coming in to pay the bills. We have some who never forget. We have some that we call "Back Way Neighbors," who slip in the back way and hand you things that tempt the appetite and make one feel as if they are of some importance at least to be remembered kindly. Shall not give you the names of these particular ones, but shall give a list of all who have helped this year with things that helped to reduce expenses for the things that are necessary: Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Stewart, Miss Florence Kivett, Misses Stacy and Dorothy Walls, Mrs. Kenneth Williams, Misses Lessie Faucett, Marie Summers. Mary Ruth Huffman, Hilda Amick, Hazel Woodward, Emma Baldwin, Camille Kivett, Mabel and Alma McCollum, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jennings, Mrs. Ralph Allen, Mrs. Sam Beckom, Mrs. G. L. Amick, Mrs. Wade Fogleman, Mrs. Walter Petty, G. J. Yow, Mrs. Linley Gibbs, Mrs. W. E. Anderson, Mrs. P. P. Kivett, J. W. Paylor, W. A. Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Summers, Mrs. C. C. Shepherd, Mrs. Hugh Lucas, Henry Gibbs, Mrs. Thomas Sutton, Mrs. George Petty, Harvey McCollum, and Mrs. J. T. Rountree.

We thank all these who have helped so much to make the burden lighter. We are here for service, and if in any way we can repay in helping you to a better life we are at your command.

May these changing scenes through which we are passing now that try our faith in many ways bring us by His help to the things that are far better than these which pass with the using. N. G. BETHEA.

Kernersville.—The pastor and family appreciate a great deal the pounding given by the Kernersville people. These folks do a good job when they do a thing like this. In these times of depression when money is scarce, the products grown on the farm and otherwise substitute for money. We just can't thank these good people enough for this. I hope this will continue throughout the Conference.

C. L. GRANT.

Shoals, Pinnacle-Mount Zion Circuit.—On the second Sunday the usual program of services was observed.

At 11 o'clock our pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, gave us a wonderful message.

At 7:30 in the evening the Thank-Offering service was given by the Woman's Auxiliary and directed by Mrs. O. F. Hauser. The offering amounted to $9.18.

The son of Mr. R. T. Moser, who has been ill is again restored tohealth.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Mary J. Campbell, who has been ill and confined at her home for about four weeks, is improving. We hope to see her back in Sunday school again soon.

There has been quite a bit of work done on the church grounds of late by the free labor.

REPORTER.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 387. The church attendance was also good. Rev. Morgan gave us two real good sermons Sunday.

The Area meeting was very much enjoyed by all the folks. I don't know just how many pastors were present as I did not get to attend the meeting.

On Tuesday night the stewards held their meeting with about 40 present. This meeting was held for the stewards and all officials of the church and Sunday school teachers and officers. The talks were all good and I think it would have been fine if every church member could have been present and heard the talks.

The Woman's Missionary Society held their joint meeting Monday night. This being the last meeting of the missionary year, our officers were elected for next year. Mrs. Ernest Litaker was elected president for another year and we hope all will co-operate with her and make this next year the best at all. This meeting was very sad in a way as we held a memorial service in honor of two of our sisters who have gone on before to be in the Big Circle around God's throne, Mrs. J. M. Blacwkwelder and Mrs. Coy Smith.

The lives of these two sisters meant much to us church folks and every word that was said in their honor was straight from the heart.

Mrs. J. L. Sides and Mrs. Fred Helms have dressed up the Cradle Roll classroom with a new rug, which is appreciated very much. Mr. Horace Sides furnished some lumber and Mr. J. M. Blackwelder made a box for the toys that are used in the Cradle Roll class. This was also very much appreciated.

We are glad to report that our pastor's wife is much improved and we ohpe she will be able to be at church next Sunday.

Grandma Thomas is some better.

Calvary, Greensboro.—There are some encouraging features about the work here at Calvary that, in these days when encouraging features are rather scarce, may be of interest.

1. Last night 20 of our men sat down to supper in the first regular meeting of the re-organized Men's Brotherhood, listened to a couple of good speeches from two visitors from the Brotherhood of the First Lutheran church, and got started off to do a fine piece of work for Calvary church. About the weakest link in the work here has been on the men's side of the house. They have been willing, sacrificial, but there has been little team-work. I think we have started something now that will mean a great deal for the men and for the church.

2. I was delighted to hear last night that progress is being made toward the formation of a troop of Boy Scouts in connection with Calvary church. This is something we have wanted and needed; but until now no one seemed available to head it up. But it looks like we are developing two good leaders instead of one. So we are in a fair way to get this started. We have a fine group of boys and under the proper leadership they can become a great asset to the church.

3. The Auxiliary is closing a successful year. The last meeting was held on Monday, and reports indicated that the women had almost reached the goal of $1,000. With two or three things they have on before the close of the Branch year, they may yet attain unto the goal of the prize. It's a great adventure of faith to try to raise a thousand dollars in times like these with folks no better situation financially than are our people. These women, under the leadership of Mrs. J. Frank Coble, have done a good work and deserve a great deal of praise.

4. We were glad to receive two more members by letter last Sunday, making 14 for the year and 162 since I became pastor. We are hoping to make our net membership 300 by the anniversary next month. We only have 12 to get to reach that goal, and they are in sight.

5. Some coming events which cast their shadow before: Friday night of this week "A Trip Around the World." It will cost 10 cents for a ticket, (5 cents for children), which, you will agree, is pretty cheap for such a long journey. And you will not have to leave the Hut to make the trip, nor take any baggage with you. On Tuesday, April 4 in the auditorium of the Caldwell school, a musical entertainment will be given. Unusual instruments will be used, and the affair promises to be a real treat. If you live anywhere within a hundred miles of Greensboro, come along and help us out. C. W. BATES.

NEWS FROM HIGH POINT COLLEGE

After a lapse of two years baseball is being resumed at High Point College this year. Coach Virgil Yow will be in charge of this sport and prospects point toward a very successful season.

The schedule of conference play was completed some time ago and will include games with practically every school in the North State Conference. Other games are being scheduled, resulting in a well-rounded list for the season.

The Mid State High School Basketball tournament, which was staged at High Point College and occupied the better part of a week, closed last Tuesday night March 14, with a game between Staley and Welcome, with the latter winning the trophy in the Group B section of the tournament.

A music contest for high school seniors, or graduates who have not attended college, will be held at High Point College, April 23. The contestants will compete in piano and voice, and must render from memory two numbers of his own selection. Each contestant in piano must have had three years training in piano, and in voice two years training. The winner in either contest will be awarded a music scholarship to High Point College.

Last week was rush week for the fraternities and sororities at High Point College. Each organization gave a number of dinner and theatre parties, teas, etc., to those whom they contemplated inviting to join.

The Delta Alpha Epsilon: C. T. Morris, Salisbury, Md.; Harold Bivens, Hillsboro; Thurman Lohr, Bill Snow, and Joe Weaver, High Point; Millard Isley, Burlington; and Bill Von Brehle, Mars Hill.

The Iota Tau Kappa: Conald Knopp, Rochester, Pa.; Donald Hunter, Greensboro; Ingle, Siler City; and Edward Sharpe, of Greensboro.

The sororities invited the following young ladies to become members: Signa Alpha Phi, Margaret Sears, Dixie Thomas, and Lake Montgomery, High Point; Lois Bivens, Hillsboro; Pattie Bartee Reidsville; Mary Parham, Henderson; Mary Lewis Skeen, Farmer; and Mary Ward Johnson, Burlington.

Theta Phi: Dorothea Andrews, Ruth Spicer Clark, Julia Gold Clark, and Mildred Johnson, High Point; Malinda Connolly, Taylorsville; Dot Perry, Thomasville; and Lillian Varner, Morganton.

Alpha Theta Psi: Nell Brower and Wilma Rogers, High Point; Imogene Kennedy and Hazel Wilborne, Thomasville, Pattie Mason, Reidsville.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Isley

Mrs. Matilda Rachael Isley was born in Guilford County, December 12, 1851, passed away at her home March 11, 1933, age 81 years, two months, 29 days. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Phillippi.

She is survived by her aged husband and companion, Jacob L. Isley; four daughters, Mrs. Z. V. Coble, Mrs. Frank Amick, Mrs. Moody Shoffner, and Mrs. Anne Cobb; three sons, J. Moody Isley, Daniel Isley, and T. C. Isley; one sister, Mrs. Peter Black; one brother, Alex Phillippi; and thirty-five grandchildren; eighteen great grandchildren.

The deceased was a member of Friendship M. P. church. She will be greatly missed by the community of which she had been a part for over fifty years.

The funeral was conducted at Friendship by the writer, assisted by Dr. F. W. Paschall. H. L. Isley and K. G. Holt. The body was laid to rest in the church cemetery, in the midst of a large host of friends and underneath a beautiful mound of flowers.

The aged husband and the family have our sympathy.

Cutchin

Mrs. Cornelia Wheless Cutchin, relict of the late J. M. Cutchin who precended her to the home of the soul eight years ago was called home on the night of February 20th. She had lived a long life, being in her ninetieth year. She was loyal and faithful to her family and served her generation well. When she was younger and stronger she was true to church and Sunday school. Aunt Nellie, as she was lovingly called by a number of connections, was the mother of a big family, 11 in number. All of these children lived to be grown; two were taken in early manhood and womanhood. Hers was a family for which to be thankful—all true, worthy citizens. For several years she had been almost a shut-in and often Sunday evenings and nights her home was the gathering-place for her children, several living at some distance could not be with her so often. One son, living in the town went to see her every Sunday night unless he was out of town on important duties elsewhere. She was blessed with having a faithful housekeeper, nurse and companion, all in one, with her for many years, who feels her loss very keenly.

Her burial was conducted by her pastor, assisted by a former pastor of the local Baptist church, who had lived here a number of years and was a friend of the family. The active pall-bearers were from among her many grandsons.

May God's richest blessings rest on all whose lives were touched by hers.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

—Avery County irish potato growers have closed a contract to sell 3,250 bushels of No. 1 potatoes to a federal institution across the Tennessee line.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

The Incarnation

We will call attention to a few of the many texts which set forth the truth of the incarnation. We begin with John's Gospel. John 1:1, "In the beginning was the word and the word was with God and the word was God." John 1:14, "And the word was made flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." This verse clearly identifies the word with the Son of God. John 14:9, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." John 10:30, "I and my Father are one." Paul says in I Tim. 3:16, "God was manifest in the flesh."

The first great truth that impresses us in studying the doctrine of the incarnation is, the love of God was moving cause. John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." God's love for us makes our interest his, our problems his, and our happiness his. Love for a person makes everything that concerns that person of equal concern to the one who loves Zech. 2:8, "For he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye." Isaiah 43:25, "I even I am he that blotteth out thy transgression for mine own sake."

We see in the incarnation a combination of the love and wisdom of God. Divine love desires that all men everywhere may know him that they may trust him, love and worship him and therefore become like him. The true believer in Christ is a reproduction of him and less than he in degree only.

The wisdom of God is clearly seen in his choosing flesh and blood to express himself. Men may know something of God in observing the world and all nature about them. God spoke to the world through his prophets and his inspired word, but the human heart and mind could not comprehend him as a loving Father through all these. It remained for the Lord of glory to be made flesh and dwell among men that they might know God. Men have expressed themselves in various ways, some in granite, some in wood and some with pen and ink but Almighty God expressed himself in flesh. It was the wisdom of God that selected flesh to reveal the true God to man.

When men and women saw Jesus take little children in his arms and bless them, when they saw him touch the sick and heal them, when they saw him raise the dead, when they heard him speak to the penitent sinner saying "thy sins are forgiven thee," they were seeing and hearing God.

Man was created in the image of his creator and after his likeness that he might be the companion of his creator and he did fellowship with God until sin entered into the human heart. The final end of the incarnation is that man may again sup with God and he with him.

Let Us Take Time

One writer said, "Be still and know that I am God." But the prosperity with which we have been blessed, and the modern machinery we have learned to operate have made it almost impossible for us to escape the mania for speed. The very atmosphere about us seems to urge us on. We hear voices everywhere commanding us to speed up. On the highways we find conditions that shock us. People in their mad haste to get ahead of each other have strewn the way with wreckage. This mania for speed has invaded our homes and places of worship. Very often in the home our haste has destroyed the atmosphere that is so essential for a true home. Many times the reverence has been destroyed in the house of worship. The preacher must rush through with his message and let the people be on their way to something else. We limit God when we say, "Now, Lord, if you have anything for me I must have it in the next thirty minutes."

The friends of Jesus tried to hurry him. They came to him and said, "If thou do these things show thyself to the people." On one occasion they wanted to take him by force and make him king. But Jesus would not be forced into announcing himself. He would not permit any one to hurry with his program. He would not let his disciples hurry into the field. They must tarry at Jerusalem. From a human standpoint it looked like a waste of time. We can almost hear them complaining. No doubt they felt that they ought to be on the way telling the world what they had seen and heard, but the command to tarry must be obeyed.

Is our haste an evidence of strength? One writer said, "In quietness and in confidence shall your strength be." He that believeth shall not make haste."

We might avoid many of the ills of life if we would just take a little more time. It is possible that our mania for speed has contributed largely to our financial troubles. In our haste many times we have failed to count the cost till it was too late. We believe that many of the false doctrines that are so prevalent today can be traced, in part, to our haste. The devil has always found it to his advantage to get people to rush into things. The first temptation and the temptation of Jesus give abundant proof of this.

Just at this time there is great haste on the part of some to repeal laws that have proved a blessing to many, and put in their place laws that will prove a curse to all decency-loving people. Why this haste to give people drink? Can we not see the hand of the destroyer in all of it? Let us heed the injunction of the old hymn,

> "Take time to be holy,
> Speak oft with thy Lord."

A VENTURE IN UNDERSTANDING

Our missionaries in foreign lands naturally come into contact with the various great non-Christian religions. The better class leaders of these faiths are working for the well-being of their people—even as are our missionaries. Helpful relations are being established and development, such as C. B. Olds, an American missionary in Japan, describes in his account of the opening of what is called "A Venture in Understanding." He says::

"An effort that we are making in this direction here in Okayama is worthy of attention, I believe, not so much for what it has accomplished as for the evidence it gives that a new attitude is developing. It has grown out of the belief that we all, Budhists, Shintoists, or whatever other faith, have much to learn from each other. Also we feel that if we spiritual leaders are to accomplish anything constructive for the good of society as a whole we ought first to get together as religionists and come to know each other sympathetically.

"With the conviction that this could be done, I set out first, then, simply to get acquainted with some of the best representatives of the several religious sects that were operating in our city or its immediate vicinity. I called first on the leading priest of the Shin sect, visiting him in his temple, where we had a delightful conference together for two hours or more regarding the deeper spiritual values of our lives.

"We had not gone far in our talk together before it became evident to me that there, so far as I was concerned, was an unworked mine of spiritual possibilities, and, so far as he was concerned, a readiness, yes, a hunger, for something more than he had yet got.

"Thinking there must be others like him also, I at length, with some hesitation, suggested the possibility and the desirability of our getting together, a few earnest spirits from the different sects of the several represented in the community, with the frank and avowed purpose of sharing with each other as friends the deepest spiritual experiences of our lives as they had come to us through our several religious faiths.

"The suggestion met with his instant approval, and thereupon we together formulated a plan and made out a list of those who might well be brought into such a group. They must be kindred spirits, not argumentative, not intrenched in prejudice, for all discussion must be on the plane of experience rather than of dogmatism or theory, and there must be no furtive effort at propaganda.

"Everyone must be honest with himself, not surrendering his faith nor softening down his convictions, but outspoken and sincere, holding to what he believed to be the truth and ready to declare it, and yet maintaining a tolerant and open mind. Those were hard conditions to fulfill, so our men had to be chosen carefully.

"But we made out our list; one each from the five leading Buddhist sects in Japan, since all happened to have representatives in Okayama—Shinshu, Shingon, Zen, Tendai, and Nichiren—and besides them, one pure Shintoist and three Christians of whom one is a well-known pastor, one a prominent layman, equally well known and respected, and myself, an American missionary.

"I then proceeded, as I found time, to call on the men whom we had listed, visiting each in his temple or home or office, and in every case I was most cordially received, everyone of them with undisguised enthusiasm acceding to our invitation to join the group." LUTHER K. LONG.

RUTH AND HER SUNDAY SCHOOL

Ruth lived in the country with father and mother. She went to the little community school during the winter months. During the summer she went to spend a month with her grandmother who lived in the city.

Ruth always looked forward for the time to come for her to go and see grandmother. Toward the close of the school Ruth's little heart was thrilled with the joy of going away for a vacation. So on Friday morning Ruth arose early all enthused over the last day of school. Her mother hastened to get her ready for school. While her mother was helping her to put on her coat Ruth said, "Mother, I will go to grandmother's tomorrow." "Yes," said her mother, "you may go tomorrow." All of a sudden Ruth thought of her Sunday School teacher, and said, "If I go away to grandmother's I will miss Sunday School." "O no, my dear! you can go with grandmother to her Sunday School." Ruth said, "Mother, I will stop as I go to school and tell my teacher that I will go with grandmother to her Sunday School, and when she misses me she will know that I am in Sunday School."

Ruth went toward school. She soon overtook little Francis, her neighbor. They went on and soon came to the home of Ruth's Sunday School teacher. Ruth said, "Francis, I am going to see grandmother tomorrow and stay a month. I must tell my Sunday School teacher that I will go with grandmother to her Sunday School." Francis smiled and said, "Your Sunday School teacher cares nothing for you." "Yes, she does, Francis; any good Sunday School teacher loves her class."

Francis could not appreciate the Sunday School like Ruth did because her parents would not go with her to Sunday School. Her father and mother were too worldly, and went to the worldly places, and all their thought was on worldly things. They had no time for the church.

Ruth ran and told her teacher goodby, and hastened on to school. When the day was over she hurried home.

Early in the morning Ruth and daddy set out for grandmother's. In a short while they had arrived at grandmother's. Ruth was glad to see grandmother. She had just been there a little while when she said, "Grandmother, are you going to Sunday School tomorrow?" "Oh yes, dear, I go every Sunday." "Will grandfather go with us?" Grandmother gave her no answer; she knew that grandfather had stopped going to Sunday School. Ruth could not understand why grandfather was not going to Sunday School. Her grandfather was out until late at night. Early in the morning Ruth was up helping grandmother with her breakfast. When breakfast was ready Ruth ran to call grandfather. "Hurry and get up, breakfast is ready, and, too, grandmother and you and I are going to Sunday School."

"O no, Ruth, I can't go! I must rest so I can go to my office Monday." "Well, grandpa, I just can't see why you won't go with us to Sunday School.'' Tears came into Ruth's eyes. She looked into her grandfather's face and said, ''Mother has told me about Jesus and how he loves everybody and did you know he loves you? Mother said he had gone away to prepare a beautiful mansion for all that love him and go to Sunday School. And if you don't go with us to Sunday School he won't build one for you, and money can't buy your place.''

Grandfather dropped his head and with tears in his eyes and said, ''It will, Ruth,'' and embracing her in his arms, he said, ''I have never given any money into the Sunday School, and church, but I am going to start today.''

Ruth, grandmother, and grandfather all went to Sunday School happy. Ruth went to the little girl's class, grandmother went to hers and grandfather went to the men's class.

The teacher said, ''we welcome you into our class. We want you to become a member of our class.'' ''Yes, I want to join the class, I now see life in a new way. I want to spend some of my money in the Sunday School, and its program. I never realized until this morning that it was my duty to God, and my fellowman to help support the Sunday School. My dear little Ruth has led me to see by living like Jesus, attending Sunday School, and helping to bring about his kingdom, that I may pay him for my mansion in the sky.''

If all little girls would work like Ruth many more would be in Sunday School. I wish all sinners had a little Ruth to lead them to find Jesus. C. L. Grant.

WHAT WOULD PLEASE YOUR MINISTER?

Recently in the men's class in Sunday School we were discussing ''Religion in the Pew.''

It seemed a little difficult for some of the laymen to express themselves as to just how they thought concerning their obligations as occupants of the pews. Not many were accustomed to think of the matter objectively or academically. They acknowledged themselves to be, for the most part, quiescent and receptive in church.

One brother thought that a very great service could be rendered by being present and listening attentively to what the minister and the choir had to offer. While this is important, it did not seem to have in it sufficient activity.

Another raised the question of the forms in which the message of the minister came to the pew. Too often, it was thought, the minister is more concerned to present what he considers a finished discourse than he is to reach the hearer with a message that will meet his need for comfort, instruction, and practical guidance in every day Christian living.

All were inclined to grant the minister considerable freedom in thought and conduct—one going so far as to say that the minister need not be any better or live in any finer way than the members of the congregation. Abstractly that was agreed to, but in any particular case it was felt that the character and conduct of the minister should be above reproach, on a higher level than that occupied by the average pewholder. One brother called attention to the high regard his little girls had for their school teachers, and said that he felt the same way about his pastor. He wanted his minister, in his spirit and habits, to be a light and a guide and an inspiration to him.

It fell to my lot to say something about what the minister has a right to expect of the occupants of the pews as they listen to him from Sunday to Sunday and live out in the world during the week. I said something like the following:

1. The minister has a right to expect that the hearers will understand and appreciate his message. Of course the minister is under obligation to make his sermons understandable and worthy of appreciation. That is some job for a man as he stands from week to week before the men and women and children of his congregation. He must work to get his message into shape, and they must work to get hold of it, to understand it, and to appreciate—rightly apprehend and judge—its values. When a minister and a congregation face each other with a great Christian topic between them, there should be real thinking done by both parties.

2. The minister has a right to expect that members of his congregation will grow in Christian character. He is supposed to bring them nourishment for their souls, they are supposed to partake of it and to so exercise themselves that they will grow in the qualities set forth. Not fattened pigs, but men and women of fine characters is what the minister is hoping to develop in his congregation.

3. The minister has a right to expect that something will be done by his hearers concerning what the preacher and the gospel require. Jesus is a leader and a reformer. Here in the pulpit is one of the places to say things that will lead to reformations—in communities, cities, states, and the nation. Here temperance, godliness, fairness in industry and trade, cleanness in politics, statesmanship in handling the affairs of state—may all be advocated fearlessly by the minister and should be accepted and acted upon courageously by the hearers.

4. The minister has a right to expect that those who attend church will combine with him to make the Sunday service a time of inspiring Christian worship and fellowship. The people should come together to give as well as to receive, to sing and join in the responses as well as to hear, to give blessing and good as well as to open themselves to the desirable things that may be coming their way.

5. The minister has a right to expect that the individuals in the congregation will have a mind to be of service to other individuals. People are not saved and built up in wholesale fashion. The sermon, the service may impress many, but the completion of the work is very largely a personal hand to hand, heart to heart matter. The brethren need to learn how to work together with their minister and with each other in this hand-picking of the fruit. More people, after attending a church once—or even many times—lose interest and drop away because no one seems to care for ''my soul''—for me—than for any other reason. Individuals hunger for fellowship—not with multitudes, but with an individual here and there. Men and women like to go to a church that does more than advertise that strangers are welcome. They like to go to a church where folks are welcome, and where the souls of the brethren flow together, and where all feel that ''this is indeed the house of God.'' Luther K. Long.

THE AIM OF MISSIONS

The message presents a way of life and thinking which the Christian conceives, not as his way alone, but as a way for all men.

It is a way which may enter without violence the texture of their living and transform it from within. As Christianity shares this faith with men of all faiths, they become changed into the same substance. The names which now separate them lose their divisive meaning; and there need be no loss of the historic thread of devotion which unites each to its own origins and inspirations.

The goal to which this way leads may be variously described, most perfectly perhaps in the single phrase, Thy Kingdom come. This is, and has always been, the true aim of Christian missions.

Its detail varies as we learn more of what is involved in it. It means to us now, as always, saving life. It means representing to the Orient the spiritual sources of western civilization, while its other aspects, technical and material, are being represented so vigorously, in other ways. It means paving the way for international friendship through a deeper understanding. It means trying more definitely to strengthen our own hold on the meaning of religion in human life. Should we try to express this conception in a more literal statement it might be this:

To seek with people of other lands a true knowledge and love of God, expressing in life and word what we have learned through Jesus Christ, and endeavoring to give effect to his spirit in the life world.

BIBLE STUDY

Keeping Fit Mentally

There can be no true education without the Word of God. It is both the foundation of wisdom and the only infallible standard of morals. The greatest human minds of all history have been unable to produce anything to compare with the Bible. Poor and ignorant indeed is the person who deprives himself of this mine of intellectual and moral wealth. It is true that the Bible is an old Book, and that it does not change with the times. So the sun is old and its style does not change with the changes of the people, yet it lights and warms the world and brings life to all just as successfully now as it has ever done. Even as men seek the place where there is the most sunshine, so we should seek those moral and intellectual centers which give the largest place to the Bible.—Herald of Holiness.

"TO HIDE THE DIRT!"

One day a school inspector was visiting a school, and he arose to give a talk to the boys and girls. He chose the subject of Patriotism, and, as he proceeded, he pointed to the flag draped on the wall, and asked impressively, "What is that flag hanging there for?" A boy replied, "To hide the dirt."

So many people wear the badge and emblem of Christian discipleship just to cover up some blemish, weakness, or fault in their lives. The real work of the Cross is to blot out sin, not to cover it up.—The Elim Evangel.

AN EASTER-TO-PENTECOST CAMPAIGN

In the belief that Easter should be made the starting point instead of the ending of the greatest spiritual harvest time of the year in churches of every denomination, the FAMILY ALTAR LEAGUE OF AMERICA announces a plan for intensive cultivation in the local church of the seven week season between Easter and Pentecost. The plan has been printed in leaflet form under the title "LET US HAVE VICTORY FOR CHRIST AND HIS CHURCH!" and contains suggested procedure in church and Sunday School, in the home and among the various organizations in the church. Suggested outlines for sermons for the seven Sundays, under the title "THE SEVEN CANDLES OF SPIRITUAL POWER," are included.

According to the General Secretary of the League, Rev. Wm. F. McDermott, hundreds of churches throughout the United States and Canada last year carried on Easter-to-Pentecost campaigns with excellent results. Any pastor or church officer may have one or more copies, up to six, free of charge. Requests for the outline of the Easter-to-Pentecost campaign should be sent immediately to the FAMILY ALTAR LEAGUE OF AMERICA, 189 W. Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

STANDING TRUE IN HARD PLACES

Chrysostom had incurred the displeasure of the emperor, Arcadius, by too great frankness in reproving him for his sins. The emperor, unable to devise a form of punishment which seemed adequate to express his indignation, took counsel with his courtiers.

"Exile him!" cried one. "What good will that do?" asked the emperor. "He looks upon the whole world as his fatherland."

"Confiscate his property," suggested a second. "Whom will that harm?" asked the emperor. "Not Chrysostom, but only the poor to whom he gives all that he has."

"Cast him into prison," proposed a third. "What would be the use?" retorted Arcadius. "He would glory in his chains."

"Well, then, kill him, kill him!" cried all the courtiers at once. "How would that help?" asked the emperor. "It would simply open the gates of Heaven to him. Think of something else."

"We must try to make him sin," murmured one courtier, thoughtfully, "Chrysostom is afraid of nothing but sin."

Be like Chrysostom in the courage of your conviction, fearing nothing that man can do to you, in being afraid only of sin.—Our Young Convenanters.

KNOWING THE BIBLE

One of the chief reasons why so many people are led astray today is because they do not know the Scriptures; they do not read them, they do not study them, they do not memorize them. And we should always remember that the Bible was written just as much for the unlearned as for the learned, and that its truths can be grasped by even the most ignorant. That is one of the most marvelous things about the Bible.—J. D. Eggleston, Ph.D.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

Connelly Springs Charge, Rev. L. S. Helms, pastor.—There are now three churches on this group; Shiloh five miles north of Lenoir, Shady Grove and Burke's Chapel. The latter church is five or six miles south of Icard, thus making a shoestring circuit of possibly thirty miles in length for the pastor to serve. The last report gives the charge a membership of 172. The amount paid the pastor was $223 with a few dollars added since conference. Brother Helms is serving his fifth year here and has done good work. Shiloh was practically dead when he went there, the building was out of repair and the few members remaining were discouraged and had quit. There has been quite a substantial membership increase and the attendance at S. S. has more than quadrupled. The Shady Grove church appears to be doing nicely; it has the largest membership and the membership is quite active. There is a small parsonage close to this church; it is not yet complete and there is a small debt on it, which the pastor hopes to raise this year. He is also hopeful of raising the total amount of the Annual Conference budget. I believe there has been as large returns for the real constructive work done by the pastors here as on any of our pastoral charges. But we must remember that but little real constructive work was ever put over here.

A vital question for the conference and the Boundary Committee: what shall we do with Connelly Springs? We can let it alone, of course; it will eventually die and cease to be a source of concern for the conference after a few years. We can continue to send some of our men there who will farm a little while serving the work and keep it alive while they live at a very low standard; we might change the boundary somewhat and make it more nearly supporting, or if we could find a single preacher who would be willing to live among the members while he served them, he would not starve, get a good opportunity to try out his skill at organization and efficient service. I believe some of these alternatives offer a way for the fuller development of this work. And the people deserve a chance to try one that will produce the best results.

The New Church Registers

The price of these registers has been greatly reduced and thus offer to every church a fine opportunity to purchase one and to revise the church roll, putting the names on a clean, new page which will be a great relief to both pastor and people. Order one of the registers at once and start on the work of renewing that old register with a new record.

The Herald

It appears from the facts before me that the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD is about at the end of its years of service. The effort made by the special committees to take care of the deficit in publishing this paper has brought such inadequate returns to the present date that the HERALD is in jeopardy. I somehow still think that if it could be carried to the hearts of our people that the small offerings allotted the churches by the special committee of the last Conference would save the HERALD's life, that every church would proceed to raise that amount. Why has this amount not been raised? I do not know. If some one can explain why so many of our churches have yet to report on this matter, and some of them among the leading churches in the Conference, he or she will thereby render a real service to this cause.

The splendid service which the HERALD has rendered the North Carolina Conference is an open page to every intelligent member of our church. The sacrificial services the Editor has rendered is likewise too well known to require retelling; the amounts asked of the churches have not been so large that the churches could not raise them except by sacrificial gifts. All the above is quite obvious; but what is not plain is why the amounts have not been raised. The time for action has come, the deficit must be covered or the HERALD will be suspended. I am writing this without consulting the feelings of the Editor. I know how he regards it; the HERALD by him is held with the fond affection of a child. It cannot be touched without touching his affections and it would not be less than a grave reflection upon our sense of appreciation of forty years of untiring, sacrificial service to allow the paper to suspend, so long as it is in our powers to carry it on. WILL OUR PEOPLE YET RALLY TO THE SUPPORT OF THE HERALD?

The Loyalty League

I have been greatly pleased to see the reports in the HERALD of the progress being made towards the organization of this League. It has in it the possibility of great service to the other activities of the Conference beside High Point College. But just now what the League is attempting to do is to quicken the interest of our church membership in the College. Dr. Taylor is giving himself unsparingly to this cause; we should remember when he comes to a charge that he is still a pastor, that he has all the cares of the pastor upon him besides directing this work. Let's make the work just as light for him as we possibly can.

The Area Meetings of the Stewards

I mentioned in the HERALD last week of my expectation to hold such a meeting of the stewards of the churches—or rather such a series of meetings. The idea I greatly desire to motivate is a hurried setup of our financial condition at the close of the second quarter. We want to hold these meetings on Sunday afternoon in close enough proximity to every pastoral charge that the stewards of the churches of that charge can attend. Then we want presented at this meeting in total amounts, (1) what has been raised by the churches of that group; (2) what effort has been put forth to raise this amount; (3) what these stewards think can be raised between that time and the sitting of the Annual Conference. With these facts before the church we shall have an idea what needs to be done in order to close a good year for the times and we will likewise have several months to do the necessary things in.

We Must Raise More Money Than Last Year

The interest of the kingdom are suffering greatly because of the insufficient funds secured last year. The Board of Church Extension, the Children's Home, the superannuate preachers and their widows, our educational interests and the board of missions,—all these interests have greatly suffered; not to mention some of our pastors and some of the church debts which have been carried over from last year because there was no money to meet them. And because we need funds to finance the above interests and because we believe in our people, that when the matter is strongly presented to many of our people who have not heretofore taken their share of these burdens, they will respond with amounts sufficient to lift us out of the "Slough of Despond."

I shall greatly appreciate it, if the pastors will at once begin to agitate these steward Area Meetings by directing the attention of all their church officials to them, for if they now approach the problem with an active interest there will be less to do in the second half of the year.

Appointments

April 2: Orange Charge: Union Grove, 11 a. m.; Efland at night.

April 9: 11 a. m., Roberta Church; afternoon, Greer's Chapel.

April 10: Spencer, 11 a. m.; Mt. Carmel, afternoon; Lexington, night.

April 23: Saxapahaw Charge.

April 30: Calvary Church, Greensboro, 11 a. m.; district meeting afternoon.

Cordially yours,

R. M. ANDREWS.

LOYALTY LEAGUE

For lack of time, we can not give a detailed report of the work of the League this week. But we do want to say that the movement is going, and there is much to give encouragement. The necessity for the undertaking, and the fact that the League idea places the movement so fully within the reach of all of our people, is winning sympathy and support. A full report will be given next week. Watch for new enrollments at that time. Pastors are responding to our One Hundred Percent appeal. We hope to enroll them in full by next week. In the meantime, let us make this movement a matter of constant prayer.

S. W. TAYLOR, Director.

PLAN NOW FOR THE MOTHER AND DAUGHTER OBSERVANCE

Mother and Daughter Week comes May 7-14, 1933. (It may be observed during some other period if desired.)

The following supplies are now available:

"The Mother and Daughter Observance," by Abbie Graham, a pamphlet of 32 pages with careful plans for banquets, worship services, follow-up events, etc. Every local church needs at least one copy. Price, 15c each.

Three separate Mother and Daughter Worship Services on themes, "Achievements of Women," "Ideals of Motherhood," "We Would See Jesus." 1c each, 75c per 100.

Mother and Daughter Song Sheet for banquets, etc., 1c each, 75c per 100.

Order directly from the Inaternational Council of Religious Education, 203 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

We hope that many of our churches will take advantage of the opportunity of observing this occasion.

F. L. GIBBS, Secretary.

A HELPFUL COMMENT

The editor of the Free Methodist makes the following helpful comment upon the subject of "Opportunities."

"One pastor who has had a fifty per cent increase in average attendance in the Sunday School and a fifty per cent increase in church membership on his charge during his present pastorate recently said to the editor: 'I consider this appointment an opportunity. It seems to me that our work has a great future in this place.' Then he went on to say, 'In fact, I never have had an appointment that I did not regard as an opportunity.' Another preacher claims that he never had an opportunity for success. He hopes that this pastorate will soon come to an end and that the stationing committee will appreciate his gifts enough to send him to a 'good' place.

"It is too bad that some men always receive opportunities and that others never receive them. Or, shall we say, some men always see 'opportunities' and others never see them."—The P. H. Advocate.

A SENSIBLE BOY

An intelligent boy sat absorbed with a highly wrought and pernicious book. His father saw at a glance the character of the book.

"What have you there, George?"

The little fellow, looking up with a confused air, promptly gave the name of the book.

His father gently remonstrated, pointing out the danger of reading such books, and having some confidence in the effects of early culture upon the mind of his child, left him with the book by his side.

In a few minutes the father saw a light in an adjoining room. George was burning the pernicious book.

"My son, what have you done?"

"Burned that book, Papa."

"How came you to do that?"

"Because I believe you knew better than I."—Michigan Advocate.

OUR STORY PAGE

MAKING AN EXCEPTION

"Yes, she has a remarkable memory for such a tot. Lucy! Lucy! Come here, darling—no—the rest of you can go back. Well, stay then, if you want to, but Lucy's the one we want—to hear her say her little poem amout the bird in the tree-top. Now, stand right there like a little lady, and say it."

Lucy, a rather chubby little girl whose innocent prettiness was hidden beneath a spoiled, smug expression, needed no urging. She lisped about the birdie in the tree-top with the presence of a prima donna, and sure enough, her reward was chorus of "Isn't she darling?". "Perfectly precious, ' laughter and other forms of appreciation. While she performed, the other children, grinning with generous approval, climbed to different points of vantage.

And looking up to see was one little boy just beaming with a missing-tooth smile of shy delight; a motherly visitor swung an arm around the slender little fellow and dragged him to her lap. Overcome with shyness, he smiled into her face and dropped his head. "How about you? You don't know any pieces, do you?" she said good-naturedly. He shook his head. She laughed, and released him.

It was Lucy this, and Lucy that. Lucy's golden hair was curled in careful ringlets. Lucy's feet were shod in delicate slippers.

"Charles, stop troubling that child this minute! Come, Mother's darling, did that bad boy make my baby cry?"

"Mama, Lucy was throwing sand at Charles first." The loyal friends of Charles stood by him.

"Well, Charles is a big boy, and Lucy's just a little girl—just a sweet little girl—who didn't know any better."

And the mother went on, sublimely unconscious of her mistake in putting Lucy on a pedestal—a little queen who could do no wrong—and expecting the other children to accept her as such.

When Lucy would come in slyly whimpering that the other children had been "mean" to her, her mother would go out and tell them that they must play nicely with the little girl, or she would punish them. And Lucy was not very popular.

Then Uncle Charles came home—their idol. He romped, played, and laughed with the children. He teased them and loved them for a whole month, and then it was time for him to go. His sister looked at him fondly, and asked complacently, "Well, Charles, what do you think of my little family?"

He looked away, uneasily, and then, honestly into her eyes. "Let me ask you a question first," he said. "You remember Enid Smith?"

His sister's mouth straightened. "Yes! I despise her very memory—spoiled, selfish, conceited, smug—and a 'tattle tale' besides. I don't care ever to see her again as long as I live!" Charles understood; they had all been young together. He squared his shoulders and plunged in.

"Well, Sis, I will answer your question now. I'm wild about Janey, think Charles a vast improvement on myself, and Jim and Ellen are such darlings I can't bear the thought of staying away from them, but I wouldn't care if I never saw Lucy again."

His sister sat up, incredulous, choking, blinking, gasping.

He nodded, "Just that. She probably has good qualities at bottom, being your child and Jim's, but you have catered to her, adored her, sacrificed the other children to her, until you've made her a selfish little simpleton. All the children despise her without realizing it."

His sister looked as if she would choke.

"Hard, I know, hard for me to tell you. But if you keep it up you're going to make just the sort of woman out of Lucy that Enid's mother made out of her 'darling, precious littlums' Enid. Quit it, Sis, like a good mother. Give the child a chance with the rest. I'll be back in a month," as he leaned over and kissed his still speechless sister gently, "to see how you undo it!"—National Kindergarten Association Release.

WHEN A BOY SMOKES CIGARETTES

Magister Crane, of New York City, says: "Ninety-nine out of every hundred boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years who come before me charged with crime, have their fingers disfigured by yellow cigarette stains . . . . I am not a crank on this subject, I do not care to pose as a reformer, but it is my opinion that cigarettes will do more than liquor to ruin boys. When you have arraigned before you boys hopelessly deaf through excessive use of cigarettes, boys who have stolen their sisters' earnings, boys who absolutely refuse to work, who do nothing but gamble and steal, you cannot help seeing that there is some direct cause, and a great deal of this boyhood crime is, in my mind, easy to trace to the deadly cigarette. There is something in the poison of the cigarette that seems to get into the system of the boys and destroy all moral fiber."

He gives the following course of a boy who begins to smoke cigarettes: "First, cigarettes. Second, beer and liquors. Third, craps—petty gambling. Fourth, horse-racing—gambling on a bigger scale. Fifth, larceny. Sixth, state prison.

Not long ago a boy in New York robbed his mother and actually beat her because she would not give him money with which to buy cigarettes. Every little while we see accounts in newspapers all over the country of all kinds of petty thefts and misdemeanors which boys commit in order to satisfy the cigarette mania.

Another New York City magistrate says: "Yesterday I had before me 35 boy prisoners. Thirty-three of them were confirmed smokers. Today, from a reliable source, I have made the gruesome discovery that two of the largest cigarette manufacturers soak their product in a weak solution of opium. The fact that out of 35 prisoners 33 smoked cigarettes might seem to indicate some direct connection is not hard to understand. Opium is like whiskey—it creates an increasing appetite that grows with what it feeds upon. A growing boy who lets tobacco and opium get a hold upon his senses is never long in coming under the domination of whiskey, too. Tobacco is the boy's easiest and most direct road to whiskey. When opium is added, the young man's chance of resisting the combined forces and escaping physical, mental, and moral harm is slim, indeed."

Young men of great natural ability, everywhere some of them in high positions, are constantly losing their grip, deteriorating, dropping back, losing their ambition, their push, their stamina, and their energy, because of its deadly hold upon them. If there is anything a young man should guard as Divinely sacred, it is his ability to think clearly, forcefully, logically—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRECIOUS SOUL

The value of a soul is far beyond human calculation. The wealth of the world in gold is immense; the revenue from possessions of other kinds have an enormous yield; world fame by attainment or achievement is eagerly sought and coveted; but all these together are not the worth of a soul.

The soul is important, the world passeth away. When death claims the man all his possessions are left behind.

When Garrick showed Dr. Johnson his fine house, gardens, statues, pictures, etc., at Hampton Court, what ideas did they awaken in the mind of that great man? "Ah! David, David!" said the Doctor, "these are the things which make a death-bed terrible."

"It is said that among the discoveries at Pompeii was a woman in the act of gathering in her apron rings, bracelets, and other valuable articles of jewelry. It would seem that some wealthy persons, aware of the coming destruction, had made their escape, and left these things behind as worthless in comparison with life; but she, hoping to save both, delayed the time of her flight, and alas; was overwhelmed in the terrible judgment, and so lost her life and her jewels."

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul"? (Mark 8:36, 37). Gold and silver would not redeem the soul; sin against God is not atoned for by such means—"It is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins." Nothing but the Blood of Christ can do that, and its efficacy is such that God has said, "The Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us (believers) from all sin" (I John 1:7). Not only so, but "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." It is God Himself who finds the ransom, who provided the remedy; yes, "He was delivered for our offences"; "For He hath made Him to be sin for us, who knew no sin." And when made sin, He was forsaken of God; what a moment it was when He cried out, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me"? "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and . . . He was buried, and . . . He rose again the third day according to the Scriptures." His work was so well done, redemption accomplished and God glorified, that we read, "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a Name which is above every name" (Phil. 2:9).

What grace has been shown, and at what cost on God's part! He gave His only begotten Son, "Who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification."

It is a risen, exalted and glorified Christ that is presented to the sinner: One who has died, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God.

What a price has been paid for the ransom of the soul: the life's Blood of the Son of God—"Who loved me," said Paul, "and gave Himself for me."

Reader, do you believe on the Son of God? "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

"He that believeth on Him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the Name of the only begotten Son of God (John 3:18).

God has given us two eyes, if we lost one we could still see with the other; but He has given us only one soul; what is to become of it after this life? Do not live in uncertainty, to find out when too late that you are lost forever; find that out now on the authority of God's Word, and then on the same authority that "the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10).

Paul, the chief of sinners, obtained mercy that no one need despair; and the repentant thief was promised pardon and paradise at the eleventh hour; but who knows when their last hour may come, so take Christ this hour, and with Him you have all things.—J. P., in Living Streams.

GIVING TO MISSIONS

A venerable colored minister who had been pleading earnestly for foreign missions, closed with these words: "Bredren, I've heard of churches dat's dyin' of 'spectability, I've heard of a church where de souls of de people is all shriveled up with selfishness, and I've heard of lots of churches like a barren desert, with no livin' waters, no waters of 'freshment runnin' in 'em, 'cause dey refuse to do de Lord's will. But, bredren, who ever heard of a church dat was killed 'cause it gave money to foreign missions? Who ever heard of a church dat died 'cause it did what de Lord said? Neber, neber! bredren. Ef anybody would tell me of such a church in all dis wide universe, I'd make a pilgrimage to dat church. I would climb up its ivy-mantled walls and to de top of de steeple, and lay dis black hand on de topmost stone of dat temple and say, 'Blessed are de dead dat die in de Lord'."—Peniel Herald.

SPIRITUAL BANKING

Some people overcheck and some undercheck their bank accounts. To overcheck means to get into trouble; to undercheck sometimes means to fail to invest in a good thing. In like manner, on spiritual lines some souls overcheck or rather overestimate their real strength, and thus fall into temptation. Others are so conservative that they never venture to be outstanding or do extraordinary things for God and humanity. Let us drive rich trades at the bank of Heaven. "All things are possible to him that believeth."—The Repairer.

WHAT DECIDING FOR CHRIST MEANS

Scripture Text—Matthew 16:24,25.

Decision for Chirst Means Recognition of Him

Many people have a sufficient knowledge of Christ to be saved but they lack the necessary part of recognizing Him. It takes more than a knowledge that there is a Savior of the world but He must be accepted as a personal Savior. Few people will not admit that they have sinned but it is much more to believe that Christ has power to forgive the wrongdoing. We cannot understand how the process may go on but we are willing to accept Him on faith and trust Him for the rest. Decision for Christ is a mental process of acceptance but it does not rest entirely on what we can reason out. One convert says that he had a period of mental conflict from which he could not free himself; he tried to reason God out and accept Him. Finally he drew his reasoning away and found Christ in faith.

Decision for Christ Demands Expression in Life

There was a day when converts to Christianity thought that they were serving God by withdrawing themselves from society and living selfishly. This is not Christianity and I believe that Christ would frown on such action. He demands of His followers that they go back into the world with a desire to aid mankind and to lead others to accept Christ. The followers of Christ are not to be a part of the world in that they do the things which the rest of the world does but they must live in the world. If you have accepted the Christ you have also taken a part in responsibility for the needs of the world and must fulfill it. Christ had a heart experience but He also had compassion on the multitudes and their needs. A decision for this Christ must find expression in life.

Decision for Christ Means Self-Denial

Christ Himself said: "Whosoever would come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me." We see then that the Master Himself said that those who follow Him must deny themselves. During the middle ages there grew up a group who thought that this mean punishing the body that the spirit may fare better. This is one extreme. There are people in the world who are content to allow themselves to indulge in any act which their pulses dictate. These are on the other end of the extreme. The body is the dwelling place of the spirit of God and is sacred, therefore, it must not be abused by punishment or by indulging in things which would tend to destroy it and its efficiency.

Decision for Christ means self-denial in that our wills become subservient to the will of Christ. Christ set the example when He prayed in the garden, "Not my will but thine be done." Jesus knew that He faced an ordeal when the agony of the cross was before Him yet He was willing to surrender His will to the greater one of the Father. The truest Christian is one who is ready to give up the things which he had rather do for the sake of the will of God.

Decision for Christ Means Accepting Him as an Ideal and as Savior

We have already found that mere knowledge of Christ is not acceptance of Him, He must be taken into the individual life and there be made King of kings and Lord of lords. In the individual heart He would be crowned and reign without a rival there. Christ has already decided to accept is; it remains for us to accept Him and the work of salvation is done. Some people are discouraged at first that they are not the type of Christians that they would desire to be and some turn back and follow Him no more. There is an advantage in accepting Christ that we have taken Him as our ideal and resolved to grow like Him. It is fact of life that the ideals of most people are far above their practices. Although the Christian never grows into the person that he aspires to be, he strives toward the ideal which is Christ: "Not what I am but what I aspire to be gives me hope."

Quotable Poetry

JESUS, I COME TO THEE

Out of my bondage, sorrow and night,
  Jesus, I come, Jesus, I come;
Into Thy freedom, gladness and light,
  Jesus, I come to Thee;
Out of my sickness into Thy health,
Out of my want and into Thy wealth,
Out of my sin and into Thyself,
  Jesus, I come to Thee.

Out of my shameful failure and loss,
  Jesus, I come, Jesus, I come;
Into the glorious gain of Thy cross,
  Jesus, I come to Thee;
Out of earth's sorrows into Thy balm,
Out of life's storms and into Thy calm,
Out of distress to jubilant psalm,
  Jesus, I come to Thee.

Out of the dread and fear of the tomb,
  Jesus, I come, Jesus, I come;
Into the joy and light of Thy home,
  Jesus, I come to Thee;
Out of the depths of ruin untold,
Into the space of Thy sheltering fold,
Ever Thy glorious faith to behold,
  Jesus, I come to Thee.

ANNOUNCING WINNERS IN COUPON CONTEST

North Carolina Conference Contest

In the conference contest 49 organizations and three individuals took part. This makes more than twice as many auxiliaries and churches taking part as in the first contest. There were 22,211 coupons sent in this time as against 18,725 in the first one.

How we wish the company could give us the same price as before, but even at the reduced price the amount received will be $88.84. That is just fine, and we do so greatly appreciate the help of every one, and think it a very good return on the time and effort.

First Church, Winston Salem, wins the $5.00 award offered by Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Bates. Reidsville comes second, and the others follow in the order named—Grace church; Lebanon, High Point; Calvary; Asheboro; Lincolnton; Union Chapel, Granville; Enfield; State Street; Union, Halifax; Charlotte, Richland; Maple Springs, Forsyth; and Glen Raven. Others are so close up with these that I should like to mention the names of all, but since space is precious, I will just say a very heart thank you to all.

Now let us all join hands and see if we cannot collect as many in the next three months as in the last three.

The Contest in Other Conferences

Outside of North Carolina there were 42 organizations and one friend taking part. The number of coupons sent in was 13,945, which will bring us $55.78. The $5.00 award goes to Mrs. A. Quick and her associates in our Atlanta church, Atlanta, Ga. They sent in 356 more coupons than the next highest. Following them close together were these in the order named: Eastport, New York; Lewis Memorial, Washington, D. C.; Lynbrook, L. I., N. Y.; Fair Haven, N. J.; Newark, N. J.; New Church, Va.; Inwood, L. I., N. Y.; Ligonier, Pa. (an M. E. Church); Afton, Northumberland, Md.; Steubenville, Ohio; Chestertown Md.; Snow Hill, Md. A very few more coupons each from some of these organizations and we would have had six tieing for the $5.00.

Now let's see just how many we can collect in the next three months. We appreciate so much every effort and the success of every one who has helped, and thank you most heartily.

Yours in His blessed service,
MRS. A. G. DIXON,
M. P. Children's Home,
High Point, N. C.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

OFFERING FOR HIGH POINT COLLEGE AT BRANCH MEETING

I trust a great many people have been busy gleaning for High Point College. Executive Committee members will bring the results of their gleaning in the FIELD OF SPECIAL GIFTS. Auxiliary presidents will bring the returns from their special money raising project for the college and we trust all of our auxiliary presidents have been busy gleaning in the FIELD OF SERVICE. The Christian Education secretaries have been asked to glean in the FIELD OF OFFERINGS and we trust there will be one woman in each church who will either see people individually for an offering for the college, or take a public offering in one of the services Sunday. Where there is a secretary of Christian Education, she will be responsible for this part of the project, but any women may be responsible for this in auxiliaries that do not have a secretary of Christian Education.

I think you will all like the demonstration which we have planned. The offering for the college will come just at the close of the demonstration. Remember we are all going to arrange our gifts in the form of sheaves, using paper money.

May we be earnest in our prayers in these last days as we finish up our gleaning for our school.

MRS. H. W. MAIER,
Sec. Christian Education.

BUDGETS PAID IN FULL

The following auxiliaries have paid their budgets since my last report: Bethesda (Halifax), Burlington, Eden, Fountain Place, Gibsonville, Siler City, Union (Halifax), Weaverville, Winston-Salem, Graham, and High Point (First Church).

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treasurer.

SPRING CHURCH CIRCUIT AUXILIARY

On the afternoon of March 1, at 2:30, we met in the home of Mrs. G. A. Mitchell. There were 15 ladies and four babies present. The devotion was led by the hostess, taking up "The Joy of Jesus."

Mrs. Tucker was program leader. "Better Churchmanship" was discussed by Miss Mary Daniel. Mrs. Tucker talked on "The Important Thing in Life."

On account of the severe illness of her brother, Mrs. Vassar couldn't be with us, so Mrs. G. J. Mitchell acted as secretary.

Since our last report we have held a Thank-offering service in each church. We feel that they were helpful as our offerings were good. Too, people seem to take some interest in missions.

Mrs. Neese was able to be at church the second Sunday. She seems to be improving with the season.

Mrs. G. J. Mitchell is very ill at this writing. I hope she will soon be well again.

Mrs. Demick (our president) is planning to have a call meeting next week for the purpose of discussing plans for delegates to Branch meeting.

MRS. R. M. ROBINSON.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S AUXILIARIES

May I ask that all Young People's Auxiliaries return report blanks mailed you some days ago, together with Efficiency Chart, in order that banners may be awarded to the Auxiliary rightly winning. Regardless of how much work you may have done, if you do not report we cannot give you credit.

Auxiliaries that now have banners, will please bring same to Branch meeting.

MRS. A. H. RAGAN,
Sec. Young People's Work.

"METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD"

I read last week what our good Editor said about the condition of our paper. To some of us it brings the deepest concern. I well remember at LaGrange Annual Conference convened in 1893. I saw for the first time Rev. J. F. McCulloch who had just returned to our conference, a young man. He laid some plans before the conference to establish a church paper also plans to establish a college. The whole conference endorsed his plans. I think it was the general feeling that at last we had in him a Moses whom God had sent to the people to lead us into a new land, that would flow with education and enlightenment. I was assigned to the Calf Pasture and promised a salary of $225.00 I was in debt for schooling etc. I was asked to be one of 100 men to stand by the Publishing House. I did not feel I could block the way by refusing. I finally borrowed whatever money necessary and sent it in.

The younger set has killed goose or put the goose to sit on another nest and left our church paper to die unless something is done. Let the younger set sacrifice at once as we older ones did to subsidize the paper that it may live and memoralize the man who has given his life to the church we love.

H. L. POWELL.

College students of today work 20 times as hard as students of 40 years ago when he was a Princeton undergraduate, Booth Tarkington, one of America's best known present-day authors, said in a recent article written for the Daily Princetonian. Tarkington was graduated with the Princeton class of '93. "I think, perhaps, we were happier, gayer and more cheerful than the undergraduates of today," he said. "But this was because we were lazier. Princeton men today have a much saner attitude toward things than we did, and the undergraduates are much more widely read."—N. S. F. A.

We certainly appreciate these cash offerings and pray God's richest blessings upon all who helped in any way to make them. For some reason a number of Sunday schools and churches have dropped out of our list during February and March. Next Sunday brings in April. Please let every S. S. in the conference take the best possible offering for the Home on your regular Sunday for that purpose and send to us early. We are in great need of money to meet pressing emergencies.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Lebanon, High Point, an additional offering of several cans of fruit and jelly and one half bushel apples.

Mrs. W. C. Hammer, 14 quarts of canned fruit and vegetables.

Mrs. H. J. McGowan, Washington, D. C., two dresses, one sweater, six coat hangers, one coat, one shirt, twelve ties, one suit for boy and one coat and vest.

Orange Circuit donations, cash $7.00 reported above, three bags sweet potatoes one package peas, three packages bacon, three chickens, 24 pounds meal, 24 pounds flour, one package onion sets, 2 3-4 dozen eggs, 1 1 2 pounds butter, 75 quarts canned fruit and vegetables, three glasses jelly, one tam, three dresses, one dress skirt, one slip, one jacket and one sweater.

Hope church, Siler City, one bag of Irish potatoes, one piece of bacon, one large ham, bundle peanuts, two pounds butter, two buckets of molasses, cereals, five pounds sugar, 48 pounds flour and seven jars of canned goods.

These donations of produce coming in at this time are wonderfully helpful to us, and we greatly appreciate the spirit which prompts this kind of giving.

Produce is being given in many instances because our people do have that, but do not have money to give. Please don't ever spend

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Friendship Station.—On Sunday, March 12, the president, Rev. R. M. Andrews, delivered a splendid message here, giving the people a tip how to pay their pastor. Plant an acre, give what it made to the pastor, if it doesn't make anything don't give anything but nine times out of ten that will yield more than any other acre you plant. On the same Sunday one of the faithful members of our church presented 50 new song books to the church; the church paying for 50, making a total of 100 new song books. We are very grateful to our faithful members because we surely did need the books.

We have been having evtra good C. E. society for the past month. Three speakers have aleardy addressed our society and we are expecting another wonderful address on next Sunday evening at 6:30, Miss Vina Harwood is the speaker.

Our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, has been giving wonderful lectures. I don't think the people of our community could spend a more pleasant Sunday evening than by attending the Christian Endeavor society. Visitors are always welcome.

The Easter exercise is divided into two programs: the children will render a program at 11:00 o'clock on Easter Sunday morning followed by a short address by the pastor. On Sunday evening at 7:30 the pageant, "The Lord of Life," will be given by the young people. The public is invited to come both morning and evening.

On last Sunday morning Mr. Hobart Mortin, a young lawyer of Albemarle, made a fine address on "Liquor," giving the people his view on this dreadful dragon. This talk was very interesting and the congregation was the most patient, our pastor said, of any he had ever seen. The address was followed by a splendid sermon at 11 o'clock by our pastor.

GLADYS HARKEY, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—The usual program of services was observed in First church last Sunday, the initial session being the Sabbath school at 9:45 o'clock under the general superintendency of Mr. John C. Whitesell, with graded departments for all ages from the Cradle Roll to the Adult Department. At the 11 o'clock worship hour the service was again conducted by Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College. After the rendition of a beautiful anthem, "River of Life," by the choir, he delivered a very impressive and timely Lenten sermon on "What It Means to Accept Christ." Dean Lindley is popular with our congregation and townspeople, and is a fluent and thoughtful speaker. His sermons are highly appreciated by our people. His recent book, "Human Nature and the Church," is winning high praise and recognition throughout the entire Southland.

At the same hour Miss Naomi Dawson held services for the Junior church downstairs in the assembly room.

At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock, Dr. Lindley was again in charge.

The evening choir numbers were: Prelude, "O'er Flowery Meads;" Anthem, "O Jesus Thou Art Standing,' and Postlude, "Evening."

Both the Senior and Young People's Societies held weekly meetings Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Miss Annabel Thompson was leader on the Senior topic, "Is It Practical to Live Without Worry?" The subject for discussion by the Young People's group was "The Meaning of Baptism."

A delightful and unusual presentation of the Mission Study book, "Lady Fourth Daughter of China," was given at High Point College Monday afternoon, March 27, beginning at 3 o'clock. The first number of the program was a playlet, "Thanksgiving Ann," the theme of which is "Tithing," was presented by a group of college students; then the 12 chapters of the book were presented, each in a different calss room by a different instructor, closing in the dining hall with refreshments. There were in attendance 68 members of the Auxiliary, who are indebted to Miss Mary Young for a delightful afternoon, for it was her thought which planned and carried to execution this interesting and unique affair. To the retiring president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, who has served so efficiently and faithfully for two years, a pewter bowl filled with flowers was presented, and to each circle chairman a cluster of jonquils was given by Miss Young in appreciation of their efforts for the past year. A gift of $10.00 was also presented to Mrs. R. I. Farmer as a token of love and esteem upon leaving for her long journey.

Mrs. Martha A. Bryant, aged 75 years, one of First church's oldest and most highly esteemed members, was claimed by death at a local hospital last Friday evening. She had been ill for the past nine weeks, and critically so since Tuesday. She was born in Yadkin County in 1857, a daughter of Rev. Richard and Rhoda Graybeal Green, and on December 2, 1875, was married to Mr. T. U. Bryant, who survives at the age of 84 years. They moved to High Point with their family in 1914, and made their home here until a few weeks ago the family moved to a country home near Sandy Ridge. Seven years ago Mr. and Mrs. Bryant celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Besides her husband she is survived by a large family of sons and daughters: W. B. Bryant, of Sanford; M. H. Bryant, of Lenoir; D. W. Bryant, of R. F. D. No. 2, High Point; L. E. Bryant, of Durham; George A. Bryant, of Greensboro, and Hobart M. Bryant, president of the Bryant Electric Company, High Point; four daughters, Mrs. Mary Reavis and Mrs. Annie Buxton, of Yadkin County; Mrs. Carrie Spencer, of Buffalo Center, Iowa, and Mrs. Rosa Yarborough, of Lexington. A funeral service was conducted Sunday morning at 11:v0 o'clock by Dr. A. G. Dixon at the home of her son, Hobart M. Brmyant, 1107 Clyde street, after which the funeral party left for Mitchell's Chapel Methodist church in Yadkin County, where the final service was conducted by Rev. R. I. Farmer, pastor of First church, of which she was long a member, assisted by Rev. H. C. Byrum, of this city. Burial was made in the church cemetery at Mitchell's Chapel. Truly the mother of ten children, all grown to maturity, hath wrought a good work and served her day and generation. "Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her." Much sympathy is extended to the large circle of bereaved relatives by many friends.

Circles No. 2 and No. 3 of the Woman's Auxiliary are called to meet in special session Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Miss Irene Reynolds, 809 Fourth street. Chairmen and officers are to be elected, and all members are urged to attend. Following this meeting the executive committee of the Senior C. E. Society will hold a meeting.

The host of friends of Capt. A. M. Rankin here and throughout the bounds of the Conference will be pleased to learn that the operation he underwent for the removal of a cataract on his eye was successful, and he is improving satisfactorily at Guilford General Hospital. This delicate operation was performed by Dr. C. W. Banner, of Greensboro.

The series of meetings at Calvary Moravian church, Winston-Salem, in which Rev. R. I. Farmer assisted the pastor, Rev. Edmund Schwarze, for ten days, closed Sunday evening and they were blessed with fine results. Rev. Mr. Farmer expects to occupy his own pulpit next Sunday morning. He left today for Dennison, Ohio, by automobile; he will spend one day with his mother, Mrs. O. E. Farmer, who has not been well lately, and will bring back with him his niece, Miss Helen Johnson, who will keep house for him and the children during Mrs. Farmer's absence. Mrs. Farmer is planning to leave the early part of next week for Tucson, Arizona, to take treatment for arthritis (stiff joints) in a sanitarium there. Her numerous friends join in best wishes and prayers that the sunny climate and special treatment will work wonders, and speedily restore her to her accustomed health and strength.

We are greatly pleased to announce that Miss Ruth Welch, who underwent a serious operation last Friday at Guilford General Hospital, is recovering nicely. Her large circle of friends is hoping to see her out at an early date.

Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Ballard were called to High Point last week by the death of the latter's aunt, Mrs. Clark, at her home on Centennial Avenue. They accompanied the funeral party to Mount Airy, where burial was made and Rev. Mr. Ballard assisted in the last rites.

Mrs. W. A. Davis returned Sunday evening from Asheville, where she visited her daughter, Helen, who is ill there. Many prayers for the recovery of this bright and lovable young girl are being made by many friends of herself and the family.

Ed L. Johnson, who resides at 504 Chestnut street, is in Guilford General Hospital, recoveirng from an operation. His friends in the congregation and Baraca Class join in extending good wishes for his early and complete recovery.

The Y. M. W. A. Class, Shiloh.—We had a large crowd present Sunday morning, March 19, the room was filled. The class is putting on a drive to get every member of the class present. There were only 11 out of sixty-five or seventy who were absent from the class Sunday.

Our teacher, Mr. Evans, taught a splendid lesson. In this lesson he told us to do all we can to prevent the abolishment of the Eighteenth Amendment. It does not matter where a person getts his liquor but what matters is whether he drinks it or not. Every one should refrain from this habit.

Mr. Curtis Leonard, an old member of our class was back with us Sunday. He made a short speech to the class.

There have been 236 present at Sunday school for the last three Sundays. We are hoping to beat this next Sunday.

The prayer meeting next Sunday will be conducted by Mr. Willie Swicegood assisted by the men of the church. The classleaders request that as many as possible be present at this meeting.

At the eleven o'clock hour Sunday morning, Rev. R. S. Troxler preached "On the Way of the Cros." He expects to preach his next two sermons on this subject.

Democrat Charge, Pensacola Church.—As you probably know, our church work has been poorly for a few years, but we are glad to say that we are advancing in our work now. Our pastor has organized a Sunday school. At first we had an average attendance of 30, now we have an average of 50.

We have had the pleasure of listening to several good speakers in our church. We have also had a good choir.

We are very much delighted with the work of our pastor within the last year.

MRS. CARRIE WOOD.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—The young people are preparing a program for Easter Sunday night.

We were glad to have Dr. and Mrs. Sherrill Chandler, of Charlotte, to worship with us Sunday. They were our members before they moved to Charlotte, and we always welcome them back.

Second quarterly conference on Saturday evening before the third Sunday in April at Lineberry.

With best wishes for the Herald and all of its readers. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—"Then Peter said, 'Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazerth, rise up and walk." Acts 3:6.

Mr. Ferree preached a real good sermon on the above text last Sunday night. Are you wokring for the riches of this world, or for Jesus Christ? Does Jesus require gold and silver of you before you can enter the kingdom of heaven? Certainly not. Christ has paid the ransom for you and me. We must work for Christ, encourage the weak, love the Lord and one another, come to Christ, obey His will, and have a merciful heart. This means you, me, and everybody.

Mr. R. C. Sloan made a speech on Sunday evening, March 19, to the prayer meeting and C. E. audience. His speech was very good. It was on "The Evils of Strong Drink." Everyone was glad to have him come.

Mrs. Trivette, one of our church members, died recently. Her death was a great sorrow to the family and the church. She had been a faithful member until she became unable to attend church regularly.

Our C. E. Society is picking up and we hope it will continue to do so in the future.

Sunday school is very good. Average attendance for the past quarter was 60, and the average attendance for the past month was 62. Spring has opened up and we can only hope and pray for the future of our Sunday school to be better than the past.

We are looking forward to Mr. Ferree's next appointment, for he is so good to us and can bring such good messages to us. We want to invite everybody to join our church, Sunday school, and Christian Endeavor. We want you to feel welcome to worship with us.

Pleasant Grove Church.—We are glad to report that spring has come, bringing to our Sunday school an increase in attendance and new members and hope it will continue to grow as the weather gets warmer.

Our pastor, Mr. D. R. Williams, gave us another one of his splendid sermons Sunday from the fourth chapter of Hebrews. The main subject of his sermon was "Whose Children Are We?" Explaining to us that we are the children of God, or we are the children of the devil, he urged us all to stop a minute and think just which one of these families do we belong to. May we all try harder and pray day by day to belong to the family of God. He also read a Bible reading where the people back in that day were giving excuses not to go to the feast, in other words, the church. I'm very much afraid that that is the way we are today. We are giving too many excuses to God and are not attending God's services of worship as we should. Most of us put the church off until last. The Bible tells us to put God first and then we shall receive these other things. Let's make a greater effort in these trying days of life to think more of God and His works and quit making excuses. At the evening service the attendance was very few in number. Somebody must have been making excuses—but God has told us in His holy Word that where a few are gathered together in His name that He will be there with them. Mr. Williams read from the Book of Luke and gave us many interesting facts on how to live.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Robert Kennedy has returned to her home after undergoing an operation at the High Point Hospital. Hope and pray that she will soon be out and with us again.

One of our good members, Mrs. Mary Alice Meredith, was called to her heavenly home some time back. She was a dear and faithful to her church as long as she was able to come.

The Sunshine Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. J. R. Meredith last Monday evening. The program was in charge of Mrs. Wallace Kennedy, which was enjoyed by all. The Auxiliary is doing fine work. We have been saving a penny a day for three months and one for every rainy day. It is surprising how it will make the treasure grow. We have divided the members of the Auxiliary and have started a penny contest to see which side can get 100 feet of pennies first. After the meeting Mrs. Meredith served a delicious tray of sandwiches, pickle, cake, dessert, cocoa and fruits. We were glad to have as our guests for the evening Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Williams.

The Ladies' Aid Society met last Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Clay Beck. Mrs. Homer Veach and Mrs. J. E. Veach had a very interesting program, carrying out St. Patrick's Day in their program, this being the month of St. Patrick. Many games and contests were enjoyed. The society was glad to have a new member, Mrs. Joe Murphy. The Ladies' Aid is doing good work and is paying lots on the church debts. After the meeting the hostess, Mrs. Clay Beck, assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. H. Burton, served chicken salad on lettuce with saltines, sandwiches, cake, ice cream, and coffee.

The Brotherhood was entertained with its regular monthly meeting Saturday evening by Mr. E. M. Mawn, a member, and also a teacher of Hasty High School. The Brotherhood enjoyed a splendid talk by Mr. Payne, of Archdale. Before the meeting started Mrs. Mawn, assisted by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Wallace Kennedy, served a vegetable course, with boiled ham, Cole slaw, deviled eggs, pickle, cake, fruit dessert, and coffee.

May we all have more faith in God and pray more for the betterment of this great country of ours, and do more for the upbuilding of God's kingdom. Although we get weak and discouraged, let's hold on to God's powerful hand and He will carry us through. May we all have more of the faith and goodness of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

West Forsyth.—The writer was pleased to have Rev. Atlas Ridge accompany him to Harmony Grove church last Sunday. He took part in the service, leading the opening prayer. The attendance in the Sunday school and church service was about as usual, and the interest was good. Part of a day was spent with the people of this church last week, so we returned to Lexington immediately after the preaching service.

The meeting of the second quarterly conference for West Forsyth charge will be held at Harmony Grove church the fourth Sunday in April. The regular preaching service will be at 11 a. m., dinner on the ground and the business of the conference in the afternoon. At that time the first half of the conference year will have passed. What will our reerds show as to the work we have done, constructively and financially? We fear they will reveal that we are far behind the records of previous years. Let's work the harder during the coming weeks in an effort to bring up the finances as far as possible and make a creditable showing at the second quarterly conference.

We will spend the coming Saturday and Sunday with Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches, with regular services at Baltimore at 11 a. m., and Stony Knoll at 2:30 p. m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Harmony, Yarborough Charge. — We have had no report for some time; nevertheless, our church and Sunday school are still progressing nicely.

Our pastor, Bro. Love, has been delivering some very helpful and inspiring messages. He filled his regular appointments with us Sunday morning and evening. Attendace was fairly good at both services. Since being with us, Bro. Love and his family have made a number of friends.

We have had a good bit of sickness in our Sunday school. Among those sick are Miss Julia Medlock, J. T. Balentine, and Mrs. C. G. Hughes.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. Taylor Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. After the program and business meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Our quarterly conference will be held the second Sunday in April at Yarborough's. Plans are also being made for an Easter service.

Since our last report a wedding of much interest has taken place in our community, when Miss Grace Killingsworth became the bride of Mr. B. Frank Ridgeway. Mrs. Ridgeway is a very active member of our church and Sunday school, and her many friends regret that her marriage has taken her out of our community. They are making their home in Ware Shoals, S. C., at present, where they are connected with the Ware Shoals Manufacturing Company.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—The usual program of service was observed Sunday. Sunday school at 9:45 o'clock, under the leadership of Edell Oaks, superintendent. Each Sunday morning someone gives a five-minute talk before the classes go to their rooms. Sunday, Mrs. Martindale gave a very interesting talk on the way Christ manifests His love to us.

Our pastor gave us one of the best sermons Sunday. His subject was a searching question and it revelation. A good congregation was out to hear him.

Sunday, March 19th, Rev. G. F. Millaway preached at the 11 o'clock hour. We are all glad to have him and Mrs. Millaway worship with us.

Next Saturday night the ladies' class will give a fish-fry and oyster supper at the Hut.

The second Saturday night in April the Ladies Aid Society will give a supper at the hut.

Mrs. Garner is training the children for the Easter program, which will be rendered Easter Sunday morning.

The young men's class and the young girl's class have on a contest to see which can get the most new members; it looks now like the young men's class would win.

Thomasville, First.—The Senior Christian Endeavor society of the First M. P. church entertained at the church with the regular monthly social the feature of the night. About 40 members were presen in spite of the inclement weather.

With the president in the chair, the meeting opened with the song, "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" followed by prayer by Mrs. W. G. Myers. Rev. T. B. Madison, pastor of the church, spoke most interestingly concerning ways by which the society might be improved.

The business was transacted, and the chairman of the social committee took charge. He, Finch Jackson, sponsored a program which proved to be very interesting. The society was fortunate in having the gingham-checked trio, composed of Virginia Brown Jarrett, Mrs. George Polyak and Dot Jarrett, who sang three songs, "When I Was a Baby," "Lamplighting Time in the Valley," and "When Mother Played the Organ and Daddy Sang a Hymn," in a very delightful manner. Knox and Marx Teague gave a blackface comedy in one act, entitled "No Sense, No How." The monologue, "A Confirmed Old Maid" was given by Pauline Bailey.

To touch the height of gayety, Finch Jackson gave everyone an all-day sucker, with a jig saw puzzle attached.

The meeting came to a close with the song, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," followed by the Mizpah benediction.

This C. E. society is proud of the fact that five of its members are also members of the Thomasville high school graduating class of '33. Those holding the distinguished title of "Seniors" are Misses Ollie Mae Howard, Beatrice Miller, Virginia Brown Jarrett, Pauline Bailey and Mr. Loraine Leonard.

Hollister.—There was an increase in attendance in Sunday school yesterday, due perhaps to the fair weather and good roads.

Mrs. Ruth Ballance, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sallie Williams, taught the adult Bible class. The people always enjoy Mrs. Ballance's visit in the community and church.

The attendance at church was also good. Mr. Fogleman preached from the text: "This is the condemnation, that light has come into the werld and men love darkness rather than light." This was a good sermon. During the service two new members were added to the church, Mrs. Mae Alston and her daughter, Miss Mary Davis Alston. They came by letter from the M. E. church, South. Mrs. Alston is a former president of our local P. T. A., and has been elected president of our Woman's Auxiliary for the coming year. Mary Davis has taken a special course in music at Louisburg College and the Conservatory at Durham. She will be a great help in our music.

At our last meeting of the Auxiliary, held in the church on Tuesday, March 14, we elected the officers for the year as follows: President, Mrs. Mae Alston; vice-president, Mrs. H. F. Fogleman; treasurer, Mrs. E. T. Ellington; secretary, Kathleen Shearin. Delegates to the Branch Meeting were elected as follows: Mrs. Alston, Mrs. Ellington, Mrs. Williams and the writer.

Thomasville, Community Church.—The S. S. Teachers' Training School held in our church during the past two weeks closed on last Friday evening. Certificates were issued to eight persons for standard and three for young people's courses. Several people "sat in" on these classes from time to time, and everyone seemed eager to get something from the lessons to apply in daily life. Much interest was shown, and we wish to thank those who so generously gave their time to the teaching.

The Loyalty League project was begun last Sunday, and those in charge of the pledges are well pleased with the beginning of this worthy cause. Within the next month we feel sure we can begin the sending of funds to assist those who when we were in need came to our rescue, and thus allowed the completion of the institution of which we of the Methodist Portestant Church are so proud. Let us all do our best to put this project across in a big way.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary held at the home of Mrs. J. Clodfelter, president, on last Thursday, Mrs. J. W. Saunder and Mrs. Marvin Hobbs were elected Circle chairmen. The Young Ladies' Circle elects its own chairman, and this will be decided upon at the next meeting.

An evening of fun and frolic was had on last Wednesday night when the Young Ladies' Circle gave a jig-saw puzzle party at the home of Miss Pearl Perry. Over 40 persons were present and the Circle realized approximately $5.00 clear. It all helps.

Our pastor, Rev. H. Fr eo Surratt, reports that he, along with all the Methodist Protestant preachers in Thomasville, attended a meeting of minisers held in the Reynolds building in Winston-Salem Sunday afternoon. The drawing card was no other than Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted missionary, who gave a very helpful lecture. Mr. Surratt said he counted nine ministers from Thomasville.

On last Sunday evening the entire service was given to the singing of old hymns. Our pastor commented on some of the hymns, both as to the writer and the inspiration and everyone seemed to be entering into the spirit of the occasion. Our preacher is a great believer in variety as the spice of life, and our congregations are continuing to grow, so that must be what the people want.

Kannapolis.—We have been moving along splendidly, considering the depression. Our Sunday school, Christian Endeavor and Ladies' Aid have done wonderfully well and the Lord is still blessing us as the days pass. We know that the work our church has been able to do has been done mostly by the prayers of our Christian workers. Our pastor has been a great deal of help to us; his interest and prayers have gone out and met the battles as they confronted us, and we realize that the Great Spirit has been with him in his work since coming to us, and our prayers are for him that he may succeed in the name of Christ and win the goal that awaits a faithful workers for the Lord. Our hearts are also burdened for the sinful people of this world. We are looking forward and praying for our meeting which will start on Easter Sunday to continue a week or ten days, and we desire the prayers of the Christians throughout our Conference that it may be a success and win many souls for the Master.

Our pastor, Rev. Clarence Morris, has been delivering some beautiful and inspiring sermons. We consider his sermon on Sunday night, March 26, the truths that our Master would have him bring his sinful and dying world, and we truly hope that it may prove a wonderful blessing to someone in our community.

We were glad to welcome some of the pastor's classmates with us on Sunday, March 26, and will be glad to have any of them at any time.

On Monday night, March 6, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dwiggins entertained the former's Christian Endeavor Society at their home on North Juniper street at a candy-pulling. There were 15 of the class present, with a report of much enjoyment during the evening.

The Senior C. E. Society held their regular monthly business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lisk on Saturday night, March 25. After the business hour a social hour was enjoyed by those present. Mr. and Mrs. Marlow were host and hostess to the former's Intermediate C. E. class on Friday night, March 24, at a candy-pulling. All report that none of our members are seriously ill at this writing.

Our church held its second quarterly conference on Saturday night, March 18, with 15 official members present. All had splendid reports.. At this meeting plans were made to help all we possibly can with the Loyalty League. Several other plans were presented and adopted which we hope will prove a blessing to our church and community.

The Ladies' Aid Circle No. 1 will meet with Mrs. G. F. Coble on Monday night, April 3; full attendance is desired. Circle No. 2 will meet with Mrs. L. C. Carter on Monday night, April 3. All members are urged to be present and visitors are welcome.

On Sunday afternoon, March 26, a meeting was called by the pastor for the purpose of appointing committees to canvass our community for membership.

A committee composed of Mrs. W. T. Kiser and Mrs. C. B. McCommons is planning a beautiful program for Easter Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at which time the pageant, "The Road to Jerusalem," will be presented. The public is cordially invited.

There is room for you at all our services and visitors are welcome at any time.

MRS. XENOPHON GRAYSON,

First Church, Lexington.—Our Sunday school looked good today, with 318 present. We know God is answering our prayers and others as well, for lots of new members are joining from Sunday to Sunday. Also some of our older ones are back with us, for which we are glad. We are still praying and feel God is going to continue to answer our prayers that more will keep coming. Chirst says when He comes again He is going to take back only the ones that have remained faithful to His work. We desire the prayers of all praying people that we may have a great revival, which we expect to begin in our church in April, in order to win more souls into Christ's mission field.

We were very fortunate in having Bro. Wagner from High Point College to preach for us at the 11 o'clock hour. A large crowd remained to hear him and all enjoyed his wonderful message. We hope he can find it convenient to be with us again soon.

REPORTER.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 417, and our superintendent was all smiles. Well, we were all smiling with him. It makes us smile to see the gold stars go up on our attendance board. There were three there last Sunday, the Cradle Roll, Juniors, and the Young People's Class. The Young People's Class enjoyed a male quartet rendered by some of the visitors. There were ten visitors present in their class last Sunday. The young people are planning for a weiner roast very soon. These young people are wide-awake and we think they would be working just as hard even if we were not in the contest. And the Juniors are always at work, and we think the main thing in the Junior Department is that the children all love their teachers so much. It is a fine buch of boys and girls. And the Cradle Roll children—well, of course I would think they are the sweetest of all as I help the Cradle Roll. Naturally, they are very dear to me and to all the helpers in this class. The Baraca Class enjoyed a quartet last Sunday rendered by Mr. Will and Mr. Homer Little, Mr. Arthur Smith and Mr. Ralph Honeycutt. They also sang for the B. and S. Class and for the closing exercises at Sunday school. The B. and S. Class sang one selection for the closing exercise at Sunday school.

Some of our folks were kept away Sunday on account of sickness in the family. Mrs. Lillie Beaver was with her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Cline, who is seriously ill. We hope and pray for Mrs. Cline's speedy recovery. She was resting some better today. Her sister, Mrs. Ruth Knight, came from Monroe, N. C., yesterday to be with her. We are glad to say Grandma Thomas is still improving. Mrs. W. H. Scarboro received a message Sunday that her aunt, Miss Emma Stewart, of Troy, N. C., was seriously ill with flu and pneumonia. Mr. C. W. Widenhouse had the misfortune last week of getting his hand and wrist mashed right badly while at his work, but X-rays showed no bones broken.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Hill Church, Cleveland Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, gave us a wonderful sermon Sunday morning, March 19. The Scripture lesson was taken from the third chapter of Daniel. The text for the lesson was the words of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, which were: "Our God whom we serve is able to deliver us." Oh, that we all had the faith of these three.

We are hoping our Sunday school will improve as the weather gets better.

We have re-organized our Christian Endeavor after having stopped during the winter months. We are hoping to have even a better C. E. this year than we did last year.

We are planning an Easter program now.

Randleman.—We don't seem to have any reporters on this charge; if so, they have gone to sleep on their jobs, or maybe they haven't found anything to report; so I felt that I ought to let the folks know that we are not dead. But I feel there are signs of a deeper work of grace in the hearts of many of our member.

We had the best prayer meeting at Lebanon church Wednesday night I have been in for some time. They have started up prayer meeting at Worthville and New Salem, and I feel that if a few will hold on by faith the Spirit of the Lord will rekindle in the hearts of those who have grown cold and lost interest in the church and their souls' welfare. The church or individual that fails to pray will die spiritually. The church ground and cemeteries of Mount Lebanon, New Salem, and Level Cross have been greatly improved by the relief labor, and by the last of next week Level Cross church will be dressed in a white robe of new paint. If we can get people to beautify the place of worship it deepens their interest in the work of the kingdom, so we feel encouraged through the interest people are taking in the work and are praying for a spiritual revival in each church. That many may be saved from their sins. As I see it, the great mission of the church in the world is to save souls, for when Jesus died He said: "And I if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me." If we are not bringing the lost to Him, God help preacher and laymen to feel we are not lifting the Savior up in His beauty, in loveliness, in power, and in His glory. We have disconnected ourselves from the true Vine, we are dead branches and must be cut off and burned. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."—John 15:7.

JOEL B. TROGDON, Pastor.

Haw River-Glen Raven Charge.—We are sorry to report at this writing that Mr. Pegg, our pastor, is confined to his bed with mumps. We hope he will soon be out again. Rev. G. W. Holmes filled the regular appointment at Haw River today. We had a good-sized congregation and all enjoyed Brother Holmes' sermon very much. We were also glad to have Mr. H. A. Garrett of Friendship church to worship with us. We had special music by the Alamance Four Quartet.

The ladies of our church gave a play Saturday night, March 25th, at the school auditorium entitled "The School of Forty-Nine." It was enjoyed by all who were present.

We are glad to report that Mrs. J. R. Stuart, after a long illness, was able to worship with us today. F. S. COBLE.

Orange Charge.—The second quarterly conference was held at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, March 25th. The usual business was transacted. The following were nominated as candidates for delegate to the next Annual Conference: B. F. Wilson, of Hebron church, and L. M. Riley, of Union Grove church.

Dr. Dixon and his brother from the Children's Home were present at this conference—also Drs. Johnson and Taylor. The Dixons came fo ran offering of supplies our people were making for the Children's Home. Dr. Johnson and Dr. Taylor came to explain to our people the Loyalty League. We were glad to have all these visiting brethren.

Easter services are being arranged for each church on Easter Sunday as follows: Hebron, 11 a. m., or 7:30 p. m.; Chestnut Ridge, 2 p. m.; Union Grove, 3:30 p. m.; Efland, 7:30 p. m. B. M. WILLIAMS.

First Church, Charlotte.—The reporter is so efficient that it has seemed unnecessary for me to write. Yet I love to address the Herald family occasionally. I have not reported this year. So far it has been a pleasant and joyful year, not without its cross, to be sure.

All department of our church are functioning. Interest in many things is on the increase. Congregations are very good. The health of our people is much better. Finances are goining slowly. One of our Charlotte banks closed on our little operating cash, which was not a large amount, but enough to give us concern on how to keep going. The bank is now open on a restricted basis, but old deposits are not payable, so we are going on with our treasures laid up there for some time to come.

Spiritually, I believe we are making progress in a real god way. Have received into membership some 36 persons as a result of a few days' meeting conducted in January. I have had the pleasure in leading in an evangelistic meeting in North Monroe Methodist church at Monroe, N. C., March 12-23. Had a most splendid meeting; 75 conversions, with a like number of re-consecrations, 25 members joined Methodist church there, one at West Monroe Methodist and three going to the Baptist. I am to conduct similar services in Nebraska Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Tampa, Florida, beginning the fourth Sunday in April, to run two weeks.

I am very grateful to my people for their willingness to allow me to swing out into this kind of work as much as I can in keeping with the interest here in our home church. They realize that the salary is small and that any resources I can command in this way are necessary.

We are planning our Easter exercises; also trying to work out with Mr. Medlin a Leadership Training School.

I must not close without saying "Thank you" to about every member of this church for provisions of all kinds. I could not name them all nor itemize the things given for the lack of space, but be sure it counts like money and is vital assistant in the work.

G. H. HENDRY.

Love Joy, Why Not Charge.—We are glad to be able to report an increase in attendance as well as in interest. We have three new members in our church and many new members in Sunday school.

Rev. G. L. Reynolds, our pastor, was with us on the second Sunday and preached a fine sermon, in which he stressed evangelism. A committee was appointed to work for funds for the College. We intend to do our best to support it.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Thompson is back from the hospital and that she is improving. We hope she will soon be able to be back and worship with us at church.

Our hearts have been saddened by the death of one of our young members, Mr. James Strider, who died March 14. He was a Christian and an active member of the church. We miss him very much at Sunday school and extend our most profound sympathy to his young wife, Mrs. Edna Russell Strider.

We are very pleased with our church grounds since the shrubbery has been set out. We have a beautiful church and are proud of it.

We are not going to have a special program for Easter but are to observe Mothers' Day and Decoration Day the second Sunday in May.

May God's richest blessings rest with every one. Pray for us that we may grow in grace and do something worth while for God's kingdom.

Bellemont, Mount Hermon Charge.—At our church on Sunday morning, March 26, our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, gave us an interesting and impressive sermon on "Heaven." He took his text from Matthew the sixth chapter and centered his thoughts around the verses 19-21: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Rev. Mr. Mabry impressed upon our minds that we should be rich in faith and good works instead of material possessions. We should be ever watchful for treasures to lay up in heaven. May our treasures be "in the form of a redeemed, sanctified life."

During the service we enjoyed the special music furnished by the E. M. Holt quartet, which is composed of Messrs. Homer Hargis, Knox Lamar, Fred Ingle, and Talmadge Isley, with Miss Truth Isley as accompanist.

After the sermon Communion service was held. A large number, including several children, partook of the Sacrament.

We are happy to announce that Dr. C. E. Forlines, of Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Maryland, has accepted the invitation to deliver our memorial address on May 28. We are sure that he will deliver a great message, for he is considered an outstanding man in the Methodist Protestant Conference. Dr. Forlines was formerly of our own community, and is pleasantly remembered by some of our older folks. We are very fortunate to have him speak to us.

Class No. 5 held its monthly class meeting with Miss Maybelle Hill on the evening of March 23. Several members of the class took part in the program, which consisted of songs, scripture reading, prayer, a duet, poetry, and stories. After a short business session everyone had a most enjoyable social hour. Misses Mattie Rich and Alma Mae Hargis served delicious refreshments.

Born, to Mr. and Mr. Giles Nicholson, a daughter, Carol Rich, on March 14.

TWO WAYS TO HELP THE CHILDREN'S HOME

There are many ways to help the Children's Home which you have already tried and are trying. Just keep it up, and may God bless you in the efforts.

We wish to suggest two new ways: 1, plant an acre, more or less, and let that be the Children's Home Patch, and give the income to the Home next fall. 2, give the Home a calf, three months old or more. We have a fine pasture for our dry cattle, and if five or six friends would give us a calf each, they would make fine beeves for use next fall and winter.

A Two-Horse Wagon Needed

We have had to add one more mule to our force so we are very greatly in need of a good wagon. Perhaps some one of our members somewhere has one standing under a shed, and not being used, that you would give the Home. We appreciate your kind thought of us.

Faithfully yours,

money to buy things to donate. A good wife asked her husband "Aren't you going to buy something to take along to the donation for the Home?" He answered, "No. I'm going to give the money that I'd spend for produce." We appreciate his answer and his action.

Empty Cans

We have lots of empty glass cans. We took 100 of them to Chestnut Ridge, Orange circuit, last Saturday. We will be glad to send out many more for the coming season. These to be filled and returned in the summer or fall. Thank you and God bless you.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Brown

In the early morning hours of February 25 1933, Mrs. C. C. Brown left her friends here to join the dear ones over on the other side.

Mrs. Brown having been a faithful member of our Auxiliary since its beginning, therefore be it resolved:

First, That we cherish with loving remembrance her faithful service in our midst.

Second, That this Auxiliary hold her in loving remembrance, and take example from her beautiful Christian character, her kind and gentle manner.

Third, That we extend to her faithful husband, sons and daughters our heart-felt sympathy.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be placed on the minutes of our Auxiliary, and a copy be sent to the Missionary Record, and a copy be sent to the family.

Her toil is past, her work is done,
And she is fully blest,
She fought the fight, the victory won
And she has entered into rest.

Isley

Rufus M. Isley was born in Alamance County, December 11, 1868, and passed away at the home of his brother, L. A. Isley, March 13, 1933, at the age of 64 years, three months and two days.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan A. Isley. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Shoffner, Mrs. Cora Crouse; by two brothers, D. Rhodes and Lacy A. Isley.

He lived a quiet life, centered very close to his home surroundings. He made a confession of faith in early life. He was held in high esteem by a large host of friends, who gathered at the home and the church to pay their last respects to him and the family.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. D. I. Offman of the Lutheran church. The body was laid to rest in the family plot in the church cemetery.

May the dear Lord bless and comfort his family and friends.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

studied at home and became a very interesting conversationalist, having good use of the English language. She made with her own hands and sold hundreds of dollars worth of needlework. It is said that she was an expert in this kind of work. Miss Fesmire had a vital religious experience, the Bible being a lamp unto her feet and a light unto her path. Her church affiliation was with the Methodist Protestant church. Her mother and two sisters survive.

The funeral was conducted at Hope Methodist Protestant church by the writer, assisted by Rev. Jonas Barclay of the Presbyterian church, and the body was buried in the church cemetery.

Human Nature and the Church

This is the title of a very interesting new book written by Professor P. E. Lindley of High Point College. Added interest is given to the subject-matter by an admirable literary style with diction that is almost faultless. The author undertakes the rather unique service of impressing the church with what it is losing by not availing itself of natural advantages. He holds up worldly institutions as worthy examples in this regard. Jesus one day observed that the "children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light," thus preceding Professor Lindley in the main thesis of his book. Business men find it profitable to spend money for the comfort and pleasure of their patrons. Professor Lindley points out that churches would find the same thing true in that true religion could be more effectively promoted. If churches would pay more attention to the physical needs of people, these people would look to the churches more to relieve their spiritual wants.

Readers of this book will perhaps be surprised at the number of deficiencies the author points out in the equipment and service of churches. Many of these deficiencies as the author points out might be supplied with little or no outlay of money —by a little outlay of thought and labor. Nearly every church would find in this treatise matter of practical value.

A few of the incidental religious teachings will be objected to by some readers, perhaps. There are few men that are right in all their opinions or even in what they call their "convictions." "If you come to a stump, plough around it."

The book is published by The Macmillan Co., New York, and sells for $2.00.

O Lord, Revive Thy Work—Hab. 3:2

These are the words of the prophet, after Jehovah had spoken unto him in a vision unfolding the terrible judgments which should overtake the people because of their apostacy. When he gets a vision of the coming chastisement he is filled with terror, and with the real concern of a true patriot and genuine Christian, he cries out, "O Lord, revive thy work."

In these strenuous days of depression, when thousands are suffering for the needed comforts of life, and other thousands are committing robberies and crimes too heinous to mention; when church members by the thousands are lining up with the wet forces and seem determined to do what they can to get intoxicating beverages made legal once again; when the inconsistent lives of church members are glaring in full blaze before the world, it really seems that every one who actually knows God should join in prayer with the prophet of old when he prayed, "O Lord, revive thy work." There are some in the church of today who say we can not have a revival in these new modern days, but we recall other periods in the history of the church when ungodly church members said the same thing. But when the Wesleys, John Knox, and others stepped upon the stage of religious activities, the tide seemed to change and a revival actually swept over the country.

To get results in any undertaking we must go at it in the right way and do the things required in order that the thing may be accomplished. Today God will revive his work if we will meet the necessary requirements. No amount of analysis, clear thinking, planning, or building costly churches will ever bring a revival.

It matters not how many professional singers we may have in our choirs, or how expensive the piano may be, these alone will never bring a revival to any church or community. All unguided efforts and activities prompted by wrong motives avail nothing with God. We may be learned in his word, yet if we hold criticism of others and are puffed up, thinking more highly of ourselves than we ought to think, we will contribute nothing toward a revival, though we may pray ever so loud and long. If our hearts are filled with pride, envy, malice, or hatred of any kind, we need not expect the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. If any church or nation ever has a revival it must come through the Christians, therefore we must keep our hearts a suitable place for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

G. L. Reynolds.

HARDEST LOOKING SISTERS

Fifteen or twenty years from now we are going to have in this country a lot of the hardest looking sisters the world ever saw. They will be the women who, now in their late 'teens, are contracting the cigarette smoking habit. They will then be hollow-chested, weary-eyed, with nicotine soaked bodies and complexions about as attractive as an alligator's hide.

Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, says in regard to this pernicious thing:

"If American women generally contract the habit, as reports now indicate they are doing, the entire nation will suffer. The number of American women who are smoking cigarettes today is amazing. The habit harms a woman more than it does a man. The woman's nervous system is more highly organized than the man's. The reaction is, therefore, more intense. * * * Propaganda urging that tobacco be used as a substitute for food is not in the interest of public health, and if practiced widely by young persons will be positively harmful."—Texas Christian Advocate.

REV. O. R. MILLER HISSED AND JEERED BY THE WETS

The greatest demonstration of the whole afternoon was when the editor of The Civic Bulletin arose to speak. The 1,000 or more wets on the south side of the Assembly chamber began a thunderous booing, cat calling and hissing which echoed like the sound of many waters all over the Capitol building. People outside of the Assembly chamber rushed in to see what the extraordinary demonstration was about and people in other rooms of the building made inquiry concerning it.

This boisterous demonstration was so loud and continued so long that Senator Kleinfeld, the chairman of the hearing, pounded repeatedly on his desk for order, but the wet crowd was so bitter against the Bulletin editor that they seemed determined to prevent his speaking if they could possibly do so. When a little quiet was restored Senator Kleinfeld threatened to adjourn the hearing from the Assembly chamber into some smaller room where no one except the Committee and the speakers could gain admittance, if such a demonstration occurred again.

The Albany Knickerbocker Press this morning, in its report of the hearing, said of this matter: 'Rev. Mr. Miller was greeted with such a storm of jeers and boos that Senator Kleinfelt, chairman of the Senate Committee, threatened to clear the galleries.''

However, The Bulletin editor took it all in good nature and during the long booing and hissing he turned and bowed to and smiled upon the 1,000 or more hostile wets that were hissing and booing him. He considered that one of the greatest compliments that he ever received in his long public life, that is, to be hissed and booed by such a wet crowd as that, some of whom possibly have been fined or sent to prison in the past as a result of his law enforcement work, through the New York Civic League, and through his expose of them again and again in The Civic Bulletin. The thunderous booing, hissing noise was remarkably like the same noise that was heard in the two Chicago National conventions last summer whenever any dry arose to defend the 18th Amendment.

After quiet was finally secured by the chairman, The Bulletin editor gave his address. He said that a beer law was no new experiment, that it had been tried in various States. Some Prohibition States years ago voted to give up Prohibition and license nothing but beer, and in every case it proved a shocking failure, and after a very few years the beer law was repealed, either to go back to prohibition or to license the whole liquor traffic with all kinds of liquor sold in the saloons. He said that Georgia had tried it, Iowa had tried it, Massachusetts had tried it, and it had miserably failed, and would fail here.

He said that he was in favor of any law that would reduce the evils of the liquor traffic to the minimum. Almost no law against any crime is ever enforced 100 per cent, but past history and experience has shown that no law which licenses the liquor traffic will reduce its evils to the minimum, and while we have had our problems and difficulties with prohibition enforcement, and that in many places it had not been as well enforced as it should have been, yet past experience in many states shows that the poorest enforcement of a prohibition law is infinitely better than the best enforcement of a license law, for reducing of the evils of the liquor traffic to a minimum.

At the close of his speech the large audience of drys on the north side of the Assembly chamber gave Mr. Miller great applause.

Many other speakers appeared in behalf of the drys and against the bill, including Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, Mrs. Lulu Walker, Miss Helen G. H. Estelle, Miss Elizabeth Smart, an attorney, Mrs. Rush Patterson, and Miss Mace, an attorney from New York City, Rev. J. Elmer Cates, Mr. F. A. Victor, Rev. H. D. Chase, and Colonel Anderson of the Salvation Army, who made one of the strongest addresses of the whole afternoon against the beer bill. He showed his disinterestedness by saying that the Salvation Army collections had fallen off probably one-half since the closing of the saloons, as they got perhaps half of their collection money from men in the saloons; but notwithstanding that loss the Salvation Army were more interested in men than in money and they never would consent to the return of the sale of liquor.

The dry speakers all insisted that they would not make any suggestions as to how to improve the beer bill, as they were wholly opposed to it, believing that it was immoral and unconstitutional, but they listened with quiet respect to all the wet speakers.

There were various wet speakers, including some brewers, wet lawyers, hotel men, labor leaders, and some of the representatives of the wealthy ''society'' ladies from New York City who made feeble arguments, attempting to argue that beer is not intoxicating, that the State needs the revenue, and that they were very anxious to get rid of all the speakeasies, and they felt sure this beer bill would accomplish these results.—The Civic Bulletin.

IMPORTANT ORIGINS

The origin of man is no longer a debatable question. The theory that he is a product of evolution, from the lower forms of life, has been set aside by the most eminent scientists as untenable. Perhaps, the oldest book now in existence explains the origin of man as follows, ''The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life''—Job 33:4. This harmonizes with the Genesis story, and gives humanity a noble ancestry.

The name Christian originated among the Latin speaking people of Antioch, and soon displaced all previous names for the followers of Christ. The giving of the new name marked the recognition of the fact that the disciples of Christ were something more than another new Jewish sect. The new appellation was capable of universal application, and broad enough to include all the followers of Christ; whether Jew or Gentile. ''The disciples were called Christians first at Antioch''—Act. 11:26.

Antioch proved a good place to originate things. It was from Antioch that the first missionaries were sent out. It was the second bishop of Antioch, Ignatius, who first used the word Catholic meaning universal; and it was he who first outside of the New Testament writers, to speak of the Virgin Birth and to insist on its historicity. This same bishop originated the episcopal theory of church government. The word bishop occurs a few times in the New Testament Epistles; but is used rather vaguely, and seems almost synonomous with certain other terms. But Bishop Ignatius of Antioch made it apply to a distinct church office. This should be said, however, that he was more interested in apostolic success, than "apostolic succession."

While the name Methodit originated among medical students, during the time of Nero, we have no proof that it was ever applied to a sect of Christians previous to 1720. The Holy Club of Oxford University, founded by John and Charles Wesley, were called Methodists because of their methodical strictness in religious duties. The name really became the symbol for a certain type of religious experience, which has girdled the globe. The Methodists have taken the slogan of John Wesley, "The World Is My Parish," and carried the Gospel of Christ to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Perhaps, the Modern Church School movement has been more widely received, and more far reaching in its influence for good than any other movement in the history of the Christian church. Robert Raikes of Glouchester, England, is usually credited as its founder. The facts are, a Methodist lady by the name of Miss Hall was conducting Sunday Schools among Wesley's converts 14 years before Raikes founded his first Sunday School in 1783. Another Methodist lady, a Miss Cook, really suggested to Robert Raikes the idea of his first Sunday School. "Honor to whom honor is due"—Rom. 13:7.

"WAR"

During these days of wars and rumors of wars, many have become so accustomed to the noises that they do not pay a great deal of attention to battles. From time immemorial India has suffered from so many wars that many have come to consider another as a matter of fact. Time will not allow me to tell of the many wars being waged in this great land at the present time. Recently we saw a battle in the great war against hunger. Saturday noon we noticed something strange in the field back of our camp. On careful examination we discovered that though it is old and common in the land we personally had not seen it before. So with camera in hand we took our lives in our hands and ventured to the front line trenches. There we beheld a battle which we shall never forget. The object over which the battle was being fought was a dead buffalo. There was a large army, row after row, 300 strong, of turkey-buzzards. Nearer was a pack of hungry village dogs. Three poor out-caste women and a girl were in the midst of the fray fighting for dear life. (Shall I go on or have you seen enough? Well go on I shall, if you like). The buffalo died—supposedly—of snakebite. However, most likely it was mouth and hoof disease. At any rate it was dead. When we appeared on the scene the hide had been removed. On the hide many fresh strips of meat had been placed. The hungry village dogs with angry teeth showing, made an effort to capture the spoil but were forced to make a hasty retreat by the heavy fire of the girl. She held in her lean hands a stout country axe and when the enemy approached within range she let go with all her might and some hungry cur fled for his life. The lines of feathered soldiers advanced only to be driven back with the sharp cries of the sentinel on duty. The hot tropical sun and the smell of fresh meat (from the smell, not too fresh) soon made us beat a hasty retreat. But from the distance we were able to witness much of the battle. The women with knives, sickles, and an axe soon removed the choicest cuts and were forced to retire and give place to the dogs and buzzards. After a very short time only the bare bones were left. The battle was over and all was peace again.

Possibly some of you ask in your own minds, if people really do eat the flesh of dead animals. In the city we see none of this but in the villages dead chickens, cows, buffaloes, sheep, and goats are eaten by certain people. In this district there is a caste whose business it is to remove dead animals, for the removing of them they may have the flesh to eat. The hide, however, in most cases must be given to the leather worker. Doesn't it make you ill just to think of human beings eating the flesh from animals which have died from any and all reasons? And yet they are human, just like you, with souls just as precious as yours and mine. Do they do this after becoming Christians? No. Well, let us make them Christian in a hurry. We are doing the best we can. Will you please stand by with your sympathy, prayers, and money and help us to help them.

J. F. Minnis.

THE ECHO

If we give good to the world, the world will return good to us in a good degree, at least. We usually get back what we give, in kind. If we sow good seed, we get good. If we sow bad seed we get back the same. If we are good neighbors, we usually have good neighbors. Proverbs 15:1, "A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger."

David Cargill, in his conquest on the Fiji Islands, fifty years ago, as savage canibals with clubs, advanced to meet him, he spoke the only two or three words of their language which he had mastered; my love to you, my love to you. With these words he won their attention, disarmed them of their weapons, and in a half century, Fiji has become Christianized Proverbs 18:24: "A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly." The following story well illustrates the point I am trying to make. A little boy once went to his mother and said, mother, sister and I went into the garden, and we were calling about, and there was some boy mocking us. I was saying, "Ho? and this boy said ho?" I said to him, "who are you?" and he answered, "Who are you?" I said, "Why don't you show yourself?" and he said, "Show yourself." I went out into the wood, and I could not find him. I came back and said, "If you don't come out, I'll strike you, and he said, "If you don't come out, I'll strike you." His mother said, "Ah, Johnny, if you had said, I love you he would have said, I love you." If you had said, "Your voice is sweet, he would have said, "Your voice is sweet." Whatever you said to him he would have said to you. His mother said to him, "Johnny, when you become a man, whatever you will say to others, they will by and by, say back to you. His mother showed that verse of scripture: "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

GOD'S "MUST"

"There stood before me this night the angel of God, . . . saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Cæsar" (Acts 27:23, 24).

That was one of God's "musts." Men sometimes have their "musts," but, oh, they are shattered like the ships they sail on by the buffeting waves! God's "musts" always get through. If God has a purpose for you it must be fulfilled. If God has a plan for your life and you have accepted it and committed it to Him for execution, neither earth nor Heaven nor hell can prevail against it. If God has sent you to India, China, Africa or even Tibet you must get there. Oh, to have such a "must" in our life! What invincible power, what momentous impulsive force it would give to us! What confidence it will afford our faith as we quietly lean back upon the everlasting arms and see God triumph!

A woman was dying of consumption and given up by all physicians, when it was distinctly recalled to her mind that in her early girlhood she had consecrated herself as a missionary to India, and God had entered into a covenant with her to send her to that land. This recollection took possession of her and became interwoven in her prayer and faith, until she felt she must not die until she had fulfilled her Heavenly calling. Need we say that the cable held, the faith founded on God's "must" was stronger than the power of disease or the word of physicians, and that she came forth from the last stage of consumption restored to perfect health, went out to India, preached the Gospel there for nearly twenty years, and is today a woman in the full vigor of life, so hardy and robust that one would never imagine that she had ever known the awful disease?

Beloved, have you got any of God's "musts" in your life? Ask Him to give you something to do, to put a mission in your life and a "must" in your future, and then go forth invincible to be one of the eternal forces of the world.—A. B. Simpson.

URGES CULTIVATION OF SPIRITUAL VALUES

Editor the Herald:

Some of our church people of today are trying to run their church without God. We are depending too much on ourselves, and are having too many material things and leaving out the spiritual side in our church. If we would tithe as God would have us do there would be no need for suppers, food sales, and benefit parties in which to make money. Having these things in our churches we are chasing the Holy Spirit out and letting the evil spirit come in. He comes in so easily and works so hard. We, as Christians, waste so much time with material things in the churches, when we need to be working on the spiritual things, as Jesus was constantly about his father's business. We read in Ezek. 3:18, "Where God said to Ezekiel, if you speak not to warn the wicked, he shall surely die, but his blood shall be required at thy hand." If we leave out the spiritual things and warn not the sinners, their blood will be required at our hand, Church folks, it is time we were waking up and doing the will of God instead of running our churches into society, while multitudes are going down to hell.

THE BOOK OF BOOKS

There is a Book of grace Divine,
With God's great gifts impearled;
There carved in every line
Is God's love for the world.
The Wonder Book—the Golden Book,
With grace and mercy filled;
It lights the saint's last dying look,
When other joys are stilled.

It brings the peace of God so deep
Within the sinner's breast;
And on the road of life so steep
It brings the balm of rest.
O Precious Book—the Saviour's Book,—
In thee the Christ I see;
The wonder of the path He took Brings glory close to me.

I walk the paths of Galilee,
Through Salem's streets I tread;
Where shines the Cross of Calvary
His precious Blood was shed.
Redemption Book,—or Judgment Book,—
Which shall it prove to thee,
When thou must meet truth's searching look
In white eternity?

A SUFFICIENT SAVIOUR

There was a Scotchman who had formerly been a notable character, a prize-fighter and gambler. Changed by the grace of God, he became a mighty soul-winner, and on one occasion his message was being greatly blessed. Just before he arose to speak at one service, some one sent an envelope up to the platform. On opening it he found it contained a long list of sins and crimes that he had committed in that very city.

At first he felt that he must run away, but stepping boldly to the front of the platform he said, "Friends, I am accused of crimes and sins committed in this very city. I will read them to you." One after another he read these charges, and at the conclusion of each he said, "I am guilty." When he had finished the whole list, he paused for a moment and then said, "You ask me how I dare come to you and speak of righteousness and truth, with a list of crimes like that against my name? I will tell you: "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief."—Moody Monthly.

HORSEHAIR SNAKES

The American Nature Association says there is no foundation for the myth that a horsehair put into water will turn into a snake. The origin of this belief is thought to be the actual existence of a hairworm or threadworm, which is of the thickness and general appearance of a horsehair. These creatures are hatched from eggs, however, and have lives similar to other worm-like animals.—Pathfinder.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

The Stewards Area Meetings

I am suggesting the following as a convenient grouping for these meetings. If any pastor in the several groups think a change can be made that would be the advantage of the cause, please drop me a line to that effect. Also I shall be pleased to receive any suggestions for increasing the efficiency of the meetings.

1. Creswell Charge; 2. Enfield, Whitakers, Littleton, Halifax; 3. Greensville, Spring Church; 4. Henderson, Vance Granville; 5. Orange, Saxapahaw, Mebane, Alamance; 6. Mt. Herman, Mt. Pleasant, Tabernacle; 7. Burlington, Glne Raven, Fountain Place-Gibsonville and Graham; 8. Liberty, Siler City; 9. Randolph, Randleman, Asheboro and Richland; 10. Why Not; 11. Asheville, Weaverville and Democrat.

We hope to find a chairman for each of these areas and to have the place and date fixed at an early date also.

Second Quarter should close about the tenth of May since the conference is scheduled to meet on the eighth of November. So we might begin to hold these meetings as early as the second Sunday in May and thus get through with them not later than the middle of June. The sooner we know what has been done and what needs to be done, the sooner we can make our plans for closing the year effective.

Where Conference Shall Meet

We have heard from various sources that an invitation might be given to the conference to meet with them. It might be well that any church desirous of inviting the conference send in the invitation soon as it is determined to invite it and the proper committee can take the matter under advisement and decide where we shall meet. I think it would be well to settle this matter at an early date.

Rush the Help for the Herald

There is need that what we shall do for the Herald be done at once. I know that several churches still expect to take the offering to help reduce the deficit in operating the Herald but have delayed for various reasons; delay no longer, please. Act now and relieve the great strain these men are under in trying to keep the Herald going. Push the matter of subscriptions also. Let's rally now while we can help.

Orange Charge, Rev. B. M. Williams, Pastor. My plan called for visiting Union Grove and Efland churches. A sudden death in Union Grove Church at the very beginning of the services was the occasion for postponing the services. Our sympathy goes out to all who are bereaved by the sudden going away of Mrs. Susan Kirkland, while not a member of this church, I understand she loved to attend the services.

At Efland there was a very good congregation present and we enjoyed our visit here very much. Brother Williams is held in high esteem by his people and has during more than seven years of service here built up the work in many ways. In many respects Orange is among our best rural charges. The pastor was absent but we were well entertained in the homes of Brother and Sister J. M. Lloyd, Brother and Sister Herbert Blackwood, and at the parsonage. We greatly appreciate the cordial hospitality of these friends.

I am not able to make a report of the work here other than as was made when the first quarterly conference was held, since the pastor was absent assisting Brother Trollinger in a revival meeting.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge, Rev. E. Suits, pastor.—We held the second quarterly conference of this charge at the above place Saturday afternoon, April 1st. Not all churches were present but there was a spirit of harmony in evidence and the usual business that is transacted at a second quarterly conference was attended to.

Appointments

April 2: Orange Charge: Union Grove, 11 a. m.; Efland at night.

April 9: 11 a. m., Roberta Church; afternoon, Greer's Chapel.

April 16: Spencer 11, a. m.; Mt. Carmel, afternoon; Lexington, night.

April 23: Saxapahaw Charge.

April 30: Calvary Church, Greensboro, 11 a. m.; district meeting afternoon.

CHILDREN GROW IN FALL

Dr. Carroll E. Palmer of the U. S. Public Health Service, after studying the growth-rate of 2,500 children at Hagerstown, Md., announces that children of school age do practically all of their growing in September and October. Growth is only moderate in the summer and winter, while it nearly stops in the spring. No reason for this phenomenon has as yet been discovered.—Pathfinder.

OUR STORY PAGE

A SNOW STORY

It was winter time, and the freshly fallen snow had clothed the whole face of the country in a beautiful white robe.

Crossing a field with her milk can in hand was a little girl. She was on her way to the farmhouse to buy some milk. About the middle of the field she stopped and took three looks.

She looked around: all was pure and white, the hedges, the trees, the ground, the houses, all were covered with snow.

She looked within: she thought of her sins, of how many wrong words she had spoken and of how many wrong things she had done; she felt she was black with sin and not at all like the snow around her.

She looked up; she turned to the Saviour of sinners, and from the field rose the cry, "Lord, wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

Would the Lord hear that cry? Indeed He would! He answered it at once and gave that little girl to know that His precious blood cleansed her from all sin, and that she was whiter than snow in His sight.—Publisher Unknown.

THE CHEAT GAME

Marvin Sanders threw down his croquet mallet in disgust. "Oh, let's not play this old game any more."

"What shall we do, then? The river has been put out of commission by those pesky cattle, and we can't go there to swim for a month."

"Guess I'll go home," said Ezra, as he picked up his cap.

Just then Ed Welman came by.

"Why not play croquet another way? One that is really fun."

"Different way?" asked Marvin unbelievingly. "There is only one way to play croquet, and I'm tired of that."

"I know a new way," persisted Ed, cheerfully. It is called the Cheat Game."

"Cheat Game? Sounds good," Marvin admitted.

"It's loads of fun," continued Eddie. "You play the regular game, but you cheat whenever you can. If you are caught cheating, you have to return to the starting post and begin again. It is exciting. Sometimes you get caught every time you cheat, and sometimes you can go all the way around without anyone seeing you play out of your turn, or pushing your ball."

"Let's try it, fellows," suggested Marvin, and the boys readily agreed: anything different was worth trying, anyhow.

They played the new game for an hour. It was great fun, thought Marvin, who had been extremely clever in his cheating. Poor Carl had started the ball on the course at least eight times only to be sent back by someone who caught him. And Eddie, who had instigated the game, got just what he had prophesied—no farther than the center wicket.

"That's the best fun I've had for a long time," said Marvin when the game broke up and the boys were preparing to leave for home.

Marvin had a teacher in school of whom he was very fond. The teacher, Mr. Stoner, was a man of very frank speech; kindly, and friendly, he would at times be very pointed in his remarks.

To Marvin, in school the next day after his acquaintance with the Cheat Game, Mr. Stoner was decidedly sharp. It hurt the boy severely, for the teacher never was cross with his pupils without good reason. But this day he was rather impatient with Marvin in particular, or at least Marvin so judged the actions of his teacher. Mr. Stoner also seemed rather sad and grave, which was very unusual.

Marvin was sorely distressed. His mind was far from his studies. That is, far from most of his studies. His very distress because of Mr. Stoner's peculiar manner, caused him to do exceptional work in his arithmetic, his hardest subject. To his surprise he turned in a perfect paper.

At the close of school that evening Mr. Stoner stopped Marvin at the desk. Marvin's arithmetic paper was in the teacher's hand.

"Marvin, is this work entirely your own?"

"Why—why—of course!" the pupil was astonished at the purport of the question.

"That's all I wanted to know, Marvin. Good-by."

A very unhappy boy went to bed that evening—a very much puzzled and perplexed boy.

The following day Marvin studied as hard again, on his dread arithmetic. Again, to his utter surprise, his paper was perfect. If harder study would do the trick, why he was going to do even harder studying.

The same thing occurred as he passed the teacher's desk at the close of school. "Marvin, is this all your own work?"

"You asked me that last night, Mr. Stoner."

"I am aware of that, Marvin. I am asking you again."

"Yes, it is my own work. Why?"

"Because you've been very poor in this subject, and suddenly you begin to turn in perfect papers."

"Well, I just studied exceptionally hard the last two days," Marvin told him.

"Are you sure it was hard study that gave you the right answers to these problems?"

"What—what—what!" Marvin could not express to himself, even, his dumbfounded thoughts. Over and over in his mind those words tossed and tumbled: Are you sure it was hard study that gave you the right answers to these problems?"

Another night of turmoil and sleeplessness.

When he reached school the third day Marvin had resolved to settle this thing. Evidently something was wrong somewhere. For two days now, Mr. Stoner had looked at him sorrowfully and had practically accused him of being a cheat. The first had made him study very hard, only to cause him to be called the latter. It certainly was confusing. If he studied his lesson today as he ordinarily had perhaps he would not be called a cheat. So Marvin was careless in his study of arithmetic and got a correspondingly low mark.

But after school, it was Marvin who asked the question first.

"Mr. Stoner, please tell me why you treat me so peculiar. Just because I get a hundred in a subject I've been poor in?"

The teacher looked at him for a moment, then, as he was known to do, said very frankly, "Marvin, cheaters do not prosper."

"Why—Mr. Stoner—I—don't cheat."

"Then how did you get one hundred in your lesson for two days and fell down today?"

"I told you I studied very hard. Today I didn't."

"I saw you cheating at a croquet game the other day," said Mr. Stoner abruptly.

"Me!"

"Yes, it was you. I was much grieved to think it of you. I had always thought you a most worthy young fellow. I can't tell you how I felt to see you deliberately push your ball around, when you were not being seen."

Marvin was speechless. So that was the trouble. Laughter welled up in his throat, but somehow it did not really seem so funny.

"I think I see it all now, Mr. Stoner. You saw me cheating at play, and thought that I was doing it for the purpose of winning a false game. But I really wasn't. It was part of the game we were playing. We all cheated."

Mr. Stoner said nothing for a while—just seemed to be thinking. Then he looked at Marvin and told him this: "The Bible tells us to avoid the appearance of evil. You were playing a game which in itself may be innocent enough, but I saw you deliberately cheat and how was I to know what your intentions were?"

Marvin felt that he could say nothing to that, so he kept silent. But Mr. Stoner had more to say. "I repeat, I thought you were cheating. Then when you suddenly turned in a good paper in a subject you have been poor in, why, I surely thought you must have cheated in your school work also. How could I think otherwise? That was a dangerous game you played, Marvin. A very dangerous game!"

"Dangerous game!" Marvin thought of nothing else all the way home. He was sitting on his porch steps when Carl and Ed came along. They proposed a game of croquet to be played in the new fashion. Marvin shook his head. "No, I don't think I'll ever play that kind of a game again."

"Oh, why not?" asked Eddie.

"It got me into a lot of trouble." Then Marvin told his chums about his experience with Mr. Stoner.

"Oh, Stoner's an old crab! It's just like him to make a fuss over a thing like that," Carl sneered contemptuously.

Marvin looked at his chum and said, "Mr. Stoner is not a crab. I think he's right. How could he tell what was in my mind? He saw me cheating. Maybe a lot of other folks saw me."

Marvin's argument, coming from him, had more weight than it would have had if it had come from Mr. Stoner himself. The boy was well liked and was a sort of a leader. If he thought this about the game, maybe what he thought was right.

At least Eddie saw the point, for he said, "I certainly hope Mr. Bradford didn't see me cheating. Say! If he did!" The thought seemed to startle him. "Say, if he did, and I go back to work for him in the summer, why, he'll not want me. He'll think I'm a cheat."

That settled the matter for sure. The boys decided that it was unsafe to indulge in a sport that was so dangerous to their moral reputation.

Then Eddie spoke to Marvin. "I'm sorry, Marvie, for getting you in bad with the teacher."

"How did you get me in bad?"

"Well, I started the game, didn't I?"—Everett Shepard, in Junior Boys.

WHERE THEY ARE NOT

The story is told of Mark Twain that when he was a pilot on the Mississippi River a stranger stood watching him at the wheel for a while and then said to him:

"Stranger, I suppose that you hold your job on this steamboat because you know where all the bad places in the water are."

"No, sir," answered the pilot, "I hold my job because I know where they ain't."

Samuel Clemens was a thinker as well as a humorist, and there was much sober truth back of the off-hand answer that came from his lips. He did not need to know where all the sand bars and snags and shoals were located, but he did need to know where he would fine a good deep channel in which he could guide the vessel. He began work on that steamer as a "cub pilot," and it was a long time before he was allowed to take the wheel, and then only with an expert pilot beside him all the way until he became familiar with the ins and outs of the great Father of Waters.

The river sometimes changes its course in winter from that of the summer months, and all these changes have to be learned by heart. The thing for the pilot to do was to steer for places which he knew to be safe, not to run any risks by venturing into regions that were doubtful or uncertain. It was a big job in those days to be a river pilot. No foolhardy learner was wanted, no one who was given to taking unnecessary chances. The thing that was wanted first, last and always—was safety, and the deep channels must be followed. The bad places would then most certainly be avoided.

There are young people who think they must try for themselves the shady, doubtful places in life before they can truly learn how to live. They say they must see life, and they have gotten into the notion that seeing life is seeing things that are wrong or at least doubtful. They do not want to be told by those who have had larger experience with life what they should avoid, or the good and safe course into which they may safely turn their way.

Many a young soul is led into sin by a daring curiosity that insists on venturing into the shoals of evil. They have no thought of committing shipwreck. That is farthest from their thoughts. All they want is a more perfect knowledge of the waters over which they are to make the voyage of life. They are not satisfied to guide their bark into places where the bad waters of the river are not. Life would be too tame if they were to live all their days according to that plan.

The Bible is the great road Book to guide us all along the way. This is what it says of every place that is doubtful: "Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away."——The Youth's Evangelist.

TIME AND ETERNITY

It is not time that flies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are flying:
It is not life that dies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are dying.

Time and Eternity are one;
Time is Eternity begun;
Life changes, yet without decay;
'Tis we alone who pass away.

It is not truth that flies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are flying:
It is not faith that dies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are dying.

It is not hope that flies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are flying:
It is not love that dies;
'Tis we, 'tis we are dying.

We die but as the spring-bud dies,
In summer's golden glow to rise.
These be our days of April bloom;
Our summer is beyond the tomb.

There are but three steps to Heaven,—
Out of self, into Christ, into Glory.

THE PRAYING SAILOR BOY

I must tell you of a feat performed by a sailor boy at the height of a storm. He was a young boy, and better fitted for thumbling Webster's spelling-book than furling a sail in a storm; but his mother was a widow, and the boy wished to earn a living for himself and his mother at sea. The ship was rolling fearfully. Some of the rigging got foul at the main masthead, and it was necessary that some one should go up and fifix it. It was indeed a perilous job.

I was standing near the mate, and heard him tell that boy to do it. He lifted his cap and glanced at the swaying mast, the boiling sea, and at the steady, determined countenance of the mate.

He hesitated in silence a moment, then rushing across the deck, he pitched down into the forecastle. Perhaps he was gone two minutes; when he returned, he laid his hands on the ratlines and went up with a will. My eyes followed him, until my head was dizzy, when I turned and remonstrated with the mate for sending the boy aloft. He could not come down alive.

"Why did you send him?"

"I did it," replied the mate, "to save a life. We sometimes lose men overboard, but never a boy. See how he holds like a squirrel—he is more useful; he will come down safe, I hope."

Again I looked until tears dimmed my eyes, and again I was compelled to turn away, expecting every moment to catch a glimpse of his last fall.

In about fifteen minutes he came down, and straightening himself up with conscious pride of having performed a manly act, he walked aft with a smile on his countenance.

In the course of the day I took occasion to speak to him, and asked him why he hesitated when he was ordered to go aloft?

"I went, sir," said the boy, "to pray."

"Do you pray?"

"Yes, sir. I thought that I might not come down alive, and I went to commit my soul to God."

"Where did you learn to pray?"

"At home; my mother wanted me to go the Sunday school; and my teacher urged me to pray to God to keep me; and I do."

"What is that you have in your jacket pocket?"

"My Testament which my teacher gave me. I thought if I did perish I would have the Word of God near to my heart."—Unknown.

ONE WHO NEVER CHANGES

We are living in a world of many changes. Everything about us changes. Even the heavens above us are not always the same. Sometimes the skies are a beautiful, clear blue. Sometimes they are covered with snowy-white clouds, which look like rolls of cotton or handfuls of white wool. Sometimes they hang low with dark, stormy clouds. And we ourselves change. Our feelings change. Our likes and dislikes change. Our actions change. Our wants change.

But we may be happy to know that there is One above who never changes. Our Lord is always the same. He says in His Word, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever" (Heb. 13:8). Again the Lord says, "I am the Lord, I change not." (Mal. 3:6).

No matter what our needs are; no matter what our failures, our weaknesses, our changeableness, the Lord is always the same. His dealings with us may be different at times, but His love never changes. He loves us with an everlasting love. Even this we can say of Him:

"Though I forget Him and wander away,
Still He doth love me wherever I stray."

He says a woman may forget her small baby, "yet will I not forget thee" (Is. 49:15). His love cannot change, for He is love.

How precious it is to have One in whom we can safely trust, One who will never change toward us! He is so true, so real, so dear to those who love and trust Him. His ways are always right. He always deals with us in love. Even when He allows hard things to come into our lives, we know that His love is back of them, and He will cause them to work together for our good.—Selected.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Topic for April 16, 1933 (Easter)

IF A MAN DIE, SHALL HE LIVE AGAIN?

Scripture Text: Job 14:1-14.

The awakening of life is all about us in the beauty of springtime. The buds of the trees and the blossoming flowers speak messages of the resurrection. What a fitting setting for the truth of Easter!

If a man die, shall he live again? This question has been asked through the ages. With vitality and majesty, Christ answers, "Because I live ye shall live also."

Is the message of resurrection true? If there is no resurrection of the dead, neither has Christ been raised. If Christ has not been raised, the apostles and others were false witnesses. The suffering and martyrdom of Christ's witnesses fully established their trustworthiness. Their testimony as trustworthy witnesses established the fact of Christ's resurrection. The established fact of His resurrection involves the certainty of our resurrection.

The resurrection of Christ is a matter of fact; resurrection is a matter of faith based on the knowledge of the fact that Christ arose, and that He assured us resurrection. Those who conclude that, "Since there are no such things as eternal reward and eternal punishment, "let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die," cannot escape the tragedy of a sinful world. We find in Romans 6:23 "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

God was infinitely loving and thoughtful in that He gave His only begotten Son, to make the divine demonstration that they who are in search of happiness may be inspired and strengthened in the midst of troubles and temptations. The sacrifice of God is satisfying; Christ's victory over death is inspiring; let us hope and pray for the success that is ahead of us.

We cannot live without God and hold fast to Him. Let us, therefore, so live that our lives may be in harmony with God's plan, that in the end the eternal bliss promised by God shall be given us.

EASTER

With song and sunburst comes the Easter morn:
  Yet there was sunset ere the sun arose;
  Under the sod, the rain-drift and the snows,
The nurturing of life, wherefrom was born
The blossom on the breast of beauty worn.
  Each way of glory through some garden goes
  Where midnight yet a deeper midnight knows,
Against the halo, cross and scourge and thorn.
  Will it be always so? The Easter still
  Always the answer to what seemeth ill?
Or shall we some day know that all is good
If but the all, at last be understood?
This the consummate Easter that shall be
In the full sunburst of eternity!

—Robert Whitaker.

STICK TO IT!

If you have a job to do,
  Stick to it!
Difficult and irksome, too—
  Stick to it!
Put your shoulder to the wheel,
Act the way you'd like to feel,
Work ahead with faith and zeal,—
  Stick to it!

When you know a cause is right,
  Stick to it!
Don't desert a worthy fight,—
  Stick to it!
To achieve, be strong of heart,
Honestly fulfill your part,
If you fail, make a new start,—
  Stick to it!

Push straight on to true success,—
  Stick to it!
Do your best and nothing less,
  Stick to it!
Persevere,—today be wise,—
Know that if you want to rise
Bull-dog pluck will win the prize,—
  Stick to it!

Clothing and Other Gifts

Gray's Chapel, Randolph, 24 half gallon cans fruit and vegetables.

Harmanuel Auxiliary, Philadelphia, Miss., one quilt.

Woman's Missionary society, Berlin, W. Va., one quilt.

Mr. W. F. Hanner, North State Nursery Co., Julian, 26 walnut trees.

Mrs. C. W. Bates, four large cakes for school lunches.

Donation from Randolph County Welfare Department, 12 twenty-four pound bags of flour, one bag seed Irish potatoes, four dozen pair hose, eight large packages of garden seeds.

Asheboro, Flagg Springs, Uhla and New Hope, 48 pound bag of meal, one bag sweet potatoes, two bushels corn, one package Irish potatoes, one package dried apples, one package butter beans, one can peanut butter and 35 quarts canned fruit and vegetables.

All these dnations help in the work and we are grateful for the thought and for the gifts.

Mr. W. F. Hanner has given many young trees and plants for the grounds here, and now he contributes 26 fine young walnut trees.

Dr. and Mrs. Bates are constantly doing splendid service for the Home, and one day last week they came along and left four fine cakes for the school lunches. The children had a rare treat and enjoyed it.

Randolph County has come to our relief and we thank them.

Please keep up the best possible money offerings through the spring and summer.

How To Help the Home

Old Ways

1. Pray for us and the work here.
2. A good monthly offering from every S.S. in the conference.
3. Plan to can vegetables and fruits of various kinds.
4. Contribute good clothing and produce.

New Ways

1. Plant a Children's Home Patch, and give the produce or its value.
2. Give the Home a weaned calf. Five or six such gifts would greatly benefit us next fall.

A Special Need

As stated last week, we stand in need of a good two-horse wagon. Is there any one who can and will doate one?

We thank you, and may God bless you every one.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Our pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris, brought us an inspiring message Sunday morning. Text, Isaiah 6:8: "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" Bro. Morris always brings to his audience soul-stirring sermons. He is truly a man of God.

Our Sunday chool attendance is very good; we hope to see it grow with the coming of warmer weather.

Second quarterly conference will be held at Caroleen Satudray evening, April 1, at 7:30. We are looking forward to a good meeting.

The Missionary Auxiliary held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. D. H. Bess. The attetndance was fine. The regular program was carried out. New officers were elected for the coming year. After the adjournment, a pleasant social half-hour was enjoyed by all; during this time, the hostess, assisted by her daughters, Misses Jewell and Matilda, served delicious erfreshments.

The Friendship Auxiliary of Fallston charge has been invited to meet with our Auxiliary at the April meeting. We are planning a New Member Campaign. Each member is to bring a new member to our next meeting. This being on Monday after Easter, we are also planning an egg-hunt.

Preparations are being made for an Easter program to be given Easter Sunday morning.

Last week we planted some new shrubbery at the church. This helps in many ways.

Our people have been wonderfully blessed with good health during the winter; there has been but little sickness; for this we are truly grateful.

MRS. B. L. HEAVNER, Reporter.

Liberty-Liberty Charge.—On Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, brought an inspiring gospel message to a large and attentive congregation. The Scripture lesson was head from Mark sixth chapter through the 13th verse. His principal theme was "The Power of Friendship." Christian friendship is sympathetic and unselfish. We like to think of the beautiful friendship that existed between David and Jonothan; also that of Ruth and Naomi. Our friends have a great influence over us; therefore, we should be careful in the choice of our friends.

The third Sunday evening the C. E. program was in charge of Miss Edna Amick, her topic being, "Is it Practical to Live Without Worry?" It is very seldom that worry solves the problems.

We are having prayer and praise services every Wednesday night, a union of all the churches in town. This Wednesday night Dr. A. D. Gregg will be the leader.

Cirrle No. 1 of the Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. C. L. Highfill Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock; Circle No. 2, Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. W. Curtis.

Recently Mesdames B. J. Gregerson, Joe Swaim and Boyd Reitzel entertained the Philathea class at the Gregerson home.

New officers for the Woman's Auxiliary were elected as follows: Mrs. Mamie Smith, president; Mrs. J. A. Clapp, vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Cox, secretary, and Mrs. W. M. Hanner, treasurer. Mrs. Fred Love was appointed chairman of Circle No. 1 and Mrs. C. L. Highfill of Circle No. 2.

The second quarterly conference will convene at Shiloh on Saturday p. m. before Easter.

The revival meeting, a union of all the churches, will begin the second Sunday in June. Dr. Ausberry, of Duke University, will assist.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Whitley and family, of Midland, were dinner guests of Rev. and Mrs. F. R. Love recently.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Vestal, of Bonlee, worship with us the second Sunday and they were dinner guests of Rev. and Mrs. Love.

Union Ridge.—The pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, brought us a very interesting and inspiring message at 11 o'clock service yesterday, using as his text this verse of Scripture, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." After the morning service communion was observed and a goodly number partook.

Sunday school convened at 10 o'clock with a large attendance. Our school is growing in number and we feel that our church is growing in every way, not only in attendance, but in grace; this being our motto we are bound to win.

We have organized a Christian Endeavor Society and the young people are very interested in it. The women have organized an Auxiliary which meets once a month, and we feel that much good can be accomplished in this society.

Mr. Cicero Hamilton, of Greensboro, is conducting a singing school at our church, meeting twice each week. We have hard large attendance every night.

We want to accomplish much good while here on earth, and we want to make our community a better place for our boys and girls to live, for they are the ones we have to depend upon in a few years.

MRS. ADDIE POPE, Reporter.

Fairview Church, Anderson Circuit.—It has been some time since the reporter has sent in a report, but the work has been progressing and we trust, much good for the Lord is being accomplished. If we are not growing spiritually it is not our faithful pastor's fault because he is giving us the real gospel.

On Sunday morning, April 2, Mr. Love used as his text 2 Thessalonias 2:18, the subject being "Satan Hindering Kingdom Progress." He pointed out that Satan, once an angel in Heaven but cast out, is now a spirit which works through human agencies to hinder every good work. Satan has superhuman power and men can overcome him only with the help of our Savior. When the evil one causes trials and hardships to come we should remember the words of Paul, "I glory in my persecutions."

The Christian Endeavor now has over 100 members, and an average attendance of approximately that number. It is gratifying to see the interest the young people are taking.

Several new subscriptions have recently been sent in to the Herald. We hope others will decide to send in theirs at an early date.

Sunday school rooms are still being discussed, but if talking would build them we would have had them long ago. Sufficient funds were raised since Christmas to cover one side of the church, and this work has already been done.

Mr. and Mrs. Love and family have moved to Easley after renting out the parsonage in Greenville. Of course we are happy to have them nearer us.

Connelly Springs Circuit.—As we have no reporter for this charge I will attempt to let the readers of the Herald know that we're still on the job yet.

The work is moving on nicely. Dr. Andrews, president of the conference paid us a visit on the fourth Sunday in March, preaching at Shiloh in the morning and Burk's Chapel in evening. Dr. Andrews brought two wonderful sermons and the people were greatly helped by them. Our only regret was that he couldn't stay for the night service at Shady Grove, this is our strongest church and there is something like 200 people to hear him.

The prayer meeting is still growing in interest and in attendance, it was estimated that there were 250 people there last night. The house would not near hold the folks. Brother Claud Akerson is the leader in charge and he is building a prayer meeting that has gone far beyond anything that has ever been known in this community.

Brethren, pray for us.

L. S. HELMS, Pastor.

Pleasant Gap, Democrat.—We have had no report for sometime; but we are glad to say that we have been working hard to keep our Sunday school going this year. To our success we have had a good Sunday school all winter, and as spring is here our members are increasing fast.

On last Sunday afternoon our pastor, Rev. Earle H. Cook, delivered to us a fine message.

We have had an "Attendance Contest" on since January in our Sunday school. Miss Pearl Hensley in charge of the blues. Miss Rhoda Clouse in charge of the White. The Blues won out in the contest.

We have not organized a Christian Endeavor yet, but we want to organize soon.

Plans are being made for an Easter program. Miss Glenn Clouse as director.

Mr. Thad Carter, who has been a faithful member in the church, is on the sick list. He is also our superintendent in Sunday school. We hope that he will be back with us Sunday.

MRS. D. E. CLOUSE, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—Dr. Johnson gave us a sermon which will prepare us for the Easter season. The Scripture lesson was taken from the eleventh chapter of Mark. Dr. Johnson spoke of the "dark side and the light side of the cross"; it was the dark side that he pictured in his sermon, leaving the bright side for a sermon on Easter morning. At this time of the year it is important for us to have a feeling of the darkness and suffering through which Jesus passed. Incidents of Jesus' life before his crucifixion were reviewed, giving a conception of his busy life. Dr. Johnson recommended John 14: and John 17: for our reading; one chapter being the "Christians' Favorite" and the other the prayer of Jesus for his disciples.

An Easter pageant has been written by Miss Nila Amick, and under her direction is being prepared for presentation on Easter Sunday night.

Mrs. Floyd Amick and Miss Edith Smith have been elected as delegates to the state meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary which will be held at Winston-Salem this week. Dr. Johnson and others from our church are expecting to attend part of the convention.

A meeting was held at N. G. school Sunday afternoon for the purpose of considering holding an Interdenominational Leadership Training school in this community. It is hoped that each of the denominations represented can furnish a teacher and that expenses can be made a small item.

Mrs. Sam Spoon is to be buried at Mt. Pleasant Monday afternoon.

English Street Church, High Point.—Our revival meeting begins the first Sunday in May. Prayer meetings will be held in homes prior to the revival. Plans for the prayer meetings will be made at the mid-week service this week. We expect to divide the church into four groups. Each group is to hold meetings of its own in homes where they have an invitation. We feel that much can be accomplished by these prayer services, as Tennyson said "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

The Christian Endeavor societies are practicing an Easter pageant, "Lord of Life," which is under the direction of Mr. John Laughlin. This pageant will be presented at the evening service Easter. The children's program will be given at 10:45 Easter morning.

Miss Paulette Kennedy has scarlet fever; however, we are glad to report that she is improving nicely. Miss Myrtle Moore and Mrs. A. W. Phillips are also on the sick list. We hope for all of these a speedy recovery.

Mrs. B. A. Lockhart came to our church last Sunday from a Baptist church by letter. Mr. Lockhart, her husband, has been a faithful worker in our church for several years. It was a pleasure to receive Mrs. Lockhart into our church. REPORTER.

Pine Grove Church, Kernersville Charge.—The usual program of services was observed at our church on last Sunday morning; Sunday school at 10 o'clock under the leadership of our superintendent, Mr. A. B. Dwiggins, and at 11 o'clock the church service. Psalms 119:9-16 was used in this service as responsive reading with our pastor, Mr. Grant, as leader, after which he delivered a very impressive sermon, using for his subject, "What Is That in Thine Hand?" Mr. Grant told the life of Moses from a child in Egypt to the leading of the Israelites out of Egypt. When God told Moses that He had chosen him to lead the Israelites, Moses began to make excuses. Firt, he asked, Who am I that I should go? Second, Will the ptople hear me? And third, I am slow of speech and unworthy ot going. People when asked by God to do something today are like Moses was, and will make just as many excuses. But let us all remember that God will not ask us to do anything that is impossible, for He has given us all talents (but not all are the same) and He expects us to use them for His cause.

The women and young ladies of the community met at the church on March 24 and organized a Ladies' Aid Society with 14 members. The following officers were elected at this time: President, Gwendolyn Ingram; vice-president, Mrs. N. W. Warren; secretary, Mrs. Ned Ingram; treasurer, Mrs. Leonard Warren; chairman of devotional committee, Mrs. I. C. Ingram, and chairman of relief and benevolence committee, Mrs. Laurston Tuttle. Plans were made at this meeting to make a quilt and put names on it, charging a nickel for each name. On last Thursday afternoon a meeting was called to decide on the pattern for the quilt and some other important business. At this time the society also made plans to sponsor a musical program on Saturday evening, April 15, at 7:30 o'clock. REPORTER.

Graham.—The "Better Music Night" was very successfully carried on the fourth Sunday night. Rev. E. L. Ballard was with us and gave a most informing and helpful address on the subject of "Better Church Music." In addition he inspired us with a solo. Mrs. Don S. Holt gave a violin solo and the choir gave an anthem entitled "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

A special program is being prepared for Easter. An Easter anthem and hymns will be a part of the program Sunday morning, and a pageant will be given at night.

At the last quarterly conference John L. Amick and Don S. Holt were made nominees for delegate to Annual Conference.

Mesdames A. P. Williams, C. C. Burke, Henry Evans, J. L. Johnson, and J. Clyde Auman will be attending all or part of the Branch meeting this week in Winston-Salem. The Auxiliary here has raised its budget in full and has raised a very gratifying amount as a special gift for High Point College.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—Sunday, April 2, 1933, was a beautiful day, and the warm rays of the sun called to us to come and hear God's Word made so plain to us by our beloved pastor, Bro. C. L. Spencer. The Bible lesson was taken from Mark 7, and the text was a part of the 24th verse, "But he could not be hid," meaning "Jesus could not be hid." No, His Spirit lives today in the lives of His followers. If it were not so, Christianity would have perished long ago.

We had a fair attendance of our members and a number of visitors. One thing that is very commendable about our boys and girls is that when they marry and move to other sections, they are still faithful to their home church, coming back when possible and bringing others with them.

Mrs. Richard Harris read a report of the work and contributions of our Auxiliary. We did fairly well considering the strenuous times, but not near what we would like to have done. If all the sixty lady members of our church would co-operate we could do a wonderful work, but we have so few active members. May God bless us and enable us to do more in the present year than ever before.

We were so glad to have Bro. J. T. Cozart with us Sunday. He is one of our oldest and most faithful members, but owing to feeble health he has not been attending services regularly; but when he does come he always has a plan for helping some good cause. Sunday he made a plea for our church paper, the Herald, urging all those who are not already subscribers to subscribe at once, in order not only to help the paper, but to keep ourselves posted on the work of the church.

West End, Thomasville.—Rev. H. W. Bell brought a very interesting message Sunday night, April 2, to the people of West End and all others who were present. We were more than glad to have visitors from High Point with us for the service.

Class No. 5 is in grief over the absence of their Sunday school teacher, Mr. L. C. Godbey, who has been sick for some time. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

The people of West End church were very sorry to lose one of our members, Mrs. Ira Strickland, who passed away last Monday, March 27, at her home in High Point. The funeral was held in West End church. Rev. H. W. Bell conducted the service.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Ausbern on Barnwell street Friday night, March 31, with 19 members and one visitor present.

The Thomasville C. E. Union held its regular monthly meeting at the First M. P. church Thursday night, March 30. The First M. P. church won the C. E. banner from West End, who held it for two months. We are hoping to win it back for the next month.

The mid-week prayer meeting was held in the church auditorium Wednesday night, March 29. The Intermediate C. E. Society had charge of the program. We had a very interesting meeting.

Mr. John Yokley is conducting a singing school at West End church every Monday and Tuesday night of each week. Everyone who is interested in singing is invited to attend.

On Monday night, April 3rd, the executive committee held their regular monthly meeting with Miss Edna Clinard with ten members present.

State Street, Lexington.—The fact that nothing concerning the progress of the church work here and nothing in the way of news has been written lately does not mean that nothing has been happening. Since the last report to the Herald a very successful leadership Training School has been held, and on March 10 the Area Meeting was held. At the morning session Dr. Andrews, president of our Conference, explained the purpose of the Area Meetings, which is to help the church extend the kingdom. His challenge to us to follow in the train of the Christian soldiers who overcame so many difficulties in the early history of the church was inspirational and challenging. Luncheon was served in the church dining room. At the afternoon session Dr. J. E. Pritchard spoke on a fuller enlistment of church members. Dr. S. W. Taylor presented the work and some of the needs of High Point College. All pastors in the area were present and made reports.

All branches of the work are going on in an encouraging way. The Junior congregation, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Maier, is growing in interest and is one of the most promising features of the work.

Sunday school is gaining in number and interest. We are expecting our attendance to go far over 200 by the first Suday in May.

Mrs. J. B. Leonard is delegate to the Branch Meeting with Mrs. B. H. Leonard as alternate.

The youngest baby of our number is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Streetman, Nancy Elizabeth, born last Wednesday.

The mid-week prayer meetings held each Wednesday evening at the church are most helpful and are well attended. Many expressions of gratitude for the spiritual uplift and strengthening influence of the meetings are heard from those who attend.

Three dinners served by the ladies of the church have netted more than $100. The men helped splendidly in the financial part of these dinners, but the credit for preparing food in a wholesome and delicious way and serving it attractively goes to the ladies.

Mrs. Maier attended a joint meeting of the Executive Boards of Christian Education and Missions, held at Baltimore Thursday of last week.

Many activities of interest worthy of mention will have to be omitted because the reporter has not had the privilege of attending church regularly for the past two months because of a serious accident that happened to her husband when he fell on the ice the "slick" Saturday morning about two months ago. Mr. Burkhart was confined to his room for several weeks and is still unable to walk without the aid of crutches.

MRS. J. F. BURKHART, Reporter.

Tabernacle-Julian.—We are acquainted with the spring showers, we sing about "Showers of Blessing," and we have many other showers, but the shower the good Julian people gave to the pastor and family a short time ago is the first of the kind the writer has ever heard of. It was a seed and plant shower. The pastor and his wife were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hanner and the purpose was understood when it was found that the good people had brought in goodly numbers of flower and garden seed and various kinds of plants for the garden and yard. The affair was unique and all that was given was greatly appreciated by th pastor and family. We have had great fun since planting all these nice things. We are anxiously looking forward for the results we are expecting when flowers and vegetables come.

Because of the gift of Bro. W. T. Hanner of the North State Nursery Company, shrubs have been planted in our yard and a number of nice fruit trees have been planted on the lot. Bro. D. T. Smith furnished the plants and we have fine prospects for both strawberries and dewberries. Bro. R. L. Jones also furnished cherry trees. Why not have these nice things on these spacious grounds?

The Tabernacle pastor believes he has the biggest wood-pile of the pastors of the Conference. There is plenty of hard wood to furnish the necessary heat until next Christmas. Now for the cook range, one brother furnished the trees, a number of the brethren furnished the axes and the armstrong and teams for hauling, and still another brother furnished the saw and the gas-power, while others assisted and the wood was cut in proper lengths. Now there is wood on the parsonage ground to last until wood comes. We are proud of our big wood-pile and our good folks.

We have noticed in the president's letters that no place for the conference has been found. There has been talk of Tabernacle, the old country church which has entertained the Conference for at least four times in her history, opening her doors again for this great gathering. If we had certain conveniences we feel our present plan of caring for the Conference called for, we would be inclined to extend the invitation to the Conference to come out here and enjoy the blessings of a great country and hospitality of a great people.

We are planning for Easter services which we hope will prove to be helpful to our people at Tabernacle. The Easter pageant furnished by the Board of Missions will be rendered on Sunday night, April 9. On Thursday night of the week, communion services will be conducted. On Easter Sunday morning a sunrise service is being planned to meet on the cemetery grounds and at the three o'clock hour the Easter service, "Lord of Life," will be rendered. At the 11 o'clock hour Easter services with communion will be observed at Julian.

Death has recently removed from us two of our older members. On April 28 Mrs. Martha Lowe, who for many years was one of our most faithful members, passed to her reward. On Friday, March 31, Bro. Samuel Bowman, another of our most faithful, was called to his eternal home. Funeral services were conducted in Tabernacle church for each of these good people. Bro. T. F. McCulloch, Bro. Johnson and Bro. Isley assisted in the funeral of Mrs. Lowe, while Bro. Isley and Bro. Hethcox assisted in the funeral of Bro. Bowman. Both of these funerals were largely attended. More will be given of these good people at another time.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Asheboro.—The many friends of Mrs. W. M. Ridge are glad to know that she has improved sufficiently to return to her home after several weeks illness in the High Point hospital. Mrs. Andrew Craven, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, has been receiving treatment in Duke hospital, Durham, and last week underwent an operation. We are trusting that she may be restored to health.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Luck, G. P. Pritchard, Miss Lola Luck, and Mr. Ellis Luck attended the funeral of little Billie Austin, 20-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Austin, of Hickory, on Monday, March 6. Mrs. Austin was, before marriage Miss Lula Pritchard of Asheboro.

Mr. Isaac Brown, of near Asheboro, died early Sunday morning and was buried at Brower's church Mnoday afternoon. Rev. Q. L. Joyner, pastor of the church, conducted the funeral service. Mr. Brown was the father of Mr. John R. Brown, a valuable member of our church, and serving as treasurer this year. He and the other members of the family have our sympathy.

We were pleased to have Mrs. Lester Rich unite with our church on a recent Sunday.

The Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 300, one year ago 248, Sunday before last 258; the offering at this time for the Children's Home was $31.09. The offering last Sunday was $9.63.

Our pastor delivered an interesting message Sunday morning on "Followers of the Christ." The choir sang the anthem, "God So Loved the World." The Sunday evening message was "A Comparison of the Preaching of the Two Great Preachers of the New Testament, Peter and Paul."

The choir is busy rehearsing the Easter cantata, "Morn of Victory," for Easter Sunday morning. Miss Louise Swaim is directing it.

The February meeting of the Philathea class was held with Misses Ethel and Lucy Lovett at their home on Dixon street. Mrs. Charles Hoover had charge of devotions, using the 13th chapter of I Corinthians as the basis of her talk, which was on "Love."

The March meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Euclid Auman, with Miss Lollie Jones associate hostess. Miss Enolia Presnell conducted devotions, using as her subject "The Bible." About 25 members were present on each occasion. Much interest is being manifested in "Heart Sisters," which will be revealed at the next meeting.

The World Day of Prayer was observed on March 3rd. Soft music was played throughout the day and members and visitors were welcome to meditate at all hours of the day. At 3 o'clock a union service with all of the churches was held. Miss Esther Ross, Mrs. J. H. Soady and Mrs. J. S. Lewis of our Auxiliary was the committee in charge of the program.

At the February meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary the nominating committee submitted the following names as officers for 1933-1934, and they were unanimously elected: President, Miss Lollie Jones; first vice-president, Mrs. J. T. Pugh; second vice-president, Mrs. L. D. Burkhead; recording secretary, Mrs. N. M. Harrison; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. L. F. Ross; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Swaim; treasurer, Miss Esther Ross; auditor, Miss Mabel Cox.

The executive committee met with the president Tuesday evening, February 28. Miss Jones and Mrs. John Swaim, by virtue of their office, and Mrs. J. H. Soady and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr,, were elected delegates to the Branch meeting in Winston-Salem, April 5 and 6.

The secretaries of the various causes were elected. Name were shuffled and drawn for the new circles. All groups have met and elected their chairmen and other officers. The names of the circle chairmen are: Mrs. Geo. Hasty, Circle 1; Mrs. W. C. Hendrix, Circle 2; Mrs. Earl F. Bulla, Circle 3; Mrs. Bertha Rochelle, Circle 4; Miss Iola Lowdermilk, Circle 5.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in the social room of our church Monday evening, March 27, with a large attendance. The Auxiliary breaks camp and have "marching orders." On the president's table was a tabernacle of cardboard and small tents representing the camp of the Israelites. Each tent contained the report of an official. Groups of officers, circle chairmen and secretaries of causes were compared to the various tribes of Israel. The president acted as leader and after each group gave their reports an appropriate hymn was sung. After all reports were given and the tents folded, each one who had been elected to serve for the new year was urged to take up their new responsibilities and go forward. The president's report of the year's work showed an excellent record. The treasurer reported a little more than the year's budget had been raised. At the conclusion of the program all newly elected officials came forward and were led in an impressive installation prayer by our pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, with a response, as follows:

> "Oh, use me, Lord, use even me,
> Just as thou wilt, and when and where,
> Until thy blessed face I see,
> Thy rest, thy joy, thy glory share."

After adjournment a social hour was enjoyed and sandwiches and tea were served by a committee from the circles.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—"And they stood every man in his place." (Judges 7:21.) Using the above scripture as a base for his remarks, Dr. Taylor, pastor of Lebanon church, preached a timely and most edifying sermon last Sunday at 11. It was pleasing to note a large congregation present for the worship service. It is indeed gratifying to study the contrast in spiritual and material needs of our people today. The record shows that more people in our country have suffered hunger and cold during the past few months than formerly. They are suffering now, and many are being deprived of material wants. Not so in spiritual needs. It seems to this humble scribe that never before have we had such bountiful tables of spiritual food spread before us. There is much for which our hearts should be grateful. Why should the Christian complain? True riches are before us in abundance. Oh, that we could stand every man in his place as did the 300 alert, vigilant men of Gideon's victorious band! It is true that the hosts of sin are around us even as the multitude of Midianites and their allies were around the Israelites. The Israelites did evil in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord delivered them into the hand of Midian seven years. When the time for deliverance came, the fearful and afraid were not useful, therefore they were sent back, were not allowed to serve in final battle for triumph.

At this service the choir sang beautifully "The Little Brown Church in the Dell."

In the evening service we enjoyed another excellent sermon by our pastor on the text, "Such as I have give I thee," found in Acts 3:6. "It is a universal law to give," he said. The sun gives, the moon and stars give, the vast ocean gives, all nature gives. It is their mission. That's what they were made for. Man, the crowning part of creation, is made to give. And such as we have we give. What are we giving? Love, the greatest gift of life, or hatred? Loyalty, or disloyalty? Meekness, or vanity? Service, or hindrance to service? Optimism, or pessimism? Peace, or disturbance? Whenever we find a page of human history which glows with a peculiar splendor, there we find the picture of a stalwart hero standing alone for God. Let us stand fast, stand firm, stand erect, STAND for God!

The Ladies' Aid recently met with Mrs. A. J. Payne, Mrs. J. C. Deaton conducting the devotionals. There were 25 present; reports were good. At this meeting they presented Mrs. S. W. Taylor with a home-made quilt. They also gave a bag of seed potatoes to Our Children's Home. The following officials have been installed for service this term: President, Mrs. S. E. Montgomery; vice-president, Miss Emma Wray; secretary, Mrs. H. B. Johnson; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. King.

Misses Lake Montgomery, Jewell Welch, and Juanita Hayworth compose the committee in charge of our Easter program.

April 23rd is set apart to be observed as boys' day. There will be a visiting speaker for that occasion.

Auxiliary circles met yesterday with the following members: Circle No. 1, with Mrs. V. F. Crouch, on Louise Avenue; Circle No. 2, with Mrs. G. C. Brinson, on Forest Avenue, and Circle No. 5 with Mrs. J. W. Montgomery on North Main street. Fair attendance and very good reports. Let's work for better things in this line by our May meeting.

The Junior C. E. Society met Sunday evening at 6:45. They enjoyed a fine talk by Mrs. S. W. Taylor. They report visitors and one new members.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes Gallimore were leaders for Senior C. E. at the same hour. Dr. George H. Crowell was speaker. He gave a very helpful talk on the subject, "Can and Should We Love All Men, Even Our Enemies?"

As the All-Southern Orchestra, scheduled to meet in Atlanta, Ga., has been postponed because of financial conditions, Miss Iris Welch, flutist, has had to give up the long anticipated event in which she was to represent High Point High School. Miss Helen Stephens, violinist, was also a representative from High Point High School.

OLD COUNTY BEAUTY SPOT RESTORED AT LIBERTY HILL

Fifty years ago one of the most pleasant spots for people in the southern section of Spartanbuig County to gather was the spring in the valley beside Liberty Hill church.

The Methodist church which stood on the stagecoach road between Spartanburg and Greenville was a community center then. At the cool springs, in the grove nearby, families from miles about gathered on Sundays or for picnics on week days.

With the appearance of well water close at hand and news interests, the spirng and the shady grove were deserted. Bushes grew up, thick and almost impenetrable underbrush, and the ground about the spring became marshy.

In the last few days, people of that section have restored the spring to a spot of beauty that it used to be. Those who enjoyed its water long ago are returning and admire the transformation that has taken place.

The grove of tall poplars has been cleared of brush. All save the biggest spring, which gushes up four gallons of water each minute through the crevices of a rock, have been stopped up. The spring is enclosed in concrete and steps lead down to it.

A bed of sand surrounds the spot and the hillside drainage is carefully arranged. On the little stream that leaves the spring is found a lily pond.

The project has been completed under the direction of N. G. McClimon, a representative of the county relief council, with the co-operation of E. T. Ammons, sanitary inspector of the county health department.

B. A. McClimon, a prominent farmer living near the church, can recall most of its history from personal recollection. A church and school, both constructed of logs, were built in 1850 and the present building went up in 1889.—Spartanburg Herald, Spartanburg, S. C.

THE LOYALTY LEAGUE GROWS

Since our last report the following enrollments have come in:

Kannapolis, Senior League

C. P. Morris, C. B. McCommons, Mrs. C. B. McCommons, C. L. Hampton, Earl Steel, F. G. Stearns Leonard Henderson, Mrs. L. C. Carter, Mrs. Annie Lisk, R. T. Sides, M. E. Marlow, William McCommons, Mr. D. A. McLaurin, Mrs. D. A. McLaurin, Alta Russell, Mrs. Clyde Fagen, Mrs. C. B. Price, Mrs. C. B. Price, H. W. Sides, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dwiggins, M. W. Henderson, Elva Sides, Beatrice Cartner, Edna Fox, Linnie McCommons, Mary F. McCommons, Zula Carter, W. P. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kiser, Mrs. N. F. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Barbee, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. McLaurin, Mrs. R. T. Sides, Minnie Mayson, Mary Gordon, Ellie Mae Coley, and Louise Mechum.

Kannapolis, Junior League

Virginia Henderson, W. A. McLaurin, Jr., David Cartner, Dorothy Grayson, Faynell Grayson, Colleen Lisk, Gay Nell Price, Eunice Carter, Eva Nell Faggart, Francis Faggart, Bobbie Davis, Hoyt Grayson, Ernestine Price, Mary Ella Coble, Clyde Henderson, Beatrice Craven, Annie May Faggart, W. This makes a grand total of 59 to join the Loyalty League from Kannapolis church.

The total amount of money subscribed for the year is almost $100.00.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge

K. B. Williamson, B. K. Holt, Mrs. Fannie Sykes, T. S. Coble, Mrs. Gladys Newlin, John Newlin, and Miss Espa Bullard.

Orange Charge

Clarence P. Jones, Nannie McAdams, and H. K. McAdams.

Orange Charge, Junior League

J. B. Faucett, Jr.

Kannapolis enrolls 59 members this week, and takes the lead of all charges by a good margin. Hats off to this young progressive and growing church!

We are grateful, also, to these other charges that are responding generously, and have not yet finished their work. We are confident of good lists, too, from other charges that have not yet reported. The LEAGUE is marching on. One pastor writes today for 25 more cards. His order will be promptly filled, too. We will tell you about him soon. And it will be a good list, too. Watch!

Several pastors have enrolled. But all are not in yet. We are holding the batch for ONE HUNDRDED per cent. Come on pastors. Let's be ready by next week.

And please, everybody, NOTE THIS ABOUT THE LEAGUE: It is worthy; it is necessary; it is within the reach of all. And a little help by ALL, and it will go over BIG.

"And they stood every man in his place round about the camp."

Let's do just that for the League.

S. W. TAYLOR, Director.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Parsons

Miss Mary Parsons was born near High Point in Guilford County, October 8th, 1865, the daughter of Samuel and Sarah Widdows Parsons. She passed from this life January 25th, 1933. She spent her entire life at the old home-place where she was born. She is survived by two brothers and two sisters, B. F. Parsons, Martha Parsons and Josephine Parsons, of the home-place, and D. H. Parsons, of High Point.

She was converted in young womanhood and joined Mitchell's Grove M. P. church, of which she was a true and faithful member until her passing.

Funeral services were held at her home church January 27th, 1933, at 2:30 p. m., conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. D. Broome, assisted by Rev. T. F. McCulloch, her former pastor, and Dr. A. G. Dixon, of the Children's Home. Miss Parsons was of the character of the Marys of the early church. She chose that good part that shall never be taken away from her. Her every day life was of the nature that the Apostle Peter valued so highly: that of a meek and quiet spirit which is in the sight of God of great price. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She will be greatly missed in the church and community.

The remains were laid to rest in her home church cemetery in the presence of a large and sympathizing audience beneath a mound of beautiful flowers to await the resurrection morn.

"I cannot say and I will not say
Thhat she is dead—she is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there.
And you, O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,
Think of her faring on as dear
In the love of There as the love of her;
Think of her still as the same. I say,
She is not dead—she is just away."

THE COMMITTEE.

Ray

Mrs. Kate Ray, of Swannanoa, near the 90th milestone of life, departed this world on March 24. 1933. She was born in Yancey County, November 3, 1843, but has lived near Swannanoa for several years, making her home with her only surviving son, Mr. R. R. Ray.

Besides her son, Mrs. Ray is survived by two daughters, who remain to mourn their loss and her gain—Mrs. Sam Wilson and Mrs. Annie M. Ray. Two other children have departed this life ahead of her.

Funeral services were conducted from the Azalia M. E. Church, South, on March 25, by the Rev. John H. Green, assisted by Revs. Homer Casto and J. Elwood Carroll, of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Mrs. Ray united with the Pensacola M. P. church when a mere girl, but later removed her membership to the Asheville M. P. church, where she remained faithful until her last hour. Due to age, Mrs. Ray had not worshipped with us many times in recent year, but her fine Christian spirit has been an inspiration to those who knew her. Though not with us in person, she ever met with us in spirit, and that now shall be greatly missed.

J. ELWOOD CARROLL.

Watkins

Mrs. Lucy Fletcher Watkins, aged 86 years, widow of A. A. Watkins, died at her home in Drewey Tuesday morning, March 28. Following an illness of a week after a stroke of paralysis. Mrs. Watkins was born January 28, 1847, near Dabney, in Vance county, but had lived in the Drewey community about 47 years.

Mrs. Watkins is survived by two daughters, Miss Eva Watkins, of Drewery; Mrs. Lillian Phillips, of Dillon, S. C.; and one son, A. H. Watkins, of Lexington, N. C.

Mrs. Watkins had been a member of New Hope M. P. church for a long time, and will be greatly missed in the community. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, J. W. Braxton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Kennison, of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Mr. Miller, of the Methodist Episcopal church, and her body was laid to rets in the New Hope cemetery.

For My Sister—Elmina Jane Garrett

She and her sister, Geneva Benbow, graced our home, and made joyous Flat Rock church and neighborhood in North Guilford and South Rockingham blessing with their girlish beauty us three brothers, Walter, William and me; then Heaven gave to us three other precious sisters, Viola Bobbitt, Mabel Russell and Jessie Leonard. Now we are still eigh, but five are in heaven. Elmina was the last to go home, December 10, 1932.

Just out of her 'teens, she wed James C. Garrett, in Alamance county. She was tender to his aged parents and his sisters. She bore unto him four sons and four daughters: Rudy and Walter, now in California; Early B. of Fayetteville, N. C.; James, Jr., of Burlington, N. C.; Cynthia (Mrs. J. W. Lindsay) Burlington, N. C.; Verna (Mrs. R. W. Riggins) of High Point N. C.; Lorena, the former Mrs. J. W. Lindsay, now in Heaven, and Mattie Elma (Mrs. C. W. Davies) of Roanoke Rapids, N. C. Her husband was translated a short time before their youngest was born. Upon her heart and hands now fell the cares and plans for the growth and education of the children. She trained them to industry and economy and pure living. By dint of work and self-denial, the entire eight were given school training, most of them college training, and they are every one Christian. Her children sum up her life thus:

"To those who knew her best, she was an unusual character, trouble enough of her own to make the average mother sorrowful and downcast always, but not mother. She was always laughing and singing, or trying to help someone else in trouble; never happier than when she could send hot rolls, cake or some little delicacy to a sick neighbor. She was a friend to all she knew. There was never a sacrifice too great for her to make for one of her children. She delighted in such sacrifice to aid them in preparation for life. When she needed her older boys most, she said "You have your lives ahead of you. Go where you feel you make the best of life and be happiest." "We'll make out some way," and "Children, there is a better day coming," were sayings which boosted her and us through life. She lived her religion, and now she has her reward. How sweet to know that she is safe with Him, and that there will be no more hardships, sorrows and pain for her. It is impossible for us to express the bigger, deeper feeling of love, respect and honor that we feel for her."

On the Sunday afternoon, December 11, just before her body was laid away in the Mount Hermon church yard near Burlington, her children and grandchildren and other relatives and life-long friends gathered in the home of her daughter and at the church hundreds of them. Rev. S. W. Taylor and Rev. Burgess, both former pastors of the family, were in charge of the service at the church. The remarks of these old friends and the music by the choir and the mixed quartet, directed by Prof. E. B. Stimson of High Point College, were a great source of strength and comfort to the family and loved ones. All were conscious of her living presence. All were grateful that she had lived among us. With her children every one called her blessed.

Green

Whereas God in His infinite wisdom hath seen fit to call to Himself our beloved sister, Mrs. Lou Green;

Therefore, Be it Resolved by the Ladies' Sunday school Class of Mount Pleasant M. P. Church,

1. That in her death our church laments the loss of a faithful and consistent member, one who was ever ready to lend a helping hand. Her faithfulness and interest has meant a great deal to our church. May we gain inspiration from her useful life and carry on the work she loved.

2. That we extend to her loved ones our heart-felt sympathy and commend them to our Heavenly Father, Who in His goodness knoweth and doeth that which is best for us all.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and a copy to the M. P.Herald.

MRS. W. D. PAYNE,
MRS. ROY HILTON,
MRS. P. C. REID.

Cartner

Russell G. Cartner was born August 25, 1908. He passed away at his home on March 12, 1933. He was a few months beyond his 24th birthday. He had not been ill and his passing came as a great shock to all. He had planned to attend Sunday school, but was taken ill just before leaving his home. The members of the family discerned the seriousness of his illness and immediately called a physician, but he had passed away before the physician arrived.

Mr. Cartner was thoughtful and considerate of his mother. His father died some years ago and he in a very noble way took his father's place in the home. He was a friendly young man and during the short period of his life he had won many friends. The unusually large crowd of people that attended his funeral was evidence of this fact. He was quite regular in his attendance upon the Sunday school and church services. He was kind hearted and possessed a good dis position.

May the loved ones be abundantly blessed with the blessings of our kind, loving heavenly Father. May they have in great measure the unfailing peace and comfort of God.

Greene

Mt. Pleasant church, of North Davidson charge, is very much grieved because of the recent death of Mrs. Lozena J. Greene, the wife of Brother C. F. Greene. Her death is a great loss to this church of which she has been a membe rfor the past 21 years. She was one of Mt. Pleasant's most faithful members until death. We miss her very much.

Survived to mourn their loss are her husband, C. F. Greene, and seven children, Paul, Ruth, Mildred, Lela, Edith, Don and Margaret, besides a host of other near relatives and friends. To them we extend our deepest sympathy, and upon them we pray God's greatest blessings.

Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Pleasant M. P. church by the writer, after which the body was laid to its final resting place in the local cemetery.

Glover

After an illness of several months, during which time he suffered from kidney and heart ailments, Elijah Satterwhite Glover, aged 72 years, died at his home at Dabney Thursday evening March 23rd. Mr. Glover's condition had been serious for several weeks.

Mr. Glover was a native of Granville county, and was born July 27, 1860. He spent most of his life in the Dagney community, where he died. He was married in 1881. His wife died several years ago.

Surviving are the following children: H. W. and J. C. Glover; Mrs. L. W. Burroughs and Mrs J. W. Wallace, all of Dabney, L. D. Glover, of Shanghai, China. Surviving also are one brother, D. K. Glover of Townsville and three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Burroughs, of Dabney; Mrs. Lewis Hunt, of Castalia; and Mrs. Bettie Gooch, of Manson.

The funeral service was conducted Sunday afternoon, March 26th, at Harris Chapel church, at Dabney, by his pastor, J. W. Braxton, and his body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. Mr. Glover had been a member of Harris Chapel church near 40 years.

—Forty cents is all the average person in the U. S. A. spends on books in the period of one year.

A BIT OF EXPERIENCE BY H. L. POWELL

They tell us that history repeats itself every hundred years. In this fast age in which we are living we are doing one better. Forty-five years ago I was buying eggs at five cents per dozen, now they are eight cents per dozen. Who will dare say that within five years from now we will be buying eggs for five cents per dozen again? I've bought them in those days when some would be rotten and some had chickens in them and they didn't charge extra for the chickens, of course, we didn't eat the chickens. "I've seen grown hens sell for seven cents a piece, fryers for five cents a piece. I have bought them at that since I have been a married man and I am not an old man either. I have bought flour at $1.75 to $1 60 per hundred pounds. I have bought beef at three cents per pound, cut from hindquarter. A two-horse load of the finest hickory and oak wood you ever saw cut from the forest, they would ask me $1.00 in the morning. I didn't buy as I had more wood than money. In the late p. m. they would drive back after driving from place to place over town and couldn't sell and say to me, give me 50c and I'll throw it off. I had had been cutting hair as we called it in those days, some called it "shingling hair." I cut hair or shingled, for 10c a head, and shaved for 5c. It was Saturday, you know, and I had made money enough, and just let me tell you, it was money, to buy the load of wood. The farmer put that coin into his jeans, mounted the running gear of the old wagon, cracked his whip; those old mules would throw back their ears and off the happy farmer went whistling, "Back Home to Martha and the Kids." He had made a whole half dollar in one day for himself, team and wagon. Knowing the game as I do, I imagine it took that farmer a half day Friday to chop that load of wood. Some of you mathematicians tell me what the farmer got for the timber grown on his land?

Well, all I know is what little I've seen, read in books, magazines. newspapers and the lies and what little truth I've heard. Well, I can remember when dad killed his fat hogs early in fall and then he put up the lean ones to fatten to kill in January. It seems that Franklin D. is repeating history and is going to kill off all the fat ones and put up the lean ones to fatten on beer. The old days are coming back and how glad the old timers will be to see them. Who blames the farmer for wanting to get in the saddle! He has been in the dirt long enough. Let's do away with all these bureaus and have a plain old time chest. Yes, the old days are coming, those good old times when grandmama sat in the corner of the old log house by the big old log fire place and smoked her pipe and granddady over in the other corner full of grog and Aunt Jane was being courted by that country chap full of corn whiskey. And grandmamy looked round and saw him with his head lying in Aunt Jane's lap—but Aunt Jane never got out of grandmammy's sight. Courting was courting in those days, when the long pendulum slowly clucked the time and said "t's time enough yet." Now the little round thing ticks quick and fast and says "Hurry up! Hurry up." And sis sits closer up, and whispers to sober Jim, "Let's go somewhere." On wheels they roll; the holy thing snorting up every hill and blowing at every curve. Oh! We can't live in this wretched whirl, so we'll go back to the good old times and get a drink of beer.

Why any man thinks that beer will bring back prosperity is more than I can see. That $1,250,000 revenue. If it brings in that much, will have to come by lessening somewhere else and that means the poor working man's wife and children will be the sufferers while the brewer will fatten. Moral degradation will again blight the country. The beer stand become the place to get hard liquor; a shield under the law and hiding place for the blind tiger. They want no better. I remember the days of the near beer stands when they bootlegged such a large part of the business that the saloon men asked the legislature to pass the law interpret one half of one per cent alcohol constituted an intoxicating beverage. This was about forty years ago. They never obeyed law made by themselves or any other authority. This liquor gang are murderous thieves taking meat and bread out of the mouths of poor destitute women and children and defying the law of both God and man.

Men of the church of the living God! Where are we? Has the church surrendered to the forces of evil? I do not hear the voice of the prophet speaking against the evils of strong drink. The politicians hollowed out, "Church Bigots." We confessed our sin and crawled into the hole of silence.

H. L. POWELL.

SOMETIME!

I'm going to be a Christian
  When I have time to spare;
But first I must make money,
  Become a millionaire.

I'll give up all for Christ
  When I have won great fame;
Just now I'm fully occupied
  In trying to make a name.

Philanthropist sometime I'll be,
  And help the sick and low;
Today I need more ready cash
  To make a social show.

Sometime I want to live and give,
  I'll serve both God and man;
Money-making fills my hours,
  I'm working all I can.

* * *

He made a pile of money,
  He made a worldly show,
He made a plan to freely give,
  But his summons came to go.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

Little Girl—Mother, why is Daddy's hair all off the top of his head?

Mother—Darling, its because he uses his brains so much.

Little Girl—(after some thought)—Mother, your hair is real long, isn't it?

Today Is the Day—Tomorrow May Be Too Late

Two weeks have elapsed since the emergency appeal went out for immediate relief for THE HERALD. The call was for a sum of not less than $750.00 to be made available in 30 days' time. Already half the time has passed, and the amount thus far received totals only $169.36, representing the payment of $100.00 by the Woman's Missionary Society for space used in the paper by them, added to $69.36 received as subsidy from seventeen churches or charges.

The burden of debt presses down until those who bear it are unable to stand under the load, and the breaking point is close at hand. If the needed relief is to come it must come quickly. THE HERALD does not wish its weekly visits to the homes of our people to be interrupted, but unless sufficient aid is made available there is no other alternative. If all would hasten to raise the small amount called for by action of the last Annual Conference, the stringency would be relieved and the burden would not rest too heavily on any one. What you can do, do quickly. "Now is the accepted time"—tomorrow may be too late.

Proud of Our God

We have a God of whom we're proud!
We join to sing His praise aloud.
He's not a god of wood and stone,
Nor yet a god of flesh and bone.

He thinks and knows and plans the worlds,
And into space the planets hurls;
He fills the earth with things that live
And does to all their places give.

His love is great and follows all;
Without Him none He makes can fall..
He shares with man His mighty power—
Makes birth and death a fertile hour.

The Mystery of a Cross

Talking with a mature young man the other day about the "times" through which we were passing, he remarked that the "times" had given him a new appreciation of many things which a few years ago he was unable to value. For example, he added that during the years of prosperity he enjoyed, like many other boys of those years, advantages and material resources which he now can see blinded him to many of the precious opportunities which those plastic years afforded him. But now in the days of sacrifice and deprivation the veil has been removed from his eyes and he counts as a misfortune to him what then most of people considered his fortune.

The youngest girl of a large family, on whom had been cast as is usual a double portion of affection and parental attention, grew vain and self-centered. She had a tendency to expect from her father and mother many things which they could not afford to give her. At times she gave considerable concern and worry to those who appreciated her most and for whom they were continually making a sacrifice for her happiness. But one day the mother was stricken with paralysis. This affliction called forth years of patient and arduous care on the part of the one remaining child. And the one whom at times she appeared almost to despise because of her old-fashioned ways mysteriously became the objject of her deepest affection and sacrificing care.

How often have you heard it said, "I came out of that experience a sadder and a wiser man"? The deep and profound truths of God cannot be seen in the glare and lustre of life's experiences. It takes the darkest night to reveal the brightness of the most distant stars. Some of the won-

Easter Sorrows and Joys

The first Easter was one of sorrow and doubt until the disciples were convinced that their Lord was alive. This Easter will find many who are sad. Can there be an Easter joy for them?

There were several reasons for sorrow on the first Easter. In the first place they were greatly disappointed. They had hoped that Christ would deliver them from Roman rulership, and set up a kingdom that would surpass that of David and Solomon. The crucifixion had banished these cherished hopes. A few years ago there were thousands of people in America who thought they had enough wealth to care for themselves during sickness and old age, who today have seen their wealth vanish like the dew of the morning. Many hearts are sad for the lack of the necessities of life.

Disbelief is another reason sorrow had filled the hearts of the disciples. It seems that they did not believe that Christ would arise from the tomb the third day, as He had told them. They were not convinced by the story of the women of the empty tomb and the vision of angels. Thomas was not convinced until he saw Christ and the nail prints. Christ said, "Blessed are they who have not seen, and yet have believed." We are living in an age of doubt today. Many are slow to believe the Word of God and its teachings concerning hell, heaven, the new birth, and the reseurrection of Christ as the first fruits. These doubts have brought sorrow to many hearts.

Again, the first Easter was a time when evil seemed to have the lead. The cries of the multitude caused Pilate to deliver Jesus to be crucified, though he found no fault in him. Today the wets of our nation have won a great victory, and are celebrating by midnight parties and parades. They are making a big noise like those who crucified our Lord. Not only will this bring sorrow to the dry leaders, innocent women and children, but to the wets themselves. Prov. 23: 29, 30. "Who hath woe, who hath sorrows? . . . They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine." Many of the church leaders of the first Easter joined hands with the worldly crowd to crucify Christ. We fear many of our present church members have joined hands with the evil forces of our nation.

But as Christians we can rejoice that we have a risen, living Lord, that sitteth on the right hand of God, making intercession for us. The disciples were glad when they were convinced that their Lord was alive. Surely we ought to rejoice with them this Easter.

Again we ought to rejoice that the forces of righteousness will prevail in the end. Christ's crucifixion seemed to be defeating Christ's Kingdom at the first Easter, but today we hold high the banner of our crucified Lord. It is in the cross we are going to conquer. Christ told Peter that the gates of hell could not prevail again his church. I am looking for a great revival of religion that will spread all over the civilized world. With our means of travel and communication the next great revival ought to be world-wide. Pray that this revival may begin in our own hearts and spread like fire in broom-sage. The greatest need of the world is a vital experience of the living Christ in their own lives.

Still another reason for the rejoicing is the hope of our own resurrection. We should rejoice that our names are written on the Lamb's Book of Life. We may have a cross to bear in this world, but remember, after the cross the crown of glory that fadeth not away. Notwithstanding the unusual times we are going through, every Christian ought to rejoice this year as we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord.

THE PRACTICAL EDUCATION OF CHILDREN

The late V. M. Hillyer characterizes some of the present-day popular methods of training children as "Do-as-you-please education."

Parents and teachers should not interfere with the child, advocates of this method would say. He is discovering things for himself and working out his own scheme of life. Let him alone, he will learn how to manage his affairs.

If Frederic is playing with his new electric train and refuses to heed the call to dinner, do not interfere with him, he has important matters in hand and you ought not to disturb him.

If the children, are playing school and Florence, acting as teacher, whacks Roland over the head with a ruler to make him attend to his task, don't correct her. She is learning how to exercise authority, an important social function, and will eventually drop out really objectionable features of her technique.

If a group of boys are pelting each other with snow-balls and an occasional stick or stone—sometimes breaking a window—do not scold them. They are discovering and exercising their muscles and finding out how to meet and conquer opposition. Neighbors should not complain about the incidental damage to property, that is only an incident in life. The boys will be all right in due time.

This sort of education is so evidently unreasonable, and productive of so much harm that many are modifying the do-as-you-please advice. "As long as you do right" is added, or "as long as you do no harm," or "as long as you do not interfere with the liberty of others," or "as long as you do not run into danger."

A mother and her small son were visiting in our home. The boy took a notion to set fire to some dry grass and leaves in the back yard. The mother was inclined to let him do it—he needed the experiment with matches and fire and dry fuel, and it was all right—provided he didn't do any harm to the nearby buildings. I succeeded in preventing the dangerous experiment on the grounds that it was not necessary, that my judgment as to the danger was better than his, that I had to take the risk of damage, and that I had a right to make and enforce my decision in the matter.

It is entirely reasonable to grant considerably liberty of choice and action to children. They must eventually be placed in charge of themselves, and they will be in much better condition to administer their own affairs if a beginning is made early in life while they are still under the authority and guidance of parents and teachers.

In the old days when there were many chores to do in and about the home, children unconsciously learned many useful lessons—carrying water, bringing in wood and building fires, feeding and watering the animals, working in the garden and assisting in harvesting the crops—and they grew up familiar with their parents' methods of conducting a home and a farm. In these times much training that came then incidentally and as a matter of course, must now be provided of set purpose, and serious attention must be given to developing in the child qualities and ways that are desirable.

"The principles of drill, discipline and hard work," according to Mr. Hillyer, need to be specially stressed in present-day child training.

Successful parents will readily recall how they have had to keep at the task of developing right habits and attitudes in their children, drilling them in ways they should follow, and getting them to do regularly and well the required work —whether the children liked it or not. I like to see a father and his son, a mother and her daughter, talking together in the house, or walking together outside, evidently enjoying each other's society and growing into a better understanding of life. Such living together gives assurance of fine manhood and womanhood to come.

"Leslie can't have everything he wants, can he?" And three-year-old Leslie would solemnly shake his head as he looked up shyly into the face of his young mother. Thus the little fellow got an important bit of philosophy. He is now a skilled musician and teacher, after years of study and practice at home and abroad.

Two-and-a-half-year-old Helen was learning to sit through a church service, and was finding it rather dull. "I want to go home. Can't I go home?" she pleaded. Not being able to settle her, her mother took her outside. There she carefully explained that people went to church to sing and pray and listen to the minister. Helen could have her choice. She could go back and sit quietly until the service was over, or she could be well spanked, and then go in and sit quietly. Helen chose to go in without the spanking—and an important lesson in obedience and self-control had been pretty well learned.

I have helped to teach Boy Scouts to tie the various sorts of knots required in their training. It is delightful to watch the young fingers acquiring skill. The mind develops and the spirit enlarges as the leaders incidentally speak of things that appeal to the growing boy. This is much the same training I went through when I helped mother wind balls of home-spun yarn, working with growing patience and skill in untangling snarls that somehow persistently got into the skeins.

Much of modern life is artificial. The problem is to bring up and train children in such a vital way that their ideas and characters will not be artificial. I know of no better way than for parents and teachers to develop control over themselves, to acquire the inner meanings of life, and to share with the children their own aspirations and plans.

"Most of the trouble and evil in the world," declares Mr. Hillyer, "the misery, the disease, the crime are due to doing as you please instead of doing what you ought, to the acting on impulse, to inability to restrain the desires, to lack of drill and discipline in self-control. . . . .

"Parents must inculcate some of the rigorous discipline of our forefathers; they must cultivate the hardy pioneer spirit that courted hard work and hardship to attain whatever was worth while. Soft, easy-going, do-as-you-please educational practice will make soft, do-as-you-please children and a softer, easier-going do-as-you-please nation to come."

MINISTERS URGED TO SAFEGUARD MARRIAGES

Minister are urged to take their responsibility for the success of marriage more seriously in a "statement and appeal" issued today by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The statement emphasizes the need of educational preparation of young people for marriage, and the value of personal counseling by the minister. It protests against any commercialization of marriage and appeals for dignity and reverence in the marriage ceremony.

The statement was drafted by the Committee on Marriage and the Home, of which Professor Howard Chandler Robbins is chairman, and Rev. L. Foster Wood, secretary, and has been officially approved by the Federal Council's executive committee.

The statement, entitled "Safeguarding Marriages," is as follows:

"Most couples are married by clergymen. This is true even of many who approach marriage without definite Christian convictions, and is explained by the fact that for centuries marriage has been a concern of religion. Doubtless also these people go to the minister because they feel that marriage is a relationship of the most sacred character. The part which the minister plays in the event brings him into an influential and responsible relationship with the new family. Therefore, the Committee on Marriage and the Home offers the following recommendations to ministers on the safeguarding of their marriages:

Educational Preparation for Marriage

"Educational preparation for marriage should be given a place in accordance with its great importance. In this education the home, the school, the church and other character-building agencies, and the young people themselves should participate. The instruction given should deal with the principles of happy and successful marriage such as ideals for the home, wise choice of partners, the wide range of marital adjustments, home management, children and their nurture, and especially with the place of religion in individual and family life.

"Pastors have a long continued opportunity to assist their own people in their preparation for marriage. This assistance can be given by promoting education for home-making as an important part of religious education in the home and the church; also by sermons and lectures, by the use of appropriate liaterature, by instruction to groups of engaged young couples, and by directing them to further sources of information. To aid in this the pastor may secure material from the proper board of his communion, or from this committee.

Pre-Marital Interviews

"As a part of this preparation for marriage, the committee believes that pastors have an opportunity to give great help through pre-marital interviews. Many ministers have done this regularly for years with the most gratifying results. Some hold conferences with the two together, and other separately. These interviews while frank should be considerate, and should be guided by circumstances and by the needs of the young persons as they come out in the interview. Through them the minister may assure himself that the marriage is in accordance with the laws of his state and of his church, and that the young people understand the seriousness of the step which they are taking.

"Studies in unhappy marriages and the experience of family consultation institutes, reveal that ignorance and maladjustment of the sex relationship appear in most cases. The pastor cannot be certain that those who come to him for marriage understand these vital relationships which God Himself has ordained and sanctified. If there is inadequate understanding the pastor may render to the new family a service of the greatest importance through the instruction which he gives them. Literature that will help the young couple in the new adjustments of marriage should be at hand. (This committee has published a Bibliography listing a number of the best books in this field).

"Especially will the minister take occasion in these interviews to bring out the religious backgrounds, points of view, associations and interests of those about to be married, and he will aim to bring the utmost help and inspiration of Christion faith into the life of the new family, knowing that no marriage can rise to the level God intends it to reach except by the assistance of His grace.

The Marriage Ceremony

"Marriages should not be hastily planned nor solemnized by strangers if this can be avoided. Young people should be married by their own pastor, if possible, or by a clergyman in their community. When they are married by a stranger in a strange place the occasion is robbed of some of the social and spiritual values that ought to be present, and the new home is deprived of the parmanent value of the counsel and fellowship of the minister who has married them.

"While weddings may be frequent in the work of a minister, to the young people themselves their own wedding is event of a lifetime. Therefore, the minister should make it impressive, dignified, and beautiful. He should also encourage simplicity. Above all, he should do all in his power to give it religious significance.

Commercializing Marriage

"Commercialization of weddings, whether by ministers or civil officials, and degradation of marriage by stunt weddings, by advertising for them, or by using them for advertising purposes, is shocking and anti-social. All of these practices mean that weddings are conducted without sufficient regard for the sacredness of the ceremony, or the spiritual welfare of the persons involved, and they make improbable either the pre-marital instruction or the later pastoral service which the minister ought to give.

Later Pastoral Service

"Every marriage opens a door of opportunity to the minister. He has the confidence of the young people, and they feel that he has had a vital part in the founding of their home. This gives him a afvorable opportunity to be a spiritual counselor and guide, and to help them in case difficulties should arise between them. Since ministers have to deal with the personal problems of their people they need to engage seriously in the study of methods of personal and family adjustment. Such study will enable them to raise the level of the marital success of the men and women whom they marry and of the homes of their congregations. When newly married people move to another community the officiating minister is under obligation to help them make satisfactory contacts with some church in the community to which they go.

"The committee recommends the organization of classes or clubs for young married people in the churches. In these classes, through friendly association, discussion, reading or lectures, homes may be brought to a higher religious level and help will come in parent-child relationships, marital adjustments, emotional difficulties, and personality problems.

"Both in the personal ministry of the clergyman and in the program of the church, a more definite and intelligent ministry of religion to home life needs emphasis. Above all, in dealing with these delicate and vitally important matters, the minister must work reverently, himself keeping near to God, and securing the best training wthin his reach."

WHERE THE RACE OF MEN GO BY

Mary Alice Jones

Located in the midst of the spectacular and arresting structures rapidly nearing completion on the shore of Lake Michigan where the Century of Progress Exposition is to open in June of 1933, there is a building the significance of which we believe will be evidenced to all religious people. The building is called the Hall of Religion. It is being erected and equipped out of payments received from a large number of individuals and organizations representing a wide sweep of religious opinion, faith, and practice.

As the crowds go through the Exposition grounds this building will call to their attention the fact that life, even life made beautiful through progress in art, comfortable through progress in science, luxurious through progress in invention, is incomplete and unsatisfying without religious hope and faith and aspirations. To those who enter the Hall of Religion there will be presented a significant exhibit of the activities of religious bodies and the contributions which they are making to the life of the world.

There are two main wings of the building. The south wing is occupied by those religious bodies who feel that separate exhibits are necessary to present their activities and aspirations. The north wing of the building is occupied by a group of Protestant denominations who are interested in an attempt to present in one unified exhibit their common contributions to mankind in the search for the abundant life. All aspects of the work of the church, including the activities carried on for those who participate in the work of the local churches and attend the services of local churches, and the missionary, philanthropic, educational, and reform activities, will be portrayed.

Various visual devices will be used throughout the building, but the whole will present a unified and beautiful appearance to the visitors. Murals executed by prominent artists will be a feature of the exhibit. Rare objects of historical interest will be displayed within the building. Art in religion, as represented in painting, window design, and furnishing, will be portrayed. Books dealing with all phases of religious life and activities, periodicals, and leaflets will be available.

Comfortable chairs throughout the exhibit will make it possible for those who are interested in spending a long period of time in the Hall to examine its various features at their leisure without undue strain. Detailed information regarding various aspects of the program of the church, representing the most recent investigations and experiments in religious education, missionary co-operation, and methods of work will be available in convenient form so that those who wish to consult them may find assembled the most recent information regarding these activities.

In connection with the Hall of Religion there is a small, beautifully furnished chapel which will be open at all times for quiet meditation. No formal services will be held. Those who wish to retire for a few moments from the crowds and sights of this great Exposition will find here a place where they may think, without confusion, clearly, on the problems and the opportunities which life in the present world, as it has been revealed through the Exposition, offers to men and women of faith.

An assembly hall seating four hundred people is available for various types of meetings. The hall is being leased in units of one hour or more by numerous religious organizations for the presentation through motion pictures, addresses, conferences, and demonstrations of the contributions which they are making and stand ready to make. Programs of music, religious dramas, and pageants will be a feature of the activities of this hall throughout the time of the Exposition.

To people of all faiths the Hall of Religion will extend a cordial welcome. There will be available in the Hall restrooms, telephones, efficient guides, an information bureau, and other headquarters service. Here it will be possible to meet friends, receive messages, get information regarding churches, meet leaders in various phases of religious life. Readers of this paper are invited to make the Hall of Religion their headquarters while on the Exposition grounds. The staff there will be ready to render any service in their power to make your visit to the Century of ProgressExposition pleasant and profitable.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

"Get Set"

We are now on the final month of the second quqarter, which ends the second Sunday in May. Some second quarterly conferences have already been held, but that does not prevent you from making a tremendous effort to close the quarter in good form.

The spring and summer months seem to slow down those who pay into the church; this is a habit with some, a necessity with others, but is not necessary to all. Let's do this thing in relays: while some have been paying and others have not, it is now a good time for you who have done nothing to take a hand. The responsibility for the church rests upon its members; it should rest upon all its members—certainly, more than have participated must now take a hand because some who have carried the financial burdens of the church are now unable to do it. Pass the word, you who read and who lead. Win someone for the task and thus fill up the vacancies in the ranks of the workers of the vineyard of the Lord.

The Stewards

When it comes to raising money to finance the church the steward is the "key" man, the main man, the leader; because he is the worker, who put it over when it goes over. Once in a while a church has stewards who do not feel any responsibility for their task; they do not even pay themselves nor urge others to do it. In all such cases it becomes necessary for some other member to assume the task and, if none will, then the pastor may have to do it. But it should be done. The first half of the Conference year is the best half to raise the finances often; certainly it ought to be done during this period to keep the closing months from being taken up entirely with this part of the work. In this, many of our church officers need a reversal of form—they wait until the last three months of the year to raise all the money due on Conference claims and pastors' salaries, and so have a hard time. This is one bad habit we would like to see changed. Come, fellow church workers, let's break it up.

Those Area Meetings for Stewards

In a short time you will be hearing from the chairman of your area requesting your attendance upon this meeting and suggesting that you do certain things to make this meeting a success. We are hoping that no one will refuse to do what is asked of them. We must have co-operation in this work if it shall yield its best results, and you are the one to co-operate. Every steward should raise every possible penny he can by the second Sunday in May and then attend the area meeting when it is called and report how much has been raised and how it was done; then take a few minutes in telling those present how you expect to raise the unpaid budgets of the church for the year.

Dr. Lindley's Book

I have been greatly pleased to read the commendations of this book as they have appeared in the public press. Really, the book has received an unusual amount of publicity, more than the usual book on a religious subject. And still we see comments coming from those who read it. I read it by snatching an hour from duties now and then and enjoyed it the more because it gave more time for appreciation of the intent of the author, and of course of the skill in which he carries it out. The subject of religion has been treated from so many and so varied angles that it really requires the understanding of a Bible scholar to correlate them and to have an appreciating understanding of the purpose of each treatment. I am sure if one should read Dr. Lindley's book with the expectation of finding in it the plan of salvation he would be sadly disappointed; but if he should read it remembering that the author brings human nature with all its foibles, imperfections and slowness of heart to perceive the things of God, to worship, he will read with an appreciating understanding of the author's skill. It is certainly a fact that human nature needs to come into contact with the Lord and that every barrier be removed which would prevent that contact. I think that Dr. Lindley has made a real contribution in this particular.

Roberta Church, Rev. T. A. Williams, Pastor

Here is a church that has a field to itself in so far as other churches are concerned. It has a beautiful site and a well-equipped plant, a membership of nearly 400 and a parsonage. There was a fairly good congregation present, who listened with good attention to the message.

Conditions are not as favorable as pastor and people want. The financial situation is not good and the people do not feel encouraged to do really what they can do. It often happens this way. In fact, any discouragement tends to slowing down the work of the worker, and while it is most difficult to keep our courage up under some trying circumstances, it is always best to do so.

The people here do not have greater burdens than others; nothing like so great as some, and because of this fact we are hopeful that the leaders here shall be more hopeful in their approach to their tasks. It is hard for a church to do its best and be ignorant of what other churches in the denomination are doing. Our people here have stopped taking the church paper, which is reflected in the state of mind of many, no doubt.

Pastor Williams has never been in the ranks of the quitters. Anyone acquainted with the record of his work since he came into the Conference knows that. He is tireless in his efforts and a faithful preacher of the Wnrd. And we believe that his faithfulness will win for him here as it has elsewhere.

Greer's Chapel, Rev. R. S. Troxler, Pastor

This was my first visit to this church. It is one of the new churches in our Conference. Solid brick, well arranged, and standing close to Highway No. 10. It was the regular appointment. Sunday school just closing when I arrived. The attendance was less than last Sunday, due, I understand, from sickness in the membership.

The church was built as a result of a division in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; while they still carry a debt on the church I am not thoroughly conversant with their plan of liquidation, but there is a plan.

Altogether I was greatly pleased with my visit here. The type of people present, their attention to the message, their attitude towards the work of the denomination, etc., etc.—all these impressed me most favorably and I shall look forward to a large expressed interest by them in the activities of the denomination. Bro. Troxler is a good worker and was busy in helping the leaders prepare an Easter program which will no doubt be well rendered next Sunday.

"AND NOT FAINT"

"Men ought always to pray, and"—although faintness of spirit attends on prayer like a shadow—"not faint." The soil in which the prayer of faith takes root is a life of unbroken communion with God, a life in which the windows of the soul are always open towards the City of Rest. We do not know the true potency of prayer until our hearts are so steadfastly inclined to God that our thoughts turn to Him, as by Divine instinct, whenever they are set free from consideration of earthly things.—D. M. McIntyre.

WE HAVE LEADERS

Many men have lain awake at night, pondering the problem of religious leadership in this perplexing period. Not a few are praying fervently for the appearance of a new Luther, a Wesley, a Knox, a Whitefield, a Finney or a Moody. His advent, they believe, will bring in the great awakening which should follow the present crisis, as it has followed other crises in the past.

Into my own mind the past year's quiet thinking has put a large doubt as to the correctness of this theory. I have ceased to look for the coming of some super-evangelist.

Instead, the conviction has clarified that the Divinely-appointed leaders whom the Church needs are already with us —the pastors of individual flocks.

All that the times require, religiously, can be accomplished by the ministers now in service, if they can but get a fresh conception of their mission, and rid themselves of the prevalent idea of dependence upon somebody else—some great evangelist or reformer, some denominational or inter-church leader, some popular figure who will take the world by storm.

The world is not going to be stormed into religiousness; but it may be shepherded there.

Once let individual pastors become dominated by the conviction that they are the Church's real leaders—endowed with the Spirit; ordained by the Church and commissioned by Scripture—and they will slough off the "inferiority complex" which makes them so docile and deferential toward professional "leaders," who are leading nowhere.

It may sound drastic, and it certainly is not meant unkindly, but one definite remedy for the present inertia in Christian activity would be to declare a moratorium for a few years upon professional "leadership."

Suppose every church and clergyman should decide to ignore the very existence of all the super-salaried secretaries and causes and organizations and "movements"—outside of the normal on-going of denominational life—and devote themselves wholly to aggressive activity in their own local fields.

Would not the result be a new sense of dignity and responsibility and power for every pastor, who would then know that whatever leadership in religion comes to his community is wholly dependent upon him and his fellow ministers, as led by the Spirit of God?

In a word, the Church already has the leaders she needs; except wherein the shepherds have become sheep. Once let them resume the pastoral staff and the Church will soon be able to exult, in the words of Deborah's Song:

> "For that the leaders took the lead in Israel,
> For that the people offered themselves willingly, > Bless ye Jehovah."

OUR STORY PAGE

A BOY'S CONFESSION

"He that covereth up his sins shall not prosper."

"Please, sir, may I speak to you?"

"What do you want?"

The question was asked by a farm lad, roughly but neatly dressed, who had knocked at the door of his employer's little office and been gruffly bidden to come in.

The second question was put by the farmer who sat at his writing table casting up accounts. It was so unusual for him to be visited by any of his employees that he looked the boy up and down with more surprise than pleasure.

"Well, sir, I have come to tell you that it was I who broke the Salter's balance in the barn a few weeks ago, that you have been inquiring about, and could not find out who had done it."

"You broke it! What were you doing and what business had you with it?"

"I was playing with it, sir, and I had no business with it."

"Then, pray, why didn't you confess it before? Here I have been wondering who did it and suspecting other people: you young rascal, why didn't you confess before?"

"Well, sir, I was afraid I might get a thrashing or that you might turn me off."

"Ah, then, you knew what you deserved?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then why have you come now?"

That was the testing question and the boy cleared his throat and hesitated. Then screwing up his courage, he announced:

"Well, sir, you see, I've been converted. I have decided to be a Christian and to follow Jesus Christ, and my conscience told me that the very first thing I had to do was to confess the wrong I had done, and tell you how very sorry I was and ask your forgiveness, or take whatever punishment you saw fit to give me, because, you see, sir, I could never be a proper Christian while I kept a wrong thing unconfessed in my life."

The farmer listened, astonished.

"Very well, you have been a long time coming; you can go now, and don't get into mischief again."

This story I heard from the lips of the lad himself many years ago; he is an old man now, and he told me how happy he felt because he had not only confessed his fault, but had confessed Christ.—Publisher Unknown.

FRUIT OF ADVERSITY

Adversity is at times beneficial to mankind. Let us, for example, consider the man who has amassed a huge fortune and is leading a life of luxury. Is he inclined to sympathize with his fellowman who is in distress? Has he consideration for anyone but himself or his immediate family? It is not likely. His wealth induces him to be void of any feeling of sympathy. He becomes self-centered and cannot see beyond self. In order to insure his continued position of wealth he will be inclined to resort to practices that may not be exactly honest and that perhaps work a hardship on his less fortunate fellows.

But should this man meet with adversity, should his fortune flee, he would soon be transformed into a far different personality. His demeanor would undergo a magical change. No doubt he would become kind and considerate of others, meek and humble. He would try to ameliorate with good deeds his previous attitude and conduct. This is indeed the fruit of adversity. It is the "ill wind that blows somebody good." Thus Nature teaches us valuable lessons during our stay on this sphere. Let us not despair when adversity assails us, for it may teach us to become better men indeed, and when prosperity again returns we will know how to live, not only for ourselves but for our fellow man.—Noah Banks.

ders and beauties of the universe cannot be seen in the light of day. It takes the darkness for astronomers to call our attention to the vastness of God's creation.

One of the remaining mysteries of the cross is how what appears to be a sacrifice on the horizon can become an attraction calling forth our greatest affection, loyalty, and courage. In Fredrick B. Fisher's book in Personology he tells of his favorite emblem with a Latin motto. It is the picture of a cross gripped by a human hand with the inscription, "Teneo et Tenor"—"I hold and I am held." Paul F. Boller in the Church Management, enlarging upon the idea, suggests that it illustrates the great quality which all men can exercise and which is the very essence of genius. "I hold and I am held" in the darkness of unexplained circumstances. It has been one of the mysteries of onlookers how men throughout the centuries which have elapsed since the crucifixion of Jesus have been willing to die for their faith in the symbol of the cross. Someone suggests that the cross has its own magnetism when once laid hold of by human hearts. And the mystery of a cross is what seems to be a great sacrifice, becomes the object of our greatest devotion.

> "Bane and blessings, pain and pleasure,
> By the cross are sanctified;
> Peace is there that knows no measure,
> Joys that through all time abide."

J. Clyde Auman.

PROBLEMS ABOUT PRAYER

Scripture Text: Matt. 6:5-13; Mark 11:20-26.

By MISS OLA STAFFORD

Problems About Prayer

For a great many people this will be a strange topic, they think that the problems are in getting people to pray. That is a real quesion, for too many individuals have never learned that prayer is worth-while. There are, however, some real problems about prayer that any Christian Endeavorer may well consider. In the beginning, there is no better preparation that you can make for this meeting than reading the book of Dr. Harry E. Fosdick, "The Meaning of Prayer." There are many vital questions taken up and treated in a masterful way by this author. Every one who prays desires to make his devotional life richer and fuller, so our topic will be of interest.

Prayer Is a Necessity

There are many people who have attempted to live without prayer, but they have generally found that to be impossible. There is no Christian without prayer and a person who joins the Christian movement may as well set aside enough time for daily prayer. Prayer is much like the old Delco light systems. The motor was run each day and the current stored in batteries for use that night. Unless the motor was run during the day, there would be no lights that night. One cannot expect to wait until he needs spiritual power to meet the trials of life and expect to have it without preparing beforehand. Temptations do not wait until you can prepare yourself by praying. If you will make it a rule of your life to engage in prayer each day, your batteries will be charged for emergencies.

Have you ever heard of the town that had waterworks and a complete fire-fighting system but which waited each time until a fire broke out before they pumped water into the tank? You can well imagine the value of the fire apparatus. What is the use of having a large soul if you are not keeping it supplied with spiritual power by prayer?

Prayer Demands correct Attitudes

Prayer is more of an attitude than it is words. The worst of sinners may repeat words but that is not prayer. That is one reason why Jesus commanded to go into your closet and pray in secret. It is not that the Christian is ashamed of prayer but that the best condition for prayer is not brought about on the street and in a crowd.

Prayer has its origin in need. If we were as good as we would like to be and had everything that we desired, the necssity of praer would be taken away. Do not think by this statement that the only use of prayer is to ask something. I think that is one of the small items of real prayer. If you will study some of the real prayers that have been preserved you will find that instead of saying "Give me," they said "Make me." That is a need, nevertheless, for they desire to be better and to grow like the ideal which is Christ.

Prayer Comes from a Humble Person

First of all God is recognized as the One to whom we pray. It demands true humility to recognize Him aright and a humble heart to feel that He has that which the soul needs. God is the One to whom we pray and our prayers addressed to Him. This gives rise to a question which is frequently asked, "Are beautifully phraed and carefully prepared prayers real?" If the spirit of prayer is lost in a beautiful prayer, the beauty had better be left off. There is this to consider, when talking to one whom you admire and esteem above any other, you try to use the best language that you can command. In speaking to our Heavenl Fathmer, we should show the geratest respect and, personally, I see more reverence in a beautiful prayer. The art of prayer is learned by those who pray and we can expect the naturalness and ease of it to improve with use. Pray without ceasing if you would know the fulness of prayer and learn to truly pray.

Prayer Demands Action

He who thinks that prayer is a passive engagement has never prayed much. As has been stated, do not profess Christianity if you do not have time to pray for it will be demanded. If you are to be a real Christian, you must learn how to pray and spend hours in the practice of what you have learned. Some time ago, I passed by the church of Rev. G. Ray Jordan and noticed his sermon subject which was "Dangers in Praying." That was an unusual topic so I went to hear the sermon. Among other things the minister said that a person had better not pray for the Kingdom of God to come unless he is aiding it; not to pray for missions if he had money for he would have to give some of it. If you are unwilling to help answer your prayer, you had better not pray. Prayer is worth the price and you will find it endorsed by the saints of all ages.

What Is Prayer?

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,
Unuttered or expressed;
The motion of a hidden fire
That trembles in the breast.

Prayer is the burden of a sigh,
The falling of a tear,
The upward gleaming of an eye,
When none but God is near.

Prayer is the simplest form of speech
That infant lips can try;
Prayer the sublimest strains that reach
The Majesty on high.

Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,
The Christian's native air,
His watchword at the gate of death—
He enters heaven with prayer.

Prayer is the contrite sinner's voice,
Returning from his ways;
While angels in their songs rejoice,
And say, "Behold, he prays."

* * *

"O Thou, by whom we come to God,
The Life, the Truth, the Way,
The path of prayer Thyself hast trod—
Lord, teach us how to pray."

—Montgomery, quoted by "The Lookout."

TWO LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOLS

Two leadership training schools have been planned in the fourth district of the Conference Council of Religious Education, during the next two weeks. They will be conducted at Grace church, Greensboro, April 17, 19, 21, 25, 27, and at Monticello High School, Brown Summit, April 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, from 7:00 to 9:15 P.M.

The charges included in this district are: St. Paul West End, Calvary and Grace churches, Greensboro, Midway-Shady Grove, Moriah, Tabernacle, Haw River, Flat Rock, and Reidsville, making in all 20 churches. It is expected that each school will have no less than 60 pupils.

The courses and teachers at Grace church are: Old Testament, Dr. T. M. Johnson; Life of Christ, Dr. C. W. Bates; Religious Education in the Family, Rev. N. G. Bethea; Music in Religious Education, Rev. E. L. Ballard.

At Monticello High School the courses and teachers are: Life of Christ, Dr. Bates; Religious Education in the Family, Dr. Geo. R. Brown; Missionary Materials and Methods Mrs. D. S. Coltrane; Music in Religious Education, Mr. Ballard.

No registration fee is charged in either of these schools, but since the individual churches derive the benefit of better trained teachers and workers, each is asked to contribute a small amount to cover expenses.

E. LESTER BALLARD, Dean.

Suitable Songs

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF SECRETARY OF TEMPERANCE TO BRANCH MEETING

Since my election to this secretaryship last August, I have written two articles for the Woman's column in the Herald, but one of them was printed in the body of the paper instead of in the Woman's column.

In both of these articles I tried to arouse those who read to some real thinking concerning Temperance.

I have been awed by the fact that so many church people and one-time leaders have become indifferent to the evils of intemperance, or busy about other things. Police say arrests for violation of liquor laws rarely mean conviction at trial, and when offenders are convicted, sentences are so light that it practically means law winks at this type of crime. I say I am awed at these things, at a time like this when eternal vigilance is the price of safety.

A professing Christian once sold some bad hay to a certain colonel who rebuked him sternly. The man whined, "I am a soldier too." "You!" said the Colonel, "what kind of a soldier are you?" "I am a soldier of the Cross," was the reply. "That may be," was the rejoinder, "but you have been on leave ever since I have known you."

Have not we, who should have been militant against the forces of interperance, been on leave, until those who would repeal the Eighteenth Amendment to our Constitution, think they have nothing to fear from us?

After the general election last fall, the winning politicians proclaimed that the election was a direct mandate to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. How they could make such an interpretation I have not been able to find, as there was a wet plank in both major political party platforms.

Have we thought what it will mean to our young people when radios and movies advertise, and even our 5&10 cent stores sell beer? Have we begun any sort of educational program in our Sunday schools, or otherwise among our church members.

I heard of a boy in one of our graded schools who was writing an essay with choice of subjects from a given list. On the list were these two subjects: "Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should be Repealed," and "Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should Not be Repealed." Judging from hearsay, and from current newspapers and radio news, the boy chose "Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should be Repealed," and so notified his teacher. After he had made a study of his subject preparatory to writing he went back to his teacher and said, "I think I can write a better essay on 'Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should Not be Repealed,' May I change my subject and write on that?" The teacher was glad to give the permission.

Many of our youth and adults have jumped at the conclusion that repeal would be beneficial. It now behooves the church to set them thinking along right lines.

Therefore, I recommend that this Branch sponsor an essay contest open to any and all members of the Methodist Protestant church and Sunday schools in North Carolina. Subject: "Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should Not be Repealed." That the essays be limited to not less than 500 or more than 1,000 words. That a large number of essays from each church be encouraged. The Secretary of Temperance, President of the Auxiliary, and Pastor of the church to be a committee to judge all essays from the local church, and having found the best, to send it to the Branch Secretary of Temperance, who would judge between those of the several churches. That all essays be in the hands of local secretaries of Temperance by June 15, 1933, and the best from each church sent on to the Branch Secretary of Temperance on or before July 1, 1933. That a prize of $5.00 be given by the N. C. Branch to the person writing the essay which shall be adjudged best, and awarded at the 1934 Branch Meetitng, provided that as many as ten churches send essays, and one of them shall be deemed worthy of the prize.

I further recommend that each Auxiliary Secretary of Temperance either write, or find some one from her church to write a letter to her local newspaper, at least once a month on the subject of Temperance, and that she urge upon S. S. teachers to be wide-awake in the cause of Temperance. That we all try to persuade every Christian woman to register, and vote against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, if opportunity offers, so that the vote will not be confined largely to those who would put an enemy into the mouths of our sons and daughters, to steal away their brains.

Furthermore, I would urge every member of a Woman's Auxiliary to read the Temperance editorials in the Methodist Protestant Recorder. They contain splendid information for essay contests.

And finally, in the words of Bishop G. Ashton Oldham:

America First—

Not merely in matters material, but in things of the spirit.

Not merely in science, inventions, motors and skyscrapers, but also in ideals, principles and character.

Not mererly in the calm assertion of rights, but in the glad assumption of duties.

Not fluanting her strength as a giant, but bending in helpfuless over a sick and wounded world like a Good Samaritan.

Not in splendid isolation, but in splendid co-operation.

Not in pride, arrogance, and disdain of other races and peoples, but in sympathy, love and understanding.

Not in treading again the old, worn, bloody pathway which ends inevitably in chaos and disaster, but in blazing a new trail, along which, please God, others nations will follow, into the new Jerusalem where wars shall be no more.

Some day some nation must take that path—unless we are to lapse once more in to utter barbarism—and that honor I covet for my beloved America.

And so, in that spirit and with these hopes, I say with all my heart and soul, "America First."

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION TO BRANCH MEETING

Madam Chairman,
Members of the Branch and Friends:

We hear much criticism of missions in these abnormal times, some saying frankly that it would be better if the foreign countries were left alone to worship their gods as they choose; but those who think that way have unfortunately not seen signs of service among foreign people, have not seen dark faces brightened, malformed lives transformed, and fearful souls filled with radiant peace and joy and hope, as have Brainerd, Carey, Morrison, Judson, Moffat, Duff, Paton, Chalmers, Taylor, Stanley Jones, Schweitzer, our own missionaries, and others. The work of foreign missions is not completed; in fact, we think our most effective work has just begun, and that instead of lessening our efforts, we need to increase them. Surely we cannot afford to do any less than we need to increase them. Surely we cannot afford to do any less than we have been doing, and we need to do more. The principle of the New Testament is that what is given in missionary service overseas flows back again in increasing blessing to the home church, and every age of the church has proved it. If we want to improve our home church, and we are convinced that she needs it, then let us rally our forces and work harder to carry out Christ's command, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations."

Those who have been truest, served longest and suffered most have been the ones who wished that they had a thousand lives to give to their Saviour, and we often complain if we are called on for the least service. "Let us go to our tents, O Israel, and to our knees. There is the secret place of prayer and dedication, let us hear what Christ would say to us. Then let us rise and go forth to do God's work in God's place and in God's way.

In reviewing our missionary work both at home and abroad, I am not making a detailed report of what is being accomplished at the Children's Home since the Secretary of Children's Home will do this. However, no interest that we have comes closer to our hearts than these little ones.

* * *

One of the greatest services that can be rendered to men is to heal them of their diseases, and those who are privileged to care for the helpless have a wonderful opportunity to tell the old, old story. Surely nowhere can we find a nobler spirit in God's service than our own Mr. Casto, who has, with the help of Methodist Protestants in North Carolina, built and equipped Bethel Home for tubercular patients at Weaverville, a real home where those afflicted with that disease may go for treatment at a minimum cost. In its lovely setting on Hamburg Mountain, overlooking the beautiful country surrouding Asheville, and filled with the fresh, pure mauntain air, this Christian Home is truly a haven of rest for its patients. We speak with pride, yet not without humility, when we voice our praise of Bethel Home. It merits all the financial and moral support we can give it, and there are numerous ways in which we can help.

In the mountain sections of several of our Southern states we find some of the finest people of our nation, but they have been neglected by both church and state, and are therefore, largely illiterate and superstitious. Into one of these sections, Dr. and Mrs. T. R. Woodford went about 12 years ago, and by faithful and tireless labor have proved to the rest of us that there are wonderful possibilities in each of God's children, if some one will exercise enough human sympathy and encouragement to teach them. Dr. T. H. Lewis in an article written several years ago, called Dr. Woodford our Methodist Protestant Grenfell, and truly he deserves that name.

A school for neglected children was established at Pine Ridge, Ky., by Mrs. Everett of Rhode Island Avenue Church, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Woodford left a pastorate at Columbus, Ohio, to offer his services in this school. Dr. Lewis, after a visit there about tbout two years after: "The scenery was wild and indescribably barren. I saw three human habitations, and these were one-room cabins, one with no windows, and the others with bagging for curtain over the hole. Two children, barefooted in front of one, and out of another a maiden of 17, also barefooted, peeped out the door. I wondered where the people lived, and then I reflected that they must live elsewhere than in this region if they lived at all. I was assured, however, that there were plenty of people, especially children; how they lived I can't imagine."

When Dr. Woodford went there the schools were primitive, seldom open longer than four months. Religious opinion and practice was primitive. One of the largest of the religious denominations preached against Sunday schools as the work of the devil. Dr. Woodford could not even get a man to help him unload his goods when he arrived, and after dark the boys stoned his house. The people did not want him and did not hesitate to tell him so. But little by little Dr. Woodford and his helpers have gained the confidence of the people, and he and his good wife have transformed the section in and around Pine Ridge, not only carrying on the work of the Alvin Drew school, but helping old and young to obtain better living conditions.

In the comparatively few years they have been there, new hard surface roads have taken the place of steep mountain trails; Sunday schools and churches have been organized and manned; and a knowledge of hygiene and home economics have given the woman a new interest in life. Dr. and Mrs. Woodford have helped these people to help themselves.

A few years ago in Poland, where many of the workmen had been to America, an American student asked a native Polish worker, "How do you like America?" He answered viciously, "I hate your country!" "Hate it, why?" "All they want of us in America is our muscle. I hate it!" Ours is a great country. We have the finest school system in the world." "That may be, but I was never in one of your schools." "My country too, is a land of religion, a land of churches." "I was never in a church in America." "Why not?" "No one ever asked me to go, and I was there six years." "Well what do you think of our American home?" "I was never in an American home. I slept in a bunkhouse, ate at an eating house, and worked all the time. I went to American a strong man; I came back broken in health. All your country wants of us is our muscle. I hate it!"

In an attempt to change such opinions and convince the Polish people, as well as other foreigners who come to our country that America is truly Christian, our church has established at Dillonville, Ohio, a most interesting and challenging work. It is under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Greenwald, and she is teaching the children and mothers how to adjust themselves to their new surroundings, and how to speak our language. Although Mrs. Greenwald is giving her whole time to the work, one person can come in contact with comparatively few of them, taking into consideration the thousands who are settling in various parts of our country, and so hundreds of thousands might tell the same story the young Polish man told. They come, live among us, come close to us, and return to their native lands untouched by the church. They transact business with us, rear their families here, see how un-Christian we are, and go back to their old homes to repudiate and deny the teachings of the American missionaries. This is one of our great problems. We need to do more toward helping to solve it.

Our missionaries have no harder influence to overcome than that of the peoples of other lands, who have returned untouched by the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. We do not come into as close contact with these foreign people in North Carolina as we would if we lived in other sections of the country, tor a very small percentage of our population in this state is foreign.

Let us lend our hearty support to Mrs. Greenwald in this much needed work. Christian environment would make fine Christian citizens out of a very large proportion of these immigrants. Then, let us make them Christian; they present a great opportunity to us.

* * *

In one of the most beautiful valleys of Ohio, on an elevation which affords a commanding view of the surrounding valley and distant hills, is located our denominational Home for the Aged at West Lafayette, Ohio. It is modern, comfortable and home-like, and has the conveniences of the modern city home of today. It is not large, therefore, is perhaps more home-like for the family of veterans who reside there. These are they who have braved the storms of many a summer and winter; who have served their day in service for their Lord and Master; who have passed on the torch to the host of youth marching on to fill in the ranks. They are our mothers and fathers in Israel, and call for our devotion and support, in the wide scope of Kingdom interests.

Now let us quickly shift our thoughts from that part of the earth which we call the homeland to that which we designate the foreign land. So much have we become a great world family in these days of speed in transportation, communication and other international relationships that we need to adjust our thiking and speaking to include all races. Only should we use the terms Home and foreign for geographical convenience. Japan is the land of the rising sun, and yet, the land of Buddhism and Shintoism, with their attending errors and superstitions; the land of the beautiful cherry blossoms; the land of abouding courtesies.

Here our work includes education and evangelism. Under the former, we have the Yokohama Girl's school, of which Miss Olive Hodges, now on furlough, is supervisor; and on the same campus a Primary school, over which Miss Evelyn Wolfe presides; a Kindergarten, directed by a native. Miss Charlotte Douglas is also connected with the Girl's school. A Japanese, Mr. Wada, is in charge of the Tokoyo Blind schools, and Rev. Paul F. Warner supervises the work of the Nagoya Middle schools. Miss Ethel Hempstead conducts the Hamamatsu Kindergarten and Miss Mary Williams, the one known as the Murray Home.

Because of the cut in the Board's appropriation, several of our chapels had to be given up, these formerly numbering seven or eight. The evangelistic work is carried on by native teachers, evangelists and Bible women.

In China also our work is evangelistic and educational. Rev. and Mrs. Horace Williams are active in evangelistic work at Kalgan, while Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Soderbom conduct both phases of the work in Kalgan and in the out stations At Chaikoupu, and in nearby villages two hours' ride from Kalgan, native workers carry on the evangelistic work. A school at Saulichuang, having an enrollment of 20 pupils is under the suprevision of a native Chinese.

* * *

Added to the two branches of missionary activitiy in Japan and China is a third one in India, namely, medical. A hospital at Dhulia, operated by Dr. Edith Lacy, now on furlough, is quite an effective addition to our work there. A Boys' school at Dhulia is suprevised by Rev. and Mrs. Paul Cassen, while Miss Mildred Miskimen engages in evangelitic work at this station. Our own Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis have also been promoting evangelism in Dhulia, but recently Mr. Minnis has seen fit to branch out into the nearby villages. The response is such as to be both encouraging and gratifying.

Although we know that minsion work cannot be carried on without funds, I have long been convinced that we "have the cart before the horse" in our methods of getting funds. Frankly, if I were asked for a dollar for missions, I would not give it unless I knew definitely for what the dollar would be used; and so I believe our greatest need is for missionary education. To this end, in co-operation with the president of the Conference Council of Religious Education, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, we are offering a course of study at the Leadership Training school at High Point College this summer, and urging each auxiliary to send a suitable young lady as a delegate, to become inspired and informed concerning the vital work of missions, and return to her home church ready to intelligently serve to further the cause there.

In conclusion, permit me to quote the late and lamented Dr. Amos R. Wells from the Christian Herald of April, 1933, in one of his Daily Meditations:

"Moses prayed a long prayer that day. Victory over the Amalekites was most necessary. The whole history of the world would have gone to the worse if Joshua and his soldiers had not conquered the idolaters and gone on their unhindered way to Sinai. Since

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge.—Our attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning was unusualy fine. Much interestt is being taken in the school. Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, delivered Sunday morning a delightful sermon which was enjoyed by all. He based his message upon the 27th chapter of Matthew, 22nd verse.

Mr. H. B. Bailey, who happened to the misfortune of getting his leg broken February 10th at a wood chopping, has been a patient at the Baptist hospital at Winson-Salem for the past week. He returned home today and is getting along nicely. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning the Lord's Supper was observed, which makes all who take it feel closer to Christ.

Our Sunday school Sunday morning made up $6.10 and sent it to Mr. H. B. Bailey as a gift, letting him know they loved him, and were willing to help and do for him as long as he wasn't able to do for himself.

LIZZIE BAILEY, Reporter.

Henderson.—The work at the Henderson church moves on at an even pace. No great upheavals are taking place, but things of at least local interest are happening from time to time.

The second quarterly conference was held on March 8th. The usual business was transacted. A good spirit seemed to prevail in spite of unpromising economic conditions. Brothers S. R. Harris and Elvin Falkner were selected as nominees for delegate to our Annual Conference.

On the third Sunday in March at the evening hour Rev. J. W. Braxton preached for us. We had emphasized this as a young people's service. The newly organized young people's choir had charge of the music, and gave a good account of itself. Brother Braxton's sermon on the jig-saw puzzle of life was very interesting. We are hoping that our young people's choir will be on hand to take part in the contest at High Point College during our leadership training school.

Our church had perhaps the largest delegation in attedace at the county-wide young people's conference which was held in Henderson last Tuesday. Twety-two of our young people and leaders registered and attended part of the conference, most of them attending all of it.

On last Sunday afternoon a community-wide evangelistic meeting was begun in the big Henderson warehouse. Rev. H. C. Caviness of Portsmouth, Va., is the evangelist. Our church is co-operating in the meeting, and we are hopeful of substantial results for all our churches and for the Kingdom. The meeting will run through April.

Speaking of the proposed community revival, one of our young women said, "I don't think we need the meeting. A revival has already begun in our church." It is to be hoped that she has correctly appraised the situation. There are signs of a revival of interest in the work here. This is especially noticeable among the younger people. Older ones are of course faithful but the younger people have recently taken more interest. One of the encouraging things about the work here is the large number of young people who are members of our church. If we can only develop them and train them for the Master's service!

Attendance at the regular services recently has been better than formerly. Perhaps the largest number since I came here communed last Sunday when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Spring Church Charge.—Each church on the charge will observe Easter with appropriate exercises next Sunday.

Our charge was not represented at the Branch meeting owing to severe illness in two families, death following in one.

Mr. J. W. Magee, who has been seriously ill, is better at this writing. William Robinson, young son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Robinson, is slightly better from an attack of pneumonia.

On April the 5th death claimed the body of Mr. Ira Robinson following pneumonia and complications. I have asked his sister, Mrs. H. E. Vasser, to furnish the Herald with an obituary. He was a good man, respected and loved by all who knew him.

WM. H. NEESE.

West Forsyth.—There was good attendance and splendid interest at our services the first Sunday at Baltimore and Stony Knoll, and at Union Hill church last Sunday morning. The Sunday school at Union Hill church was organized on the first Sunday and met in regular session last Sunday. A new class was organized, making a total of five classes. The attendance was 47, which is considered a good attendance, as the church membership is only about 50. Bro. L. N. Poindexter will serve as superintendent for the coming year, with Mrs. Matthews, a newcomer into the community, to serve as secretary.

We regret to report that the condition of Bro. J. T. Smitherman, one of the oldest members of Baltimore church, who has been ill at his home at East Bend for several weeks, is critical. His recovery is doubted by his physicians.

The second quarterly conference for West Forsyth charge will be held at Harmony Grove church the fourth Sunday in this month. The regular preaching service will be held at 11 o'clock and the business session of the conference wil be held in the afternoon. We are expecting a good attendance of the official members and others.

Our appointment for next Sunday will be at Pleasant Hill church at 11 a.m. We are expecting to have special music appropriate for the occasion, Easter Sunday.

Union Chapel, Granville Circuit.—Thanks to Bro. Parry Finch, who so graciously donated so much beautiful shrubbery to our church, there has been a great awakening in the people concerning the appearance of the grounds and cemetery. We have often been highly complimented for the care of the latter, but we feel that it has been further improved by the addition of new flowers and shrubs.

The unemployed labor has aided us greatly in cleaning the grounds and getting plants set out, as well as hauling gravel for the washed places.

Our good pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, took several ladies to Winston-Salem to the Auxiliary conference on Wednesday, April 5. They returned feeling inspired to get right down to work in order to get the auxiliary as a whole more interested and wide-awake.

Dr. C. W. Bates suggested that a prize of $5.00 be offered to the person sending in the most Octagon soap coupons to the Children's Home. We were very proud of our pastor when he volunteered to pay this prize money.

MRS. EUGENE HUFF, Reporter.

Calvary, Greensboro.—I do not want to take up much space in this week's Herald, but I do want to report the very fine service we had last Sunday night when the cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," was presented. We had one of the largest audiences the church has ever had, and every one seemed to enjoy the music thoroughly. A great deal of credit for the successful presentation of the cantata goes to Mr. Arthur Fiddler, of High Point, who directed it. But I think the honors ought to be shared about equally with our pianist, Miss Huldah Booth. It was a difficult piece of music, both from the singing and the playing ends of it. Every member of the choir acquitted himself, or herself, proudly. And the special soloists who were so kind as to help us out, added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. Altogether, it was very, very fine.

C. W. BATES.

Shady Grove Church, Connelly Springs Circuit.—We are very glad to say that our church work has greatly improved in the last few months. We have a fine Sunday school, a large number on roll, and the greatest majority are young people. We also have the young men's prayer meeting each Sunday evening, with a still larger number present. I feel that it is doing more good than anything we have had in a long time.

There has been talk some time ago that Shady Grove was dead. If it has ever been dead, I feel that it has risen again.

Mrs. Grace Hice and myself are trying to train the children for a program for Easter Sunday, which will be as 11 o'clock. Everybody is invited to come. One and all, pray for the good work to keep going.

RUTH AIKEN.

Winston-Salem, First.—The Branch meeting has come and gone and left pleasant recollections. Our people were greatly pleased with the meeting and with the delegates. The meeting was an inspiration to the workers of our church and will make their work for the coming year more real and ought to make it easier.

Our people are delighted over some recognitions that have come our way recently. Miss Margaret Smith recently won the scholarship to High Point College in competition with sixty or more young people. Then our Auxiliary won the $5 given by Mrs. W. C. Hammer for sending the most Octagon coupons to the Children's Home, and last but not least, the Sunshine Circle with Mrs. R. H. Shouse leader and Mrs. E. S. Hauser as the assistant leader, won the banner for the best work done among Sunshine circles, so we are all pepped up and ready to tackle some new job.

And here is some good news. Miss Pauline

Branson, our reporter, who has been sick since November, returned to her work last week, even though she has not fully regained her strength. We trust that by next week or the next she can begin furnishing you the news again.

Our revival services are to begin on Wednesday night of next week, April 19, with Rev. H. F. Surratt of Thomasville as the visiting preacher. There will be services each evening at 7:45.

Since the first of February our Sunday school has averaged 17 more than for the corresponding period last year, the morning church congregations ten more and the evening congregations one more.

The Christian Endeavor society, Archie Smith, president, seems to be gaining some in interest. On Friday evening of last week they gave a short play in the Sunday school auditorium which was enjoyed by a goodly number of people.

A brief Easter program will be given in the Sunday school next Sunday morning.

The new kitchen at the church is finished and we are pleased with it.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Circuit.—Rev. C. E. Ridge brought before us Sunday morning a wonderful message. His subject was "The Life Beyond." He gave four reasons why he believed in life beyond: first, because God loved us; second, because Jesus said so; third, because Paul spoke about it and wrote about it, and fourth, because John described it. He fully explained each one and made it so plain that even a little child could understand it. A large crowd was present for preaching and also Sunday school, especially a large crowd of young people. We hope to keep up much interest with our young people.

Our Sunday school is showing some improvement. The progress has been very slow, but we are not quitting. We are going to fight on, and by keeping faith in Christ we are going to reach our goal.

Our memorial service will be held the second Sunday in May. We are looking forward to that time. Preaching in the morning at 11 o'clock, and we are expecting a speaker in the afternoon.

Wedding bells have been ringing. Two of our Moriah girls were recently married, Miss Macie White and Miss Anne Belle Queen.

DAPHNE HUNT, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—After an absence of two weeks, the congregation was delighted to greet the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, in the pulpit Sunday morning, April 2nd. After reading an impressive Scripture lesson from Matthew 26 and II Cor. 12, he delivered a most comforting and helpful message, one of the Lenten series, on the text, "Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder," and used as a setting the beautiful scene of the Garden of Prayer in Gethsemane before Jesus was betrayed. He said that seemingly Jesus went down in defeat, but really arose to power. Prayer is the means by which man come in contact with his Maker. In the divine economy of things no prayer is unanswered, for the world about us is not chaotic, but is ruled by law and order. God always answers our prayers when they came in line with His will. Sometimes He gives us what we ask for at once, but often He substitutes something better. Sometimes He delays giving what we ask for until a better time, just as a parent will not give a child green fruit. Sometimes he lets us go on in ill health until His strength makes us perfect in weakness. We need denial that we may grow in strength, and be able to say, "Not my will, but thine be done." Sometimes man's disappointment means God's appointment.

"What a world were this,
If all our prayers were answered!"

At the same hour the Junior church was directed by Miss Naomi Dawson in the assembly room.

On Sunday evening the A Capella Choir of High Point College, under the able direction of Prof. E. B. Stimson, presented its annual concert of sacred music in Central Friends church at 8 o'clock. This choir, composed of 35 voices and organized three years ago, has won high praise in various places throughout the country, where they have appeared in concert.

The new Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon. The attendance was good, a lovely spirit of co-operation and helpfulness was manifest, and many enthusiastic plans for work were made. Indeed, the new year begins in a most auspicious manner, for the majority of our women "have a mind to work." An old adage says that a task well begun is half done, so we can but be assured that the coming year will be a busy, happy and profitable one for our women of First church. The two evening Circles of business and professional girls will meet Tuesday evening.

On Thursday evening of Holy Week the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed, and on Good Friday a service of three hour' duration will be held in St. Mary's Episcopal church, Rev. D. W. Allen, pastor, in which our congregation is heartily invited to join.

A host of friends of Capt. A. M. Rankin, beloved layman and faithful worker for many years, will be interested to learn that he was moved to his home last Friday from Guilford General Hospital, and is resting fairly well today. His eye is still bandaged, and Dr. Banner will come over to see him Friday, when it is hoped that a favorable report from the recent operation will be forthcoming.

Twenty-three alumni of High Point College, who are teaching in various schools of North Carolina, on last Saturday attended a special meeting at the college, to which they were invited by Dr. G. I. Humphreys. In Roberts Hall auditorium a session was held at 11 o'clock, when talks were made by Rev. N. M. Harrison, Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, and Dr. Humphreys. The visiting alumni told of their work and its relation to the college. At 1 o'clock they were guests of the college at luncheon in the dining hall, and a tour of the campus was made, where many notable changes have been made recently in plantings of evergreens and shrubbery, walks, and drives. Mr. Harrison described the proposed stadium, which it is hoped to erect in the near future. At 4 o'clock they saw the baseball game between the college nine and Mock-Judson, of Greensboro, in which the local team won by a score of 16 to 1. The classes of 1928 to 1932 were represented.

Judge Lewis E. Teague will speak to the Brentwood Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday evening, and his subject will be "The Wise Use of Recreation." Special music has been arranged for the occasion.

A. Coke Cecil, prominent druggist and member of the school board, who is an adept at sleight-of-hand, will entertain the members of the Parent-Teacher Association of Oak Hill School on Tuesday evening, April 4. He will be assisted in his program of magic by Renner Amos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Amos.

Mrs. R. I. Farmer is leaving this evening (Tuesday) for Tucson, Arizona, where she will take treatment in a hospital under Dr. Riggins, late of New York City. The love and prayers of the entire congregation and many friends outside of the denomination, who have learned to love her, for her unselfish service and devotion as a true help-mate to her husband, will accompany her on her long journey, and best wishes for a complete recovery of health are extended. During her absence Mr. Farmer's niece, Miss Helen Johnston, of Dennison, Ohio, will keep house at the parsonage. Miss Johnston is not a stranger, having visited the family two years ago.

Many friends of Mrs. L. H. Zimmerman and her little daughter, Hazel, who have been ill, will be pleased to know that they are much better and are able to be up and around the house. Hazel has had an attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. L. R. Peacock and Mrs. Wade Marlette will leave tomorow for Winston-Salem, where they will represent the Woman's Auxiliary at the annual Branch Meeting April 5-6. Mrs. J. C. Whitesell will probably attend on Thursday.

The Baraca and Philathea classes have pledged to raise the subsidy from First church for the Herald, and have succeeded in contributing the entire amount of $20.00.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins and family are spending a few days at their cottage at Paradise Point.

Circle No. 4 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. S. S. Coe, chairman, will conduct a plant sale on the church lawn Wednesday morning, April 12, beginning at 9 o'clock. Flower and vegetable plants will be offered for sale at reasonable prices.

Miss Dorothy Rankin, a Senior at Western Maryland College, will not come home for spring holidays, but will spend the time with college mates in Jersey City and New York.

Mrs. W. H. Mendenhall, Mrs. Joe Thompson, and Mrs. C. C. Hargrave, of Lexington, were guests Tuesday afternoon of their cousin, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker.

Wilbur Pritchard, a Senior at State College, Raleigh, spent the spring holidays here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, on West Ray street.

Many friends of Mrs. E. L. Ballard in High Point extend sincere condolence in her recent bereavement; her mother, Mrs. George R. Martin, of Peter's Creek, Va., died in a hospital at Stuart, Va., Friday, March 31, at the age of 65 years. Rev. and Mrs. Ballard were called to her bedside Thursday.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We had our services in the same manner, Sunday school and preaching. Mr. Mabry gave us a very good sermon on the topic, "Lest We Forget." Our attendance is still increasing. We add about nine new members every Sunday. We are planning on having a Home-Coming Day the secod Sunday in May. The program will be planned later. They are now talking of having two short talks in the morning, dinner on the grounds, and a singing in the evening.

The girls and boys are planning on having an egg hunt Easter. We are very glad that we don't have any one on the sick list at this time. They were all able to be out at church again.

We have been having our Sunday night prayer meeting at the members' homes, but we hope to return back to the church now that the weather is warm.

Last Sunday night's meeting was held at Mr. A. G. Cooper's home, with Mr. J. D. Payne as leader. We are beginning our song practice at church We will meet Tuesday night.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Since we last reported misfortune has passed our way. On March 11, Mrs. Martha R. Isley, one of our oldest members, passed away at her home in Patterson township. Besides her husband, Mr. Jacob L. Isley, seven children survive; also a brother and a sister.

On March 19th Mr. Rufus M. Isley passed away at the home of his brother, Lacy A. Isley. Surviving are two brothers and two sisters.

On April 2nd Mrs. Anna Sharpe passed away at her home in Burlington. Surviving are two sons and a daughter and other relatives.

We were glad to see so may out Sunday for Sunday school and preaching. We feel that they were not dissappointed, for our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, brought to us a wonderful sermon. May we continue to have a good attendance each Sunday.

REPORTER.

Rockingham.—We are glad to report that our Sunday school is growing in attendance. Our collection also is increasing. Mr. W. M. Jenkins is our very efficient superintendent. He gives some helpful and interesting talks each Sunday.

Sunday, April 9, Rev. C. W. Saunders filled his appointment here. For the morning service he read parts of the 26th chapter of St. Matthew concerning the Lord's Supper. Sacrament was held with a goodly number taking part.

The evening service began at 7:30 o'clock with the largest crowd attending since he has been pastor here. He preached a very interesting sermon on "Love."

Our next service will be the fourth Sunday night.

MISS RUBY MARTIN, Reporter.

Moriah.—Our Sunday school is improving, our attendance reached one hundred this past Sunday. We hope it will continue.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. E. P. Sharpe, was with us last Sunday a week for church, but his condition last week was not very good so he was unable to be with us yesterday. Mr. Sharpe has been confined since November. We hope he will soon be back with us.

The young people met at the church Sunday night at 7:30 to start the C. E. society again. They haven't had any meetings this past winter. We trust that there will be some good work done during the next few months.

We were very sorry to learn of the death of Brother Sam Bowman of the Tabernacle church. But we know he has gone to that better land. The family has our sympathy.

The second day of April was observed as Young People's Decision day at our church. Our pastor preached a wonderful sermon to the young people on "What shall the end be of them that obey not the Gospel." Some 15 young people made a decision for Christ. This past Sunday our pastor continued his sermon using as the subject "Eternity." The doors of the church were opened and 12 of the 15 young people joined with the church.

A good Easter program is being planned for next Sunday at 11 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.

We hope that many will be able to attend the Training school which starts at Grace M. P. church, April 17.

May God bless the Herald and its readers.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge.—We are still working, praying and trying to carry on our good Master's work.

Our Sunday school is progressing under the leadership of our splendid superintendent, Mr. L. K. Ruth.

We have had very good attendance during the winter and since spring is here we are hoping to grow both in attendance and in grace.

Our pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits, brought us an inspiring sermon Sunday evening.

The Scripture reading was heard from the the 2nd Psalm, his text being taken from Galatians sixth chapter, 14th verse. Brother Suits always brings to his audience soul-stirring sermons he is truly a man of God.

The second quarterly conference was held at this church on Saturday evening, April 1, with several officials and members present. Dr. Andrews, president of the conference, was present also. The usual business was transacted. The following were nominated for delegate to the next Annual Conference: Mr. Colon Redding of Bethany church and Mr. I. E. Ruth of this church.

We regret to report at this time that Mr. R. W. Pugh, one of our members, is critically ill at his home in Millboro. May we all continue to pray that we may do more toward the advancement of the Kingdom of God.

First Church, High Point.—Many friends thorughout the state will be interested to learn that Mrs. R. I. Farmer, wife of our pastor, who left High Point Tuesday evening, April 4, for Tucson, Arizona to take treatment under Dr. J. C. Riggin for arthritis, reached her destination on Friday evening, and began her treatments last Saturday. Her address is 502 East Fourth St., Tucson, Arizona, and she will be more than glad to hear from her friends. The congregation joins in best wishes and prayers for her speedy restoration to health.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held yesterday (Monday) afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the President, Mrs. J. C. Whitesell on Rotary Drive. Associated hostesses were Mesdames R. M. Andrews, J. T. Ryan, Gorrell Payne, W. C. Ferree, and P. S. Kennett. A beautiful devotional service was conducted by Mrs. R. W. Riggins, and a lovely musical selection was rendered by Miss Vera Smith, vocal soloist, Miss Wilma Rogers, violinist, and Mrs. Minnie P. Harrell, accompanist at the piano. Splendid reports from the Branch meeting at Winston-Salem last week were given by Mrs. L. R. Peacock, Miss Mary Young of the College, and Mrs. C. L. Whitaker. Miss Young said that she was happy to present the sheaf in the Gleanings for High Point College, and it was composed of 25 new dollar bills, the largest save Burlington, which presented 27 dollars. Newly-elected officers of the Auxiliary are the following: President, Mrs. J. C. Whitesell; vice-president, Mrs. P. S. Kennett; recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Allred; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. W. Riggins; and treasurer, Mrs. Wade Marlette. The following circle chairmen have taken charge of their groups: No. 1, Mrs. John S. Pickett; No. 2, Mrs. R. M. Andrews; No 3, Mrs. W. C. Ferree; No. 4, Mrs. S. S. Coe; No. 5, Mrs. R. H. Gunn; No 6, Mrs. Ralph Vance; No. 7, Miss Blanche Burgess; No. 8, which is the home circle, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker. A spirit of enthusiastic cooperation and sacrificial loyalty for the tasks of the coming year prevailed among the members. After the business had been transacted hostesses served delicious sandwiches and tea to the 55 members present.

The A Capella Choir of High Point College under the direction of Prof. E. B. Stimson will present a program of sacred music in First church this (Tuesday) evening under the sponsorship of the Woman's Auxiliary. The rendition will be excellent and appropriate for the Lenten season, ad it is hoped that the auditorium will be filled. This same program was rendered at Central Friends' church last Sunday evening and the large number who attended are lavish in praise of the lovely musical numbers.

Liberty, Liberty Charge.—On the second Sunday evening, our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, preached an appropriate and edifying sermon on the subject: "The Death and Resurrection of Christ." It was very graatifying to note a large congregation present for the worhip service. People will go to church to hear the word preached, they don't care to hear about so many big men up in New York or Philadelphia, we see too much of that in the daily newspapers.

Mr. Love gave us a running narrative of the events of Jesus' life. He portrayed very touchingly the great sufferings of Christ, and even His beloved disciples seemed to forsake Him, and he said: "Could ye not watch with me one hour?" Christ's great and tender love for us prompts us to love Him, and we are so grateful for this living Christ, who speaks so gently, yet so urgently, to our souls that we have a great longing to leave all and follow Him. May the Eastertide cause us to meditate on His love for us.

The choir sang very effectively the anthem: "Alleluiah, Christ Is Risen."

Our revival will begin June 11 and continue for two weeks, at which time Dr. L. R. Akers, president of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., will be the pulpit help.

The mid-week union prayer service will be held at the Methodist church Wednesday evening at 7:30. A goodly number attends these prayer services.

An Easter pageant will be given on Easter Sunday evening at 7:30. A large number of young people are taking part.

Circle No. 1, of which Mrs. C. L. Highfill is chairman, sponsored a depression supper

Friday night, a nice sum was realized. Mrs. Highfill also entertained Circle No. 1 at her lovely home last week-end. Rev. F. R. Love gave an interesting talk. The usual routine of business was transacted, and then the hostess served refreshments assisted by Mrs. C. B. Farmer.

Mrs. W. L. Clapp and Mrs. W. L. Albertson of High Point were guests of Mrs. Jno. W. Curtis last week.

Miss Margaret Shepard, who is a senior in the domestic science course of Woman's College, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. F. A. Shepard. Miss Carrie Smith, teacher in Sylvan high school, was the guest of Miss Bertine Shepard recently.

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

South Winston.—On Tuesday night, April 4, the Young People's class met with Misses Mabel and Sallie Gough. The vice-president, Miss Frances Yow, presided over meeting. Splendid reports were given. It was decided that a drive be put on for new members. Result of this drive was shown on Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid also met on Tuesday night with Mrs. J. M. Rierson. This society has been a wonderful help to the church.

On Friday night the Bible class met with Mrs. C. W. Bowers, Mrs. M. B. Furr conducting the devotionals. Plans were made for a dinner to be held in the near future to help build their treasury up.

We were so glad to have Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Honeline and Mrs., C. W. Bowers unite with our church recently.

Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 101. We are hoping that this number will be increased next Sunday.

Our pastor, Rev. Atlas Ridge, will bring us a sermon Sunday night.

May we ask the prayers of all the Christians as we strive to do the Master's will.

MABEL BOWERS, Reporter.

First Church, Charlotte.—The various organizations in our church are doing splendid work—especially the Junior Christian Endeavor under the leadership of Mrs. Herbert Garrison, it is gratifying to attend one of their Sunday evening service, and observe the business-like and interesting manner in which the meeting is conducted.

The Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Millaway on E. Boulevard Tuesday p. m. A large attendance is requested as our delegates to Branch meeting will give their reports.

The Beginners and Primary departments of the Sunday school will have an Easter egg hunt Thursday afternoon at 2:30 on the lot back of the church. Saturday afternoon the other departments of the church will meet at 2:30 and go for an egg hunt. The Baraca class of which Mr. Penny is teacher is giving five dozen eggs to the person finding the largest number of eggs. Mr. G. W. Stegall, Miss Mary Shaw and Ruby Stegall are in charge of arrangements.

The girls of the young peopl's departments are entertaining the boys of the same department with a weiner roast Thursday evening at 7:30.

The young people's department will have their monthly business meetting Monday evening at the church. A full attendance is requested.

The Easter program will be given Sunday evening. Mrs. Herbert Garrison and Mrs. Hendry have charge of the program.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. L. A. Fesperman the faithful and efficient teacher of the Intemediate class.

The Cottage prayer meetings are well attended and the interest is growing. It is indeed an inspiration to attend them.

REPORTER.

Lexington.—First Church, Lexington is still getting on nicely. We had 311 present in Sunday school Sunday for which all were proud to see.

Our revival began Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and we were very glad to see a goodly number stay. We were fortunate in having Brother Pegg to preach at tthe evening service. Our pastor, Brother Isley, will have charge of these services and we're hoping we can have a glorious time together and God will richly bless each one and the unsaved can be brought to Christ. Pray for us and our meeting. REPORTER.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday a week was 367. Last Sunday it was 377. We hope that Lexington and Concord both have built up the Sunday school but hope that we don't quit working after the contest closes. We were glad to have Miss Ruby Pegler and Miss Kilpartick sing for us at the preaching hour Sunday a week ago. They are members of the McGill Street Baptist church and we hope they will visit us again.

Last Sunday Miss Mildred Burris and Miss Mary Lillie Nash sang for us and Sunday night we were favored with a song by Mr. Jefferies. Mr. Jefferies goes about holding prayer meetings and preaching on the streets or anywhere that he feels like he can help to save some lost souls. He is now about 75 years of age. We are glad to have visitors and hope they feel welcome and will come and worship with us often.

Our pastor gave us two good sermons last Sunday. A large crowd was present at both services to enjoy these belssings.

The ladies of the church have been real busy trying to make our church look better on the inside and last Sunday the church looked so much better that we nearly made ourselves think we had a new church. Our pastor told us that it made us all look better. This week they will have the benches fixed up and painted. We hope to have a fish fry and chicken and noodle supper next Saturday night to help on the work in the church. The women folks are so anxious to get the church fixed up that we know we will get money enough to pay for all the work and the men are right in line helping all they can.

The B. and S. Sunday school class have ended their contest but they are sttill working. The Blue side won in the contest so the Reds gave a bountiful supper in the basement of the Sunday school plant on Thursday night. Every one present enjoyed the supper and all the talks. Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Hendry and Louise and Miss Heglar from Charlotte were present for the supper. They all made talks that were helpful to the members of the class and Miss Heglar sang two beautiful songs. Our superintendent of the Sunday school made a real good talk and our pastor also made a talk. The teacher of the class Mrs. B. F. Waddell made a short talk. Mrs. Waddell is very proud of her class and she has a right to be she said she felt right much stuck-up by being the teacher of such a fine class of women and girls.

Our pastor and wife and about eight or ten of the women of the Missionary society went to Winston-Salem last week to attend the Branch meeting. We know they will have many good things to tell us next Monday night in our Missionary meeting.

The Concord people were sorry to hear of Mrs. G. F. Millaway's illness and we hope and pray for her speedy recovery.

We are glad to report that Grandma Thomas is still improving but she is not able to get out anywhere yet. Mrs. Bertha Cline is some what improved but not able to have any visitors yet. Mr. Harvey Wilson is in the hospital in Virginia; we hope he will soon be able to return to his home. Mr. Wilson married Miss Mary Newton and they live in Berkley, Va., and are members of our church. Mr. Wilson is in service so his headquarters are in Virginia as he is on the ship most of the time. REPORTER.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The fourth Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, Brother O. L. Loy delivered an inspiring sermon, taking for his text, Jonah 1:12. The subject of the sermon was: "Perils of Omission." He brought out several very good points on the subject. A good example of omission is in the first chapter of Jonah. It shows how Jonah disobeyed the call of God. He took a ship going in the opposite direction from the place he was called to go. A great storm arose, the ship was about to sink and Jonah said, "I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you." God is calling us today just as He called Jonah, so let us heed the call, that we may not fail and have to say, "I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you."

The second Sunday night Brother Loy's text was taken from the 26 chapter of Matt. "Jesus went a little farther and fell down on his face and prayed." Do we go far enough in our spiritual life? Why is the world going as it is today? We are not going far enough. We must go a little farther and bear our Cross, or we will end in tragedy.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met at the parsonage Tuesday afternoon, March 28. Four new members were added to the roll. We were indeed glad to have them join us. New officers were elected. Mrs. Roy Hilton was re-elected as president for another year.

The Ladies' Auixiliary had charge of the Sunday school the first Sunday in April.

We are planning an egg hunt next Saturday afternoon at 3:30. The public is invited. The Easter pageant, "Lord of Life," and some short speeches, are to be given Saturday night beginning at 7:30.

Last Sunday we had 113 present for Sunday school. We had some beautiful songs rendered by the Hedgecock sisters, Anvilla and Pauline. Mr. Robert Stone made a nice talk on, "Why Go to Sunday School."

The Duke Endowment, contribution for 1932	2,651.67

We are profoundly grateful for this financial report this week. We wish every Sunday school in the Conference would do like Asheboro has done, set a goal and measure up to it every month. They have not permitted the depression, nor even the bank closings, to vary them from their $35.00 per month for the Home. And we wish there were a thousand men in the Methodist Protestant church of the mind of Mr. John Webb, of Concord, Ill. About twice per year he sends a check for use in the Children's Home. This one is a bit larger than usual. May God continue to bless him.

Then, too, in this report we are privileged to record the largest gift we have ever received from the Duke Endowment. It is $90.00 larger than any other gift they have ever made to this Home. Our number of days' care of children was a little larger this time than before, and they seemed very much pleased with the kind of work we are doing. This contribution was a God-send to us. We paid out about $2,800.00 on outstanding bills this last week.

We are not paid up by a great deal, but we are cut down by about half, and that lightens the load, O, so much.

Items of clothing and other gifts will be reported next week. We have to hasten to a meeting just now. We just thank all of you. Please keep praying for us and then help us what you can. God will lead out of these conditions one day.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

I wonder how the L. T. S. Clubs are going. We have organized at Graham with ten members and have had one meeting. The spirit of the meeting was fine and all expect to go with but one or two exceptions. Organize your L. T. S. Club at once and go to work. The sooner you get at it the more you will be able to line for High Point in June. We believe that in spite of the depression this is going to be one of the greatest Leadership Training Schools we have ever held at High Point. Get the names of your leaders and young folks who are interested and send them to Rev. T. J. Whitehead, 4674 Duke University, Durham, N. C., and he will run a list of same in the Herald.

If you have any money in any of your treasuries send it at once to Dr. George R. Brown, Reidsville, N. C., and mark for the Council of Religious Education. Just a little money would do a world of good right now. Thanks.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

FOURTEEN DISTRICT NOTICE!

The annual district rally of the 14th district will be held in the Pinnacle Methodist Protestant church on the fifth Sunday in April, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. The morning program will deal with the women's work of the church and will be under the direction of Mrs. T. L. Speas, the district chairman for women's work. The afternoon program beginning at 2 o'clock will be directed by the writer.

It is expected that the program will be completed at an early date and that it will be very much worth while. Plan now to be there.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

Moses had so long and momentous prayer to make, is was necessary that his hands should be lifted continually toward heaven. Aaron and Hur were true soldiers as they upheld the hands of Moses through those weary hours. Their work has given a meaningful phrase to our language. Still, when any one aids another in his work, we say that he 'holds up his hands.' These hand-holders are of vital importance when things are to be done for the kingdom of heaven. No one of us can be a Moses, but each of us can be an Aaron or a Hur."

THREE APPRECIATED LETTERS

Ware Shoals, S. C., April 10, 1933.

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

You will find enclosed check for $3.00 to pay the subsidy for M. P. Herald for Harmony church, Yarborough's charge. This will more than pay the apportionment for our church, as we have only fifty members.

Two of my sisters are joining me in paying this, not because we have money, but because of our love for the paper, and our appreciation of your interest in the Methodist Protestant church, and the great sacrifice you have made to keep the paper going.

I have been a subscriber for 26 years and have never allowed by subscription to expire. I feel like I could not be a loyal church member without it. Really, I think it a splendid religious periodical for anyone, and the very best for me.

Best wishes for you and your co workers.

(Mrs.) NANNIE BALENTINE.

Lawndale, N. C., April 10, 1933.

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

I am enclosing $7.00 from this charge for Herald subsidy. More will be coming in a few days.

With best wishes for you and the Herald, I am,

Fraternally yours,
C. E. RIDGE.

Burlington, N. C., April 6, 1933.

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

I am mailing you money order for $20.00 which is our assessment for the Herald Subsidy Fund.

With earnest prayer for the Herald and for God's richest blessings upon you, I am,

FRED W. PASCHALL.

A Real Opportunity for Service—NOW!

In accordance with the provisions of the resolution concerning the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD adopted by the last Annual Conference, held in Burlington in November, 1932, the Annual Conference and certain of its institutions agreed to pay each year toward HERALD Subsidy the amounts as stated below:

The Annual Conference	$200.00
High Point College	200.00
Woman's Missionary Branch	100.00
Children's Home	100.00

In addition to these amounts, the various churches of the Conference were to pay certain stated amounts based on their respective membership.

The Woman's Missionary Branch has paid its assessment of $100.00, and a number of the churches have paid their allotments in full; but many have not as yet responded, and the amounts received to date are woefully inadequate to meet the needs at the present time. It will be readily seen that the sum of $500.00 remains to be paid to the Subsidy Fund by the Conference and its organizations, in addition to the allotments of the various churches.

The Annual Conference and these institutions above-named are entirely willing to comply with the provisions of the resolution adopted by the Conference, but find themselves unable to do so at this time. However, these amounts will be made available before November 15th. But the HERALD is struggling under a load of debt, the accumulation of several years, and it cannot hope to survive until this needed help is made available from these sources. Immediate relief is essential.

The HERALD Committee is convinced that somewhere within the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina, there is some individual or group of persons able and willing to advance as a loan to the Conference the $500.00 mentioned, and who would gladly do so if given the proper assurances of good faith. If there is no group or individual who feels he or it can loan the full $500.00, then the loan of the total in amounts of $100.00 or more will be accepted and arranged for. To any person able to help in this emergency this appeal is directed. Interest on the amount is promised at the rate of six per cent, and the Annual Conference, High Point College, and the Children's Home each guarantee the payment of the principal not later than November 15, 1933.

Here is an opportunity for someone or ones to render to our church a lasting benefit by prolonging the life of the HERALD, without which we are convinced the work of our denomination could not be successfully carried on. Address Rev. C. W. Bates, Secretary of the Annual Conference, Asheboro Street, Greensboro, N. C.

The Economy of Love

In these days when we are thinking about Jesus and His crucifixion and resurrection, we are especcially struck with the fact that those for whom He had done so much and who had special cause for gratitude, are not showing up to express such to Him or to show in any way that they appreciate what had been done for them.

Finally a nameless woman, or at least so in the Matthew account, came and anointed Him with precious ointment. Immediately the cry arose, "Why this waste?" Reproach! Not comment favorable. But Jesus commends her and the fragrance of her deed has reached across the centuries in such a way as to show there is no loss in love when put into use for the Master.

Yes, He commends her and makes the promise that wherever this gaspel is preached it shall be told for a memorial of her. This shows us that love is never wasted.

The deed that does not need to be done is false economy, but if we would accumulate that which will live here and hereafter, and pile up wealth for us where we shall "gather fruit unto life eternal," nothing like that shall be lost. Some one has said that the real wealth of life is in the margin of generous deeds.

We may not have in our possession the costly gift as the alabaster box of ointment, but if there is there that love that leads us to do because we love our fellowmen, and Him, then there is a fragrance about it, the odor of which shall not die with the using, but will be wafted into eternity to make the air more fragrant for us and to increase the joy of others not only here but there!

Love may cause the most insignificant act to be effective for the furtherance of Kingdom interests, and must give itself to be itself. N. G. Bethea.

Are Our Men Abdicating?

To one who sits on the sideline and looks on at the game being played by our church, it is apparent that about all the men of the church are doing is wearing themselves into frazzles jumping up and down and shouting to the women to "get into the game and win it." This is no joke. It is a fact that is painful and humiliating. At every meeting the writer has attended for a year or more, communications were read from our men who inhabit high and lofty places pleading with the women to "get behind the program of the church."

My soul! Where, may I ask, have our women been all these years, if not behind, and in, and for, and under the program of the denomination? In my opinion, which is very humbly given, the women of the church, with few exceptions, are the only ones who have really been "behind" the whole program of the church. Their organization is the only one we have that is doing things. It furnishes about ninety per cent of all the money contributed to the general interests of the church, and fully ninety per cent of interest in the work of the Kingdom of God on earth.

What are the men doing? Oh, they are busy scrambling to get behind the "skirts of the women." They are doing more than this. They are moaning and groaning and howling "Hard times! We can't see how the church can carry on, money is so scarce!" Our men have adicated. That is what they have done, and until they are converted, soul and body and pocketbook, the church will continue to go on at a poor dying rate.

The poor women, God bless every one of them, and may their kind never grow less, have to resort to oyster stews, Brunswick stews, bazaars, and what not in order to get money with which to keep the church candle burning. Men, God never intended His church to be run with money obtained from soup kitchens, and we ought to be ashamed of ourselves for allowing it to be done. Isn't it high time that we humble ourselves and pray the prayer of J. G. Holland:

"God give us men! A time like this demands Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands."

The Indifference That Comes After Victory

In this day when we see in glaring headlines "BEER" in all our secular papers, we are made to wonder why we became so indifferent after the first great victory over John Barleycorn. Is this human nature to always become careless after victory? Whether it is always the case or not, we often see it demonstrated in our church work.

I once exchanged special meeting work with one of our pastors. We had great revivals in each church that season. Some time after in meeting up with this pastor I said, "Well, the devil got into my choir since our revival and did considerable damage." He replied, "I was just going to ask you if you had any trouble after that, for we have just had a regular cyclone in ours."

Perhaps with the smell of beer on every corner, as they say that is what is going to happen, and in many places they are discussing how they are going to manage it to make it look "respectable"(?) we will be reminded by this odor of our error in becoming indiffferent to this evil because we had some laws passed against it. We always suffer for our lack of interest in fighting evil.

Jerusalem must have been filled with lawlessness when the Psalmist said, ''Oh, that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest.'' A most natural desire, but not the best way. There are a lot of us who seem to have wings when it comes to facing evil—we get away without fighting. But our attitude should be to fight that much harder when we see we have made the mistake of not being alert to the dangers until they have had a come-back.

Communities are saved from violence not by people with dove's wings, but by those who are willing to stay by and fight to the finish. To be sure it takes wisdom to handle these problems, but God has promised to supply that in abundance if we will but ask and use wisely the powers given.

We are not going to win in this fight by being indifferent to it, and we might as well acknowledge we have dodged the issue too much. There is surely no rest in the wilderness, or anywhere else for the person who has left behind an unfulfilled duty, or made trouble an excuse for escape. Rest is always the reward for action. Sweet rest comes only after the burden and heat of the day have been borne.

May our prayer be, ''Lord, forgive us for our foolish flights.'' Our resolve should be, ''God helping me, I am in the fight to the finish.'' N. G. BETHEA.

A Prescription by a Near Doctor

Something is happening in our churches that is making it more difficult every day to carry out the great program of human redemption. It does not require the acumen of a sage to note the fact that interest in the work of the church is gradually waning. We are just now in the midst of the most alarming religious depression this country has experienced in a century or more. As a result the church is on the verge of spiritual and financial bankruptcy.

In a time like this it is the part of wisdom to search out the cause of our deplorable condition and set about to remove it. No half-hearted, superficial endeavor on our part will get us out of the slough of despond. It will take eyes that really see, ears that will really hear, minds that will really think, and hearts that will really feel in order to get at the bottom of the whole matter. It will take more than these. It will take undaunted courage, indomitable will and a faith

''That will not murmur nor complain
  Beneath the chastening rod,
But in the hour of grief or pain,
  Will lean upon its God;

''That bears, unmoved, the world's dread frown,
  Nor heeds its scornful smile;
That seas of trouble cannot drown,
  Nor Satan's arts beguile;

''A faith that keeps the narrow way
  Till life's last hour is fled,
And with a pure and heavenly ray
  Illumes a dying bed.'' X.

THE LOYALTY LEAGUE

1. It is an emergency. Paragraph 3 of the declared Purpose of the League, shows that the immediate objective is the prompt relief of some most pressing financial obligations against our Conference Board of Education. Since the Board is the duly authorized agent of our Conference it is the urgent duty of every member of the M. P. Church (so far as is practicable) to put his or her shoulders to the wheel and relieve the distress. The obligation upon our Church is both legal and moral and admits of no quibbling or evasion.

2. It is a Call to Service. Here is a clear call to service to every member of our church who has assumed the vows of Christianity. Is it not true that to every Christian comes an opportunity to serve the Master's cause some time or other? Is it not equally true that we frequently fail to recognize the call because it comes so often in a common-place way instead of appearing in dramatic, or heroic proportions?

Do not many of us act as shirkers because of our weak faith or lack of vision? And should we not fear that God's anger will be kindled against us as it was against Moses when he argued and made excuses against the call to duty?

Just think how much better to accept the call joyfully as did the Apostle Paul, who, upon his conversion, immediately asked, ''Lord, what will thou have me do?'' Not only did he this, but he went into service and followed theh demands of duty faithfully to the end. He thus won more prestige for himself and glory for the Lord Jesus Christ than any other man before or since his day.

3. It is a Golden Opportunity. How many of us have longed for a chance to do something fine, far-reaching—and really worth-while for Christ, Humanity or the Church? Here, then, is the long sought for opportunity. Let us cheerfully and promptly seize it. Seldom, if ever, has a nobler or worthier cause appealed to us for our loyal and hearty support.

4. Excuses for Inaction. Some may be tempted to say times are hard. While this is true, it does not meet the obligation, and is an excuse rather than a reason for failure to support the cause. Is it not true that much of our depression is due to rank materialism, extravagance, harmful luxuries, and dissipation of our resources during prosperity? Stinginess and meanness in spiritual things will never help us out of the slump. Let us put ''first things first'' and obey the command of Jesus to ''render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's and unto God the things that are God's.'' Remember the warning of the prophet of old who said, ''Will a man rob God, yet ye have robbed me in tithes and burnt offerings.'' ''Bring ye all the tithes in the store house that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it.'' When will the mass of church membership learn that individual responsibility cannot be shirked and that sacred things must not be trifled with?

5. Looking Ahead. It would give a tremendous impetus to the Cause of the M. P. Church and High Point College if our people could be enthused and energized with a zeal and fervor like that of the early chhurch. In such event this campaign would be put over so quickly that the prestige and morale of our insitutions would be immeasurably advanced. Is it too much for us to hope and pray that such may occur?

I predict that in a few short years, say five to ten, our Church and High Point College will have grown and become so strong and influential as to be almost unbelievable. At that time shall we be able to take our place proudly, gladly, among those who are boosters, supporters, or builders? Or among those who were critical, fault-finding, lukewarm, or indifferent?

Let us remember the terrible rebuke of the Spirit to the Church of Laodicea for lukewarmness and indifference; and beware that such fate may never be ours.

6. Finally. Would it not be helpful and interesting if our church leaders could have a list of faithful men and women in every community who could be depended upon to help in every emergency which may arise? Who knows but that each chapter may be just such a list? If so, it would be a roll of honor indeed!

As it will be composed of a voluntary membership it will be for each individual to decide if he belongs to such a company.

"In the warfare that is waging
 For the truth and for the right,
 When the conflict fierce is raging
 With the powers of the night,
 God needs people brave and true;
 May He then depend on you?
 May the Lord depend on you?
"Loyalty" is but His due.
 Say, O Spirit, brave and true,
 That He may depend on you!

G. P. YOUNGINER.

Charlotte, N. C.

I WONDER—

—Why all of us talk so much and do so little.

—Why so many of our correspondents talke a column in our church papers when all the church news they report would not fill more than half a column.

—Why so many preachers, after reading a Scripture lesson, say: "May the Lord add His blessing to the reading of His Word."

—Why some of our most highly educated ministers invariably say, "some how or nuther," when they evidently mean, "some how or other."

—Why so many church members are not as faithful and as loyal to their churches as they are to their clubs and lodges.

—Why so many good business men who are church members run their churches in a slipshod, unbusiness-like way.

—Why men who are clamoring for a "new deal" in the political and busines world do not try giving the church a new and better deal. —Just Curious.

PRAYER CHANGES THINGS

I would like for us to study together about prayer and, also, the confession of our sins and neglect. There's only one lighthouse in all the world for the unsaved and that is the church. We are the light of the world, a city set on a hill, and as we see it we have fallen down on the job and let the enemy come in and take possession. We say we do not approve of Beer, do not think it best; but what are we going to do about it; had we been wide-awake would the Lord have suffered this to come upon us. That's the question that is now before us and since the enemy has overcome the church and brought us as we see it this great and dreadful curse upon the people which will destroy hundreds of human beings, can we and will we sit still and let this go on and still be as heretofore careless and unconcerned. We feel there is need of prayer but there might be a greater need of the Church of making a confession. We find Ezra making a confession and it may be we should do likewise. "Then I proclaimed a fast there at the river of Ahava that we might afflict ourselves before our God to seek of him a right way for us and for our little ones and for all our substances so we fasted and besought our God for this and he was entreated of us now when all these thingn were done the Princes come to me saying the Priest and the Levites have not separated themselves from the people of the land, for they have taken of their daughters for themselves so that the Holy seed have mingled themselves with the people of those lands, yea the hand of the Princes and rulers have been chief in their trespass; and when I heard this thing I rent my garments and my mantle and plucked off the hair of my head and of my beard at the evening sacrifice I arose from my heaviness and having rent my garment and my mantle I fell upon my knees and spread out my hands unto the Lord, my God, and said, O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift up my face to thee for our iniquities are increased over our head and our trespass has grown up to the heavens." Now where are we it seems to us we need to make a confession to our God, then our prayer and our alms will come up before God as a memorial, like Cornelius, and will be heard. But will we wonder why so and so does not make a confession and never see our own neglect. We wonder how many preachers are ashamed and blush at their church members and we wonder how many church members are ashamed and blush at their preacher. Ezra said our iniquities and our trespasses are increased one great cause of our defeat is the lack of reading the Word we just haven't time. This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth but thou shalt meditate therein day and night that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make the way prosperous and then thou shalt have good success. Then again we haven't time to pray. How foolish the world will go on and never know we lived. We will not be missed. So we had better take time to read and pray for we will not pass this way again. We sincerely hope and pray we all may do our part to drive out the enemy that has come upon us to destroy our land and country. "If ye abide in me and my words abide in ye, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you."

MARTHA PARSONS.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.
CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.
CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

April 16th, Easter—Offering for Board of Missions.

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

An Honor Roll of Churches Proposed

I think it would be fine to fix an Honor Roll for those churches which pay up all claims due at the end of the first half of conference year by or on the second Sunday in May. Then give honorable mention to those which pay by that time, amounts due on W. S. or A. C. B. or pastor's salary. Let's make this an incentive to do harder work than we would do ordinarily to attain unto this, and we might run this list in our weekly letters for sometime as a sort of recognition of their willingness to co-operate with the plans of the President.

Of course there will be some who will not attempt to do this because they have yet to form the habit of responding to such appeals; but this list is not large as is the list of those who just at this time find it so hard to pay up they will not try; still there are those churches which can and will gladly fall into line with this suggestion and their responding will make us all feel better.

Those Area Steward Meetings

Already some chairmen have fixed dates and places for the meetings in their areas: Rev. J. L. Lowe, date May 6, place unnamed as yet; Rev. N. G. Bethea, place Glen Raven, date third Sunday in May, 3 p. m.; Rev. B. M. Williams, Salem Church, 2 p. m., third Sunday in May; Rev. G. H. Hendry, Stallings Church, third Sunday in May, in the afternoon; Rev. W. H. Neese, Ebenezer Church, fourth Sunday in May, 2 p. m. Others have planned but have yet to report. This is a good part.

I should enjoy being present at all these meetings, but I shall not really be needed at most of them as others will be found who will gladly speak to the officials and do it well. Chairman Bethea announces that Professor Stough, principal of Gibsonville High school, will be the speaker at Glen Raven; he is fortunate in securing this fine church worker and others will doubtless be no less successful when they secure the speaker for their meeting. These meetings can mean so much to the conference in financial matters that I am earnestly praying that every chairman shall do his best and that there shall be a steward present from every church in the entire conference. Let this be our motto: 232 churches represented by at least one steward in this series of area meetings.

The Herald Subscriptions

I read with great satisfaction a longer list of both subscriptions and gifts toward maintenance last week than usual; indeed it is possibly the longest yet. And still there are others who are working and who will report; let's do it now and relieve those who are carrying this burden with such anxious hearts.

June the Eighth

There is to be an event on the above date which will be of more than usual importance. We expect to see people on that day that we rarely see. They are going to honor with their presence two of our noble workers. The date is fixed and there are those who are working out the details of the occasion. You will hear more about it soon, but for the present turn to your calendar and mark "engaged" across that date so you will not forget to keep it open for this event.

Church Attendance Better

I hear often from interested church workers that the attendance upon services is better than last year. I hear of people who walk four miles or more to attend the service. I have also observed better attention to the word as I have spoken in all of our churches this year. That it is not local is attested by the fact that it is true whether on the sound or the mountains as I make my visitations.

God's Acre Plan

A number of our people on the farm have expressed a willingness to try the acre plan for raising the budgets. It is simple and quite effective. Set apart a particular piece of ground as God's Acre, cultivate it well and when it is harvested, sell the product and give it to the cause for which it was devoted when it was planted. This has been found to be a most satisfactory method or raising money for the church and it has an appeal to those who desire to earn what they give to the Lord.

Spencer Church, Rev. W. H. Howard, Pastor

This little church is five or six years old, the building was erected some four years ago, the present membership is thirty. The attendance was twenty, smaller than usual, I suppose. While the membership is small there are some very loyal members here; members who do not regret building the church even though it has meant sacrifice and debt. Conditions have been unfavorable here for our cause for the past three years, due to the fact that the shops are using but a small number of its force. We wish so much that there was a way to help these people in their present strained condition. The pastor is popular with the membership and is doing what he can to build the work up.

Mt. Carmel Church, Rev. C. G. Isley, Pastor

This church is located several miles from Lexington in a good community and has a very good membership. The old church building has been changed into a modern church with Sunday school, a good auditorium since I visited this church last. We arrived there in time to witness a very good Easter service presented by the children of the Sunday school.

The attendance at the preaching service was good and the people were attentive to the message. Brother Isley appears to be receiving the support of the membership here in carrying out his program.

First Church, Lexington, Rev. C. G. Isley, Pastor

Here is one of the surprises of the conference. A church that has been doubled in membership and enough new Sunday school class rooms added to the building to more than double the capacity of the church in the past five years.

There was a capacity house at the evening service. Iwas pleased with the good attention to the message and to hear that the people here are keeping up with pastor's salary, and we are hoping to hear that all claims are likewise being met here. This is the fifth year of the present pastor and his still popular with his people. We are hopeful of still greater things from this group of church workers.

JOYFUL WILLINGNESS

A sentence in a pulpit prayer caught and held our attention, and we have been thinking of it ever since. The minister prayed that we might do what is given us of God to do "with the joyful willingness of trustful children." There is a great deal in that petition. It is to be feared that there is too little of this spirit on the part of most of us. We do the duty that is made plain to us because we dare not do otherwise, but often we do it grudgingly and reluctantly. Like Moses, we are prone to stand and argue with the Lord about it before we start in the path of obedience. Happy are we if we do the task required as loyally as did Moses after he once got started! We frequently say in prayer meeting testimony: "I want to do my duty;" but we are likely to say it with a sigh and a downcast face. The little girl's definition comes pretty near being the truth for not a few of us: "Duty is the thing you know you've got to do and don't want to." The minister's petition shows us a better way. "The joyful willingness of trustful children." The only rational attitude for us to assume is that of trustful children. The only really convincing proof that we are in that attitude is doing the will of our Father with "joyful willingness."—The Watchman-Examiner.

AN INVESTMENT THAT WILL PAY DIVIDENDS IN PROFIT AND SERVICE

If you were within a short block of the Herald office and in frequent contact with the printers, you would understand just how much of a burden these brethren are bearing, and just how serious the situation is with them. That burden and situation are largely the result of our failure to support the Herald: Either because we have not reached our goal of 3,000 paid subscriptions—which would make the paper practically self-supporting,—or because many of those now taking the paper are in arrears, or because the churches and charges have not raised their Herald Subsidy, or because the amounts which have been underwritten by the various agencies of the Conference have not been paaid because they have been unable to meet their obligations. Any and all of these failures have been and are responsible for the deficit in printing the Herald. We suggested in last week's paper a way out through the loan of a total of $500 to help meet pressing obligations. If you who read this have any money to lend, either the whole amount or any part of it, you can not do a finer thing, nor a safer thing if you wish to put it on that plane, than to let McCulloch and Swain have the use of that amount until Conference, when, we feel certain, the loans can be taken up. If you want the Herald to continue, and if at the same time you want to make a good investment, write me for details. But don't wait. DO IT NOW!

C. W. Bates, for the Committee.

A DROP OF OIL

One day on a trolley-car there was a door that squeaked every time it was opened or shut. A workman sitting near it noticed this. Rising, he took a little can from his pocket, let fall a drop of oil on the offending spot, and sat down, saying, "I always carry an oil-can in my pocket, for there are so many squeaking things that a drop of oil will set right."

Love carries an oil-can and is ready everywhere to lubricate squeaking things. We all know a few men and women who are ever dropping oil to soften friction, and smoothing and quieting strife among others. They have some gentle word, some happy suggestion, some bit of humor, some way of changing the subject when there is danger of strife.—Unknown.

THE GREAT NEGATIVES

I am sure that we need, as believers, as men and women in Christ, much more than is common in the Church now, very definitely and positively to entertain "the hope of glory." The all-blessed hereafter is to us, in Him, no peradventure, no philosophically guessed "survival." It is a reality as great and glorious as the amplest promises of the Lord Jesus and His Apostles can make it. Let us deeply, largely, "taste the powers of the world to come."

That life—what, in the wonderful negatives of the Bible, do we know about it? It will have within it no grief, no tears nor crying, no pain, no night, no "going out," no death for ever more. But also —no "self."—Bishop Handley Moule.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE BLUE BELLS

One day Mr. M. Morrill's attention was called to a little, pale, thin bootblack who had a bunch of bluebells in his button-hole. The gentleman let the boy black his boots, then balancing a quarter on his finger, said:

"Here is ten cents for the shine and fifteen cents for the flowers," pointing to the bluebells.

The lad put his small hand over the flowers.

"No, sir; I can't sell them; if I was starving I wouldn't sell a bluebell."

"And why not, little man?"

The lad looked at Mr. Morrill so piteously that he was almost sorry he had asked him. He put his hand on the boy's head and said:

"Excuse me for asking; you need not tell me unless you wish, and you can keep the quarter besides."

"I like you, and I'll tell you. Just a year ago this month, and it has been such a long year I thought the bluebells never would come," and then he stopped and put his hands over his eyes as if to shut out some horrid sight. Presently he took down his hand and said abruptly:

"My father was a drunkard. We once owned some property I've heard mother say, but that was before I was born. We got so poor mother had to go out and wash to get food for Bess and me. We lived in a log house, a quarter of a mile from town.

"One Friday morning there was only a plate of cornmeal and about two spoonfuls of molasses. Mother baked the meal into bread, and told me to feed the baby when she awoke, and to keep a sharp lookout for father, while she was away washing that day. She kissed me at the door. 'Be a good boy, Willie, and take care of little sister,' she said.

"Bessie slept a long time, and I passed the time sitting by her and going to the door to watch for father. When she woke up she said, 'Baby is so hungry, Willie, get something to eat.' 'Get up, Bessie, and let me dress you and then we will have some breakfast.' I had not eaten a mouthful, nor had mother before leaving home, and I was dreadful hungry. She got up, and I dressed, washed and combed her, and when we sat down to the table Bessie just dropped her curly head right down on the table and sobbed out, 'Oh, Willie, I am so tired of cornbread and molasses; I can't eat it; I want some meat and butter.'

" 'Don't cry, baby,' I said, stroking her curls, 'mother will bring home something tonight.'

" 'But it is so long to wait.'

" 'Try to eat,' I said, and I put a spoonful of molasses on her plate, and she did try, but she only swallowed a few mouthfuls and then left the table. I ate a small piece of dry bread. I thought she would eat the molasses, so I did not touch it. All day she kept saying she was hungry, but refused to eat. It was a long day to us both.

"Father had not come home, and it was nearly dark; we were both sitting on the doorstep. Bessie laid her head against my arm and began to cry, 'I'm so hungry, Willie; mother stays so late tonight.'

" 'Don't cry, baby, mother will soon be home.' 'Of course she will!' exclaimed George Anderson; he lived a mile beyond us, and as he spoke he tossed a bunch of bluebells into Bessie's lap.

" 'Oh, how pretty!' she exclaimed, while the tears dropped from her sweet blue eyes on the pretty bluebells.

" 'Come, Bessie,' I said, 'let me fasten them among your curls.' She stood up on the doorstep with her face toward the house. I stood behind her and tied the bluebells in her golden curls. I had just fastened the last one, when someone jerked me off the step,. It was father; he was almost crazed with drink.

"He caught Bessie and said, 'You have been crying; what did Willie do to you?'

"She was so white and scared that I thought she would faint. 'Willie didn't do anything,' she gasped out.

"Father let her go and grasped me; he commenced to shake me awful. 'You rascal, what did you do to Bessie? Tell me or I'll shake the breath out of you.'

"He shook me so I could not answer. Then little Bessie caught him by the arm. 'Please, father, don't hurt Willie; I was so hungry it made me cry.'

"He looked in at the table and saw the bread and molasses. 'You little white-faced liar; you are not hungry; look at that table; there is plenty to eat, and good enough for such a brat as you,' and he shook her roughly.

"She began to cry and I tried to put my arms around her but father pushed me away. 'If you can't eat anything I can give you something to drink,' and he caught her up in his arms and started down the path that led to the pond.

"Bessie hushed crying, but she looked awful scared. 'I'll give you something to drink,' he said, when he reached the edge of the water and I followed, scarcely knowing what I was doing, I was so frightened.

"He waded in about knee deep, then took Bessie and put her little curly head down under the water. She threw up her little white hands and cried out, 'Oh, Willie, take baby!' just as the curly head went down.

"I waded around father and tried with all my strength to raise her little head out of the water, but father held it down. I begged father to take her out, but he would not listen. She threw up her hands wildly, there was a gurgling sound and then all was still. It seemed hours to me, but father at last lifted up Bessie's white dripping face. I called her name wildly, but her blue lips did not move; she was dead.

"Father carried her and laid her down on the green grass. 'I guess she won't get hungry for awhile,' he said.

"I was so stunned I never moved nor spoke, until I saw the bluebells that I had twined in Bessie's hair floating out on the water. I could not bear to see them drift away, so I waded out after them. The water was deep and on I went. It was up to my arm-pits, now over my shoulders, still the bluebells were just beyond my reach, but I must have them. The water touched my chin; another step and I caught them and just as I did I heard mother call: 'Willie! oh, Willie!, where are you?'

''I looked for father. He was seated on the ground by Bessie. 'Willie! oh, Willie,' came mother's voice again.

''I was out of the water now, but so weak I could scarcely stand. 'Bessie! oh, Bessie,' I called, 'Here, mother, at the pond.'

''Father gave one mad leap into the water—he plunged in face down. I was so terrified I did not know what to do. I heard mother coming. I trembled so I could not walk, so I crawled up to Bessie, and took father's straw hat, put it over Bessie's dead face to keep mother from seeing it.

''In a moment she came in sight. She saw I was dripping with water. 'Willie, Willie, what is the matter?' I could not speak.

''She lifted the hat from Bessie's face. She stood a moment as if turned to stone. 'Tell me how it happend, Willie, tell me quick!' Then I found my voice and told her everything. She heard me through without a word, but when I had finished she stood with clasped hands over Bessie and shrieked such unearthly cries that soon the neighborhood flocked to the spot.

''Father had drowned himself, his body was taken from under the beautiful water and buried in the cemetery along side of Bessie. Mother was a raving maniac. I put the bluebells in a little box and hung them around my neck. After the funeral I lay in the hospital, sick for weeks with brain fever, but when I came to myself, the box was still around my neck; here it is,'' and he drew from his bosom a small box containing a few withered leaves.

''They speak of sweet baby Bessie,'' he said, as he closed the box and slipped it back under his shirt bosom.

Then he looked Mr. Morrill straight in the eyes and said:

''Please, mister, don't ever vote for whisky. It killed my father and dear little Bessie, and it locked mother up in a mad-house. Please don't vote for rum.''—Publisher Unknown.

BOYS WHO SUCCEED

Thirty years ago Mr. H——, a nursery man in New York State, left home for a day or two, says the Springfield Republican. It was rainy weather and not a season for sales, but a customer arrived from a distance, tied up his horse and went into the kitchen of a farm house, where two lads were cracking nuts.

''Is Mr. H—— at home?''

''No, sir,'' said the eldest, Joe, hammering at a nut.

''When will he be back?''

''Dunno, sir. Maybe not for a week.''

The other boy, Jim, jumped up and followed the man out. ''The men are not here, but I can show you the stock,'' he said, with such a bright, courteous manner that the stranger, who was a little irritated, stopped and followed him through the nursery, examined the trees and left his order.

''You have sold the largest bill that I have had this season, Jim,'' his father, greatly pleased, said to him on his return.

''I'm sure,'' said Joe, ''I'm as willing to help as Jim, if I'd thought in time.''

A few years afterward these two boys were left by their father's failure and death with $200 or $300 each. Joe bought an acre or two near home. He has worked hard, but is still a poor, discontented man. Jim bought an emigrant's ticket to Colorado, hired as a cattle driver for a couple of years and with his wages bought land at 40 cents an acre, built himself a house and married. His herds of cattle are numbered by the thousands, his land has been cut up for town lots and he is ranked as one of the wealthiest men in the state.

''I might have done like Jim,'' his brother said lately, ''if I'd thought in time. There's as good stuff in me as in him.''

''There's as good stuff in that loaf of bread as in any I ever made,'' said his wife, ''but nobody can eat it. There's not enough yeast in it.'' The retort, though disagreeable, was truth. The quick, wide-awake energy which acts as leaven in a character is partly natural. But it can be inculcated by parents and acquired by a boy if he chooses to keep his eyes open and act promptly and boldly in every emergency.—Publisher Unknown.

WHY CHARLIE NEEDED A SAVIOUR

Charlie was about 12 years of age. His parents were good Christians, so Charlie had been brought up in the church and Sunday school from babyhood. He had never been known to do anything really wrong. He was so loved by everyone who knew him, in church, in Sunday school, and in the neighborhood. Up to this time life had been all happiness for Charlie.

But God loved him and wanted him for His own child, so He sent the Holy Spirit to convict Charlie that he needed a Saviour. He had never taken Jesus into his heart as his own Saviour, and so had not been born again.

On this particular Sunday evening after church every one had gone home, even his parents. Only the preacher and a few deacons remained to consider some matters; and except for their low conversation everything was still in the church.

All at once they heard a weeping and groaning as of some one in terrible suffering and pain. They could not see anyone. But as they followed the sound of the wailing voice they came upon Charlie, who was lying stretched on the length of the long seat and crying as though his heart would break, and they said:

''Charlie, Charlie, what is the matter, Charlie?''

He answered, ''Oh, I am so wicked, I am so wicked!''

They said, ''Why, Charlie, what have you done, what have you done, you have always been such a good boy?''

Charlie replied: ''It is not what I have done, but it is what I could do.''

His heart he found to be so bad he could do something terrible. That is why Charlie needed a Saviour. He needed to let Jesus come into his heart and give him a new nature so that he could love the Christ who bore all his sins on the Cross, and would would keep Charlie from sinning in his daily life.—The Prairie Overcomer.

STORIES JESUS TOLD

Scripture Lesson: Matthew 21:28-32; 22:1-10.

Jesus As a Story-Teller

Jesus was a story-teller of note. He knew the best way to reach the hearts of people and that a story was acceptable to all ages of men. The stories which Jesus told were never weird and scary but they had a deep meaning and fitted the point which He intended to convey. Proof of the stories of Jesus is that the world has not tired of hearing them. Anyone who has had experience in teaching children knows that a child loves a story and that they never become restless in hearing the stories of Jesus. The stories of Jesus do not grow old with time, but they seem to grow richer; the old, old story becomes sweeter each time that it is heard or told. Not only do children enjoy a narrative but grown people will give attention to good stories. Jesus knew the secret of gaining and holding His hearers' attention.

The Story of Jesus

If possible have stereopticon pictures of the life and teachings of Jesus. There is no better way of teaching than through the eye and people will not tire of a good series of pictures from the life of Christ. The great artists have also caught the deep meaning of Jesus and have given some masterful presentations of Jesus in colors. Secure some colored pictures of Jesus or the stories which He taught and have them to show and have someone prepared to tell the meaning and explain the pictures. If these other two methods cannot be used, a word picture of Jesus and His teachings can be painted. It takes an artist to really show Jesus and you will have to study much to present Him adequately.

Jesus Revealed the Kingdom of God

Jesus came to show to the world the type of kingdom which He came to establish. Not only did He teach about His Kingdom, He illustrated it. In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus gives the platform of the Kingdom of God and tells the people the nature and principles of it. In the numerous stories which He told, Jesus sets forth anew the Kingdom of God. The Kingdom of God is open to all people. Jesus taught this lesson in the story of the feast that was prepared and the guests invited. Some were too busy and some did not care to attend, so outsiders were asked in. This doubtless referred to the Gentiles who should accept the Kingdom of God on the refusal of the Jews. The feast is prepared and everybody is invited. There is room for all and the banquet hall is being filled; we are invited.

Quotable Poetry

I LOVE THE OLD STORY

The story of Jesus is precious to me;
I first learned to love it beside mother's knee,
When she told how He loved little children
so well;
And this precious story to you I must tell.

Oh, I love the old story: "I know it is true,
And that is the reason I tell it to you;"
The most wonderful story, though oft it is told,
Is the story of Jesus, and it never grows old.

The story of Jesus grows sweeter each day,
It cheers as we journey on life's rugged way;
And it tells of a place He has gone to prepare,
Of the "mansion in glory," of the "home over there."

The story of Jesus is infinite love;
It tells how He came from the Father above,
How He lived, how He died, to redeem sinful men;
I must tell the old story again and again.

SEVENTH DISTRICT RALLY

PLACE: Shiloh church, near Julian.

TIME: Fifth Sunday in April at 10 a.m.

10 to 11—Sunday school hour. Simple demonstration in Beginners, Primary and Junior work. It is suggested that the teachers and assistants of these groups confer together and arrange for one to take care of the work back home and the other attend the convention for this period.

11 to 12—Women's hour in charge of Mrs. Ed Coble. Let the women of the district take note and govern themselves accordingly.

12 to 1:30—Intermission, everybody providing their own lunch.

1:30 to 2:30—Young People's Hour, Dr. Fred W. Paschall in charge. Young people and young people's workers, take note and govern themselves accordingly.

2:30 to 3:30—The President's hour, in charge of Dr. R. M. Andrews. Everybody take note and go to see what our President has for us.

From now to the fifth Sunday is pastors' period to get their members and workers there. Also the people's period, to save enough Sunday gasoline to propel their cars to and from Shiloh.

Pastoral charges included are: Liberty, Tabernacle, Moriah, Mt. Pleasant. Visitors from other charges and churches are invited.

T. M. JOHNSON, Chairman.

NOTICE

The second quarterly conference for Cleveland Charge will be held at Kistler's Church on Saturday, April 22. Preaching at 11 a. m. by Rev. A. D. Shelton. Dinner on the ground, and the conference will be held in the afternoon. All official members are expected to attend and a hearty welcome is extended to all people connected with this charge.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Dr. S. S. Coe, two loads of hay.

Mrs. J. R. Beasley, High Point, 1 beautiful quilt, with the privilege of selling it and using the money.

Woman's Auxiliary, Lewis Memorial church, Washington, D. C., 29 dresses, 2 apron, 1 sweater, 9 nighties, 3 blouses, 11 pieces of underwear, 6 slips and 7 waists and 5 pair pants for boys. All this is new and handmade, and it did come in fine for Easter.

The women of Shiloh church, Liberty, 3 boxes of cookies for Easter and school lunches.

The women of Mt. Carmel, Forsyth, 20 cakes for Easter and school lunches.

The women of Haw River church, Glen Raven, 5 cakes for Easter and school lunches.

Mrs. Maymie Griffin, Reidsville, Rt. 2, 24 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables.

Tabernacle church, Tabernacle, 1 bundle of coupons, ½ bushel of irish potatoes, 22 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, 1 bucket of honey, 2 dozen eggs, 2 packages of beans, 2 small pieces of bacon, 3 dresses and 2 brooms.

All of these donations are greatly appreciated and will be very helpful in the Home. It is wonderful how our good people respond to suggestions and come to our relief. Look again at the number of cakes which came in to help out at Easter and for school lunches. We thank you so much.

Suggestions

Our people so frequently ask for suggestions. The above item from Lewis Memorial church in Washington, D. C., carries its own suggestion. Their women cut and sewed clothing for both boys and girls from 6 to 17 years of age. These new garments were soon fitted to children and helped out wonderfully. Any person, or class, or C. E. Society, or Woman's Auxiliary can easily and

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

REPORT OF BRANCH MEETING

The Fourth Annual Meeting of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work met in Winston-Salem April 5th ad 6th, with Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, president, presiding.

A most cordial welcome was given the memberh of the convention assembled by Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of the hostess church. More than 200 delegates and visitors were present, and about 25 ministers of the North Carolina Conference were there.

Reports from officers and secretaries showed the Auxiliaries in our Branch were still going forward and a note of optimism prevailed throughout the entire session. Several reports were so splendid it was voted unanimously to have them printed.

The banners for the year were awarded as follows:

Sunshine Circle—Winston-Salem.
Mission Band—Mebane.
Young People's Work—Maple Springs.

Dr. R. E. McAlpin, for 48 years a Presbyterian missionary in Japan, appeared twice on our program. Dr. McAlpin knew personally every Methodiht Protestant missionary our church has ever sent to Japan, and paid a splendid tribute to them and to their work in the schools and churches. He told in a delightful way many of his interesting experiences on the foreign field.

One of the finest things on the program was the president's message. Mrs. Hammer used as her topic, "The Glory of Going On." Those who heard her were filled with inspiration and a greater deisre to bring about bigger things for our church and for the kingdom.

Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon were present and with them a group of children from the Children's Home. They gave interesting reports and emphasized the Silver Wedding Anniversary which will be celebrated at the Home on June 8th. Instead of a personal celebration, Dr. and Mrs. Dixon are having one for the children, to which every Methodist Protestant in North Carolina will be invited and asked to bring a silver offering.

Rev. C. W. Bates presented a prize of $5.00 to the Winston Auxiliary for sending in the greatest number of Octagon Soap wrappers to the Home. This prize was given by Mrs. W. C. Hammer. Immediately following this Rev. C. L. Spencer offered $5.00 to the Auxiliary sending in the largest number of coupons for the next three months.

The evening session was given over to Christian Education. Mrs. H. W. Maier, secretary, gave her report and presented a playlet. Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, delivered a splendid address on Christian Education. Music was furnished by students from the college.

Rev. Homer Casto, from Bethel Home, was present and spoke briefly of the present status of the home. This work makes a wonderful appeal and the audience stood in appreciation of the marvelous work Mr. Casto is doing.

Rev. C. W. Bates made a strong plea for the Methodist Protestant Herald. He urged the ladies to take a six months' subscription, if no longer, in order to lessen the deficit.

The Branch voted to sponsor an essay contest, recommended by the Secretary of Temperance on "Why the Eighteenth Amendment Should Not Be Repealed." Mrs. C. L. Whitaker offered a prize of $5.00 for the winning essay.

The following delegates to the Missionary Convention were elected: Mrs. Wm. Hammer, Mrs. George R. Brown, Mrs. H. W. Maier, Mrs. H. C. Nicholson. Alternates, Mrs. S. S. Coe, Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr.

Following the election of officers the meeting of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work was brought to a close.

MRS. J. M. MILLIKAN,
Recording Secretary.

A CORRECTION

Through a misunderstanding, Mrs. Bates and I were given credit for the five dollar prize awarded in the Octagon Coupon Contest which has just closed, and which was won by the auxiliary of the First Church, Winston-Salem. Mrs. W. C. Hammer gave the prize, and deserves the credit.

You will be glad to know that another five dollars is offered for the next three-months contest, the prize this time being given by Rev. C. L. Spencer. The money is already in hand, and just awaits the successful auxiliary. Get busy and win it!

These contests have stimulated a good deal of interest, and those who have given the prizes thus far think they have found a fine way to invest a bit of money in the Children's Home. This is just a hint that when this three months contest is over, we shall be ready for some one else to step forward with a crisp five-dollar bill to carry on the good work.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FIRST CHURCH, CHARLOTTE

Devotion: Hymn No. 40. The Church's One Foundation. Prayer, Rev. G. H. Hendry. Announcements, Mr. R. S. Garmon.

PAGEANT

The Twentieth Anniversary of the First Methodist Protestant Church

Characters: Spirit of the Founders, Mr. M. D. Frink; The Church, Mr. Herbert Garrison; Spirit of the Trustees, Mr. G. W. Stegall; Spirit of the Stewards, Mr. R. S. Garmon; Spirit of the Sunday School, Mr. C. H. Daughtry; Spirit of the Auxiliary, Mrs. B. W. Little; Spirit of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor, Miss Macie Garmon; Spirit of the Senior Christian Endeavor, Miss Mary Shaw; Spirit of the Class Leaders, Mrs. J. H. McCall.

Several hymns and music numbers were intersperesed throughout the program. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. G. H. Hendry.

This meeting was well received and the "Love Gift" was in keeping with the event, and our treasury was replenished thereby.

LOYALTY LEAGUE

We furnish this week our third enrollment report, as follows:

Tabernacle Charge: C. A. Smith, G. A. Garrett, Mrs. G. A. Garrett, William M. Smith, Purvis Neese, Mrs. Purvis Neese.

Kernersville Charge: Miss Lucil Ingram.

Henderson: Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, Charles F. Tankersley, Jr., Mrs. H. A. Jordan, Jasper Hicks, J. B. Burchett, L. R. Gooch, H. O. Faulkner, W. R. Vaughn, J. B. Satterwhite, Mr. J. B. Satterwhite, R. W. Dixon.

Spring Church Charge: Mrs. W. H. Neese, Sarah Marie Neese.

Junior League

Roger Linville (Kernersville Charge).
Annie Smith (Tabernacle Charge).
Derothy Neese (Tabernacle Charge).

Ministers Enrolled

R. M. Andrews, T. M. Johnson, L. W. Gerringer, J. E. Pritchard, Fred W. Paschall, H. L. Isley, J. C. Auman, J. W. Braxton, C. E. Ridge, H. Freo Surratt, H. W. Bell, T. G. Madison, Geo. R. Brown, N. G. Bethea, R. C. Stubbins, C. L. Spencer, T. J. Whitehead, B. M. Williams, J. L. Trollinger, L. E. Mabry, W. H. Neese, C. L. Grant, S. W. Taylor.

This is not our full ONE HUNDRED PER CENT of pastors, but it is a good start, and we have no doubt about the list growing. Some pastors are most likely waiting to send in their enrollments with lists from their charges. A HUNDRED PER CENT of our pastors is still our enrollment goal. We are rating them high, but that's their normal place. All right, now, pastors. Let's strike the home gait and make it ONE HUNDRED per cent in short order. What pastor will head the next report?

We are publishing this week an article from Bro. Younginer, of the Charlotte church. He is vitally interested in the League, and evidences this fact by enrolling his entire family—seven in all. Cards have not reached me in time for this report, but they will be ready by the next League broadcast. Read what Bro. Younginer has to say about the League.

We are more and more convinced that this movement is capable of solving our college financial problem. Our only difficulty is getting our people to see it. We are well up already toward the $100 per month amount now. And we have hardly begun to reach our people. There is salvation for us in this League. S. W. TAYLOR, Director.

NOTICE TO CHURCHES

The Sixth District Rally will meet with the First Methodist Protestant Church of Reidsville, Sunday, April 30, beginning with Sunday school at 10 o'clock, followed by the sermon at 11. A full program is being arranged, and the speakers will bring messages of real worth. President Andrews will be the principal speaker for the afternoon session.

Dr. Brown, the host, says, "Bring your dinner and we will furnish plenty of good hot coffee." Following his suggestion we will do just that, and spend the lunch hour together in the church dining room.

Pastors and church officials of Reidsville, Draper, Kernersville and Flat Rock, will please advertise this meeting for us.

J. L. TROLLINGER, Chairman,
Conference Sixth District.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—First Sunday evening, Rev. P. E. Bingham brought us an inspiring message. His topic was, "The Name Was Jesus." While the offering was being taken Mises Mary and Dorothy Green beautifully sang, "The Wonderful Love." At the end of the message the congregation sang "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Sunday morning he brought us another good message. His text was from St. Luke 24:21, But we trusted that it had been He which should have redeemed Israel and beside all this today is the third day since these things were done.

Mrs. C. F. Hawkins, the class leader, held prayer service the first Sunday morning.

Next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock an Easter program will be given. Rev. Bingham said that it could not be arranged so that he could attend.

We are looking forward to having Mr. Les Pittard of High Point College with us at this hour. Folks, let's remember what Easter means. Sure, Christ is risen according to the Scriptures, but must Jesus bear the Cross alone and all the world go free? No, there's a cross for every one. And there's a cross for me.

The C. E. society had a business meeting after a short program Sunday afternoon.

The quarterly conference will be held at Littleton Saturday afternoon before the third Sunday, April 15, 1933.

Mrs. Claude Hawkins, intermediate teacher, is planning a social for her pupils at her home, Friday evening, April 14.

Mr. P. E. Bingham was the guest of Mrs. J. B O'Briant Sunday.

We were glad to have with us to worship Sunday visitors from Hopewell, Va.

Miss Evelyn Hawkins was the week-end guest of Misses Mildred and Lindy Powell.

Sorry to note Miss Bettie Mae Shaw has been very ill.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers, and a happy Easter.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Democrat Charge.—Second quarterly conference was held at Pleasant Gap Saturday afternoon. The business of the conference was conducted in a good spirit, although finances are considerably behind, all the officials left the meeting with a greater determination than before.

I am sure the people in the eastern part of the state are enjoying more spring weather than we are on the western side of the ridge. Some of the early trees are beginning to bud, and it will not be long until things will be looking green, at least we hope so. We prepared our garden early and are waiting until time to plant the seeds. Mrs. Williams, of Mt. Valley, gave us a large bag of onion sets, also did Mr. Melvin Carter, they have been put out and growing nicely. Mr. David Carter gave us a bunch of various kinds of garden seeds. Brother E. G. Cowan, of Weaverville, gave us several different kinds of seeds. Brother Cowan says, "we will garden on halves." That is a good idea. Brother John Clouse and Brother David Carter came over a few days ago and plowed our patches and have them nicely fixed for planting. We had to do a large amount of grubbing and clearing before the plowing could be done, as the parsonage patches and garden had not been worked in years until large trees had grown up in them. We have had quite a bit of work to do around the parsonage this spring, a large amount of rubbish scattered over the grounds, also scrap lumber. In cleaning and cutting briers and bushes we located a grave with a small marble marker. Just above the parsonage under a large honey locust tree, was a little white stone about ten inches high, peeping through the briers, poison ivy and wild grapevine. Around the little grave was blooming the yellow and white Easter Lilies. This grave is where the little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. G. Lowdermilk was laid to rest on December 18, 1905, the time of which Brother Lowdemilk was pastor of this charge. The briers, bushes and vines were cut away, and the little grave is visible again, and the beautiful lilies seem to hold their proud heads higher.

We organized a Sunday school at Democrat last Sunday with 25 members, as the pastor was away in a regular appointment, Mrs. Clyde Carter, took the lead, three classes were formed and officers elected, and the prospets are that we will have a real good Sunday school here. This gives us a Sunday school in all of our churches. We hesitated at Democrat for the reason that we only have 11 members there and thought it impossible to organize, but we are trusting in the Lord for that which we cannot do ourselves. WE MUST go over the top.

We are planning an Easter program at Pensacola and Pleasant Gap, our two strongest churches.

Brother Thad Carter, our Sunday school superintendent at Pleasant Gap, has been very ill for the past week, but we are thankful to Him whom we serve that he was able to be back on his job last Sunday. Miss Dillingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dillingham, of Mt. Valley, underwent an operation a few weeks ago; but has returned to her home and is doing nicely.

We had three additions to our church at Pensacola on our last appointment there. Great interest is being taken in the church at Pensacola. They have a wonderful choir; Mr. Will Allen is director. Mr. Allen is a splendid musical director. Brethren, remember us when you pray.

EARL A. COOK, Pastor.

Kannapolis.—We are very happy; our church is working so nicely this year. We trust it will continue.

We had a wonderful service Sunday, April 9, the Spirit was working in the congregation to a great extent. At this service our pastor, assisted by Mrs. R. T. Sides administered the Lord's Supper to a goodly number of our members and several visitors. On Saturday night, April 8, we ended a week's series of prayer meetings which seemed a blessing to those who had the privilege to attend.

On Tuesday night it was conducted by Mrs. J. G. Lisk at the home of Mrs. M. E. Marlow. On Wednesday night Mr. M. W. Henderson had charge of the service at the home of Mrs. N. F. Harris; then Friday night service was in charge by Mr. J. G. Lisk at the home of Mrs. L. C. Carter on Saturday night ending the series of services Mr. R. T. Sides gave us a splendid sermon while several good spiritual testimonies followed.

On Monday night, April 3, Ladies' Aid Circle No. 1, met with Mrs. G. F. Coble with good attendance; after the business hour refreshments were served by Misses Coleen Lisk, Mary Ella Coble and Mr. G. F. Coble, Jr., which were enjoyed very much.

On Monday night, April 3, Ladies' Aid Circle No. 2, met with Mrs. L. C. Carter with nine members present and two visitors. After the business was finished the social hour was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served by Misses Catheryn Hampton and Zula Carter.

On Easter Sunday the Senior Christian Endeavor will have charge of the Sunrise prayer meeting at the church at 6 o'clock. Everybody is cordially invited.

Services will be conducted by our pastor, Rev. Clarence Morris, on Easter Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. All who desire to join our church by letter or on profession of faith will have the opportunity to do so at this service. This service will be the start of a series of revival services to be conducted in our church for a period of a week or ten days. Rev. J. D. Morris, father of our pastor, will assist him in this work. We desire an interest in all your prayers that this revival will be a blessing to our community and prove a great success to the upbuilding of God's Kingdom.

Midland.—We held our second quarterly conference at Pine Bluff April 2. All churches except Pageland were represented but we are sure that Pageland was there in spirit. Forty miles is a long way for officials to have to travel to attend a quarterly conference. However, we can always count on her to be loyal to the programs of the church. The quarterly conference was interesting and progressive; however, we failed to put across some things that we felt were very essential to the development of the work. Brothers J. A. Jenkins and O. B. Furr were nominated for delegates to the Annual Conference. Both good and capable men.

The various reports were encouraging and the future is promising

We are having increased congregations and other evidences of interest. We have had two additions to the church this month.

Midland is talking Annual Conference and there is a sentiment favorable to inviting it here.

Gibsonville Church.—The Junior Missionary society held its last meeting at the home of the superintendent, Mrs. W. J. Jennings. Little Miss Camille Kivett presided. The Missionary story, "A Hillman and a Pilgrim," was told by Bertha Allred.

The Juniors also furnished the program for the Woman's Auxiliary at their last meeting, this time the story was told by Little Miss Frances Vincent.

The Juniors are planning a cereal shower for the Children's Home. Each member is requested to donate one box of cereal.

Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea, Mrs. W. J. Jennings, and Mrs. K. T. Williams attended the Branch meeting at Winston-Salem last Wednesday.

The Young ladies' Auxiliary will hold the April meeting at the home of Miss Mary Ruth Huffman on Tuesday evening, April 11, at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

The Christian Endeavor social and business meeting was held in the hut, on Wednesday evening of last week. Officers were elected for the next quarter: Misses Hazel Woodard, president; Esquerido Yow, vice-presidnt; Lessie Fawcett, secretary-treasurer; Orpha Burgess, prayer meeting committee; Ruth Huffman, chairman of music committee; and Miss Kellam, chairman Lookout committee.

A special program for Easter under the direction of Miss Ruth Huffman is being prepared, it will be rendered next Sunday morning at 11 a. m. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

We were glad to have Miss Ruth Jones of Burlington, to visit our Christian Endeavor last Sunday evening. REPORTER.

Graham.—Spring is here and nature again is showing wondrous beauty through flowers, trees and birds. These things and the lovely weather seem to call all to church to worhip and thank our Great Creator.

Sunday, April 9, 1933, our pastor, Rev. J. Clyde Auman, brought to us a wondrous message. This was a service of re-dedicating our lives to God and was a beautiful one.

Special effort is being put forth for our Easter service. Sunday morning at 11 o'clock we shall have our regular morning worship with Easter anthems and hymns. Sunday evening at 7:30 we shall have an Easter pageant. We invite you to worship with us.

Our pastor reported that 15 new copies of our M. P. Herald went into our homes this week. We hope more subscriptions will be added soon.

Our Christian Endeavor held its service Sunday at the county home. We meet each second Sunday with the people of the home. We enjoy these meetings very much and consider it a wonderful opportunity. Our Christion Endeavor has held up during the winter months very good. We hope to make much progress in the near future.

A group of young people from our church are making a special effort to attend our Leadership Training school at High Point this year. We have organized a club for this purpose and call ourselves the L. T. S. club. MYRTLE FOUSHEE.

Roberta Charge.—Our Sunday school attendance, which had fallen low during the bad weather, is gaining every Sunday. We hope to soon have 300 or more members which is our usual number of members during the summer months.

Dr. Andrews, the president of the Conference, was a very welcome visitor at our church on April 9th. He delivered a very inspiring sermon at the 11 o'clock service. We hope to have Dr. Andrews come to us again at his convenience.

When our second quarterly conference met in March, Mr. J. B. Hill and Robert Sotton were nominated for delegate to the Annual Conference.

On Easter Sunday morning at 4 a. m. our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, assisted by Rev. Heilig, conducted a sunrise service at our church. A large crowd attended this service and enjoyed it very much. Easter Sunday night an Easter pageant was presented by the young people of our church. Mrs. T. A. Williams and Miss Mae Blackwelder kindly assisted in the preparation of this pageant.

The young people of our church have been organized into a Young People Christian Endeavor Society. They are very much interested in this organization and render a good program every Sunday afternoon.

Mt. Hermon Church.—The Scripture lesson for the day was the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, which was read by the pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry. An Easter program was then given by the children of the church, assisted by Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Louise Holt, Mrs. Coy Thompson and Miss Truth Isley.

Even though it was not a beautiful Easter day we had a good crowd out for the service and they seemed to enjoy the program.

The pastor made a short talk on the first words that Jesus spoke after being nailed to the cross, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Thomasville, First.—As I am up here so near your publishing house I just want to write a few lines and I hope to be able to shake your hand before I go back home. This old paper is dear to me. I have been reading it ever since I was a little girl, and I can't see why so many church members are not reading, but they will say it is too high and all the time they will pay that high price for a daily paper. If I can't get but one, give me my church paper.

I sure was proud of having the opportunity of attending the revival meeting in First Church, Thomasville, and I sure believe we had a God-sent preacher, Rev. Mr. White, from near Statesville. You could tell from the way he acted in church and in the homes that he was walking hand in hand with his Master. One thing that appealed to me was the fact that he had never seen a show of any kind, and has backbone enough to say "no" to that bad habit of using tobacco in any form. He preaches plainly enough to save Thomasville if we will heed his messages. Every sermon was grand; I enjoyed every one, but would have enjoyed them better if my loved ones at home could have been with me. He told of going once in a tannery in the middle of the week and looking on the tired faces of the working men, and then he went again on Saturday. With smiling faces they were receiving their pay. Some had in a whole week, some had in a half week, some just one day and a half. So he said to himself, How many years short are we going to have when that great payday comes? He pleaded with the young people not to keep on losing these precious years, for we never know how many boys and girls are going to hell on the influence of our lives in the years that we spend serving the devil.

As I was going down the street after we came back from church I saw a man with his equipment going out to play golf. I was informed that he is a leader in the church I do not believe that Christ could look down on that man and say he was doing Hiswill.

It means something to be a Christian. It don't mean that we can live for Christ one day and the devil the next. We must hold up Christ every day wherever we may be—at home or abroad, on sea or land. I have seen people that were everything else except being happy, and a Christian ought to be the happiest person in all the world; he is if he is a true child of God. Death is only a dream to God's children. I used to look on death as a terrible thing, but I no longer look on it that way. Sinners rejoice when a big show or any big worldly thing comes in our town, and lots of church members too, but not the Christian, for we are looking and working for that great mansion built without hands. I am praying that the revival may come when the church members' eyes may be opened that they may see plainly that they can't hold on to these worldly things and be children of God. It just can't be done, though we have church members all over the land who will say it is no harm to go to a dance or a picture show, or to play golf or other games on Sunday. If we would just stop for a moment and say to ourselves, If Christ were in our place would He go to the places that we church members go some time. The pastor of the M. E. church of Roanoke Rapids says Wherever you go take Christ first, and where you can't take Him, stay away. I think that is a good idea.

First Church, High Point.—On Good Friday, April 14, an impressive service was conducted in St. Mary's Episcopal church from 12 till 3 o'clock under the sponsorship of the High Point Ministerial Association. Large crowds came and went during the service. Rev. D. W. Allen, rector of the church, presided and made the introductory remarks. Lovely and appropriate music was furnished under direction of Miss Mae Kirkman, organist. The speakers were the following, and they used the last utterances of Jesus on the cross as topics: First word, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," by Dr. A. B. Conrad, of First Baptist church; second word, "Today thou shalt be with me in Paradise," by Rev. F. L. Conrad, of Emmanuel Lutheran church; third word, "Woman, behold thy son, behold thy mother," by Rev. W. R. Shaffer, of First Reformed church; fourth word, "My God! My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" by Rev. R. I. Farmer, of First Methodist Protestant church; fifth word, "I thirst," by Rev. Joseph Peele, of Friends' church, Guilford College; sixth word, "It is finished," by Dr. Joseph Remmie, of the First Presbyterian church; and seventh word, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit," by Rev. G. Ray Jordan, of Wesley Memorial M. E. church. This service is an annual event with the High Point ministers.

On Sunday morning the pulpit was banked with an array of beautiful flowers, composed of Easter lilies, palms, and baskets of white spirea, placed there according to annual custom in memory of a lovely young girl, Evelyn Penny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Penny, who died in February, 1922. Special guests at this service were a number of fine young men belonging to the local order of De Molay, who occupied a reserved section of pews. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an impressive and very helpful sermon on the subject, "The Garden Sepulchre Unoccupied," the last of the series, "Pictures of Jesus from the Garden to Calvary." He said that the Christian's faith is built on the resurrection of a spiritual body. The two great questions confronting all of us today are these: Have we a revealed Saviour, and what is to become of me after death? Unmistakable evidence of the resurrection of Jesus is the presence of Christianity in the world after 2,000 years. There is no sepulchre that will hold Jesus. No church can bury Christ, but He bursts forth from the grave. He can be seen in you and me in our daily lives when we follow Him. Christ is in the world today, and it is impossible to shut Him in a tomb. He is the hope of humanity. What we do in this life determines what will become of us in the life beyond the grave. A beautiful anthem, "The Lord Is Risen From the Dead," was sung by the choir, with solo parts by Lester Teague and Prof. E. B. Stimson accompanying on the organ. At the close of the service the congregation was much pleased to receive Mrs. W. C. Ferree, who comes to us from Wesley Memorial M. E. church. Her husband and son are already members of First church.

At the evening service, the inspiring pageant, "The Lord of Life," by Mattie B. Shannon, was presented by a number of young people of the Sabbath school. This rendition brought forth much praise, and the committee composed of Mesdames L. R. Peacock, J. C. Whitesell, T. R. Ballard, Misses Myrtle Davis and Annabel Thompson deserve much credit for the successful presentation of this pageant. A sweet and impressive feature was a group of eight small girls of pre-school age who, dressed in their "nighties," knelt and said their bed-time prayers while the choir sang "The Garden of Prayer." This pageant is promoted by the Board of Missions, of which Dr. G. W. Hadaway, of Baltimore, is executive secretary.

Miss Myrtle Davis was leader for the Senior C. E. Society meeting on Monday evening on the Easter topic, "If a man die, shall he live again?" Ralph H. Vance is president of the City C. E. Union, which sponsored a sunrise Easter service at the High School Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, and it was well attended despite the rain.

A birthday supper is announced by the Woman's Auxiliary to be served at the church on Friday, April 28th. The tables will be decorated according to the different months of the year, and those whose birthdays fall in those months will be seated together. It is hoped that ages will not be announced, or the attendance may be lessened.

Circle No. 4 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. S. S. Coe, chairman, held a flower plant sale on the church lawn Wednesday morning, April 12, and the sum of $4.00 was realized

A host of friends over the state will learn with deep regret that Capt. A. M. Rankin, beloved layman and leader in First church, is still confined to his bed, but is cheerful and jolly, and enjoys the visits of many friends.

The annual debate between representatives of the Artemesian and Nikanthan literary societies was held last week in Roberts Hall auditorium at High Point College. The query was "Resolved, That the United States Should Enact Legislation Providing for Compulsory Insurance." The Nikanthans upholding the negative, and represented by Misses Edith Lee and Edith Guthrie won over the Artemesians,, who were represented by Misses Alma Andrews and Ira McAdams, Dr. P. E. Lindley presided over the debate, and the judges were Mrs. T. Wingate Andrews, Grover H. Jones, and John Mebane.

High Point College observed Easter holidays, beginning at the close of classes Thursday afternoon, and work was resumed Tuesday morning. The majority of the students made visits to their homes or with friends. The campus presents a lovely appearance now with its setting of green lawn, evergreens, and flowering shrubbery.

Miss Margaret Sloan will be hostess to the Music-Literature department of the Woman's Club on Wednesday at 3:30 o'clock in her studio at High Point College. Associate hostesses will be Misses Ruth Bellamy and Mary E. Young and Mr. G. I. Humphreys.

Mrs. E. G. Braxton, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. P. E. Lindley on Circle Drive.

Mr. L. F. Ferree, who lives on East Green street, is a candidate for alderman from the fourth ward on the Republican ticket in the primary today (Tuesday). He was connected with the Stehli Silk Mill for 13 years, but is now engaged in the insurance business.

Little Miss Doris Koonce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Koonce, was hostess to the Junor Etude Music Club, piano pupils of Miss Mae Kirkman, at its monthly meeting last week at her home on S. Main street. After the program of music was rendered, the little folks were invited to the dining room, where Mrs. Koonce assisted by Mrs. Wofford, served refreshments which included slices from the birthday cake holding ten candles in honor of the little hostess.

Master John Lindley, four-year-old nephew of Dr. and Mrs. P. E. Lindley, who is living temporarily with them, is mascot of the Junior class of High Point College, and gave a toast at the Junior-Senior banquet last week with remarkable ease and grace. This young gentleman's speech brought forth much applause. John is a bright and attractive boy.

Mr. Tyson T. Feree, accompanied by his sister, Miss Bertha, Miss Vera Smith, and some young friends, went to Washington, D. C., to spend the Easter holidays, and will return home through the Shenandoah valley.

Mrs. H. A. Moffitt celebrated her birthday on Easter Sunday, and on Saturday afternoon her daughters, Mrs. Clyde Cox and Mrs. Jack Tucker, honored her with a surprise party at the Moffitt home on North Main street. After a delightful social hour, the guests were served a delicious salad course, and in the dining room the large two-tiered birthday cake was cut by Mrs. Moffitt and served. Those who enjoyed the happy occasion were Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., Mrs. John B. Spencer, Mrs. L. J. Diffee, Mrs. H. U. Oakes, and Mrs. D. A. Neese. An unusual feature of this birthday is the fact that Mrs. Moffitt was born on Easter Sunday, but the anniversary has never fallen on that day until this year, which is quite remarkable.

Mrs. Harriet Trogdon Guire, of Lenoir, N. C., who is First church's oldest member, will on Wednesday, April 19th, celebrate her 91st birthday. She was born in Randoph County on April 19, 1842, was married to the late J. Wesley Guire about 65 years ago, and they made their home near High Point for 45 years. Mr. Guire died in December, 1913, and soon after Mrs. Guire sold the farm and went to Lenoir, N. C., where she has made her home since that time with her two devoted sons, Virgil D. and Jeter C. Guire. Hearty congratulations are extended by a large number of friends here, who remember her with affection and esteem, and who wish for her many happy returns of her birthday. As she looks to the sunset, may faith, hope, and peace abide with her in the fullest measure.

Miss Claire Douglas, of the faculty of Davenport College, Lenoir, N. C., spent the Easter holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Douglas, on Montlieu avenue.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—The preaching service at Pleasant Hill church was conducted by Rev. C. B. Way Sunday morning, April 16. The Scripture lesson was taken from Philippians 3:10, and the subject was "The Resurrection of Christ." The sermon brought back visions of the death and resurrection of Jesus. It proved helpful and instructive to all.

The Missionary Auxiliary was held with Mrs. W. B. Speas last month. The installation of officers was conducted by Mr. W. B. Speas at this meeting. Mrs. R. J. Whitman was installed as president; Mrs. J. F. Hunter, vice-president; Miss Lena Hunter, recording secretary; Mrs. W. B. Speas, corresponding secretary and treasurer.

The April Missionary meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Anderson on Tuesday evening, April 25, with the new officers in charge.

We are expecting a successful year in all church work. REPORTER.

Why Not Charge.—Our second quarterly conference will meet at Seagrove Saturday, April 22nd. Preaching at 11 a. m., dinner on the grounds, and business of the conference afterwards. Those not present for the 11 o'clock service will please be there by 1 p. m., all officials to make written reports. Success of the plan adopted at Love Joy depends upon the officials of the church.

Since last report we have received many gifts of value and we most highly appreciate all these. Improvements have been made at several of the churches, but most improvement has been made at Love Joy. This church leads in the financial interests of the charge. Seagrove has bought out the Baptists, sold their church building and now worship in a tent, looking forward to the erection of a new church.

The Area meeting for Why Not Charge will be held immediately following adjournment of quarterly conference. We urge all who can to be present for this meeting.

G. L. REYNOLDS.

Mebane.—Our Easter programs were well attended despite the rain. The Christian Endeavor Societies held their sunrise service at 6:30. Quite a number took part in the impressive program. These sunrise services have been held for a number of years and are a real inspiration to our young people. The Glee Club of the Eli Whitney School, directed by Miss Edna Nicholson, gave a musical program at the 11 o'clock hour. This program was a delightful one and we hope the visitors will come again. The evening service was prepared by Mrs. George Wyatt and Mrs. Thado Smith. The children did their best in song and recitation. Marie Smith was pianist for this service. We are always glad to have our younger girls begin to take the responsible places in the worship of the church. At this service the Misses Smith, daughters of our pastor, sang a duet. We are always glad to have them visit with us and help in the music. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Foust, Mr. and Mrs. Lindley, Mr. Woody, Mr. Pegg and Mr. and Mrs. Harris, of Saxapahaw, at our morning service. Mr. Fletcher Smith has been very sick for the past two weeks and is not much improved. Mrs. J. E. Foust has been ill but is improving satisfactorily. Quite a number of our ladies attended the Branch meeting in Winston. Each of them came home with renewed enthusiasm and interest in the work of our denomination.

We were glad to have our girls that are away teaching worship with us. Miss Lillian Williams, of Thomasville; Miss Alta Allen, of Southmont; Miss Bessie Barnette, of Greensboro, and Miss Edna Nicholson, of Saxapahaw, spent Easter with their parents and added to our services. Mrs. C. I. Smith visited in High Point this past week. Mr. Hubert Sykes, of Washington, D. C., is visiting his sister, Mrs. A. H. Jobe.

Zion, Liberty Charge.—On the first Sunday Rev. Fred R. Love, our pastor, brought to us an excellent sermon on the subject, "Resurrection."

Saturday night, April 15, we gave an Easter program which consisted of motion songs, recitations, drills and pantomime. It was enjoyed by all who were present.

Sunday school every Sunday at 10 o'clock and preaching on the first Sunday in each month at 11 o'clock. Come!

Spring Church Charge.—Spring church and Pleasant Hill observed Easter, each having a well attended, and splendid service. The Lebanon program was called off on account of the weather till the fifth Sunday. The service at Spring church on Easter day reached its climax in the christening of two infants by the writer. They were Trilby Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tucker, and John Millan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Len Glover.

Miss Catherine Crew, Miss Virginia and Mr. James Masesy were home from college Easter.

Those reported sick in our last letter are improving. Wm. H. NEESE.

Shiloh.—Rev. R. S. Troxler delivered his third and concluding sermon today, Easter Sunday, on "The Way of the Cross." It is the old, old story that is ever new and precious.

Tonight a pleasing Easter program was given by the small children, with the music furnished by the choir.

On each night last week pre-Easter services of a revival nature were held at Shiloh. Though the attendance was not so large, the sermons by Bro. Troxler were inspiring and helpful.

On last Sunday, during the lesson period, it was noticed that flames were breaking through the roof of Mr. Albert Michaels' house, which is in sight of the church. The men rushed to the burning building and removed some of the contents from the rapidly burning structure. Mr. Michael, who has been sick for several weeks, was moved from the burning building to safety. So rapidly did the house burn that in a very short time it was reduced to embers and ashes. Our sympathy is extended to the family, who have been forced to give up the house that has been home to them for so many years. Today Mr. Michael is critically ill.

Mr. Numa Leonard, a member of the Brotherhood class, was unable to attend Sunday school last Sunday, but was improved enough that he came today, we are glad to report. Bro. Leonard is having his teeth extracted and that is far from being a pleasant undertaking for him. However, we hope he will be much improved when it is finished.

Fred, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Berrier, arrived Easter Sunday morning to spend Sunday and Monday with homefolks. We were delighted to have you home again, Fred, and are glad that our home boys continue to love home.

Prayer meeting will be conducted on next Sunday by the women of the church led by Miss Emma Berrier. All are cordially invited to be there.

Are you thinking about "Home-Coming Sunday" for the third Sunday in May. Well, we are, and we are hoping you can be there.

Hope, Siler City Charge.—Although I am not reporter for our church now I am going to take it upon myself to write anyway, as our newly-elected reported has failed so far to let us hear from her. We hope that we shall hear from her soon.

Our work has been moving along very nicely this year. Our pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, has been bringing us very helpful messages each service. Most of the services have been well attended, although some have been kept away on account of sickness and providential hindrances. We all like Mr. and Mrs. Isley very much, and the better we know them the more we like them. We feel that he is not only a good preacher, but a good pastor, and interested in the whole program of the church and the up-building of the kingdom.

Young People's Day was observed in February and on the first Sunday night in March. The C. E. Society of Siler City presented in our church a splendid program which was greatly enjoyed by all. The second Sunday in April was Membership Day. A good crowd was present but not as many as we had hoped for. The Lord's supper was observed at this service. The second quarterly conference was held with this church on Friday evening, April 7. Nominees for delegate to Annual Conference were elected.

The Woman's Auxiliary has been re-organized, with Mrs. D. T. Vestal, president; Mrs. F. C. McDowell, secretary, and Miss Kara Andrew, treasurer. We regret the fact that we did not have a representative at the Branch Meeting this year.

The attendance at our Sunday school has not been so large this winter, but the interest is good, and we hope with the coming of spring and summer it will grow in numbers.

There has been right much sickness among our members this winter, especially the older ones. Mrs. Mary K. Hanner, W. H. Andrew and J. J. Andrew have been sick but all are improving and some are able to be back at church again. Mr. C. C. Routh has also been quite sick, but is some better now, but is still confined to his room. We hope that he may soon be out again.

On last Sunday evening an Easter service was held. Several selections were rendered by the children and young people, and appropriate music by the choir. This was followed by a most timely discourse by the pastor. The service was pronounced by many as one of the best we have had in some time.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Barker, of Bonlee, N. C., unite with our church by letter. We hope there are others who will join soon.

Best wishes to the Herald and all its readers. A MEMBER.

Asheville.—Although the attendance at services through the winter has been unusually good, the opening of the spring season promises a growth which will probably exceed our expectation. For the past three Sundays the attendance at Sunday school has been over 100, which has been our goal for a number of years.

The Fawcette Bible class continues to grow and to hold the interest of the members. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner entertained the class for the April business and social meeting. Rev. J. S. Williams was present and made a hort talk. Twenty-four members enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Hanner.

The Intermediate Department of the Sunday school under Miss Margaret Fawcette, and the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society with Mrs. C. B. Baker as superintendent show remarkable interest. "The Children of the Way," an Easter pageant, was presented Sunday evening, April 9, by the two groups, and was very impressive and beautiful.

The young people of the church participated in the city-wide sunrise prayer service which was held at Beaver Lake Easter morning. Over 300 persons were in attendance.

The young ladies' class had charge of the closing of Sunday school Sunday and presented "The Changed Cross," a short floral exercise in which a wire cross was transformed into a beautiful cross of flowers as each class in Sunday chool presented bouquets. The flowers were taken to shut-ins after the service. The program was in charge of the social service committee of the class of which Miss Louise Hanner is chairman.

At the 11 o'clock hour Rev. Mr. Carroll delivered his Easter message on "Signs of the Resurrection." At the conclusion, nine new members were received into church membership, two of these being by letter. Two infants were also baptized at this time.

The Pageant-Drama, "Release," by Dorothy Clarke Wilson was presented at 8 o'clock Sunday evening to a large audience. The play was highly dramatic and the characters very vividly portrayed the scene prior to the releasing of Barabbas to the mob. The role of Barabbas was taken by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, and assisting him were the following: Miss Fanny Miller, Miss Nancy Clouse, M. A. Stringer, D. J. Eller, Howard Carter, Guy Allison, and William Orr. Mr. C. B. Barber had charge of special lighting effects.

The Junior C. E. business meeting for March was held at the home of Billy and Jack Bailey. After the business session an egg-hunt was enjoyed by the group. The junior society rejoices that its dream of beautifying the church lawn has been realized. Through the co-operation of Mr. E. C. Fawcette, Mr. T. L. Pratt, Mr. D. J. Eller, Mr. J. W. Boling, Rev. J. E. Carroll and Mr. D. E. Kimberly, a neighbor, the lawn has been re-surfaced, seeded, silver-leaf maples planted, and shrubs added.

Three departmetnts of the Sunday school, Primary, Junior, and Intermediate, were guests of their teachers at an egg-hunt at Montford Park Friday, April 14. Teachers assisting were Mrs. E. A. Bolick, Miss Mary Waters, Miss Estelle Swain, Mr. C. B. Baker, and Miss Margaret Fawcette.

"The Lost Church," a drama which met with such marked success has been given at the Weaverville M. P. church, Oakley Baptist, and is scheduled for Balfour, Mills River, West Asheville Presbyterian, and Leicester High School. This makes a total of 11 churches which have sponsored the play. It has a splendid moral and has not failed to grip an audience wherever it has been given.

The young ladies' class held a birthday party recently for a group of its members at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H.Pratt. Thirty-two young people attended and enjoyed an evening of progressive games, including jig-saws, hearts, and keno.

The Woman's Auxiliary met in March at the home of Mrs. Y. D. Eller. A nominating committee was named for selecting a slate of officers for the ensuing year. The treasurer reported the Auxiliary budget paid in full. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed. Assiting Mr. Eller were Mrs.W. D. Duncan and Mrs. Ashton.

Rev. Mr. Carroll was speaker on Wednesday of Holy Week at the Imperial Theatre. These services were sponsored by the various churches of the city.

Miss Josie McNeill, of High Point College, spent Easter with her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McNeill.

Misses Mary Margaret and Helen Bates, of Greensboro, worshipped with us last Sunday.

Mr. Forrest Taylor spent the holidays with his mother, Mrs. M. H. Taylor on Coleman avenue.

Mrs. H. O. Charnock was welcomed back to our services after a prolonged illness.

First Church, Concord.—The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 328. It being Easter, some of our folks were out of town for the holidays. A right good crowd was present for the preaching service and our pastor gave us a good sermon on the resurrection, using for his scripture lesson the 15th chapter of I Corinthians. We were favored with a duet by Miss Agnes Litaker and Miss Eunice Smith. The Easter pageant was put on Sunday night and eevrybody enjoyed the whole program. A large crowd was present and all seemed to be sorry the program was so short. Mrs. Ernest Litaker and Mrs. Frtd Sides are due much credit and praise for the fine program. Those taking part in the pageant were as follows: Mrs. Fred Sides, Miss Pauline Smith, Alice Little, Ruth Burris, Katherine Teeter and Agnes Litaker. Misses Virginia Burris, Ida Smith, Helen Ashby, Lillie Belle Johnson, Myrtle Cartrett, Olen Smith, Eugene Lefler and Jack Fry. Small girls were Louise Bassinger, Juanita Morgan, Grace Mann, Willie Rea Smith, Evelyn Bassinger, Melda Scarboro, Doris Little and Iris Burris.

Little Wyane Davis recited a piece and little Jeanette Litaker recited the welcome piece and little Catherine Blackwelder recited the offring piece. Miss Mildred Burris and Miss Mary Lillie Nash sang a duet. The Junior choir sure did sing those Easter songs. If we could just get the Senior choir to cooperate as well as the Juniors do we would have some real good singing.

We were glad to welcome Mrs. Wade Little into our church membership last Sunday. Our pastor also baptized little Bobby Helms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Helms, and little Patsy Sides, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sides. This was a very sweet service and the beautiful flowers in the church Sunday added much to our Easter services.

On last Wednesday night Mr. Tom Rabon had charge of the Wednesday night prayer meeting and he made a wonderful talk that ought to do in all much good. Mr. Rabon was converted several years ago in the Baraca class and joined the church and he has been a live wire ever since. We don'tsee how we got along without him before he was converted.

Pleasant Gap, Democrat Charge.—Our Sunday school is still growing both in attendance and interest. On Easter Sunday evening at 2:30 o'clock our Sunday school members presented an Easter program which was enjoyed by everyone.

Several people from Pleasant Gap went to preaching services at Democrat Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. A wonderful sermon was delivered on the subject, "The Risen Christ."

Some of the Pleasant Gap choir are going to help the Democrat choir to sing. They are now practicing for the fifth Sunday evening convention at French Broad, N. C.

We were glad to see our superintendent, Mr. Thad Carter, who has been ill for some time, back with us Sunday, both in Sunday school and Easter services.

Mrs. Robert Edwards, a member who lives at Asheville, N. C., has been very sick, but is improving rapidly. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edwards are in charge of the Boys' Training School, Buncombe County.

Denton.—Mrs. Mittie Mitchell and Mrs. John Mitchell were joint hostesses to the Ladies' Aid Society Monday night, April 3. A large crowd attended and a very interesting program was enjoyed by all. Mrs. A. L. Hill, chairman of the program committee, sponsored the program and chose for her subject, "Our Duty to the Church." Each one was given a Bible verse to ready concerning the church. After the scripture we prayed together the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Hill made a very impressive talk on the subject. Helen and Marjorie Cranford sang a song entitled, "Never Leave Jesus Behind."

After the program, the business meeting was held, Mrs. B. L. Morris, presiding. Among the things discussed were painting and replastering the church inside, improving the church grounds and carpeting the floor.

Everyone was asked to give her opinion as to how we could make some money. One member suggested that the Society sponsor a program by Cliff Carlisle and Fred Kirby. We got in touch with them and they decided to come Thursday night, April 13th. They will present their program in the High School auditorium. Admission will be 10 and 25 cents.

We regret very much that a few of our members were absent on account of illness. Among them were Mrs. George Haltom and Mrs. W. E. Hill. We missed their presence and hope they will all be enjoying health again real soon and can meet with us at our next meeting which will be held at Mrs. Rogers, May 8th.

Mount Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—Our Sunday school is functioning on "all four" now ad our attendance is growing every Sunday. Supt. W. E. Jones, is working hard and has created quite a bit of enthusiasm by his recent contest, dating from April 2, and continuing until Christmas. The contest is this: The teacher of every class that has the highest average that has not missed a Sunday for the three-quarter period providing also that the teacher of said class does not become an absentee over one time every month. Those that do this will get a present, and if the teacher misses over one Sunday per month the next best class walks off with the "candy." Of courhe in a case of a tie, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Mrs. E. G. Mickey, teacher of the adult Ladies' Class, has also put on a contest in her class. For everyone that knows the golden text every Sunday for three monthh she is giving a nice present. We hope and expect this to be our biggest year.While we can't finance the church as it should be, we surely can give our time, talent and prayers.

We had intended giving an Easter program Saturday night, April 15, but sickness got in our midst and made necessary an indefinite postponement, for which we are truly sorry. Also our services and Sunday school will be at a standstill for an indefinite period.

The church grounds and cemetery at New Zion are beginning to take on a new appearance since the Red Cross has stepped in and distributed funds to the needy in the form of labor.

The following births have been recorded: To Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Mickels, a daughter, Lettie Caroleen, February 14, 1933; to Mr. and Mrs. Otis H. Rierson, a son, O. H., Jr., April 6, 1933; on March 14, 1933, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stone was made glad by the arrival of a son, Roy Kenneth Stone.

Welch Memorial, High Point.—Easter with us was rather a "damp" one and our congregations at both serviceh were smaller than usual. But we had a splendid sermon by the pastor and communion service Sunday morning. Then in the evening the Christian Endeavor gave a pageant which was very good.

Quite a few of our people were spending the holidays or the day with homefolks and acquaintances out of town.

So many of our people who are out of work are leaving town. Since Christmas, Mr. I. B. Ridge, Mr. H. H. Kivett, Mr. C. R. Mickey and Mr. James Leazer with their families have moved to the country. These were some of our best workers and we feel the loss keenly. Hope work will soon improve so that they may come back. Then death took Bro. J. W. Brower, one of the best and most faithful members we had. If he were not in his place on Sunday morning we were certain he or some of his family were sick.

Mrs. Francis Epps Stewart also has recently died. Her health was such that she had not been able to attend lately but was faithful up till then. We cannot understand why these things come but know "He doeth all things well."

We held our second quarterly conference recently. Our reports at first glance look bad and discouraging, but then when we begin to count up the number who have work we wonder how it can be so good. The people try to keep encouraged and work faithfully even though we have no money. And the sermons of Dr. Williams are truly food for the soul and encouraging to us all.

Thomasville, First.—Rev. H. L. Powell, in the absence of our pastor, filled the pulpit on the first Sunday. He preached for both morning and evening services. Bro. Powell was a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Teague.

The morning service on the second Sunday was of unusual interest, this being known as family day in First church. Many families were represented 100 per cent. The largest family, with all members present, was that of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Jarret, eight. As a token of appreciation, Rev. Madison presented the Jarret family with a Bible. Following the presentation of this Bible the choir sang "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?"

The Woman's Auxiliary held an interesting and enthusiastic meeting on Thursday evening, the 6th, meeting at the home of Mrs. Wilson Myers. The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Treva Lloyd. A splendid report from the annual branch meeting, in Winston-Salem, was given by Mrs. A. H. Ragan. Mrs. L. R. Pearson, of Roanoke Rapids, who is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. T. Glenn Madison, was a welcome visitor.

A pre-Easter revival was held with Rev. Grady White as pulpit help. We feel that this was a very profitable meeting. Attendance was good at all services, and Rev. Mr. White's messages were of unusual interest and filled with spiritual food. His coming brought a great blessing to our church.

An Easter program was given Sunday at 7:30. This entertainment was provided by the children of the Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. Sina Westmoreland.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

In a meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Conference and of the Executive Committees of the Board of Missions and the Board of Christian Education, along with the treasurer of the General Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., March 30, 1933, the following paper, submitted by the Executive Committee of the General Conference, was unanimously approved:

"The Executive Committee of the General Conference was requested by the Executive Committee of the Board of Missions and of the Board of Christian Education to review the operation of the World Service Budget and its distribution during the past year with the thought of recommending such adjustments, as in their judgment, would contribute to the unification of all of our forces and efforts and program.

"To that end we recommend that the income from the 'Six Special Days,' designated by the General Conference, go directly to the Board for which it was raised, without being subject to the 67-33 percent basis of distribution.

"All other income from the church and its organizations, entered as a credit on the World Service apportionment of the local church shall be subject to the above basis of distribution.

"We further recommend that the expenses of each of the special day programs shall be paid by the Board issuing the program.

"We also recommend that the expenses of the Women's Department of the Board of Missions, incident to the promotion of their program, be shared by the Board of Missions and the Board of Christian Education, up to $1,000, on a two thirds and a one-third basis.

"These recommendations are to become operative May 1, 1933.

"We further recommend that these two Boards carefully review their overhead expenses, with a view to making drastic reductions in keeping with our reduced income, and that these reductions be reported to this Executive Committee in its annual meeting in May.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Woodruff

Funeral service for James Woodruff was held from Lebanon church, March 20, where for many years he had been a member. For several months Mr. Woodruff had been in declining, health, gradually growing worse until the end. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. A large congregation attended the service.

Among his immediate survivors are his wife and six children. These children speak in the highest praise of their father. It would be a source of joy to him to know that they call him blessed.

The writer was assisted in the service by Rev. Mr. Fountain of Weldon, and Rev. Mr. Starnes of Roanoke Rapids.

MARRIED

Kirkpatrick- Lashley

A beautiful marriage was celebrated at the home of the writer, Thursday, Apirl 6, 1933, 2:30 p. m., when Gladys Lashley became the bride of Howard Kirkpatrick, with just a few intimate friends and relatives present, the writer performing the ceremony.

Both bride and groom are members of Fountain Place Methodist Protestant church, having joined early this Conference year, the groom coming from Hebron Methodist Protestant church, the bride from Front Street M. E. church, Burlington. They are both active members of our congregation, and they begin life together with the best wishes and prayers of all of our folks at Fountain Place. The young people appreciate the interest they have shown in their particular phase of the work since coming into our membership.

Mr. Kirkpatrick is connected with the Plaid mill while his bride is an efficient saleslady with the Dollar Store in Burlington. They will keep house at 808 West Davis street, where they will be at home to their many friends after this week.

Our prayers and best wishes go with this deserving couple as they begin life together, that they may continue the good work begun in the Kingdom of Christ, and that the blending of their lives may mean a greater influence for good as well as their own happiness.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

—Prof. T. C. Amick is a special student in the State University in the courses of Religious Education and Mathematics.

DO YOU WANT THE HERALD TO CONTINUE?

We are sure you are saying, YES. But just that won't keep it going. It will take some action on your part. You can help by doing three things:

1. Raise your quota of HERALD Subscriptions as soon as possible. If your HERALD agents were active last year, ask them to continue. If not, appoint others, and send names to E. L. Douglas, High Point, N. C. Work out a quota for each of your churches.

2. Raise the amount suggested for the HERALD Subsidy. The scale is as follows:

Churches with less than 100 members contribute	$ 2.50
Churches whose membership is from 101 to 200	5.00
Churches whose membership is from 201 to 300	7.50
Churches whose membership is from 301 to 400	10.00
Churches whose membership is from 401 to 500	15.00
Churches whose membership is more than 500	20.00

3. Keep the HERALD before your folks and especially inform them of the need of supporting the paper.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XXXIX GREENSBORO, N. C., APRIL 27, 1933 NUMBER 23

A Sinner's Prayer

When blindness comes and I forget,
When truth's obscured and mind upset,
When lost to me the way I sought,
I pray Thee, Lord, forsake me not!

When I'm misled by spirit ill
And find myself far down the hill,
Pursuing way of drunken sot,
I pray Thee, Lord, forsake me not!

When chains of sin my feet do bind
And help can't come from human kind,
And all the world bewails my lot,
I pray Thee, Lord, forsake me not!

Have I profaned Thy Holy Name
And lost myself in utter shame?
Have all Thy precepts been forgot?
I pray Thee, Lord, forsake me not!

"Ye Are My Friends, If"

If a small word, but as used here and elsewhere, very significant—it raises a question of great importance. It calls for assurance, for proof. There was no doubt as to the friendship of Jesus for the Twelve—that gracious fact was clearly evident. He had taken them into his confidence, opened his heart to them and lavished upon them sympathy and affection. He had called them to service but not to slavish servitude. The task assigned them could not be accomplished by formal interest and industry. So, while they called him Lord, he would not call them servants but friends, "for a servant knoweth not what his lord doeth." His only to obey under the necessity of authority and force. "I have called you friends: for all things that I have heard of my father I have made known unto you." His own purpose, for which his life was given he frankly and clearly made known to them. He had the right to command them, but he would rest his appeal upon their affection and loving devotion. As friend to friend he speaks. But their devotion and response to his confidence will only be evidenced through acceptance of his will and loyalty to his purpose and command. By following his program we gain the right and honor of being called the friends of Jesus.

It was a high distinction Abraham gained to be called a "friend of God."

How the disciples met the challenge of the Lord is creditable history. The showing made at the beginning of the record is disappointing. Judas shamefully betrayed the Master, and goes into darkness. Peter denies his Lord but finds his way back to him through tears and a broken heart. Most of them proved their loyalty and worth.

And now, after the passing of the centuries, "this same Jesus' stands before every church at the North Carolina Conference and every pastor with the searching question, Are ye doing whatsoever I have commanded you? Let us not answer too quickly or thoughtlessly but prayerfully. A great name is offered us, a friend of Jesus. No higher honor or greater distinction can be won. But to win it means to be a good soldier and count not your life dear unto yourself. To win Christ is infinitely more than to win fame or position or gold. It is to win resurrection, life and immortality, with him! To show our friendship for our Lord we must now and ever be seeking the things that are above, where he sitteth at the right hand of God.

Trends in Religion

The Book asserts that in the beginning God made man in His own image. Commenting upon this affirmation someone has aptly said, "and ever thereafter man has been attempting to change the process and make God in his image." Certainly this has been the major drift of the present age: until, at length, we may truly say that we have humanized God. This is our outstanding contribution to the religious ideal of our age.

Temporarily, the achievement brought to us great success and much satisfaction. It promoted and standardized a moral concept which produced wealth at the expense of character, questioned all restraint, idolized self-expression, and made shrewdness rather than integrity the norm of life. Further, to humanize God greatly simplified all the major problems of the church: in a word, Christianity becomes a philosophy rooted in man rather than a religion rooted in God; human nature something to be worshiped rather than something to be changed. Finally, it permits us to dispense with such bulky words as repentance, forgiveness, regeneration, justification, adoption and so on ad infinitum.

We are due a swing in the opposite direction from which will ultimately come a finer morale and a more God-like interpretation of life and religion. In the meantime we are like men who attempt to lift themselves by their own bootstraps, so to speak. The harder we pull the deeper we go in the mud. The church was established not upon the humanity but upon the divinity of Jesus. A God that is human may get us in a ditch but he can never get us out.

H. F. Fogleman.

PROGRESS REPORTED

Good news comes from several of the young people's choirs recently organized. They are progressing enthusiastically. Here are a few extracts from a letter received recently:

"We have organized a young people's choir in our church. I don't think anything we have ever done has called forth as much praise." "Of course we are planning to go to High Point this summer." "The choir sang for the first time two weeks ago. They must have done unusually well in their first appearance, since they have been invited to change one night with the Baptist choir and to sing in one of our rural churches."

Some questions have been asked. Maybe brief answers here will help others who have organized choirs.

1. How to interest the young men? Answer: The young ladies in the choir ought to be able to do that. Some of the young men are timid; if they can sing at all, make them realize that by practice they can improve their singing and become valuable additions to the choir. Help them to see that church choir singing is a vital part of the worship service, and that they will be thus serving their Lord and the church in a definite effective way.
2. Are the choirs supposed to sing one of the numbers published in the HERALD? Answer: Not necessarily; they may choose what they please.
3. Is the directress allowed to sing? Answer: Certainly.
4. Must everybody in the choir be under twenty-four? Answer: Preferably, for these are young people's choirs.
5. Are vestments allowed? Answer: Vestments will be an improvement.
6. Of course, an accompanist is allowed? Answer: It is much better for each choir to have its own accompanist.

Are there any other questions you would like to ask? Don't hesitate to write, and I shall answer them to the best of my ability. E. LESTER BALLRAD.

THE EMMAUS WAYFARERS

Authorities located the ancient village of Emmaus seven miles Southwest of Jerusalem. All that is known of the two wayfarers is found in the slight reference of Mark, and the fuller account of Luke. Tradition casts no further light on them, that is trust-worthy. There is absolutely no grounds for the assumption that the unnamed traveler was Luke himself. The Scriptures make it plain that neither was of the twelve.

It was just like Jesus to draw near, and join in with the sad-hearted, disappointed travelers on their way to Emmaus. The comforting Christ will in no wise fail, nor forsake His own in their trials, failures, and sufferings. He was seen among the Hebrew children in the fiery furnace. King Nebuchadnezar answered, "Lo, I see four men loose, walking in he midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the aspect of the fourth is like the Son of God." Hejoined the company of tired, weary fishermen, who had toiled all night, and taken nothing; and transformed their failures into abundant success. He is exhorting multitudes today, not to let their hearts be troubled nor fearful. The Christ, who joined these Emmaus wayfarers, and joined Dr. E. Stanley Jones in his journeys through Indian, will gladly accompany His disciples on all the roads of the world. "Lo, I am with you always."

Jesus both joined with them in their travels, and in their conversation. At first, they were amazed at His lack of familiarity with the overshadowing things that had recently happened in Jerusalem. They rebuked Him for not being better informed. Jesus rebuked these wayfarers because of their dullness in understanding the prophets; and their slowness of heart in believing the first messengers of the Resurrection. He could easily excuse them for not recognizing Him at first; but their dullness of intelligence, and slowness of heart were inexcusable. With the resurrected Lord in their company, their plight was not what they had imagined.

Finally, Jesus was known to them in the breaking of the bread, and then vanished out of their sight. The conscious presence of the living Christ revived their dead hopes, and created within them a new spirit of expectancy. Their sad, down-cast hearts were set on fire, and they hastened to Jerusalem that very hour, and reported their experiences to the twelve. Their hearts, feet and tongues were all effected. When John Wesley's heart was "strangely warmed," it dawned on him that the world must be saved for Jesus Christ and His Kingdom. Christ today desires warm hearts to love Him, and afford Him an abiding place; feet to run errands of love and mercy for Him; and tongues to witness for Him. Perhaps, there is no greater service that Christians can render today than just to rededicate, and reconsecrate their hearts, and their feet, and their tongues to their resurrected Lord.

W. A. LEDFORD.

THE LOYALTY LEAGUE

Any one of the three purposes of the Loyalty League should be sufficient to interest and to secure the co-operation of every true Methodist Protestant in the North Carolina Conference; for each of these purposes is no more than the carrying out of the pledge that we each made with God and the church when we joined the church.

Loyalty is defined as the state of being loyal; and to be loyal means to be true to some cause worthy of fidelity. Certainly the cause that should and does come first with every true Christian is the cause of the Kingdom of God. There are many parts to this cause—the Home church interests, the Missionary interests, and the Educational interests are some of these parts.

We of the North Carolina Conference are right now called on to prove our loyalty to the cause of Christ by giving our whole-hearted support to the Loyalty League movement. No chain is stronger than its weakest link; and our church can only be as strong and substantial as its various interests are strong.

Our College should be one of the strongest links in our Conference, but it cannot be strong unless all Methodist Protestants in North Carolina are willing to help carry its responsibilities. This is not the College of a few people of the Conference, nor of the trustees, nor of the faculty; but it is the College of even the smallest and humblest member of every church.

It is not just that our Board of Education nor those chosen by us to operate the College nor any few men of the denomination should have to carry the whole burden. The Loyalty League makes it possible for even the smallest child to have its share in bearing these burdens. This League has been worked out by the Committee for the Board of Education to relieve the immediate financial stress of the Board; and every Methodist Protestant should do his part to put over the plan as worked out.

I wonder how many of us have taken the time and trouble to study these plans and to try to do our part in their operation? If we don't know all about the League, we should make it our business to learn about it, and then make it our business to do our part by enrolling as members of the League, paying what we feel we are able to pay. Wouldn't it be a glorious thing for every Methodist Protestant in North Carolina to be pulling together on this?

Let's all get together and make it go!

THE SAVIOUR IS THE JUDGE

Some years ago, a man driving a spirited team of horses, lost control of the team. As they dashed through the streets, a distinguished judge sprang out, caught the bridle-rein, and at the risk of his own life saved the man who was driving. By a singular coincidence this same man was on trial for his life some little time after, before the judge who had rescued him.

When the trial was over and the lawyers had made their plea, then the judge addressed the prisoner, saying: "Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?"

And the man, trembling, arose and said: "Your honor, don't you know me?"

And when told that he must speak on, and not address the judge, he again said: "But, your Honor, don't you know I am the man you saved? Have mercy."

And the judge replied: "I do remember you, but then I was your saviour, and today I am your judge, and must pass sentence."

And if you have sinned against the Saviour of men, some day you must face Him in judgment.—Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman.

SHALL WE ELIMINATE THE SUPERNATURAL?

There seems to be a tendency on the part of many at the present time to eliminate from the Christian religion everything that pertains to the supernatural. Those things that cannot be reasoned out in logical lines are discarded. Many of the miracles of Jesus are explained away. The words "sin" and "conversion" and "hell" have almost vanished from the vocabulary of some. Jesus seems to be held up by some simply as an example and not the propitiation for sin. Many of the things for which our fathers stood and taught are not stressed. If all this continues what will become of the church? "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?"

YOUTH

Youth is not a time of life—it is a state of mind. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions; it is a freshness of the deep springs of life.

Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite of adventure over love of ease. This often exists in the man of fifty more than in the boy of twenty.

Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old only by deserting their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. Worry, doubt, self-distrust—these are the long, long years that bow the head and turn the growing spirit back to dust.

Whether seventy or sixteen, there is in every being's heart the love of wonder, the sweet amazement of the stars and the starlike things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing child-like appetite for what next, and the joy and the game of life.

You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair.

In the central place of your heart there is a wireless station; so long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, courage, grandeur and power from the earth, from man and from the Infinite, so long are you young. When the wires are all down and all the central place of your heart is covered with the snows of pessimism and the ice ofcynicism, then are you grown old indeed and may God have mercy on your soul.—Anonymous.

A WORD FOR TRIED ONES

A blacksmith, about eight years after he had given his heart to God, was approached by an intelligent unbeliever with the question: "Why is it you have so much trouble? I have been watching you. Since you joined the Church and began to 'walk square' and seem to love everybody, you have twice as many trials and accidents as you had before. I thought that when a man give himself to God, his troubles were over. Isn't that what the parsons tell us?"

With a thoughtful but glowing face the blacksmith replied: "Do you see this piece of iron? It is for the springs of a carriage. I have been 'tempering' it for some time. To do this I heat it red-hot and then plunge it into a tub of ice-cold water. This I do many times. If I find it taking 'temper', I heat and hammer it unmercifully. In getting the right piece of iron I found several that were too brittle, so I threw them in the scrap-pile. Those scraps are worth about a cent a pound. This carriage spring is very valuable."

He paused and his listener nodded. The blacksmith continued: "God saves us for something more than to have a good time—that's the way I see it. We have the good time all right, for God's smile means heaven; but He wants us for service just as I want this piece of iron. And He has put the 'temper' of Christ in us by testing us with the trial." Ever since I saw this I have been saying to Him, "Test me in any way you choose, Lord, only don't throw me in the scrip-pile!"—Selected.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

The Purpose of the Stewards' Area Meeting

The object of these meetings should be obvious to all, but lest there should be some mistake, I want to say that the purpose of the meetings is to secure a fuller enlistment of the stewards of the church in financing the church. The duty and privilege of financing the local church and by it the entire denomination, in so far as this local church is concerned, is with the stewards. If they are faithful, church-loving, God-fearing men and women, the most that the pastor will need to do to help them will be to pass on to them the best methods he knows for carrying their part of the church work and encouraging the people to co-operate with them in the consummation of these plans.

But if they are not church-loving, God-fearing people, then the task should be committed to other hands as speedily as possible. More churches fail to raise their budgets because of faithless, indifferent stewards, than from the lack of means of the members.

But knowing there are many stewards who do not know best to perform their tasks but who want to do it, we have planned this meeting to help them; those who want to learn, who have a mind to work. It is of such as these that the kingdom of heaven is composed, and by such as these that our churches are going to be lifted out of this pit of failure into which they have fallen.

The proposed plan is to have reports from all stewards as to how much has been raised for the year on all claims; second, let them tell how they did it; third, let them say how much of the remaining budgets they expect to raise by the meeting of the Annual Conference and what methods they expect to employ in doing this. When these have all spoken, then there should be an earnest appeal made to fuller enlistment in the work of the Lord, emphasizing some phase of stewardship. The meeting should close at the altar, all officials present meeting and kneeling there in an earnest prayer of consecration.

Some More Meetings Scheduled

Rev. T. M. Johnson is planning the meeting in his area for the first Sunday in May. Rev. Edward Suits has set the second Sunday in May for their meeting, to be held at Gray's Chapel at 2 p.m. Rev. E. A. Bingham will have their meeting on the third Sunday in May, an all-day service at Chapel Hill church, Davidson charge. At Saxapahaw the third Sunday is the time and place set for the meeting held by Chairman B. M. Williams. Others are planning for their meetings, and announcements will be made at an early date.

Co-operation Needed

In these as in all other conference activities there must be co-operation on the part of our workers to bring success. There is no plan, however wisely conceived, that can be of value except those for whom it was conceived shall willingly co-operate in carrying out the details of it.

There is certainly much need for a fuller enlistment in all the forms of conference activities in our District. A pastor was recently told when he desired to carry out one of the General Conference requirements that his church needed to keep all the money raised there at home; not send out any. Of course this layman did not see beyond his own local interest and did not see much in that, for until we see that our local claims are tied up indissolubly with the far-flung lines of our church projects we have not seen the real value of the local interest.

No church can be much of a church and live unto itself any more than a man can be much of a man and live unto himself. This idea of local preservation has grown into a localitis that is destroying the extremities of our church life and fast approaching the heart of the whole denomination. We have faith in these area meetings, that they possess much value, but most of it inheres in this idea of a fuller co-operation in the work of the entire church.

Saxapahaw Charge, Rev. W. M. Loy, Pastor

I visited Saxapahaw, Salem and Concord churches on this work, taking them in the order just stated.

Saxapahaw church building is a union church in which our Methodist Episcopal, South, brethren worship also. The building has been added to from time to time, until only the front part of it does not have Sunday school rooms. More recently additional rooms were built, thus making it possible for the beginners, primary, etc., departments to have separate rooms for their meeting places and thus enhanced the good results of their services. We were greatly pleased with this. The attendance at the worship service was fair, the pastor said. The attention was good and we felt that there was really a vital interest in the work of the church expressed by their attention. This church is keeping the pastor paid pretty well up to date. That is exceptional among the churches at this time. It had a little money left over which the treasurer enquired of the writer the most needy place to put it. This is another exceptional thing to hear—the only time I have been asked that question this year.

We were at Salem in the afternoon. The grounds had been greatly improved and make a beautiful appearance. We were greatly pleased by it. The afternoon congregations are not so large as the regular morning congregations we were told, still there was a very good congregation present. These were interested in the message and we felt glad that we had the privilege of speaking for the interests of our church. Salem is one of the oldest church organizations in our conference and has in it some of our best members.

Concord church was the place of our appointment for the night. This is a good working organization but is in much need of a new building, one that would provide for the modern Sunday Schools. The church is situated close to a good high school and in a community of fine people and has been a means of maintaining those high standards of life which bring happiness and material prosperity to those who possess them. We enjoyed our visit here. We enjoyed the hospitality of the parsonage and Brother and Sister Lloyd Gutherie while on this charge.

Pastor Loy is getting on nicely with the work. He has the confidence of the people who speak well of his preaching and of his ability to plan his work, and from all evidences we saw pastor and people were happy in the present relationship.

Plan of Appointments

April 30—Calvary Church, 11 A. M.; afternoon at Shiloh District meeting.

May 6—Area meeting on Yarboro Charge.

May 7—Home-coming at Fairview Church, Anderson Charge, 11 A. M.

May 14—North Davidson Charge.

May 17-18—Pittsburgh Board meeting.

May 21—Circuit Rally, Chapel Hill Church, Davidson Charge 11 A. M.; Giles Chapel in the afternoon.

May 28—High Point College Commencement.

June 4—Dedication of Piney Grove Church, Kernersville Charge; South Winston Church at night.

LOVING BIRDS

When President Theodore Roosevelt was nearing the end of his term, he wrote a letter to England saying that he expected to make an extended trip soon after he laid aside the duties of his office, and that he planned to be in England the following spring. He asked that he be given the opportunity of making a first-hand study of English birds. Lord Grey of Fallodon undertook to meet the request, and upon President Roosevelt's arrival in England arranged an excursion into beautiful Hampshire.

The two men took a train at Waterloo Station in London, and made their way out into the country. They were met at a small station in Hampshire and, after proceeding a few miles in a motor-car, followed a path into a beautiful wood. Here were many varieties of birds, singing their songs of welcome to the returning spring. The two men spent more than twenty hours together wandering about in charming Hampshire just to hear the birds sing. Strenuous Teddy had a mind of his own, and when asked to pass judgment on the music of the birds declared that in his opinion the English blackbird was the most beautiful singer of all. Lord Grey himself was inclined to the lark or the thrush.

In telling of the incident, the great English statesman said that the former President had an ear wonderfully sensitive to the music of these birds and was able to identify nearly all of them. How strange that this man, known everywhere for his vigorous leadership and interest in practical affairs of life, should find time to study birds and to listen to their music! And yet his example indicates just what we Americans supremely need. Listen to the birds! Make room for beauty!—Zion's Herald.

THE CHRISTIAN'S VICTORY

When Richard Weaver was a pit worker, he inadvertently angered a fellow-miner. "I have a good mind to smack you on the face," the man exclaimed.

"Very well," Weaver replied, "if that will do any good, you may do it."

The man struck him. Weaver turned to him the other cheek. The man struck again. This was repeated five times; and when Weaver presented his cheek for the sixth time, the man turned away, cursing.

Weaver cried after him: "The Lord forgive thee, for I do; and the Lord save thee!"

His assailant was the first man Weaver met next morning in the pit; and, as Weaver approached, he burst into tears. "Oh, Richard," he cried, "do you really forgive me?"

Together they knelt and he rose a saved man.

Vast resources of power lie unused because we do not yield an obedience to Christ, which the world will instantly see is more than human.—Our Children.

VALUE OF GOODNESS

Good is constructive; evil is destructive. Good elevates, encourages, and sustains; evil saddens, enslaves, and kills. Good builds churches, hospitals, monuments, cathedrals; evil sets up saloons, gambling-houses, and dens of sin. Good paints great pictures, carves noble statues, and designs lofty architecture; evil darkens and blasts men's lives. Good produces the greatest statesmen, prophets, preachers, poets, and philanthropists; evil makes drunkards, thieves, murderers, and social degenerates. Good inspires faith, integrity, love, and truth; evil produces suspicion, dishonesty, hate, and falsehood. Good is eternal and indestructible; evil is temporary and self-annihilating. Good is of God, since God is good.

OUR STORY PAGE

HUGH BARNETT

"A letter for you, Dad!" Garry Barnett threw the mail in at the kitchen door, and ran on down the street.

Mr. Barnett opened the letter, and as he read, his wife who was ironing, noticed that the paper was shaking in his hand. When she could not bear the suspense another second, she set her iron on the stove and said, "Well what is it?"

Mr. Barnett answered, "This is from George. The doctors have ordered him South for the winter. They say the pine woods have done a lot for him, and now if he goes where the air is mild and the weather not so changable as it is here he has a chance for getting better. He asks us to take Hugh for a few weeks, until he fiinds the place that will best suit him."

"Take Hugh! Well, I've always been afraid that boy would be dumped on us. But we can't have him here. That's out of the question. It isn't fair for George to ask such a thing.

"Haven't I got enough to do to take care of my own family? But still that isn't the point," and her voice was far from sympathetic.

"Why can't we do it?" asked Mr. Barnett. "I am the only relative George has and I owe him a lot for the way he fathered me when I had no one else to look after me. He has always been the best brother in the world and I am glad to do what he wants me to; that is, meet Hugh on the eighteenth at his Aunt Harriet's in Hazelton. The eighteenth, why that is day after tomorrow."

"At Hazelton! Why that is a hundred miles away. Does George think you have nothing to do, I wonder? I must say he has plenty of nerve."

"Now, Mary, have you forgotten that I quit my work and helped you take care of your cripple father for more than a year? Did you ever hear me complain about it? We did it because it was just what we should have done, and now we will do what is our plain duty and I hope there will be no fretting about it."

"I told you the extra work was not the objection I have. Don't you know how I have always taken care to teach Garry good morals, and good manners, and have taken every precaution to keep him away from bad company and evil influence, and now would you expect me to be willing to take in our nice clean home a boy who has had no schooling and no training by any woman, for the last seven years, I think he was only five when his mother died? It isn't fair to your own boy, to bring in one who cannot help being a rough, long-haired, uncouth creature of the woods, to be his shadow everywhere, and to mortify him in school by his ignorance of books."

"Now look here, Mary. You mostly have your own way, but this time I am settled on what is right and I will do it at all costs. In the first place, if you don't want Garry to be a companion for poor Hugh, he need not room with him. We can move all that junk from the corner room next ours, to the garage attic and have that room cleaned for Hugh. He will no doubt feel more at home with a room of his own."

"Indeed I'm too busy to do any house-cleaning this week," she almost snapped the words out.

"All right then, I'll go down and get Tim Jones and his wife to do it. They'll be glad of the work. I'll have them paper it, too. Do you want to select the paper?"

"No. This is your treat. Get what you like, and you will be better pleased."

If Mr. Barnett had not been accustomed to his excellent wife's ways, he might have been heavy-hearted. But he was sure he was right, and so went ahead with a hearty good will.

He found among the old things in the corner room an iron bed and a stand with two nice drawers, and an unbroken chair, all of which had been in the house when they bought it two years ago.

As Mr. Barnett supposed, Tim and his wife were glad to get the work, for they were not kept very busy in their line as decorators. By noon of the day following Mr. Barnett had the pleasure of seeing everything complete for Hugh's reception. The last thing added was a mirror which he found when he was going to burn a box of old papers. That was hung over the stand.

"I'll take you along, Garry, if you'd like to go," said Mr. Barnett to Garry, when he was starting to Hazelton next day. Garry did not care to go, for his mother had made him sour toward his cousin.

Mrs. Barnett had worked herself into a nervous headache before her husband and Hugh returned. She was so sure they would be mortally ashamed of this boy who might just as well have been left with his mother's sister at Hazelton.

You can scarcely imagine her surprise when she met, instead of the ogre she was looking for, a great, fine-looking fellow, who though a few weeks younger than Garry, easily weighed a third more. He was the picture of health, and manly in poise and manner as a boy of his teens. Had he been raised in a fashionable hotel he could not have had better table manners. He was easy in his conversation, using the best of English in every sentence he spoke.

Mrs. Barnett could only keep saying, "How is this? Where has the boy been?" And the explanation was, that his father, being a good man and a scholar, had taught him in books as naturally and far more effectually than if he had been in a large school.

Garry gave his mother a pretty good home thrust, when they were alone, by saying, "I guess, Mom, Hugh will be ashamed of me, instead of our being ashamed of him."—The Youth's Evangelist.

Is it any wonder that when trust is so necessary everywhere else that it should also be fundamental in religion? There are good reasons for trusting God, but when something leads us to doubt, if we are wise, we shall say with the small boy of the story: "I am going to trust anyway."—Christian Observer.

SUPERIOR KNOWLEDGE

Some years ago the Bible Society Record told of a man who lived in a shabby and lonely cottage down in Mexico. This man had the reputation of being unusually wise and knowing. He was visited by many people, not out of curiosity, but to learn, and they listened to his words of wisdom with delight.

One day a very learned man called on him, and he was surprised to find how sound were his judgments and how reliable and practical his teachings. The visitor was all the more surprised to discover that this scholarly man had no library. And so he put to him this question: "Since you seem to have no library where have you acquired this wisdom and valuable knowledge?" This was the old man's answer: "True, I have no library, nevertheless, I possess the three very best books in existence, and I take care to read them every day. They are: The works of God which encompass me; my conscience, which lives in me; and the Holy Scriptures."

He felt that in the world of nature, the heavens and the earth, he possessed a wonderful book in which he could recognize the power, the wisdom, and the goodness of the Heavenly Father.

He found in his conscience a voice that told him what to do and what not to do. He felt that it is a great book through which God makes His will known.

He found the Holy Scriptures to be the greatest Book of all. In it he saw the commands and the promises of God. It was there he learned how God gave His Son to the world, to be its Saviour and Lord, how in it God speaks of what we are to believe, and hope for and cherish.

These were the books out of which he gained valuable knowledge and dispensed the wisdom for which he was renowned. Will they not make any one wise?—Lutheran Young Folks.

NO HOARDING PERMITTED

"Whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it" (Matt. 16:25).

The Lord permits no hoarding. If we lock up our strength in selfish indolence, it will be invaded by mysterious moth and rust, and subtle thieves will break through and steal. A joy that is selfishly enjoyed dies out like a lamp deprived of oil. A blessing that is not shared withers away like grass which has no rain. Things are always fertilized when they are shared. They begin to propagate in the fine atmosphere of communion. God's holy dew and rain and sunshine fall upon human fellowships, while the selfish and exclusive life becomes dry and barren as a blasted heath.

Strange and gracious discoveries are made in the fraternal and sacrificial life. We go about distributing comforts, and we find comfort. We take heartsease to our neighbors, and we return to find the gift of peace. We go down the roads of life lighting lamps of happiness for our neighbors, and lo! on our return blessedness is shining in our own dwelling. We scatter flowers of good will and beneficence, and lo! Eden blooms in our own garden. We come to our own life through the welfare of our fellows: by lighting their streets we find our way home.—Publisher Unknown.

GOD'S METHOD

Frequently in spiritual experience the darkest hour comes before the dawn. The deepest valley precedes the highest height. Prayer for blessing is oftentimes followed by a sense of great failure and need. So much is this so that many have entered into the experience of the hymn-writer who said, "Is this the boon for which I sought? Has prayer new trouble on me brought?"

An old Godly writer named Flavel, has given us wise words on this matter. He said:

"When God intends to fill a soul He first makes it empty; when He intends to enrich a soul He first makes it poor; when He intends to exalt a soul, He first makes it sensible of its own miseries, wants and nothingness.

"Our Saviour in the end of His beatitudes speaks, 'Great is your reward in Heaven,' but in the beginning of them, He first says, 'Blessed are the poor in spirit.' God deals in the spiritual building, as men do in the artificial building—the higher they intend to build, the deeper do they lay their foundation.

"If God intends to lift you up to Christ, and mercy, and grace, and glory, He will first bring you low in the sense of your sinful miseries and spiritual wants, and self-nothingness and unworthiness."—Elim Evangel.

TOBACCO OR SOULS?

I acquired the vile tobacco habit in the public school when quite young and grew up with it until, when I became a man I had learned to chew, smoke and dip. I would often take a chew of the strongest tobacco and at the same time smoke a cigar. I had never heard a preacher lift his voice against this vice, but quite to the contrary, the majority of them together with the laity, used it in all of its forms. I was soundly converted in an old-time Methodist revival and for weeks I enjoyed sweet communion with God, and used my tobacco every day just as I had done for many years, but one day I bought a ten-cent box of snuff, and as I started for my home in the country, I opened my box and started to take some, when something checked me and seemed to say to me, "Why do you use that filthy stuff to defile the body which God calls his home?" I could not answer, for I had no excuse; it was merely a habit.

Then the Spirit said to me, "How much did you pay for that box?" I answered, "Only ten cents;" but again He whispered, "Ten cents would buy 100 tracts, which if wisely distributed might lead at least one soul to God." Then came the question to my mind: "Which would you rather have, a soul for God or a box of snuff?" I at once saw the point, threw the box into the grass, lifted my hand to Heaven and promised God that I would never touch the filthy weed again, but would ever afterward spend my tobacco money for tracts. I knew I was bound by the dirty habit until I could not quit of myself, so I asked God to help me, and He did, for from that day nearly 18 years ago until this hour, I have never wanted it in the least. And I have bought and distributed many thousands of tracts which I have personally enjoyed much more than the old habit, and many have been blessed thereby. Go thou and do likewise!—Rev. J. D. Scott.

RIGHT AND WRONG AMBITIONS

(Consecration Meeting)

There are many respects in which Christ changed the thinking of the world by His teachings but there is none of more sigsificance than the one for consideration tonight. Jesus changes the center of one's devotion and makes humanity and God the supreme ends instead of self. The affection of a real Christian is not only supplying himself with the best things in life but in serving God by serving mankind. Someone has said that one essential difference between a Christian and non-Christian is the direction of their ambition. A man who has the spirit of Christ finds out that there are more people in the world than himself and more needs to be met than his own. Every man should have ambition but Christianity gives the proper direction to that ambition.

What Is a Worthy Ambition?

If one will study the great men of the ages, he will find that those whose names have lived have made a real contribution to the welfare of the world. Abraham Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson, Pasteur, Luther, Wesley, and a countless number are remembered today because they had worthy ambitions. They learned that there were other people than themselves and that service for mankind was the key-note of true success. The great men of the ages were not selfish but they had an ambition to serve others. They have in this way served God. Edison might have easily been a rich man if he had turned his inventive genius toward making money but he would not be memoralized today as a great public servant. Napoleon is never to be forgotten because of his great military power yet he is not recalled as having done anything for the cause of fellow man because all of his time and energy were spent in selfish advancement. A worthy ambition is one that loses self in the greatest desire to serve mankind.

How to Serve God Through Ambitions

Most people have ambitions but the question is "Are they the right kind?" Not all of those who have wrong ambitions are out of the church but some of them occupy high positions. How many ministers there are who are seeking to get the best place which is open and to enjoy as much popularity as possible. God is not being served in such ambitions. Christ stated the qualifications for advancement when He said, "He who would be great among you let him be your servant." Most people had rather have others bow down to them rather than to serve his fellows. Jesus had to give His Disciples the second lesson in humility when He washed His Disciples' feet on the last night. He received His place of greatness because of the service which He rendered to mankind. Ambitions are worthy but they must have the ultimate end of serving God better rather than living in ease for selfish pleasure.

The Place of Ambition in Life

It is well that man refuses to be satisfied with life as it is but reaches out for more power and a better life. This is ambition. If everybody was perfectly satisfied with the world as he found it, no good would be thought or done. But we see the unattained from the height which we have already gained and are dissatisfied. If that ambition is to satisfy personal ends it is ignoble but if it is for the advancement of humankind it is worthy. Ambition helps to stabilize life and give direction to it. Christ ran counter to the Pharisees for they had sought to get all the power and influence which they could because of selfish ends and He taught men to serve if they would be great. A test of ambition is this: Not what I can get out of the world, but what I can do to advance the cause of God and man. To aim to be higher than another is wrong; but to aspire to be like Christ is noble.

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
  As the swift seasons roll!
  Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
  Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Quotable Poetry

CONFIDENCE

So dark the clouds around my way I can not see,
But through the darkness I believe God leadeth me.
I gladly place my hand in His when all is dim,
And, closing then my weary eyes, lean hard on Him.

Through thorny pathways He may lead my tired feet.
Through hours of grief when tear drops flow, but it is sweet
To know that He is close to me, my friend, my guide,
So while He leads me I will walk—quite satisfied.

To my blind eyes He may reveal no light at all,
But while I lean on His strong arm I can not fall;
So, trusting Him, I trudge along life's weary way.
Content to think that soon will dawn a brighter day.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Spring Hill, North Davidson, 1 quilt, 1 bu. irish potatoes and 23 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables.

Mr. Clark Kirkman, Tabernacle church, 1 bu. seed corn.

Mrs. J. S. Lewis and Mrs. N. M. Harrison, Asheboro, 24 glasses of jelly and preserves for school lunche.

Miss Julia Hayes, High Point, 1 dress.

Mr. Staley, Grace church, Greensboro, 60 pounds of honey.

The Woman's Auxiliary, Grayson, La., 2 pair overalls, 4 pair horse, 10 dresses, 3 pair pillow slips, 3 sheets, 1 pair pants, 4 towels, 1 quilt, 12 wash-cloths, 6 handkerchiefs and 2 slips.

The ladies of Concord church, Saxapahaw, 2 quilts.

Miss Margaret Curry, daughter of Rev. Geo. L. Curry, is giving her services without salary. A wonderful gift to the Home jest now. Methodist Protestants will not wish her to do that long. We will remedy it just as quickly as you help us to do it.

We are thankful for all these gifts, and may the dear Lord bless all who gave.

Pastors and S. S. Superintendents, Please

The first of May approaches. The bad weather on many Sundays during the winter and the banking conditions for the last several weeks have cut down our offerings more than you can know; so please boost our offerings during May. Will not every Sunday school in the Conference send us an offering during May? If you regard the work of the Children's Home as worthy, please do not fail us. We believe the people will contribute if given a chance. We are looking to you. God bless each of you.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

First Church, High Point.—The usual routine of services was observed last Sunday beginning with the Sunday school at 9:45 o'clock under the superintendency of John C. Whitesell, with classes for all ages from tiny tots to elderly men and women. The attendance averages approximately 350.

At 11 o'clock the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an effective sermon on "The Power of Christ's Resurrection," from Philippians 3:10, "That I may know him and the power of his resurrection." This is the first in a series of Easter to Pentecost sermons. He said that Christ appeared to Paul in his Damascus Way conversion. He was a changed man; in dying to his old ideals and life Paul was resurrected to real life. We need to have our thoughts of immortality changed somewhat to the way of life. It is easy to look backward and say, "Christ is risen," but it is a different matter to look within our souls and say, "I am risen with Christ." The hope of mansions in the skies must not dazzle our eyes to the presence of slums, dives of sin, and vice all around us. When we know Him and the power of His resurrection, eternal life becomes real and highly desirable.

While the adult congregation was worshipping in the auditorium. Miss Naomi Dawson conducted services for the children downstairs.

At the meeting of the Senior C. E. Society Monday evening Miss Irene Reynolds was leader, and discussed the topic, "Problems About Prayer."

News has been received from Mrs. R. I. Farmer that she underwent an operation for sinus trouble at Tucson, Arizona, last Tuesday, and a part of the cheek bone was removed. Her hosts of friends join in the hope that she will improve now, and soon regain her health and accustomed strength.

The American Association of University Women will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. S. R. Matthews, 640 Colonial Drive. Miss Margaret Sloan, of the music faculty of High Point College, and Mrs. R. I. Quigley will be associate hostesses. C. L. Gray, Jr., will sing a number.

On Monday evening at the Musical Arts Club meeting at the Country Club a string quartet of young girls played a selection that will be entered in the high school music contest next Thursday and Friday at Woman's College in Greensboro. In this quartet Miss Edna May Douglas plays first violin, Miss Alene Vance, second violin, Miss Eleanor Stephens, viola, and Miss Elizabeth Hoffman, 'cello. Miss Alene Vance is one of First church's most promising girls.

At the monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. on Tuesday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. building on East Green street, Rev. R. I. Farmer delivered an address on "America's Greatest Need," which was highly appreciated and enjoyed.

L. F. Feree won out in the primary for alderman from the fourth ward, and is a candidate on the Republican ticket in the city election next Tuesday, May 2.

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary are making many plans for the chicken-pie supper to be given Friday evening from 5:30 to 7 o'clock. A delicious plate will be served for 35 cents, and all members are asked to sell as many tickets as possible for this birthday supper.

Cap.t A. M. Rankin, accompanied by Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. E. L. Auman, went to Greensboro this afternoon to consult Dr. C. W. Banner. Many friends will be gratified to learn that he is resting more comfortably at night, and is able to go to his office occasionally.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Rev. J. P. Pegg filled his regular appointment here yesterday. He preached a fine sermon at the 11 o'clock hour, using as his text "If a man die will he live again?" The sermon was very much enjoyed by all present. On Easter Sunday night the ladies of the church gave a pageant entitled "The Easter Story." The auditorium was full to witness the pageant and all seemed to enjoy it very much. We also had with us on Easter Sunday night Rev. W. M. Loy and his family. Mr. Loy was in charge of the devotional service in the absence of Mr. Pegg. We hope he enjoyed his visit to our church and that he will come again. T. S. COBLE.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Mr. Ferree gave us a message last Sunday night that was very interesting. His text was "Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut, where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and said unto them, Peace be unto you."

Our Sunday school attendance has increased very much during the past month. Its average is 75.

Our choir is preparing to attend the fifth Sunday singing and Pleasant Grove, April 30. The junior choir is also going to sing.

The Junior class has one member that has attended Sunday school every Sunday for one year and four months. She has taken her quarterly, collection, had lesson prepared, and quoted memory verse. This member is Esther Wooten.

The Christian Endeavor is getting on just fine. We have had an increase in the attendance and the members seem to take an interest in it.

May God help us to go forward!

Henderson.—The decision service, which was to have been conducted on Easter Sunday but was postponed because of rain and other thigs that interfered, was conducted by the pastor last Sunday, April 23rd. On two previous Sundays the pastor had made talks to the young people preparatory to this service. Most of our boys and girls considered old enough to make the decision and unite with the church have already done so. However, there were five girls and one boy who come forward in the service. After the pastor has an opportunity to talk with the parents these children will be given the opportunity of uniting with the church.

Unusually large congregations have been present for the services the past two Sundays, and that notwithstanding the extremely rainy Easter Sunday and cool weather last Sunday. Last Sunday Mr. John George Mustian, Mrs. Mustain, and their three grown daughters, Misses Edith Elizabeth, Elsie Grey, and Margaret Adaline, were received by transfer from the Flat Rock M. P. church on Vance charge. We have the transfers of two more young lades awaiting their convenience.

The union revival meeting is still in progress at the Big Henderson warehouse. Because of that we are having no evening services in our church for the duration of the meeting. Weather conditions and other things have greatly interfered with the revival but we are still hoping that the meeting may be a great blessing to Henderson.

Orange Charge.—Candidates for delegate to Annual Conference will be voted for at the morning appointments in May, as follows: Union Grove, first Sunday; Hebron, second Sunday; Efland, third Sunday, and Chestnut Ridge, fourth Sunday. The candidates are L. M. Riley, of Union Grove church, and B. F. Wilson, of Hebron.

Will preach at Efland the fifth Sunday in April at 11 a. m., and Union Grove at 3 p. m.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Whitakers Church.—Our second quarterly conference was held jointly with Enfield church at Enfield. Business was transacted in a fine spirit. Reports were not as good as we would have them but we feel that we are holding our own.

On Easter Sunday we had our regular church service and observed the communion. At night we had a very nice program which was well rendered. Thanks to all who took part and those who were responsible for getting it up. Our pastor and wife are very faithful in attendance at our prayer meetings, a union service. They are here every time unless something unavoidable keeps them away.

Our Sunday school has increased some in attendance, I am glad to report.

Four of our number and our pastor's wife attended Branch Meeting at Winston-Salem and enjoyed it so much. It is good to feel we are a part of such a great work, even though we feel at times we do so little. Some of our number of still on the shut-in or inactive list. Do hope they will soon be restored so they can be with us again.

Best wishes to the Herald, its editor and readers. REPORTER.

English Street Church, High Point.—All of our Easter services were well attended. The children's program was given after Sunday school on Easter morning, after which the pastor delivered a short message on the Resurrection. At the regular evening service the C. E. societies presented a pageant, "Lord of Life." The decorations were unusually pretty and were very fitting for the occasion. We were especially pleased with the large attendance at this service.

We are now preparing for our revival which begins May 7. Prayer meetings are being held in homes. We feel that much good is being accomplished through these meetings; and that we will be in good shape for the revival.

Next Sunday, being the fifth Sunday, our pastor will be away. He expects to visit his home church, Piney Grove. At the morning service Rev. Mr. Moore, retired M. E. minister, will preach for us. Rev. Wilbur Hutchins, a young Baptist minister of this city, will deliver the evening sermon.

Miss Myrtle Cates, one of our most loyal members and Sunday school teachers, has been ill for several weeks. We regret to report that her condition doesn't seem much improved. Mrs. M. J. Embler has also been sick for the past two weeks; however, we are glad to report her condition much improved. We hope both of these will soon be well and back with us at church.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the Annual Conference, was with us Sunday evening. Everyone enjoyed his spledid message. Would that every person would think of his words to us and pledge anew himself to the Christian cause.

Our Sunday school is increasing rapidly since spring began. We are glad to welcome new members each Sunday. Hope to get all the people in our community who do not attend Sunday school or church anywhere to attend.

Our choir has been practicing under its new leader, Mr. Harper Lewis, to enter the singing club at Eli Whitney High School Sunday afternoon. This will be our first time, but the club has been going for some time.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met on Wednesday before the second Sunday of this month in the home of Mrs. T. H. Moore to hold its first meeting in the homes, this being a new plan for us. A fine program on "India" was rendered under the direction of the program leaders, Mrs. Loy Roberson and Mrs. Neal Hargrove. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Moore served cakes, while everyone enjoyed a social hour.

Much work is being done on our cemetery, and plans are being made to do more on it and our church grounds. When this is completed we will have something to be proud of.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

West Forsyth.—Our services for the past two Sundays were well attended and the interest in the services was good. Easter Sunday was given to Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle churches. The rain Sunday morning hindered some from attending. The service at Tabernacle in the afternoon was well attended. The appointment at Harmony Grove for last Sunday morning was changed to Sunday night on account of a funeral. The attendance and interest were good at this service. Harmony Grove is the only church on West Forsyth charge which has a Christian Endeavor society. Other churches formerly had these societies. About 20 young people were present for the meeting Sunday evening at 6:30.

The second quarterly conference was held at Harmony Grove church last Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. All of the churches except Union Hill were represented. The pastor's report showed $215 paid on salary for this year, and a total of 215 pastoral visits made this Conference year. Sunday school superintendents made good reports. The church trustees for Baltimore and Tabernacle churches also made good reports of improvements recently made at those churches. The election of nominees for delegate was held. B. A. Long, of Tabernacle church; Prof. W. B. Speas, of Pleasant Hill church; J. B. Phillips, of Baltimore church, and J. H. Speas, of Stony Knoll church, were voted for in the election which was by ballot. Bros, B. A. Long and J. H. Speas received the largest number of votes and were declared elected nominees.

The writer was called to Baltimore church last Sunday morning to conduct the funeral services for J. T. Smitherman, who passed away Wednesday night of last week. He was 76 years of age, and had been a member of Baltimore church since early life. Rev. R. E. Adams, of the Baptist church, assisted in the funeral services. About 800 people attended the funeral services, the largest gathering the writer ever witnessed at Baltimore church. An obituary will appear in the Herald later.

It was the pleasure of the pastor and wife and C. B., Jr., to have spent Saturday night before Easter in the home of Mrs. W. W. Whitman, of Tabernacle church. Easter Sunday night was spent in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Watts, of Tabernacle church. We enjoyed a good dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Holder Easter Monday. Mrs. Holder is a member of Pleasant Hill church.

Hugh, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Long, of Pleasant Hill church, had a peculiar accident about two weeks. ago. He was at the cemetery watching some men putting up a tombstone when the stone fell and hit his leg, inflicting a severe wound which required medical treatment. We are glad to report that he is improving, but was unable to walk last Sunday.

Splendid improvements have been made at Tabernacle church by the placing of concrete walk-ways and beautiful shrubbery. Grass seed have been sown in front and on either side of the church, and when this grows will further add to the beauty of the church lawn. This improvement was made at a cost of over $300. At Baltimore church concrete steps have been built at both doors, which cost about $65.

Our next appointments on West Forsyth charge will be at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches the first Sunday in May. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at each church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Winston, First.—Spring is the awakening season of the year, the revival of everything good into something better, of old into new. We feel like the revival services now in progress in our midst are ushering in a very needed awakening and an uplifting of souls to a higher and better plane. Rev. H. F. Surratt is certainly doing his best, his sermons are most helpful and are also very interesting. We were indeed fortunate in securing his services for this occasion.

There was a goodly number present at both morning and evening worship last Sunday.

Mrs. B. K. Milloway, superintendent of the Sunday school, is to be commended for the fine programs at the close of the Sunday school hour. Mr. Milloway has gained the co-operation of cevery member of the Sunday school as a result of his personality and hard work. Much interest has been shown in the school.

Mrs. Collins, one of our shut-ins, worshipped with us Sunday morning. Mrs. H. O. Sapp, who is able to go out occasionally, worshipped with us Sunday morning and evening.

Dr. J. E. Pritchard and the church choir broadcast at 5:00 Sunday afternoon over WSJS, it being the regular Sunday afternoon worship, sponsored by the Ministers' association.

New Hope.—Our church work has been fine this year. Our pastor has been most faithful. Our spring meeting which started the first Sunday in April has closed. We had a good revival; the Lord blessed us. We had four to join the church.

We have had a contest between the boys and girls to see which is the most prompt. The boys won so the girls are going to give them a dinner the fifth Sunday in April. We will have two services on that day.

I am forced to say something about our Junior class, age 6 to 14. These young folks meet each Sunday at 2:30 p. m. and have services, including singing, talking and praying. It is wonderful to see and hear them so interested are they in good work for the Lord.

We still have prayer meeting each third Sunday night. At the regular appointment Rev. M. C. Henderson was with us; he always comes with fire that reaches each and every heart. We all love to hear the good messages that he brings.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Beginning the observance of Holy Week on Palm Sunday, our pastor, Dr. S. W. Taylor, preached a fine sermon on Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

On last Sunday morning our church was well represented at the Easter sunrise service on the campus of High Point High School. This was a joint meeting of the city C. E. Societies. Our church orchestra, with Miss Jewell Welch, director, furnished music for this morning service.

At 11 o'clock Easter Day our pastor preached a most interesting and inspiring sermon, using for his text "He is not here; He is risen as He said." The choir rendered a lovely Easter anthem at this time.

The evening service was conducted by young people from the C. E. Society. They presented a pageant of religious education. The program was arranged and given under the direction of Misses Ida Guyer, Lake Montgomery and Juanita Hayworth. The collection goes to missions.

We wish to announce again the important program for next Sabbath morning at eleven o'clock. This is to be "Boys' Day." The boys of our Children's Home have been invited to attend this service and we hope to have present at least one hundred boys. The speaker for this occasion is Mr. Edgar Hartley, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and an outstanding "Friend of Boys." The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

The new year has begun in our Auxiliary work. At the general meeting of the circles recently very favorable reports were made and the prospects are bright for good work. In fact, those present feel very enthusiastic over the "well begun" of it. But, there are handicaps to be taken into consideration and there is room for improvement. So, let us not be satisfied with anything short of our best.

Let us not grow weary in well doing. We must stand fast against difficulties until we overcome them.

Newly-elected officers of the Auxiliary are the following: President, Mrs. C. B. Welch; vice-president, Mrs. W. M. Crouch; secretary, Miss Lucille Payne; treasurer, Mrs. Percy Payne; secretary missionary education, Mr. S. W. Taylor; Secretary of Literature, Miss Lois Hedgecock; Secretary of Scholarship and Worker, Mrs. Enos Blair; Secretary Young People's Work, Miss Junita Hayworth; Secretary Christian Education, Mrs. V. F. Crouch; Seretary Spiritual Life, Mrs. J. W. Montgomery; Secretary of Temperanse, Mrs. J. B. Huff; Secretary of Benevolence, Mrs. W. L. Lee; Secretary of Thank-Offering, Mrs. V. L. Smith; Record agent, Miss Loula Thacker; Secretary Life, Memorial and Perpetual Membership, Mrs. C. M. Brown; representative for ohr Children's Home, Mrs. S. E. Montgomery; representative of High Point College, Miss Iris Welch.

The Ladies' Aid is meeting tonight (Tuesday) with Mrs. Gallimore on N. Main St.

Miss Loula Thacker has been called to Greensboro to be with her brother, Mr. W. B. Thacker, who is very ill in Wesley Long hospital. We hope his condition will improve soon.

Love's Grove, Midland.—We are still moving along in the Master's cause, but not what we should be, some hindrances here, if we meet them bravely with God as our guide we will win. Our Sunday school is moving along very well with good attendance and good interest. We have made some improvements in our Sunday school in the records and the record shows a gain in attendance and collection.

We held our Easter services. The children did well but the collection was not what it should have been. Brother Reed is faithful with untiring interest for the cause of the Kingdom of Christ; he takes great interest in the children, he has talks with them once in each month with good interest.

We have organized a Dozen-Egg club here to pay to the pastor a dozen eggs every week or the value of the same to pay on Pastor's salary. I can readily see that it is working fine. If we pray a little every week we will close the year in much better shape and the pastor will be much better off to receive his salary every month.

With best wishes to the paper and its readers and the editor in his uphill pull to keep the paper going. JOHN LITTLE.

Thomasville, First.—"Human Wrecks," was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Madison Sunday evening. To illustrate his points he used specific automobile, ship and airship wrecks; but to go deeper into the subject matter such wrecks as physical, mental and last, but not of least importance, spiritual failures were considered. The thought which he left with the people was that we who possess normal health are ready to sympathize, and eager to help invalids and those who are afflicted with insanity; but do we make any special effort to heal spiritual disorders? After all that is what should be cured first, for Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

On last Friday evening the members of the church were guests of the Board of Stewards at a meeting held in the social room. One hundred and twenty-one persons were present. Mr. R. L. Pope, of the Main Street M. E. church, was the speaker. Mr. Pope is a noted speaker of our town and as a result of his message, we are sure all feel a deeper call to service and loyalty to their church and Sunday school The spice of the program was a quartet composed of Messrs. L. R. Jarrett, C. B., Jack and C. C. Freeman. In addition to the humorous selections, they sang a number of hymns. If refreshments served is any criterion, the stewards will not need to be asking for money any time soon; but on the other hand, if they established a precedent, the members are going to have to get busy. The church greatly appreciates the work our stewards are doing, and we hope this meeting will be followed up by others of its kind.

The Young Men's Baraca class held its regular monthly business meeting on last Thursday evening, meeting with Mr. Grant Harris. After the business session a weiner roast was enjoyed.

The Minnis circle met Monday evening at the church. Finch Jackson, chairman, conducted the devotional and presided over the business session. The study for the evening was "The Lines of Race and Caste," by Mrs. Wilson Myers.

Tabernacle-Julian Churches. — Easter services at Tabernacle and Julian churches were indeed gratifying. On Sunday night, April 9, the young people of Tabernacle rendered our beautiful Easter pageant to an audience which was very appreciative and many favorable comments were made by those who were present. On Thursday night of April 13, Communion services were observed. As we gathered on the night which corresponds to the night on which our Lord introduced the Lord's Supper and sang suitable hymns and read and talked and prayed in terms that recalled the occurrence of that very night we were edified and our souls were impressed when we solemnly thought on these matters that mean so much to us. The people seemed to be pleased with the idea of having communion on Thursday night before Easter. Onu Easter Sunday morning we were at the church before daylight. It was indeed beautiful to see ladies in the cemetery in the early dawn decorating the graves of their loved ones. It reminded one of those women of other days, as they were early at the tomb on the first Easter morning. Because of the rain the services could not be conducted in full in the cemetery as was planned. Most of the service was conducted in the church with only a small part in the open. The people have already expressed themselves as being anxious to have a much larger service than this one on next Easter morning. Our regular morning services were at Julian on that day. The Sunday school was good. It was intermingled with Easter numbers which were interesting and helpful. The offering was very satisfactory. At the eleven o'clock hour the pastor preached and after the sermon Easter communion was observed. It was indeed impressive to see every person in the house except some small children come to the communion altar on an Easter Sunday. On Easter Sunday afternoon it was the regular hour for Taberacle. It had been planned that after Sunday school the beautiful service, "Lord of Life," would be rendered. This service had been well prepared and the service was beautifully rendered. The offering was quite satisfactory. We think of Easter at Tabernacle and Julian churches with much to be appreciated and enjoyed and with much that was elevating and inspiring.

Mrs. Charles A. Smith's birthday fell on Easter Sunday this year and it's the good fortune of the pastor and family to dine in the Smith home on this day in honor of this good woman on this occasion. We have not been inquisitive to learn which birthday was celebrated but we certainly hope Mrs. Smith will have many more.

At this time we have some sick people. Most of them are improving but Brother E. C. Royal is quite serious. We are praying for the recovery of all.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Liberty, Liberty Charge.—On Easter Sunday evening at 7:30 a wonderfully beautiful pageant "The Lord of Life," was presented by a large number of young people under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Wiley and Mrs. Jas. W. Curtis.

The fourth Sunday morning our Sunday school attendance was the finest ever It is growing both in interest and in numbers.

Our beloved pastor preaches so earnestly and prayerfully. May the Word be good seed sown in good ground.

The Scripture lesson was the first ten verses of the third chapter of Acts. The text was: "Then Peter said silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I thee, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, Rise up and walk." This incident took place at the beautiful gate leading to the temple. Men today are looking to the church for help.

The thing we all need most is not money; it is to be in close communion with God.

Sunday evening a large congregation was again attentive and appreciative. The theme being: "Let us lay aside every sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race that is set before us."

The Mount Pleasant quartette sang very sweetly for us.

The Thomas trio, three small children, the little boy only about six or seven years of age, sang very impressively with their sweet, childish voices.

Rev. and Mrs. Love have organized an intermediate Christian Endeavor. They are getting on nicely, and the children appreciate this opportunity so much.

The Senior Christian Endeavor program leader Sunday evening was Miss Helen Long Hanner. Topic: "Stories Jesus Told."

Quite a number of our ladies and our pastor attended the Branch meeting in Winston. Those attending were: Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Love, Mesdames Elkins, Clapp, Brower, Frazier, Curtis, Dameron, Smith, Gregerson and Gregg. Their trip was both pleasant and profitable.

Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. Fred R. Love, chairman, met with Mrs. J. W. Curtis at her attractive home on Fayetteville street. Devotions were led by the pastor. An interesting program was given. "Better Churchmanship," was discussed by Mrs. R. S. Elkins, and "The Most Important Thing in Life," by Mrs. J. B. York. Delicious refreshments including a salad course, sandwiches and color-ful Easter cakes and coffee were served by the hostess.

Circle No. 2 sponsored a Cake Sale Saturday afternoon, April 15. A nice sum was realized.

The young people of our church graduating in high school this year are: Vernell Allred, Mary Bowman Shepard, Dwight Gregerson, Herman Smith, Dudley Coble and Grier Lineberry.

Mrs. E. L. Parker, of the high school faculty, and Mrs. Wade Hardin sponsored the Junior-Senior banquet.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Love and small son, visited Mrs. Love's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Black of Weaverville, last week. While on this trip they visited several points of interest in Western North Carolina.

We were delighted to have Mrs. F. S. Whiteside of Richmond, Va., worship with us Sunday morning. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Elkins.

Miss Bertine Shepard enterained her Bible class on Easer Monday.

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporer.

Lebanon Church.—The Boy's Service previously announced for the eleven o'clock hour last Sunday, was a pronounced success. We have heard many complimenary remarks regarding it. A crowded house was plain evidence of interest to start with. About one hundred young boys were honored with special reserved seats in the center of the church auditorium, a number of these were our invited guests from the Children's Home. Mr. Edgar Hartley, secreary of he Young Men's Christian association of High Point, was the speaker. He is in a position to know boys and boys' needs better than the average person by virtue of his office, and is therefore good authority on the subject. He offered most excellent admonition to parents, also, during the course of his speech for boys. "Youth," he says, "needs leadership, adequate high ideals, courage, purity, great determination," and, as example is better than precept, so parents are under great and lofty responsibility. "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." There are, according to statistics, a great army of 200,000 youths in our country between the ages of 14 and 24 on the March today, going——where? What shall be done with the unemployed youth of our land?

Our pastor, Dr. S. W. Taylor, in the evening service, brought to his hearers a very vital message, using as his text two words found in Phillippians 4:19, "My God." These two short words are great words. They mean much. Jacob, at Beulah, used these words. Moses, crossing the Red Sea, used them. Ruth, speaking to her mother-in-law, in one of the richest experience of her life, used them. Each individual, who professes to be a follower of Jesus Christ, should be able to speak of the dear heavenly Father, as "My God" in the fullest meaning. Isnt it a sweet thought that a Christian can say with Paul, "My God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in Christ Jesus?"

The topic for prayer service each Wednesday evening in the church is "The Bible" and furnishes excellent study for all who attend. This Wednesday evening, it has been announced, music will be rendered by the Young Men's S. S. Class.

On next Sunday at 11 o'clock the children of the Sunshine Circle will have services in the Philathea room with Mrs. S. W. Taylor in charge.

Vesper services are being held each evening on the campus at High Point College this week. Rev. Joe Lynch, of Lynchburg, has charge of these services. It is hoped many of our people will attend.

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. J. A. Gallimore recently in an interesting session. Mrs. S. E. Montgomery led the devotionals. Twenty-four members were present. Four new members were received. This society will furnish flowers for the church on Mother's Day. They will also make the next meeting a special occasion and invite all mothers to be present.

The Aid presented a basket of six dozen eggs to the pastor's wife for Easter.

Word has been received here this evening (Monday) of the passing of Mr. W. B. Thacker in Wesley Long Hospital, Greensboro. Mr. Thacker is brother of Miss Loula Thacker, of our congregation, and of the late John Wesley Thacker, who passed out of this life last May. Member of the family have the sincere sympathy of their friends here, in this time of sorrow.

Graham.—Graham will observe Joash Day next Sunday. We are asking everyone to bring some special money next Sunday to help balance up account for the Lord and his workers. We hope to go out in the highways and hedges and get those in hiding and have them have a part in our offering next Sunday.

We received eight new members into the church Easter Sunday morning. All of them were young people out of our Sunday school. Others will join later.

We had as visitors last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunsucker, of High Point, and Mr. and Mrs. George Ross, of Raleigh. We were glad to have these friends to worship with us.

The Christian Endeavor will have charge of the service the fifth Sunday nivht.

Twenty five new Heralds go to Graham this week.

Hollister.—Rev. H. F. Fogleman brought us a very interesting and inspiring message Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service He based his thoughts on Gen. 28:16: "And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not." He stressed the importance of the need of the people to have the consciousness of God in their lives. It seems each time we hear Mr. Fogleman preach we are inclined to think the last sermon we heard him preach was the best, but all of his sermons are so good it is hard to tell which is the best one. Just prior to the sermon Mrs. Fogleman gave a splendid and interesting report of the Branch Meeting held in Winston-Salem. This report was enjoyed by all. After the sermon the Lord's Supper was administered.

Rev. and Mrs. Fogleman were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arrington Sunday.

Mrs. Fogleman's mother and sister, of Concord, N. C., spent Easter at the parsonage with Mr. and Mrs. Fogleman.

The Baccalaureate sermon of Hollister school will be preached next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. C. P. Womack, pastor of Enfield M. E. church, South. This service will be held in Hollister M. P. church.

Death has visited our church and community recently and taken one of the oldest members of Hollister church away. Mr. E. L. Lee (Uncle Doc, as he was called by nearly everyone) passed from his earthly home to his heavenly home on Sunday morning, April 2, 1933. Funeral services were conducted in the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. T. Ellington, with whom he had been staying for some time, on Monday afternoon by his pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman. The remains were laid to rest in the Lee cemetery, near the old homestead in the presence of a large and sympathizing audience beneath a mound of beautiful flowers to await the resurrection morn. Perhaps a fuller obituary will appear later in the Herald.

Mrs. N. M. Harrison, Sr., mother of Rev. N. M. Harrison, is in the hospital. She has had an operation for appendicitis. The last report we heard from her she was getting on fine.

First Church, Lexington—Our Sunday school is still in progress although we failed to report for the past Sunday. Today a week ago we had 214 present. Owing to the fact that it was Easter a good many of our members were away. Today we had 302, for which we were glad. We're still at work but often we may get discouraged and think, Oh, well, there's no need in trying to reach the others, but we shouldn't feel this way. Some day our prayers are going to reach them. If we fail to speak as we meet them on the streets that's one failure that we may make. To be a Christian friend is to tell those in sin and out of church service that we are praying for them and miss them from Sunday to Sunday.

We need your prayers; you need ours; so let's pray for one another.

Bethesda.—We are still moving in our Sunday school. It is growing in attendance. Pastor Maier was with us Sunday and gave us another good sermon. Next Sunday being the fifth Sunday Mrs. Maier is going to hold services for us and Bro. Maier will be with State Street church. We are looking forward with pleasure to hearing Mrs. Maier. She taught the ladies' class Sunday. I think she is one of the best teachers I ever listened to.

We had our pre-Easter service beginning on Monday night after the first Sunday. We had service four nights. On the second Sunday four joined the church. We held our Easter service Saturday night. We had a right good crowd despite the rainy night. Our collection was fairly good.

We are planning a short program for Mother's Day.

The C. E. Society met last Thursday night with Miss Bessie Sowers.

Since our last report death has claimed on of our old soldiers, Mr. R. Julian Wagner. He was not a member of our church, but often attended services there. He died Easter Monday morning. Easter Sunday his family and friends met with him to celebrate his 86th birthday. He was too sick to enjoy it much. His funeral was held at Bethesda Tuesday evening by Dr. J. C. Leonard and burial was in the cemetery there. He was greatly loved by all who knew him.

We are glad to report that Mrs. John Brinkley is improving from an operation in the Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem. We hope she can soon some home.

Rev. and Mrs. Maier were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Fouts Sunday.

Why Not Charge.—Our second quarterly conference was held at Seagrove Saturday, April 22. Our Area meeting was also made a part of this conference. All churches represented except Macedonia. Nearly half pastor's salary for the year has been paid to date. This is on increase over last year's payments. Not so good on the Conference claims. Love Joy, New Hope, Seagrove, and New Zion deserve special mention for promptness. Seagrove has over-paid her assessment to date; New Zion has paid up to date; Love Joy has paid tre largest amount, but lacks only five or six dollars being paid up, to date, and New Hope has paid to date more than last year.

Bro. Fred Hulin, of Love Joy, and Bro. E. F. Brown, of Flag Spring, were selected as nominees for delegate to our next Annual Conference. Steps were take which I trust will result in the collection of our part of the M. P. Herald subsidy.

We feel very much indebted to the good people of this charge, not only for their promptness in finances, but the many kindnesses shown in other ways. Mr.. James Walker and Mr. Allen, of Seagrove, Mrs. Brown, of Flag Spring, and Mrs. J. B. Presnell, of New Hope, have recently given us asticles of value for the table. There have been others, but these are the most recent. We thank all for these acts of kindness.

In view of the fact that money is scarce, the quarterly conference decided for the pastor to use local help and hold all the special meetings. G. L. REYNOLDS.

First Church, Concord.—Last Sunday our folks were pleased when they came in the church and found it looking so nice and clean, and they had to look twice to know that we did not have new benches. Last week a group of our women and several of the men met at the church and helped to get the benches ready to be varnished and they scrubbed the floor and the men put new floor in the pulpit and a rug was put down on the pulpit floor.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Sides and our pastor wen to the lake again and brought back some of those fine fish and made it possible for the Ladies' Aid to have another fish fry. While they were gone the ladies at home were busy getting chickens and pies ready so we could also have chicken and noodles. The weather was bad and we did not have as large a crowd out for the supper as we had expected, but we are sure did not lack much making enough to finish paying for the work that has been done.

Last Sunday our pastor gave us a wonderful message on "The Eight Graces Essential for a Christian Life." This was fine, and a large congregation was present to hear this messake. We were glad to have Mr. J. S. Polk and his son-in-law worship with us Sunday. They are from Monroe, N. C. Mr. Polk used to be the superintendent of our Sunday school while he lived in Concord. Sunday night our pastor gave us another good sermon, his subject being "The End of the Journey.:" We are sure that if we Christian people will only live up to the eight graces essential for a Christian life that we will all be ready at the end of the journey to walk with our Saviour in white because we will be worthy.

On last Monday night at our missionary joint meeting we heard several reports from the women who attended the Branch Meeting in Winston-Salem. We all enjoyed the reports and we hope they will be a help to us this year. As Mother's Day is very near, we also had a short Mother's Day program at this meeting.

On last Tuesday night a cottage prayer meeting was held with Mrs. Alice Williams. Mrs. Williams is one of our members that has been confined to her bed for a number of years. She enjoys these prayer meetings very much. There was one conversion in that prayer meeting.

Mrs. Julis Newton is real sick at this time.

Mr. Harvey Wilson has returned to his home from the hospital and is getting along as well as could be expected.

Mrs. Bertha Cline is able to sit up some now.

Grandma Thomas is still improving.

REPORTER.

Kannapolis.—On Easter Sunday the Senior Christian Endeavor was in charge of the sunrise service, with Mr. Eugene Henderson presiding. A good number was present and a wonderful meeting was enjoyed. We were real glad to welcome Mrs. J. W. Rich, of Concord, N. C., to worship with us at this meeting.

Decision service was held at 11 o'clock. Our pastor, Rev. Clarence Morris, delivered a beautiful and inspiring sermon at this hour, after which the doors of the church were opened and the church had the pleasure of welcoming the following new members: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tutterrow, Miss Fay Tutterrow, and Messrs. Arthur and Odell Tutterrow, and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Wagoner and son, Kenneth. We are happy to have them join us, and we trust their steps may ever be guided by our Savior.

On Easter Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the pageant, "The Road to Jerusalem," was beautifully rendered under the leadership of the program committee, Mrs. W. T. Kiser and Mrs. C. B. McCommons. We are to commend these faithful workers for their work. It was a spiritual keep-sake for all present.

Easter Monday evening was the beginning of a series of revival meetings in our church. We were fortunate to secure Rev. Mr. J. D. Morris, father of our pastor, to conduct these meetings. He is doing some very fine work for his Master and we trust that he will lead many of our community to Christ. We were glad to have all the visitors of our town and out of town. We were glad to have with us on Thursday evening Rev. Shelton, of Fallston, N. C., and Rev. Morgan, of Concord, N. C.; also on Monday night of this week we were glad to welcome Rev. Mr. James, pastor of the North Kannapolis Baptist church. Hope these visitors will come again and be with us. A welcome is assured at any time. These meetings will continue a part of this week. Can not state at this writing just when they will close.

On Sunday, April 23, we were happy to have with us "Grandma" Price. She has been an invalid for years, unable to walk on the paths of this world, but we are truly glad she is walking in the spiritual life so she may walk the paths of the New Jerusalem. At this service the following were received into the church on confession of faith: D. A. McLaurin, Jr., C. B. McCommons, Jr., and Bruce Allen. By letter, Mrs. Carrier Braswell and Mr. James Braswell. Trust these members may be of service to our Master and our community.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their general meeting on Monday night, May 1. At the meeting on Monday night, May 1 at the home of Mrs. C. L. Hampton on North Main street full attendance is desired.

Brower's Chapel, Richland Circuit.—Our attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning was good. Much interest is being taken in the school. Our pastor, Rev. Q. L. Joyner, delivered a delightful sormon Sunday morning.

We are having the cemetery cleaned off this week at our church. Perhaps we may have the church re-painted.

We want to have Children's Day services some time in June.

We have lots of sickness in our community at this time.

Our Circle will meet at Mrs. C. R. Winningham's home May 4 at 2 p. m., the first Thursday in May.

If there is no objection our protracted meeting will begin the third Sunday in August instead of the fourth Sunday.

EFFIE BROWN, Reporter.

Thomasville, Community.—We have been, as it were, sheep without a shepherd during the past week, during which time our pastor, Mr. Surratt, has been in Winston-Salem holding revival services at First church. On last Sunday morning Dr. P. E. Lindley delivered a very helpful sermon to us, the subject being "Growth of the Kingdom;" we always enjoy Dr. Lindley's talks. The evening service was in charge of the class leaders, Mr. C. L. Berrier, Mr. J. W. Boyles, Mrs. Perry, and the choir, under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Finch. Short talks were given by the class leaders and some good music was rendered by the choir.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Monday at the church with Circle No. 1 as hostess. Mrs. M. L. Hobbs gave a report from the Branch meeting. The devotionals were given by Mrs. Surratt in a very delightful way, the subject being "The Sincerity of Jesus." Another feature was a solo by Miss Pearl Perry, "Take Time to Be Holy." The lesson in "Lady Fourth Daughter" was given in an interesting way by Mrs. J. C. Lloyd.

The Y. L. Circle met with Miss Margaret Thompson Monday night. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Miss Edith Myers, chairman; Miss Margaret Thompson, vice-chairman; Miss Pride Everhart, secretary-treasurer. The lesson on "Schools in China" was given by Miss Susie Myers in an interesting manner. During the social hour dainty refreshments were served by Miss Thompson, assisted by her sisters.

A friendly contest between the Young Men's and Young Ladies' classes ended last Sunday with 24 members in the Young Ladies class and 22 in the Young Men's class. There is a fine spirit in these classes, both of which have excellent teachers. The young ladies, having gained the lowest number of points, are entertaining the other class at the Myers cabin Wednesday evening.

PEARL PERRY, Reporter.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—Owing to the excessive downpour of rain and the slick roads we failed to have our Easter service. We hate to miss even one service, for we all are enjoying the splendid series of sermons that Mr. Spencer has for each church day. They are just what we need and fit in so nicely to encourage and increase our faith in this time of depression.

Our last quarterly meeting was held in the home of the pastor, Bro. Spencer. There was a very good attendance.

Several of our people went to Winston-Salem to the Branch Meeting. They spent only one day, but they felt that the day was well spent, for they learned many things concerning the work and were greatly encouraged. They came back with determiation and pep to try for a much better year in 1933. May God help us to make it so.

Our Ladies' Auxiliary met inthe home of Mrs. Richard Harris on last Wednesday. It was the first meeting since our new officers were installed. The new treasurer was well pleased with the collection of dues, and it made her feel as if her job would have some work to it after all.

There will be a fifth Sunday rally day at Rehoboth next Sunday, April 30. We are expecting a large crowd and a good program. Each family is expected to bring a lunch and the lunches will be served in picnic style on the church grounds. Let's make it not only a Rally Day, but a home-coming day as well. How we all do enjoy to see our old friends and especially to meet them at the house of God. May God bless us and make us strong to work for the advancement of His kingdom.

MRS. H. L. WRIGHT.

Union Chapel, Granville Charge.—The pretty weather brought out a big crowd to church Sunday. We had the largest congregation we have had in a long while.

Rev. Mr. Spencer preached a very inspiring and helpful sermon from Luke 12:13-21, his text being "Take heed, and beware of covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." He emphasized especially the first part, "Take heed, and beware of covetousness." He brought out these points: 1. Have you made all you can? 2. How have you made it? Has it been honestly? 3. To what use have you put it? To uplift God's kingdom, or to worldly purposes? Will we take the selfish attitude like those of old and say, I will store up and say to my soul, eat, drink, and be merry? It should not be our aim to lay up earthly treasures, but treasures in heaven. Covetousness is one of the greatest hindrances of religion. When God says, "Take heed and beware of covetousness," it surely should be carefully noticed. A corrupt state of mind leads to covetousness, afraid to trust God for blessings. The evil and pernicious effects are: It hardens one's heart, keeps Christ and salvation out of the soul, and if it is not rooted out it will destroy the soul; it robs the poor, widows and orphans; it wrecks home and causes divorces. Covetousness brings strife in communities, divisions of churches, separates us from God, makes us unfit for Godly services and drags us down into ruin and damnation.

Covetousness caused Judas to betray the Lord for 30 pieces of silver, Demos to forsake the truth; wars have been brought about by this evil. Beware of things which lead to covetousness.

MRS. E. C. HUFF, Reporter.

Calvary, Greensboro.—We are getting our "ducks in a row" for a big day Sunday when Calvary church will be nine years old. This is to announce the program for the day, and to invite our friends to come and help us celebrate:

At 9:45 the Sunday school session will be held. We are hoping to have a record-breaking attendance.

At 11 o'clock, the president of the Conference, Rev. R. M. Andrews, D. D., will preach the anniversary sermon. As part of this service the Roll of the Honored Dead will be called, and the Roll of the Living Membership. We are hoping to have the largest possible attendance of the membership at this service; and we are hoping, also, that in response to the name at the roll call, every member of the church will make a gift toward the church debt.

Following the morning service, we are going to have a basket dinner, spread on tables in the rear of the church. Here we hope to have a season of fellowship.

Then, at about 2 o'clock, Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, and pastor of Grace church, will bring a message of greeting from our other churches in Greensboro. This will end the services for the day.

All the friends of Calvary church are cordially invited to be with us for any or all of the services. C. W. BATES.

Albemarle.—I have been elected reporter from this church, and hope to be able to send you some news most every week. Here are a few items:

Our Easter services were very beautiful and impressive. The sunrise service, conducted by the pastor, was well attended, despite the inclement weather and proved an inpiration to those who came. The special music by the band conducted by C. B. Efird was a very enjoyable feature of the service. At the night service an exceptionally fine Easter program for rendered by the young people of the church, trained by Mrs. J. E. Gantt and Mrs. J. D. Smith. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and this, together with special lighting effects, helped to make the program one of the most beautiful we have ever witnessed.

Our revival services will begin the fifth Sunday and last throughout the week. The pastor will be assisted in conducting the services by Rev. J. M. Morgan, of Concord. We are hoping and praying for a special out-pouring of God's spirit in our midst during this meeting, and ask the prayers of all Christians that our members may be brought into a closer fellowship with God, and souls may be born into His kingdom.

As the fifth Sunday is our regular union service night, the congregations of the West Albemarle Baptist and the Tabernacle M. E. Church will worship with us, and the Children's choir of the Tabernacle church will render the singing for this service. This is an exceptionally well trained group of children, and are well worth hearing.

The father of Mrs. D. L. Hatley continues to be critically ill at his home near Albemarle.

There are still quite a number of cases of measles among our members, causing our Sunday school attendance to show a considerable decrease, the last few Sundays.

We were very sorry to lose two of our members, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Furr, who recently moved to Concord. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Wagoner have moved into the Furr home and will occupy it while they are away.

Mrs. J. U. Whitlock and son, Gene, have returned after having spent the past week in Lancaster, S. C., visiting her brother.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

LOYALTY LEAGUE

We are adding this week 35 new names to our list, as follows:

Minister: E. A. Bingham, J. D. Williams, D. I. Garner, R. L. Vickery, E. Lester Ballard.

Charlotte Charge: G. P. Younginer, Mrs. G. P. Younginer, Mildred Younginer, Barbara Younginer, Felicia Younginer, Janett Younginer.

Reidsville: Mrs. D. A. Carroll.

St. Paul: Mrs. D. I. Garner.

Mt. Pleasant: S. A. Alexander, Mrs. M. L. Alexander.

Alamance Charge: A. W. Richardson, C. C. Richardson, Mrs. C. C. Richardson, Daisy Richardson, E. J. Braxton, Christine Braxton, Avis Braxton, Julia Stafford, Carl Stafford, Webb Lindley, Evelyn Lindley, Emma Pugh.

The report from Alamance charge comes from Center church. A duplication of this number from the three other churches of this charge, and Alamance would have the enrollment record to date. At present it belongs to Mount Hermon. We had hoped to report this week a monthly pedge of $100, but we are a ittle short of that amount yet.However, it will come, and we hope very soon. Two things have become very patent in this Loyalty League movement: First, the difficulty of doing it without a whole-time worker in the field; second, the possibilities of raising worth-while money through this plan. There is financial deliverance for us in this Loyalty League if only our people will have eyes to see it. Faith, work, and co-operation, and the thing is dine.

We are peased to have this week an interesting article from Mrs. S. S. Coe on the Loyalty League. Look it up and read it.

—Miss Elizabeth Williams, of Calvary church, will present a piano recital at Odell Memorial auditorium, Greensboro College, Thursday, May 4, at 8 p. m. Miss Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Williams, of Randolph Avenue, and is a student at Greensboro College. A musical treat is in store for those who attend.

ALL ABOARD FOR HIGH POINT

June 26th-July 1st

Take advantage of the L. T. S. cut rates and spend one of the most profitable and enjoyable times of your life. Some of the finest folks that we have in North Carolina as well as from other states will be there to meet you. In fact we are expecting more than 150 of our finest young people and church leaders to form a welcoming committee, and if you want to get the most you ever got for $5 in your life you want now to plan to go to High Point Leadership Training School in June. Do not wait to make your plans, begin now to save your nickles and dimes for this great trip.

Rev. J. B. Braxton has charge of the recreational activities. And if you know "Brax" then you know what to expect in the way of a good time. Remember he has that new "gym" to show off in this year. Watch these pages and he will tell you all about it.

Get your pastor, or district director to help you get that L. T. S. club going. Do it now. Get the most wise-awake leader you have to head it up. Send names to Rev. Talton J. Whitehead, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

The Way One L. T. S. Club Does It

They are having a jig-saw puzzle social and asking all those who attend to give at least 15c each to help the members of the club to go to High Point L. T. S.

The Members of Christian Endeavor Asked to Help

Members of one Christian Endeavor ask to help the club make money for those desiring to go to H. P. L. T. S. Now I call that a fine spirit. Other groups in the church might likewise help.

What is your club doing? Write and tell us about it.

WESTERN PASTORS' FEDERATION

The Western Pastors' Federation meeting will meet at Lincolnton Monday, May 15, at 10 a. m. For reason the meeting is convening two weeks earlier than we adjourned to meet.

I am giving this advanced announcement and program in the interest of economy. I trust that each pastor will take the part assigned.

Theme: Evangelism

"Which Way in Evangelism," Rev. E. A. Bingham.

"Evangelistic Preaching," Rev. J. R. Anderson.

"Evangelism and the Present Crisis," Rev. J. M. Morgan.

"Evangelizing Youth," Rev. H. W. Maier.

"Evangelizing An Industrial Community," Rev. C. G. Isley.

"The President's Say," Rev. R. M. Andrews.

A complete program will appear later on. Let every pastor of the district plan to attend.

G. H. HENDRY, Chairman.

MY LAST CALL

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21, 1933.

Dear Bro. Pastor:

The end of the first year of this quadrennium is only a few days off, and this is my last appeal to you therein. On April 30 the fiscal year ends, but I am asking our treasurer, Mr. H. C. Staley, to keep his books open for a few days in May, so as to enable your charge to send in whatever funds it may have that belong to the General Conference.

I would appreciate your seeing to it that the various treasurers in your charge, holding such funds, forward them right away. Help us close the year to the best advantage possible. Our Boards are in great need of funds, and their Secretaries would greatly appreciate your co-operation in this vital matter. This is a reasonable request, and I am sure you will be glad to grant it. May God bless you and your people.

Fraternally yours,
J. C. BROOMFIELD,
President.

A SUGGESTION AS TO THE MEETING OF OUR ANNUAL CONFERENCE

In view of the fact that no place has been found for our Conference this fall, I suggest that the Standing District Committee ask one of our Greensboro churches for the use of their building, and that lodging besecured in the hotels and rooming houses, and that the necessary expense be paid by the pastoral charges for their respective pastors and delegate. A local committee could assist in securing the rooms. We are sooner or later coming to come such plan as this; then why not now?

L. W. GERRINGER.

—The Department of Commerce reported to the Senate, January 11, 1932, that in 1914 only 86,000 men were employed in the manufacture of liquor. "Increased employment in the brewery industry would take that much away from the soft drink trade and there would be no net gain in total employes of all industries." (Bureau of Business Research, College of the City of New York).

J. E. PRITCHARD,
Conference Chairman.

AREA STEWARDS MEETING

The Area Stewards meeting for Charlotte and Mecklenburg will meet at Stallings Sunday, May 21, at 3 p. m. Let all churches of the Area bring a good report. There will be a short program rendered previous to receiving the reports from the churches.

An address on stewardship and a pageant on the same theme will be presented.

Let all the churches have their stewards there in full force.

G. H. HENDRY, Chairman.

MONEY NEEDED!

The treasurer of the Conference Council of Religious Education is in need of some money to meet some obligations. Sunday school superintendens and C. E. Presidents, please try to raise at least a part of your apportionment for Young People's Work AT ONCE. Send whatever amount you raise to Rev. Geo. R. Brown, Reidsville, N. C. Tell him that it is for the Council of Religious Education.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

THE COMMITTEE.

MAN OF GOD

O man of God
  Your spirit brave
Has come in time
  To help and save.

Our burdened hearts,
  In sore distress,
Wait hopefully
  For quick redress.

O man of God,
  We look to you
To nobly lead
  Our country through.

Who Slew the Prophets?

The church rests in the balance today largely because the prophetic spirit is dead among the ministers. There are, of course, many other factors contributing the anæmic condition of the Christian church; but the primary factor leading to the present status of the church is the lack of prophetic leadership in the pulpit. A religion of ritualism has spent itself in Russia, Italy, and Germany. Are we Americans to remain blind to the facts and permit our churches to go the same road which leads only to death?

Protestantism stands for a prophetic ministry. Catholicism has sponsored ritualism through the centuries and continues to place worship at the heart of its program. Herein lies the cardinal difference between Protestantism and Catholicism in that the former emphasizes the divine utterances of the ministry and the right of the ministry to remain prophetic. If we Protestants are going to continue to eliminate the right of the ministry to speak on great current issues, and if we are to return to ritualism, then we should return to Catholicism for that branch of Christianity has a far richer ritual than we possess. The conclusion is then, that we preachers must go back to ritualism or go forward to prophetic preaching.

Prophetic preaching means that we are dealing with current issues in the light of our religious experience despite the opposition of those with whom we disagree. It is quite clear that such a venture will bring opposition. Our preachers are "sweet mouth" today largely because each time one of them dared to speak on some current issue some layman would tell him to "keep out of that issue and preach the pure gospel." Rather than meet the opposition the preacher would drop the topic. Topic after topic was eliminated until we preachers have been deprived of the right to speak on anything, so many people think, except something that happened about 3,000 years ago.

Preachers without a prophetic spirit and the right to express that spirit either are discussing dead issues or are speaking only half truths. Do you laymen want preachers who speak valueless platitudes? Do you want ministers who are giving you only half truths in the name of Christ who is "the way and the truth"? Or rather, do you want ministers who speak their messages completely, courageously, and humbly before God and men even though you do not agree with these messages? The spirit of a prophet in the pulpit, and the toleration of the expression of that spirit by the laymen, is the key to the salvation of our church today as it hangs in the balance.

J. Elwood Carroll.

Perpetuating the Easter Hope

The hope and joy of Easter, like the spirit and good news of Christmas, need to be carried in our hearts throughout the year. We need the consciousness of a resurrected, living Christ with us, not merely on Easter day, but on every day. We need to practice the presence of Jesus until we shall have an experience like unto that of the two disciples on the road that day when Jesus, though they knew not that it was Jesus, walked and talked with them until their hearts burned within them. The experience of the "burning heart" may be ours constantly as Jesus walks and talks with us along life's way.

How may we have the Easter hope throughout the days? By living in close fellowship with Jesus. He is the Easter hope. It was His victory over the tomb that brought "hope and immortality to light." The disciples had been thrown into a state of confusion by the betrayal and crucifixion of Jesus. Their hopelessness was no doubt expressed by the two on the way to Emmaus that first Easter day, "We had trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel." But after He was resurrected and they had seen Him, hope once more blossomed in their hearts, and during those few precious days that He lingered among them before ascending to the Father, they lived in close fellowship with Him. They needed to live in the closest fellowship with and under the constant encouragement of the Master in those days following the resurrection, lest the hope that had budded anew in their hearts die before it came to full fruition. Jesus knew that, and so He appeared often unto them and gave them the benefit of His gracious presence.

Present-day disciples are in a state of bewilderment. We are shocked, we are amazed, we are stunned by what has transpired within recent months. But nothing else will so quickly and so effectively deliver us out of this confusing mess in which we find ourselves as fellowship with Jesus Christ. We need to listen to Him. We need to ask His advice. He has the answer to all our questions and the solution for all our problems, whether they be economic or moral, temporal or spiritual, national or international, personal or public.

Fellowship with Jesus will help us to carry the Easter hope with us throughout our days so that, though some days be dark and some of the going difficult, we shall have with us and in us that hope as a "light that shineth more and more even unto the perfect day." L. W. Gerringer.

READING THE BIBLE WITH AN UNDERSTANDING MIND

Among the ministers of today and yesterday, and the day before yesterday, the Rev. Charles E. Jefferson is one of the more noteworthy.

For almost a third of a century he was pastor of the large Broadway Tabernacle Congregational church in New York City, a few years ago retiring and becoming pastor emeritus.

Along that brightly lighted street of pleasure he preached the gospel to a multitude, held together a vast congregation of thoughtful people, and successfully directed their religious thought and activities.

During his active ministry, and since, he has done much public speaking outside of his parish, and published many books. If I am not misinformed, he spent a week or two with the churches of Greensboro, N. C., preaching the gospel to the great satisfaction of the crowds that went to hear him.

His books have to do with the church, the Bible, the Christian life, problems of belief, and national and international social and religious well-being. A goodly proportion of the books are reproductions of sermons preached in his own pulpit, revealing—unconsciously, perhaps—his methods of Bible study and his skillful ways of dealing with controversial questions.

His Cardinal Ideas of Isaiah, published in 1925, is a book that I highly prize. It consists of ten chapters which are ten sermons preached in the early part of that year—though the preparation of them must have extended throughout the larger part of his long ministerial career.

In the course of the chapter on "Religion and Morality" he takes occasion to discuss the difference between priestly religion and prophetic religion, and then he gives a fine illustration of the way in which Christian scholarship handles a rather touchy problem of interpretation.

"There are in the world two types of religious mind," says Dr. Jefferson, "which may be called the priestly type and the prophetic type. The priestly type of religious mind puts the prime emphasis on worship. It takes delight in ceremoniese. It stresses the importance of approaching God in the right way. It feels that without a liturgy, it is not possible to please Him. To a priest religion is always a tradition. It is something that has been handed down from the past. It is sacred because of its antiquity, and his supreme business is to keep the tradition unalloyed and hand it down to those who come after him. He is by nature conservative. He is seldom in favor of innovations or new departures. His place is at the altar. God cannot be pleased without sacrifices, and the sacrifices to be acceptable must be offered by the priest. That man has played an important part in the history of mankind. He has had a role to play in all the great religions. When he is a priest of the better sort, he does not deny the importance of morality. He believes in morality and teaches it, but he does not give it the first place. The first place he gives to worship. He cultivates religion on its ceremonial side."

Worship, or so it seems to me, is entirely too good a word to apply to all that Dr. Jefferson means to cover in his description of the priestly functions. Magic and mere hocus pocus and all sorts of superstitious performances are sometimes included in the ceremonialism that grows up around the ministrations of the priestly class. "A priest of the better sort" may, it is true, do valuableteaching, conduct helpful worship, practice morality, distribute alms to the poor, and be possessed of a good measure of the prophetic spirit, yet—in all sorts of religions—the priest is primarily and essentially an offerer of sacrificees and a performer of ceremonies.

"Over against the priest stands the prophet," continues Dr. Jefferson. "He is a man of a different type of mind. His mind puts the first emphasis on life. He is interested supremely in conduct. He takes delight in unfolding ideas, in holding up ideals. He is not so conservative as the priest. His eyes are often toward the future. He is thinking of generations yet unborn, and is preparing the way for them. He has a more difficult job than the priest. It is much easier to perform a ceremony before God than it is to live on a high level of moral action. The priest seldom gets into trouble. The prophet is always in trouble. He is always irritating, and sometimes exasperating men bevause he insists upon applying the principles of religion to their everyday life. The prophet does not ignore altogether the forms of religion, he concedes that they have a value, but he does not set them in the first place. He stresses conduct rather than ceremony."

Does it seem strange that these two sorts of men—the priest and the prophet—are constantly side by side in the pages of the Old Testament, and in other religions? Yes, it does. But it is no more strange than that there are in the world conservative and progressive thinkers, that there are Federalists and Democrats in our political history, and that there are Socialists and Capitalists among our industrial theorists. Such is life! Here is where we are confronted with the possibility, and the responsibility, for every man to gain the power to do his own thinking, or, at least, to become competent to choose his leaders and executives.

"It is interesting to note," goes on Dr. Jefferson, "how these two types of mind have been colliding all through the religous history of the world. Open your Old Testament; and see how again and again the priest and prophet come into conflict. Religion always has a tendency to become overdeveloped on its ceremonial side. The worshipping instincts in the huma nheart are deep-rooted, and in many lives are very active. Judaism always had a tendency to become increasingly ritualistic. The leaders of the Jewish Church had an irrepressible inclination to elaborate the forms of temple worship. One of the deadliest of all sins with which Judaism had to contend was the sin of formalism. To save religion from formalism was the supreme work of the prophet. He had to stand up and resist with all his might the popular disposition to make religion a matter solely of form. He was always trying to push formalism back and crowd it down and break its power, doing his utmost to convince the people that God wants more than anything else, a life lived in right relations to one's fellowmen. The Old Testament prophets were ethical teachers, not teaching ethics alone, but always insisting that religion shall issue in conduct.

They were moral reformers, striking at the vices and sins of their generation, and trying to lift their people to higher planes of thought and action. The priest was often jealous of the prophet. He looked upon the prophet as a dangerous man. He accused the prophet of underestimating the value of ceremony. To the priest a prophet is always a man to be watched."

I wish that Christians would assume certain legitimate attitudes following what Dr. Jefferson has said concerning the differences between the priest and the prophet. This is how I feel: When I read or quote the Old Testament writings I shall be careful to note whether I am dealing with a priestly or with a prophetic authority. I shall always bear in mind that Jesus was of the prophetic order. No Apostle ever called Jesus a priest. The author of the Letter to the Hebrews was the only New Testament writer that ever called Jesus a priest, and he did it in speaking of Jesus as a priest after the order of Melchesidec who had no successors. Jesus was as far as possible from being a ceremonialist. His religion was a religion of the spirit, and he went about doing good, accomplishing the will of the Father.

"An interesting illustration of the way in which the priest tried to safeguard the people against the mischievous influence of the prophet is seen in the 51st Psalm," says Dr. Jefferson. And here is where he gives us a look at the constructive critical interpretation of the Scripture. "This is a Psalm we all love—one of the noblest ever written. It came out of the heart of a prophet. The emphasis is placed upon the condition of the heart. 'Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy Spirit from me.' Near the end of the Psalm, the poet exclaims: 'For thou delightest not in sacrifice; else would I give it. Thou hast no pleasure in burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit. A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.' That is written in the great style of the prophet, but is it not dangerous doctrine? If God does not delight in sacrifice, then why should the priest go on offering sacrifices? If he has no pleasure in burnt-offering, why should burnt-offerings be given a place in the temple ritual? Certainly such a Psalm as that must not be allowed to go forth unamended. It must be edited by the hand of a priest. It was edited in this way. Some man, whose name we do not know, tacked on to that beautiful Psalm these five lines: 'Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion. Build thou the walls of Jerusalem. Then wilt thou delight in the sacrifices of righteousness, in burnt-offering and whole burnt-offering. Then will they offer bullocks upon thy altar.' What an anti-climax! What a coming down there is! For a moment we are in the presence of a beautiful sacrifice, the sacrifice of a human heart that has surrendered itself to God, and then in the twinkling of an eye, we find ourselves before an altar on which a bullock is being roasted. The poem of the prophet has been marred by the addition of the priest."

That is all very fine! How well it clears up and unifies this wonderful bit of Scripture! For many years the 51st Psalm has ended, for me, with verse 17, one of the highest peaks in the Old Testament:

"The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit:
A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."

LUTHER K. LONG.

LIFE OUT OF DEATH

Out from the gloom
Of darkened tomb
The Living One appears;
His life He gave
Our souls to save—
This hope our spirit cheers.

Once dead in sin
We all have been,
But now in Christ we live;
He gives for death
His life and breath—
What else doth He not give?

Once we were sad,
Now we are glad—
He bore our griefs away;
Sin can't annoy
His perfect joy;
It comes within to stay.

Soon shall descend
Our Living Friend
To take us up above,
Where all is light,
With naught to blight—
There we shall dewll in love.

DORE'S GIFT

Dore, the noted artist, was always generous. He gave away even many of his drawings that were worth considerable money.

One day, when a child, he returned to his humble home without his shoes. His nurse, shocked at seeing the boy's slightly bruised and soiled bare feet, began to scold the boy.

"What have you done with them?" she asked.

"Gave them away," was the reply, as if it were the most natural thing in the world to give away one's shoes.

"Gave them away! Gave them away! How could you? The shoes off your feet!"

"It was like this," explained the boy in a matter-of-fact voice, "I was walking along the road and I met a poor boy who had no shoes. He was something like me and in need. So I gave him my shoes, of course."

That is the spirit in which Jesus lived. He walked along the road and met people in need who were something like Him. The poor, the troubled, and the needy were "like Him." So He gave up His own comforts of home and village and friends and went along the way bruised, but glad to give up things for those of us whom He considered so like Himself.—The S. S. Friend.

THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE POLICY ON BEER LEGISLATION

It has not been and will not be the policy of the Anti-Saloon League to advocate any specific restrictions in proposed beer legislation either in the District of Columbia or in any of the various states, because the beer program is a wet program and the wets will have to accept full responsibility for the operation of any beer selling system.

The policy of the League with reference to beer legislation will be the same as it has always been in connection with prohibition laws. We shall continue to oppose repeal of existing laws prohibiting beer, and whatever legislation may be passed to permit beer, a continuous campaign will be carried on to secure re-adoption of anti-beer legislation.

We shall fight for the nomination and election of candidates for the legislation in every state who will support prohibition of beer. In the 1934 congressional campaigns the Anti-Saloon League will support candidates for Congress who will if elected vote against legislation permitting beer in the District of Columbia, and for the repeal of the national beer laws.

To summarize the program of the Anti-Saloon League relative to beer, we shall educate against its use by individuals because it is a habit-forming intoxicant and advocate legislation to prohibit its sale in every possible subdivision within the nation, and eventually again throughout the entire nation.

The admissions of beer bill sponsors themselves and the attitude of both prospective buyers and sellers of the new deal beer is sufficient proof that the beverage now legalized is the same beer that Congress and the legislatures intended to prohibit by the submission and ratification of the 18th Amendment.

If the courts do not invalidate beer legislation, public sentiment which originally outlawed beer will again pronounce sentence against it. The effects of beer and the methods of the beer trade make it inevitable that beer, even on its best behavior, contrasted with prohibition, even where most flagrantly mistreated will quickly convince forgetful voters and mandate misled politicians that beer has not changed its nature and that the people have not changed their minds.—F. Scott McBride, General Superintendent, Anti-Saloon League of America.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE TO ACCEPT FARM PRODUCTS AS PART PAYMENT ON COLLEGE EXPENSES

Due to the money stringency, particularly in the rural sections of our state (and the greater part of our citizenship live in the country districts), High Point College feels that the country boy and girl should have the same educational advantages as those of the urban sections; therefore, she is working out a plan whereby the country boy and girl, with limited financial resources, can use what they havein abundance, namely, farm produce, in meeting a part of their college expenses.

The college will permit, for the school year 1933-'34, as many as two hundred from the rural sections who desire to do so, to pay a half of their expenses in farm produce, such as vegetables, corn, wheat, chickens, eggs, hog meat, beef, cotton and peanuts. The remaining half must be paid in cash promptly as due.

Receiving stations will be established in different sections of the state and a college representative will be there a stated time each week to receive the produce from the patrons of that section.

Those desiring to take advantage of this opportunity must register their intentions with the college and what they expect to supply, the approximate amount and when, not later than July 15th, and earlier if possible. It is stated by the college authorities that this produce will be accepted only for those students who live in the college dormitories.

An extra acre or so of vegetables, or other farm commodities, or a few more chickens or pigs will aid materially in making the educational dreams of two hundred North Carolina boys and girls possible.

"Why not take this surplus product of the farm from our farm patrons?" said Rev. N. M. Harrison, Promotional Secretary of the College. "We need the very things which they have going to waste," he continued, "and we can aid the farmer in regaining his financial equilibrium and educating his child by taking this surplus. Why not? If they pay us money we would have to spend a big part of it with the wholesale grocer who most likely will buy a great deal of what he sells us from distant states," continued Mr. Harrison.

This innovation of college procedure will receive universal approval, particularly among the agricultural class. It is a wonderful opportunity which it presents to the farmer boy or girl.

THE WING-LIFE

"They shall mount up with wings as eagles." (Is. 40:31).

Those who wait upon the Lord shall obtain a marvelous addition to their resources. They shall obtain wings. We become endowed with power to rise above things. High soaring gives wide seeing. Men who do not soar always have small views of things. We require wings for breadth of view. The wing-life is characterized by proportion. To see things aright, we must get away from them. Wing-power gives us the gift of soaring and we see how things are related one to another.

An affliction looked at from the lowlands may be stupendous; looked at from the heights, it may appear little or nothing. This "light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." What a breadth of view! And here is another great quotation: "The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." This is a bird's-eye view. It sees life "whole."

How mighty the bird from which the picture is taken! "As eagles!" What strength of wing! And such is to be ours if we wait upon the Lord. We shall be able to soar above the biggest disappointment and to wing our way into the very presence of God. Let us abide in waiting and find our joy and our vision in the heights.—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

May is College Month

The month of May, which was set by the Conference calendar for the College, should not be overlooked. Some efforts have already been made to raise the apportionment laid on the charges but not enough has been raised to be content with the effort. Dr. Taylor is meeting with success in response to his appeals for help through the Loyalty League, but this of necessity moves slowly. He can give only part time to it and our people usually respond slowly to such appeals. Remember that this month has been set apart as the month when all of our churches should concentrate their efforts on the College assessment. Let's raise it one hundred per cent.

That Honor Roll

I wonder if all of our pastors saw what we said about establishing an honor roll for those churches which raise all their assessment for half the year by and on the second Sunday in May.

The idea is that we shall put such churches on this honor roll and keep their names in the HERALD for some time which shall raise half the amounts of their budgets and pastor's salaries by the 14th of May. And further, those churches which shall raise half of either budget or half of pastor's salary shall receive honorable mention and the names of such churches shall be run in the HERALD after the names of those on the honor roll. So come along, people, and let's close the half of the year in good form.

We Have Somewhere to Go, Thank You

We are passing on to the Standing District Committee the invitations received for holding the next Annual Conference and they will act in due time. But if some church is eager to have the Conference meet with it and has not yet sent in the invitation, should do it at once, for we presume the committee will take action soon.

Respond to the Appeal of Superintendent Dixon

Surely many of our people are unaware of the real situation at the Children's Home. Because our leaders are patient in bearing their burdens should by no means be an excuse for a Sunday school to reduce its monthly offerings to the Home. Neither should the fact that the Home is on the list of the Duke Endowment and receives a substantial check each year keep our own people from giving to it. Think of the predicament the Home would be in were it not for the gifts from this endowment; but the large deficit it has carried for several years has absorbed this amount each year without bringing full relief. And since some of our Sunday schools have not given so much during the winter and spring months as they usually do, we urge them now to make up this deficit by most generous gifts.

By Way of Remembrance

While the beer bellies are taking their belch after their bacchanalian jamboree it is certainly in order to call the attention of the members of the Methodist Protestant church to just what their church thinks of this thing. Here is the pronouncement of your church Discipline: "Avoid drunkenness, the manufacturing, buying, selling or using intoxicating liquors." It certainly would be well for you to wait and see whether this 3.2 beer is non-intoxicating and does not debauch the drinker before you buy or sell or drink the stuff. No members of the Methodist Protestant church can afford to deal in it or use it if it is found to be intoxicating.

The Modern Ishmaelite

It is said of this son of Abraham by a heathen wife that he was a non-cooperator. His hand was against the hands of other men. His descendants do not all bear his name nor belong to his tribe, but they are here, nevertheless. People who just will not work with others. When they are leading they are great on "whooping up", but when they are not in the lead they just will not have anything to do with it. The most trying problems before our church today would be easily solved if our people would co-operate enough to do their part. The activities of the local church do not move forward because the members in that church are failing to do their part. Stewards, class leaderes, teachers, superintendents of Sunday schools, are affected with this ailment. Even pastors have a touch of it. It is too bad that we must so often fail in enterprises which could succeed because we are unable to enlist enough people to do the thing.

When and Where Some Area Meetings Are to Be Held

May 6th, Liberty Hill church, Bro. J. L. Love, chairman; May 7th, Mt. Pleasant church, Bro. T. M. Johnson, chairman; May 14th, Gray's Chapel, Brother Edwards, chairman; May 21st, Saxapahaw, Bro. B. M. Williams, chairman; May 21st, Glen Raven, Brother Bethea, chairman; May 21st, Stallings, Brother Hendry, chairman; May 21st, Chapel Hill church, Brother Bingham, chairman; May 21st, Zion church, Bro. H. L. Isley, chairman; May 21st, Bess Chapel, Brother Cranford, chairman; May 28th, Ebenezer church, Brother Neese, chairman; High Point Area, May 28th, Brother Taylor, chairman. The series is shaping up nicely.

Calvary Church, Greensboro, Dr. C. W. Bates, Pastor

We enjoyed being with this loyal band of workers in their ninth anniversary. The attendance was good, attention good, folks came up and put their offerings into the plate for church debt like they enjoyed it, the dinner was good, the fellowship good; but the sermon might have been better. We wish for them many happy returns of the day. We are leaving to their reporter the privilege of giving an account of the events of the day, as it was a full day—other events than those in which the writer participated.

Afternoon at Shiloh District Meeting, Rev. T. M. Johnson, Chairman

I was there for only a part of this meeting. Much had already been done and said before I arrived, but I had all the time I wanted for my speech and the people seemed to have stored up for this occasion a full supply of patience. I enjoyed the meeting. Saw there beside the chairman, Brothers Curry, Love, and Pike, the pastor of Moriah church was absent. Expecting a detailed report of this meeting to be sent in by their regular report or others, I refrain from further remarks.

Rev. Atlas Ridge has been appointed pastor of South Winston Church.

Plan of Appointments

May 6th—Liberty Hill church, Area Meeting.

May 7th—Fairview church, Anderson charge, Home-Coming.

May 14th—North Davidson charge.

May 17tht-18tht—Pittsburgh All Boards Meeting.

THE BOY AND THE TRAVELER

Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, of Chicago, was one day walking in the mountains of Kentucky when he saw a boy standing not far away. He had gone past a little distance when he heard the boy calling: "Hey, Bud!" Dr. Shannon says he did not think the boy was calling him and walked on. But the boy kept calling: "Hey, Bud! Hey, Bud!" At last the traveler awoke to the fact that the boy was really trying to get his attention, and he answered back, "What do you want, boy?"

"I want to know the way to town," was the quick reply. It seems that the boy had been out after blackberries and was turned around as he came back into the highway and did not know in which direction home lay.

Dr. Shannon gave the desired direction, and then the two walked along together. Finally the man said to the boy: "But how do you know you are on the right road now?"

The boy exclaimed: "Didn't you say that this is the road?" "Yes," volunteered Dr. Shannon, "but how do you know I am telling you the truth?" For a moment there was a puzzled look in the face of the boy, and then with a twinkle in his eyes he answered: "My I'm going to trust you, anyway!"

This boy had the right philosophy of life. When he said to his companion, "I am going to trust you anyway," he was saying what we must all say. Go where we will, the need of trust is imperative. Business depends upon trust. Science, with all its boast of sure knowledge, takes its greatest conceptions on trust. Friendship is based on trust. Nothing worth holding true can be intellectually proved beyond a doubt.

Is it any wonder that when trust is so necessary everywhere else that it should also be fundamental in religion? There are good reasons for trusting God, but when something leads us to dobt, if we are wise, we shall say with the small boy of the story: "I am going to trust you anyway.—Christian Observer.

THE BOAT THAT WAS SHIPWRECKED

Before Alexander Duff, the missionary, reached India, he was twice shipwrecked. On the very coast of India, only a few miles from the place that was to be his home, an awful storm struck the ship and wrecked it upon the shore. The first night in India he slept in a heathen temple.

He was sailing from his home for India on the "Lady Holland." He had been a great student and had won many honors in college and gathered together a library of eight hundred volumes. He loved these books very much. When the ship was wrecked, he lost all of them. Everything was gone! All gone!

When the people were safe on land they looked like an unhappy company. From the shore the missionary watched, hoping he might see something from the wreck floating on the sea.

All of a sudden he jumped up, for he saw something very small on the water. He thought it hardly worth saving. It was washed up on the shore and when he picked it up he found it was his own Bible. He thought it was very strange that out of all his eight hundred books, only one was saved, and that one was his Bible. He thought God wished him to know that that one Book was worth more than all the other seven hundred and ninety-nine which he had lost, and that he was to make it the chief study of his life. He opened it, and there on that lonely shore he read to his friends these words from one of the Psalms:

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

When Alexander Duff began his work in India he started a school to educate the Hindu boys. In that school the Bible was taught. He loved the Bible and he wanted to teach it to others who did know it. After a few years there were a thousand scholars, and several big school buildings. Often they sang:

"Holy Bible! Book Divine,
Precious Treasure, thou art mine;
Mine to tell me whence I came,
Mine to tell me what I am."

FAIR PLAY

"Mrs. Martin, do you know where my mamma is?" asked little four-year-old Roland in an anxious tone as he entered the sitting room of the lady who lived next door to him. His brown eyes held a worried look and it was plain to be seen he was bravely fighting the tears.

"Why, no, dear, I don't," gently replied kind Mrs. Martin, "but she hasn't gone far, I'm sure. Have you been asleep?"

"Yes," answered Roland, "and when I waked up I could not find mamma."

"Well, don't worry, dear," consoled Mrs. Martin. "She'll soon be back, I'm sure. You climb up on this chair, and I'll get you a cooky."

"I tan't," said the boy, " 'cause I didn't ask mamma and she don't want me to go away when I don't ask her, 'cause she might not know where I is; but I don't know where she is."

The little speaker's chin quivered and his eyes filled with tears. That was too much for Mrs. Martin, who possessed a real mother heart, and a feeling of indignation engulfed her to think that any woman, who called herself "mother" to such a wonderful little mite of promising manhood as stood before her, could be so thoughtless. Had she told the child when she sent him to take his nap that she might be away when he awoke he would have known what to expect.

"Listen, little man, I'll go over and stay with you until your mamma comes back, since you can't stay here," and she quickly gathered up some mending; for her own little folks, the youngest six years of age, kept her mind and hands well filled. "Come on, now, and we will sit on your porch and I'll tell you a story," she said. "Here, take these cookies." They were soon seated on the porch of the little fellow's home talking as he ate his cookies.

"You have such a nice home, Roland," she said. "You are a fortunate boy."

"Yes, I t'ink I has," he replied, "but I wish my mamma was here," and the bright little face coluded again.

"Well, never mind," consoled Mrs. Martin. To divert his attention she continued talking until his mother returned some time later.

"Well, I didn't know I had a caller or I'd have returned home sooner. I didn't expect to stay so long but got to talking—you know how time flies," she said laughingly.

"You need have no regrets as far as I'm concerned," replied Mrs. Martin, "but I'm not so sure about Roland. You see, when he awoke from his nap he was frightened to find himself alone. You know, Nettie, the world seems like a big, rather uncertain place to a baby mind, especially when dazed with sleep. When I invited him to stay with me until you came back, he objected, saying that you did not want him to go from home without permission. As I didn't want to cause him to disobey I came over to be with him until you returned."

"I appreciate that, I assure you," answered the mother, thoughtfully. "I'll not go away like that again. I had not considered how Roland might feel about it."—Publisher Unknown.

JIM'S EASTER

Jim had been "one of the boys" and a favorite, because he was always so cheery and on the lookout to "help a fellow." Many times when he had sold his papers he would help one of the "midgets" as he called the smaller boys, by crying his papers for him, and being bright, quick and pleasant trade usually came his way.

There were many sides to Jim's character. He was a hard worker, a good fighter if it was necessary, a fine story teller between working hours, and in his soul was a great love for flowers.

When he was missed from the usual corner some one would say: "Jim? Oh, he's likely lookin' at the posies in the flower store," and every Saturday night would find him with a blossom of some sort in his buttonhole. He longed to see the country with its stretch of hills and fields, its clear sky and the woods where the violets grow.

"Just think," he said to his little friend Bob, "you can pick 'em right off the ground without payin' or even askin'. Mother said so."

Jim had no anticipation of seeing the outside of the busy city streets, but he did, and it all came about in this way:

There was a large fire and the boys were rushing headlong after the engines, when a little fellow stumbled and fell in front of a moving car. Jim saw the danger and made a hurried leap to his rescue, fairly throwing the child from the track, but he had no time to save himself, and when he opened his eyes again it was in the hospital ward.

The weeks went by and Jim was sadly missed. He said to one of the boys: "Seems to me if I could get to the country I'd be well again," and then his voice grew husky; "but I couldn't sell papers there, could I?"

Easter was very near and Jim began to ask the boys how the flower stores looked.

"Lots of fine lilies, ain't there? I'd have one this year, all my own; been saving up for it for a long time, but now I'll forget it."

There was a special meeting of the boys that night, and it was decided that Jim was to go to the country, but how?

The boys had planned to buy an Easter lily for him, but it had not entered their minds that they could do more, but when the heart is in the work it usually wins, and it did this time. They decided to tell Jim's story to his old customers. They knew many of them by sight, and were sure they would listen, for they had often asked for him. One old gentleman was especially interested in him, and after asking many questions he said if one of the boys would go with him he would go to the hospital to see Jim.

Bob was chosen to go, as he had been there the oftenest, living not far from the hospital. When Jim saw Bob and the old gentleman his face brightened with pleasure.

"It's very kind of you, sir, to come to see me."

"I have missed you, my boy; you have sold me my evening paper for a long time."

He then talked of many things, drawing out the story of Jim's life. He promised to come again soon, and when he and Bob were alone he said earnestly: "Jim is a worthy fellow, and I will help you get him to the country, but you must do your best first."

The boys did their best, and their fund grew steadily, nickel by nickel and sometimes a dime found a home in the box. The day before Easter they again counted their money, and the old man stopped on the corner.

"Well, boys, what have you by this time?"

"Five dollars. Will that pay his fare, do you think, sir? We could send him more after a while."

"You're a plucky lot of boys, but what about the lily you were going to buy? That will cost you something."

"Oh, we've bought it."

Inquiry revealed that the boys had gone without their dinners many days to buy Jim's lily.

"Well, boys, tomorrow morning, if you will all come to my house and bring the lily along, I will contribute my share to the fund."

The boys were puzzled, and yet they believed in the old gentleman, and Easter morning, with as clean hands and face as they could muster, they wended their way to the beautiful house on Lowell Street.

A colored servant opened the door and treated them as politely "as if we were real gents," Bob said afterward. He led them upstairs and through a long hall and opened a door into a beautiful sunny room.

"Come right in, boys," the old gentleman called cheerily, but they stood motionless in the doorway. There sat Jim in a big wheel chair.

Bob nearly dropped the lily, but Jim put out his hand and said: "Oh, boys, did you bring it to me? How good of you!" And then such a visit as they had.

The old gentleman slipped out of the room, and then Jim told them how he had been to see him each day and finally had brought him here.

"He lives here all alone, boys, and hasn't a child in the world," and here Jim broke down, but the old gentleman was there to finish the story.

"Yes, Jim is to be my boy now, and he has you, his true, staunch friends, to thank for what has come to him in the time of his misfortune, and the sacrifice you have made for him will some day be rewarded."

The boys' faces were radiant, and no jealousy found a place in their hearts, for, as I said before, they loved Jim.

He shook their hands warmly and some color stole into his face. "You're bricks, boys, every one of you, and I thank you for the lily and all the rest."

With lighter hearts the boys went out into the world again. Jim's lily nodded and the Easter bells rang on.—Publisher Unknown.

FULL SALVATION

Salvation, full salvation!
  Let all believers know
Complete and full deliv'rance
  From ev'ry fear and foe!
A mastery, a triumph,
  A lifted shining face,
An atmosphere of glory,
  A miracle of grace!

Salvation, full salvation,
  Deliverance from sin,
From guilt and pow'r and slav'ry
  And Pentecost within!
A faith that knows no doubting,
  A love like glowing fire,
A hope victorious shouting
  And mounting high and higher!

Salvation, full salvation
  O'er sin and death and hell,
O'er life and strife and sorrow
  What time they on us swell.
Though all should be against us
  Of famine, fire and flood
We cannot fail of vict'ry
  Since He has shed His Blood.

Salvation, full salvation,
  Cleansed, kept and burning white,
Still filled in all His fullness,
  Still climbing up the height!
Within us sin resisting
  He leads against the foe
And preaching full salvation
  He bids us flaming go.

Salvation, full salvation!
  The Spirit doth us form
Like Him who loved and sought us
  And feeds us passions warm.
All glory to the Victor
  Who gives us rich and free
Salvation, full salvation,
  To all eternity.

ARMS OF LOVE

Rev. Thomas Collins, in visiting one of his parishioners, found her in a very depressed condition. She had her baby in her arms. Mr. Collins said, "Drop that baby on the floor." With an air of wonder at the request she refused. "Well," said he, "for what price would you do it?" "Not for as many dollars as there are stars," she replied. "You would not?" "No, I would not." "And do you really think that you love your feeble children more than the Lord does His?" Her face brightened, and, aided by that lesson, her faith grew strong.—Peniel Herald.

OVERCOMING PROBLEMS IN HOME LIFE

Scripture Text: Eph. 6:1-4.

Meaning of Mother's Day

Years ago a certain woman decided that it would be nice to set aside a special day to honor her dead mother. It proved to be so good that it has been adopted as a special day in which to honor mothers, both dead and living. There is a warm sentiment about a day in which our mothers are remembered and in which we think anew of what motherhood has meant to the world. Likely your church has had a special service centered around the theme of Mother and it would duplicate to have another tonight, so we are thinking of what we owe our homes.

How to Overcome Problems of the Home

There necessarily arise many problems in connection with a home. There are problems wherever men have to live together. Some friends are able to get along together without having an unpleasant word. The quality between them that makes agreement possible is love ad mutual understanding. This must be the case of the home also; there will be love and mutual understanding if there is harmony in a home. One great trouble between parents and children is that they are not friends. I mean that literally, they do not give and take in a spirit of love as they would with friends. Love makes little things negligible: "There is a comfort in the strength of love, 'Twill make a thing endurable that else would overset the brain or break the heart."

Friendly Attitudes in the Home

I know of a family in which there is rarely a cross word. The father and son in that home are the best friends that I have ever seen, in fact, they are pals. Whatever the son wants to do, the father aids if he approves. They are partners in any enterprises which come up. The father never gave the son a whipping, but the obedience of the son is perfect and he knows that the father is head of that house. Isn't this kind of relaionship possible in any home? Let love and companionship iontrol the contacts of the home ad avoid any great problems.

NO REGISTRATION FEE

No registration fee is to be charged this year to those who expect to go to High Point College, but we do expect the churches to put what ordinarily would be registration fees into the L. T. S. Clubs whereby its young people may have the advantages of the High Point College Leadership Training School. Remember the dates are June 26th to July 1st. Brother Superintendent and other leaders of the church, please co-operate with your pastor in getting some of your people to this most important gathering of our church. Send names to Rev. T. J. Whitehead, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

GOOD ADVICE

Don't be what you ain't,
Jes' be what you is,
'Case if yo' is not what yo' am,
Den yo' am not what yo' is.
If yo' is jes' the tail,
Don't try to wag the dog.
You can always pass de plate
If yo' can't exhort and preach;
If yo' is jes' a pebble
Don't try an' be de beach.
Don't be what yo' ain't,

TEN REASONS WHY EVERY CHRISTIAN HOME SHOULD HAVE A FAMILY ALTAR

1. Because it will send you forth to the daily task with cheerful heart, stronger for the work, truer to duty and determined in whatever is done therein to glorify God.

2. Because it will give you strength to meet the discouragements, the disappointments, the unexpected adversities and sometimes the blighted homes that may fall to your lot.

3. Because it will make you conscious throughout the day of the attending presence of an unseen, divine One, who will bring you through more than conqueror over every unholy thought or thing that rises up against you.

4. Because it will sweeten home life and enrich home relationship as nothing else can do.

5. Because it will resolve all the misunderstanding and relieve all the friction that sometimes intrudes into the sacred precints of family life.

6. Because it will hold as nothing else the boys and girls when they have gone out from underneath the parental roof and so determine very largely the eternal salvation of your children.

7. Because it will exert a helpful, hallowed influence over those who may at any time be guests within the home.

8. Because it will enforce as nothing else can do the work of your pastor in pulpit and in pew and stimulate the life of your church in its every activity.

9. Because it will furnish an example and a stimulus to other homes for the same kind of life and service and devotion to God.

10. Because the Word of God requires it and in thus obeying God we honor Him who is the Giver of all good and the source of all blessing.——W. E. Biederwolf.

Mebane church, 1 pair shoes, 1 pair overall, 1 shirt, 12 tablets, 15 pencils, 2 washcloths, 1 towel, 1 dress, 24 pounds flour, 6 glasses of jelly, 20 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, 1 package of sweet potatoes, 1 package of beans, 1 box of cold cream and 6 cakes. These cakes were used for Sunday dinner.

Gibsonville church, 40 boxes of cornflakes and post toasties, 35 boxes rolled oats, 8 boxes cream of wheat, 1 box puffed wheat and 1 box Grapenut flakes.

We are thankful for this money and for these gifts. Please note how practical the gifts. Something we have to have every day. God bless the dear people.

Please Do During May

We are in financial straits, as everyone knows. The offerings for the last three months have been the lowest that they have ever been for the same period since we have been here. Please boost the offering for Children's Home during May on the regular Sunday that you take that offering. Why not every Sunday school in the Conference take an offering during May? So many Sundays schools that used to help us have dropped out entirely. Please come back to our rescue. We need you and you need us. You love the work here, all of us here love you and all of us are praying God's blessings upon you. May God wonderfully lead in all Kingdom service.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

NOTE: Plan to come to the Children's Home on Thursday, June 8th, and bring a basket of dinner. Watch for further announcements. A. G. D.

—JUNE 8th—WHAT?

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mebane.—Since our last letter to the Herald our work has been going forward in a very satisfactory manner. Attendance at Sunday school and preaching service has been very good. Today we had 147 present. We are hoping to have our number greatly increased by the next report.

Our pastor, Rev. C. I. Smith, brought us a very uplifting message this morning, as usual. His subject was "Insurance of Life," and it was a splendid sermon: we hope that we all may practice the things given us in this message.

Our second quarterly conference met Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the church with a goodly number present. The various reports were encouraging. At this meeting our delegates to the Annual Conference were nominated, Mr. A. C. Allen and J. W. Nicholson, two very able men.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Ladies' Aid are moving on nicely.

Our pastor is trying very hard to put over the Loyalty League.

Our sick members are improving; hope they will soon be out again.

REPORTER.

Charlotte.—The Woman' Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Millaway at her home, 415 E. Morehead. Fifteen members, the pastor, Mr. Hendry, and one visitor, Mrs. McCormack, sister of Mrs. Ledbetter. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. B. H. Little, the retiring president. The 23rd Psalm was repeated in unison and prayer was offered by Pastor Hendry. Very interesting and inspirational reports of the Branch meeting held in Winston-Salem were given by Mesdames Little, Daugherty, Love, Millaway and Younginer. It was voted to organize a business woman's circle, which would meet in the evening. Mrs. Hendry will have this circle in charge and has called a meeting for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, April 25. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Millaway and a delightful social hour followed.

The Easter services were well attended and enjoyed. Pastor Hendry gave an interesting and helpful sermon on "Is Christ Risen?" Special music was also a delightful feature of the service.

The Easter Pageant, "The Lord of Life," was given at 7:45. The leading characters were: Miss Mary Shaw, Church; Miss Helen McCall, Christianity; Miss Rachel Tedlock, Easter; Miss Margaret Walters, Life; Miss Mildred Younginer, Truth; Miss Ruby Stegall, Spirit of Missions; Misses Dorothy Scarboro and Beulah Smith, Wayfarers. A number of children of the Junior Department were messengers. The music was furnished by the choir, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hendry, Miss Gray Styles at the piano. Congratulations to the committee in charge: Mrs. Herbert Garison, Mrs. Haigler and Mrs. Hendry. The lesson in the play was good and well presented.

The monthly business meeting of the Young People's Class was held with Miss Barbara Younginer at her home, 208 Circle Avenue, Monday evening, the 17th. After a short business session refreshments were enjoyed and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

The monthly business meeting and social of the Baraca and Philathea classes will be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Younginer, 208 Circle Avenue. A full attendance is requested.

There are several conflicts in our meetings this week due to various things, and I hope our members will each keep in touch with their own particular group.

Henderson.—The past few weeks have been unusually active for the workers in this church. The delegates to the Branch Meeting came home full of enthusiasm and hopes for the missionary work in the year just beginning. The new president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. C. L. Finch, succeeded in getting entirely new leaders for all of the adult circles. They are: Mrs. J. B. Burchette, Mrs. Nichols; Mrs. Gerriger and Mrs. John Fox will still be leaders for the teen-age girls.

Ten new members have joined the church within the past two weeks, and there will probably be others to join next week as a result of the Union Revival Services which the Rev. Mr. Caviness is holding in the Big Henderson warehouse. Large crowds are attending the services twice daily. We have called off our Sunday evening services, prayer meetings and choir practices for the duration of the revival, which began April 2.

Mr. Gerringer is giving us some foreful, eloquent sermons these days. Recently a very learned gentleman was heard to remark that the sermon that morning was one of the 12 outstanding sermons he had heard in his entire life, which has reached the four-score mark.

Miss Agnes Harris is still in the Maria Parham Hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis April 15th.

The Woman's Auxiliary will hold an Installation Service tomorrow night, after which there will be a social hour with the ladies of Circle No. 4 as hostesses. R. H. W.

Enfield.—Since our last report we have had a series of special services, very ably conducted by Rev. T. Glenn Madison. These special sermons were enjoyed by all who attended them and we wish to express our appreciation for having had a man of this type among us.

Our last Sunday morning service, conducted by Rev. E. O. Peeler, our pastor, was very fine. His message was truly inspiring. The evening service was dispensed with on account of a special series of meetings beginning at the Baptist church. This is a custom among all the churches of Enfield.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its monthly meeting last Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. A. Vick. After the business of the meeting had been brought to a successful conclusion, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and everyone enjoyed the afternoon to the fullest extent.

The Junior Woman's Auxiliary meets next Monday evening in the home of Mrs. E. O. Peeler. At this meeting they will make plans for their summer program. They intend to put on a "Man-less Wedding" in the very near future. This is being done in order to raise money for their Auxiliary.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday evening, April 16th, at the Enfield M. P. parsonage at 6 o'clock, the Rev. E. O. Peeler officiating.

The bride, Miss Edith Lyndall Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Lee, of Lawndale, N. C., and niece if Mrs. E. O. Peeler, of Enfield, N. C., was becomingly gowned in a suit of white crepe with accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of pink tulips, white roses and lilies.

The groom, Mr. Earl Cullen Myers, a young business man of High Point, N. C., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Myers, of Florence, S. C.

An altar had been arranged in the living room where the ceremony was performed. The color scheme of green and white was carried out with ferns and cut flowers. This with the light of many candles made a sweet and impressive scene.

While Mrs. Hubert Whitaker played Lohengrin's Wedding March the parties to be married entered and took the vows that made them man and wife. During the ceremony Mrs. Whitaker played "Angel's Serenade."

After April 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. Myers will be at home to their many friends at 217 Wilowbrook street, High Point, N. C.

Ai, Kernersville Circuit.—We are glad to be back in Sunday school again after a long absence. Our Sunday school was organized about a month ago with Mr. R. M. Whitt as superintendent. Our number has grown to about 45. We have some fine young people here who are willing to work for the upbuilding of the community. Our Sunday school welcomes all of the people in the community to come out and take a part. We feel indebted to Mr. Claud Ragland, who has had such intense interest in helping us to get our Sunday school started again.

REPORTER.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—Shiloh has been quite active in many events recently, practically throughout the month of April. A community singing was held there on the second Sunday of the month. On the third Sunday an Easter program was given, and on the fifth Sunday a District Rally was held. The district includes Mount Pleasant, Moriah, Tabernace, and Liberty charges.

A splendid program for the day had been arranged by Dr. T. M. Johnson, pastor of Mount Pleasant Charge. He has been one of thse most concerned with the plans for the Rally, and it is to him that we are indebted for the program.

All-day services were held. In the morning Misses Frady and Richardson, of the Nathaniel Greene School faculty demonstrated a lesson plan to be used in the Primary and Beginners' classes. After their demonstration the woman's work in charge of Mrs. Ed Coble from Tabernacle was discussed. The speaker was Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, who spoke on "Sharing." Her talk was quite timely and effective.

After having dinner on the grounds the meeting began again in the afternoon. Rev. Fred Paschall, pastor of First Church, Burlington, talked on young people's work. He stressed especially the importance of the Young People's Training School to be held at High Point College in June.

The final event of the program was a talk rendered by Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the Conference. He expressed the needs of our church, of the present conference, and he made an appeal for help to the congregation.

The pastors who were present other than those mentioned were Rev. George L. Curry, Rev. W. M. Pike and Rev. Fred Love.

Rev. Mr. Love, who is our pastor, has been giving us very splendid sermons throughout the year. We realize how fortunate we are in having him on our charge.

REPORTER.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The regular church service was held at our church on Sunday morning, April 23, by our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry. His sermon was on "The Unrecognized Christ," and was centered around the Scripture, St. Luke, chapter 24. The message was very appropriate for the Easter season, and also for the troublous times in which we live.

In the Scripture lesson two disciples were going along the road to Emmaus and were talking about the things that had happened to Jesus. Jesus drew near and went with them. They did not recognize Jesus because "their eyes were holden." This was the result of their being occupied with themselves. Our worst enemy is self, and we must get self out of the way before we can do the will of God. We cannot do great things when we think of ourselves. We should think of our neighbors. The disciples had not accepted all the teachings of Jesus. Jesus had told His disciples that He mut go up to Jerusalem, be crucified, and rise again the third day. Now they did not believe Christ had risen. They had forgotten His words. We, too, often forget and fail to make the best of things we have. Now is the time to live with our friends and neighbors. The hope of the disciples was already realized, but they did not know it. They were despondent. They did not believe what the women had said. The tomb was empty and they didn't understand. Like the disciples, we are ignorant and should trust to the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

How were their eyes opened, and how will the knowledge help us to see our duties? The disciples told their story first. Then Jesus asked them if they didn't know what was written in the Old Testament. Jesus told them that they had not read their Bibles undersandingly. They had not tried to understand the Scripture. The fault was in themselves. They should go back to their Bibles. As Jesus spoke, the disciples took their minds off themselves and became interested in something else—in what Jesus was saying. Thus their eyes were opened. Just so, personal testimony and personal service for Christ have been among the weapons of the church. Let us do anything we can for the Master at all times.

On Sunday evening, April 16, the young people of the church presetned a pageant, "The Risen Christ." It was very impressive and symbolic of the Easter season. The program was directed by Mrs. Clay Holt and Miss Carrie Nicholson. Those taking part are to be commended for such a splendid program. A short talk by our pastor also added greatly to the service.

On May 28 Memorial Day will be observed at our church. Dr. C. E. Forlines will be the speaker for the occasion. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this service.

On Saturday evening, April 15, our Christian Endeavor Society held a ocial at the home of Miss Maybelle Hill. After a short program and business session the members hod a most enjoyable social hour.

Class No. 5 held its monthly meeting with Mrs. James Stanfield on the evening of April 13. Everyone had a delightful time. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Clay Holt. Mrs. Sidney Russell will have charge of the program.

The Philathea Class will hold its monthly class meeting with Mrs. G. Holt on Saturday evening, April 29.

Miss Margaret Pickett, a student at High Point College, spent the Easter holidays with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Pickett.

We were very glad to see Mrs. Paul Lowder back at church again on Sunday morning. She has not been able to be with us for some time. REPORTER.

Siler City Church.—The usual routine of services are being presented each week with us. Our beloved pastor is filling all appointments with splendid messages. If we live up to thee wonderful sermons much and lasting good will be accomplished in our church for this year.

The Philathea class had charge of the devotionals in Sunday school on Easter Sunday and presented a very inspiring Easter program consisting of songs, readings, talks, solo and duet, all suitable for the occasion. All present enjoyed it very much. Mr. Isley also brought to us a very beautiful Easter message that morning.

The first Sunday the Baraca class will have charge of the devotionals in Sunday school. This class is composed of some very fine young men and they are preparing a good program. We are trying to create more interest in our Sunday school and gain new members who do not go to Sunday school anywhere.

Our mid-week prayer services are being well attended. We try to have a different leader every other week as our pastor comes only every other Wednesday night. Mr. George Brooks, from the First M. E. church, was with us two weeks ago and gave a splendid talk on "Can God Depend on You?" Next Wednesday night the C. E. Society will have charge.

Everything is moving along nicely in our Auxiliary. We have had one meeting since the new officers have been installed and had good attendance and a good program. Last year was a good year for us, and we hope to do greater things this year with God's help, and co-operation with each other. Each Circle raised a nice sum of money in dues and other work put on by the Circles, and have already started the good work for the present year.

We have the third Sunday in May set for the beginning of our special meeting if it does not conflict with any other meeting here. We trust this may be a great time for all of us and that many souls may be brought into the Kingdom of God. May we ask the prayers of all Christians that is may be a great meeting?

Mrs. Henry Poole has been in Greensboro for the past several days at the bedside of a sick aunt. We miss her so much in Sunday school and church and hope she can soon return home.

Mrs. L. L. Woody's Sunday school class decorated the grave of Miss Lebus Stone last Sunday just after Sunday school. This class makes this an annual affair, as Miss Stone was teacher for a number of years.

The C. E. Society has divided itself into two groups, to create more interest. Miss Minnie Cooper is captain of Group No. 1 and Miss Jay Holt is captain of Group No. 2. These young people are doing splendid work, both in the society and in church work.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—Those who attended the prayer meeting last Wednesday evening, had the pleasure of hearing Rev. Joe H. Lynch, of Lynchburg, Va., who is conducting vesper services at High Point College each evening at 6:30 o'clock. He told us of the great success he has had since beginning his ministry 10 years ago in building up three churches in the city of Lynchburg. He says that he is a staunch believer in the Methodist Protestant church and its future; he is glad tha we have he depression, because this is a time of testing for Christians in their faith and loyalty to the highest ideals. Rev. Mr. Lynch came to N. C. to recuperate from a severe illness. He has been presented a deed for six acres of land in Peakland, an exclusive suburban section of Lynchburg by admiring friends, and a plan for a proposed home to be built thereon. At this prayer service Mrs. John C. Whitesell and Mrs. J. H. Allred sang a lovely old hymn from the Christian church hymnal, entitled "Somebody Must," which was very impressive, the theme of which is that while trusting in God somebody must bear the burdens and responsibilities of life; "will that somebody be you?"

The Woman's Auxiliary gave a chicken-pie supper in the assembly room Friday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock, when a tempting menu was served; besides chicken-pie there were string beans, candied yams, tomatoes, cole slaw, rolls, coffee, and strawberry shortcake; 194 plates were served at attractive tables by pretty young girls and the sum of $45.00 was added to the treasury. Our thanks are due the Standard Coffee Company of this city for the donation of coffee.

At the 11 o'clock service last Sunday morning the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, after the congregation joined in singing "God Bless Our Native Land," and silent prayer, led in an earnest prayer for our President in this time of grave and serious responsibility. He then read extracts from the church discipline and from the Bible in regard to the duties of Christians as to the manufacture and use of inoxicating drinks. He said that legalized beer is a disgrace to any Christian nation, and there must be a line of demarcation between professing Christians and those who are not. Nobody who is publicly known to manufacture or use liquor, shall occupy a seat in this choir or hold an official position in this church. He then delivered an impressive message on the theme, "How Christ Won a Great Scholar." Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews and a great scholar, came to Jesus by night and asked him the way of salvation, to which Jesus bluntly replied, "Ye must be born again." This reply relative to the new birth must have shaken his self-righteousness, but his later record in regard to Jesus was in his favor. He voted for his acquittal at the trial, and later helped Joseph of Arimathea with his burial. No doubt he regretted not having taken an open and definite stand for Jesus as his Saviour. It is not enough to admire the mircles of Christ or to acknowledge His mission; there must be personal surrender and commitment to His cause. Sin is any rebellion against God and leads downward. What America needs is to have her self-righteousness shaken. What a spectacle in a so-called Christian land when teachers are obliged to beg for a mere pittance for the necessities of life, and an athletic coach often gets a bigger salary than a teacher. More attention is paid to the physical needs of our children than the moral and intellectual. As seel must be re-smelted, a lot of us have alloy in our livee asd need to have our outlook changed. If you have a sense of moral misbehavior in your life, you would better get right with God. Who will win souls unless you and I do? If your boy and mine start on the downward road, where will they land? I want to go on record against the liquor traffic. No one of us is so broken in body or mind but may come to Christ and be made clean." Though we have lost in the beer fight and the action of our Legislature in North Carolina in making legal the sale of light wines and beer has discouraged us, it is no time for us as Christians to give up. We must buckle our armor a little tighter and fight a little harder in this issue that menaces the strength of our young manhood and the purity of our innocent girlhood. With Ella Wheeler Wilcox let us exclaim:

"Let those who have failed take courage;
Tho' the enemy seems to have won,
Tho' his ranks be strong, if he be in the wrong,
The battle is not yet done;
For as sure as the morning follows
The darkest hour of night,
No question is ever settled
Until it is settled right."

On Monday afternoon the different Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held interesting meetings as follows; No. 1, Mrs. J. S. Pickett, chairman, with Mrs. Ross Davis, 605 Denny street; No. 2, Mrs. R. M. Andrews, chairman, with Mrs. H. G. Ferree, corner Richardson and Steele streets; No. 3, Mrs. W. C. Ferree, chairman, with Mrs. J. H. Walker, 630 Colonial Drive; No. 4, Mrs. S. S. Coe, chairman, with Mrs. P. S. Kennett, 911 West College Drive; No. 5, Mrs. R. H. Gunn, chairman, with Mrs. R. W. Riggans, 1117 Greenway Drive. The evening Circles will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m.; No. 6, Mrs. Ralph Vance, chairman, with Mrs. T. R. Ballard, 316 Howell street, and No. 7, Miss Blanche Burgess, chairman, with Mrs. W. L. Albertson, 210 Montlieu Avenue.

At the weekly meeting of the Senior C. E. Society on Muday evening Misses Josephine Ferguson and Callie Warner were in charge of the program, the topic being "The Story That Jesus Told."

The annual music recital was given at High Point College on Saturday evening, April 29, when a program of beautiful piano and voice selections was rendered by pupils of Prof. E. B. Stimson. Tuesday evening the Seniors will present their annual play, "The Hidden Guest," in the college auditorium. This play is coached by Miss Ruth Bellamy, head of the Dramatics department, and is centered around college life, with emphasis on fraternity initiations. Leading roles will be presented by Miss Ina McAdams, one of First church's girls, by Dwight Davidson, of Gibsonville, and by C. L. Gray, Jr. Proceeds will be used for class projects during Commencement.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Katherine Murr and Mr. Ray Nibblink, which will take place in Kinston, N. C., on May 27. The bride-to-be once lived here and was a student at High Point College, but has made her home in Kinston since last September.

Congratulations are extended to the following boys and girls of our church whose names appear on the honor roll of our local High School and Junior High: Seniors, Margaret Dixon; Sophomores, Dorothy Davis, Ruth Lee; Freshmen, Joe Gray, Reginald Hinshaw, Raymond York, Y. E. Cecil, Mildred Free; in the Junior High School, Joseph Farmer, Emory Gibson, Louise Boyd, Burke Koontz, Jack Lee.

Many friends of Mrs. W. A. Davis, who underwent a serious operation in Burrus Memorial Hospital last week, will be pleased to learn that she is recovering satisfactorily. We earnestly hope that her recovery will be rapid, and that she will soon be able to attend church services.

Clyde Cox, Jr., has an attack of inflammatory rheumatism at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, and physcians say that he must remain in bed for three months. This is very unusual for a child of his age.

Mrs. Stanley Owen, of Lexington, was the guest of Mrs. C. L. Whitaker last Sunday and attended church services.

A host of friends of Capt. A. M. Rankin will be much pleased to know that he has improved in health, and is able to attend prayer meeting and church services.

Dr. P. E. Lindley and Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison left Monday morning for Westminster, Md., to attend the Commencement of the Theological Seminary. This (Tuesday) evening Dr. Lindley will deliver the annual address to the 14 graduates, one of whom is James T. Bowman, one of our young North Carolina ministers, who at one time was a student at High Point College. Dr. Lindley and party made the trip by motor.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—We are glad to report that the sickness in our midst which necessitated a postponement of Sunday school school has subsided to the extent that all church services are once more in full swing.

Bro. Hunter gave us one of his best sermons the fourths Sunday night. He spoke along the line of the two kinds of voices, namely: that of Christ and that of the devil. Brother Hunter very plainly stated that it will not do to always let your "still small voice" be your guide, because the voice might be just a temptation in a new dress. He also stated that if that voice told you to drink liquor, beer, or any other intoxicating drink, it was most assuredly the voice of the devil. If Brother Hunter's hearers would take heed and closely consider the truths stated in his sermons, we would surely be blessed in every way.

We are very happy to report that our church has just stood the test of two coats of paint and has come through much whiter.

The home-coming day for Mount Zion, which is generally held the third Sunday in May, will be held the third Sunday in June this year. This church, through the medium of this paper' wishes to invite all of its members, friends and, in fact, it wishes to invite everybody to meet at Mount Zion on the third Sunday in June.

The second quarterly conference with be held at Pilot church on Saturday evening before the third Sunday in May at 2 o'clock.

Kenneth, the small son of M. R. Stewart, had the misfortune to get bitten by a dog on Sunday, April 24. The little boy was so badly lacerated around his mouth that it took a couple of stitches to sew it up. The dog was found to be a victim of hydrophobia by a laboratory technician, and Dr. G. E. Stone, of King, N. C., is giving the child the Pasteur treatment. We hope for him a speedy recovery.

Since spring is really here and we farmers are truly going to be very busy during the week, we are to feel like resting on Sunday, but let all of us attend every church service and then take our rest.

Union Chapel, Granville Charge—The Woman's Misionary Auxiliary met Thursday night with Mrs. Russell Overby. The new officers were installed by our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer. The attendance was very good and it was much enjoyed by all, especially the refreshments, which consisted of grape juice and cookies.

Mr. G. Fred Finch suggested last Sunday that we have a marble slab placed on the front of the church giving historical information concerning the building. This will be done at an early date.

Quite a number of our people attended the fifth Sunday Rally at Rehoboth Sunday and enjoyed it very much.

MRS. EUGENE HUFF, Reporter.

Spring Church Charge.—Master William Robinson, who was carried to Roanoke Rapids Hospital a week ago, is improving.

Miss Evelyn Grant is also improving.

Each of these two children had pneumonia.

Our Area Meeting will be held the fourth Sunday in May in Ebenezer church at 2 p. m.

Wm. H. NEESE.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Just closed a two weeks' revival last Sunday night. Our pastor did all the preaching, and he was at his best; preached some inspiring sermons and held a good congregation all through the meeting. We had the co-operation of other churches, especially the Baptist church. The singing was good, with Mr. C. E. Wilson as leader, and Miss Lillian Wade, pianist. There were only eight converts, but out of this number we are expecting some new members to join the church.

Since our last report our church has purchased 100 new song books, "Hymns of Praise." It is a nice leather-bound book and should last a long time with proper care.

Mrs. Millaway has been at home from the hospital for three weeks and is improving slowly. She is still confined to her room.

Mrs. N. Brittain was a welcome visitor at church Sunday. She is spending a few days in town visiting old friends. We are always glad to have her come back.

The Royal Blue class will hold a class meeting next Friday night in the Hut to elect new officers and to transact other business.

Last Sunday the pastor asked each Sunday school teacher to sit with his class for the preaching hour.

Prayer meeting and choir practice will be held Wednesday night.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

West End, Thomasville.—Rev. H. W. Bell, our pastor, brought to us a wonderful message Sunday night, April 30. Reid Long conducted the devotionals.

The Senior C. E. Society had charge of the mid-week prayer meeting last week.

Class No. 5 held its regular monthly class meeting Thursday night, April 20, at the home of Miss Edna Clinard.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Hobb Briles Friday night, April 28th, with 16 members present.

Eugene Ledwell, who was seriously injured in a wreck some time ago, is improving at the Guilford General Hospital.

English Street Church, High Point—We were delighted to have Rev. Mr. Moore, retired M. E. minister, to preach for us at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday. He brouvht a wonderful message on "Sin and the Blood." His text was found in John 1:7. He pointed out and illustrated the growth of sin, the deception of sin, moral insanity produced by sin, marks and disfigurations caused by sin. In conclusion he pointed out beautifully the cleansing power of Jesus.

We also had a visiting minister to bring the evening sermon. Rev. Wilbur Hutchins, a young Baptist minister of this city, brought a very inspiring sermon at this time. He used as his text Proverbs 3:6. The test of our religion was his theme. To be a Christian does not mean perfection. The test of religion rightfully depends on: home life, our attitude toward our work, play, and fellowman, our attitude toward moral questions, our attitude toward God in trying to live up to His standards. Lastly, our personal life, our thoughts, words, and actions. At this service we were favored with a solo by Miss Maxine Kennedy. She sang "Satisfied With Jesus." We were glad to have both of these ministers with us and hope they will have the opportunity to be with us again.

On last Sunday the C. E. Society had a try-out program for the efficiency contest. The topic used was "Four Kinds of Soil." Miss Maxine Kennedy was in charge of the program. The participants were Misses Callie Loflin, Tressie Caudle, Carrie Moore, and Mr. Charmlie Loflin.

Calvary, Greensboro.—It was not my intentio nto report our last Sunday's services, but we got our wires crossed, and I'm sort of pinch-hitting for our reporter.

However, it was a great day; the best, I think, of these anniversary occasions. We had 236 present in Sunday school. We had set 250 as our goal, and with a little more effort, would have reached it.

The 11 o'clock service found a congregation present that well filled the house, interested and worshipful. Dr. Spahr, under whose ministry in Grace church, Calvary church began its career, led in the opening prayer. The pastor called the roll of the honored dead, and as the names were called girls came forward bearing white carnations which were placed in a vase on the altar, the congregation standing in tribute. Then followed the calling of the roll of the living membership. These were asked not only to respond with "Present" but with a present, a gift, for the church debt; $101.25 was the amount of the offering, which, in times like these, is not so bad. Then followed the sermon by Dr. Andrews, a splendid message, well received. (He will probably give you in his letter this week his impressions of the services, so I shall not enlarge on it).

After a dinner such as the Calvary women are famous for, served on tables in the rear of the church, we returned to the auditorium for the afternoon service. The pastor presented a couple of charts showing the numerical growth during the past nine years, and the amount raised on church debt and the total amount raised. This was followed by an address by Dr. G. I. Humphreys, who brought the greetings of the Methodist Protestant churches in Greensboro, and then brought us a mesasge of encouragement on his own account. This brought to a close the services of the day.

The pastor wishes to make ackowledgement to the choir for special music; to those who furnished flowers; to the men and the women who gave of their time and effort to get the church building and the grounds ready; to our special guests, preachers, for their helpful messages.

We are hoping that next week the reporter will give her impressions of the day.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

"OBEY MY WILL"

As the days seem dark and dreary,
And as things keep going wrong,
Some poor souls are sad and weary,
So they can not sing a song.
God knows whose sins are piled up high,
He worries o'er them still;
Some day they'll come to Him with a sigh,
But He answers, "Obey my will."

They then open the blessed Book,
And there find a welcomed rest—
"Our sins He will remove, Oh, look!
He always does what's best."
How glad they are God knows their heart,
And finds their courage set;
For all the time He does His part,
And never does regret.

Sometimes their spirits are so weak,
There's nothing they can do;
Then in the Holy Book they seek,
And find God's word is true.
Their hearts are full of joy and cheer,
Their eyes from tears are dry;
They live a life without a fear,
To someday meet God on high.

—JUNE 8th—WHO?

MARRIED

Miller-Allison

Miss Edith Miller and Mr. Argus Guy Allison were united in matrimony in the Asheville Methodist Protestant church on Sunday afternoon, April 23, at 3:00 o'clock, with the Rev. J. Elwood Carroll officiating.

These two young people are outstanding members of the Asheville Methodist Protestant church, therefore their marriage attracted many members of the congregation as well as relatives of the contracing parties. During the ceremony Miss Lillian Kearney sang two numbers and Miss Novella McIntire accompanied her at the piano.

Mr. Allison is the youngest son of L. C. and Celia Allison, of Conestee street, while Mrs. Allison is the daughter of Marcellus and the late Mrs. Miller, of Candler. Mr. and Mrs. Allison are making their home at 842 Haywood Road.

Brown-Warren

Miss Evelyn Brown and Mr. Hilliard Warren, of Candler, motored to Asheville on Thursday, April 27, and were united in marriage at the Methodist Protestant church by the Rev. J. Elwood Carroll.

Mr. Warren is in the employment of one of our Asheville members, Mr. Fred Carter, and will continue to make his home near the foot of Mount Pisgah.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Pugh

Mr. R. W. Pugh, after an illness of several months of paralysis, passed away at the turn of the day Tuesday morning.

He had been a faithful member of Gray's Chapel church for 40 years, attending as long as health and conditions would permit.

Mr. Pugh was one of Milboro's leading citizen's, and had lived a useful and influential life.

For many years he had been postmaster at this place. He will be greatly missed in his church and community.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Lou Allred before marriage. Three children, Mrs. Gertrude Wood of Randleman, and Mr. Ray and Miss Gladys Pugh of the home. One brother, George Pugh of Franklinville, and a sister, Mrs. W. J. Blair of Greensboro.

Funeral service were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Gray's Chapel M. P. church by the pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. A. O. Lindley.

The remains were laid to rest in the presence of a large concourse of sympathizing relatives and friends, beneath a mound of beautiful flowers, to await the Resurrection Morn.

"I cannot say, and will not say,
That he is dead; he is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wondered into an unknown land.
And left us dreamig how very fair
It eeds must be since he lingers there.
And you, oh, you, who the wildest yearn,
For the old time step and the gladreturn;
Think of him still as the same. I say,
He is not dead, he is just away.

MRS. C. E.JULIAN.

Mrs. Martha E. Lowe

Mrs. Martha E. Lowe, the daughter of the late Jonathan and Margaret Hardin Causey, was born in the old Causey home which is only a few hundred yards from Tabernacle church in Guilford county, on February 21, 1855. She died on March 28, 1933, in the home of her loving niece, Mrs. R. L. Jones, near the place of her birth and where she spent her entire life. At her death her age was 77 years, one month and seven days. She was the last survivor of the Jonathan Causey family, which was a family of four daughters and three sons, and which family was highly esteemed in this community and well known in the activities of Tabernacle church.

In 1893 she became the wife of the late Hugh Lee Lowe, of Chatham County. Mr. Lowe preceded her in death more than six years. After the death of her husband she made her home with her niece, Mrs. R. L. Jones, where she was loved and properly cared for to the end.

In early life she became a Christian and joined Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church, where she remained a faithful and consistent member until she was called to be a member of the Church Triumphant. She was a true and devoted Christian and she greatly loved the church of which she was a part. It was one of her great delights to converse with favor relative to the church, always having a good word for the various pastors she remembered so well and loved so much.

While "Aunt Mat," as she was lovingly called, has passed from this life, and a vacancy has been made in the home, the church and the community, she still lives in the hearts of those who knew her and loved her, and she lives in a newly found home prepared for her by her Savior in the better land.

There are no relatives nearer than nephews and nieces and one brother-in-law, Mr. Milton Lowe, of Chatham County, and one sister-in-law, Mrs. Guy Branson, of Durham, N. C., but there are hosts of friends who are sad and mourning because of the going of one much loved. We are sad and our hearts are bleeding, but it is comforting to sing with the poet:

Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last;

In condescending love,
Thy ceaseless prayer He heard,
And bade thee suddenly remove
To thy complete reward.

With saints enthroned on high,
Thou dost thy Lord proclaim,
And still to God salvation cry,
Salvation to the Lamb!

O happy, happy soul!
In ecstasies of praise,
Long as eternal ages roll,
Thou seest thy Savior's face.

The funeral was conducted in the Tabernacle church on the afternoon of March 30 by the writer, assisted by Revs. T. M. Johnson, H. L. Isley and T. F. McCulloch. A large number of friends were present and by their presence testified to their love for the beautiful life of the departed friend. The body of Sister Lowe was then laid to rest in the church yard by the side of that of her husband where both are waiting for the coming of the great day of resurrection.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

In Memory of Our Father

Mr. Isaac Brown, the son of Mr. Nathaniel and Susan Anna Cole Brown, was born October 3, 1856, and died April 1, 1933. He married Miss Isabel Delilah Henry, the daughter of Mr. John Henry and and Mrs. Martha Ann Phillip Henry, and she departed this life June 4th, 1916. To this union were born nine children. He also leaves 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were coducted Monday evening, April 3rd, at 2 o'clock, at Brower's Chapel Methodist Protestant church, the pastor, Rev. Q. L. Joyner, assisted by Rev. Joel B. Trogdon, of Randleman, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, of Asheboro, conducted the services. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

Our father was good and kind to us children and his fellowman. He took a deep interest in the sick, going to see them and lending a helping hand when he could.

On January 12 he was taken ill with flu and pneumonia. Though he regained sufficient strength to be up around the house, he was taken ill again, and on Thursday he was taken desperately ill and fell asleep on the following Saturday night. He never suffered any aches or pains during his illness; neither did he murmur nor complain, but was always cheerful. All was done for him that was possible by physicians, loving children and faithful friends and neighbors. God doeth all things well. Many times during his life he had spoken of his readiness for Christ's coming; nothing stood between him and his Savior.

Last summer he asked Rev. Mr. Trogdon to preach his funeral if he was living when he died, for he had always loved Mr. Trogdon and family and asked that "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Asleep in Jesus" be sung at his funeral.

My father loved his Bible and read it daily and trasured it. He loved all of his children and was happy to have them and their families visit his home. How sad is our home now without our father and mother! The clouds are dark and the way lonely; but it is well with you over whose path shines the star of faith and "it is well" since they are safe in the Shepherd's arms. Death is an event that all must meet; yet when death takes from us our loved ones we feel that our sorrow is unbearable; here is an aching void that can never be healed, a vacant chair that can never by filled, a voice which was music to our ears; that last word is hushed in death; that voice will ever whisper in our ears until we, too, shall meet that event.

EFFIE BROWN.

Sharpe

Mrs. Anna Crabtree Sharpe, wife of the late L. P. Sharpe, was born in Orange county on December 18, 1858. She passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stella Petty, in Burlington on April 2, 1933. She had been ill for several months and critically ill for a week prior to her death.

Mrs. Sharpe was a member of Friendship Methodist Protestant church, but worshipped in the First Church when her health permitted. She loved the Bible and enjoyed communion with God through prayer. The writer never visited in the home without the request on her part that he read a portion of God's Word and have prayer. Very few people make such a request in these days, yet communion with God through the reading of His Word and prayer is our outstanding and paramount need.

Maye those who grieve her passing be daily blessed of God and find satisfying peace and triumphant power in Him.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

Lineberry

[Written as a memorial by a friend trying in a feeble way to express the sentiments of many.]

Mrs. Charles C. Lineberry, daughter-in-law of the late Rev. A. W. Lineberry was called to her eternal home a few short months ago. She leaves her husband, C. C. Lineberry; one daughter, Mrs. J. W. Sharpe, Jr.; three grandchildren, and many, many friends who will miss the kind and gentle sympathizer.

Many problems of this world, both large and small, that so greatly worry and annoy many of us, never seemed to try the patience in the least of this gentle and trusting soul. She would usually answer to any complaint with a smile and say, "Well, it will be all right." No one ever knew or heard of her speaking an unkind word or doing an unkind deed toward anyone.

She is gone but not forgotten. There is a vacancy in the home that never can be filled. Her place in the little church where she attended so regularly is vacant also. No one could be more loyal and devoted to his church and its welfare than she was. Her presence always seemed a stimulus to the few who worshipped with her in the same faith. People were drawn to her because of her sympathetic and understanding nature. Old and young alike brought their troubles and sorrows to discuss them with her, and they always went away feeling a sense of relief. She was always among the first to visit the homes where someone was sick or troubled, carrying with her a few flowers or some other small token of love, which, with her sweet spirit, always tended to lighten the load of the sufferer. She bore her sever afflictions in the same quiet manner that she had always met and borne the problems of life. In her last days life seemed to slowly ebb away. Finally she passed into the great beyond just as a candle gentle burns lower and lower, then finally goes out.

Our advice to the sorrowing relatives and friends is this: Do not grieve as those who have no hope, but strive to take the life as it was lived by Mrs. Lineberry as your goal, so when the death angel knocks at your door you can say "Come in, all is well with my soul."

A FRIEND.

SHOW ME THE WAY

I do not know
The way to go;
I humbly pray
Show me the way.

My human will
Is wayward still;
Be Thou my shield,
Help me to yield.

Alone, I grope,
With waning hope;
The light to see
Must come from Thee.

I do not know
The way to go;
I humbly pray
Show me the way.

SPECIAL OFFER OF TITHING LITERATURE

The unusual partnership proposition described in Pamphlet No. 38, "Winning Financial Freedom," is proving so popular and effective that we are again offering to furnish any minister, without charge, postage paid, a sufficient quantity of the pamphlet to supply one copy to each member of his official church boards.

If you so request in your order, we will add on "Offer No. 3" package, which contains samples of the 40 pamphlets we publish, about 520 pages, for 60 cents.

When you write please mention the Methodist Protestant Herald; also give your denomination.

* Subsidy paid in full.

This apportionment is based on one subscription to each ten members, which we do not think is too much to expect, or beyond the possibility of attainment. We are urging every pastor, every one who now takes the Herald, and every Herald agent to get busy on their charges and see how quickly these quotas can be reached, and the charges become Herald Honor Roll Charges. Start now, and keep at it until the goal is reached.

UNIFORM DRY PIN

The national temperance organizations have adopted a uniform pin for all friends of the Eighteenth Amendment to wear and display in the present temperance emergency. This is an attractive pin, with a gold alloy rim, carrying the slogan, "Retain 18th Amendment."

The pin has been designed and produced by the new National Prohibition Emergency Committee which was brought into being at the dry temperance conference held in Washington March 7 and 8 to make plans for the fight to retain the Amendment. The National W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League and the other 34 national temperance organizations are co-operating in the functioning of this united committee. Col. John E. Edgerton, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, is the temporary chairman of the Committee and the headquarters are at Washington.

The pins will be sold to individuals for 25 cents each and the profits will go into the treasury of the various dry organizations. Order from National Prohibition Emergency Committee, 642 Investment Building, Washington, D. C.

—JUNE 8th? SEE NEXT WEEK'S PAPER FOR ANSWER!

A PROBLEM IN ARITHMETIC FOR HERALD READERS

Dr. McCulloch's report of the amount received for Herald subscriptions and on the Herald Subsidy in this week's issue covers two weeks. He reports $63.72 as being received for Herald subscriptions; $35.46 is the amount received on Herald Subsidy. This makes a total of $99.18. It costs $67.50 to get out one issue of the Herald. The cost for two weeks is, of course, twice that, or $135.00; $99.18 from $135.00 leaves $35.82. WHO IS GOING TO PAY THAT? Just at present it must come out of the pockets of the printers. I submit that that isn't fair. And it is still more unfair to let it continue from week to week as it has done and will do unless the churches and the membership of the churches do their part. WHAT IS THAT PART? Subscribe for the Herald. If you are in arrears, pay up. Raise the Herald Subsidy for the current year. Lend $500.00 to the Annual Conference until November 15, 1933, to help retire the accumulated deficit for printing the Herald. (This loan may be made by a single individual or organization, or by a group of individuals. Absolute safety is promised, with interest at 6 per cent.)

LET'S RALLY TO THE HERALD, and do it NOW!

Recollections of Mother

Her face was like an angel's,
  Her smile was filled with love,
Her voice was ever sweet,
  With accents of a dove.

She took me on her lap,
  She kissed my hurts away,
She rocked me in her arms
  To sleep at close of day.

She taught me how to live,
  Avoiding deeds of wrong;
She taught me how to pray
  And how to sing a song.

She's up in Heaven now,
  But I remember well
The things she used to do,
  The things she used to tell.

"My Call to Preach"

There come crises in every life, some epochal. There is a tide if taken or neglected at its full determines one's destiny. Thirty-two years ago there came to me a telegram from Conference, then in session, asking if I would accept the pastorate of Roanoke Charge should I be assigned there. Imagine my surprise and confusion. I had never preached a sermon, had never been licensed. A good friend said you can't live on the salary promised, $420.00. We had six dependent children. I had just resigned my position as techer and was ready to move to the farm left me by my father. I had been pent up for years in the schoolroom. I loved rural life. I anticipated the joy I would again have in the open fields and woodlands with their enchantment of song and fragrance. But a crisis had come.

I wired, "I can't decide what answer" to give. That message never reached Conference. The delegate came to see me and insisted that I serve his people. The call was clear. How it came to be so is too strange to relate here. It would seem sensational. The delegate had little to do with it.

I disposed of the stock and farm equipment and soon was on my way to Enfield, a three days' trip of 150 miles. I found a kind, hospitable people, who supplied our needs for two years.

I once heard Dr. H. L. Elderdice deliver an interesting lecture entitled, "The Preacher's Invisible Salary." Every faithful minister receives such a salary. His mission is one of seriousness. He must be earnest, for he is a soul-winner. He rejoices as the work prospers. He must keep in close touch with God, and thus his own soul is fed. He sees also the ludicrous. He stores up a stock of humorous incidents. If he uses these in private sparingly they may be a tonic for him.

I have in 23 years served five charges of splendid people.

G. W. Holmes.

FAITH AND ITS POWER

A party of visitors at the national mint were told by a workman in the smelting-works that if the hand be dipped in water the ladle of molten metal might pour its contents over the palm without burning it. A gentleman and his wife heard the statement. "Perhaps you would like to try it?" said the workman. The gentleman said, shrinking back, "No, thank you. I prefer to accept your word for it!" Then turning to the lady, he said: "Perhaps, madame, you would make the experiment." "Certainly," she replied; and suiting the action to the word, she bared her arm and thrust her hand into a bucket of water, and calmly held it out while the metal was poured over it. Turning to the man, the workman quietly said: "You, sir, it may be, believed; but your wife trusted."

How long shall we be in learning that in all true faith there is this element of entrustment—venture, committal? "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him."—Our Young Covenanters.

—One of our ministers suddenly departed last Friday. Rev. Charles J. Edwards, who lived in Washington, N. C., was walking out some distance from his home when his body dropped to earth and his spirit went back to God who gave it. Life with all it meant to him was over. But he did not depart without leaving his marks on the sands of time. He served a number of our pastoral charges, each one or more years. He left his impress upon them. He took the lead in building a number of churches, notably those of Enfield and Whitakers. He was hopeful in spirit and inspired the people to hopeful action. His geniality won him many friends. Many will be sad when they hear of his sudden departure without a word of farewell. But God knew best the time and manner of his going; we should gracefully submit to the divine will. He leaves Mrs. Edwards and a son and daughter, both married.

FIFTIETH COMMENCEMENT OF WESTMINSTER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

The Fiftieth Commencement activities of the Westminster Theological Seminary began on Sunday morning, April 30, with the Baccalaureate Sermon by President Holloway. The Academic Procession of Faculty, Seniors, and other students filed into the Methodist Protestant Church, Westminster, at 10:45. The musical program of the morning consisted of a solo, "The Holy City," by Herman Secoy, and a Spiritual, "He Never Said a Mumblin' Word," by the Seminary Choir. President Holloway delivered a very forceful sermon on the text, "The Kingdom Is Within You." The church auditorium was filled to capacity, with many out-of-town friends of members of the graduating class present.

The Annual Alumni Sermon was preached on Sunday night by Rev. Clarkson R. Banes, A.B., S.T.B., of the class of 1919, now pastor of Fayette-Bennett Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore. Using the words of the Psalmist concerning "Aaron, the saint of the Lord," the preacher appealed to the men entering the ministery to fulfill the high calling of the saints in this modern day of service for mankind. The Seminary Choir sang on this occasion another of the well-known Spirituals, "Steal Away to Jesus."

On Monday night, May 1, the annual Commencement Play was given by the Seminary Players in the Chapel. The play, presented under the direction of Miss Dorothy Elderdice, of the Department of Public Speaking and Religious Drama, was Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House." The persons in the play were as follows: James Ponsonby Makeshyfte, D.D., the Most Reverend the Lord Bishop of Lancashire, E. Maynard Taylor; The Reverend William Smythe, the Vicar, James T. Bowman; Auntie, the Vicar's Wife, Edith M. Bowman; Mary, their niece, Ernestine O. Amoss; Mr. Robert Smith, a gentleman of necessary occupation, Howard M. Amoss; Rogers, a page-boy, Joseph Addison; Manson, a butler, Zaile Thorla. The director and members of the cast are to be congratulated for this most forceful presentation of a stirring play with its deep religious message. The stage-setting was very effective, made possible to a large extent by the building of the permanent stage by last year's graduating class, and completed by the fine collection of old English furnishings.

The annual meeting of the Board of Governors was held on Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Seminary Library. The graduating exercises were held in the Methodist Protestant Church of Westminster at 8 p. m. on the same day. The Seminary Choir sang "Lord, I Want to Be a Christian." The address to the graduating class was delivered by Rev. Percy E. Lindley, A.M., Litt. D., Dean and Professor of Religious Education, High Point College, North Carolina. It was a timely address to a depression graduating class, the subject being "Signs of a Better World." As evidences of progress the speaker pointed out the great strides which are being made in universal education, health for all, economic welfare, ethical emphasis as seen in social sympathy, and spiritualized religion.

The diploma of the Seminary was then presented to the following: Mabel Goodwin, Clarksburg, West Va.; Joel Robert Helms, Tennile, Ala.; Ellsworth Leroy Jennings, Baltimore, Md.; Charles Walter Saye, Ionia, Mo.; Walter Henry Stone, Jr., Betterton, Md.

The following were awarded the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology: James Talton Bowman, Liberty, N. C.; Jesse Clifford Byrd, Crisfield, Md.; Harold Elgin Cheyney, Ballston, Va.; Arthur William Garvin, Indianapolis, Ind.; Daniel Thurman Huss, Hickory, N. C.; William Kenneth Lyons, Cambridge, Md.; Clarence Arthur Sutton, Cooper, Texas; Wilbur Albert Wilson, Preston, Mo.

The degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology was conferred on the following: Herbert Eugene Hudgins, Hampton, Va.; Miles Samuel Reifsnyder, Westminster, Md.

The Fiftieth Commencement brings a very good year to a close. The student body was the largest in the history of the institution, with an enrollment of 70. In celebration of the Golden Jubilee the student body has published the first Seminary Annual, which bears the appropriate title, The Theolog.

SOME MARKS OF A GOOD MOTHER

> "Her children rise up and call her blessed,
> Her husband also, and he praiseth her."

It is well to observe Mother's Sunday, and this is a fine season of the year for the observance.

For birds and many other creatures this is the season for mating, for building nests, and for starting the family. The mother instinct, and what is of equal importance, intelligent mother care, have a large place in the loving ministrations of mother Nature.

We are inclined to be sentimental when we speak of mother. This is well. For around mother, home, and heaven gather many of the finest thoughts of which we are capable—and the tenderest, sweetest feelings.

But we should not allow ourselves to be too exclusively sentimental. Not all mothers, in all their ways, are thoughtful and wise. Some are careless and prejudiced, and some are even wicked.

Rebecca was foolish in making Jacob her favorite son to the disadvantage of his brother Esau. By her deceit she made it necessary for Jacob to leave home—thus depriving herself of his companionship, and disturbing the harmony of the family. I knew a mother who would not listen to anything unfavorable concerning her sons. She practically encouraged them in deceit. One of them became guilty of fraud, and then of murder, and spent a long term in prison.

However, the great majority of mothers are not only well-meaning, they usually put forth real effort for the well-being of their boys and girls. Note some of the marks of a good mother:

1. A Good Body. Motherhood and house-keeping make heavy demands on the body of a woman. Modern science and inventive genius have done much to aid the modern home-maker, but the modern mother—rich or poor—can find nothing that will make less necessary the possession of a fine, strong, and well-displined body. There are changes in some specifications, but the spirit of the author of the book of Proverbs, in his description of the efficient woman, is still applicable. He says:

> "She girdeth her loins with strength,
> And maketh strong her arms.
> She seeketh wool and flax,
> And worketh willingly with her hands.
> She layeth her hands to the distaff,
> And her hands hold the spindle.
> She riseth also while it is yet night,
> And giveth food to her household,
> And their assigned tasks to her maidens.
> She looketh well to the ways of her household,
> And eateth not the bread of idleness.
> Her children rise up and call her blessed,
> Her husband also, and he praiseth her."

Because the good mother has, and knows the value of a strong and efficient body she should see to it that, so far as it is within her power, her sons and daughters are equally well equipped. They should also be wellinstructed in the purposes and use of their bodies as prospective fathers and mothers.

2. A Good Mind. This is another important mark of a good mother. She has many puzzling problems to solve in the practical administration of the affairs of the family. She has numerous contacts and questions concerned with the outside world. She deals with her children as with intelligent beings. She cannot teach them more than she knows. She cannot raise them to higher levels than those on which her mind is at home. Her reading and thinking and conversation should be of a worthy character. And she should supplement her own efforts by getting her children under the influence of good ministers and teachers who will carry them along further. The mother of my own children left a lasting impression for good on them by reading many good books, and by her intelligent remarks and appreciation.

3. A Sense of Humor. That is a saving thing. Many times it has delivered the family from a difficult situation. Life must not be too much burdened with seriousness. Life itself must not be allowed to become a burden. That is a much-needed message for today! We all require a good measure of clean, wholesome fun. The humorous side of a situation—even in the midst of suffering and distress—must not lose its appeal to us. I like to hear the mother's laugh, to see her smile, to watch her in her capacity of playmate with her children—of all sizes.

4. A Generous Religious Disposition. A wicked mother is a contradiction of terms and qualities. Religion and motherhood belong together. We are not calling for "piousness." She should not be too exacting in her requirements of her children. They are children—God's children—and she is God's helper. The mother should have a healthy feeling for the presence of God. She should live in His presence and have a sense of His love and care. She should have an interesting and wholesome way of implanting in the hearts and minds of the children the way of life that looks up and not down, that looks out and not in, and that lends a hand to every good cause.

George E. Atkinson has written a good little hymn, "Faith of Our Mothers." Here it is:

> "Faith of our Mothers, living still
> In all things beautiful and bright:
> Yea, nobly will we do God's will
> And live our lives as in His sight.
> Faith of our Mothers, Living Faith,
> We will be true to thee till death.
>
> "Faith of our Mothers, living still
> In strong sons' lives and words of praise,
> We humbly own our debt to thee,
> And love thee as in former days.
> Faith of our Mothers, Conquering Faith,
> We will be true to thee till death.
>

> We will be true to thee till death.
>
> "Faith of our Mothers, living still
> In words and truths that ne'er can die,
> Thy sons and daughters ever dear
> Shall claim the faith that brings God nigh.
> Faith of our Mothers, Holy Faith,
> We will be true to thee till death."

LUTHER K. LONG.

THE EARLY CHURCH AND THE CHURCH TRIUMPHANT

(Prepared for Firth Sunday Rally, Rehoboth, Granville Ct.)

I shall deal with the church as a body of believers. Church is a familiar term in the writings of St. Paul. In the Pentateuch, the general assembly of the people of Israel during the wanderings.

After Christ's resurrection He commanded His apostles to wait at Jerusalem for the promise of the Father, the Holy Spirit. They asked Him if He would at this time restore the kingdom to Israel. The point of difficulty with the Jews was the apparent failure of the clear and repeated prophetic promise of a re-gathered Israel established in their own land under their covenanted King. Peter showed them that David himself understood that the dead and risen Christ would fulfill the covenant and sit on his throne, Luke 1:32-33:

"Thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: And he shall reiegn over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Again, Acts 15:14-17—

"Siman hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, after this I will return, and will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.''

Dr. Schofield says this residue of men means the Israelites.

This prophecy is to be fulfilled literally. In the language of the little child, ''If God didn't mean what he said, why didn't he say what he meant?''

Jesus told the apostles in answer to theier inquiry as to the restoration of the kingdom at that time that it was not for them to know the times nor the seasons but they should receive power after the Holy Ghost is come upon them. And they should be witnesses unto the uttermost parts of the earth. The apostles and others, including 120 people tarried in an upper room in Jerusalem ten days waiting for the Spirit and suddenly the Holy Spirit came upon them. After that time, as long as the Gospel was preached to Jews only, the Spirit was imparted to such as believed by the laying on of hands; but when Peter opened the door of the church to the Gentiles in the house Cornelius the Holy Spirit without delay or other condition than faith, was given to those who believed. This is the permanent fact for the entire church age. Every believer is born of the Spirit and indwelt by the Spirit.

The stoning of Stephen was a turning point in the church. Jewish people as a whole had fallen away by the rejection of Jesus as Messiah. Those who accepted Him were the faithful remnant which was to be the beginning of amaking up of God's people. It was not long after the episode of Stephen that St. Peter startled the community of Jerusalem by baptizing Cornelius. St. Paul argued that Jews and Gentiles had to enter equally into the new covenant but he afterwards spoke of the Gentiles as engrafted into the stock of Israel. The church then extended in all directions by the work of the apostles.

Now, we see something of the Holy Spirit's work in establishing the true church and we are today living in the church age when God is calling out a people for His name, the true church, the Bride of Christ adorning herself for the Great Marriage Supper of the Lamb which is to take place at the glorious rapture, the Blessed Hope of the Christian when Christ comes the second time to catch away this church, those believers who are looking for him, loving His appearing, trying to live without spot or blemish. I Thess. 4:13-18:

''But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are aliveand remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent (or precede) them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are live and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words.''

Christ's return for His Bride, the church, is mentioned more than 300 times in the New Testament and inspires Christians to bestir themselves in the spirit of missions to prepare for the consummation of the church, which culminates in the church triumphant which brings in the kingdom with Christ Himself sitting upon the throne of His Father David, God's plan from the beginning to exalt His Son.

Would you have this hope? If there is one here today who is in doubt, all you have to do is to say yes to God with a real sorrow for your sins, ask forgiveness and the Comforter about whom we have been speaking will give you the peace that the world cannot give. ''My peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth give I unto you.''

HATTIE HARRIS PERKINS.

BALKING AT BEER

The wets of Georgia have been urging the Governor to call a special session of the legislature to legalize beer. On May 2nd, according to the Associated Press, Governor Talmadge said he did not consider ''the absence of legal beer'' an emergency, and that if ''schools must depend on debauchery to stay open, they ought to close.''

''The more I study about the thing the more I become convinced that when you go to legislating on any phase of the prohibition question, you've got to take in the whole subject. Legalized beer is not going to stop the drinking of hard liquor—in fact, I think it will encourage it.

''The legal sale of beer is notgoing to cure the prohibition problem in America. I want the church, the people who agitated the bone-dry laws, to take a hand.''

The Governor continued thus: ''Right should come before a platform. A man's conscience should be his guide. A platform is written in a convention, in a rather excited atmosphere, anyhow.''

The Governor holds a sane position on the matter, as reflected in those states and cities where it is now legal. Charlotte has had two convictions of persons who placed the responsibility on beer.

According to the Business Men's Prohibition Foundation, automobile accidents and fatalities during the first four weeks of legalized beer in such cities as Chicago, San Francisco, Buffalo and others have gone up at the rapid rate of from three to five hundred per cent.

Some of us are chuckling to ourselves that it is not selling so well as the venders had anticipated. I hope it can be reduced still further. I am friendly to the suggestion of the W. C. T. U. that the drys boycott all dealers. An organization in West Durham has launched a ''Buy Dry'' movement. May its tribe increase. Let chapters spring up in all our cities.

I am thoroughly pleased with the faint streaks of day that can be seen on the horizon of things. The churches are being stirred in their letharygy by the condition of things and our leaders, or many of them, are girding with a new militancy.

''O Church of God, awake!''

G. H. HENDRY.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Calendar

May—High Point College Month.

June, Second Sunday Children's Day—Offering for Board of Missions.

October—Pay-up month for Annual Conference Budget; Second Sunday in October—Rally and Promotion Day.

Nov. 8-13—Annual Conference—TO MEET WHERE? Think of this, no place to go.

Pastors' Report Blanks

We are mailing out this week blanks for pastors to make their reports to the president. And instead of making a report of the quarter I am asking on this sheet that you report for six months, including all money received to May 14. There is a place on this report blank for the total amount paid to both budgets for six months, for total number of members received, number dismissed and net gain for the period; how many Sunday schools contribute to the Children's Home; how hany have raised the amount assessed for Herald deficit; how many new and renewal subscriptions to the church papers have been secured, etc. We greatly desire that every pastor will fill out the reports with care and mail to me as soon after the 14th of May as possible.

Our most faithful superintendent of the Children's Home and his loyal wife will be at home to every member of the Methodist Protestant Church at the Home on June 8th. No personal gifts will be accepted by them, but all who love them and appreciate the splendid work they are doing there will please carry a silver offering for the children. We are hopeful that the weather will be fine that day, that all the children at the Home shall be well, and that the largest concourse of people ever assembled at the Home shall make this day one long to be remembered.

Churches Inviting the Annual Conference

We have turned over invitations from Rev. G. H. Hendry for the First Church, Charlotte, from Rev. R. C. Stubbins from First Church, Asheboro, from Rev. H. Surratt for Community Church, Thomasville. Dr. Johnson is calling a meeting of the Standing District Committee for May 22 at 909 West College Drive when the decision will be made as to where our next Annual Session will be held.

Liberty Hill Church, Anderson Charge

Rev. J. L. Love, Pastor

We attended an Area Meeting at this church. The meeting was set for Saturday afternoon and was well attended, both pastor and church officials thought. There was a good interest in the meeting shown; Pastor Love believes the meetings have great possibility in them and will plan one with his third quarterly conference when a fuller study will be made of the duties of church officials.

Fairview Church, Anderson Charge

We attended an all-day Home-Coming service at this church on Sunday. There was a large crowd ,much singing, and two speakers. It was a gala day. But these days rarely mean much to the church which holds them. The large number of visitors and extra things done as a rule overshadow the real tasks before the church. We fear this was the case here.

The church grounds had been beautified, the cemetery cleaned off, and flowers laid upon many graves, and the people were happy as they celebrated this event. It has been observed for many years; there is a combination of Mother's Day and Home-Coming—the return of absent members and those who have gone into other churches, so the social feature has a strong grip upon their hearts.

Harmony Church, Yarborough Charge

Rev. J. L. Love, Pastor

We visited this church Sunday night. It was raining, and we were greatly surprised to see 20 or 25 people present. We had a good service. There are some loyal members of our church here, as is evidenced by the fact that one of the members who saw in the Herald of last week that May was the month set apart in which the assessment for High Point College was to be raised, brought me their contribution. That is fine! I thought then and am still thinking that such thoughtfulness and loyalty multiplied by one thousand in our Conference would solve our financial problems.

Pastor Love is being kindly received; the people speak well of his labors and we are hopeful of good results. But when it is remembered that he has four churches to serve which are widely separated, the nearest one to any other being something like 30 miles; add to that a stolid indifference on the part of some whether the church lives or dies, and the disorganized condition of others, it is really surprising that the residue of faithful ones have the heart to try as they do to make the work prosper. Again we say that the problem before our church in this Conference is the enlistment of more members.

These and some other churches in South Carolina which have been members of the North Carolina Conference for many years and have been served by our Conference have been greatly handicapped by their isolation. It takes a marvelously strong church to maintain a good working organization when separated from other churches of the same denomination by 30 or more miles. There is a "no-man'sland" for us, dividing too many of our churches, not only in South Carolina but even in our own state. If by some means we plant our churches in these regions, we would thereby give new zest to those far away units of our Annual Conference.

Plan of Appointments

May 14th—North Davidson charge.

May 17th-18th—Pittsburgh All Boards Meeting.

May 21st—Circuit Rally, Chapel Hill church; afternoon Giles Chapel.

May 22nd—Standing District Committee to meet.

May 24th—Second quarterly conference, Rockingham.

May 28th—High Point College Commencement; City of High Point churches area meeting in the afternoon.

June 4th—Dedication of Piney Grove church; night at South Winston church. R. M. Andrews.

JUNE 8—WHAT? AND WHERE?

A double-barreled affair at the Children's Home, beginning at 10 o'clock Thursday, June 8, and lasting until the middle of the afternoon. The affair has as its main objective the celebration of Dr. and Mrs. Dixon's silver wedding anniversary. And, in addition to that, a Home-Coming for former inmates of the Home and a gathering of all the friends of the Home in North Carolina and elsewhere.

We are not going to take the space in this week's Herald to give the program. That will appear in next week's issue. But the day will be full of interesting events, and will be one long to be remembered.

This notice is to ask you to do two things: First, mark your calendar with a red circle around June 8. It will be a red-letter day, and we don't want you to forget the date. Get ready for it and plan to be there. The second thing, which usually happens on a silver wedding anniversary—begin to get a gift ready. This is to be an unusual gift. It is not going to the couple in whose honor we shall gather. but to the Home of which they are in charge. "No presents, please. A silver offering for our chlidren." That is the simple request which the invitation Dr. and Mrs. Dixon are having sent out carries. And it reflects the fine spirit of these good folks, who have made and are still making such great and unselfish sacrifices for the Home and the children. That gift can come through groups such as Sunday schools, classes, churches, auxiliaries, and through individual gifts. However it comes, we want it to express in a large way our appreciation, first of all, for Dr. and Mrs. Dixon, and our interest in the Home.

Remember the date: JUNE 8th. Remember the place: THE CHILDREN'S HOME. More later.

The Celebration Committee.

"MY LITTLE CHILDREN"

Jesus used the salutation, "My little children," once; Paul once, and the Apostle John six times in his first general Epistle. It expresses the tender affection of an aged pastor, and a spiritual father. Dean Farrar places the date of John's first general Epistle as late as A.D. 97. According to Irenaeus, Polycrates of Ephesus, and Clement of Alexandria, John lived to an extreme old age, and died in the city of Ephesus under the reign of Trajan (98-117 A.D.) There is handed down what seems a reliable tradition that after John became too feeble to either preach extended sermons or even to travel, his friends would carry him into the church at Ephesus where he would raise his hands in blessing, "My little children, love one another."

Happy the pastor who can view his flock and truthfully call them his own spiritual children. That was the joy and glory of that modern apostle, the late Theodore Ledyard Cuyler. Pardon a person reference. Some time ago I came to my present pastorate. Yes, a large congregation greeted me, but I was a stranger to them, and they to me. I had no spiritual children among them. I felt lonely. Since then, however, it has been my privilege to lead them through two gracious revivals. Now as I look over my congregation I find one, or more, in almost every pew that I have knelt at the altar with till he or she "got religion," or others that I have baptized, or have given the right hand of church fellowship. As I look into the faces of my own spiritual children I can better understand John's familiar expression, "My little children."

John was anxious to keep his children from sinning. The ideal and the goal of the Christian life is to live above, and without sinning. Further, John knew that all his children could sin, and probably would. Those who think they have passed the danger of sinning need to read their Bibles, and hear the saints of both the Old and New Testaments sobbing over their sins. King David prayed, "Blot out my transgressions." Paul called himself the chief of sinners. The "we" places the Apostle John in the class with other sinners. Satan through malice, fraud, and deceit caused the fall of our first parents in the Garden, and will deceive the elect today, if possible. While a man has the power of choice, he faces the danger of sinning.

What John was anxious to avert was that if any of his children should sin, that they might not despair. If they were overtaken in a fault, they should go to their Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ. Every sinner has really two Advocates, namely, Jesus Christ before the Father, and the Holy Spirit at the bar of his own heart. John further adds that Jesus is the propitiation for the sins of the world. A Universal Atonement for the sins of the world. Dr. Daniel Poling said, "With me prayer is a sacrament." Both the Christian and the sinner has something to place before the Father that has worth, merit, and that will help and strengtheen his cause. W. A. Ledford.

STUDY THE BIBLE

"Study the Bible, and not about the Bible. Much that is called Bible study is not Bible study at all. Satan kept men for years from any interest in Bible study, but now that there is a great and growing interest in it, he keeps them from real Bible study. Questions about the authorship, date, and the like, of the various Books of the Bible are both interesting and important; but studying these things is not studying the Bible. Mr. Moody once asked a recent graduate of a great university why he did not give his life to teaching the English Bible. The young man replied, 'I don't know anything about the Bible.' 'Why,' Mr. Moody said, 'you have a high-priced professor employed in your university just to teach the English Bible.' The young man said, 'Mr. Moody, would you like to know how we study the Bible? We have spent the last six months trying to find out who wrote the Pentateuch, and we know less about it now than when we began.' That was not Bible study."—R. A. Torrey, D.D.

OUR STORY PAGE

IF MOTHER REMEMBERED

Jamie finished his good breakfast of mush and milk and then toast and chocolate. He gave a big sigh of contentment and went out to the porch, and a big frown came and settled down upon his face and drove away all the sweetness. He sat here for a long time, until mother came out.

"What is the matter, dear?" she asked. "Aren't you going to play this morning?"

"No," said Jamie, crossly. "There is no one to play with except Phyllis, and I do not want to play with her."

"Why not?" mother asked, surprised, for Phyllis was Jamie's best friend.

"Because," said Jamie, "Phyllis was cross yesterday. She didn't want to play the things that I wanted to play; so I'm not going to be nice to her today."

Mother laughed. "Suppose mother should remember yesterday," she said.

Jamie looked up, surprised.

"Suppose mother should remember all those little cross things that her boy did, and then be cross to him the next day," mother added.

Jamie laughed. "I don't think I'd like it," he said.

Then he thought to himself: "How unhappy I'd feel if mother should remember all the crossness and try to pay me back!"

Then he got up and started down the walk. Suddenly he called: "Oh, Phyllis! come on over and let's play."

Phyllis came running over and mother smiled and went into the house.—"Sunbeam."

LOOKING UNTO

Robert had a good, honest father, of whom he was very fond. He early learned to trust him, and "look unto" him for help and advice, in his lessons, his work and his play. When he grew older he still sought advice and companionship to his profit and the satisfaction of his father. A neighbor once said, "Robert continually is looking unto his father."

Janet was a lovely and well disciplined girl. For her mother sought to teach her correctly, and Janet loved to obey, and let her mother direct her ways.

A girl sitting next to her in school did not take her troubles to her mother, or often ask advice and kept many things from her that she should have known. This child was seldom "looking unto" her mother, she went her own ways, to her disadvantage.

Young people have many perplexing things to meet in life and it is good to have someone to keep "looking unto." Such an one should be of untarnished reputation, and good Christian character. Even the older people need such an one, for we are on a journey and will meet many hard and difficult things.

Paul introduces us to one in Hebrews, chapter 12, verse 2. He says this One has been through things, He endured the Cross, despised the shame, and was He a victor? Yes, He ran the race successfully and sat down in an honorable place at "the right hand of God."

Paul tells us to lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, "looking unto" Jesus who is the Author and Finisher of our faith.—The Gospel for the Youth.

THE RECKONING

"Well, Dad," said Morton Holt, as he came into his father's office, "I've about decided to take that position with the U. P. C. bond house."

"I'm sorry to hear that, my boy," said the older man. "You know, as well as I, that the house isn't straight. It will float any stock or bond that it can lay hold of if it thinks it can get rid of it on the public."

"Well, but the public knows that all stocks and bonds aren't safe, and besides, the U. P. C. puts out some safe things."

"Yes," replied Mr. Holt, "enough safe stuff to fatten on the other stuff. No house can long do business on a stock entirely rotten. It's the good stuff that wins them confidence enough to float the other kind."

"Well, but look here, Dad, I've been with my old firm for six years, and it's so fussily conservative about the issues it takes, that houses like the U. P. C. are simply walking away from it. A man has to live. I'm going to get on the band-wagon, not shout at it as it goes by. Money counts. If you have money, you're all right, no matter who kicks at our method. They'll soon forget that."

"I've heard that sort of talk before, my boy. It's old as business. I suppose Judas argued that way when he sold out his Master. But you'll find the world has a longer memory than you think. That isn't what I want to remind you of, though. It's needless to say that crookedness proves a boomerang sooner or later, even as a business game. What I want to say goes deeper than that. If you can tie yourself up in cold blood to that sort of a proposition, then, of course, there's nothing for me to say, except that I'm ashamed of you.

"There are many persons who pawn all their soul's furniture for a few thousand dollars, and lie in an empty chamber. The money seems immediate, and the other values far off and ephemeral. But they're the real ones in the long run. Judas found it so, and hanged himself. I don't imagine he ever thought thirty pieces of silver could look so small—until after he had sold himself. But it's always the same: The reward of dishonor never looks so pitifully mean until you compare it with the thing you have betrayed. You may be sure Benedict Arnold found it out when he sold out his country. There's nothing in the world worth doing wrong for. But you young fellows can't believe it till some day you find yourself staring pitifully at the few pieces of silver in your palm.

"That's all I've got to say," said the father, turning to his desk.

"It's enough," replied the boy. "I stay with the old firm, if I starve!"—Youth's Companion.

Poems for Today

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

AFFIRMATION

Say "I am cleansed,"
Affirm it as true;
Live in full faith,
Christ walks with you.

Say "I am strong,"
Affirm it today;
Cast out false fear,
Love shows the way.

Say "I am healed,"
Affirm it this hour;
Know in your heart
God is all power.

IT'S UP TO YOU

Your thought declares
The day for you,
Of murky shade
Or rosy hue.

Begin the day
With dismal doubt,
And you'll regret
Ere day is out.

But start the day
With sunny smile,
And you will find
The hours worth-while.

Your thought declares
What you will do;
So make your choice,
It's up to you.

GOD THE ONLY POWER

God is the only power,
All else is merely seeming;
We shall better know the Truth
When we cease our dreaming.

God is the only power,
We are in His keeping;
He holds vigil over us,
Awake or gently sleeping.

God is the only power,
In our hearts abiding,
We are now forever safe,
In His love confiding.

God is the only power,
This is well worth knowing;
It will help us in our work,
Reaping what we're sowing.

A GENTLEMAN

He does not boast or give offense;
He has a wealth of common sense.
He yields but never condescends,
He keeps his eyes on all his friends;
He always has a gracious air;
He plays the game and plays it fair.
He speaks with pleasant voice and low;
He shuns all ostentatious show.
He gives without a thought of gain;
He will not gossip or complain.
He is considerate toward the weak;
He does not adulation seek.
He knows precisely what to say;
He scatters sunshine on the way.
He tries to do the best he can;
He is an ideal gentleman.

IT CAN'T BE DONE

If you like to loaf
And lie in bed,
You'll not, young man,
Get far ahead.
Idling, you think,
Is loads of fun,
But it never wins,
It can't be done.

If you would win,
You have to work,
Life's gifts are not
For those who shirk.
So, early to bed
And up with the sun,
There's no other way,
It can't be done.

If you long to reach
A foremost place,
Or a chance to win
In life's great race,
See that each day
Is well begun,
There's no other way,
It can't be done.

THE CROSS

Take up the Cross,
Deny self and sin,
Christ is the way,
Enter thou in.

Take up the Cross,
Follow thou on,
Dark though the night
Soon comes the dawn.

Take up the Cross,
Climb the steep height,
Cast away fear,
Christ is the light.

All will be gain,
There cannot be loss,
Christ is the way,
Take up the Cross.

YOU'RE YOUNG

If you keep strong,
When things go wrong,
And cheerful are,
Though hours are long,—
You're young.

If you impart
Love from the heart,
And fill each day
A noble part,—
You're young.

If you still smile
And laugh the while,
With youthful thoughts
The time beguile,—
You're young.

If you face fears
And bitter tears
With courage bold,
Despite the years,—
You're young.

THE CHOO-CHOO-CHOO!

When I see the train a-going,
Then I want to go along too;
It magnetizes, hypnotizes,
To hear the choo-choo-choo.
'Cause it's going on somewhere,
North or South, East or West,
I really do not care.

I wish I'd been an engineer
And traveled to and fro;
It sets my heart a-beating,
When I hear the whistle blow.
There's something about the sh! sh!
That thrills me through and through,
I feel just like a millionaire
When I'm on the choo-choo-choo.

Oh, I like so much to travel
And to keep right on the go,
The zim-zim-zim and zum-zum-zum
Is the music I love so.
It is in those happy moments
That I'm no longer blue,
For all my worries vanish
When I'm on the choo-choo-choo.

STAND UP

Stand up!
There's work to do,
A test to prove
The man in you.

Stand up!
There's love to give
To make today
A joy to live.

Stand up!
There's truth to show
To struggling men
The way to go.

Stand up!
There's good to do,
A task to make
A prince of you!

A CHILD'S PRAYER

I thank Thee, God,
For Thy dear love,
And for Thy blessings
From above.

Make me humble,
True and kind;
Give to me
The Christ-like mind.

When tonight
I rest in sleep,
I pray Thee God
My life to keep.

INVITATION

"Come unto me,"
This is the test,
"All ye that labor,
I'll give you rest."

Thus spoke the Christ,
Pointing the way,
Offering men
A brighter new day.
